Garin Apple Festival

Orchard preserves a delicious history

BY JESSICA NOËL FLOHR

Does it sometimes seem like the only apples kids consume today are the varieties sold at electronics stores? Perhaps you recall listening, perplexed, as your mother or grandmother said, "This land used to be nothing but orchards!" If you're looking to fit a little more fresh fruit into your family's diet, head over to Hayward this weekend for the Garin Apple Festival.

Hosted by East Bay Regional Park District staff and volunteers, this annual gathering is in its 23rd year and a perfect end to the summer season. The festival recalls days when orchards stretched across the Bay Area and local farms thrived.

Garin Regional Park is tucked away in the Hayward hills, close to the California State University, East Bay campus. From the top of trails at Garin, hikers can view a panorama of the entire San Francisco Bay. Garin is part of a larger park called Dry Creek Pioneer Regional Park that belonged to three sisters, the Meyers sisters, in the early to mid-1900s. After they passed away, the district acquired the land and opened Dry Creek Pioneer Park.

Formerly host to a modest apricot orchard, the apricot trees at Garin unfortunately perished and were replaced with antique apple varieties by a generous apple enthusiast, Emil Linquist. Today, the park maintains nearly 300 apple trees boasting 180 varieties of apples. At the festival, visitors can tickle taste buds and expand their apple experience beyond Granny Smith, Red Delicious, and Fuji.

Volunteers and staff have packed the afternoon with information, educational events, and fun-filled activities. Docent-led tours of the orchard will depart each hour to view the many varieties of apples found

Pet Adoption & Vendor Fair

Interactive workshops, engaging demonstrations, and an opportunity to adopt an animal in need, are all part of Union City Home Depot's Pet Adoption and Vendor Fair on Saturday, September 7. Everyone, including pets, is invited to join in the fun. This event will include a pet adoption drive, vendor fair, do-it-yourself workshops and demonstrations for all ages. Multiple adoption agencies and pet trainers will be present. Activities include demonstrations by Union City Police Department K9 Units as well as information provided by a variety of vendors, including Waggin' Tails, East Bay SPCA, and Behr Paint.

Union City Home Depot Project Manager Madeline Reed and Specialty Assistant Store Manager David Webster came up with the idea for the Fair after Home Depot employees noticed an influx of feral cats in the store parking lot and wanted to help animals in need of a home. Reed and Webster, along with other employees, worked with local animal shelters and adoption agencies to organize the Pet Adoption and Vendor Fair. "We decided to do start this workshop because one of our values is to give back to the community. Because of the circumstances with the feral cats and our partnership with local adoption agencies, we felt this was a positive way we could give back to our community," said Reed.

For the past five years, the Kids' Workshop has been a great success; Union City's Home Depot hopes to have the same success with the Pet Adoption Fair. Participants that bring a can of pet food will be entered in a raffle to win a variety of fun prizes including an elegant doghouse. Children, adults, and pets of all sizes are welcome at the fair!

Is Your Diabetes Under Control?

Washington Hospital Seminar Focuses on Preventing and Treating Foot Sores

If you have diabetes, you know how important it is to keep your diabetes under control. The chronic disease raises the risk for a number of health complications, including foot sores. That may not seem like a big problem, but diabetes-related ulcers can lead to amputation and studies show that people with diabetes who develop ulcers are at much greater risk for premature death.

"Patients who have a diabetic foot ulcer that results in amputation have the same chance of premature death as someone with lung cancer," said Dr. Prasad Kilaru, a local plastic surgeon and medical director for the Washington Center for Wound Healing and Hyperbaric Medicine. "The best medicine is prevention.

Keeping diabetes under control significantly reduces the risk of developing foot ulcers."

Dr. Kilaru will offer other tips for preventing foot sores when he presents "Treatment and Prevention of Diabetes-Related Ulcers" on Thursday, September 5, from 7 to 8 p.m. The seminar is part of Washington Hospital's free monthly Diabetes Matters education series and will be held at the Conrad E. Anderson, M.D. Auditorium, 2500 Mowry Avenue (Washington West), in Fremont.

Diabetes is a chronic disease that occurs when the body does not produce enough insulin or is not able to use it properly. Insulin is a hormone needed to convert sugars and starchy foods into energy. When this process doesn't work properly, glucose in the blood can get too high and lead to complications.

Dr. Prasad Kilaru, medical director for the Washington Center for Wound Healing and Hyperbaric Medicine, will offer tips for preventing foot sores, a common complication of diabetes. He will discuss "Treatment and Prevention of Diabetes-Related Ulcers" on Thursday, September 5, from 7 to 8 p.m. The seminar is part of Washington Hospital's free monthly Diabetes Matters education series and will be held at the Conrad E. Anderson, M.D. Auditorium, 2500 Mowry Avenue in Fremont.

High glucose levels in the blood can damage nerve fibers over time, particularly in the legs and feet, making it difficult to feel sensation, Dr. Kilaru explained. This nerve damage is called diabetic neuropathy. Diabetes can also decrease circulation and immune response, increasing the risk for ulcers.

The feet are the most common area for ulcers to develop, although they can occur on the legs and other parts of the body. With a decreased ability to feel pain, people with diabetes often can't feel when a sore is developing.

"They might get a pebble in their shoe or maybe their shoe rubs, but they can't feel it," he said. "Also, when diabetic neuropathy gets bad, the foot starts to collapse, and now parts of the foot are under pressure that they weren't under before. The decreased circulation and immune response makes it much harder for wounds to heal."

Stay Vigilant

Preventing foot sores is the best way to avoid amputations and premature death. Dr. Kilaru said it's important for people with diabetes to stay vigilant and check their feet regularly.

"It's best to set a regular routine of checking their feet before bed or after their shower in the morning," he added. "They need to look for cracks in the skin or sores, looking between the toes and examining both the tops and bottoms of the feet."

People with diabetes also need to keep their blood glucose levels under control to reduce the risk of diabetic neuropathy and other health complications. They need to test their blood glucose regularly and take their medications as prescribed, he said.

Diet is also critical. People with diabetes need to reduce their intake of carbohydrates, salt, and saturated fat through proper portion control. They may want to work with a dietitian to create a meal plan that works for them, he suggested.

Physical activity can help to maintain a healthy weight. Even moderate weight loss can help to reduce blood glucose levels, Dr. Kilaru said.

Washington Hospital Cardiologist Conducting Clinical Trials of 'Bioresorbable' Artery Implants

Cardiologist Ash Jain, M.D., is conducting clinical trials of the world's first "bioresorbable," drug-eluting "scaffold" implants for coronary artery disease. Dr. Jain was among the first to be chosen for participation in the trials because of his extensive experience in conducting various clinical trials of other stents. Washington Hospital's Heart Program, including the state-of-the-art digital vascular imaging laboratories, serves more than 3,500 adult cardiac, vascular and electrophysiology patients annually. To learn more about cardiac care at Washington Hospital, visit www.whhs.com/heart.

Since the end of May, cardiologist Ash Jain, M.D., has been conducting clinical trials of the world's first "bioresorbable," drug-eluting "scaffold" implants for coronary artery disease.

Drug-eluting (also called drug-coated) coronary stents that are currently the standard of care are metal-mesh tubes that prop open a blocked artery to the heart and slowly release drugs to help keep the blood vessel from re-closing. Unlike metal stents – which are permanent implants – the Absorb™ bioresorbable vascular scaffold (BVS) is made of a naturally dissolvable material that is commonly used in medical implants such as dissolving sutures. Absorb is referred to as a "scaffold" to indicate that it is a temporary structure, rather than a permanent implant.

Trials of the implants are being conducted at 30 centers nationwide. The randomized, controlled trial will enroll approximately 2,250 patients.

Dr. Jain was among the first to be chosen for participation in the trials because of his extensive experience in conducting various clinical trials of other stents. He has been involved in several previous clinical trials of heart procedures using stents that are coated with medications to inhibit the buildup of plaque in the arteries. A cardiologist on the medical staff at Washington Hospital for 20 years, Dr. Jain serves as medical director of the hospital's Stroke Program and Invasive Vascular Imaging. He also is medical co-director of Cardiac Care Services and the Vascular Services Program.

Nationwide data indicate drug-coated stents have cut the rate of plaque re-building dramatically.

"Various studies show that patients with significant coronary artery disease who are treated only with balloon angioplasty have a 30 to 35 percent rate of blockage recurrence called restenosis," Dr. Jain notes. "Patients who received stents without drug coatings had a 15 to 20 percent rate of restenosis. In studies of stents coated with drugs, the rate of recurrence was only 5 to 7 percent."

The new implants open the clogged artery and restore blood flow to the heart in the same way metallic stents do. Starting at about 9 months, however, the new implant begins dissolving into the blood vessel over a period of several months, allowing the vessel to resume a more natural function and movement because it is free of a permanent metallic implant.

"The new stents have already been tested and approved for use in Europe and parts of Asia and Latin America," says Dr. Jain. "The trials for more than five years in other countries have shown that the performance of the new stents is as good as other drug-eluting stents, with the added advantage of being resorbed into the body. There have been no unusual complications with the new stents, and the rates of restenosis are similar to those of metallic stents."

Patients who would be considered for participation in the clinical trials include anyone with significant coronary arterial blockage who would be a candidate for other types of stents. So far, Dr. Jain has enrolled eight patients in the trial.

"We have had a 100 percent success rate with the Absorb implants, with no complications," he notes.

"Heart disease is the number one killer of men and women in the United States, and these new stents could revolutionize treatment of heart disease and advance the options for patient care," says Dr. Jain. "Clinical trials are one of the greatest ways to stay on top of best practices, and I am committed to pursuing treatments that could benefit patients in our community."

Early Detection and Prevention of Female Cancers 'Lunch and Learn' Session on Screenings and Risk Reduction

While medical experts continue to make advances in the treatment of various female cancers, early detection and measures to prevent cancer in the first place are still key factors in preventing cancer deaths.

"The majority of cancers occur 'randomly,' but we are making good progress in creating awareness of lifestyle choices and other factors that can put women at higher risk for cancer," says Dr. Vandana B. Sharma, a medical oncologist on the medical staff at Washington Hospital. "And it is still true that finding cancer at an early stage greatly improves the chances that it can be treated successfully."

To help women in the community learn more about the latest screening guidelines for breast, cervical, ovarian and endometrial (uterine) cancers, as well as what lifestyle changes they can make to decrease cancer risks, the Washington Women's Center is offering a Lunch and Learn session featuring Dr. Sharma on Tuesday, September 10 from Noon to 1 p.m. The Women's Center is located at 2500 Mowry Avenue, Suite 150, in Fremont.

Screening Guidelines

"There has been some controversy about the screening guidelines for breast cancer," Dr. Sharma says. "The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force released recommendations in 2009 for women to

Letter to the Editor

Milan Goyal received the rank of Eagle Scout

On August 24, 2013, my brother, Milan Goyal received the rank of Eagle Scout at Troop 199's Court of Honor at Centerville Community Center in Fremont. Designation as Eagle Scout is the highest award for youth members of the Boy Scouts of America. Only four percent of Scouts progress to this level. To earn Scouting's highest award, Milan earned 26 merit badges, did 71 nights of camping, served as a leader in multiple positions in his troop, and completed a major community service project.

Mr. Skip Phair, a representative of our troop's sponsor, opened the Court of Honor. It was a wonderful ceremony run by the Scouts of Troop 199. Several people, including Milan's friends and his primary school teacher, Ms. Priya congratulated Milan on his drive and love of giving to the community. Milan thanked his family, the Scouts, and adult leaders including the Scoutmaster, Mr. Henry Allen for their support.

Milan joined scouting in September 2006 as a Webelo scout in Pack 120. He transitioned to Boy Scouts by joining troop 199.

Milan's fondest memories in Boy Scouts include ziplining at Moaning Caverns, canoeing on the elm river, and attending numerous scouting summer and leadership camps throughout northern California. He has biked and hiked all six Rim Rover trails in the Bay Area multiple times.

For his Eagle Project, Milan worked with Ohlone Wildlife Humane Society's Angela Hartman. He constructed and installed nine 18" x 18" x 24" owl boxes for the conservation of the city's barn owls. Since the diet of barn owls consists of small rodents, Milan's project helped promote the use of "natural pesticides."

Some of Milan's best times in Scouting have been with his leadership friends. Milan has attended San Francisco Bay Area Council's National Youth Leadership Training, named "Brownsea." This year was Milan's third year on Brownsea staff helping teach leadership to younger scouts. He served as Senior Team Leader, one of the highest leadership responsibilities in the program.

Milan is a Senior at Mission San Jose High School.

I am really proud of my brother Milan's achievement and can't wait to see what he accomplishes in the future.

Book release event
Come for the magic

The Hayward Book Shop is hosting a book signing party in honor of the release of Anthony DeRouen's debut novel "Precipice," an epic fantasy tale about two sisters driven to retrieve a stolen book of magic before its power can be harnessed for evil.

"Precipice" offers many intriguing elements to the reader including a dangerous hunt for a book of twisted power, thrilling sword battles and clashes of magic, relentless assaults from ruthless pirates, and the discovery of a companion from the most unlikely of places – the enemy's home front. At the very core of the book, however, stands the utter and complete failure of the world's underpinnings, and the hard choices the protagonists have to make in order to overcome them.

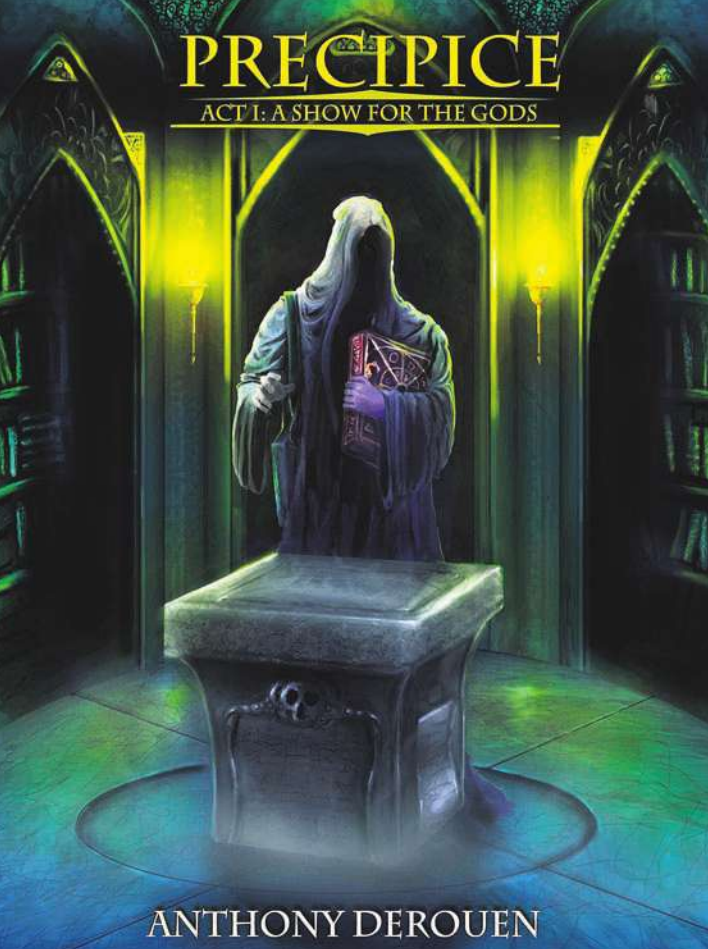

Readers are introduced to the world of Velyn through the eyes of Danika Del Ray, a young woman born with a rare gift that allows her to channel healing energies. Beyond her station as a mystical mender of wounds and eviscerator of disease, she holds a military officer's rank in a country not of her birth. The nations of Velyn have enjoyed relative peace for many years; trade between provinces runs high, and more importantly the trust between kings and lords is firm.

Underneath that blanket of peace, trouble stirs. Shorelines fall under siege, creatures of nightmare overwhelm strongholds, and the Book of Bel'al goes missing. These dark turn of events thrust Danika and her sister Kiruna into widespread conflict. Each sister embarks on a path to right the wrongs, but soon find themselves ensnared by the very laws and social mores that kept them safe all these years.

"Precipice" is the first act in the "A Show for the Gods" series. Four acts are planned with releases every one to two years. Beyond the release of paperbacks and e-books, DeRouen has also envisioned the trials of Danika and Kiruna on film. In 2011 he adapted a scene from "Precipice" into an eight-page script, hired local filmmaking talent, and transformed his Hayward garage into a 14th century dungeon. If the "A Show for the Gods" series garners enough attention, DeRouen pledges to push ahead with his dream of a feature-length presentation.

Accidental Disinheritance

Q: A mother's Will "accidentally" disinherits her daughter. Mother's second husband inherits everything. Can daughter attack Will because of Mother's "mistake?"

A: No.

Children from a prior marriage can cause difficulties with inheritance. The Will must be carefully drafted. Otherwise, someone may be unexpectedly "disinherited."

Spouses often leave everything to the surviving spouse. They expect that the surviving spouse will provide an inheritance to the other's children from a prior marriage "when the time comes."

Unfortunately, that may not happen. After husband and wife are deceased, children of prior marriages may be "at each other's throats."

In the California case of Belva Smith, Belva made a handwritten Will. She left her estate to her daughter, India Rose.

She made another Will years later using a form that she bought. The form was undated and incomplete. But the form was signed with two witnesses. Belva died at age 83.

This second "form" Will provided that Husband was to inherit the entire estate if he survived Wife. If he did not survive

Wife, then the estate provided a trust for her child.

The form contained the following: NOTICE TO THE PERSON WHO SIGNS THIS WILL. THIS FORM CONTAINS A TRUST FOR YOUR DESCENDANTS.

Unfortunately, while the Notice on the form was technically true, the Will only provided for the descendant (daughter) if the Husband did not outlive his wife. If he outlived her, the wording on the form gave him a full, unrestricted inheritance. There was no obligation for him to leave anything to Belva's daughter from her prior marriage.

Sure enough, that's what happened. Second husband Taylor outlived Belva. He claimed his full inheritance from her estate. No trust for Belva's daughter came into existence.

The second husband died shortly thereafter. His son, Charles, from a prior marriage claimed the entire estate.

With competing claims by India Rose versus Charles, the Court found in favor of Charles. Charles was awarded the entire estate. The form used by Belva did not accomplish what she thought and intended.

The decision was final. Although Belva loved her daughter, had a close relationship with her, and had no intention of disinheriting her, she misunderstood the legal effect of the form she used. Her daughter received nothing.

A Will may not be invalidated on a claim that the maker misunderstood. The language of the document controls the inheritance. If the legal rule were otherwise, "a great deal of uncertainty would be introduced," as noted by the Court. The outcome of estate distributions "would be significantly unsettled."

While "mistake" is not a basis to attack a Will, there are other ways to attack. These include fraud and undue influence on the maker of the Will.

THE LESSONS: Don't use a "form" that you buy. Careful drafting of a Will or Trust can assure that children of a prior marriage share the inheritance. One should discuss this issue with an experienced lawyer hired to draft the Will or Trust.

Making a handwritten Will or filling out a form is legal, but may have unintended consequences. The wording is critically important.

You would not do your own appendectomy although legal to do so. You would hire a surgeon. Why would you make a Will on your own without expert

Help us catch the 'Snake Lady'

SUBMITTED BY RHEA SERRAN

On August 21st, an elderly female victim was approached in front of her residence by the depicted female suspect. The suspect told the victim that she worked for "The City" in the pest control department. The suspect used a ruse, telling the victim that there was a snake infestation in the area and that she needed to check the victim's backyard for snakes. The victim showed the suspect to the backyard where suspect distracted the victim for 30 minutes, while allegedly checking for snakes. The suspect then left the area on foot (no vehicle seen). When the victim went back inside she found the house ransacked and property, including jewelry, cash, and personal documents taken. The victim described the suspect as a Hispanic female adult, 35-45 years old, wearing a navy blue baseball hat with the word "CITY" across the front. The victim said that the suspect had short blonde hair under the cap - but she believed the blonde hair was likely a wig. The suspect was also wearing a dark green work shirt with an unknown round patch on the left chest. The suspect had a nose ring, a lip ring, and a tongue piercing.

Please contact Union City Police Detective Cordero with any suspect information at 510-471-1365. Those wishing to remain anonymous can contact the tips line by calling 510-675-5207 or email Tips@union-city.org.

 CSO D. Gott investigated a string of thefts from mail boxes. These particular theft(s) occurred in the 41200 block of Trenouth. At approximately 8:50 p.m. officers responded to a strong armed robbery attempt that occurred in the staging area near the intersection of Paseo Padre Parkway/Isherwood Way. A male suspect approached the victim who was sitting in the passenger seat of a vehicle and stated he was lost and asked to borrow her phone. The victim, trying to assist the lost man, took out her phone in an attempt to make a call for him. The suspect then began to yell and opened the car door and entered the vehicle in an attempt to rip the victim's phone out of her hand. The suspect was unsuccessful and the victim called 9-1-1. A Fremont Officer was in the area and arrived on scene within one minute. The officer contacted the suspect in the Isherwood Staging Area parking lot. The suspect disobeyed all orders of the officer and fought with him for several minutes until other officers arrived on scene to assist in the arrest.

At approximately 9:50 p.m., two suspects entered the McDonalds restaurant on Thornton Ave wearing masks and armed with handguns. The suspects demand cash and ushered all of the employees back into the walk-in refrigerator where they ordered them to stay. Units working the search at Quarry Lakes broke and responded to the McDonalds robbery. Subsequent investigation led units to a residence in Union City where one suspect in the robbery was taken into custody. Detectives were called out to assist and the investigation continued to a second location in Hayward on Sunday, where two additional suspects were taken into custody. The suspect vehicle, one firearm, and the loss from McDonald's was recovered. We'd like to thank Union City and Hayward PD for their assistance.

Sunday, August 25
 CSO's responded to the 38000 block of Moore Drive to investigate a residential burglary that occurred the prior day. An adult female who was wearing official uniform-like clothing contacted the resident and said she was with City of Fremont Animal Control. She stated she was looking for poisonous snakes and needed to look around the house and take measurements in the back yard. All of the residents from the home went with her into the back yard and an unknown suspect burglarized jewelry from inside the house. CSO Baca and Allen investigating. Similar incident reported by Union City PD last week.

Two male suspects tried stealing beer at the 7 Hills Food Store located on the 36400 block of Fremont Blvd. and then fought with the clerks as they tried to escape. Officers stopped three suspects and two were positively identified. The loss from the robbery was recovered. Investigation by Ofc. Roberts and FTO Smith.

Monday, August 26
 At approximately 10:20 p.m. Officers were dispatched to investigate a late reported strong-arm robbery that occurred in the area of Alvarado/Lake Arrowhead. The victim reported that on Sunday she was walking with her grandchildren on the pedestrian walkway from Alvarado Blvd. and Jenkinson Way. While walking, she was approached by a suspect who attempted to rip her gold chain from around her neck. The suspect is described as a black male adult between 20-25 years old, 5'4" to 5'6", dark complexion, very thin build, last seen wearing a black t-shirt and blue baggy jeans. A black sedan was seen in the area.

Tuesday, August 27
 Ofc. Harvey investigated two burglaries and two vandalism of classrooms at Thornton Jr. High School. A resident on Terra Cotta Circle called to report his house had been burglarized on Saturday (8/24). The suspects are the individuals posing as animal control officers. This brings the total to two burglaries and one attempt. The identified area that the suspects were targeting on Saturday include: Niles, Canyon Heights, Kimber, Mission View and the Cherry/Guardino areas. The time frame was from noon - approximately 6:00 p.m. The suspects are described as driving a grey or silver Land Rover.

The female suspect is described as a white or Hispanic female with an accent, 5'-5'3", medium/heavy build, wearing a khaki or green uniform like outfit and hat. Two male suspects were also seen in the area and are described as Hispanic male adults, 35-40 years old and also wearing similar uniform like clothing. CSO Aguirre handled this investigation. Please call the Fremont Police Department at 510-790-6800 and select option 3 to report suspicious activity and/or if you have information that may help identify these suspects.

At approximately 12:20 p.m. a homeowner in Glenmoor on Norris Road reported that a male had attempted to enter her backyard and fled after she told him she had called the police. Officers arrived and learned that the suspect had first knocked and rang the doorbell. When the homeowner didn't answer or respond, the suspect attempted to jump the fence to get into the backyard. The resident yelled as the man was halfway over the fence. Officers located the suspect walking southbound on Palmer at approximately 12:37 p.m. He was detained and officers conducted a pat search locating screwdrivers on his person. The victim identified the 18 year old adult

Is Your Diabetes Under Control?

Washington Hospital Seminar Focuses on Preventing and Treating Foot Sores

He will also talk about the treatment of diabetes-related ulcers. They must be treated aggressively to reduce the risk of amputation. "Almost all amputations start with a foot ulcer," Dr. Kilaru said. "Catching these ulcers early and treating them aggressively helps to ensure the wound will heal successfully." The first line of treatment is to cut out the dead skin and treat the infection. If the wound won't heal, Dr. Kilaru may use more advanced therapies such as skin substitutes or hyperbaric oxygen therapy. The skin substitutes are grown in a lab. They contain growth factors that stimulate healing and skin growth, he explained. The substitute skin is placed over the wound. With hyperbaric oxygen therapy, the patient breathes pure oxygen inside a pressurized chamber. The chamber has clear sides to avoid feeling closed in. "High concentrations of oxygen get into the bloodstream, which helps to increase the body's own natural wound-healing capabilities," he said. "We are having a lot of success with these treatments. But I will stress at the seminar that the best way to avoid these types of treatments is to prevent diabetic-related ulcers in the first place." Early Detection and Prevention of Female Cancers 'Lunch and Learn' Session on Screenings and Risk Reduction begin having screening mammography at age 50, and to have mammograms every two years. Other organizations, including the American Cancer Society and the American Society of Clinical Oncology, continue to recommend that women should begin mammography screenings at age 40 - or earlier if they are at high risk - and continue to have a mammogram every year. I will cover the pros and cons of the various screening recommendations to help women understand their options.

Dr. Sharma notes that, unfortunately, there currently are no definitive screening tests or exams to find endometrial or ovarian cancer in women who are at average risk and have no symptoms. "Women who are at high risk for either of these cancers should consult their physicians right away if they experience any suspicious symptoms," she cautions.

Symptoms of endometrial cancer might include:

- Unusual bleeding, spotting or other discharge.
- Pelvic pain.
- Feeling a lump in the pelvic area.
- Unexplained weight loss.

Finding ovarian cancer at an early stage is difficult because the ovaries are deep in the body, and many symptoms of ovarian cancer can also be caused by other conditions. Symptoms might include:

- Abdominal swelling, especially when accompanied by weight loss.
- Pelvic pressure or stomach pain.
- Loss of appetite or a sense of being full quickly.
- Frequent urination or urinary urgency.
- Fatigue.
- Pain during sex.
- Back pain.
- Constipation.
- Changes in your menstrual cycle.

"For breast, uterine and ovarian cancers, it's very important to know your family history, since there can be a strong genetic component to these cancers," Dr. Sharma emphasizes.

Risk Reduction and Cancer Prevention

"We have known for a long time that leading a healthy lifestyle can help reduce your risks for cancer, but there are several recent studies that are highlighting the role that being overweight or obese can play in increasing cancer risk," Dr. Sharma says. "Some studies show, for example, that reducing your weight through proper diet and regular exercise can cut your cancer risk by as much as 50 percent."

Other studies have focused on the cancer risks associated with alcohol consumption.

"In terms of breast cancer risk, there are strong data confirming the role of alcohol," Dr. Sharma explains. "Limiting your weekly alcohol consumption to three 4-ounce servings of wine, beer or hard liquor may reduce the incidence of breast cancer by up to 30 percent."

Another possible preventive measure that may make a difference in your cancer risk is to use aspirin on a daily basis. "Regularly taking one full aspirin a day has shown some effectiveness in cutting people's cancer risk," Dr. Sharma says. "It's important to talk with your doctor before starting a daily aspirin regimen, though, because you have to balance the risks for cancer with the risks for internal bleeding that aspirin might cause."

Dr. Sharma especially encourages young women to take advantage of the vaccines that have been developed to protect against the HPV infections that are the main cause of cervical cancer.

"Cervical cancer is one of the top three cancers worldwide, but with regular Pap smear screenings and treatment of pre-cancerous lesions, we have reduced cervical cancer dramatically in the United States," she says. "And now we have an incredible opportunity to prevent most cervical cancers with these anti-viral vaccines. We are hoping that cervical cancer will soon go the way of smallpox and other viral diseases that have been eradicated by vaccines."

History

Free and Accepted Masons 150th Anniversary

It rained all winter and into spring. Floods covered the lowlands and made travel almost impossible. Hundreds of cattle drowned or starved. Much of the land never had a chance to dry out. Crops were ruined and people were despondent. Scarlet fever devastated many families and killed their children. Civil war ravished the country. In the midst of this turmoil and tumult, fraternal brothers James Beazell, Perry Morrison, Samuel I.

Water District director, Irvington School District superintendent, Dick Condon (first Fremont chief of police), Tony Scafani (Niles school district superintendent), Jack Parry (Fremont City councilman and planning commission member), Roland Terry (1st director of the Boys Club in Fremont), Rollin Cunningham (Fremont city councilman), Clark Redeker (Newark city council member), Alan Hirsch (Irvington businessman) and Randy Griffin (Irvington builder).

Four of the longest serving lodge members include Clark Re-

Marston, Thomas Scott, G.H. Ellsworth, G.M. Kutz and Andrew J. McDavid opened Alameda Lodge No. 167, Free and Accepted Masons on September 9, 1863.

T.J. Walker and Howard Overacker were the first candidates to be initiated. Howard donated an acre from his farm on Niles Road as a site for the first lodge building. The seafaring brothers landed lumber on a point near Alvarado and hauled it by oxen to the building site; Lodge brothers contributed labor and tools to erect a two-story structure. The lower floor was fitted with several bunks and a pantry to assist members who were marooned by heavy rains and unable to return to their homes. A winding stairway illuminated by a brass lantern led to the meeting room on the second floor. Horses and buggies were kept in sheds at the rear of the building.

The lower room served as a banquet hall when needed; it was later rented to provide funds for the lodge. The tenants helped with improvements such as paint and lamps. Trustees of Union High School No. 2 rented the lower floor and fitted the main room for classes which began January 11, 1892.

Lodge members decided in 1910 to sell the property and construct a new hall on Centerville's main street. Gifts and loans by members helped finance the new building which was completed in 1914. The old Masonic Hall served as a residence and even a church over the years. It was demolished to make room for the Fremont Memorial Chapel Mortuary in 1963, the year Alameda Lodge celebrated its 100th anniversary. Officials dedicated a plaque in 1976 to mark the site of the original Alameda Masonic Lodge and first high school in Washington Township.

Alameda Lodge grew from the original seven members to over 350 by 1969. Membership grew so rapidly that they made plans to construct a larger temple, but this never happened. Instead, members have worked to refurbish the temple. It was retrofitted for earthquakes, an elevator was added, the kitchen and dining room were remodeled and the lodge room renovated.

Masonic Temple, 2007

A few artifacts were saved from the old building including the wooden square, rule and gavel, the pedestal for three candles, the huge square lantern which hung on the outside of the wall facing Fremont Street (now Peralta) and the heavy brass lantern that illuminated the winding staircase of the old building. Also, the huge brass key to the Tiler's room is a relic from the ship which brought the lumber for the original hall.

The Principal Tenants and Cardinal Virtues are the backbone of the organization and were the reason for its popularity in the past as well as today. The Principal Tenants of Freemasonry are Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth. The Cardinal Virtues are Temperance, Fortitude, Prudence and Justice. Members of the lodge include men from a wide range of vocations, races and religions who have joined for a variety of reasons. All have been recommended by a current lodge member.

Alameda Lodge No. 167 continues its fraternal tradition in the Tri-City area during this, its one hundred and fiftieth year. Today's two hundred and twenty-eight members maintain a strong presence in the community by supporting public schools, blood drives, child I.D. programs and sponsoring projects that aid widows and orphans.

Local members of the Alameda Lodge have included many prominent people of the community such as: Larry Milnes (director of public works for the City of Fremont), John Pihl (water district director and vice president of Pacific States Steel), Jack Prouty (Alameda County deker, Jack McClellan, Jack Myrick and George Stewart who helped provide information for this story. Steve Fasolis and Neal Greenberg were also helpful.

Telugu Association wins first prize at Independence Day parade

SUBMITTED BY DR. RAMESH KONDA

Bay Area Telugu Association (BATA) has been representing Telugu culture and heritage in the form of a grand float in the yearly Independence Day Parade in California for the past 21 years. Federation of Indian Associations (FIA) organizes this annual function in Fremont to celebrate India's Independence Day. This year, the event, attended by 50,000 people, took place on Aug 17th and Aug 18th. This year, BATA float representing 100 years of Indian Cinema Industry, received first prize.

BATA volunteers Harinath Chikoti, Karun Veligeti, Jhansi Thiruveedula, and Siresha Battula designed the float with a large movie reel and stairs covered with a red carpet representing a movie set complete with a director, camera man, hero and heroine filming a dance routine. The periphery of the float was adorned with cutouts of various famous Telugu cine actors. Additionally, many BATA volunteers dressed in period movie star outfits complete with masks of various cine actors.

Another attraction of the float was a Rickshaw pulled by Ramesh Konda (BATA past president) In olden days, it was a common practice to use a Rickshaw going thru the town to publicize movie releases. A walking group led by BATA Advisors Vijaya Aasuri and Veeru Vuppala called out patriotic slogans such as "Vande Maataram" and "Bharat Maata ki Jai."

BATA extends its deep appreciation to all volunteers who had worked tirelessly to prepare and decorate the float including: Vijaya Aasuri, Veeru Vuppala, Kamesh Malla, Kalyan Kattamuri, Siresha Battula, Harinath Chikoti, Karun Veligeti, Jhansi Thiruveedula, Srilu Veligeti, Ramesh Konda, Yashwant Kudaravalli, Sumanth Pusuluri, Kiran Vinnakota, Kalyani Chikoti, Prasad Mangina, Sridevi Pasupuleti, Rajesh Chavli, Narsimha Rao, Ravi Thiruveedula, Deepika, Deepti, Deepthi, Surekha, Veena, Naresh, Ratna, Deepthi Vasuki, Jyotsna, Shiva, Srikar, Sirisha, Anantha, Kalyani, Swathi, Preeti, Radhika, Manasa, Sudha, Firdos, Sanjay to name a few and a whole host of youth volunteers.

Art Surge

BY BRUCE ROBERTS

A vibrant art scene can counteract gray moods of economic downturns. Hope blossoms with the advent of art throughout Hayward: electrical boxes, library book drop boxes and beautiful murals are popping up everywhere.

Keeping the art scene vibrant, the Hayward Arts Council maintains five art galleries where local artists display their work. In the Foothill Gallery, hope is amplified by the current exhibit of "New Members and Emerging Artists." A dazzling variety of artistic media including watercolors, oils, acrylics, pastels, charcoal, pencil, digital photography, ceramics, and metal sculpture are now on display through Friday, October 18. Twenty new artists are adding their creative talents to the thriving art community in Hayward.

For diversity and ability, Florence Planells-Benjumea takes the prize. She paints in oils—a wonderful shoreline at dusk. She etches—a vividly detailed tiger on scratchboard. She weaves—a perfectly designed dreamcatcher. Where she really shines is with her book art. Using a variety of shapes, she creates exquisite little books. One is a fan that opens to reveal impeccable tiny printing that tells a story. Another illustrates four generations of her family, nestled into each other and cut down the middle so that when opened, a continuity of resemblance appears. Each book is different... all are interesting.

Other exhibiting artists are equally talented in their chosen media. Oil paintings by Kathy Lan and Mirabel Wigon, digital photos by Chris Cochems, and metal sculpture by Yuri Hernandez stand out; it would be easy to tout every artist.

Make time to view this artistic surge at the Foothill Gallery in Hayward. Come to a reception on Saturday, September 21 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. to meet the artists. Park in back, and prepare to be dazzled by Hayward's newest artistic talents.

Federal court upholds California's foie gras ban

BY PAUL ELIAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that California can keep in place its ban on the sale of foie gras.

In doing so, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals signaled that a lawsuit filed by foie gras producers seeking to invalidate the California law was on its last legs.

The appeals court said the producers of the delicacy — the fatty liver of a force-fed goose or duck — “failed to raise a serious question that they are likely to succeed on the merits” of the lawsuit. The producers wanted the appeals court to lift the ban while their lawsuit is under consideration in a Los Angeles federal court.

The three-judge appeals panel rejected the producers’ arguments that the ban illegally interferes with commerce and is too vaguely worded, among other claims, indicating the court’s doubts about the underlying lawsuit in the process.

The ruling upheld a lower court decision, which expressed similar skepticism about the lawsuit filed last year by Canadian and New York producers of foie gras.

Nonetheless, Marcus Henley, the operations manager of New York’s Hudson Valley farm, said he and his lawyers would continue to fight the California law.

Henley said lawyers would appeal Friday’s ruling while continuing to argue in the Los Angeles district court for the invalidation of the California law.

“This isn’t like fireworks, nobody is being harmed by foie gras,” said Henley, who noted some California consumers continue to legally order foie gras online.

The California law bars state farmers from force-feeding birds with a tube, the procedure used to produce foie gras. It also bans sales of the delicacy.

The Legislature concluded tube-feeding birds to enrage their livers is cruel.

Chicago passed a similar law but later repealed it.

Investors brace for a jam-packed September

BY MATTHEW CRAFT
AP BUSINESS WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine gathering nearly everything that has rattled investors’ nerves over the past four years: the European debt crisis, fights over the U.S. government’s budget and moves by the Federal Reserve. Now imagine all of them crammed into one month.

That month? It’s September.
“Oh, it’s definitely going to be fun,” says Jason Pride, director of investment strategy at the money management firm Glenmede in Philadelphia.

As August wrapped up, trading desks and investment firms looked warily at the lineup of events slated for September and warned clients of turbulence ahead.

The Fed’s September meeting is when many on Wall Street think the central bank will begin winding down its massive bond-buying program. German voters will decide whether Chancellor Angela Merkel gets another term as the leader of Europe’s largest economy. And Congress will be on a tight deadline to pass a spending bill before the month ends, a process which could easily turn into another brawl over raising the government’s borrowing limit.

Each item on the calendar could cause big swings in daily trading. And collectively, they could make an often dangerous month for the market even more volatile.

“Right now, we’re probably in the lull that precedes the storm,” says Mark Luschni, the chief investment strategist at Janney Montgomery Scott in Pittsburgh.

September has often been a cruel month for the stock market, which gives it a superstitious power for some investors. Since 1945, the Standard & Poor’s 500 index has slumped nearly six out of every 10 Septembers, with an average loss of 0.6 percent.

This one could be much worse, investors say. Luschni and others think the S&P 500 could slump more than 9 percent below the record high of 1,709.67, reached Aug. 2.

On the bright side, the same people who think the market is likely headed for a rough stretch in the coming weeks also think it won’t last. Even good years have bad months.

THE FED MEETING. SEPT. 18

First up, it’s the Fed meeting that everybody on Wall Street spent the summer talking about. Conventional wisdom says that the Fed will announce plans to trim its monthly purchases of bonds from $85 billion to around $75 billion. It would be the Fed’s first step toward winding down the $3 trillion bond-buying program launched during the financial crisis.

There’s trepidation about the move — known as “tapering” — because the Fed’s efforts have held down borrowing rates, a boon to the once-devastated housing market.

Minutes from the Fed’s July meeting showed “broad support” for scaling back. But there was nothing about how much.

The danger is that the Fed scales back much more than expected, says Glenmede’s Pride. Maybe, for instance, the Fed will buy $55 billion each month.

“Markets will react as if the Fed is slamming on the breaks,” he says.

Barring any big surprises, however, investors will likely take the Fed’s next move in stride, says Sam Stovall, the chief equity strategist at S&P Capital IQ.

Markets are supposed to be forward-looking and Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke started signaling a move to withdraw some support in May. People have had months to prepare for it. “I think there will be a collective yawn if they start tapering in September,” Stovall says.

Investors may wind up more concerned about who replaces Bernanke when his term ends in January. President Barack Obama could nominate a successor as early as September. The current front-runners are Janet Yellen, the Fed’s vice chairwoman, and Larry Summers, the former Treasury Secretary.

Millennials wary of buying first homes

BY JENNIFER ROBISON
LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Andrew Baca looks at the world today and frets over what he sees.

Federal debt grows at eyebrow-raising levels. Jobs are scarce. Economic instability reigns. A Web marketing business he launched as a UNLV undergraduate closed as the recession peeled away clients. Plus, Baca’s still wrangling down debt from finishing his master’s in informatics at UNLV. It’s all enough to send a Millennial running back into the soft, easy cocoon of his parents’ arms.

That’s exactly how Baca, 27, senior manager of the Las Vegas Sands Corp.’s digital marketing program and project management, ended up back home in June, after two years of renting a place on his own. Baca knows it’s not the traditional path; in past generations, he’d go from that apartment into his first home. But he said he’s too nervous to take that step.

“The outrageous amount of federal debt is a major concern of mine, and I don’t see enough economic indicators to make me feel comfortable about a 30-year commitment,” he said. “I could purchase a home soon, but I would rather pay down debt and save, for liquidity and for security.”

That refrain peals across the land: An Aug. 1 report from the Pew Research Center found record numbers of young adults living with their parents. That means they’re not forming their own households. And the economic fallout could be huge.

“If you continue to live with mom and dad, you’re not going to take out a lease on an apartment, or you’re not going to buy a home,” said Richard Fry, a Pew senior research associate. “And when you get your own place, consumer spending goes with that, too, in terms of buying appliances and furniture.”

There are also important social implications in fewer households, said Jed Kolko, the chief economist at real estate website Trulia.

“If young adults are living with their parents out of economic necessity, they would probably be happier if they weren’t living at home,” Kolko said. “They’d be more on their way to economic and financial independence if they were in a position to rent or buy on their own.”

The problem is, legions of Millennials aren’t in that position. It’ll be up to lenders, builders, parents and the economy to get them there. It could be a Herculean task, given the sheer numbers.

Household Formation Slows

Pew’s report found that 36 percent of people ages 18 to 31 — that’s 21.6 million Millennials — lived with their parents in 2012. That was up from 32 percent, or 18.5 million, before the recession’s 2007 start, and it’s the highest share in at least four decades.

So young adults aren’t forming households at the usual rate: The nation typically adds 1.1 million new households a year, but from 2008 to the first quarter of 2011, Americans created just 450,000 new households, a July report from Trulia shows. Kolko counts 2.4 million missing households in 2013, up from 900,000 missing households in 2008. That’s equal to more than two years of typical household formation gone missing, and the majority of them are younger adults who aren’t heading up their own households. That’s partly why housing starts dropped from 1.4 million in 2008 to 600,000 in 2011, Kolko said.

From the first quarter of 2012 to the first quarter of 2013, household formation ticked up, but remained well below average, at 521,000.

Experts blame a blend of economic and social trends.

Pew’s report points to a big jump in the number of Millennials going to college. Thirty-five percent of people ages 18 to 24 were in college in 2007. That share jumped to 39 percent by 2012, Fry said. Students either go to school locally and stay home with mom or dad or live in a dorm on campus, but either way, the Census Bureau counts them as living at home.

But higher college attendance means more Millennial debt. Nearly half of Nevada college students graduate

A New Perspective

SUBMITTED BY TANAY KOTHARI

My decision to spend a summer working in India was fueled mostly by the allure of "making a difference" while avoiding a desk job. Armed with cursory Hindi and memories of months with my family in suburban India, I applied to participate in a two-month experiential learning program known as the Tata International Social Entrepreneurship Scheme (ISES), operated by the Tata Group, India's largest business group. I was accepted and placed with Tata Motors, the majority stakeholder in Jaguar Land Rover.

As part of Tata Motors Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) division, the company operates dozens of projects to benefit village residents. I was tasked with visiting the company's projects and devising a set of matrices to evaluate its community development work.

During the first month, I traveled through India, speaking with the project beneficiaries, ranging from wildlife sanctuaries, leprosy treatment centers and irrigation facilities.

The mayor of a village near Pune with Tata ISES student Tanay Kothari and two Tata employees.

I learned the most when involved in day-to-day interactions—explaining to a group of farmers the necessity of buying a tractor for their village or asking the headmaster of a school to take on more students from underprivileged backgrounds. In a nation with over one billion people and hundreds of points of cultural variance within individual states, the most striking communication problem I faced was not language, but conveying my ideas, and those of the company, to communities.

In my work with CSR departments of Tata Motors, I've been fortunate to learn from individuals making a tangible difference in villages surrounding company facilities. They collaborate with community stakeholders and develop strategies to improve standards of health care, education, and environmental safety.

I will never forget my first site visit to an Indian village near Jamshedpur, where I heard a story from an elderly woman. After using her savings to start her own business, she collaborated with other women in her village to form a self-help group providing low-interest loans and financial advice to women. Through her efforts, dozens of women now own businesses that afford them income and, more importantly, financial security. After first assisting those in her village, she moved on to the next, and has since branched out. To me, this represents the ultimate Tata success story—identifying a community leader with the initiative to help others, and providing resources to make it work.

I left India feeling more aware and responsible for an incremental contribution driving positive change. Of course the cultural exchange aspect was valuable as well. Even within a nation I thought I knew, I formed meaningful friendships and built professional ties. In an increasingly competitive and tense global marketplace, it is tough to top the combination of meaningful work, foreign experience, and the memories of a lifetime.

Winners and Losers

By NANCY LYON

The hallowed halls of the California State Legislature have seen many a battle and while they may not show the physical scars, reverberations of conflicting passions echo within their confines. There are winners and there are losers; in this year's session it was no different.

Animal protection advocates always fight an uphill battle against those who would exploit innocent animals for 'sport,' amusement and just plain old greed. Unfortunately, it's the price for engaging some of humanity's baser instincts.

One of this year's big wins was for greater safeguards of California's mountain lions, resulting from the slayings of two mountain lion kittens in Half Moon Bay, California. The outrage from these unnecessary killings sparked legislation to change how the California Department of Fish & Wildlife handles mountain lion public safety situations. In response to the public outcry, the California State Assembly and Senate voted unanimously in support of Senate Bill (SB) 132 the Mountain Lion Protection Bill authored by Senator Jerry Hill, D-Santa Clara.

The bill will curb the inhumane practice of killing mountain lions that come into contact with people but pose no imminent threat to public safety. SB 132 was widely supported by the public and now goes before Governor Brown for his signature for it to become law. Timothy Dunbar, CEO of the Mountain Lion Foundation stated "With this very important vote, California is one step closer to ending the unnecessary killing of mountain lions." "We applaud Senator Hill for recognizing the value of mountain lions to California's environment and for championing nonlethal responses to mountain lion encounters."

Another win for the animals came when Governor Brown signed Assembly Bill (AB) 789 by Assemblymember Das Williams. It helps protect animals by regulating "nuisance trappers" that often used cruel methods of killing animals in traps such as drowning, crushing chests, and injections of substances not meant for humane killing; it also reduces the size of killer conibear traps set on land, making it less likely to squeeze companion animals to death.

Anti-animal legislation has a way of resurfacing when it goes down to defeat. This year's session saw attempts at reviving old bills, only later to be withdrawn often because of a lack of support. However, it would not be surprising to see them come alive in the future:

AB 1230 by Assemblymember Tim Donnelly, a move to repeal last year's successful ban on hunting bear and bobcat with dogs.

SB 675 by Senator Lois Wolk, regarding animal welfare standards, it would have required the Dept. of Food & Agriculture to set "standards for animal welfare." It was suspected the bill would be amended to allow the presently banned sale of cruelly produced foie gras in California.

AB 343 by Assemblymember Jim Patterson, another "Ag-Gag" bill to silence people who document cruelty to animals. It would have required that citizen's turnover any information that is presently legally gathered under our Constitutional right of free-speech to law enforcement within 120 hours or face a fine.

Many of these hard fought protections are at imminent risk of being history.

In the U.S. House of Representatives, Rep. Steve King, R-Iowa, has introduced an extremely destructive amendment in its version of the pending Farm Bill. If this amendment is not rejected state laws protecting farmland, waterways, forests, human safety and animal welfare will be overturned. States' bans on inhumane factory farming practices and many other state laws and rules regulating agriculture are at risk of being discontinued.

John Goodwin, director of animal cruelty policy for The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) said: "State agriculture laws were crafted by legislators, agencies and citizens who know their needs best and should not be overturned by politicians in Washington, D.C. The King amendment is a violation of the Tenth Amendment's guarantee that states' sovereign rights cannot be abridged by Congress."

It should be noted that the version of the Farm Bill that passed in the U.S. Senate did not include the King amendment.

Rep. King's provision in the House bill would not only wipe out numerous state animal protection laws on puppy mills, farm animal confinement, shark finning, horse slaughter, and even dog meat, but also a wide range of other laws related to food safety, environmental protection, worker safety, labeling and more.

According to HSUS, Rep. King has a history of attempting to block animal welfare laws. He has voted in favor of killing horses for human consumption and trophy killing of polar bears even though they are a threatened species. He also voted against disaster response legislation to address the needs of people with pets, passed in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, and he opposed legislation to crack down on illegal dog fighting and cockfighting.

King's amendment could also nullify six state bans on gestation crates, horse slaughter bans in six states, comprehensive animal welfare standards adopted by the Ohio Livestock Care Standards Board, and a raft of other animal protection laws designed to shield farm animals from abuse and extreme confinement.

We urge you to immediately contact your elected official in the U.S. House of Representatives and urge that the King Amendment be stricken from the Farm Bill. Our health, environment and hard earned protections of animals depend on speaking out.

Its no lie, she's 105!

SUBMITTED BY JIM WARD

Mary Loretta Schwartz is a master of time. She has kept pace with Father Time for over 100 years and, on September 13, 2013, will mark an additional five years to the century mark. Born in 1908 in York, Pennsylvania, Mary was the eldest of four siblings, the only girl. She married and worked at the YWCA but soon was busy raising two daughters: Janet, now living in Portland, Oregon and Alice who resides in Lovettesville, Virginia.

An accomplished gardener, Mary raises a spectacular array of herbs. She also continues to do her own laundry every week. As a resident of the California Masonic Home in Union City, she serves as an inspiration to all who know her. Mary has five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Happy Birthday Mary!

“How to Read a Client from Across the Room” by Brandy Mychal

It takes all kinds to make a world – and a client list.

One of your clients, for instance, can talk the paint off a wall. Another rarely says much, but what he says is well-considered. You've got a label-loving fashionista who buys from you, a woman who always scolds you for your coffee habit, and a guy who's really hands-on when it comes to all his marketing.

So how do properly you deal with that many divergent personalities? In the new book “How to Read a Client from Across the Room” by Brandy Mychal, you'll learn about them – and yourself.

At some time in your career, perhaps, you've been asked to take a fun “personality” test. You learned how your reactions to various situations made you see things uniquely, and you learned how to mesh other's actions with yours.

Brandy Mychal says that those old four-type models are inadequate. There are actually six main personality types: Class President, Cheerleader, Actor, Scholar, Activist, and Artist. She calls these Character Codes, and she says that you'll encounter each of these kinds of people in your lifetime; in fact, you're probably thinking of examples already. It's how you interact with them (or avoid them) that's important.

To do that successfully, you need to understand that each Character Code has “one driving need that exerts the most powerful influence in their life.” There are four main driving needs: certainty, variety, significance, and connection.

Using these needs in conjunction with the Character Codes of clients and prospects depends on knowing what Character Code defines you. This allows you to know your own trigger points, stresses and strengths, and it helps you market and manufacture with your clients in mind. It also allows you to put your best foot forward because, though individual Character Codes influence each client's “filter,” you have control of the first impressions that others have of you.

And that, says Mychal, is key.

Looking for a sure-fire way to attract clients? You might find that here, but then again...

Author Brandy Mychal has indeed become an expert on Character Coding and has become successful in teaching it. Her methods seem solid and I liked the tips on knowing one's self and one's traits in order to fit in with any client or business situation.

But as I was reading “How to Read a Client from Across the Room,” I vacillated between thinking “Yesss!” to wondering if there was a little too much overgeneralization between its covers. It might be helpful to think that the way someone dresses or deals with health issues, for instance, could indicate their behavior – but it might also lead to serious mistakes.

Still, when it comes to business, isn't any leg-up a good thing?

Yes, it is, and I think there are benefits to this book but, like any how-to manual, you have to use it wisely. If you can do that, for your business, “How to Read a Client from Across the Room” may make all the difference in the world.

West Nile Virus Mosquitoes found in Milpitas, San Jose

SUBMITTED BY SCC PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Santa Clara County Vector Control District (SCCVCDD) confirmed on August 30, 2013 that adult mosquitoes collected from the 95035 ZIP code areas of the city of Milpitas and from the 95131 and 95112 ZIP code areas of the city of San Jose tested positive for West Nile virus (WNV).

The detection of mosquitoes infected with WNV has prompted the scheduling of mosquito fogging treatment in the two areas, in an effort to prevent human cases of WNV. Weather permitting, the two ground fogging operations are scheduled for Wednesday, September 4, at 11:00 p.m., and is planned to last for several hours.

“With these two fogging operations, the District will have treated over 30 square miles of territory, which is a record number in a single season,” noted Acting District Manager Russ Parman. “Over the Labor Day weekend, residents across the County should continue to avoid mosquito bites and remove standing water from around the home.”

The Milpitas fogging area is generally bordered by Valmy St. and Coelho St. on the north; Acadia Ave. and Shenandoa Ave. on the south; the Amtrak railroads corridor on the west; and Piedmont and Evans Rd. on the east. A live map can be viewed at <http://goo.gl/maps/Dpv2V>. The San Jose fogging area is generally bordered by Rock Ave. and Charcot Ave. on the north; Berryessa Rd. and Hwy 101 on the south; Zanker Rd. on the west; and Rue Avati and Automation Pkwy on the east. A live map can be viewed at <http://goo.gl/maps/u6XZH>.

Information packets notifying residents about the fogging operation will be distributed in the fogging areas starting on Saturday, August 31. As an added convenience, on Tuesday and Wednesday from 7:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. staff from the SCCVCDD will be available at (408) 918-3452 or (800) 314-2427 to answer questions and provide information.

Transmitted by mosquito bites, WNV causes mild to severe flu-like symptoms such as fever, headache, body aches, and, in severe cases, significant neurological damage or even death. The elderly and those with compromised immune systems are most susceptible. Since the 2003 arrival of WNV in California, 3,684 people across the State have contracted the disease; 134 of those cases were fatal.

“Using preventive measures such as insect repellent to avoid mosquito bites when outdoors can help decrease the risk of contracting this disease, and that's especially important this season. We haven't seen this much virus activity since 2007, which was our last “big” year following the arrival of WNV in 2004,” said Scientific / Technical Services Director Dr. Noor Tietze.

Some practical measures against mosquito bites are:

At home:

DRAIN or DUMP standing water weekly since this is where mosquitoes lay eggs. Check items such as flowerpots and planter bases, toys, cans, leaky water faucets and sprinklers, rain gutters, buckets, pools, ponds, and old tires.

?Make sure your DOORS and windows have tight-fitting screens.

Outdoors:

Limit outdoor activities during DUSK & DAWN to prevent mosquito bites. Those are the times when the mosquitoes that transmit WNV are most active.

If you need to go outside at dusk or dawn, or when in an area where mosquitoes are active:

DRESS in long sleeve shirts and long pants, preferably of light colors.

Apply insect repellent following label instructions.

Always contact the Vector Control District if you are being bothered by mosquitoes or know of a potential mosquito-breeding source.

Dead birds may indicate the presence of WNV. The District has recently completed its new laboratory, which allows in-house testing for WNV and other vector-borne diseases throughout the year. The District asks Santa Clara County residents to report crows, jays, or birds of prey that have been dead for less than 48 hours and do not appear to have died because of an injury. People who find those birds should call the State of California WNV hotline at 877-WNV-BIRD (2473) or at westnile.ca.gov.

Residents can visit the District's website at sccVector.org to view a map of the fogging zone, read the latest alerts about WNV activity in the County, and request advice or services.

For free assistance on mosquito control, WNV, or other vectors, residents can contact the District office by calling (408) 918-4770 or fill out a service request online at sccVector.org.

Social ministry outreach provides school supplies

SUBMITTED BY BOB LAWRENCE

The Social Ministry outreach program at Christ the King Lutheran Church donated 68 backpacks to local students in need through Fremont's Tri-City Volunteers on August 12. This ongoing project began in 2009 and has continued each year through 2013. Funds came from cash donations of $1,318 from members of the congregation coupled with $1,600 from the South Alameda County Chapter of Thrivent Financial, totaling $2,918. Several volunteers shopped for the backpacks and school supplies and many other members filled each backpack with all the necessary items pertinent to each school level.

Christ the King Lutheran Church has a long history of service to the community including providing food and other items to Tri-City Volunteers for the needy, and cooking and serving a monthly dinner meal at Sunrise Village Homeless Shelter on Brown Road in Fremont. The church participates with Abode Services through their Home Warming program to help homeless families relocate into their own affordable permanent housing.

The Social Ministry team has also donated new pillows and pillowcases, custom made by volunteers, to SAVE (Safe Alternatives to Violent Environments) every year since 2011. So far this year, 103 pillows and pillowcases have been donated. This provides each resident – adult and children – with their own personal pillow to keep as their own when they leave the shelter.

Christ the King Lutheran Church is located at 1301 Mowry Avenue in Fremont and invites everyone to come for worship on Sundays at 8 a.m. or 10:15 a.m. with Sunday School for children and an education hour for adults at 9 a.m.

THEATRE

Season of mystery & romance continues with "The Woman in Black"

SUBMITTED BY SUSAN E. EVANS

The Douglas Morrisson Theatre continues its 2013-2014 season of mystery and romance with "The Woman in Black" - A Ghost Play adapted by Stephen Mallatratt from the book by Susan Hill. Directed by Marilyn Langbehn and featuring C. Conrad Cady, Mark Frazier, and Cynthia Lagodzinski, "The Woman in Black" is a marvelous piece of chilling storytelling that will have you on the edge of your seat from the moment the house lights go down.

The curtain rises on a small Victorian theatre. Arthur Kipps is attempting to exorcise the demons of his past by recounting his story to an actor, and the two men proceed to "act out" certain events from Kipps' life. Many years before, his job required him to attend the funeral of the sole occupant of Eel Marsh House. He spies a gaunt young woman dressed all in black at the funeral, and the haunting begins. Hidden behind the shuttered windows of that house on the windswept salt marshes, lie tragic and terrible secrets.

"The Woman in Black" was first performed in 1987 at the Theatre-By-The-Sea in Scarborough and is currently in its 24th year at London's Fortune Theatre. It is the second longest-running West End play after "The Mousetrap." "The Woman in Black" has been translated into a dozen languages and produced in 40 countries. In February 2012, Daniel Radcliffe of "Harry Potter" fame appeared in a film adaptation of Susan Hill's novel.

Stephen Mallatratt (1947- 2004) was a British playwright, television screenwriter, and actor. Born in north London from a lower middle-class background, Mallatratt trained at the Central School of Speech and Drama, and worked as a rep actor. "The Woman in Black" is his most well-known work as a playwright. On the official website for the London production of the play, a friend of Mallatratt says that the playwright's "central inspiration" for his adaptation of Hill's book was the opening Chorus of Shakespeare's "Henry V" (the "O for a muse of fire" speech) as he calls upon the audience's imagination to conjure and create the "the gaunt grey house," the mysterious landscape, and ghostly apparitions.

Susan Hill is an English author whose books have won the Whitbread Fiction Award, the Somerset Maugham Award, and the John Llewellyn Rhys Prize, and been shortlisted for The Booker Prize. Hill is also the author of non-fiction and children's books and book reviews. Her most recent books are a trilogy of crime novels.

Director Marilyn Langbehn is delighted to return to the Douglas Morrisson Theatre where she directed the company's critically-acclaimed Bay Area premiere of "Frost/Nixon." Langbehn is the Artistic Director of Contra Costa Civic Theatre (CCCT), and the Marketing/PR Manager for California Shakespeare Theater.

"The Woman in Black" previews on September 5, opens September 6, and runs through September 29. The Saturday matinee on Saturday, September 21 at 2 p.m. will be followed by a talkback session with the director and cast. Tickets are $10 for the preview show. Evening and matinee performances are $29 for adults; $26 for seniors (60 and over); and $21 for students, juniors, and TBA members. Discounts are also available for KQED members and groups (10+). The Box Office is open Tuesday through Friday, 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. and can be reached at (510) 881-6777. Information is also available at www.dmtonline.org.

CDPH issues consumer warning

SUBMITTED BY ANITA GORE/HEATHER BOURBEAU

Dr. Ron Chapman, director of the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) and state health officer, today warned consumers with milk, soy, and/or wheat allergies not to eat four flavors of Williams-Sonoma brand sauces: Meyer Lemon Braising Base, 40-Clove Braising Base, Tagine Sauce, and Artichoke Pecorino Sauce, due to undeclared allergen ingredients.

Premier Foods, LLC of Santa Fe Springs, CA is voluntarily recalling the sauces that were sold exclusively at Williams-Sonoma stores. The recall was initiated after CDPH identified the labeling omission during a routine inspection. No illnesses have been reported at this time.

The recalled Williams-Sonoma sauces are packaged in clear, glass jars.

People who have an allergy or severe sensitivity to soy, wheat or milk products run the risk of a life-threatening allergic reaction, that requires immediate medical attention should they consume these products.

Consumers who have experienced allergic reaction after consuming any of these products should contact their health care provider. Anyone observing the products being offered for sale is encouraged to call CDPH tollfree complaint line at (800) 495-3232.

Coastal Cleanup Day in Union City

SUBMITTED BY AMY EVANS

Please Join Us for Coastal Cleanup Day on Saturday, September 21st.

Meet at the Union City Civic Center; enter from Royal Ann Drive and meet near the skate park.

We'll pick up trash along the creekside trail to Alameda Creek, and around the pond in the park. We'll tally the types of trash we find and report the information as part of California Coastal Cleanup Day. We'll learn about the impact of trash on water quality in the creek and on the wild life that lives there.

Wear work clothes and sturdy shoes that can get dirty, and bring gloves if you have them. We'll provide trash bags and litter grabbers, and a snack after the clean up.

PLEASE BRING YOUR OWN RE-FILLABLE WATER BOTTLE!

Veterans post established in Hayward

Post Commander Michael L. Emerson announced the establishment of California's newest AMVETS (American Veterans) Post. Located in downtown Hayward, California, AMVETS Hayward Post 911 had its first meeting to establish a charter and leadership group on July 27, 2013.

AMVETS was officially recognized by the U.S. Congress on July 23, 1947 as a veteran's service organization, but this will be the first time an AMVETS Post will be located in Hayward. AMVETS is the only national veteran's organization that accepts all honorably discharged veterans from any branch of service, as well as American veterans of allied military services.

"To be an all-inclusive organization means a lot to me and our 19 charter members." The Post organization's "Grand Opening" welcome event is scheduled for Thursday, September 5 at the Hayward Veterans Memorial Building.

We are inviting everyone in the community to attend our event to help us celebrate the Grand Opening. All veterans, active/reserve duty military, veteran supporters, and interested citizens are encouraged to attend to learn more about AMVETS mission. The AMVETS service foundation provides assistance to veterans with college transition, disability claims filing, legal assistance, homelessness, and much more...

AMVETS motto: "Committed To Serve... Those Who Served."

Dharma & Yoga Fest

SUBMITTED BY GAURANG DESAI

On Saturday, September 14th, Hindu Swayamsevak Sangh, along with over 75 organizations in the Bay Area, will be celebrating the 150th Birth Anniversary of Swami Vivekananda in a day-long Dharma & Yoga Fests in Pleasanton and Santa Clara.

Dharma & Yoga Fest is the culmination of a year-long celebration of Swami Vivekananda's 150th Birth Anniversary, a Hindu monk who traveled from India to America and introduced dharma philosophies, popularized yoga, and inspired thousands of people throughout the country.

To keep his message of dharma and yoga alive, Hindu Swayamsevak Sangh has celebrated Swami Vivekananda's 150th birth anniversary with the theme of Universal Peace through Dharma and Yoga. Celebration included a nationwide Dharma Bee Competition (children's contest), mobile exhibitions on Swami Vivekananda and Hindu Dharma, Social Service events and field trips by youth to retrace Swami Vivekananda's steps in America, and the Dharma & Yoga Fest finale on September 14th.

Dharma & Yoga Fest 2013 has activities and interests for all ages wherein all the events revolve around the life and message of Swami Vivekananda:

Hindu Theme Park:

Let your kids wrestle with Hindu God Hanuman, dance with Lord Krishna, and enjoy the presence of Martin Luther King Jr., Abraham Lincoln, and other heroes at the Bal Gopal Theme Park. Have a great family outing that you and your children cherish for the years to come, with tricks from magic shows and learning values through a puppet show and dharma games.

Youth Fest:

You will be taken to the streets of India with a procession of the Hindu God Ganesh led by university students with the dhol drum, pheta turban, and accompanied by traditional Indian dance. This will be followed by the felicitation of young achievers and a stimulating panel discussion. Also, dance to the tunes of popular songs by fellow students and relive your childhood through Hindu carnival games.

Raja Yoga:

Get fit and rid yourself from daily stressors with lessons from the masters of various schools of yoga and meditation including Transcendental Meditation, Yoga Bharati, and many more.

Bhakti Yoga:

Experience soul stirring music from Jai Uttal, bhajans by famous Indian singer

Anuradha Paudwal, and hip hop bhakti music from MC Yogi along with many more artists - all this to elevate you to a new sphere of spiritual experience.

Gyan Yoga:

Do you know about the conversations between Nicola Tesla and Swami Vivekananda? Do you know who was the guru of George Harrison of "The Beatles" fame? Come enjoy discussions and talks from famous gurus of modern times.

Karma Yoga:

As Swami Vivekananda said, "They alone live who live for others". Here is an exciting opportunity to meet with those who are such examples. Meet with social service organizations like Sankara Eye Foundation, Sewa International, Ekal Vidyalaya, and others. You can add to your karma points by participating in the blood donation and bone marrow drives.

Krishna Leela:

Watches over 300 kids bring to life Story of Sri Krishna and transport you to the days of Gopala through this dance music drama.

Hindu Experience:

Give yourself an experience of a Hindu life. Enjoy with your family the Hindu concepts of Athithi Devo Bhava ("Guest is God"), Vasudhaiva Kudumbakam ("The whole world is one family"), and lots more through skits, presentations and live performances. Don't miss watching the live beta version of a Vedic Hindu Marriage.

Dharma & Yoga Fest brings together the Bay Area community of over 75 organizations to celebrate Swami Vivekananda's 150th birth anniversary. Confirmed dignitaries include Tulsi Gabbard, Congresswoman (D-Hi), MC Yogi, Anuradha Paudwal, Pandit Vamadeva Shastri, Paramacharya Palaniswami, Sannyasin Senthilnathaswami, and Saumitra Gokhle.

Transit Expert Roy Nakadegawa Dies

Served On BART & AC Transit Boards For More Than 30 Years

Former AC Transit and BART director Roy Nakadegawa passed away August 23, 2013, at his home in Berkeley. Mr. Nakadegawa had been suffering from congestive heart failure for some time.

Mr. Nakadegawa served on the AC Transit Board for 20 years, from 1972 to 1992. He then served on the BART Board for 12 years from 1992 to 2004. After he left the BART Board, he joined the Board of TRANSDEF (Transportation Solutions Defense and Education Fund), a non-profit environmental organization created by transit activists to advocate for better solutions to transportation, land use and air quality problems in the San Francisco Bay Area. In all those positions he argued for cost-effective, mobility improving transit.

When Mr. Nakadegawa served on the AC Transit Board of Directors, its members got an annuity when they left the Board. For many years, Mr. Nakadegawa generously donated his annuity payments to buy prizes for AC Transit's local bus rodeo winners.

As a BART Director he consistently advocated for cost effective transit administration. Mr. Nakadegawa tirelessly urged his fellow board members to consider innovative uses of BART facilities as a non-traditional source of revenue and improved customer access, resulting in the adoption of both permanent and experimental parking program initiatives. He will also be remembered for his role in advocating BART's Earthquake Safety Program.

Mr. Nakadegawa had been a transportation engineer for the City of Richmond and for many years served on the Board that administers the civil engineering exam in California. In 1989, he was elected National President of the Institute for Transportation of American Public Works Association and later served as its liaison to the American Public Transportation Association (APTA), the national transportation advocacy group. While with BART Mr. Nakadegawa became an active member of APTA, serving on several committees including its Policy and Planning; Advanced Technology, Governing Board; and Transit Management and Performance committees.

Mr. Nakadegawa and his wife Judy were dedicated to peace, family, public service and folk dancing.

Cards and letters should be sent to: Judy Nakadegawa and family, 751 The Alameda, Berkeley, California 94707-1930.

Tri-City Stargazer SEPTEMBER 4 – SEPTEMBER 10, 2013 BY VIVIAN CAROL

For All Signs: Mars, the ancient god of war, is in a challenging position to both Saturn (the teacher) and Pluto (the Powers that Be). Events of this week may harken back to July and August of 2012, just over one year ago. Mars represents going after something or someone we want. It takes action without hesitation. Given its arrangement in the sky now, there are two planets that are stronger than Mars which must be challenged. Good wisdom says it is best to back off the desire/urge to take the plunge. The booty would cost much more than it is worth. Traffic accidents increase in times such as this because everyone is in a hurry. If someone cuts you off on the road, don't let rage put you into a useless battle.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): You may be taking a sober look at one or more relationships. Even the very closest friends cannot know each other from the inside. Sometimes we forget this fact and need to become aware that we are actually separate beings, sharing when we can. Sometimes our energy is too low to be there for one another.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): You may experience some physical discomfort due to environmental stressors at home or work. Those who suffer allergies need to use special caution in avoidance this week. Your physical cycle is on a mild dip. Rest plenty and take your vitamins. You may need to take a short break in your workout regimen.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): You have a number of things to handle concerning property and family this week. High tech equipment may be part of the scenery. Give careful thought to what you say because hurtful statements may drop out of your mouth. Mercury, your ruling planet, moves into the sector of life related to children, recreation, personal creativity, and romance on the 9th.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): This is a good week to travel or at least to get out of the house. Although money may feel tight, choose little trips that cost relatively nothing, like a picnic in the park or a visit to a gallery. Enjoy members of the family, or your significant other. Avoid hot topics. They may need to be discussed, but wait until a better time.

Leo the Lion (July 22-Aug 22): Give careful attention to your car and also to any machinery you may be handling. Equipment breakdowns are possible at home as well. Of course they always come at highly inconvenient times. Be prepared with backup or extra parts. Your reflexes are off. Use general caution with the world of the physical during this period.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): As the week begins, you have a number of projects that will keep you busy. You are instinctively hurrying to finish things so you can move forward. Although normally tactful, there is a possibility that your tone of speech may be clipped and will hurt someone. It could also be the other way around. If so, don't swallow it.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Events of this week trigger your sense of compassion and draw you into the need to assist in the healing of another. As you live into this experience, you will discover that having compassion also heals you. Your spirit is lifted. Don't ignore the call. If you have allergies, you may be in need of some of that healing for yourself.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): This is a time in which you will be required to work extra hard just to maintain the status quo. It has already started and will continue for another couple of weeks. You must use your stamina and internal grit to stay with it, but soon this test will be over. Take very good care of your physical self at this time.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Your mood is expansive and optimistic this week. It is one of those "good luck" times that occasionally happen to the Archers. You have a grasp of the big picture and could use this energy to promote your projects and gain support. Or you could simply kick back and enjoy the good feelings.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): Aspects suggest you may be feeling irritable and critical this week. Objects and people are just not cooperating, and you may also be worrying about finances and investments. Some of these things are a reality, but in the greater scheme of things, it is a temporary droop. Concentrate on holding peace inside yourself.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Oops! This is clearly a rough patch in your relationship(s). The arena may play out in your primary partnership or in your work/career situation. Though someone may be goading you, you know this is not the time to lose your temper or try to make peace. Just give it a wide berth until the time is better.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): You have several aspects that favor romance, the arts, and things of beauty. You may be the happy recipient of small gifts, compliments or favors from others. Your mind wants to wander in the world of fantasy, daydreams, good books, and music. It is not a great week for getting things done, but you will enjoy the journey.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

strong connections with high tech, industry, labor and economic growth is significant. Our IC (SEBAY-IC) is a nexus for the entire region and holds a key position as partner and player in regional, national and international commerce. The report, "Creating Networked Cities" (http://www.newamerica.net/publications/policy/creating_networked_cities) offers practical tips to "improve knowledge sharing" and, through networking, "create opportunities with nearby cities and counties, understanding that geographic proximity and shared context are important factors."

Almost in spite of years of disorganization and resistance to focused, regional political direction, our neighborhood is becoming recognized for strength in its own right, not as a pimple on the butt of Silicon Valley. The September-October issue of Global Trade magazine, "The Magazine for U.S. Companies Doing Business Globally," lists the "Top 25 Cities for Global Trade." In almost all cases, cities listed were subtitled with a group of allied communities that comprised a network responsible for their status.

First ranked Houston, TX is actually comprised of Houston, Sugar Land and Baytown; New York, New York, ranked #2 is paired with Northern New Jersey and Long Island and #3 ranked Los Angeles includes Long Beach and Santa Ana. Many well-known international economic powerhouse locations were actually congregations of surrounding communities. Listed at #20, San Francisco is actually a partnership with Oakland and... Fremont! The accompanying brief explanation of the $23.6 billion trade with growth of $2.2 billion for an increase of 10.28 percent, notes, "Where there's innovation, there's venture capital..." The glitz of Silicon Valley, Palo Alto and Walnut Creek is absent from the list.

What this means to our area is that we should be in substantive conversations with neighboring communities to encourage and maximize resources and devote energy toward common goals. As a major player on the international stage, the Greater Tri-City community has an opportunity to take advantage of synergy. The Greek philosopher, Aristotle, is credited with the saying, "The whole is greater than the sum of its parts." In our case, its time to bring the parts of SEBAY-IC together to form a great "whole" rather than a great hole. Each mayor can appoint a representative to a blue ribbon committee – Vice mayors of Fremont, Newark, Union City, Hayward, Milpitas, San Leandro – to explore common goals and strengths. What about it Mayor Harrison, Mayor Nagy, Mayor Dutra-Vernaci, Mayor Sweeney, Mayor Esteves, Mayor Cassidy?

According to a press release from the New America Foundation's "California Civic Innovation Project," an idea used extensively in business for years has a firm place in city development... networking. The report notes, "As municipalities nationwide continue to face challenges, from fiscal and infrastructure, to service delivery and education, they also have the capacity to engage and impact wide sectors of the public through innovative policies, technologies, and programs."

Although the Southeast Bay Innovation Corridor (SEBAY-IC) has immense potential, leadership toward common goals and pooled resources has often been missing. Instead, too much effort and attention has been focused on becoming an adjunct to our South Bay neighbors. The fact that from SEBAY-IC we can gaze in any direction to make

District 14 Little League Baseball needs your support

Perhaps you recall that last year in July of 2012, the entire Bay Area was excited to hear that a baseball team from Petaluma was going to the Little League World Series. This July, the CA District 14 Big League team won the Northern California Division title in Sacramento and just came back from the Regional Tournament in Bremerton, Washington, placing second in the Western Region (which includes 12 states). They came very close to making it to the World Series in Easley, South Carolina by beating Montana and Hawaii twice as well as Oregon in the semi-final, but fell short against Southern California in the final.

You may be asking yourself what is a Big League team in California D14? Our CA District 14 league is comprised of eight local leagues that cover the entire cities of Fremont and Newark. The Big League team is composed of 16-18 year olds who have been in Little League for at least 10 years. These families have been supporting little league as well as volunteering their time and money to ensure this wonderful sport is here for many other young players to come. Having a team that goes this far does not happen often; in fact, this is the first time in our Big League history!

While players and coaches have a portion of their expenses covered by the leagues that make up CA District 14, not all expenses were covered and no expenses were covered for parents and siblings. These additional expenses (airfare, hotel, food, rental car, etc.) have brought financial hardship for many of our families but they did not want to miss this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see their children play. For this reason we are reaching out on behalf of these families for your support. If you are interested in helping with a tax-deductible (Non-Profit Tax ID# 27-4829325) donation, please send a check made out to "BL Travel" and mail to:

MSJLL
Attn: BL Travel Expenses
503 Lemos Lane, Fremont 94539

A tax-deductible receipt will be sent within a month. On behalf of all the Big League families, we thank you for your support.

Pre-season match-up for national bragging rights for the Deaf (CSD) Eagles faced highly regarded Maryland School for the Deaf Orioles on August 31st. Both teams were intent on proving they belonged to an elite group of teams about to take the field for the coming football season.

The Eagles and Orioles have chosen a fast-moving West Coast Offense which promised an exciting match. This proved to be the case as early on, the Eagles relied on its trademark defense but was handicapped by the loss of key players who graduated in June. Nevertheless, the Eagles penetrated the Oriole offensive line, forcing the quarterback to scramble.

Early on, things looked good for the home team but Oriole speed and excellent pass receptions told the tale as a two-touchdown lead opened and proved too much for the Eagles to overcome. Fighting back, the Eagles were able to score a touchdown of their own to close the gap, but lost 16-6.

Titans come up short against San Lorenzo

In an even match on August 31st, the San Lorenzo Rebels made a comeback in the final minutes to beat John F. Kennedy's Titans (Fremont) 18-12. The game started with Kennedy moving their offense quickly, controlling on defense as well.

Although the Titans appeared to block Rebel attempts to move the ball, persistence paid off and finally, holes appeared for Rebel runners. The final blow in a tight game came as the Titans lost the ball on the Rebels 30-yard line with 3:06 left in the game. With the crucial turnover, the Rebels quarterback found his receiver on a slant play in the end zone to seal the victory: San Lorenzo 18, Kennedy 12.

Innovative model uses 'Pay for Success' model

SUBMITTED BY JANICE ROMBECK

The Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously on August 27, 2013, to move forward with a new way of funding critical services that relies on private investment and mandatory performance measures.

The innovative model called Pay for Success, or Social Innovation Financing, would be used for the first time in Santa Clara County, with the goals of saving taxpayer dollars and improving service delivery to targeted populations.

The concept, used in England and in a few areas of the United States, targets limited government funding to programs only after they have demonstrated successful outcomes. The initial funding for the program is provided by private investors or foundations.

The idea was introduced to the county by Step Up Silicon Valley, a campaign launched by Catholic Charities USA to lift 1,000 families out of poverty in Santa Clara County in 2013 and cut poverty in the United States in half by 2020.

"Pay for Success has the potential of generating new and innovative partnerships to help our neediest residents," said Santa Clara County Supervisor Dave Cortese. "The model targets our

Linda Granger named the Eden Area ROP Superintendent

SUBMITTED BY GABRIELA JUAREZ

At its August 15, 2013 meeting, the Eden Area Regional Occupational Governing Board unanimously appointed Linda Granger as Eden Area ROP's next Superintendent. Linda will assume a position of Superintendent Elect beginning September 16, 2013 and then as Superintendent as Dr. Irene Fujii retires. This will allow a smooth transition and continued excellent service to the students and educational partners in all four districts served by Eden Area ROP.

Linda has served in a variety of leadership roles, most recently as the Principal of San Leandro High School since June of 2009. She also served as the Associate Principal at San Leandro High School and Coordinator of Data and Assessment for the entire district. Linda started her career path in Education as a teacher for Eden Area ROP in 1993. Linda stated "I am eager to return to ROP and work with the staff to promote the efforts of Eden Area in support of Career Technical Education."

Linda's personal characteristics of integrity, patience, and ethical conduct, coupled with 20 years of professional educational experience, will be a key element to her success in her new position.

Granger grew up in San Leandro, attended Roosevelt Elementary, and graduated from San Leandro High School in 1985. She has a Bachelor of Science degree from Boston College and a Master of Arts from the California State University, Hayward.

Judgeship appointments announced

SUBMITTED BY GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. announced on August 29, 2013, the appointment of Sunil R. Kulkarni and Lori E. Pegg to judgeships in the Santa Clara County Superior Court.

Sunil R. Kulkarni

Kulkarni, 41, of Palo Alto, has been senior counsel in the University of California, Office of the General Counsel's litigation group since 2011. He held multiple positions at Morrison and Foerster LLP from 1998 to 2011, including partner and associate. Kulkarni served as a law clerk for the Honorable Oliver W. Wagner, U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of California from 1996 to 1997. He earned a Juris Doctor degree from the University of California, Hastings College of the Law and a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of California, Berkeley. The appointment of Kulkarni fills a vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Marcel B. Poche. Kulkarni is a Democrat. According to the South Asian Bar Association of Northern California, he will be the first South Asian American judge ever appointed in Northern California.

Pegg, 52, of San Jose, has been assistant county counsel at the Santa Clara County Office of the County Counsel since 2013, where she has served in multiple positions since 2001, including acting county counsel, lead deputy county counsel and deputy county counsel. She was of counsel at Hoge Fenton Jones and Appel Inc. from 1999 to 2001 and served in multiple positions at Burke Williams and Sorensen from 1992 to 1999, including partner and associate attorney. Pegg was a labor and employment associate attorney at Kauff, McClain and McGuire from 1989 to 1990 and a labor and employment associate at Wise and Shepard from 1987 to 1989. Pegg earned a Juris Doctor degree from the Santa Clara University School of Law and a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California, Los Angeles. She fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Kenneth L. Shapero. Pegg is a Democrat.

Compensation for each of these positions is $178,789.

limited resources to programs that prove they are effective."

The supervisors approved allocating $75,000 to help pay for the services of Third Sector Capital Partners, a consultant the county has been working for eight months on the first two phases of the Pay for Success work plan. The Silicon Valley Community Foundation has pledged $75,000, and county administrators are looking for a third partner to reach the $225,000 cost for the work. The Health Trust of Silicon Valley paid for the first two phases of the project.

The next 14-month phase is to set up two pilot projects focused on the areas of mental health and homelessness. But there are many areas that could use the model, including juvenile probation, child welfare, school suspensions and public health.

Here is how Pay for Success could work:

- A foundation or private investor agrees, for example, to pay upfront $100,000 to contract with a nonprofit or community organization for health services for homeless individuals and families.
- A contract spells out outcomes that must be reached before the county reimburses the investor or foundation. For example, the nonprofit must provide basic health care for 100 clients in a year.

A health clinic is set up and the nonprofit works with other agencies and nonprofits that help homeless to bring in clients to receive the care.

The county pays only when outcomes are reached as determined and evaluated by an independent partner. The investor or foundation recovers the $100,000 with interest, or reinvests it in the program so more homeless can receive health care.

The investor, not taxpayers, bears the risk of the project not reaching the outcomes and therefore not getting reimbursed, and the $100,000 that the county didn't pay upfront could be used for other services. Also, the county and taxpayers save money by providing a health care alternative to the expensive hospital emergency room used by many ill and injured homeless people. On a social level, a segment of the population becomes healthier and has a better likelihood of getting into permanent housing.

The next phase for Pay for Success will focus on creating a method to measure successful outcomes, analyze savings to the county, identify a sound economic model for the service provider and project financing requirements and investor appetite.

For more information, contact Supervisor Cortese's office at (408) 299-3050.

Bill protects sexual assault victim funds

SUBMITTED BY SERGIO REYES

Governor Jerry Brown signed important bipartisan legislation on August 26, 2013 authored by Senate Majority Leader Ellen M. Corbett (D-East Bay) ensuring that local law enforcement entities within California continue receiving reimbursement from federal Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) funding for costs of sexual assault medical examinations.

Sponsored by the Alameda County District Attorney's Office and the California Coalition Against Sexual Assault (CALCASA), SB 107 authorizes state agencies' use of federal grant monies to reimburse local law enforcement for the costs incurred in administering "rape kits" to victims of sexual assault. Under VAWA, CalEMA / Office of Emergency Services received approximately $12 million from the federal government last year.

Board of Equalization announces tax protections for same sex married couples

SUBMITTED BY ALAN LOFASO

First District Board of Equalization Member Betty T. Yee hailed guidance issued August 29, 2013 by the U.S. Treasury Department and Internal Revenue Service (IRS) following June's U.S. Supreme Court decision in Windsor v. U.S. invalidating a key provision of the 1996 Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA).

The guidance, in the form of a revenue ruling, recognizes same sex marriages broadly and applies to all same sex marriages regardless of the jurisdiction where the couple was married or whether the couple's current residence recognizes the marriage.

"This broad ruling provides certainty and stability for same sex couples throughout the U.S.," Yee said.

The guidance applies to all federal tax provisions where marriage is a factor, including filing status, claiming personal and dependency exemptions, taking the standard deduction, employee benefits, contributing to an IRA, and claiming the earned income tax credit or child tax credit.

Yee noted the ruling did not address questions relating to tax filing for California registered domestic partners or couples in domestic partnerships or civil unions in other states.

At 5:30 p.m., a resident on Deborah Drive was contacted by a suspect who impersonated a "City" employee. The suspect told the resident that she was looking for a snake infestation in the victim's house and backyard. The female suspect distracted the victim, while another unknown suspect entered the victim's home and ransacked the residence. The victim discovered their residence had been burglarized shortly after the suspect did not find any snake infestation and left the residence.

Numerous items of jewelry and currency were taken during the burglary. The victim described the suspect as a Caucasian or Hispanic female, having blond hair that may have been dyed or have been a wig. The suspect was wearing a dark blue hat with the letters "CITY" on it. The suspect had on what appeared to be a uniform; a dark green shirt with a patch or logo of some sort over the left chest area, and dark green pants. The suspect had a nose piercing, tongue piercing, and was wearing clear glasses.

At 1:57 p.m., Officer Young stopped a vehicle on Almaden Boulevard. The driver decided to jump out of his vehicle and yell profanities at the officer as he pulled over. The driver then told the officer, "I hate the police, come and get me!" The driver then told Officer Young, "I'm going to give you some excitement!"

Knowing this wasn't possible, officers walk back over to the victim who is now laying on the concrete sidewalk to speak with him. They see that his wallet is laying on the sidewalk approximately 40 feet away from him.

Officer Young gave the irate driver several verbal commands, which the driver ignored. The driver decided to calm down after additional officers arrived. Unfortunately the driver's only excitement was a ride to jail.

At 1:01 a.m., Union City police officers responded to the 33400 block of 11th Street for a reported shooting. Neighbors reported two men were in the street suffering from gunshot wounds. Lowe's completes Orchard Supply acquisition

AP WIRE SERVICE

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Home improvement retailer Lowe's said it has completed its acquisition of 72 stores from Orchard Supply Hardware Stores for approximately $205 million.

Orchard is a Sears spinoff that filed for bankruptcy in June. That same month the San Jose, Calif., company received the offer from Lowe's Cos. The "stalking horse" bid also included the assumption of debts owed to nearly all of Orchard's suppliers.

The deal allows Lowe's to expand in California and reach into urban areas. Because Orchard's has smaller stores, it can operate in areas of dense population.

Orchard will continue to run as a separate, stand-alone company.

Last week Lowe's reported that its second-quarter results topped Wall Street's expectations and the chain raised its full-year earnings and revenue forecasts.

Shares of Lowe's, based in Mooresville, N.C., shed 55 cents, or 1.2 percent, to $45.87 in Friday morning trading. Its shares are still trading near their 52-week high of $47.51 reached late last week.

Bill would provide online protection for minors

BY DON THOMPSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Minors who post embarrassing photographs or information on social media websites would have a chance to remove it from public view under legislation being sent to Gov. Jerry Brown.

The bill by Senate President Pro Tem Darrell Steinberg requires that website operators give children a way to take down the material and to disclose on their sites how to make those requests.

SB568 also prohibits websites from marketing alcohol, tobacco and other products to minors. It further bans them from giving minors' identifying information to third-parties marketers.

It would apply only to registered users of the websites and take effect Jan. 1, 2015.

The Senate passed the bill 38-0 Friday, sending it to the governor.

Library special tax passes

SUBMITTED BY GWENDOLYN
MITCHELL/MARINA HINESTROSA

Measure A, the all-mail ballot recently sent to residents in the Santa Clara County Library District (SCCLD) service area, has passed according to an August 28, 2013 statement issued by the Santa Clara County Registrar of Voters. The final, unofficial results indicate that Measure A passed by 81 percent.

Measure A asked for a continuation of the existing special tax rates of $33.66 per single-family home without any increase in taxes. Voters chose to ensure the extension of library funding for the next 20 years.

"Libraries are at the heart of our communities, and are essential to life-long education," said Mayor of Morgan Hill Steve Tate, and Co-chair of the Measure A Campaign. "We led the 2013 campaign because we strongly believe in the powerful role of public libraries."

Measure A accounts for 18 percent of SCCLD revenue and is needed to maintain library hours and services. These special tax funds help keep qualified librarians on staff, provide an award-winning bookmobile program, maintain children's reading programs and purchase needed books and up-to-date research materials.

"Without Measure A funds, our patrons would experience significant cut backs and changes in services and programs," said Gilbert Wong, Chair of the Library's Joint Powers Authority Board. "Passing Measure A demonstrates just how much residents are willing to continue to invest and believe in the importance of maintaining such a strong community service."

"The voters have clearly expressed how valuable libraries are to them," said County of Santa Clara Supervisor Mike Wasserman, Delegate for the County Library District Joint Powers Authority. "The revenue collected by this tax will be returned directly to each local library. This funding will ensure more materials and open hours."

The Measure A campaign was co-chaired by Steve Tate, Mayor of Morgan Hill, and Library Joint Powers Authority Board member, and Dolly Sandoval, teacher and former Mayor of Cupertino. Tate and Sandoval also co-chaired the successful measure ten years ago. 202,505 ballots were mailed to SCCLD residents at the end of July. According to the Santa Clara County Registrar of Voters, of the ballots issued, 55,149 were returned by the August 27th deadline.

search terms. Officers conducted a probation search of the room resulting in the recovery of a loaded Glock magazine, a small amount of marijuana, and ecstasy. Upon entry to the room, officers observed Deonta Broussard of San Francisco walking away from an open window and heard something outside the window that was potentially thrown out of it. Officer Johnson recovered a loaded Glock model 30 .45 Cal handgun from the pool which had been reported stolen out of Sacramento. Harrison and Broussard were arrested for the gun and ammo possession, the drug charges, and Harrison's felony warrant for identity theft, fraud and burglary. They were both booked at Santa Rita Jail.

Only after being finger printed did her true identity become known. Kyrie was later booked at Fremont PD Jail on the above charges and her outstanding burglary warrant out of Hayward PD.

Thomas struck the victim with his cane and refused to let her leave the residence. Thomas damaged the couple's phone line while the victim called 911 for help. Thomas was taken into custody without incident and booked at Santa Rita Jail. The victim was treated at a local hospital for her injuries.

At approximately 11:40 a.m. a female was robbed of her purse near the Sprouts store on the 3800 block of Mowry Ave. The victim had just come out of Sprouts and was unloading groceries into the trunk of her car when an unknown female snatched her purse from out of the shopping cart. The female fled to an awaiting vehicle. The female and driver suspects were confronted by a third party witness who was trying to help. The male driver brandished a handgun and both suspects fled east on Mowry Ave. Officers flooded the area looking for the suspects' vehicle but were unsuccessful. The victim's keys were in her purse so officers gave her a ride home and suggested she cancel all of her credit cards. Ofc Chinn conducted the investigation.

County and labor union reach agreement

SUBMITTED BY GWENDOLYN MITCHELL

The County of Santa Clara and Service Employees International Union Local 521 announced August 30, 2013 that they reached a Tentative Agreement which was approved by 85 percent of the union membership.

Highlights of the two-year agreement:

Workers will increase their contributions toward retiree health care costs $10 per pay period or $260 annually to strengthen the plan's sustainability, bringing in about $2.1 million annually.

New workers will have to work for a minimum of 15 years to qualify for retiree health benefit. A worker hired yesterday would have had to work for 10 years to be eligible for the benefit.

To prepare for health care reform, the county will collaborate with SEIU 521 to form unit based teams across the county's health & hospital system, ensuring frontline workers have direct input on the quality improvements affecting patient care.

Employees will share the cost of health premiums.

To address recruitment and retention issues, two lower steps of the salary schedule will be removed. This will directly help the county become competitive in developing a cutting edge workforce.

Members will receive a 2% annualized wage increase in the first year (which is implemented at 4% for a six month period effective December 23, 2013 and is decreased to 2% effective June 22, 2014) and a 3% wage increase in the second year.

The Agreement will go the Board of Supervisors for approval on September 10, 2013.

Wieckowski bill allows sales tax limit exemption

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

Governor Jerry Brown signed Assemblymember Bob Wieckowski's (D-Fremont) bill on August 28, 2013 to allow Alameda and Contra Costa counties to put measures on the ballot to fund transportation infrastructure improvements.

"I applaud the Governor's support for AB 210," Wieckowski said of the transportation bill. "Governor Brown recognizes the need to invest in our infrastructure and I'm sure he appreciates the fact that none of these projects will go forward without the support of local voters. We have a strong coalition in support - local transportation agencies, cities throughout the region, business and labor, plus the Port of Oakland."

AB 210 would authorize Alameda and Contra Costa counties to go above the local 2 percent sales tax limit if voters approve county-wide transportation ballot measures by Dec. 31, 2020. This exemption is needed because some cities in both counties enacted citywide sales tax measures that brought both counties up to the 2 percent limit.

In 2012, voters in Alameda County strongly supported a countywide transportation measure by 66.53 percent. But Measure B1 came just 721 votes short of the needed two-thirds threshold. The Alameda County Transportation Commission is hoping to put another measure before voters.

Contra Costa County is in the process of updating its countywide transportation plan and might offer a ballot measure in the future after talking to its local communities and developing a list of projects.

The countywide plans are developed after considerable public community input from all parts of the counties.

Wieckowski represents the 25th District, which includes San Jose, Milpitas, Santa Clara, Fremont and Newark.

BOE launches new website

SUBMITTED BY CALIFORNIA BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

The Board of Equalization has unveiled a newly redesigned website (www.boe.ca.gov), offering its customers enhanced, task-oriented features that optimize navigation, and provide quick and easy access to important tax and fee information. The website, created by BOE employees, enables customers to conveniently conduct business with the BOE, while creating a faster, more user-friendly online experience.

"We listened to our customers and have designed this new website to fit their needs," said Executive Director Cynthia Bridges. "Our website offers our customers a convenient way to log in, easily access their accounts, and stay up-to-date on important tax information, improving their online experience." The website's clean, streamlined layout enables visitors to find the information they want, and connect with the BOE through social media. Interactive banners highlight important business tax news and updates. Customers can access BOE's online services through a convenient Log-in button on the homepage.

"It's friendly and fast," said one website visitor. "As a business owner, I appreciate that my needs and interests have been taken into consideration."

BOE staff used customer surveys and stakeholder input to develop the website's task-oriented design. This helps BOE's customers file a return, make a payment, find a form or publication, and locate various tax and fee payer resources.

Other new features include Popular Topics, which contains information customers use most. The How Do I section helps customers find answers to commonly asked questions, and the Business Center provides useful tax resources.

Visit the new website at www.boe.ca.gov.

City Manager Report

SUBMITTED BY JOANNE BURKMAN

Cook-Off Challenge:

The City of Hayward was invited and Councilmember Mark Salinas accepted the challenge on behalf of Mayor Sweeney to represent the City of Hayward at the Healthy Cook-Off Challenge held on July 25 at the City of Dublin's Farmers' Market. Contestants were asked to bring a chef from their city to participate and collaborate with their elected city representative. Councilmember Salinas chose Chef Tony Solorio, owner of Tacos Uruapan on Industrial Blvd.

Following the example of the "Iron Chef" television show, cook-off organizers provided the teams with fresh chicken, whole grain, vegetables and fruits at the start of the competition. Contestants had to bring their own cooking equipment and utensils, seasoning, dishes, and linens.

Each team had two hours to plan and prepare a meal for a panel of 10 judges. They were judged on presentation, taste, and creativity.

We are proud to announce that the City of Hayward placed second and has been invited to compete against the winning teams from Contra Costa County this fall. Congratulations to Councilmember Salinas and Chef Solorio of Tacos Uruapan.

Homework Centers:

On August 21, the Hayward Unified School District Board (HUSD) of Education voted unanimously in favor of funding an agreement with the City of Hayward to operate four Homework Tutoring Centers during school year 2013-14. The Homework Tutoring Centers are effective at improving student performance on standardized tests. Participating schools include Longwood Elementary, now entering its third year of operation, and new sites at Lorin Eden Elementary, Southgate Elementary, and Martin Luther King, Jr. Middle School.

Under the terms of the agreement, the City of Hayward Library & Community Services Department will deliver after school homework tutoring program services to students at those schools, and HUSD will fund the program costs. This brings to eight the total number of City-operated homework tutoring sites that will be operational during school year 2013-14. Included are the aforementioned schools plus Park and Harder Elementary Schools, now entering their second year of operations, the Hayward Downtown Main Library and Weekes Branch Library homework centers, now entering their fifth year of operations.

Governor Signs Corbett Bill Protecting Middle Class Workers

SUBMITTED BY SERGIO REYES

Senate Majority Leader Ellen M. Corbett (D-East Bay) is pleased to announce that SB 776, strengthening existing workplace and labor protections for workers throughout California, was signed by Governor Jerry Brown on August 27, 2013.

SB 776 protects the wages and fringe benefits of workers on public works projects by clarifying the requirements for bona fide fringe benefits. Specifically, this important bill closes loopholes in prevailing wage law by clarifying that contractor payments for monitoring and enforcing laws related to public works cannot count as a credit towards a contractor's obligation to pay prevailing wages, if payments are inconsistent with federal law.

Corbett Audit Request of Limo Safety Funds Approved

SUBMITTED BY SERGIO REYES

Senate Majority Leader Ellen M. Corbett (D-East Bay) reported that on August 21, 2013, the Joint Legislative Audit Committee (JLAC) approved her audit request of the Public Utilities Commission Transportation Reimbursement Account, which includes funds used to oversee and regulate limousines in California. The California State Auditor will conduct the independent audit over the next several months and issue a public report once the analysis is completed.

This audit request follows the deaths of a bride and four friends in a tragic limousine fire on the San Mateo-Hayward Bridge in May, as well as a limousine fire in Walnut Creek when 10 elderly women narrowly escaped serious injury less than six weeks later.

The audit request approved by JLAC includes determining:

- How fees collected from charter-party carriers are being spent;
- Whether fees collected from charter-party carriers are spent for enforcement activities;
- To what extent the CPUC is enforcing safety regulations under the Passenger Charter-Party Carriers' Act.

"This audit will delve into the CPUC's financial account that funds the oversight and regulation of limousines in our state. We want to ensure that every dollar collected for limo safety in California is indeed going toward that end," said Senator Corbett.

Senator Corbett recently introduced SB 109 giving limousine passengers a much better chance of escaping these vehicles in the event of a fire or other emergency. Specifically, limousines would be required to have rear side doors at both ends of the passenger compartment and two rear push-out windows, as well as ensuring that limo passengers are briefed on safety features prior to their trip.

"Places of Worship" is published on the first Tuesday of every month. Faith-based organizations that have agreed to distribute Tri-City Voice to their congregations are included. A complete list of all greater Tri-City faith-based organizations can be found at: www.tricityvoice.com under "Community Resources."

Investors brace for a jam-packed September

Stovall says that Summers seems like more of a political operator than Yellen. His concern is that a Fed under Summers would be less impartial, undermining an institution that's supposed to be independent of political winds.

"My worry is that Larry Summers gets it," Stovall says. "I really think his nomination would reduce investor confidence in the Fed."

GERMAN ELECTIONS. SEPT. 22 Remember the European debt crisis? From late 2009 until last year, worries about Greece, Spain or another of the continent's troubled economies would flare up and send the U.S. stock market into a tailspin. This year has been different.

France and Germany helped tug the eurozone out of an 18-month recession this spring. A closely watched survey recently showed business activity rising for four months straight. U.S. investors who used to keep close tabs on Europe's bond markets for signs of trouble now look to the region for investment ideas.

Germany's elections on Sept. 22 will likely push Europe back into the spotlight, if only because of what happens afterward. Analysts expect that the new German government will take up long-awaited reforms for the eurozone, the 17 countries that use the euro currency. That could easily lead to some public spats, especially if Greece's struggles to pay its debts again. Last week, Germany's finance minister said the country will need a third bailout package, a source of resentment for many Germans.

"Europe has been off the table as a looming risk, and that's likely to change once the election is over," says Martin LeClerc, chief investment officer at Barrack Yard Advisors in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. "Europe is going to have to tackle some big issues."

Merkel's party leads in polls, and if she gets a third term in office with a stronger government, Pride of Glenmede thinks it could embolden her to drive the eurozone countries closer together. "Ultimately, that's a good thing for Europe and also a good thing for the market," he says.

THE BUDGET. SEPT 30 If investors get through the Fed meeting and events in Europe unscathed, there's still one obstacle at the end of the month. And it could prove to be the biggest one, Pride says.

When members of Congress return from their summer break on Sept. 9, questions about Syria may top of their concerns. But they will also face two deadlines tied to the federal budget.

To keep the government running, Congress needs to pass a short-term spending bill before the fiscal year starts Oct. 1. And then there's the government's $16.7 trillion borrowing limit. Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew warned that, unless it's raised soon, the government would lose the ability to pay all its bills by the middle of October.

The Obama administration has said it won't negotiate spending cuts with Congressional Republicans in exchange for lifting the debt limit.

John Boehner, the Republican Speaker of the House, said Aug. 26 that he plans to use the debt ceiling to demand deeper spending cuts. He promised "a whale of a fight."

The recent tough talk has reminded many in the financial markets of the debt-ceiling fight in August, 2011. That fight led the rating agency Standard & Poor's to strip the U.S. of its top, AAA credit rating. Stock markets slumped worldwide and the S&P 500 index plunged 6 percent in one day, its steepest daily drop since the 2008 financial crisis.

Among investors, there's a widely shared view that any budget squabbles could get rough but not as bad as back then.

"We think cooler heads will generally prevail," Pride says. "But if Boehner and his crew decide to hold the President's feet to the fire," it could spiral into a something sure to unnervingly investors in the U.S. and abroad.

A drawn-out brawl, Pride says, could easily become "the largest speed bump for this year's market rally." The S&P 500 index is up 14.5 percent this year.

The fight is likely to follow the same plotline as earlier ones, investors say. A scary standoff ends with a last-minute agreement. And then, they hope, the market will rally.

"When it's over, we'll get back all that was lost," Luschni says.

Millennials wary of buying first homes with tuition debt, with an average burden of nearly $20,000 in 2011, according to the national Project on Student Debt. Those loans make it tougher to save for a down payment and keep debt-to-income ratios low on a mortgage application. A recent report from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York found that home ownership fell twice as fast from 2008 to 2012 among 30-year-olds with student debt as it did for loan-free 30-year-olds.

Nor can you stash cash for closing or qualify for a mortgage if you're jobless. An Associated Press analysis found that nearly 54 percent of people under 25 with a bachelor's degree were unemployed or underemployed in 2012. And though unemployment in Nevada is high in general, at a June average of 9.6 percent, young adults especially feel the pinch. The 2012 jobs rate averaged 15.2 percent for Nevadans 20 to 24, and 11.3 percent for 25- to 34-year-olds, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

Wages for college grads ages 25 to 34 are also down, falling 9.6 percent in inflation-adjusted figures from 2000 to 2010, to $40,875, according to a Wall Street Journal analysis. Credit scores don't help Generation Y's case, either. The average credit score of people ages 25 to 34 is roughly 630, according to credit-tracking website Credit Karma. That's well below the 700 to 720 many lenders require.

A Change In Perspectives But there's more to lower household formation than economics.

For one thing, there's just less of a stigma to moving home than there used to be, Fry said. Sixty percent of Millennials in a 2011 Pew study said they or someone they knew had to move home for economic reasons.

"A majority of young adults have experienced it on some level. It's the norm, not the exception. It's not unacceptable anymore to live with your parents," Fry said.

Jason Dorsey, a Generation Y expert at the Center for Generational Kinetics in Texas, said blaming the economy "gives everyone an excuse." The fact is, Millennials are "delaying all the big decisions that are the check boxes you mark on the way to adulthood," he said.

Compared with prior generations, Millennials graduate from college later, enter the workforce later, marry later and have kids later. The typical 28-year-old is three to five years behind past generations in terms of work and life experiences, said Dorsey, a Millennial who bucked the trend and moved out of his parents' house at 17.

"Millennials' parents have the philosophy that they want life to be easier for us than it was for them," he said. "They have not cut us off, which is what really forces people out into the world. ... Parents complain to us, but on the flip side, they give their kids gas cards to pay for their gas."

All of those economic and sociological factors are why just 9 percent of people ages 29 to 34 got mortgages for the first time from 2009 to 2011, according to the Federal Reserve. That's roughly half of the 17 percent with first-time loans in 2002.

But the trend is reversible, observers said. Millennials will eventually catch up in household formation, and that will unleash pent-up demand for apartments and homes, Kolko said. There's already evidence that Generation Y is getting bullish about owning.

Wanting Homes In Trulia's American Dream survey from July, 59 percent of Millennials said buying a home is the best investment, up from 40 percent in 2011. The age group improved its outlook more than the general population. Sixty percent of all Americans said a home is the best investment, compared with 47 percent two years ago.

Millennials really do want to buy, agreed Rob Pistone, a senior sales associate with Coldwell Banker Premier Realty in Las Vegas. They just can't. Pistone said he gets plenty of calls from 20-somethings who are married or in the military and are especially serious about owning. But they get sticker shock when they see what the payment will be, and that's if they can get a loan, Pistone said.

"A lot of people would rather buy than rent, and I think that's true for Millennials," he said. "If everyone could qualify for a loan, I don't think you'd see this problem. I get calls from Millennials every day, and I tell them they'll have to work out a loan first."

So it's important for young buyers and their sales agents to be persistent when they apply for a mortgage. Pistone recently worked with a 27-year-old who'd just graduated law school knee-deep in student loans. The bank initially rejected the attorney's application because of his college debt, but Pistone found a lender who got the underwriter to consider the fact that the lawyer's student-loan payments were deferred. The attorney qualified.

Homebuilders can help, too. Pistone said builders should reach out to Millennials with offers to help with closing costs, or with mortgages that carry smaller payments in the first two or three years.

Perhaps a Matter of Time Time will also encourage Millennials leave the nest.

Pistone said he sees evidence that investors aren't buying as much, and that'll make life easier for young homebuyers.

"Millennials are often the lowest on the totem pole when it comes to offers," he said. "Sellers are selective. They see a first-time buyer using (Federal Housing Administration) financing, and it's hard for that buyer to compete with someone who's buying with cash, or putting down 20 percent."

Still, short of a pickup in the business climate, it'll be difficult to coax some Millennials off of the sidelines. Baca said he looks forward to owning a home and having a family — someday. He doesn't know when.

"The answer is sustained economic improvement. If, for some reason, I lose the job I have, I'm not sure I could support a mortgage," he said. "If the job market were better for people my age, that would encourage me to buy."

Bill protects conservatees

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

Assemblymember Bob Wieckowski's (D-Fremont) bill to stop conservatees from being isolated from family and friends by conservators who are overstepping their limits was signed into law August 19, 2013 by California Governor Jerry Brown.

"Governor Brown's decision to sign AB 937 sends a clear message that people who are no longer able to manage their affairs should still be treated with the respect and dignity they deserve rather than isolated from their loved ones," Wieckowski said. "This is a victory for conservatees throughout California and for all those who care about them."

AB 937 clarifies the law to state that unless a court has ordered otherwise, a conservatee keeps the right to, among other things, receive personal mail, telephone calls, and visitors.

Conservatorships are established to protect individuals from abuse when they can no longer manage their finances, personal or medical decisions. When a court establishes a conservatorship, the conservatee and his or her family receive a Judicial Council notice saying the conservatee should be treated with understanding and respect.

Assemblymember Wieckowski represents the 25th District, which includes Fremont, Newark, San Jose, Milpitas and Santa Clara.

A Music and Dance Showcase

By MEDHA RAMAN

Irrespective of language, great music is universally appreciated and has frequently served philanthropic interests for centuries. Successful fundraisers in the aftermath of calamities such as Hurricane Katrina and the Haitian earthquake raised millions of dollars in aid and helped countless people rebuild their lives.

Aside from large commercial concerts, locally organized music events have proven to be important sources of aid for smaller community issues and an important way for everyday citizens to help their less fortunate counterparts. Four musically talented and accomplished teenagers from the Bay Area decided to further this tradition of local musical philanthropy in a bid to help their community. Last year, Ashwin Srikant, Divya Mohan, Gopal Ravindhran, and Vignesh Thyagarajan began a group called Youth Service Through Cultural Arts (YSTCA). Dedicated to assisting an annually chosen Bay Area charitable organization, YSTCA hosts annual music events to supplement the charity's funds. YSTCA's inaugural event in December 2012 raised over $8,000 for the Dominican Sisters of Mission San Jose, saving music and fine arts programs throughout Fremont schools.

This year, YSTCA shifted its community issue focus and chose the Indo American Senior Association of Fremont (INSAF) to receive the proceeds from its annual concert. Founded in 2003, INSAF helps Indian seniors in the Tri-City area who are in financial distress. Many of these seniors live alone with very limited resources and are either uninsured or underinsured. INSAF offers emotional and financial support to these Indian seniors, many of who are uncomfortable with English and unaware of the various community resources available to them.

YSTCA's Indian classical music event will take place on Saturday, September 7 at Shirdi Sai Parivaar Auditorium in Milpitas. During this free event, YSTCA plans to publicize INSAF activities and seek donations, which will be used to assist more seniors. The afternoon will be filled with Indian classical music and dance performances from over twelve schools throughout the Bay Area. The Consul of General of India, N. Parthasarthi, will attend the event as the Guest of Honor, while Mayor of Milpitas Jose Esteves and Fremont Vice Mayor Anu Natarajan will also be in attendance as Guests of Honor.

As the four YSTCA founders will graduate high school and move on to university in 2014, they decided to pass the torch to four new members—Malini Mahes, Medha Raman, Vedika Iyer, and Adarsh Ramchandran. These students hope to emulate their YSTCA seniors and utilize their musical knowledge to contribute in a meaningful way to the Bay Area community for years to come.

Rosh Hashanah welcomes New Year

While many do their New Year's celebrating at the first chime of January, for those of the Jewish faith, the time for reflection and renewal is just about to begin.

Meaning "head of the year" in Hebrew, Rosh Hashanah is the celebration of the Jewish New Year which begins on the evening of Wednesday, September 4 and lasts through the evening of Friday, September 6. It is a time for prayer, repentance, and making amends as well as spending time with family and friends, partaking of specific foods, and attending services.

Rosh Hashanna serves as the first of Ten Days of Repentance which ends with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, on September 13 and 14. The sounding of the shofar (ram's horn) symbolizes this call to repentance and is sounded many times throughout the holiday.

Special foods are symbolic of the blessings hoped for in the New Year, such as the slice of apple dipped in honey symbolizing the wish for a sweet year. The special prayer of Tashlich is recited, casting away sin, traditionally said near a body of water, reflecting the promise in Micah 7:19: "And You shall cast their sins into the depths of the sea."

The holiday culminates by lighting candles and prayers with a recitation of kiddush and blessings made on the challah. Believers go forth into the new year blessing each other with the wish: "Le-shanah tohav tikateiv veteichateim," "May you be inscribed and sealed for a good year."
