Welcome the Thai New Year

BY JILL STOVALL PHOTOS COURTESY OF WAT BUDDHANUSORN

"Happy New Year" may not be what you would expect to hear in mid-April, but that is the greeting you will receive on April 16 and 17 when Wat Buddhanusorn celebrates "Songkran," the traditional New Year in Thailand.

Wat Buddhanusorn, which means the "temple of the teachings of the Buddha" according to Director of Educational Programming Tim Tararug, was founded in 1983 and serves the Theravada Buddhist community in the Bay Area. Theravada Buddhism, one of the main branches of Buddhist

Make big stuff happen on Earth Day 2016

Marking its 46th year, "Earth Day" will be celebrated in more than 192 countries on Friday, April 22. Now led by the Earth Day Network, Earth Day began in 1970 and was spearheaded by former U.S. Senator Gaylord Nelson to "give voice to an emerging consciousness, channeling human energy toward environmental issues."

The Earth Day Network encourages us to "get really big stuff done for our planet" by planting 7.8 billion trees for the Earth, divesting from fossil fuels and making cities 100 percent renewable, and making binding commitments to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. (CBC) is a non-profit organization founded in 1992 by a group of civic-minded Chinese Americans in the Tri-Cities area. These founders saw a need to establish an organization to give Chinese Americans a voice locally and regionally by sponsoring or participating in activities throughout the year. CBC's mission is "To initiate, sponsor and promote community events, which will affect the wellbeing of Chinese Americans with an emphasis on education, health, business and community involvement."

Programs and events supported by CBC over the years include Abode Services, Boy Scouts of America, CBC Adult Toastmasters, CBC Toastmasters Youth Leadership Program, Fremont Education Foundation, Fremont July Fourth Parade, Fremont Rotary Clubs, Fremont Symphony Orchestra, Friends of Children with Special Needs, Music at the Mission, Ohlone College Foundation, and South Bay Chinese Club.

Help support CBC's community work by picking up a ticket for their 24th annual "Spring Celebration" fundraiser, Saturday, April 23 at the Royal Palace Banquet Hall in Fremont.

King, a notable, magical figure in Chinese lore since the 16th century. CBC has chosen "Return of the Monkey King – Remembering the '70s" as this year's theme, which honors both the '70s and the people who graduated during those years and set out to change the world, and the strength and energy of the Monkey King.

The evening will start with a wonderful dinner, featuring a prime rib carving station, chicken and vegetarian selections, and will include wine, salad, sides and cheesecake for dessert. Dinner will be followed by a musical tribute to the '70s and a special mystery rock legend, a Chinese dance performance, and live music by the IDEA Band with dancing in Club Monkey, even more exclusive than Studio 54, so come prepared to show off your moves on the disco floor!

Attire is black tie or dress suit for men, long dress or cheong sam for women, and '70s attire is also welcome. While there will not be a silent auction this year, co-chairs Herb Chiu and David Bonaccorsi assure us that raffle prizes will be offered! continued on page 5 n Monday, April 25, golf enthusiasts and friends of Washington Hospital will continue a longtime tradition that has raised almost $1.8 million in support of health care services for the residents of Washington Township Health Care District. The golfers will tee off at Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation's 31st Annual Golf Tournament at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton, a 36-hole private facility, with two challenging golf courses and incredible views.

It's Time to Tee Off Celebrating 31 Years!

Tournament registration and sponsorship opportunities are available – Join Us!

Since 1985, golfers of all abilities and experience have gathered for the annual tournament, enjoying a day on the links followed by an awards banquet in the evening. Non-golfers are welcome to support Washington Hospital by attending the reception and awards banquet in the beautiful ballroom at Castlewood. Foundation President, Rod Silveira, says, "Each year, community members come to enjoy a day of golf, but they also want to support health care programs in our community. Again this year, proceeds from the tournament will help fund surgical care at Washington Hospital. Because surgical innovation is always advancing, the Foundation looks forward to helping underwrite the cost of equipment that surgeons will need in the future. I encourage you to join us for a great day and a great cause."

In addition to the 18-hole golf tournament, the event will include a putting contest, barbecue lunch, contest holes, refreshments, a cocktail reception and an awards banquet. During the banquet, a selection of exciting raffle items will be offered. There will also be a live auction offering an opportunity to play in the Lexus Champions for Charity National Golf Tournament, a dinner and wine pairing for four, a private sky box at an Oakland Athletics baseball game and more!

The event is held in memory of longtime Fremont businessman Gene Angelo Pessagno, a founding member of Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation. Gene Angelo Pessagno's widow, Laura, and her family continue to be enthusiastic supporters of the 31-year-old golf tournament. In addition, as a founding member of the Washington Hospital Service League, Laura has been an active volunteer at Washington Hospital for 60 years!

"We are looking forward to a great day on the golf course with friends and colleagues," said Lamar Hinton, who is serving again as golf tournament chairman. "I would like to thank our volunteers for their dedication and hard work in creating a rewarding experience for every participant. I would also like to extend special thanks to our Gold Sponsors, Fremont Bank and Gonsalves & Kozachenko, for their generous support," Hinton emphasized.

There is still plenty of time to sign up for the tournament or become a tournament sponsor. For more information about Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation's 31st Annual Golf Tournament, or to register as a participant or sponsor, please email foundation@whhs.com or call (510) 791-3428.

Get Ready for Summer: Restore Lifestyle Balance

Pring is the time for cleaning up and for getting into shape for the summer ahead. In addition to the home and garden, it's a great time to reinvigorate your personal health and wellness routine.

Restoring Balance, a Lifestyle Management Program offered by the Washington Hospital Women's Center, offers practical information on how participants can develop individual lifestyle management initiatives to help them feel better, be more energetic and less stressed, says Dr. Victoria Leiphart, a Washington Hospital gynecologist and Lifestyle Medicine physician.

Starting on Wednesday, May 4, the three-week class will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Washington Hospital Women's Center, 2500 Mowry Ave. (Washington West), suite 145, in Fremont. Fee for the three-week series is $45 and enrollment is limited to 25 persons to provide individualized attention. Please call (510) 608-1301 to enroll.

Emphasizing stress management, along with nutrition and exercise, Dr. Leiphart will share strategies and instructions for meditation and mindfulness along with a discussion of the science that supports these practices.

Stress management is key to a healthy life, Dr. Leiphart says. "We all live crazy lives and we seldom take the downtime we need to recharge our batteries an essential step to staying well over the long term."

Dr. Leiphart will focus on mindfulness and meditation in the first session; exercise, balance and strength training in the second session; and nutrition in the third session. All programs will provide adequate time for questions and discussion within the group.

"I see many mature women in my practice," Dr. Leiphart says. "The ones who are energetic, vital and engaged have three things in common: they exercise, watch what they eat and manage the stress in their lives."

Two-thirds of American women are overweight or obese, and for middle-aged and older women, the number is even higher.

"One in three meals is eaten outside the home and we spend three-to-five hours a day in front of the television or computer screen," adds Dr. Leiphart. "Our lives are simply filled with stress from having too many balls in the air: aging parents, children, work, civic engagement, household responsibilities. Taking care of ourselves goes on the bottom of our 'to-do' lists, just after cleaning out the cat's litter box," Dr. Leiphart said.

"If women made themselves a higher priority on that list, if we took care of ourselves, we could manage everything else much more efficiently and with much less stress. Women are personal health and wellness by participating in the Restoring Balance Lifestyle Management Program at Washington Hospital.A new three-week series is scheduled to begin May 4 and will continue May 11 and 18. The series is $45 and is limited to 25 people to provide individualized attention. To enroll, call (510) 608.1301.

programmed to be caretakers of others in our lives, but not of ourselves."

Exercise is the single most important action a person can take to improve one's health, Dr. Leiphart adds, "and you don't have to spend hours at the gym to see improvements."

Research continues to demonstrate that illness and disease can be treated and even prevented with lifestyle management, she says. Various studies have shown that spending just 30 minutes each day exercising (walking, biking, yoga and aerobic dancing, among other activities) reduces knee arthritis pain by 47 percent in adults of all ages studied.

Once you've begun to exercise and feel the benefits in energy and vitality, you are much more likely to eat healthier, Dr. Leiphart says. Her program will share simple keys to portion control and healthier food choices.

"The goal is not to look younger, but to feel younger," she adds. "Beauty and aging gracefully comes from fruits and vegetables."

In addition to Restoring Balance, Dr. Leiphart offers a series of monthly programs, "Women Empowering Women," from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month at the Washington Women's Center conference room, suit 145 (Washington West), 2500 Mowry Ave., Fremont. Class fee is $10; call (510) 608-1301 to register.

Dear Doctor,

How many times can you get a concussion before you have to retire from your sport?

Dear Reader,

Diabetes Education at Washington Hospital

There is no magic number. It mostly depends on a person's recovery time. A long recovery time - sometimes several months – is often enough of a cause for someone to reconsider risking themselves to another injury and prolonged recovery effort. The bottom line: take the time to heal a concussion completely and seek out expert opinion in care.

Dear Doctor, Is it better to stretch before or after an exercise?

Dear Reader,

Stretching is best accomplished after a short, slow warm-up period involving light jogging or elliptical or stationary cycling. The best tool to perform stretching is to use a foam roller over the muscle areas that need to be worked on. A foam roller is a solid tube usually measuring approximately 6 inches in diameter and either 2 or 4 feet in length. Foam rollers can be purchased at any sporting goods store and usually come with picture instructions. YouTube is also a great medium to learn how to use this incredible tool. The bottom line on stretching: slow and steady is best rather than quick or ballistic stretching. Slight contraction of the muscle while slowly being stretched is known as active stretching and employs a sports medicine concept called reciprocal inhibition - Google these terms and you will learn a lot!

In 1990, he went on to become the head team physician for Arizona State University and has been invited to work at the US Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs. Do you know the symptoms of diabetes? Did you know that in Alameda County there are 100,000 people with diabetes and that a third of them don't even know that they have the condition?

Could you be at risk? Or, could someone you know be at risk? Do you know the signs and symptoms of diabetes?

Some of the risk factors include high blood pressure, heart or blood vessel disease, and high cholesterol. Are you overweight or do you consume soda which is high in sugar content? Do you smoke? Is there any person in your family who has diabetes? Or, do you suspect that someone you know may have diabetes? The condition cannot be cured, but it can be controlled through proper medication, diet and moderate exercise.

Newly diagnosed people with diabetes as well as those who are long-term diabetics are encouraged to attend Washington Hospital's monthly Diabetes Matters programs. These sessions are offered the first Thursday of each month from 7 to 8 p.m. They provide an important resource that helps community members focus on healthy practices and long-term vitality. The more that people know about diabetes, the better decisions they can make daily to maintain optimum health and vitality.

The monthly community forum features presentations by a variety of medical professionals who review new information as well as suggestions for management of the condition. Family members and caregivers are welcome. The programs are presented in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium, located at 2500 Mowry Ave. in Fremont.

The presentations offer hopeful and educational information about living with diabetes and provide a good resource for up-to-date information and treatment suggestions, facilitated by Vida Reed, RN, CDE, a certified diabetes educator and coordinator of the Outpatient Diabetes Program at Washington Hospital.

"Diabetes is not a new disease, but it has become an epidemic as more and more individuals are diagnosed with the condition. Fortunately, there are many options for treating diabetes," says Reed.

Diabetes isn't limited to adults. About 20 percent of middle school students have blood sugar issues that can lead to diabetes. Also, pregnant women sometimes develop gestational diabetes and need to begin regular treatment for the condition.

Reed notes that taking extra steps to stay healthy is particularly important for people who have been diagnosed with diabetes, and attending the Diabetes Matters sessions will help inform them and their family members about their optimum course of managing diabetes and living well. Research has shown that diabetes education helps people prevent, delay or reverse complications of diabetes by providing them with strong self-management skills and practices.

The monthly sessions provide helpful reviews of good health routines, including learning about healthy food choices, or a demonstration of an insulin pump and how it helps someone with diabetes treat their condition.

"We provide science-based information, as a source of support and provide education about managing your disease," says Reed. The monthly presentations cover such topics as suggested exercise and diet plans as well as reviews of new research into the disease.

Washington Hospital's team of certified diabetes specialists helps attendees take positive steps toward lifetime control of their diabetes. Those with recently diagnosed diabetes as well as others who have been dealing with the disease for several years can learn about and benefit from new scientific research and healthy practices.

The Washington Hospital Diabetes Education Program has been recognized by the American Diabetes Association for Quality Self-management Education.

Reed also facilitates a diabetes support group which follows the informational session, from 8 to 9 p.m. on the same night, in the same location.

Washington Hospital also has an Outpatient Diabetes Center, at 3575 Beacon Ave., Fremont 94538, (510) 745-6556, open Monday - Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Getting diagnosed with diabetes can be overwhelming, but Washington Hospital's staff teaches the skills needed to control diabetes for a lifetime and help patients stay on track with their care. Research shows that diabetes education helps people prevent, delay or reverse complications through effective self-management. Diabetes professionals work with patients, their family and their physician to design a plan that can fit into the patient's life

Helpîng many în need

SUBMITTED BY LISA HALLAS

"Adolescence is a difficult time for many children. It's a time of transition both physically and psychologically and for some, a time of great pressure," says Alanna Powell, founder and president of Boldly Me. "Boldly Me is helping students transition through adolescence and avoid many of the pitfalls teenagers face from peer pressure to aggressive behavior, bullying and self-victimization."

The volunteer-driven organization provides classes, personal consultations, mentorship, retreats, physical activities and recreational events. Through these services, children in need are building their self-esteem through self-compassion, getting physically well, and also gaining financial stability. It is a process that starts with education and empathy and continues on through mentoring and life skills. As one Boldly Me Quest student says, "I'm so glad I've had the chance to work with you (Alanna Powell) on this project and help spread the message of Boldly Me. I came into the BoldQuest group ecstatic to join up and get to work. My chances of graduation were sketchy and you have been a lifesaver in helping me to achieve my goal of graduating... while we may be moving on from school, I know the things you've taught us will stick with us."

Since 2012, Boldly Me has served 5,000 students. These students suffered from many difficulties ranging from physical handicaps, mental health issues from bullying, abuse, gang influences and self-medicating due to depression among others. Before Boldly Me, there were few programs that reached out, listened to and mentored these children. Although Boldly Me does not provide therapy to students, with the help of Dr. Richard LaBelle, a robust curriculum has been created and implemented through assemblies, classroom programs, and one-on-one coaching in many elementary, middle, and high schools. 15 trainers and 60 volunteers educate children and their families on how to be resilient, as well as provide strategies for preventing and intervening desperate thoughts and unhealthy behaviors. It has filled a void in Fremont and other Bay Area cities and they continue to reach out to those in need as demand for these programs continues.

Through a study of over 1,400 students at Irvington High School by the St. Louis University School of Medicine, it was found that anxiety and depression levels at Irvington were double that of its own student population: 79.5 percent of students experience moderate to high anxiety and 54.5 percent reported moderate to severe depression. There are many other schools in the Bay Area that are seeing the effects of anxiety and depression in their students as well.

On average, Boldly Me offers over 50 classes, consultations and recreational activities monthly to the community. With demand for its services growing, Boldly Me needs support to continue its growth. The 4th anniversary "Boldly Me Promise Event" gives you an opportunity to support Boldly Me and the important services they provide to the community. The Promise Event will take place on Friday, April 29 at Massimo's. At this exciting event, you will hear success stories from Boldly Me Quest students, be inspired by Powell as she shares her journey and commitment to making a difference in the community, meet and hear community partners describe the drastic need for mental health programs, and watch an uplifting documentary on the work of Boldly Me.

Please join the Boldly Me team and other community members to learn more about the work of this organization and help support its important programs. Top sponsors for this event include: Kaiser Permanente, Washington Hospital Healthcare Systems, Mayor Bill Harrison, East Bay Community Foundation, Dan States, Dutra Enterprises, Dr. Richard and Nancy LaBelle, Saul Bromberger, Kris and Chris Goldthorpe, Sandra Hoover Photography, John Rosin, Jason and Alanna Powell.

There is limited seating for this event, so don't wait! To become a sponsor or to purchase tickets, please visit www.boldlyme.org.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR Land capacity is finite

When are Fremont's City Fathers soing to acknowledge that at the outset - developers have a fallback plan which they know they are likely to use?

Developers offer Fremont an initial plan with pack 'em and stack 'em units, outrageous building height, minimal parking with everybody's favorite - tandem parking, tiny setbacks from street and sidewalk, and laughable grassy open areas sans trees.

Builders are not the only ones to blame. Our elected officials and city planners must be fully aware of how schools and traffic are affected by this new housing. They wouldn't live there on a bet.

The public gets invited to meetings where the results are a foregone conclusion. The developers make a few (pre-determined) concessions; the City Fathers save face, and the construction proceeds.

When all the neighborhoods of Fremont (Centerville in particular) become as sretched as the areas from which new residents escaped, long time residents will wonder shy the Fremont officials never woke up and said ENOUGH. It makes me wonder if anybody deciding the future of our town ever took a basic biology class because nobody seems to grasp the concept of the CAR-RYING CAPACITY OF THE LAND: it is finite.

e do it every day, most of us without knowing that we are actually using two languages to convey our meaning. When a person says to another, "Welcome, I'm glad you came, come on in," there is usually a gesture made as well: the right palm up, a little to the side, and drawn toward the body. That simple, lovely, speaking gesture can stand alone and still say, "Welcome."

American Sign Language (ASL) in California alone is the primary language of nearly 400,000 people. In many states, high schools and universities accept ASL as a foreign language requirement. Now, along with the National Association of the Deaf (NAD), National Theatre of the Deaf (NTD), and the U.S. Deaf Sports Federation (USDSF), parts of sign languages used worldwide are being pulled together to establish an International Sign Language (ISL) that will facilitate communication between nations. The World Federation of the Deaf (WFD) reaches out to approximately 70 million Deaf people worldwide. A WFD representative said, "ISL is only a portable language. It will exist only as long as Deaf people from different countries gather together." Just imagine sharing meaning and understanding others, wherever you may travel. That dream is coming true, facilitated by community gatherings worldwide. Fremont has been participating in reaching this goal for four years now and is celebrating their 4th annual "Family Fun Weekend" (FFW) this month. Laura Petersen, early intervention educational consultant at California School for the Deaf (CSDF) in Fremont, says, "Families with Deaf and hard-of-hearing children throughout Northern California no longer need feel isolated, or lacking in opportunities to interact with Deaf adults, other Deaf children and other families with Deaf children. Our FFW is an opportunity to practice signing and learn from Deaf professionals as well as share experiences with other families.

outreach efforts are working. We have a family from Fort Bragg and another from San Louis Obispo participating this year."

Adult family members will be in workshops dealing with such topics as guided reading strategies, conversational ASL and resources, as well as kindergarten readiness. There will also be discussion groups with other families with similar aged Deaf children.

The young ones will participate in a carnival-themed Kids Camp with art, science, and recreational activities run by experienced staff. Deaf and hard-of-hearing kids and their siblings get a chance to language, ASL," was belittled by the AG Bell Association. Their response to DiMarco's newest goal (he is vying for a White House correspondents' dinner invitation) prompted a counterresponse, from Petersen. "I am incensed by AG Bell Association's condescending response to Nyle DiMarco. Whereas DiMarco is using his notoriety and success to bring people together, your association is continuing to push parents and the Deaf community aside. You force parents to choose listening and speaking for their child instead of sharing all the opportunities for language acquisition that are available and that scientific research has proven to be most beneficial." Are You Prepared For Your Next Job?

BY ANNE CHAN, PHD, MFT

any employees dream of moving up the career ladder, getting more responsibility, and commanding a higher salary. Yet, few are willing to do the work that it takes to get to the next level – it seems to me that they hope that their boss will promote them . . . well . . . just because it's "time" for them to be promoted. This is most likely wishful thinking – few are lucky enough to have bosses who look out for them and mentor them into career success. However, the good news is there are many concrete steps you can take to help your promotion.

First, determine what your next job could be. For those who have difficulty figuring out what their next level is, I would recommend taking a look at the org chart in your company as well as the org charts in other work places. Having a close look at org charts can help you determine what types of jobs are linked to yours and what might be a natural progression from your current job.

Another strategy is to envision what you would like your resume to look like in 5 to 10 years. What skills do you hope to be able to showcase? What job title would you love to have? These two questions can help you figure out what your next job(s) might be. I never discourage people from dreaming big – if your dream is to be a CEO, look at the career paths of CEOs you admire and see how they got there. You, too, can fashion a similar path. Now that you've determined what job you would like next, start doing an inventory of the skills you would need in order to get promoted to this new position. You can do internet searches on the types of skills associated with this position. Another trick is to look at job ads for comparable positions and note down the job requirements that are commonly mentioned.

At this point, you might get a little discouraged. For instance, someone who has been an administrative assistant for years might want to become an office manager, but his/her current position offers no opportunities to get such experience. Fear not – there are a variety of ways one can get management as well as other skills. Here are my favorite ways for people to get skills training and enhance their resumes:

Take courses to get additional training. Remember: Courses that are relevant to your new job can be highlighted in your resume. These days, there are a plethora of choices when it comes to taking courses. Start with your own company what additional training opportunities do they offer, both online and in the community? Many companies encourage their employees to get additional training and will even subsidize the cost of tuition and books. Do check out local community colleges and adult schools like Ohlone in Fremont and Chabot in Hayward. These colleges offer courses tailored to working adults. Another good resource is the website www.coursera.org - this website offers an amazing variety of online courses that you can take doing extra – think of this as a volunteer opportunity, not a money-making opportunity.

If you need experience right away, consider volunteering in the organizations you (or your kids or your extended family) belong to. Nonprofits are always in need of an extra pair of hands. You can easily get the experience you crave, particularly if you or someone you know are already affiliated with a nonprofit. If you do not belong to any organization, check out www.volunteermatch.org to find a suitable placement for yourself.

Talk to people who are working in the job you would like. Conduct informational interviews to get helpful advice, insider's tips, as well as expand your network. One way to meet more people is to look at www.meetup.com. You can also find people via LinkedIn or through your college alumni association.

I always tell my clients, "Luck favors the prepared." By this, I mean that those who get lucky in their careers are those who took the steps needed to get job promotions and opportunities. Remember that even the smallest of steps can lead to big, positive changes. So please don't wait – now is the time to start planning your next career steps. Better yet, now is the time to take action steps. The bottom line is: You are in charge of your promotion. TIMOTHY J. GAVIN Attorney at Law

Get experience on the job by filling in at work. Recently, an HR professional told me that this is the secret to getting promoted. If someone in your department goes on vacation, offer to fill in for them. This gives you exposure and training to their job duties. Volunteering to fill in also shows your motivation and interest. In time, you might be offered that sought-after promotion. At the very least, you would have learned new skills on the job that you can put in your resume. Do not expect to get paid more for

DIRT! The Movie

SUBMITTED BY REV. JEFFREY SPENCER

The relationship between dirt and humans couldn't be closer. We started our journey together as stardust, swirled by cosmic forces into our galaxy, solar system, and planet. We are made of the same stuff. Four billion years of evolution created dirt as the living source of all life on Earth including humans. Dirt has given us food, shelter, fuel, medicine, ceramics, flowers, cosmetics and color everything needed for our survival.

For most of the last ten thousand years humans understood our intimate bond with dirt and the rest of nature. They took care of the soils that took care of them. But, over time, humanity has lost that connection. Because of greed and carelessness, human beings now abuse and ignore it, though we continue to depend on it.

DIRT! The Movie narrated by Jamie Lee Curtis brings to life the environmental, economic, social, and political impact that the soil has. It shares the stories of experts from all over the world who study and are able to harness the beauty and power of a respectful and mutually beneficial relationship with soil. As much as it is a history and science lesson, this film is a call to action. "When humans arrived 2 million years ago, everything changed for dirt. And from that moment on, the fate of dirt and humans has been intimately linked."

The Second Saturday Documentary Series offers a free screening of DIRT! The Movie on Saturday, April 9 at Niles Discovery Church in Fremont. Donations are welcome to help defray costs. A discussion will follow the screening.

Microsoft pitches smart chats with computers

BY BRANDON BAILEY AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), Microsoft wants you to talk more with your computer – and have more useful conversations.

The giant software company is promoting new uses for Cortana – its voice-activated answer to Apple's Siri digital assistant – including the ability to interact with software ``bots" that can have limited conversations with users and help with tasks like booking a hotel room, ordering a meal or arranging a delivery.

Voice-activated services like Siri, ``OK Google," or Amazon's Alexa can already perform tasks for users like playing a song at a request or answering a question. Bots are smarter than traditional software apps, though, using artificial intelligence to respond to a wider range of commands and in a convenient, conversational way.

Microsoft CEO Satya Nadella, at the opening Wednesday of the company's annual conference for software developers, touted the power of ``conversational intelligence" as he outlined a long-term vision in which Cortana, a central feature of Windows 10, becomes a digital concierge for other online interactions.

``Bots are the new apps," Nadella told developers. Lilian Rincon, a program manager for Microsoft's Skype service, demonstrated how this might work. After receiving a video message from her boss that mentioned an upcoming conference in Dublin, Rincon used Cortana to mark the dates on her calendar. Cortana then used Skype to contact a hotel chain's bot, which suggested a room and helped Rincon make a reservation for those dates.

Integrating Cortana with other companies' bots could increase the use of Microsoft's services, and make them more valuable, said analyst Ross MacMillan, who follows tech companies for RBC Capital Markets, in an email on

Oculus Rift begins shipping; reviews suggest waiting is OK

BY RYAN NAKASHIMA AP BUSINESS WRITER

LOS ANGELES (AP), The first consumer-ready Oculus Rift virtual-reality headset was delivered to a real person over the weekend, and reviewers got their first taste. The initial feedback: It's a beautiful, wonderful device that immerses you, yet it still has a ways to go.

Oculus founder Palmer Luckey hand-delivered the first Rift to software developer Ross Martin in Anchorage, Alaska, on Saturday, kicking off a new era in virtual reality by putting the most powerful VR device yet into a consumer's hands.

Martin, who had never tried VR before, spent a few hours on the Rift Monday morning. He watched a short movie, played a game and explored a virtual environment that included an up-close encounter with a Tyrannosaurus Rex.

"I couldn't stop saying, 'Wow,'" Martin, a 33-year-old Web developer, said in an interview. But he said that he felt a touch of nausea at times and that the resolution could be better.

"If you're a gamer, this is right up your alley," he said. "You're going to be able to forgive that."

Oculus has said it's sending the Rift to its first Kickstarter backers first, followed by those who ordered one in January for $600, or at least $1,500 with a high-end personal computer included. Oculus, which began crowd-funding through Kickstarter in August 2012, was acquired by Facebook for $2 billion in 2014 and has shipped two developer versions so far. Expectations for a consumer version have been high. There's a backlog of orders and if you order now, you can expect delivery in July. It's not clear, though, how many units Oculus made for the first round - and whether there will ultimately be much demand beyond gamers and hard-core technologists.

Wednesday.

Bots are not perfect, however. Microsoft recently shut down an experimental Internet bot called ``Tay" after some Twitter users taught it to make offensive statements.

Nadella acknowledged the episode Wednesday, saying it shows the importance of designing technology to be ``inclusive and respectful."

Cortana isn't as well-known as Siri or OK Google. But unlike those services, which are mostly found on smartphones and tablets, Microsoft has made Cortana available on desktop and laptop PCs, via Windows 10.

But Microsoft, after seeing its business suffer because fewer people buy new PCs, has also released Cortana as an app for smartphones and tablets that run Apple's iOS or Google's Android operating software. Similarly, Skype also works on those platforms.

Microsoft is now releasing programming tools for developers to build bots that will interact with Cortana. Not surprisingly, Microsoft would be glad to see people use these services on Skype, the Internet video and voicecalling service that it owns. But some of its tools for creating bots will work with other messaging services: Microsoft listed Slack and standard text messaging, among others.

Microsoft Corp. also on Wednesday announced a free upgrade this summer to Windows 10 that adds some new features and expands others. The company has touted Windows 10 as the operating system for a wide range of devices, from personal computers to hand-held gadgets, Xbox game consoles and even the company's HoloLens augmented-reality headset.

Microsoft says Windows 10 is now running on 270 million devices, up from 200 million in January. Analysts say that's a respectable figure, considering it was released last July, although Microsoft is aiming for 1 billion devices in a few years.

The Windows 10 upgrade will include expanded abilities for Cortana, which will be able to provide reminders or answer questions even if it's on a device, such as a tablet or smartphone, where the user hasn't unlocked the screen.

Another new feature will extend Microsoft's biometric software, Windows Hello, so users can log into more apps and online accounts through fingerprint or facial recognition. The upgrade also expands the ways in which uses can write their own notes or draw lines and sketches with a digital pen on websites, maps and other images that are displayed on their screens. Early reviews by journalists have been mixed.

Steven Tweedie of Business Insider was glowingly positive in his review of the Rift, relishing the greater presence he felt in both games and narrative stories.

"Everything feels like it means more: there's a heightened connection to characters, both in games and short films, and the action carries weight," he wrote.

But he noted its hefty price tag "is undoubtedly the biggest thing keeping more people from getting the chance to try virtual reality."

Time's Lisa Eadicicco called the Rift "expensive, complicated, and totally wonderful." She added, "It's brilliant. It's fascinating. It's not perfect, but it's only getting started."

Several reviewers, including IGN's Dan Stapleton, wrote that because the Rift doesn't come with controllers that allow for separate actions by each hand, the Rift will suffer compared with the HTC Vive, which will have such controllers included when it comes out next month. Oculus expects its "Touch" controllers to come out later this year.

Wired reviewer Peter Rubin similarly bemoaned the lack of games using Touch.

Nathan Olivarez-Giles of The Wall Street Journal wasn't wowed by all the 30 games that were available at launch.

And he wrote that nausea, a consistent complaint among VR headset users, was real.

"When I pushed myself to play 'Valkyrie' for as long as 45 minutes nonstop, I took aspirin to fight off a headache."

How the cost of living compares in California and New York

AP WIRE SERVICE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), California and New York, two states set to approve a $15 minimum wage, are among the nation's most expensive places to live.

New Yorkers need to make 40 cents more than Californians every hour to earn enough for a normal standard of living, called the living wage, according to calculations by the Department of Urban Studies and Planning at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

While food, housing and transportation costs are similar, child care is typically twice as expensive in New York, and a single adult pays about $600 less in state taxes every year in California. Here's how far a living wage goes in the two states, with figures based on the annual cost of living for a single adult, unless otherwise specified, and price parities showing how much goods and services cost above the national average.

Looking for calorie labels on menus? Not until 2017

By Mary Clare Jalonick Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP), Wondering how many calories are in that hamburger? Chain restaurants still don't have to tell you, despite a 6-year-old law requiring calorie labels on menus.

Passed as part of the health care overhaul in 2010, the rules will eventually require restaurants and other establishments that sell prepared foods and have 20 or more locations to post the calorie content of food "clearly and conspicuously" on their menus, menu boards and displays.

This month, the Food and Drug Administration said it will delay the rules – again – until 2017.

The years of delays have come as supermarkets, convenience stores and other retailers that are covered by the rules but never wanted to be part of the law have fiercely lobbied against them. The move will leave the final step to a new president, despite the Obama administration's staunch support of menu labeling and other food policy to help Americans eat more healthfully. And it will give opponents more time to gather support for legislation that rules, saying they don't make sense for companies that take most of their orders online.

Margo Wootan is a lobbyist at the Center for Science and the Public Interest who was part of the original coalition and has pushed for the supermarkets to be included. She says she is frustrated that consumers are still waiting for the calorie information.

"Not only is it simple and straightforward but so many states and localities have already done this," she said.

Menu labeling is already required in a handful of places, including Vermont, New York City and Montgomery County, Maryland. But several other states put off their laws in anticipation of the federal rules.

California, for example, passed a law in 2008 but put that on hold after the federal standards became law in 2010. Today, menu labeling still isn't enforced there.

"We are very frustrated," says Harold Goldstein of the California Center for Public Health Advocacy. "We call on the federal government to issue its regulations immediately and allow both state and federal law to go into effect."

The latest delay came after Congress included language in a year-end spending bill in December that allowed FDA to put off the December 2016 date until a year after it publishes the final guidance for retailers who have to put the rules in place. This month, the agency said it is still working on those guidelines. "The FDA cannot speculate on the timing on when final guidance will be issued," said spokeswoman Lauren Kotwicki. stores, said the delays only seem fair as some of the rules are complicated. In grocery stores, for example, the labeling rules apply to prepared foods, but exclude those that are typically intended for more than one person. That could mean cut fruit or other foods would be labeled in a salad bar, but not in a larger container for sale.

"The anxiety is that they're going to get it wrong," Rosado said. "Maybe the font size isn't right for their label or they rounded the calorie count the wrong way."

The Food Marketing Institute is backing legislation that passed the House earlier this year that would make it easier for some businesses to comply with the rules. It would narrow labeling requirements for supermarkets by allowing stores to use a menu or menu board in a prepared foods area instead of putting labels on individual items. It would also allow restaurants like pizza chains that receive most of their orders remotely to post calories online instead of at the retail location. The bill also seeks to ensure that establishments aren't punished for mislabeling due to inadvertent human error. The House bill passed in February with some Democratic support, but the Senate has yet to move on the issue. The Food Marketing Institute, pizza companies and other groups which have pushed back on the rules are working to gather more support. Meanwhile, as Washington delays, some companies have already put the labeling in place. Consumers can find the labels by individual items on menu boards at McDonalds, Panera, Starbucks and Au Bon Pain. Others are waiting for the deadline.

Passover Seder at Chabad of Fremont

SUBMITTED BY NEAL GREENBERG

Few Jewish holidays evoke the same warm sentiments as Passover. Memories of family and friends gathered as four cups of wine are poured, four questions asked and the Matzah (Cracker) served; all contribute to Passover's popularity in the Jewish community. Bringing the warmth and tradition of this festival to the Tri-City Community, Chabad Jewish Center is inviting all residents to participate in community Seders (Dinners) to be held on Friday night, April 22, and again on Saturday night, April 23.

The Seders take participants through the wondrous liberation of our ancestors from Egyptian bondage, while sharing the relevance and beauty of the age old festival in modern lives. Included in the Seder will be a delectable catered dinner paired with a variety of fine imported wines and handmade round 'Shmurah' Matzah from Israel.

"Passover is not simply a celebration of the historic liberation of an ancient people," said Rabbi Fuss, Chabad Jewish Center, "Passover is about our own perfrom the shackles restraining us from reaching new heights - in our lives, relationships and connection with G-d."

The eight-day festival of Passover is celebrated this year from sundown on Friday, April 22 until after nightfall on Saturday, April 30. In addition to the two Seders, other holiday observances include restricting the consumption of leavened products such as bread and pasta, instead eating unleavened matzah. Additional information about the Passover holiday is available at www.ChabadFremont/Passover.

All are welcome to join the community Seder, regardless of Jewish affiliation or background. Reservations can be made online at: www.ChabadFremont/Passover 2016

Morpho celebrates sales milestone

The word "Morpho" sounds like a sci-fi thriller that implies a combination of mystery sleuth, high tech and suspense. In some ways, Morpho, the company could be classified as something akin to all of these attributes. Nestled in the Gateway complex of Newark, this worldwide enterprise creates and manufactures a critical safety component of air travel around the world.

Morpho is responsible for a majority of all baggage scanners used by airports around the world to determine if there is a threat to the safety of airline Morpho is responsible for a majority of all baggage scanners used by airports around the world to determine if there is a threat to the safety of airline passengers. passengers. Serving an expanding market for over 20 years with increasing reliance on vigilance, this critical component of air travel has become a linchpin behind the scenes at many airports. CEO Karen Bomba at Morpho Detection's Newark headquarters and global manufacturing center says that Morpho is a leader in this field because they provide superior image resolution and maintenance of Morpho products. She added that if scanning is delayed due to maintenance issues, passengers may arrive at their destination on time but without their baggage.

Behind the scenes of airports around the world, Morpho ensures baggage security and allows operators to monitor baggage traveling through a labyrinth of paths to ensure simultaneous arrival of passengers and their luggage. To unravel the mystery of inspecting thousands of suitcases and reveal any suspicious contents is a challenge but a series of algorithms and high tech computer sleuthing is able to do the job every hour of every day.

Morpho employees from work locations throughout the world gathered and communicated through video link on April 5th (U.S.) to celebrate the 2,000th explosives detection systems (EDS) shipped worldwide. The high-speed CTX 9800 DSiTM, destined for London Heathrow Airport, is part of a contract announced in April 2015 to supply 45 explosives detection systems (EDS) to screen all in-gauge baggage in four terminals. Once fully deployed, Heathrow will operate the largest fleet of CTX EDS outside of the U.S.

Rep. Eric Swalwell (CA-15), Newark Mayor Alan Nagy and Newark Chamber of Commerce CEO Valerie Boyle attended the ceremonies. Representative Swalwell commended the employees for their assistance making air travel safe and said he was scheduled to travel following a tour of the facility and felt safe due to Morpho's vigilance. He thanked Morpho employees for their work, adding, "As a member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence I know firsthand the evolving threats the U.S. and our allies face."

Any day can be Earth Day

SUBMITTED BY QUEENIE CHONG

In honor of Earth Day, Eco Club of John Gomes Elementary School, Fremont, once again organizes a school-wide clean-up in April.The target clean-up areas include the school campus and the section of Mission Creek bordering Gomes Park. The objective is to help restore the natural environment of the school and reduce pollution into Mission Creek and, ultimately, the San Francisco Bay. To prepare for this activity, creative Eco Club members met last month to design and paint notices, banners and posters, and hope to involve as many students and families as possible to participate in the clean-up after school on Wednesday, April 20.

The Eco Club of Gomes was established more than 15 years ago as an environmental education program for 4th through 6th graders who are interested in service learning opportunities. Under the guidance of teacher advisers Ms. Lisa Garcia and Mr. Eric Lee, this responsible group of "eco rangers" runs the weekly school-wide recycling program by working together to collect recycling bins from all areas of the campus. Such service opportunities provide life-long rewards to our students by proving to everyone that, yes, we can make a difference.

During the Club's monthly meetings, students participate in hands-on science lessons that promote ecological awareness, values, attitudes, and behavior. We explore waste reduction, recycling management, preservation of our natural resources, 4 R's, pollution prevention, watershed ecology, climate change, and other related topics.

New this year is a paper-making workshop conducted by the Ream-Reducing Team, made up of some caring students of Mission San Jose High School. By producing new paper out of waste paper salvaged from the blue recycling bin that we use every day, Club members learn to give precious resources a new life. Activities such as these offer fun and educational opportunities for students to develop a greater sense of responsibility and an appreciation of our beautiful planet and its many natural resources. With the help of our very own stewards of the environment, any day could be Earth Dayat Gomes Elementary!

Sheep Shearing Day is baaaaaaack!

Spring has sprung and it is time for Ardenwood Historic Farm to conduct the annual "Sheep Shearing Day" on Sunday, April 17. Watch as the farm's sheep get sheared, try your hand at wool carding, and see the transformation from fiber to yarn at the spinning wheel. You can make your own wooly lamb to take home. Other activities include felting, sheep crafts, and demonstrations of cooking in the outdoor wood-burning stove. There are three sheep scheduled for the annual haircut, scheduled at noon, 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

According to Naturalist Mindy Castle, there have been approximately 1,200 visitors in the past who took part in the activity. Sheep shearing is done annually to remove an adult sheep's wool. The process must be done by skilled hands to avoid hurting the animal. A sheep's wool has many uses, such as clothing, upholstery, rugs, tennis balls, bedding products and more.

Participants are advised to wear outdoor gear or bring hats, sunscreen, and water bottle. Visitors are not allowed to bring in modern recreation equipment, including but not limited to amplified music, Frisbees, balloons, bikes, etc. Dogs are not allowed.

The Little Prince

SUBMITTED BY META METAL

The Tri-City community, the Deaf community, and students learning American Sign Language are warmly encouraged to attend the upcoming production of Cummins and Scoullar's "The Little Prince" by Rick Cummins and John Scoullar. The play runs April 21-23, and is comprised of an all-Deaf cast. It is performed in American Sign Language with voice interpretation. All of the actors are high school students at California School for the Deaf in Fremont where the play will be performed.

"The play has a hidden message," said Director Judy Catron. "It is about adults losing their inner child. Interestingly, the high school actors are in between being children and being adults. They can relate to being told to 'stop acting like kids and focus on their schoolwork.' But at the same time, they haven't yet had to think like adults to the extent of having to be at work on time or pay monthly bills. So it is a challenge for them to fully grasp the meaning behind the play, but our cast definitely discusses it."

Catron adds, "The fact that the play is performed in American Sign Language adds richness to the show. The actors are able to convey deep and complex meaning through their signs, body language, and facial expression."

The performance focuses on the acting with minimal props, allowing the audience to use their imagination. There are also several special effects designed by Assistant Director Jesse Ragsdale, such as an LED (Light Emitting Diode) umbrella.

Play director Judy Catron can relate to her cast in a unique way. When she attended high school at the California School for the Deaf, she too performed in the annual play productions. She went on to star in the on-stage production of Children of a Lesser God twice. After that, she acted in the 13episode series of the PBS broadcast The Voyage of the Mimi. In 1986, she directed her first play at California School for the Deaf where she had her choice between Yentl and The Little Prince. That year, she opted to direct Yentl. Coming full circle, this year, she wanted to direct The Little Prince.

Herb garden allies: Rosemary

certain herbal lore emerged in and around Marseilles, France, during the 1720s. The Great Bubonic Plague was sweeping Europe and one of its last outposts was the seaside town of Marseilles. In the midst of this catastrophe, grave robbers and thieves were plundering an ill and afflicted city.

One day, four such criminals were caught and about to be sentenced for their depraved actions. It was then observed that these criminals showed no signs of sickness, even with their constant exposure and proximity to corpses. They were offered amnesty in exchange for a certain herbal remedy that they claimed was their protection against all ailments, even the deadly plague.

There are various versions of this story, from which emerged a mythical and magical potion steeped in vinegar. This herbal recipe also varies each time the story is repeated. While it's true that Marseilles was the last outpost of the bubonic plague and recovered quicker than most other cities, it was likely due to the efficiency of the city's new sanitation board and a triple tier quarantine system that was established after the very first outbreak in the 1500s. Nevertheless, the Four Thieves lore took firm root in the fertile minds of the general public.

There are as many Four Thieves formulations as there are herb gardens. I, too, have created one from the herbs I grow. So can you! While we don't know if a certain concoction of herbs will prevent the ill effects of "even the bubonic plague," there is no doubt that herbs are our best plant allies. Among the many herbs that are part of my formulary, rosemary (Rosmarinus officinalis) is first in the list. The name "Rosemarinus" is derived from the Latin ros, which means "dew," and marinus, meaning "of the sea." This woody perennial herb with needle-like fragrant leaves and flowers that range in colors like white, purple, pink and blue is a native of the Mediterranean. It can grow straight and wide like a shrub or trail prostrate as a ground cover.

Rosemary is hardy even in colder climates. It can withstand long periods of drought and go without water if necessary. Rosemary is not difficult to grow or keep in the garden and one cannot really kill it. Except that it hates freezing temperatures, cannot abide wet feet due to overwatering, or withstand dry heat of the deserts, dislikes being dried out due to inconsistent watering, abhors humid environments due to susceptibility to mildew and lack of sunshine.

Not only do we have the perfect climate to sustain rosemary, we also have the luck to enjoy her brilliant blue blossoms at the end of our California winter. Don't time is a known remedy to prevent premature baldness. An infusion of the dried leaves and flowers in plain water is an effectual remedy for dandruff when used as a hair rinse. You can also add one tablespoon of rosemary vinegar to eight to twelve ounces of water and use it as a final rinse to bring shine to tired hair. Vinegar deodorizes infused vinegar, fill a glass jar 1/3 full with dried or fresh rosemary. Top it off with raw apple cider vinegar. Use chop sticks to swirl it well. Cover with parchment paper and close with a plastic lid. Don't use metal lids as the vinegar may react and corrode the metal. Shake every day for six weeks. Strain into a clean airtight bottle. You can use this in salad vinaigrette. Add a teaspoon of rosemary vinegar to eight to ten ounces of water. You can also make a medicinal oxymel by adding even quantities of honey. Adding fizzy water will make a sipping vinegar.

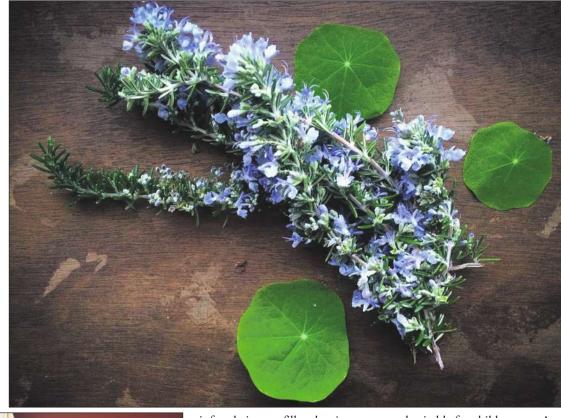

Rosemary's most useful healing characteristic is its ability to facilitate circulation. It is an excellent nervine, curing many cases of headaches, and a valuable brain tonic known for aiding memory and concentration. Even topical application brings a multitude of benefits. It is also a rubefacient, facilitating oxygen-rich blood to rise to the surface where it's applied.

Rosemary infused in white wine after being allowed to rest for a few days is said to calm down and suitable for children too. A strong brew of rosemary tea can be a good wound wash. Congestion of the chest can be relieved by steam inhalation from a boiling pot of water with a handful of rosemary strewn over it.

Perhaps she is woven in the wreath that hangs on your door. Maybe she mingles freely in the air as you burn dried rosemary like incense. She could be in your backyard, the queen of your garden patch, or in your front yard, playing guardian to the neighborhood bees. Make space for rosemary in your home, garden, and heart. You will never regret it!

snip the flowers even after they are done; fresh shoots will appear at the tip of these floral spears, thereby growing in size.

The abiding charm of rosemary is only increased by her usefulness in fresh or dried states. Other than the multitude of uses in the kitchen, an oft-appreciated quality of rosemary is its ability to stimulate the scalp and hair follicles. It is said that it will make hair healthy and encourage hair growth. A hair lotion made primarily with rosemary when applied regularly and for a long and the rosemary fragrance adds a delightful olfactory note to the rinse.

To make a solar infused rosemary hair oil: fill a quart jar half full with dried leaves. Submerge with olive oil until all of the herb is fully covered. Secure lid and leave it on a sunny window sill for four to six weeks. Shake the jar once or twice every day. When it's time, simply strain through multiple layers of cheese cloth.

Rosemary vinegar is useful as a culinary herb as well as a beauty and health aid. To make rosemary heart palpitations. For every pint of white wine, add one ounce of freshly dried rosemary leaves. Let it sit for about one week. Strain and store in an airtight bottle in a dry and dark place. Add honey to sweeten if desired. This is to be sipped as a cordial in small quantities.

For colic, colds, and headaches, a mild infusion of tender rosemary leaves and flowers is very effective

Red Cross has significant need for type O negative blood

SUBMITTED BY NATIVIDAD LEWIS

Type O negative blood can be transfused to patients with any blood type and is often used in emergency situations. While less than 7 percent of the U.S. population has type O negative blood, hospitals depend on frequent O negative donations to ensure it's always available for patients in need.

Eligible donors with type O negative blood are encouraged to make a whole blood or double red cell donation, where available, through the Red Cross. During a double red cell donation, two units of red blood cells are collected while most of the plasma and platelets are returned to the donor.

The Red Cross must collect approximately 14,000 blood and platelet donations every day for the patients at about 2,600 hospitals and transfusion centers nationwide. Blood and platelets are needed to respond to patient emergencies, including accident and burn victims, heart surgery and organ transplant patients, and those receiving treatment for leukemia, cancer or sickle cell disease.

Those who come to donate now through May 15, 2016, will be entered to win four single-day tickets to any of 10 Cedar Fair theme parks in the U.S. For a full list of participating parks, visit redcross.cedarfair.com

Blood donation appointments can be quickly and easily scheduled by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-(800) 733-2767.

For All Signs: Mars, known to the ancients as the god of war, goes retrograde on April 17 and remains so until June 29. Historically, those who draw a sword or attempt to expand power during these periods eventually find it turned against themselves. In our personal lives we are well advised to avoid extending our boundaries or initiating "war" on any front. The defendant, not the aggressor, will win in any conflict as long as the god of war moves backward, and it doesn't matter how big or right the initiator may be. When Mars is retrograde we are well advised against filing suit, hunting for game or opting for elective surgery (a different type of sword).

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): Give particular attention to the lead paragraph because Mars is your avatar in the zodiac. You likely will experience delays in activities concerning the law, education and travel. This is not the time to file suit or make legal threats. If traveling, you may be going back to someplace where you have previously been.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Activities concerning taxes, insurance payoffs, government funding, and loans will likely be delayed and maybe even denied. This is a good time to talk with your partner about issues concerning joint resources. It is not a good time to attack but to discuss and look for jointly favorable solutions. Seeking a loan is not a good idea now. The cost is too high.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Mars, the god of war, is in your partnership territory. Therefore it is particularly important not to attack another, verbally or physically. If you have enemies, let them make the first move and you will be assured of ultimate victory over the issue. Old issues in your primary relationships may be surfacing. If so, consider it an opportunity to handle it with greater maturity this time.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): The warrior energy is now in your sixth house of work and health. Since early March you have been moving as quickly as you can to cover all the bases and still maintain your health routines. While Mars is retrograde it is common to plateau on physical goals, such as weight loss, but that is temporary. Don't let this plateau discourage you from what works long-term.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): Mars is retrograding in the house concerning romance, children, gambling, and playful activities. While retrograding, you may be strongly inclined to go back to a former condition in one or more of these areas. Newer romantic relationships may be put on hold for a few weeks.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Mars is retrograding in your territory of home and property. Because Mars rules machinery and tools of all kinds, there may be breakdowns of household gadgetry or vehicles that require repair. It is best to avoid buying new mechanical items while Mars is retrograding. Therefore it is generally better to repair or rent items until Mars is direct.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Mars is retrograding in the horoscope sector that relates to vehicles, tools, and communication. Mars in this territory may represent the need to make repairs on various objects. It is possible that you are irritated with siblings, roommates, or neighbors. It is OK to respond to them, but do not initiate battle.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Mars is in the sector related to income and outgo. You may feel absolutely compelled to purchase something expensive and impractical. It is more favorable to wait out the transit and see how you feel about it in late June to early July. Meanwhile there may be more outgo than income, so use careful judgment about expenditures.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Mars retrograde in your sign leaves a big "Stop!" message that continues through June. Now is the time to chill. Recognize that the real you is so much bigger and stronger than the ego, which simply has a loud voice. This is a time to back off, rethink everything, and reevaluate as the dust settles in July. Search for the truth, not just the answers that satisfy your ego.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You may have an experience in which you feel a figurative sniper at your back. Defend yourself if you absolutely must, but life will be easier if you ignore it. Your sniper will not recognize or admit it even if you point it out, and the confrontation may become embarrassing.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): You may be recognizing the need to back off or back out of some of your friendships and community associations during this period. At minimum you will be reassessing why you are involved and whether you wish to continue in the future. If your motive for pursuing these activities is merely habit, maybe you need a break. Friends and associates from the past may resurface.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Issues of career and future direction are highlighted during this Mars retrograde. You may have thought you were headed in one direction, and now suddenly you are shifting into neutral or reverse. If so, this period offers a message to think this one over for a while. You probably need a better foundation or a stronger sense of drive.

t is now tomato planting time. While drooling over garden catalogues, I order all kinds of seeds despite having only one sunny place in my cluttered garden. But the different varieties offered are so colorful and adventurous, it is hard to resist. As usual, gardener's optimism rules! Let's peek. For those who need to know: Indeterminate tomatoes continue growing until frost killed, with young, ripening and ripe appearing on the same vine. Determinates are usually bush form. Tomatoes tend to all appear within a two-week span.

Indeterminate: Ukrainian Purple: plum colored and ovoid, about 3 inches long. Emerald Apple: as green as can be, about a pound each, from Russia. White Tomesol: a pale yellowish creamcolored 8 ounces. Red Fig: an 1805 Philadelphia historical; when dried, it is used as a fig substitute in long-ago winters. Mexico Midget: oodles of marble-size red fruit. German Pink: originating in Bavaria, can reach two pounds. Black Krim from brown, darkening in strong sunlight. Hssaio Hungshih from China: bright yellow oval fruits. Crnkovic Yugoslavian: pink beefsteak, up to a pound each. Opalka from Poland: elongated to six inches, red. Costoluto Genovese: an unusual ribbed shape red from 1800s Italy. Black Beauty: touted as the world's darkest tomato with reddish innards. Berkeley Tie-Dye Pink: red and green stripes. Golden Grape: tiny, crunchy and plentiful from Russia. Coracao de Boi from Portugal: pink, heart-shaped and one pound each. Dix Doights de Naples or Ten Fingers of Naples: banana-shaped fruit for canning. Black Ethiopian: brown-red plum-shaped fruit. Tigerella from England: bright red with orange stripes. And if you like true enthusiasm, there's the Isle of Man's Schimmeig Stoo, which climbs to almost 6 ft. It resembles a red bell pepper with orange stripes and is a good stuffing tomato.

Russia: purple-red and violet-

L. Patricia [Pat] Kite's several garden books include KISS Guide to Gardening, Gardening Wizardry for Kids, Raccoons, Ladybug Facts and Folklore and Silkworms. They may be found at Amazon.com and Alibris.com.

Make sure to read the seed packet or the catalogue description carefully.

What about tomatoes in a pot for a balcony garden? There are a few determinates specifically hybridized for today's smaller areas. Koralik, Small Fry, and Elfin often reach just 2-ft. tall.

For our tomato history tidbit: Tiny tart tomatoes began as wild plants originating in Peru and Mexico. Dutch settlers in America brought seeds with them and began making improvements. A year 1660 map of New York [Neuwe Amsterdam] shows windmills and tomato plants covering the tip of Manhattan. These early experimental tomato plantations have been replaced by Wall Street Skyscrapers.

For Your Dahlia Calendar: The San Leandro Dahlia Society will hold their dahlia tuber/plant sale on Saturday, April 30 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Root Park in the 900 block of East 14th Street in San Leandro. You, too, can grow the same plants that prize-winning dahlia growers grow. Questions? Call (510) 276-0530.

National History Day is an annual competition for elementary, junior high and senior high school students. Fourth and fifth grade students enter as either individuals or groups of up to five students with a project presented on a 2D display. Junior high and senior high students enter projects in one of the following categories: Historical Paper, Museum Exhibit, Documentary, Performance or Website. All but the historical paper can be entered as either an individual or group of up to five students. Historical papers can only be entered as an Individual project.

The theme this year was Exploration, Encounter and Exchange in History. The best projects present both sides of an issue; students try to decide positive as well as negative aspects of each project. Competition is open to all students: public, parochial, private or home schooled.

The Alameda County competition was held at the Oakland Museum on March 19. Senior high students can advance up to three projects in each category to the California State Competition, Friday and Saturday, May 5 and 6, at the William Jessup University in Rocklin, California. Elementary and junior high students can only enter two projects for each category, but often a runnerup is selected in case one of the finalists cannot make it to the state competition.

At the Alameda County Competition over 200 students participated from schools all over the county. Forty-seven projects with 82 students from 14 different schools advanced to state competition as a qualifier or alternate in the junior high level. Regretfully, no students from Union City, Newark or Hayward advanced to the State Competition.

Fremont had 15 projects with 23 students who advanced to state competition, and one junior high project with two students as runner-ups.

Congratulations to the following schools, projects, and students who advanced.

Retirement Doesn't Mean Inactive

So, you've punched that 8:00 to 5:00 time clock for the last time and you are ready for retirement. Retirement should mean no more time clocks, but it shouldn't mean you just stop all activity!

Now is the time to do those things you have always wanted to do, make new friends, try new things, associate with like-minded men, catch up on the things that interest you.

Why not join your local SIR organization?! Sons In Retirement is a state-wide organization of local branches for men to meet and mutually enjoy the benefits of retirement. SIR conducts a monthly luncheon meeting where you can associate with other retired men, listen to topical speakers, sign up for activities of interest, make new friends, and keep happily active.

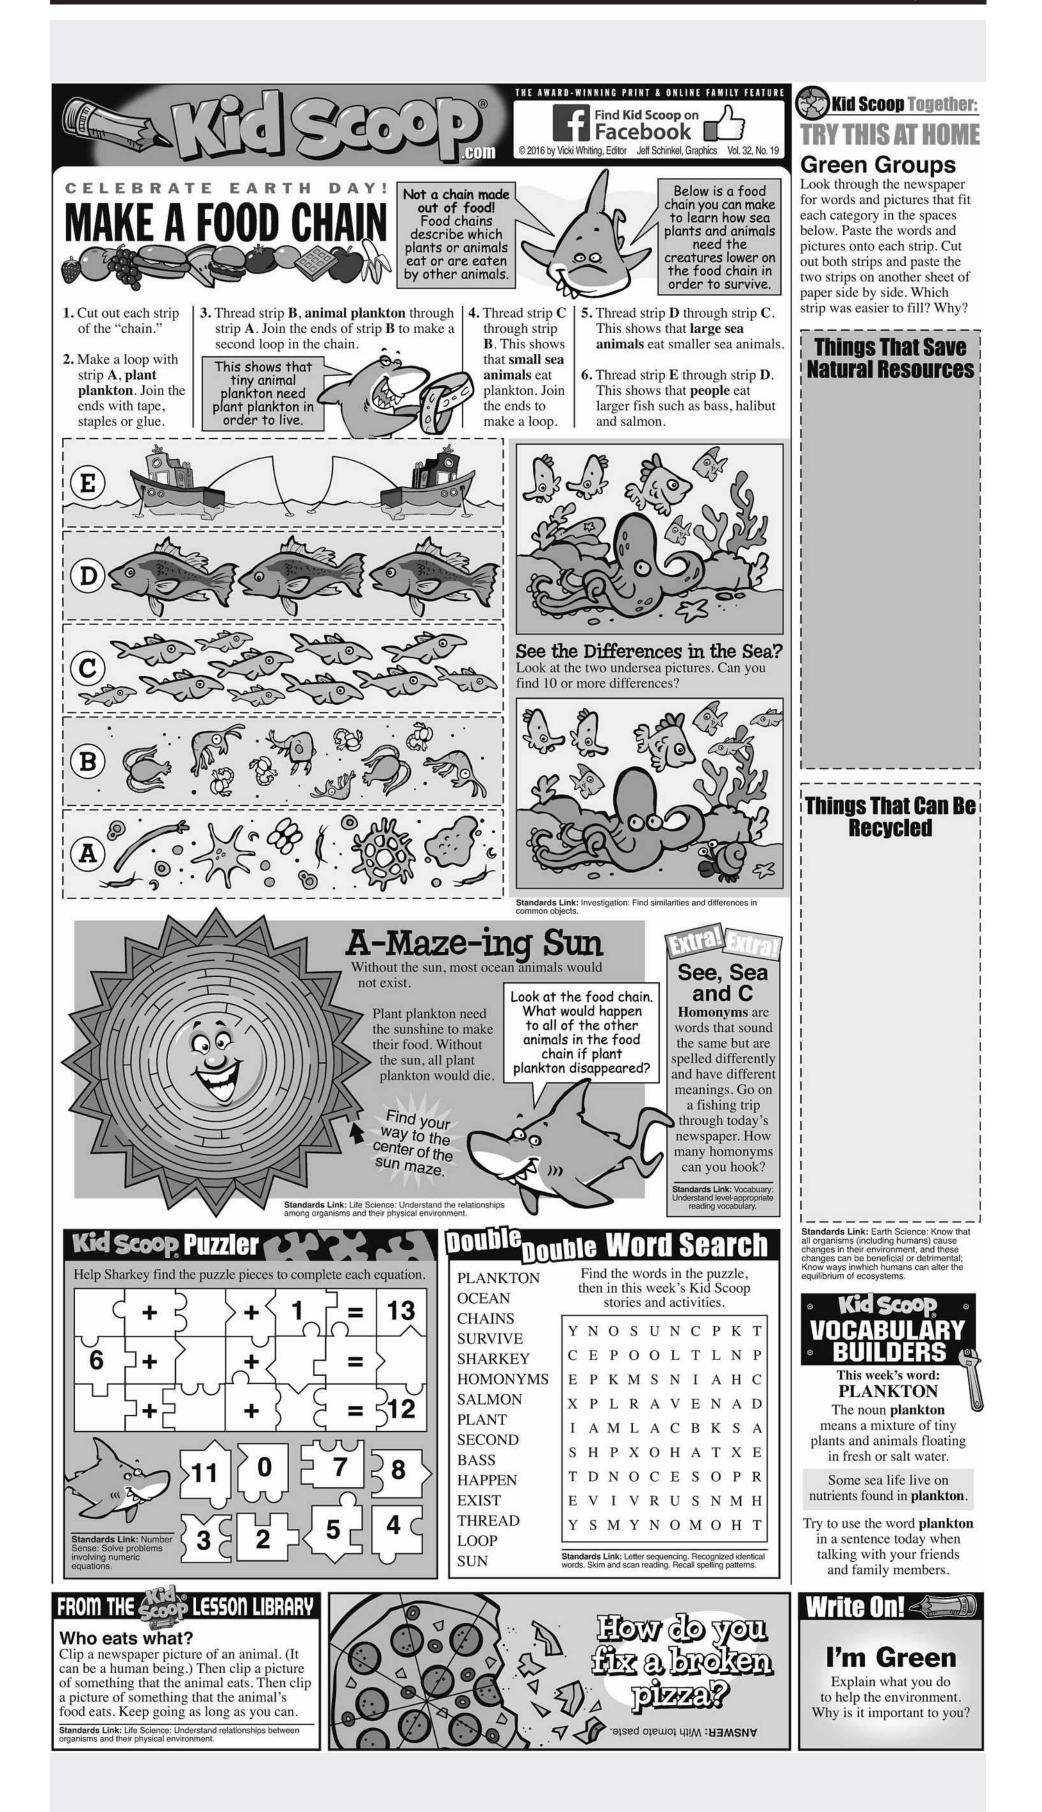

Fremont/Newark/Union City Branch 59, meets the third Thursday of the month at the Newark Pavilion on Thornton Ave and Cherry St in Newark. Socializing is from 11:00 to 12:00, and there is time to look over an extensive library of books, sign up for activities, and meet new people or shoot the breeze with old friends. The formal meeting starts at 12:00 with club announcements, birthday wishes, a sing-a-long, and lunch, followed by a selected speaker. Meetings usually end about 1:30.

Activities run the gamut from golf, bowling, computers, wine tasting, bridge, bocce, and couples dining out, and more are being added as interest dictates.

There are also activities which can include your wives or girlfriends, and the ladies seem to enjoy getting their retired men out of the house on occasion.

SIR Branch 59 is looking for new members. Visit their website at www.sirinc.org or call Jim Ulam at (510) 797-9357 or email time4golf@snakebite.com for more information.

2016 State of the City Address: Where Fremont's Been and Where It's Headed

On March 24, 2016, Fremont Mayor Bill Harrison delivered this year's State of the City address at a luncheon hosted by the Fremont Chamber of Commerce at the Fremont Marriott Silicon Valley.

This annual event is a time for the Fremont community to come together, reflect on experiences from the past year, and set a vision for the City's near future. From the City's 60th anniversary to its affordable housing initiatives, Mayor Harrison shared what we accomplished this year and what's currently in the works for next year. It's clear that Fremont has a bright future to look forward to.

Here are just a few (of many) highlights from the 2016 State of the City address. • In honor of Fremont's 60th anniversary, the City held a community gathering and ceremony to install a time capsule that will be opened at the City's 100th Anniversary in 2056.

• The Brookings Institution selected Fremont for its Silicon Valley stop on advanced industries research.

• Fremont's Transportation Engineering Division and the Police Department teamed together and officially launched "Vision Zero" — a plan to improve traffic safety and reduce traffic fatalities to zero.

• Delta Products opened its new 180,000 sq. ft. headquarters, LEED Platinum building-the first of its kind in Fremont—that will serve as an iconic gateway into the Innovation District.

• Fremont launched the first East Bay chapter of the global meet-up, Startup Grind.

• The City's Warm Springs Community Plan won two awards and was recognized by the Association of Bay Area Governments and by the State for its American Planning Association Award of Excellence in Urban Design.

• Progress continues to be made on construction of an iconic bridge and plaza that will connect properties such as Tesla and ThermoFisher to the Warm Springs/South Fremont BART station that will open later this year.

• Fremont continues to invest in public safety and street maintenance. The City has made improvements around more than half of Fremont's schools, including major intersections, as an effort to get kids to and from school safely.

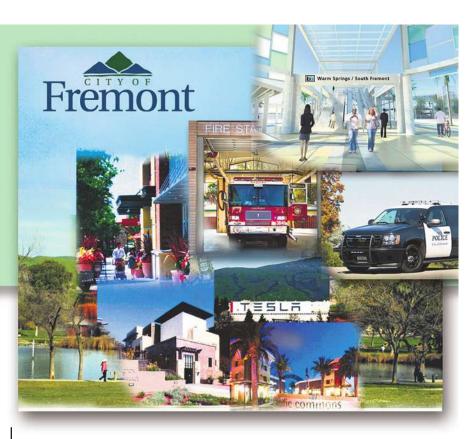

• Downtown Fremont's first mixed-use private development called State Street will break ground in June and work is underway on development plans for the City's future Civic Center.

• It's been a landmark year for sustainability in Fremont — named America's 10th Greenest City of 2015, signed onto the Compact of Mayors, installed 1.2 megawatts of solar carport structures, and is one of 50 semifinalist competitors in the $5M Georgetown University Energy Prize.

• The City's Legends of the Bay event raised more than $56K for the Fremont Family Resource Center.

If you're interested in learning more about Fremont's successes and where it's headed this year, you can view the speech, presentation slides, and video on the City website at www.Fremont.gov/StateoftheCity.

The entire City of Fremont would like to thank everyone who has made this year's event a success and for your continued contributions to making Fremont a compassionate, innovative, and desirable city to live and work.

Tri-City Taxi Voucher Program

Need a ride to the doctor or grocery store? We want to help with your transportation needs.

The City of Fremont operates a number of different programs for seniors and people with disabilities who need transportation for health care services, shopping, and other daily activities.

The Tri-City Taxi Voucher Program provides subsidized taxi rides within the local area. Enrolled participants can purchase taxi vouchers at a cost of $4 per voucher. Each voucher subsidizes up to $16 of taxi meter fare. Riders are responsible for paying any taxi meter fare above the $16 voucher subsidy.

Who is eligible to participate? Fremont, Newark, or Union City residents who are either: • 80 years of age or older, or

• Unable to use public transit (AC Transit buses and BART) because of a disability

Eligible individuals must submit an application prior to using the service. New enrollees will receive four free taxi vouchers with their rider packet. Taxis are not wheelchair-accessible; individuals using wheelchairs can be accommodated if they are able to safely transfer from their wheelchair to the taxi.

This program is funded by the Alameda County Transportation Commission through Measure B funds.

For more information on this program or other transportation services, contact the City's Pamela Gutierrez at pgutierrez@fremont.gov or 510-574-2053.

Lady Eagles soar

Softball

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The Lady Eagles softball team beat the Mission San Jose Lady Warriors 15-0 on April 5th with a great display of hitting. But even with the loss, the Warrior coaching staff is upbeat about the future of the team. The score does not reflect the close contest until late in the game as the Lady Warriors made outstanding defensive plays early on and it wasn't until late innings that the Lady Eagles broke through. However, timely hitting is a good sign for the Eagle season.

Cougars and Huskies meet displays track excitement

Track and Field

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The Newark Memorial Cougars and the Washington Huskies track teams battled in a exciting meet on April 7th. In a meet that could have gone either way, the Cougars men's team took home a victory, but so did the Lady Huskies, taking honors for their frosh/sophomore team. Team scores aside, individual performances on both teams indicate a great year ahead for Mission Valley Athletic League competition

Vikings top Titans in extra innings

Baseball

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The Irvington Vikings finally secured a victory in extra innings 2-1 over cross-town rivals, John F. Kennedy in an epic battle that revealed great pitching and defense of both teams on April 6th. The scoreless pitching duel lasted until the fifth inning when Irvington took a one run lead. That didn't last long as the long ball brought the Titans back to even the score. Viking bats would not be silenced (22 runs in the last 3 games) as they hammered away in the eighth inning and put the game winning run in scoring position. An great effort from the outfield to the Titan catcher slid under his glove and secured the run and victory for the Vikings.

Mission San Jose Chess team sweeps State Scholastic Chess Championships

SUBMITTED BY JOE LONSDALE

The 2016 Northern California Scholastic Chess Championships were held the weekend of March 19 and 20 at the Santa Clara Convention Center. Over 950 students and more the 100 schools competed in these championships. Mission San Jose Elementary school (MSJE) of Fremont was the big winner in the Elementary School Division. MSJE won the team title and MSJE students won the individual Championships in all four top elementary school sections! This was the fifth time in the last five years that MSJE has won the team title in the grades K-3, K-5, and K-6 championship sections.

For the second straight year this championship had some of the excitement that had been missing for three of the last four years because Weibel Elementary School returned to attend the championships after boycotting the championships in 2011, 2012, and 2013. Weibel is one of the top elementary school chess teams in the country having won numerous National and State Championships. They are probably the second strongest elementary school chess team west of the Mississippi; unfortunately for them, due to the location of MSJE; they are also the second strongest elementary school chess team in southern Fremont.

The Kindergarten section individual championship was won by Jason Liu; Kavya Meiyappan won the third place Kindergarten trophy. These two MSJE players were the only two perfect scores after four rounds. They played each other in the final round for the Championship. The MSJE

Kindergarten team won the first place team trophy with a score of 17 points. Weibel was second with 12 points. The team score is the sum of the score of the top four players on the team. Players five through eight on the MSJE team scored a total of 14 points. If these four MSJE players were a separate team they would have beaten every other school in the tournament.

-0 State team

The K-3 individual winner was MSJE student Aghilan Nachiappan who scored a perfect six of six. Allyson Wong, also of MSJE, won the second place trophy with 5.5 points (Five wins and a draw). The MSJE K-3 team won the first place team trophy 19 points versus 13 points for second place Weibel. Even without the great performance by Allyson and Aghilan the rest of the MSJE team scored enough points to win the first place team trophy without the scores from Allyson and Aghilan.

Unlike the kindergarten and K-3 section, where the MSJE team win was clinched before the last round started, the K-5 and K-6 championship sections were more competitive.

Going into the last round MSJE led by a half point in K-6 and by 1.5 points in K-5. The issue in each section was in doubt until the final game was completed. MSJE won each section by one point.

Kevin Pan of MSJE won the first place individual trophy in K-5 with 5.5 points in six rounds. Edwin Sony was the second MSJE player with 4.5 points. Jaisuraj Kaleeswaran won the first place individual trophy in K-6,

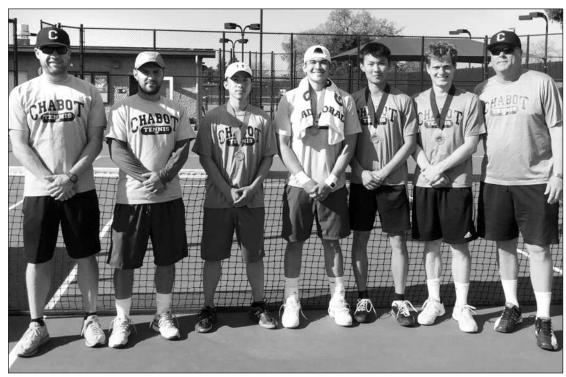

Two Kindergarten stars

Rishith Susarla of MSJE tied for third place with 4.5 points and won a large trophy. The MSJE K-6 team won the first place team trophy making it a clean sweep of the championship section for MSJE.

Moreau Catholic Defeats Hayward High

Men's Tennis

SUBMITTED BY TONY RODRIGUEZ

In a non-conference tennis match, the Mariners of Moreau Catholic (MVAL) faced off against the Farmers of Hayward High (WAC) on April 7th. It has been close to a decade since Hayward High last ran a tennis program, but under the respected and engaging leadership of head coach Joshua Chilcoat, the Farmers of Hayward High are well on their way to shaping a new and formidable tennis team that deserves attention.

The tennis match took place at Hayward High in front of an impressive crowd of tennis supporters in attendance and although the Mariners emerged as the victors with a final match score of 7-0, it was widely considered that every match was competitive. Special notice goes to MCHS's #3 Doubles team, seniors Stefan Sathianathen and Amolak Singh, who battled in a tremendous back-and-forth match against Hayward's James Mindanao and Adrian Sanchez.

Tennis:

Four players, two doubles teams... one big reason to smile for Chabot College tennis coach Rick Morris.

The Gladiators' Tony Lin and Hunter Kettering prevailed against teammates Jensen Pawid and Prycen Hass 6-3, 6-7, 10-7 on Saturday, April 2, 2016 in the Coast Conference doubles final. The thrilling, back-and-forth match at Chabot was a great showcase for the program.

"Yeah, it was pretty cool because our No. 2 team is just about as good as any No. 1 on a given day," Morris said, noting that Pawid and Hass bested Foothill College's No. 1 team in the semifinals.

Impressively, all three of Chabot's men's and women's doubles teams qualified for the California Community College Athletic Association state tournament on April 20-24 in Ojai, Calif., by advancing to the conference quarterfinals.

Kettering, an Amador Valley High graduate and a team captain, sets a high standard on and off the court. Morris says quite a few coaches have commented on how much he's improved this season.

"He's improved a lot," Morris said. "He's one of the hardest working kids I've ever had at Chabot."

Track:

In other news, Conner McKinnon ran the No. 3 all-time mark at Chabot in the men's 800 meters with a 1:52.39 at the Chabot Invitational. Rhomel Clarke also sizzled in the 800 at San Francisco State, with a time of 1:53.34. He is No. 5 all-time at Chabot. Mckinnon and Clarke are also ranked third and fifth in the state rankings.

Bret Greene also cracked the Chabot top-10 list in the 10k with a time of 33:18.50. He is No. 8 in the state and ninth in the Chabot record books.

SINGLES:

(1) Rohan Divate (MCHS) defeated Mateo Cuellar (HH): 8-1

(2) Aniruddh Mandalapu (MCHS) defeated Eduardo Pineda (HH):8-3

(3) Julius Chong (MCHS) defeated Fredy Gochez (HH): 8-2

(4) Charley Jiao (MCHS) defeated Alex Ruiz (HH): 8-3

Fremont Startup Grind Digest: Aaron Carpenter and Donna Novitsky

As an entrepreneur, how often do you ask yourself, "How big are we in comparison to our competition?" At our last fireside chat in March, we sat down with Aaron Carpenter, Chief Customer Officer at HubNami, a social media management startup. Hubnami creates software to answer these types of questions.

Whether you are trying to appeal to a business or a consumer, Carpenter says that your marketing strategies must be exemplary. It is extremely difficult to sell products from business to business, and even with a plan in place, it may still be complicated to execute. Consumers are just as hard to convince. Brand loyalty is something that consumers are extremely conscious of - they either love or hate a brand. How would you sell your product in ten seconds? What makes you stand out from your competition?

Companies entering the social media realm often ask when is the right time to start marketing and sharing their product. Carpenter explained that the golden rule is, "It's never too early." One of the most viewed pieces of content for companies on social media is product teasers, or behind-thescenes footage. Once you begin consistently posting new content, the followers will come.

However, effective marketing strategies don't have to be costly. One simple suggestion Carpenter has is to write a piece on your Facebook page and boost the post for other businesses and consumers to see. If you want to know exactly what you're up against, sign up for a free trial with your competitors and see what they're doing.

There's a reason why social media has been called a "black hole". Even though the space is crowded, the possibilities are endless and each company specializes in its own niche. Carpenter expects that there will be a massive consolidation in the future, and many of these smaller companies will become a tool or subset of larger organizations.

Our next fireside chat for Fremont's Startup Grind chapter is on Tuesday, April 19, 2016. At a new location Electronics For Imaging (efi) on 6700 Dumbarton Cr., Fremont, CA. We will be celebrating Female Founders Month and speaking with Donna Novitsky of Yiftee.

Depending on how you count them, Yiftee is Donna's 3rd or 19th start-up. She is also a former partner of a top tier venture capital firm and teaches marketing to engineers and entrepreneurs at Stanford University. She took a startup from scratch to IPO, and is mother of two teenage kids. Novitsky was named one of the 2014 Top 10 Women to Watch in Tech by Inc. Magazine in April 2014, and holds a B.S. in Industrial Engineering with Distinction from Stanford University, as well a Harvard MBA.

ports with the Committee.

On January 27, the Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) Board of Education reviewed the Independent Financial and Performance Audit Reports for Measure E, the $650 million school facilities bond passed by Fremont voters in 2014. The 2014-2015 Financial and Performance Audits include the District financial statements, supplemental information, and the auditors' opinions on the financial statements, and state compliance.

Upon the recommendation of the Citizens' Bond Oversight Committee (CBOC), the Board awarded a contract to the firm of Vavrinek, Trine, Day and Company, LLP (VTD), Certified Public Accountants, to perform the required audits for the most recent fiscal year. VTD conducted the two audits for the twelve-month period ending June 30, 2015. The results of the audits were presented to the Board of Education by Terri Montgomery, Principal, VTD. At the January 6, 2016, CBOC meeting, Ms. Montgomery reviewed the re-

Ms. Montgomery noted that the two most important words on the Financial Audit could be found on page 1, under the Opinion, which states that the financial statements "present fairly." This means that there are no findings. "If [the opinion] read 'presents fairly, but-' we would be having a longer discussion," Ms. Montgomery quipped.

It is the auditors' conclusion that the Fremont Unified School District is adhering to policies and processes that provide good internal controls over expenditure of the Bond monies and the District, with the CBOC oversight, is performing the construction of projects in a manner consistent with those listed in the Bond documents and with California Law.

More about Measure E, the $650 million school facilities bond addressing critical health and safety issues throughout the district, including overcrowding, may be found on the District's website at www.fremont.k12.ca.us, click on Measure E.

OPINION

he age of information is in overdrive these days. Waiting for the newspaper to hit the porch to find out what is happening worldwide is often redundant; information is just a small screen, big screen or speaker away every hour on the hour. However, a missing piece is coverage of local people, events and venues. Just as important but more difficult to gather, such information is dispersed by a wide variety of people and organizations that want to reach out to their communities but have limited resources to do so.

Our world of news

This dilemma applies to governments as well. Often zoning decisions and projects with direct impact on citizens are discussed and addressed online, but generating interest and bringing focus to these seemingly esoteric deliberations is difficult although of great importance to citizens.

The distinction between "hard" news (political, economic, crime) and "soft" news (personal interest, features) is often used by newspapers to create a critical division between issues worthy of publication and others, but the reality is that the line between the two is blurred and balanced reporting has a place; people who read newspapers cannot be defined by a single concept or interest. Depending on the content, an individual reader may be drawn to different types of articles at different times. At Tri-City Voice we seek balance to reflect the character of our cities and neighborhoods.

The advent of web based information allows articles, once responsible for the entire content of a government meeting or community issue, to summarize and point the way toward further investigation at a website with documentation, diagrams and photographs. The role of newspapers has become integrated with other media to allow citizens to access as much or little information desired. Providing clear and honest reports in concert with additional documentation is the cornerstone of active and viable citizen participation.

Tri-City Voice believes that while hard news is a vital component of our newspaper, community activities and personal interactions are of equal value. How fellow citizens are supporting and involved within our cities and surrounding areas not only invites others to participate, but gives a sense of community and inclusion. How else can we become involved with those who share our interests and passions? This is our role and we are constantly looking for ways to improve our service to our readers.

Fremont launches Vision Zero 2020 for a safer community

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT

In September 2015, the Fremont City Council approved "Vision Zero" as the City's traffic safety policy in an effort to eliminate traffic fatalities, reduce injury crashes, and improve safety for all modes of travel. The Vision Zero concept, established in Sweden in 1997, aims to make traffic safety the highest priority for the design and operations of the transportation system. In the past two years, several American cities have endorsed the Vision on the three topics of safer streets, safer people, and safer vehicles. View the Fremont Vision Zero 2020 Report and Action Plan at: http://www.fremont.gov/2594/Fr emont-Vision-Zero-2020

Rigorous data reporting and evaluation is a key element of the Vision Zero approach. In 2015, Fremont streets encountered 37 traffic crashes, killing eight and severely injuring 31. All of the fatalities occurred on streets with speed limits of 40 MPH (Miles Per Hour) or higher. The time period with the greatest frequency of severe crashes and fa-

Fremont City staff has completed a "Fremont Vision Zero 2020" status report and action plan that seeks to significantly improve traffic safety by 2020 through a collaboration involving engineers, law enforcement officials, educators, vehicle manufacturers, policy makers, and the community. The report includes an in-depth analysis of Fremont traffic crashes, key issues and "hot spot" locations, and describes a data driven strategy for improving safety. The action plan identifies 13 action items that focuses

Local students excel at Science & Engineering Fair

The 5th annual Synopsys Alameda County Science & Engineering Fair showcased the science and engineering research of close to 700 students on the weekend of March 18-20 at the Alameda County fairgrounds. More than 2,500 people attended the open house hours and the award ceremony that culminated the three day event. These students are well on their way to becoming our future scientists, technology experts, engineers, and mathematicians.

This regional competition organized by the Alameda County Science and Engineering Fair Association, a nonprofit 501(C) (3) is led by Patti Carothers, founding fair director and is sponsored by several corporations including title sponsor, the Synopsys Outreach Foundation, as well as Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Oracle, Chevron, Kaiser Permanente, Sandia National Laboratory, Professional Engineers in California Government, East Bay Community Foundation and Alameda County Water and Waste Water Agencies and several private donors. This competition celebrates achievement by middle and high school students supported by their parents, teachers, and schools.

Projects range from alternative sources of energy to plant science with a large proportion in engineering and biological sciences.

The highest awards went to the following high school students for their winning projects and will move forward to the California State Science Fair and the prestigious Intel International Science & Engineering Fair. Students from 75 countries will bring their best projects to compete for well over a million dollars in prizes and additional scholarships donated by universities and corporations from around the world.

Grand Awards went to the following students:

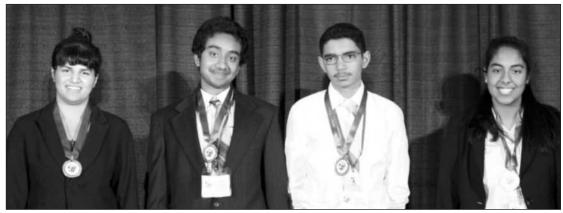

Abheer Singh from American High School in Fremont:

Abheer did his project on inhibition of bacterial mutagenesis through polyubiquitination: a solution to antibiotic drug resistance. (teacher Larry Millard).

Venkat Krishnan, also from American High School, Fremont:

His project covered using Lucas-Kanade optical flow modeling-based computer vision algorithms and sensor fusion to create a novel low cost autonomous emergency first responder drone. (teacher Joshua Baker).

Sonia Sachar, a student at Irvington High School, Fremont:

She investigated using a machine learning approach for predicting drug efficacy. Her teacher is Wai-pan Chan.

Sandhya Kalavacherla from Amador Valley High School in Pleasanton:

Her project was on a matingbased split ubiquitin approach to determine membrane protein interactions with cellulose synthase interactive (CSI-l) protein. (teacher Drew Melby).

Jessika Baral, a student from Mission San Jose High School, Fremont: Jessika is on her way to helping with early diagnosis of small cell lung cancer with a mechanism that can provide diagnosis for one dollar or less and in less than one minute. Her mentor was Julien Sage.

Not to be outdone, two middle school projects earned Grand Awards for their research in areas dealing with water related projects. These students move on to the California State Science Fair and the national Broadcom Masters competition which brings together the top 10 percent of middle school students and their research projects from the United States.

Shreya Ramachandran from Stratford Middle School in Fremont researched the effect of soap nut grey water on soil and plants.

Anay Bhakat from Quarry Lane School in Dublin was guided by teacher Andrea Peoples-Marwah in his endeavor to use a tool to measure the water given to a plant by controlling the water received.

Math really does count!

SUBMITTED BY GEETA ARORA

Itliong-Vera Cruz Middle School's (IVCMS) student team recently won third place at the East Bay Chapter competition of MATHCOUNTS for middle school/junior high students. MATHCOUNTS Competition Series is "A national middle school coaching and competitive mathematics program that promotes mathematics achievement through a series of fun and engaging 'bee' style contests."

Each school can send up to four team members who participate as individuals and also as a team, and an additional six individuals. IVCMS' official team was comprised of 6th grader Rayna Arora, 7th graders Jiyang Chen and Jessica Fan, and 8th grader Kenny Chen. The remaining mathletes, Mehek Bhargava, Vivitsaa Dhakal, Sahana Hegde, Sidney Len, Jayden Pulickal and Vasuda Vaidyanathan, all did extremely well. In addition, Jiyang Chen made it to the top 10 individuals and participated courageously in the oral fast-paced head-to-head competition against other top students.

It was this team's first year participating in MATHCOUNTS, and they were excited to win the third place trophy out of 16 participating teams.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Mother cow milking event

Rumor has it that the Rowell Ranch Rodeo Committee once again plans to feature the cruel (and non-sanctioned) wild cow milking and mutton busting events at this year's rodeo (May 21-22), despite more than 300 letters of opposition. I don't understand why local Child Protection Services are not all over the mutton busting event, in which children ages 4-7 are coerced into riding terrified sheep by their clueless parents.

Promoters and parents alike should be cited for child endangerment. I know of kids knocked into comas, broken arms, knocked-out teeth, etc. The New Zealand Veterinary Medical Association two years ago recommended a nationwide ban on the mutton busting event (called "sheep riding" in New Zealand), and last year the rodeo cowboys agreed to do just that. New York City has also banned this nonsensical event. Why not Hayward Area Recreation and Park District, pray?

Design it, craft it, and own it ...Jewelry that supports youth Music program

n interesting scene appears as one gazes across a meeting room full of people of all ages, their busy fingers deftly crafting some unique jewelry pieces. These members, ranging in age from 9 to 95, are volunteers of the Jenny Lin Foundation, working hard to replenish the stock for Jenny's Jewelry named after Jenny Lin, a 14-year-old talented musician, who was brutally murdered at her own home in Castro Valley in 1994.

Jenny's Jewelry was started by music teacher Diana Ryan five years ago, and sustained by the continuous encouragement and creative support from her mother-in-law, Grace Ryan. All hand-made by volunteers at jewelry-making events held at the Castro Valley Library, jewelry pieces that bear the Jenny Lin Foundation signature are not only beautiful, but also eco-friendly. First, beads are hand-rolled from colorful paper salvaged from discarded magazines, brochures, wrapping paper, bulk mailings, paper bags and other recyclable printed matter. They are then varnished with glaze or nail polish, and presented to volunteers for assembly with a variety of glass and semi-precious stones.

Finished items include necklaces, bracelets, and earrings, and are being sold at schools in Castro Valley during the concert season to raise funds for the summer music program offered free-of-charge by Jenny Lin Foundation.

In three months, Chorus Director Diana Ryan will once again join Greg Conway, Band Director, and Cary Nasatir, Orchestra Director, in leading the six-week summer music program in Castro Valley. This offers an exceptional opportunity for young music students throughout the Bay Area to continue rehearsing and performing in a group during the summer, as well as to interact with and learn from their peers.

Jenny Lin Foundation is a 501 (c) (3) organization devoted to promote child safety and youth music education. For over 20 years, the Foundation has offered music scholarships and free music programs to the community. It has also organized numerous safety fairs, safety workshops and safety contests to raise awareness of child safety issues and improve safety knowledge and precautions for parents and children.

Welcome the Thaí New Year

thought, is practiced in Thailand and Southeast Asia. It is distinguished from Mahayana Buddhism, another main branch, in two ways, Tararug added. First, monks chant in Pali, the language dressed in traditional costumes, perform classical Thai music and dance. A traditional fish release ceremony at Quarry Lakes follows. Animal release ceremonies-giving animals such as fish, turtles and birds freedom and a new life-are a part of Thai Buddhist merit making. Merit making, or the doing of good deeds, can be thought of, Tararug said, as "karma points." Doing good deeds gives you good karma points and erases bad karma points. Releasing animals, giving alms and making temple offerings are all merit making activities.

After the hand washing ceremony is the traditional watering of the Buddha images, when statues of Buddha are washed for the New Year. It is a practical house-cleaning task, Tararug said, as well as religious merit making. Buddha statues, one for each day of the week, are aligned outside where people can choose to wash all seven, a few, or just one for a special day in their life.

Grandparents splashing water back at their grandchildren during the hand watering ceremony is the origin of the water play and drenchings that have become part used by Buddhists 2,500 years ago. Second, Theravada Buddhists follow the philosophical tenant that only you can free yourself.

The word Songkran, which comes from Pali and Sanskrit, means the "movement of one celestial body into another." It marks the beginning of the Thai New Year, a time of change and fresh starts. In ancient Thailand, Brahmins determined the date for the New Year. It fell sometime between the end of March and mid-April, when the sun, passing from Aires into Taurus, changes its position and moves from one side of the Zodiac to the other. Today the date is fixed, and Songkran, a national holiday in Thailand, is celebrated April 13-15. Wat Buddhanusorn will compress the three-day celebration into two with major activities scheduled for Sunday.

Religious ceremonies and merit-making activities honoring elders and ancestors, integral to Thai Buddhist practices, are the focus of Songkran, Abbot Ajahn Prasert said. Saturday and Sunday mornings begin in the temple with Sanghadana – the laity's offering of donations (dana) to the monks (Sangha), everything from clothes and food to light bulbs and batteries, the "materials necessary to live," Tararug said. Afterwards the lay community offers food directly to the monks in a courtyard alms giving ceremony. Following Saturday alms giving, lunch is offered to the monks and then to the public, while the temple's Sunday school students,

On Sunday morning, a bird release ceremony follows the alms giving ritual. Homing pigeons will be released from cages and symbolically given freedom they return to their lofts after release. A bird can be sponsored for $20. Lunch will be offered after the ceremony.

Traditional watering ceremonies together with a family unity ceremony are scheduled for Sunday afternoon. In the family unity ceremony, monks tie white strings around the wrists of the family elders after blessing the family. Elders then tie strings onto the wrists of the next oldest family members, and on down the line to the youngest members. The joining together of the two ends of the string is thought, according to Tararug, to form a protective bond.

Water is the symbol of cleansing and renewal in Thai Buddhist culture, and the watering ceremonies signify cleansing the bad from the past year and starting fresh in the New Year. The ritual washings (also merit making activities) bring "good energy for the coming year," Abbot Ajahn Prasert said. The first ceremony shows respect for elders and ancestors, beginning with monks washing the hands of family elders who, in turn, wash the hands of the monks. The young then wash the hands of their parents and grandparents and ask for their blessings. This ceremony, Abbot Ajahn Prasert said, with its focus on the past, reminds people to pray for their ancestors and remember those who have done them good.

of Songkran in Thailand, and will also part of Sunday's activities. Attendees should be prepared to get wet. The afternoon will also include a Sunday school beauty contest and performances.

The public is welcome to celebrate Songkran at Wat Buddhanusorn. The Abbot asks attendees not disturb the temple's neighbors. Please also follow the dress code: "Beach wear, short skirts, and short shorts are not appropriate on temple grounds," and shoes must be removed when entering the temple. If you go, enjoy the experience and be sure to greet those you meet with the traditional Thai New Year's welcome: "Sawsadee Pee Mai!"

Parking is available at Montessori School (35699 Niles Blvd.) and California Nursery, (36501 Niles Blvd.) with a continuous shuttle to the temple. Space is limited; carpool suggested.

nce considered the lifeblood of communities, trains remain an important part of the nation's transportation network. Freight is often carried on the rails but railcars can also be seen, filled with commuters, regional and national passengers as well. Although many passenger train stations have disappeared over the last century, a new Niles Station appeared on April 9, 2016.

Concentrate and block the sound of traffic at the intersection of Mowry Avenue and Mission Boulevard (Fremont) as you view a "new" railroad station that just appeared near the mouth of Niles Canyon. It is now the early 1900s and railroads rule transportation. A family waits to board as a train nears the station. This is the final piece of a tableau envisioned by Fremont historian and resident Lila Bringhurst... What is old is new again!

The new train station was brought to life by the vision and tenacity of Ms. Bringhurst and the talented team of world renowned sculptor Mario Chiodo. With an overburdened porter hefting a precariously balanced stack of suitcases and family waiting under its roof, the addition compliments a previous extraordinary sculpture of a detailed, scaled version of an early 1900s steam locomotive, passenger cars and caboose. There is even a loose chicken wandering about. As an additional backdrop, a mural capturing the personality of Niles adds to the historical setting.

In reference to the historical aspect of the sculpture and mural, former Mayor Gus Morrison spoke of the value of such representations that can spark discussions of personal and family history as well. The "new" station can bring to mind the changes that have occurred since the Transcontinental Railroad traveled through Niles Canyon in 1869, but give perspective of how we, as a nation, have changed. In tribute to the gift to the community by Ms. Bringhurst, Morrison declared that she should be considered the "First Lady of Fremont."

The new station is just about complete and will soon include lighting for dramatic evening viewing.

Upcoming Drug Take Back event in Milpitas

SUBMITTED BY SGT. JOSEPH HEYLEN, MILPITAS PD

On Saturday, April 30, the Milpitas Police Department and the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) will give the public its 11th opportunity to prevent pill abuse and theft by ridding their homes of potentially dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs. Bring your medications for disposal to the Milpitas Police Department. The Milpitas Police Department cannot accept liquids or needles or sharps, only pills or patches. The service is free and anonymous, no questions asked.

This initiative addresses a vital public safety and public health issue. Medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse. Rates of prescription drug abuse in the U.S. are alarmingly high, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses due to these drugs. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, including from the home medicine cabinet. In addition, Americans are now advised that their usual methods for disposing of unused medicines—flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash—both pose potential safety and health hazards.

For more information about the disposal of prescription drugs or about the April 30 Take Back Day event, go to the DEA Diversion website: http://www.deadiversion.usdoj.gov/

East Bay Park District invited to White House Water Summit

SUBMITTED BY CAROLYN JONES

The East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) was selected as one of the few land agencies – and one of approximately 200 committed organizations - in the United States to participate in the March 22 White House Water Summit which addressed water challenges and solutions in the age of climate change. The White House Water Summit, held in conjunction with the United Nations World Water Day, focused on long-term strategies to build a sustainable and secure water future through innovative science and technology.

As part of its involvement with the event, the Park District has agreed to set a goal of saving 250 million gallons of water over the next five years. The Park District plans to eliminate some standard grasses in high-use areas and replace them with drought-tolerant grasses, and seek partnerships with local sod and seed companies to make drought-tolerant grasses available to the public. EBRPD also plans to convert a number of grass areas into native plant gardens for water-efficiency and public-education purposes. It is hoped these initiatives will cut water use by 30 to 50 percent and reduce lawn-mower emissions by 50 percent.

Naomi Gonzales (Robert), and numerous nieces, nephews, great-nieces, and great-nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents Roy and Shirley and son David.

Tom will be dearly missed by all who knew him.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

e are concerned that East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) officials have adopted a hostile attitude to Mission Peak visitors as exemplified by the overwhelming number of tickets and citations handed out over the last three years. This hostility is amplified when public funds are used to create and fund a designated parking program which will cut park access further. The implementation of a 33 percent cut in park hours in 2014 resulted in a drop of 60,000 visitors a year which impacts our local economy.

Though public safety accounts for $25 million of the $150 million EBRPD operating budget, oversight is lacking. Other agencies such as San Jose and BART have public safety commissions that open their doors to the public. EBRPD should follow their lead. We recommend that EBRPD establish a Public Safety committee to address the deficiency in community policing, to improve governance, and to allow oversight by its Board and by the public.

Mission Peak Conservancy, an organization of East Bay park visitors, asked assessors from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies on

Tickets and citations

March 15, 2016 to look into citations at Fremont's Mission Peak Regional Preserve. The number of citations at the park surged in recent years, while Mission Peak is safe from serious crime and the crime rate in nearby neighborhoods is among the lowest in Fremont. EBRPD police issued 589 parking citations there during 2013-2015, according to public records. This compares to a grand total of 153 at three other popular parks in the East Bay: Anthony Chabot, Tilden Regional and Redwood Regional. Over the same time period, citations and violations totaled 1,205 at Mission Peak, compared to just 366 at the other three parks combined.

Also of concern, most of the parking tickets issued by Fremont and EBRPD Police near Mission Peak weren't for parking. Rather, they were for expired registrations, missing front plates, or parking outside marked stalls. Only a small portion, 25 percent, addressed the main complaints of residents, which are blocked driveways, fire hydrants and red zones, according to a spokesperson for the Fremont Police. (www.mercurynews.com/fremont/ci_2625 1930/east-bay-parks-city-policehuddle-about-mission)

Park curfew hours were cut by 30 percent in fall 2014, producing a tsunami of curfew citations. The cut came in response to political pressure from local property owners, who wanted to stop park visitors from accessing the park through their neighborhood. Curfew citations then exploded, from four in 2013 to 484 in 2014 – a factor of 100.

Overall, Mission Peak has been a debacle for police involvement in the community, because police departments have lost sight of their mission to protect park visitors and acted instead to suppress them. Unneeded citations could be reduced by better maintenance, such as repainting the faded white stripes in the parking lot and installing concrete wheel stops to help keep cars in place. Most importantly, police management should implement the principles of community policing in East Bay parks and surrounding neighborhoods. They should shift their focus to preventing crime, protecting the safety of visitors, and improving access to public parks.

Discovering talent in unexpected places

SUBMITTED BY ANNA WANG

Local performers walked away as top winners of the second annual "Special Needs Talent Showcase" on Saturday, March 19, 2016 at the Santa Clara Convention Center Theater. Eleven finalists competed at the event before an audience of 600, emceed by Matt Keller, an awardwinning general assignment reporter for ABC7 News.

The event was sponsored by Friends of Children with Special Needs (FCSN), a Fremont-based organization serving more than 1,000 individuals with special needs

Mission San Jose High School student Alice Jen was a winner at the Special Needs Talent Showcase for her and their families throughout the South Bay. Entertainment throughout the night also included 10 honorable mention performers and a winner from the first Special Needs Talent Showcase.

Alice Jen of Mission San Jose High School in Fremont, a 2015 winner as part of the band-trio The Dream Achievers, won for her piano concerto solo, "Yellow River, First Movement." Jen taught herself piano at age four after seeing someone playing piano on television. She began lessons at age six, has won a number of statewide awards, and considers music to be her life-long companion and best friend.

Lawrence Wang of Fremont, also part of the band-trio The Dream Achievers, won for his solo performance of the Village People's disco hit, "Y.M.C.A." Wang wore a colorful, yard-wide red and white feathered Indian headdress as he sang and played the saxophone and drums for his rendition. Wang discovered his musical talent only six years ago when his mother required him to attend an FCSN recorder musical camp. Since then, Wang sings wonderfully and has mastered the flute recorder; the saxophone, including soprano, alto, and tenor; and drums. He has performed internationally and throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

Each winner received a $500 cash prize, a trophy, a signed commendation by California Assembly member Kansen Chu, and a performance-quality promotional video by Galaxy Media to be used to showcase their talents for future performance engagements.

Judge Stephen Prutsman of San Francisco, an internationally recognized pianist and composer and co-founder of Autism Fun Bay Area, presented five pianists who were finalists and honorable mentions each with a $100 cash prize (including Jen) to inspire their continued commitment to the piano.

Fremont's Lawrence Wang won for his solo performance of the disco hit "Y.M.C.A."

Local Group Explores Innovative Housing Idea

Neighbors make it a habit to have meals together

In nearly all cohousing neighborhoods, residents have dinner together at least once a week. Sharing food promotes kinship. Mission Peak Cohousing, the cohousing community forming in the Tri-Cities, hopes to share weekly meals too.

"Only 40 people or so?" asks prospective resident Charlie Scribner. "Sure! If I'm going to plan for two, I might as well plan for 40 and then enlist a little help."

"I'd be glad to attend," says Bob LaMere, "but please don't make me cook for a crowd. I would be better at building planter boxes to grow the food."

Each cohousing community develops its own approach to who plans, who cooks, who cleans up, and how often they do it. It all depends on the people who live there. In some, every adult periodically takes a turn working on some aspect of the shared dinner, whereas others allow individuals to substitute another community task.

Joani Blank, a resident of Swan's Market cohousing community in Oakland, has witnessed the variety of approaches. She set out to research how different cohousing neighborhoods make shared meals happen. The "where" question has an uncomplicated answer: a characteristic feature of cohousing communities is a community center - or "common house" - in which there is a large kitchen and dining room. That is where shared meals typically take place. But Ms. Blank was interested in comparing further details.

She surveyed 19 communities from eight U.S. states plus Canada and Australia. The data she collected is available in her article on the website of the Cohousing Association of the United States at www.cohousing.org. Here are highlights:

Two or three shared meals per week are typical.

Most of the 19 communities common meals per week – about evenly divided between those who do two and those who do three. One community has four, and one tops out at five meals weekly. Families with school-age children and single adults tend to prefer frequent common meals.

Several communities have one or two common meals each week plus one or two specialty dinners, such as potluck, pizza night, vegan, or all-adult.

"When we moved in," recalls one resident, "our common kitchen wasn't finished, so for many months we held potlucks every night of the week. When our kitchen was done and we started preparing meals there, several families continued the potlucks on non-common dinner nights. We have some kind of shared eating going on in the common house five or six nights a week."

Planning and payment methods vary.

How do the cooks know how many to cook for? Ms. Blank found that most communities have a notebook or sheet posted where residents and their guests sign up for each meal. A few communities reverse that system and have a sign-out system, in which residents are assumed to be attending every common meal unless they indicate otherwise. Not surprisingly, in the latter communities, most residents eat nearly every common meal.

And what about cost? Ms. Blank found that meals cost far less than a restaurant, including most fast food joints. In communities that institute a set price for meals, the price they set ranges from $3.75 to $4.50 per person, usually with half-price for younger children. In communities where meal prices fluctuate based on the amount of money actually spent on groceries, the price generally falls within a similar range. Even when there is an occasional pricey meal, the cost per person.

Communities have each devised their own systems for payment. A simple and successful one involves creating a spreadsheet to record what meals were eaten by whom and at what cost per meal. The total is added to or subtracted from the amount people spend on groceries when it is their turn to cook. Periodically, there is a "truing up," when each person is reimbursed or billed for the difference.

Meal preparation and participation vary, too.

In about half the communities surveyed, every adult was expected to take a turn planning, preparing, and/or cleaning up. In the other half, common meal preparation was voluntary and might be part of a longer list of alternative tasks.

In general, the smaller communities had a higher percentage of eaters. In the six smaller communities, the average meal attracted two out of three residents, while in the three largest, an average of just under half attended. One of the respondents offered the opinion that those who opt out of the common meal system are not nearly as connected with the community as those who par ticipate. Ms. Blank noted that even people who rarely eat common meals say that common meals are important to them.

"The data collected from the survey, what folks told me, and observations from community visits over the years have confirmed my intuition," says Ms. Blank, "that common meals are for most, if not all residents, 'the glue that holds us together.'"

Fremont Police Log

Friday, April I

At approximately 11:20 a.m., officers responded to the report of a bank robbery that was occurring on the 38900 block of Fremont Boulevard. Officers arrived within minutes, but the male suspect fled on foot just prior in the direction of Mowry Avenue. Multiple units searched for the suspect, but he was not located. He was described as an Asian or Hispanic male, approximately 20 years old, 5'7", wearing a blue hoody, blue jeans and gray boots. Saturday, April 2

At 6:45 a.m. officers were dispatched to investigate a battery on the 46100 block of Warm Springs Boulevard. Dispatch reported that two males were fighting in the parking lot and that one had hit the other over the head with a beer bottle. Officers responded to the scene and found two men sitting on the curb in front of a business. Officers asked the men if then needed medical attention and both looked confused. While talking to the men, officers could smell a strong odor of alcohol. As additional officers arrived, they found a third party, also emitting a strong odor of alcohol, lying down across the back seat of a vehicle. Officers were able to temporarily wake the male, but after looking up, he went back to sleep. Officers learned that the involved subjects had been inside Encore KTV drinking until approximately 5:00 a.m. Shortly after 5:00 a.m., the males got into an argument over who would pay the bill. During the argument a 23-yearold adult male began to punch a 28-year-old adult male in the face, causing injuries. The 28year-old adult male, Dublin resident, retaliated and bit the 23-year-old on the finger, causing injury. Both were arrested for battery. The 24-year-old adult male who was asleep in the back of the vehicle was not able to stand and his speech was slurred. Determined to be unable to care for himself, he was arrested for public intoxication. Field Training shed on Carol Avenue. Union Pacific Railroad Police took the primary report. Ofc. Gourley took an outside assist report.

Ofc. Burch was detailed to investigate a petty theft at a business located on the 39200 block of Fremont Boulevard. The caller stated that a female had stolen a phone after a male victim had put it down on a counter. The theft had occurred in the customer service department. The female suspect was described as a Hispanic female adult or black female adult, approximately 30-40 years old, heavy set with brown hair, and last seen wearing a gray jacket and dark jeans. Video of the suspect was obtained and officers are investigating.

Monday, April 4

Ofc. Navas stopped a 36-yearold adult male who was near a stolen vehicle. The keys to the vehicle had been taken from a hotel room and the vehicle went missing a few days prior. The male was arrested for auto theft and outstanding warrants.

A man called dispatch and advised he was being chased by another male who had a gun near the police department on Stevenson Boulevard. Dispatch tried to get more information, but he didn't answer questions and wouldn't answer his phone again. Dispatch then received a call from the front desk staff advising that two men were in the lobby reporting someone with a gun. Officers responded to the lobby and contacted both men. The original caller, a 49-year-old adult male, imagined the story up and was found to be under the influence of a controlled substance. He was arrested. The second male was a citizen who had been contacted in front of the police department and was trying to help the man who had claimed he was being chased.

A shoplifting incident at the Lucky's grocery store on Mowry Avenue and a robbery at the T-Mobile store on the 41000 block of Fremont Boulevard are possibly committed by the same suspect. The male is described as a white adult, approximately 5'8", 180 lbs., bald, wearing a white tank top, jeans, sunglasses, and was carrying a Ninja Turtle backpack. In both instances he entered the store, stole items and then assaulted store employees when they confronted him. Ofc. Allsup made a vehicle stop in the area of Mission Boulevard and Niles Boulevard. The license plate returned with a lost or stolen hit. The vehicle was confirmed stolen out of Union City and the adult male driver was found to be in possession of shaved keys.

other direct service projects. We participate in school projects such as reading to elementary school students on Dr. Seuss Day, and host an annual speech contest through which high school students develop public speaking skills. Internationally, Rotary is responsible for the global effort that is very close to eliminating polio. We provide wheelchairs to people in need throughout the world, work to provide clean water in Africa, help improve educational opportunities worldwide, and much more. There are seven Rotary clubs in the Tri-City area, one Rotaract club and an Interact club at each of the local high schools. Each club has its own unique character and meets at a different time and location. Membership is open to anyone who wants to enjoy the benefits of sharing their gifts with others in their community. Although we refer to ourselves as "a leadership organization," holding a formal leadership position is not a prerequisite for membership. In fact, an important element of Rotary is development of leadership skills in all of our members.

Dog Haus brings the absolute `wurst' to Fremont

Dog Haus, the celebrated Los Angeles-based concept known for its gourmet hot dogs, sausages, burgers and unique creations, will open in Fremont on Friday, April 15. This will be the first Dog Haus location for Bay Area-based restaurant group CRC, Inc. and the 16th franchise location of the emerging restaurant brand which was founded in 2010 to recapture the nostalgic childhood experience of eating a hot dog.

As part of Dog Haus' introduction to the neighborhood, guests are invited to stop by on the opening day to enjoy a free Haus Dog from a selection of Dog Haus' seven hot dog creations featuring signature all beef skinless dogs served up on grilled Hawaiian Rolls. Options will include fan favorites like Sooo Cali, with arugula, tomato, crispy onions, spicy basil aioli and avocado; Downtown Dog, featuring a smoked bacon wrapped dog topped with caramelized onions, pickled red peppers, mayo, mustard and ketchup; or Cowboy, with white American cheese, smoked bacon, bbg sauce and crispy onions.

In addition to the signature dogs, Dog Haus' full menu also includes gourmet sausages, burgers, corn dogs and all the appropriate sides, like beer-battered onion rings, French fries and chili cheese tots made with haus made cheese sauce, cheddar, haus chili and green onions.

Lighter eaters and kids can indulge in smaller-sized portions - the dog slider is made with a signature all beef mini dog, haus made cheese sauce and bacon; the burger slider has just the right amount of caramelized onions, white American cheese and mayo and the corn dog slider features an all-beef mini dog dipped in haus made root beer batter. Those who save room for dessert can finish off the meal with a Fosselman's premium ice cream milkshake or soft serve.

The fast-casual concept, designed to elevate the nostalgic experience of eating that quintessential hot dog or burger, combines this nostalgia with the contemporary aesthetic of its modern industrial space. After ordering at the counter, diners can grab a barstool at the communal tables with exposed I-beams or take a seat at one of the reclaimed wood and steel tables with benches that boast playful phrases, such as "Nice Buns," throughout the 2,350-square-foot restaurant.
