Frequent Heartburn Can Indicate a Serious Condition

Seminar Explains New Treatment Options for GERD or 'Acid Reflux'

ost likely, you have experienced heartburn on occasion – perhaps after eating a heavy, spicy meal. That burning sensation in your chest can disrupt your sleep, but it's nothing to worry about. Or is it?

"Frequent heartburn may be a symptom of a more serious condition called gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD), also known as acid reflux," says Dr. Mary Maish, chief of Thoracic and Foregut Surgery at Washington Hospital. "Some acid reflux is normal, and almost all people have it occasionally. Heartburn becomes a concern, however, when it is chronic and damages the esophagus. Anyone with frequent heartburn should see a physician to see if testing for GERD is indicated."

Acid reflux happens when the contents of the stomach back up into the esophagus - the "food pipe" that leads from the throat to the stomach. The acid flows back up into the esophagus because the valve (called a "sphincter") between the stomach and esophagus isn't working properly. This can cause symptoms of heartburn, regurgitation, cough, hoarseness and even asthma.

To promote greater awareness of GERD's potential complications and treatment options for GERD, Washington Hospital will conduct a free seminar featuring Dr. Maish on Tuesday, July 12, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The seminar will be held in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium in the Washington West building at 2500 Mowry Avenue in Fremont.

Serious Complications of GERD

"If left untreated, GERD can lead to more serious complications such as scarring and strictures (narrowing) of the esophagus, which make it difficult to eat and swallow," says Dr. Maish.

Another serious GERD complication is Barrett's esophagus, which affects Frequent heartburn may be a symptom of a more serious condition called GERD, often referred to as acid reflux. To learn more about GERD, attend the July 12 free seminar featuring Mary Maish, MD chief of Thoracic and Foregut Surgery at Washington Hospital. The July 12 seminar is from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium in Washington West (2500 Mowry Ave., Fremont). approximately 3.3 million Americans, with a 2 percent risk per year of developing esophageal cancer.

"In Barrett's esophagus, the cells in the lining of the esophagus change to compensate for the acid," Dr. Maish explains. "These cells continue to change, becoming precancerous, and perhaps even cancerous. Esophageal cancer is not very common, however, with approximately only 16,000 cases diagnosed each year."

Dr. Maish notes that GERD can sometimes be caused by a condition called hiatal hernia.

'With a hiatal hernia, part of the stomach slips up into the chest, causing intermittent heartburn symptoms," she says. "Minimally invasive surgery can be performed laparoscopically to correct a hiatal hernia by anchoring the stomach back down in the abdomen."

Nonsurgical Treatment Options

In many cases, physicians recommend treating uncomplicated GERD by making a few simple lifestyle changes, such as diet modification and weight loss, which Dr. Maish will discuss at the seminar.

"Lifestyle changes can be hard for some people to maintain over the long term," Dr. Maish concedes. "For example, many people try to change their diet and lose weight, only to fail time and again. That can be very discouraging. So, in addition to making lifestyle changes, people may need medications to help control GERD. These medications include antacids, H2 blockers that block histamine receptors in the stomach, and proton pump inhibitors (PPIs), which block acid production in the stomach.

"PPI medications are the most effective drugs for treating persistent GERD," she adds. "Unfortunately, a collective group of studies indicate that there may be

Tools for a Healthier Life

Experts agree – Lifestyle choices about diet and exercise can help you prevent and control chronic disease

Today, the U.S. faces major challenges to the health and well-being of our population. For example:

• 78 million Americans are considered obese

• 117 million people – about half of all adults in the U.S. – have one or more preventable, chronic diseases

• 70 percent of adults who are overweight and 75 percent of those who are obese have at least one risk factor for cardiovascular disease or diabetes

This is the second in a series of articles on recent advances in U.S. efforts to take a more proactive, preventive approach to improving and protecting the health of our citizens. We'll also talk about what you can do to improve your own and your family's health, and how Washington Hospital works every day to protect the health of patients and the community.

"Summer's coming, and this is a great time to refocus yourself on living a healthier lifestyle, eating better and exercising more," said Anna Mazzei, registered dietitian and diabetes educator at Washington Hospital. "By taking a proactive approach to managing your weight to prevent or control disease, you'll also look and feel better."

Population health

Scientific research has demonstrated the close link between Americans' lifestyle and public health problems, such as obesity and chronic disease. Based on these findings, the U.S. government is taking a more proactive approach to improving the health of our population through landmark legislation and sweeping new policies. Disease Prevention and Health Promotion released the latest Dietary Guidelines for 2015-2020. The updated recommendations place a greater emphasis on adopting healthier nutritional patterns. The goal is to prevent or slow the progress of chronic disease by making you more aware of how lifelong eating habits affect your overall health.

Last year, the U.S. Office of

Some of the latest dietary guideline concepts were translated into new food labeling requirements announced by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) this spring. In response to the obesity crisis, nutrition labels will put a stronger focus on calories, serving size and sugar content.

"These developments represent food policy on a grand scale," commented Mazzei.

Meantime, the Affordable Care Act is strengthening the focus on population health by requiring health plans to include preventive and wellness services as well as chronic disease management in their core package of Essential Health Benefits.

Preventive services in your community

"As part of our mission to serve the health care needs of the community, Washington Hospital Healthcare System helps people take a more proactive approach to managing their health and preventing disease," Mazzei explained. "We offer a wide range of free and low cost programs, classes, and services for the public."

Programs include community seminars, health screenings, support groups and more. Many of these services are described in a free bi-annual Health & Wellness catalog published by the Healthcare System. The catalog is also available online at www.whhs.com.

To help people with diabetes or people at risk of getting the disease, the Washington Outpatient Diabetes Center has a dedicated team of certified diabetes educators, including Mazzei, who are trained to teach you the skills needed to control diabetes for a lifetime. Research shows education helps prevent, delay, or reverse complications of diabetes when people learn and apply self-management skills. The center also sponsors monthly diabetes education classes called Diabetes Matters. At these free seminars, expert speakers present science-based information to help increase your knowledge about diabetes.

In addition, the Washington Women's Center provides a host of wellness and support programs and educational classes for local women. These include yoga, meditation, touch therapy, and a series of health and wellness-related lectures.

What you can do

Although some things like family history are beyond your control, you have the power to influence many of the factors that help prevent or control chronic disease and enable you to live a longer, healthier life. Here are some tips to get you started:Become a mindful eater.

Recognize that you have the ability to control what you eat and how much exercise you get. These tools can improve your overall health and longevity.

• Read nutritional food labels. Find out about the latest changes in labeling requirements by going to www.fda.gov, the website of the U.S. FDA. Recommendations for daily intake are based on a 2,000 calorie diet. By going to www.choosemyplate.com you can determine your own recommended daily calorie intake, based on your height and weight.

• Educate yourself about ways to improve your health through nutrition, exercise and other strategies. Take advantage of local, evidence-based wellness and prevention programs, including those sponsored by Washington Hospital Healthcare System.

What should I do about an odd growth on my body/skin?

Odd growths get more common as we get older. Most skin growths including moles and warts are common and benign. Nonetheless, there are growths that can be cancerous and need to be treated. There is no one set rule to determine which growth is benign or cancerous. Different rules such as the ABCD (asymmetry, border uneven, color and diameter) rule can be used to help rule out melanoma for any pigmented lesions. These rules, however, are not perfect and any odd growth should be evaluated by a doctor.

Frequent Heartburn Can Indicate a Serious Condition

Seminar Explains New Treatment Options for GERD or 'Acid Reflux'

some correlation between use of PPIs and increased risks of cardiovascular disease, kidney disease, dementia and osteopenia. If you are concerned about taking a PPI medication, consult your doctor about whether the benefits of the drug outweigh the risks."

Other Treatments for GERD

While lifestyle changes and medications may help alleviate the symptoms of GERD, they don't change the function of a loose sphincter between the esophagus and the stomach. Improving the function of this sphincter is important to fixing the symptoms and preventing complications of GERD. At the seminar, Dr. Maish will discuss various procedures for strengthening the esophageal sphincter.

The current standard surgical approach for strengthening the sphincter is called laparoscopic Nissen fundoplication. This minimally invasive laparoscopic surgery strengthens the lower esophageal sphincter by wrapping the upper curve of the stomach (known as the fundus) around the sphincter.

"Laparoscopic Nissen fundoplication offers good results for most people," says Dr. Maish. "It requires only a one- or two-day stay in the hospital."

A newer minimally invasive surgical procedure to correct faulty esophageal sphincter function involves inserting a beaded "magnetic bracelet" over the end of the esophagus at the location of the sphincter. This device serves to strengthen the valve and prevent symptoms and complications of GERD.

"The magnetic bracelet, known as the LINX device, wraps around the base of the esophagus to prevent food, acid or bile from going from the stomach back up into the esophagus," Dr. Maish explains. "The bracelet is a one-way valve that is flexible enough to let food go down, but not back up."

Dr. Maish is currently one of the very few physicians in the Bay Area placing the LINX magnetic bracelet for GERD.

"The LINX device is extremely effective in treating GERD," she asserts. "Patients spend less than an hour in the operating room, and many of them are able to go home the same day. The recovery period is only a few days to a week. Most importantly, more than 90 percent of the time, patients who have a LINX device inserted are able to come off all their GERD medications."

Douglas Morrisson Theatre (DMT) is excited to announce our Fifth Annual Playwrights' CageMatch: Public Squares, Private Stories, on Monday June 13. Five playwrights will enter but only one will emerge victorious! Join us as playwrights far and wide square off.

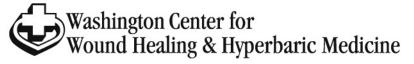

The only requirements for aspiring contributors were that the scenes had to be 20 minutes or less, have no more than four characters, and be set in a town square in a small town anywhere in the universe. It's where Main Street meets First Street – perhaps there's a little park, or a statue of a forgotten general, probably a few pigeons. Time period is not restricted. We particularly looked for creative and elegant back-stories that incorporated a town square setting into the scene, but the tone, theme or genre was up

This year DMT had entries from all over the U.S., from Canada and Australia. Artistic Director Susan E. Evans, with some help from her team, selected the top five submissions, and each one gets one rehearsal. The five scenes will be presented on June 13 at a live staged reading at the Douglas Morrisson Theatre, and the audience will decide the winner. Admission for the CageMatch is free, and tokens to vote will be sold for $5.

The Washington Township Museum of Local History in Fremont is set to continue with the celebration of the 60th anniversary of Fremont with a brand new display at the Central Park Visitors Center. Stop by the Central Park Visitors Center to discover the history of the park from the Ohlone era to today. There may even be photos that have been rarely or never before seen by the public. Who was here before 1900? What year was the first parcel of land acquired? What did the park look like before the lake was filled in? Was there ever a swim lagoon? How many skate parks has the lake housed? The answers to these and many other questions can be found by visiting the exhibit. "The exhibit is a fantastic entry point for people interested in the history of the park," said Central Park Ranger Patrick O'-Connell.

The display is expected to reach thousands of people over the course of the summer, as it is situated in a prime location, just across from the boat launch. spirit of graduation

As a time of joy, exuberance and celebration, graduation ceremonies acknowledge the effort of students, teachers, administrators and support networks that culminate in matriculation from one level of instruction to another and/or practical applications. Many students move through grade levels that mark types and sophistication of instruction while others are seeking knowledge and information for more immediate and personal reasons.

A special group of students from every corner of the world gathered at Fremont Adult School on June 1st to cheer each other as they graduated from English as a Second Language (ESL) classes that are much more than classroom instruction. Under the guidance of teaching and administrative staff, students help each other assimilate into the rich, yet confusing mix of the United States of America, specifically the Greater Tri-City area. Through persistence and pride in their adopted country, ESL students appear joyful and eager to unravel the cultural and linguistic mysteries of our communities. The graduation ceremony reflected this energy as congratulatory speeches were followed by unique peformances of each class - songs (e.g. I've Been Working on the Railroad, This Land is Your Land, What a Wonderful World), Bollywood dancing, square dancing and skits including a fanciful introduction to the alphabet.

As the graduation ceremony ended, classmates, teachers and administrators bid farewell but for many just a temporary hiatus before the next session begins. Not only are friendships begun and strengthened during class sessions, but the result enhances the resilience and texture of our American heritage. Congratulations to all graduates in all schools. You are our future!

Samsung challenges Fitbit with $180 fitness tracker with GPS

By Anick Jesdanun AP Technology Writer

NEW YORK (AP), Just in time for summer, Samsung is unveiling a new fitness tracker that aims to undercut gadgets from market leader Fitbit.

Beyond offering all-day step counting and automatic sleep tracking, the $180 Gear Fit2 comes with GPS sensors for more accurate measuring of distance and pacing for runners and cyclists.

GPS is typically limited to higher-end devices, such as the Fitbit Surge and the Microsoft Band 2, both of which go for $250. The Fit2 is also cheaper than the new $200 Fitbit Blaze, which doesn't have GPS.

The main drawback: The Fit2 won't sync with iPhones, as Fitbits do. An Android phone – not necessary Samsung's – is required for syncing music and workout data.

While Samsung is the world's fifth-largest maker of wearable devices, according to technology market research firm IDC, most of those are Gear smartwatches, where fitness is an afterthought.

By contrast, fitness is front and center with the Fit2. Yet it will also have some smartwatch capabilities, including the ability to reply to messages from the device. Rival trackers at most tend to show you messages; replies are typically limited to smartwatches such as Apple Watch and Samsung's Gear S2

Advance orders on the Fit2 will begin Friday in the U.S., with shipments a week later.

Later this year, Samsung will release its $200 Gear IconX earbuds that, in addition to playing music, will

California Assembly moves to tax marijuana growers

AP WIRE SERVICE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), California lawmakers are moving to levy taxes on medical marijuana growers after hammering out pot regulations last year.

The Assembly voted 60-12 to pass AB2243 Thursday.

The bill authorizes charges of $9.25 per ounce of marijuana flowers, $2.75 per ounce of pot leaves and $1.25 per ounce of immature pot plants.

Legislative analysts estimate the taxes would raise $77 million annually for local police and environmental cleanup.

Some marijuana activists oppose the taxes as unreasonably high, saying the flower tax alone would be 10 percent of marijuana's value.

Democratic Assemblyman Jim Wood of Healdsburg says his proposal was killed at the last minute during negotiations to regulate marijuana last year.

The Senate approved a 15 percent marijuana sales tax earlier this week. Local governments currently tax pot about 7.5 percent.

Under Armour's upcoming heart-rate-tracking headphones are expected to cost $250. Samsung's IconX goes further with built-in sensors to measure distance and pacing, though with less accuracy than GPS devices. There's no screen, so you get audio readouts every mile or whatever interval you set.

With Thursday's announcements, Samsung is trying to tap growing interest in health and fitness as sales of smartphones slow down.

In the first three months of this year, Fitbit shipped 4.8 million devices, or 25 percent more than a year earlier. That accounts about a quarter of all wearable devices worldwide. Samsung, by contrast, shipped about 700,000, an increase of less than 5 percent, according to IDC. Samsung's devices require an Android phone, while Fitbits work with iPhones and Windows phones as well.

Samsung is taking a cue from Fitbit in creating leaderboards and challenges for family and friends to motivate each other. This has been one of Fitbit's strongest areas, and Fitbit has an advantage as the market leader: Someone you're trying to challenge – or taunt – will more likely have a Fitbit than another device.

Samsung's version works through its S Health phone app, meaning Android phone users will be able to participate without a dedicated tracker. But it could be tougher to motivate someone who hasn't made a commitment to fitness by buying a tracker.

Both the Fit2 and the IconX will let you leave your phone at home. You can download hundreds of songs for phone-free workouts, but you can't tap Spotify and other online services without the phone. The phone needs to run at least KitKat, the 2013 version of Android. For the IconX, music syncing might not work with non-Samsung phones. A PC would be needed in such cases.

These devices represent Samsung's second effort at fitness tracking, not counting all its smartwatches with fitness capabilities. The original Gear Fit in 2014 had a beautiful, curved screen, but lacked many power features. The Fit2 addresses that with GPS and a wider, customizable screen to fit in more data on your workout. But like most trackers, the Fit2 lacks many stopwatch controls found on sports-specific devices such as Garmin Forerunners for running.

The Bay-Friendly Landscaping and Gardening Coalition recently changed its name to ReScape California to reflect its expanded statewide scope and commitment. ReScape partners with local organizations, customizing best management practices for each region to establish sustainable landscaping practices in California.

ReScape California is an advocate and expert in the creation of sustainable landscapes for commercial, multi-family, and public spaces as well as single-family residences. Landscape professionals are often faced with unique challenges. ReScape is the source for supporting those challenges.

We address the following challenges:

-California's water supply is limited and under increasing pressure. Up to 30 percent of urban water use goes to landscaping.

-Landfill space is scarce and there are significant economic and environmental costs to transporting and landfilling plant debris. In Alameda County alone, 110,000 tons of plant debris goes to the landfill each year.

-Local creeks and the bay are impacted by inappropriate use of pesticides, affecting human health and wildlife populations.

-Traditional landscape construction and maintenance practices of mow, shear, and blow contribute to greenhouse gas emissions and air pollution.

-Biodiversity, ecosystem services, and aesthetic values of Bay Area natural resources are at risk.

ReScape California is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization with the mission to promote sustainable approaches to the design, construction, and maintenance of urban landscapes and gardens. For more information, see www.ReScapeCA.org.

SIR, yes SIR!

By David R. Newman Photos by John Skarpelos

Retirement can be a challenging transition for many men, especially for those who have worked all of their lives. Their regular routine is suddenly gone. No more interfacing with coworkers on a daily basis. There can be a struggle to regain that confidence and self- esteem that comes with a job well done, that feeling of being productive and important.

One way to help navigate this new frontier is to join a group like Sons in Retirement (SIR). Founded in 1958 in San Mateo Branch in April. The food is top rate, with entrees like chicken cordon bleu, wild salmon, and pineapple pork. And there is a social hour before lunch where members can talk and exchange war stories.

Ulam, who in his previous life was a commercial insurance broker, has enjoyed making new friends through SIR. "One of the fun aspects of our organization is that you get to talk to guys from all these different careers. We have a number of retired surgeons, retired lawyers, scientists, a lot of teachers, accountants, exmilitary people, etc."

Apart from the regular monthly luncheons, SIR branches also host

Samsung Gear expands virtual-reality arsenal

By Michael Liedtke AP Technology writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), Smartphone maker Samsung and virtual reality specialist Oculus are trying to dazzle consumers by adding more entertainment and educational options to their Gear headset in hopes of transforming the technological curiosity into a cultural phenomenon.

The new selections announced Wednesday include "Nomads," a three-dimensional video series examining wayfaring lifestyles in remote parts of the world. There's also an upcoming video game called "Tactera" that requires players to plot a battlefield strategy on a holographic tabletop, and another 360-degree video called "6X9" providing a grim look of what it's like to be stuck in a prison's solitary confinement cell.

They join a menu of more than 250 apps designed for the Gear VR since its consumer model was released nearly six months ago. That's a meager amount compared to the millions of apps available for the iPhone and devices running on the Android operating system.

Devices that build an arsenal of compelling apps usually are easier to sell to consumers. Programmers, though, put a lower priority on designing apps for devices until they have amassed a large audience.

That hasn't happened yet with the Gear, though Oculus says it is winning over fans faster than it anticipated when the headset hit the market just before last year's holiday shopping season. About 1 million people used the Gear VR last month for an average of 25 minutes per day, according to Oculus. About 80 percent of that time was spent watching video.

Samsung designed the Gear for its most recent smartphones with the help of Oculus, a littleknown startup until online social networking leader Facebook bought it for $2 billion two years ago to help introduce virtual reality to the masses.

"Oculus can help people experience anything, anywhere," boasted Max Cohen, the company's head of mobile. "We think this (technology) can actually change people's lives."

The concept of virtual reality, a technology that immerses people in an artificial world, has been around for years, but has never taken off.

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg is convinced it is destined to become technology's next big breakthrough, and other influential trendsetters Google and Apple are now scrambling to catch up in the still-nascent field. Google is widely expected to unveil a virtual-reality device next week at its annual developers conference in the next step beyond its rudimentary product called "Cardboard" that works with smartphones.

The Gear was a forerunner to a more advanced virtual-reality headset called the Rift that costs $600 and requires a connection to a high-powered computer. The Rift began shipping nearly two months ago, although many buyers still haven't received the headset yet because of delays that Oculus has blamed on parts shortages.

In contrast, users of the Gear only need a set of headphones and one of these Samsung phones: the Galaxy S6, S6 Edge, S6 Edge Plus or Note 5. As part of its attempt to make it easier to find stuff to watch and play on the Gear, Oculus plans to release a new version of its app for the device next month.

The Gear VR is turning into an assembly line of apps for the Rift. More than 20 of the games originally designed for the Gear are also compatible with the Rift.

by Damian Reynold, the idea behind SIR was simple – to host a luncheon once a month where retired men can gather and socialize. That's it. No initiation fees or political agenda, just a donation to cover food expenses. Originally there were no dues – that is now optional depending on the branch. Currently the organization is classified as a non-profit public-benefit corporation.

With over 15,000 members in 133 branches throughout Northern California, it is apparent that the SIR model is working. Membership is based on sponsorship. Friends of members are invited to join, and if they like it, they're in. Says Jim Ulam, President ("Big Sir") of the Newark/Fremont Branch, "The whole idea is for retired guys to stay busy and enjoy their retirement. A lot of the wives say, oh thank goodness for SIR. It gets them out of the house a couple days a month." The main purpose of every branch is to hold a monthly luncheon, often with a guest speaker. Spencer Christian, weather forecaster for ABCowned KGO-TV in San Francisco, was recently the guest of honor at the Newark/Fremont a Sweetheart Luncheon in May and a Christmas Luncheon in December. The wives of members, many of whom are very involved and help with recruiting, are invited to these special events, which can also include music, dancing, and prizes.

Members can also participate in many different activities during the year, including bowling, golf, going to baseball games, wine tasting, and trying new restaurants. And a travel program allows members to travel together. The Newark/Fremont Branch recently hosted a "Tracks & Suds" Tour where members visited the Western Railway Museum in Solano County, followed by a stop at the Budweiser Brewery in Fairfield. Each branch is run by executive committee and has their own culture and personality, determined by their membership. The number and type of activities offered by each branch can differ greatly. Some have newsletters, others have door prizes. It all depends. The number of members also varies by branch. Newark/Fremont has 156 members, while the Castro Valley Branch has 45.

"Big Sir" Jim Ulam and Area Governor Rob Ingebretson talk to Spencer Christian at the Newark/Fremont Branch luncheon in April 2016.

Rob Ingebretson, Governor of Area 8, which includes Newark/Fremont, has been with SIR for more than 10 years. He cites recruiting and retaining members as the biggest challenge they face. With ages ranging from the 60s to the 90s, members aren't getting any younger.

With no formal marketing department, SIR branches rely heavily on word of mouth, which sometimes isn't enough. Says Ulam, "Nobody knows about us; we're the best kept secret in the ri-City area." He's hoping that changes and is taking steps to give SIR more exposure. This is the first year that they will have a float in the Fremont 4th of July Parade. And last year they entered classic cars at the Newark Days Celebration.

The Newark/Fremont Branch of Sons in Retirement meets on the third Thursday of every month at the Newark Pavilion, 6430 Thornton Avenue. The Castro Valley Branch meets on the third Wednesday of every month at the Moose Lodge, 20835 Rutledge Road.

For more information, visit www.sirinc.org, or contact Jim Ulam at (510) 797-9357.

Jeevan Zutshi comes from Kashmir, India and has been living in the San Francisco Bay area since 1972. A community leader, Zutshi founded "Indo-American Community Federation" in 1993 to give Indo-Americans an opportunity to assimilate into mainstream America and promote harmony within a diverse community.

After the passing of his son Amit in March 2008, Jeevan founded "Amit Zutshi Foundation," a non-profit organization to increase awareness about the unregulated health supplement industry in the U.S. Jeevan then authored a non-fiction publication, "The Last Smile-A Father's Love Story" which was released December 4, 2009. An independent movie, also called "The Last Smile," has been released by the Amit Zutshi Foundation.

Inspired by true events, this film chronicles the struggles of a bereaved father searching for answers to explain the untimely demise of his adult son. He gets help from a private detective to investigate the case and finds out that his son's death was caused by a reaction to an over-the-counter health supplement. He fights against the multi-billion dollar health supplement company responsible for it. The film examines a broken system of unregulated health supplements industry in the U.S., esposing greed and corruption.

The film was test screened at Cinegrand Theatre in Fremont in December, 2015; officially admitted to Cinequest Film Festival, San Jose, with a red carpet and world premiere- on March 11, 2016; and officially admitted to Palm Beach International festival on April 11, 2016. The film was also shown to policy makers on Capitol Hill, Washington, D.C. on April 13, 2016.

Shankey Srinivasan directed the film and it is his directorial debut with a feature film. Keith Stevenson portrays the father and Danny Arroyo is the lead actor.

There will be two screenings of the film at the Cinegrand Theater in Fremont on Wednesday, June 15 and Sunday, June 19. The movie is in English and runs 87 minutes.

Academic Stress

SUBMITTED BY FUSS

We are thankful to Ms. Lee, Principal of Leitch (K-3) Elementary School in Fremont, for inviting the nonprofit organization FUSS (Fremont Unified Student Store) to speak about Academic Stress to the parents at her school. The Irvington High School students who work with FUSS effectively addressed the parents' concerns by sharing their experiences and observations about stress.

Hopefully, more parents and community members will be interested and willing to engage in such conversations so that the learning environment can be made more enjoyable, inspirational and meaningful for our students.

Trees clean our air, absorbing harmful carbon dioxide and producing oxygen. They help to clean water for the millions of Americans who depend on a forest every time they turn on their faucets. Healthy forests sustain critical habitat needed for wildlife and enhance our own outdoor experiences. Trees are living symbols of the Dominican Sisters' care of creation. Hayward Area Recreation and Park District's PhotoCentral Gallery presents "Working Hands," a photo exhibit featuring Farm and Recycling Workers by David Bacon and Longshoremen at the Oakland Waterfront by Frank Silva. Silva's photographs of longshoremen and Bacon's images of farm workers and recycling workers reveal what is often unseen - the necessary labor it takes to put food on the table, deliver us the material goods we need, and clean up after we're done.

These photographs capture the visual drama of the workplace and plunge us into the human drama of those who labor there. The exhibition continues through August 6 and there will be

All hands on deck

s any real estate agent will tell you, one of the best ways to add value to a house is to build a deck. This outdoor improvement will not only boost your home's curb appeal, but will also increase usable space and create a pleasant transition between interior and exterior living areas. And what better way to move the party outside and enjoy our beautiful Bay Area weather?

Decks come in all shapes and sizes. The first step in a project like this is to think about what you will use the space for. Will it be your serene oasis, a bonus play area for the kids, or an entertaining space for the adults? Knowing this will inform your design decisions when it comes to adding features like steps, railings, lights, benches, gazebos, trellises, pergolas, etc.

Of course, setting a budget is very important, and can help you with your design decisions by keeping your imagination in check. It can also help you with perhaps the biggest decision when it comes to decks: which material to use?

In the Bay Area, the three most popular choices for decking are redwood, hardwoods, and composite lumber. Here are the pros and cons of each:

Redwood

Nothing is more gorgeous than this natural wood. Redwood comes in over 30 different grades, which is a way to denote its appearance and durability (resistance to insects and decay). In general, the higher the grade, the more durable and beautiful (no knots). Wood from the center of the tree, or heartwood, is more durable, with a reddish brown color. Wood from the outer growth layers (sapwood) is more cream colored and less durable. For decking, most people choose one of the middle grades. Redwood needs to be sealed every three years, is flammable (but less so than most other woods), and can produce splinters. Average Cost: ranges from $5 to $35 per square foot, depending on grade. For middle grades, $8 per square foot.

wood that is heavier and more durable than local woods. They are more expensive and harder to come by. Hardwoods have a life expectancy of 40 years or more and need minimal maintenance. Be wary, as some companies may not use eco-friendly harvesting techniques. Average Cost: $22 per square foot.

Composites

Composite lumber is made from wood fiber and recycled plastic. While 10 years ago there were only a few choices, today there are over 50 manufacturers. Composites come in a wide variety of colors and textures to choose from, and many simulate the look of wood. Hardly any maintenance is required. Plus, no splinters! Composites can also have a cleaner look than natural wood because many of them use hidden fasteners, albeit at a higher cost, as opposed to exposed nails or screws. Some of the more popular manufacturers include Trex, TimberTech, and Fiberon. Average Cost: $7 to Mike Steele, of Deckmasters Bay Area in Fremont, has been building decks for over 20 years. When deciding on material, he advises his clients to think about how long they plan on staying in their home. "Typically, the cost of flooring in the midrange of coming, they might not want to drop as much money on the price of the flooring."

When building a deck, homeowners should also consider features like railings and lighting. Peter Koehler, of Santay Landscaping in Hayward, advises his clients to install railings on any deck over 18 inches. And he warns that composite railing systems can be expensive. "There are a lot of different railing options available, many railing styles, but make sure to consider your custom options too. A lot of times I can build custom railings using a metal insert and using a composite top rail and they look beautiful."

Lighting can also dramatically improve your deck. Says Koehler, "Decks come to life with lighting." He adds, "If you're adding lighting, the design of your railing is an important component, because most of the time the lighting is mounted to the railing, or the post."

Building a deck often requires a permit, so be sure to check with your city or county for their requirements (some composites do not meet fire or building codes). Also, Steele stresses the importance of properly installed concrete footings. And be sure a deck is covered by your homeowner's policy before you commit to anything. Most deck builders charge an average rate of around $35 per square foot, with a project length around one to three weeks.

Hardwoods

Ipe (pronounced "E-pay"), Cambara, and Batu are just a few examples of a tropical, teak-like $12 per square foot.

For those on a limited budget, pressure treated (PT) wood can be an attractive option, with an average cost of $2 per square foot. However, the chemicals used to treat the wood can be harmful if contacted by humans and pets, so applying a penetrating oil-based posites is about 30 percent more than the cost of redwood. With redwood, you'll need to pay someone to seal it every two to three years to protect your investment. But with composite material, the maintenance is just cleaning it off occasionally. So after three to five years that initial price is offset. If a person has a rental or is thinking about mov-

On Sundays, eight fine volunteers can be seen walking around the Alvarado District picking up ground litter. They have been doing this for one and a half years and work with Grounds and Parks Maintenance lead worker Matt Bauchou. Bauchou worked with staff to get them approved volunteer vests, litter pick up sticks, and garbage buckets. These men are very responsible, polite, courteous and dependable, and we appreciate their community spirit.

Mind Twisters Crossword Puzzle B 3701

For All Signs: The Saturn-Neptune square affects us on a personal level. It isn't just about the world at large (see previous article). There are those who have lied to themselves about reality who will find their denial tactics must come to an abrupt end. Something will be standing in the mirror that represents a cracked illusion. You can no longer tell yourself that things will be all right, that this can't happen to you. Almost everyone is in denial about something. In the Western world, this is one of our favorite self-defense tactics. However, we are probably not lost forever. The solution is evident within the problem. It is recognizable because it involves effort, work, and ongoing attention. Those are Saturn's requirements to extricate ourselves from the mire of difficulty. So we must suck it up and do what is necessary to eliminate this problem. See below for clues to how this aspect relates to you. Read the paragraphs for both your sun sign and ascendant.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): The rules of law, justice and all bodies of authority have been demanding more than their fair share of you. What you feel may be exaggerated, but it is clear that something is wrong. It is possible that you may be the victim of false rumors or gossip. Now is the time for truth. Past responsibilities come home to roost. Those you have managed well will reward, or vice versa.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Problems have been revealed via any of the following areas: resources that you share with others (partner's income, investments, IRS), issues concerning your estate and/or your inheritance, debtors that won't pay, or debts that you owe. Meanwhile some of those whom you have called friends seem to evaporate. Your clarity of vision about who is a friend is growing.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): There are issues in your partnership that require attention. Perhaps your partner has experienced a loss in his/her family and this requires you to take on more responsibility than is the norm. You must be the strong one now. This kind of issue can generate questions about your level of commitment. If the relationship is good, it will survive and become stronger.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Your faith will be tested in any number of situations over the next few months. Saturn is demanding that you have all your details, files and requirements in order. It could be called the reality police. Your physical strength may be undermined by a longterm condition that heretofore has not shown its face. It will require effort, work and attention to control and repair it.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): Realities have been exposed in your romance, creative life, and relationships to children. It is possible that you are reaching the limits of your ability to manage things alone. You are actually losing valuable resources, though the trail may not be clear. Partner may not be able to contribute his/her share. This could be simply inflation, or wherever you keep your savings is being charged unfairly. Check your account(s) for deceptive practices.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Demands from family on your time and energy has been eroding your primary relationship. Or perhaps it has been slowly degrading over time and now you are forced to recognize the problem. If you want to resolve this issue, more work, effort, and ongoing attention has promise of correcting the issue.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): The circle of your environment has become smaller, perhaps because your physical body can no longer keep up the pace. Give attention to exercise, better sleep, or eliminate addictive patterns that may be draining your energy. Use discernment about whether you are taking over problems that don't belong to you. Don't give away your energy on other people's issues.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): You have needed to keep your financial belt pretty tight for well over a year. It is possible you fantasized that help from an unknown source would rescue you. That likely has not materialized. You are realizing the illusion of what we call security. You need a paycheck of your own.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Any relationship that could be identified as codependent has shown itself in full clarity now. You may be the one who has rescued ad nauseum and now you no longer have the emotional energy to continue. Your sense of future direction may feel fuzzy and without structure. Yet you must give it some kind of form in order to proceed. Take only small steps for now.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You know in your heart that you have come almost to the end of a career cycle. You need to break free and get some rest before you tackle the next big project. But it's scary out there and of course, you need to earn a living. Give special attention to your vision and also your hearing. Don't allow symptoms to continue without a thorough check.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Financial resources may be drained. Don't go into debt by not giving attention to your checking account. If you see this developing, stop and make a solid plan for how you are going to pay for what is needed. You may be taking on someone else's financial problem. Be aware of the cost to you and also to the relationship for doing this.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): The mask you wear out in the world has been fading. You have sustained a blow to your ego or maybe your body. Perhaps you have defined yourself by your occupation or status in the world, and the sand is being sucked out from under you. Don't waste time in paralysis. Saturn's requirement is that you construct and commit to your direction. If the old one doesn't work anymore, you need to create something new.

ary says I should write about garden snails. Mary is very good to her snails. I am not. I step on mine and enjoy the crunch. Mary picks hers up and ensconces them in a plastic bag. She throws this courteously into the trash. She also doesn't use bait, protecting cats and dogs.

For this column, I am trying to find something nice to say about snails. Their silver trails are very pretty in the morning, quite artistic. Each snail has a different shell pattern like our fingerprints. And for readers who enjoy reading about movie star lifestyle, snails can be truly romantic. (I am not making this up).

First, since they usually choose not to travel too far, snail mates are in their work group. Each snail has off an attractant. When a male/female (they are two in one) elects a mate, they begin circling each other. This courting procedure can take six hours or more. First they touch feet. Then private parts are touched with each snail's tentacles. As excitement looms, one snail gives off a harpoon-style "love" dart. The other snail soon responds. This dart is often referred to as "Cupid's arrow." In brief, it has something to do with increasing chances of snail paternity. On occasion, this Cupid's dart sometimes doesn't go to the correct pore, so the opposing snail digests the dart instead of adding it to the fertilization process.

a sex gland in its head. This gives

This is getting a bit deep for a family column, so let's move on to what happens when you throw your garden snails over the fence. Perhaps into the yard where a neighbor shares her cats with you? Have you gotten rid of that snail? A British scientist did a scientific study. Over a six-month period, Dr. Dunstan marked 1,385 snails with a white dot. These snails were thrown over a 6-ft. high fence into an area 15 ft. away from the scientist's beloved plants. Apparently 416 made the return trip. Dr. Dunstan marked the returnees again, sending over the fence, etc. The champion snail returned 17 times. Apparently snails have a homing instinct. Apparently Mary also just wanted to know how to get rid of them.

Eggshells around plants help. Also, caffeinated coffee grounds and cinnamon deter. Crushed garlic cloves in water are reputedly effective, and sprayed garlic oil is supposed to be a quite good deterrent and snail killer. If you try this, let me know. Crunch.

Hayward Street Pa

The 2016 downtown Hayward Street Party season opens its 16th year with bands, the first of three summer car shows, street entertainers, food, and family fun. The event kicks off the series of traditional Thursday night street parties including celebrations July 21 and August 18.

On June 16 the Bank of the West Stage will feature the West Coast Blues Society Caravan of All Stars, celebrating the upcoming Hayward/Russell City Blues Festival. Other bands that day will include the Zydeco Flames on the Buffalo Bills Stage and the Royal Deuces on the Bistro Patio Stage. DJ Robert Louis will entertain at the chamber of commerce Main Street Stage.

Additional fun will be provided by street entertainers, face-painters and rides for kids. Adults will enjoy more than 100 hot rods and classics at the car show on Main Street, and great brews will be served in a beer/soda garden.

"It says a lot about Hayward that our participants look at the street parties as a family reunion," said Kim Huggett, president of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce. "These are events that not only are family friendly, but the coolness factor is there, too."

The street party series is made possible through a partnership of the Downtown Business Improvement Area, the City of Hayward and the Hayward Chamber of Commerce. Corporate sponsors include Buffalo Bills Brewery, PG&E, Kaiser Permanente, Wells Fargo Bank, and Calpine's Russell City Energy Center.

The chamber office is still accepting reservations from vendors. For information, call (510) 537-2424 or check the website at www.hayward.org.

Niles Cruise Nights

SUBMITTED BY JERMAINE SHAFFER

"Niles Cruise Nights" is back on the second Saturday of each month from June to September. This is a free, family event that has been going on since 2013 and has grown in popularity over the years. This year's event will be held Saturday, June 11 in the parking lot next to the Niles train station in downtown Niles. Vendors will be onsite as visitors cruise along downtown Niles. Listen to old-style music and participate in a raffle for a chance to win a custom-built Oakland A's bike or San Francisco Giants' bike.

The event is a fundraiser to benefit a different organization each month. During April's event, $520 was raised for Yesterday and Today Autism Foundation in Fremont. The month of May was for American Legion Post 837, and the event raised $700. Ashland Little League will be the beneficiary for the month of June. For more information, contact (510) 397-8872 or info@thebombshop.com.

The Cal State East Bay women's water polo team has placed two student-athletes on the 2016 Association of Collegiate Water Polo Coaches (ACWPC) Division II All-America teams. Taylor Cross was selected to the First Team, while fellow senior Sabrina Hatzer nabs Second Team honors.

This marks the fifth straight year the Pioneers have boasted multiple ACWPC Division II All-Americans under head coach Lisa Cooper.

It's the second consecutive First Team honor for Cross, who was named Co-Player of the Year last season as a junior. This year, she was dominant on game. The Fresno native led the Pioneers with 54 drawn ejections, ranked second on the team with 49 goals, and ranked third with 42 steals. She finished her career as the sixth-leading scorer in program history with 137 career goals.

Hatzer had a monster season for East Bay, leading the squad with 51 goals and 91 total points. She was second on the team in steals and assists, and ranked near the top of the WWPA leaderboards in all four categories. She was a two-time WWPA Player of the Week honoree, and a First Team All-WWPA and First Team All-Tournament selection. Hatzer set a program record this season with eight goals in a single game vs. Sonoma State, and she scored four goals in the team's dramatic overtime win over the Seawolves in the WWPA semifinal game.

Cribbage Club completes another official season of play

SUBMITTED BY MARTY FROOMIN, CLUB DIRECTOR

Combining luck and skill, cribbage is a two-player card game invented in the 17th century and still played today by young and old alike. Members of Christopher's Crusaders, formally known as the American Cribbage Congress (ACC) Grass Roots Cribbage Club #43 in Fremont, one of 185 clubs in North America sanctioned by the ACC, compete every Wednesday evening in a ninegame round-robin tournament.

The Grass Roots (GR) official season consists of 36 weeks of play between September 1 and May 31 each year. This season marks the 30th season since GR 43 was chartered in 1987. Tournament players are a nice mix of male and female, young and old, with skill levels that include novice, intermediate and advanced.

Ben Holder, of Fremont, had a strong season to repeat as Club Champion. He led most of the season to become the 2015-2016 Club Champion finishing the season with 270 GR points (86 points more than he had last season). In second place, was Wayne Morris from Fremont with 157 GR points. Reginald Lennie, of Newark, secured third place with 141 GR points.

Congratulations go to Bob Zahn, of Castro Valley, for earning his Bronze Award (1,000 GR points lifetime). Roy Kaufmann (Hayward), Bob Zahn (Castro Valley), and Stan Billingsley (Hayward) each had a Grand Slam this season, winning all nine games of the tournament. The most points that can be earned in a single hand is 29. Just as rare is the 28 Hand. Ben Holder (Fremont) got a 29 hand this season, while James Sweet (Hayward), Bob Zahn (Castro Valley), and Denny Agers (Hayward) all drew to a 28 hand this last season. Of special note, the week before the season started, Sharon Kemp (Fremont) got a 29 Hand.

While some members moved away, the club welcomed new members Charlie Amsden and James Sweet this season. Many players arrive up to 90 minutes early to have dinner, catch up with friends, discussing movies, books, gardening, Sudoku and maybe even play a warm-up game or two. Visitors from the Grass Roots Cribbage Club #337 in Livermore, Stan and Vicki Billingsley of Hayward, also participate on a regular basis.

For those who don't feel they know enough to play the game on Wednesday nights, there is a "Minor League" on Tuesday evenings at the Round Table where those attending can build their confidence and learn more about the game in an easy going atmosphere. Members Reginald Lennie and Theo Mattingly show players how to play the odds, predict their opponent's cards and play the hand. There is no need to join the ACC to play on Tuesday nights. The emphasis is for you to learn the game, get up to speed and then join the club on Wednesday nights.

Special thanks to Theo Mattingly and Reginald Lennie for their dedication on mentoring the Tuesday night group. Thank you also to Theo Mattingly, Loren Lookabill, Mike Hannon and Marty Froomin for rotating the weekly Tournament Director duties. Thank you to the rest of the club (Patricia Ryan, Farokh Ziari, Tracy Yott, Jim Crawford, Craig Rothbach, and Winnie Froomin) for coming and playing.

The club plays year round and welcomes new members at any time. ACC Grass Roots Club #43 welcomes all players of all skill levels to join us. Tuesday evenings are open to everyone who already enjoys the game or would like to learn how to play, while Wednesdays are for intermediate to advanced players who are capable of playing a game in 15 – 20 minutes. For more information, email ACCGR43@gmail.com or simply show up any Tuesday before 6:15 p.m. at Round Table Pizza (Centerville), 37480 Fremont Blvd., Fremont.

Developing the next generation of Water resources stewards

By Director Richard P. Santos, Santa Clara Valley Water District

Sitara Simons is a high school junior studying environmental studies with a zeal for water issues. After completing a weeklong 64-mile hike near Los Altos two years in a row and seeing depleted water levels in local creeks during 2014, she developed a keen interest in water resources management.

Through the Santa Clara Valley Water District's Youth Stewardship Commission (YSC), she learned that areas of Santa Clara County had sunk 13 feet in the last century due to groundwater overuse. Now she is much more conscious about the misuse of water on a daily basis. "Even when it's raining, I know it's important to save water because our groundwater levels aren't restored yet," she said.

The water district provides an opportunity for high school students to get a behind-the-scene look at what it takes to provide nearly 2 million people clean, safe water. Since 2009, YSC has cultivated student leaders interested in learning about environmental stewardship of creeks, bays, and watersheds, water district facilities and operations, as well as water industry careers.

In May, the water district was proud to graduate the fifth class of the YSC. Thirty high school students from across the county participated in the five-month program. Students attended evening commission meetings with district speakers and completed tasks related to a specific topic each month. Commissioners also had the choice of additional electives such as attending and reporting on a water district board meeting, touring the Silicon Valley Advanced Water Purification Center, participating in a creek clean-up or leading informational activities at their schools. Students also had the opportunity to participate in the

and have founded school clubs. Several students from this year's class were so impassioned by the topics covered during commission meetings, they wrote articles for their school paper.

At the final YSC evening meeting and completion ceremony, students asked water district leadership firsthand questions about water management challenges in Santa Clara County and meeting the needs of the diverse communities within the county. Every one of the student commissioners was interested in participating in volunteer opportunities with the water district beyond the YSC, like additional facility tours and creek clean-up events.

Sitara would like to adopt a creek with her sister, who's in middle school, to do their part in keeping local creeks clean and healthy. She's also hoping her sister will become a commissioner in a few years.

The water district is also an active member of Baywork, a coalition of water agencies dedicated to ensuring a reliable workforce in the water and wastewater industries. Baywork offers training, programs and development activities for current employees, as well as learning opportunities and career fairs for high school students. Last April, the water district participated in a Baywork career fair attended by almost 500 high school students in the South Bay.

The water district understands the importance of passing on to our youth a well-preserved and healthy environment. Future generations will be faced with the increasing challenges of climate change and ongoing drought cycles in our dry state. Our responsibility is not only to leave them a better planet, but to empower them as stewards of our precious resources for generations to come.

Turrets of sand will line the strand on Saturday, June 11, during the annual Sand Castle and Sculpture Contest at Crown Beach in Alameda. Always lots of fun, especially for the kids, the free event starts with registration at 9 a.m. at the bathhouse near the park entrance at Otis and Shoreline drives.

Registrants are assigned a plot of sand on which to erect either a sculpture or a castle. Your entry must consist of sand only, with the exception of wood, rocks, shells, etc. found on the beach the day of the contest and used as decorations only. No glass or live animals, please.

Competition is by age – there are categories for youngsters, adults, and families. Judging starts at noon. Awards in the form of ribbons and trophies are presented at 1 p.m. but winners mostly just get bragging rights. There's no prize money involved.

The contest is sponsored by the East Bay Regional Park District, Alameda Recreation and Parks Department, and Bay View Women's Club. It's almost as enjoyable just to watch the show and be impressed by the contestants' creativity. For more information, call (510) 544-3187.

For the record, the Brazil Building resulted from the 1939 World's Fair held on Treasure Island. After the fair closed, the Brazilian government donated the interior of its pavilion to the park district. The pavilion included burnished hardwood floors, plate glass mirrors and wood-paneled walls. Works Progress Administration craftsmen built the stone exterior, and the building opened to the public in 1941.

While we're at Tilden, there's a full weekend of interesting free programs on the agenda, all meeting at the Environmental Education Center and Little Farm. Advice from an Animal is a program series from 11 to 11:30 a.m. every Saturday at the center. Meet an animal, learn about it, and color a collectible poster to take home. Your animal adviser on June 11 is a spider.

E.O. Wilson, who is a scientist, naturalist and author, will celebrate his 86th birthday with an hour of nature stories and lore from 1 to 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 11.

Naturalist James Wilson will lead a family nature safari starting at the center from 2:30 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 11. The group will seek out animals under logs, on branches, and in ponds.

Then from 10 a.m. to noon and again from 1 to 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 12, naturalist Anthony Fisher will lead a variety of traditional games played by California Indians. Animals district's Job Shadow Day, with many of them visiting water district facilities as well as creeks.

"It really opened my eyes to environmental policy and resources management," said Sitara. Unsure of what career path she will pursue, she became aware of opportunities in government and public administration.

S&P and Fitch assign high ratings to County of Santa Clara

SUBMITTED BY LAUREL ANDERSON / MARINA HINESTROSA

County Executive Jeffrey V. Smith, M.D., J.D., recently announced that Standard & Poor's ("S&P") Global and Fitch Ratings assigned "AA+" and "AA" ratings, respectively, to the Santa Clara County Financing Authority for its 2016 Series Q California $152 million refunding lease revenue bonds. These ratings recognize Santa Clara County's strong economic base as well as the County's moderate liabilities and strong financial management policies and practices.

S&P assigned its "AA+" rating based on the county's very strong economy, strong budgetary performance and very strong management conditions. S&P also affirmed its "AAA" rating on the County's General Obligation ("GO") bonds and its "AA+" rating on the County's existing lease revenue bonds and pension obligation funds.

The S&P and Fitch ratings reflect a number of factors, including strong financial policies and practices, budgetary performance and flexibility. The assessment considered the operating surpluses in the general fund; available fund balance in fiscal year 2015-2016 of 18 percent of operating expenditures; and the improvement of County reserves. Employment growth, high tech industry, steady growth in the value of housing, and wealth and income levels well above national averages remain decisive factors in the assigned ratings.

The rating agencies also cited the County's strong debt and contingent liability profile as well as their view that balanced operations have strengthened County reserves.

Although the County has limited legal ability to raise revenues because of California's proposition 13, this constraint is mitigated by a history of revenue growth. Fitch attributes a recent solid revenue performance largely to the county's booming real estate market and tax base. Over the longer term, Fitch expects growth to remain stable.

S&P and Fitch analysis noted the County's significant operating surpluses, which, combined with healthy reserves will contribute to superior financial resilience in the event of a moderate economic decline.

The East Bay's first Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) line is coming

SUBMITTED BY ROBERT LYLES

The Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District's (AC Transit) Board of Directors has voted to award a construction contract to O.C. Jones & Sons. An East Bay based heavy civil construction and general engineering firm, Jones & Sons recently celebrated 90 years of business in Northern California. The $108 million dollar contract includes construction of the infrastructure and station platforms for AC Transit's first Bus Rapid Transit line.

This Bus Rapid Transit system or BRT will revolutionize public transit in the East Bay by increasing reliability and reducing travel times along one of the region's busiest corridors. AC Transit's BRT will operate between downtown Oakland and San Leandro – primarily utilizing historic International Boulevard and East 14th Street. Construction of the 150 block transit service (that spans 9.5 miles) is slated to begin in May 2016 with service expected to

Biomed Manufacturing in the Driver's Seat of Bay Area Innovation

By Jennifer Chen, Economic Development Coordinator

When you hear the term "biomedical manufacturing," it may be difficult to conjure up an image of what that looks like exactly. But whether you see it or not, the efforts of biomed manufacturing are literally producing life-changing results.

From a cutting-edge replacement knee joint to a new advanced diagnostics machine to a breakthrough drug for HIV/AIDS treatment—all of these are the result of years of research, development and manufacturing.

And a large majority of this activity is happening right here in the San Francisco Bay Area, specifically in Fremont.

While the thriving tech scene in Silicon Valley receives the most exposure, the Bay Area isn't just home to the latest software developments. With the help of the Biomedical Manufacturing Network (www.biomedmfg.org), we took it upon ourselves to develop an infographic that breaks down the numbers behind biomedical manufacturing.

Here is just a preview:

• There are 1,100+ biomedical companies in the Bay Area, and nearly half are involved in manufacturing biomed products.

• The Bay Area is also home to 140,000 biomedical jobs, with 14,000 more expected in the next two years.

• And not that we're tooting our own horn, but the City of Fremont in particular is home to the largest concentration of biomedical manufacturing companies in the SF Bay Area—47 to be exact.

If you're looking for more opportunities to learn about biomed, consider checking out the upcoming BIO International Convention (http://convention.bio.org/2016) when it returns to San Francisco, the birthplace of biotech, from June 6-9, 2016.

And to learn more about the opportunities for biomedical companies here in Fremont, you can find more resources at www.thinksiliconvalley.com/company-type/life-sciences.

First Fleet of the Future train car heads west

SUBMITTED BY BART DISTRICT

The inaugural train car from BART's Fleet of the Future has been completed and is now headed on a cross-country journey from Plattsburgh, New York to a BART testing facility in Hayward. This first test car will be followed by nine others throughout the year to make our first new 10-car test train. Once the car arrives, it will undergo many months of rigorous testing before being put into passenger service target date of December 2016 if testing goes well and no major re-engineering is required. Key to safety and success of the new fleet will be the initial quality assurance, system integration, and safety tests that will take place before the California Public Utility Commission gives their blessing for passenger service.

The BRT service will replace the portion of existing Line 1 between 20th Street and Broadway in Uptown Oakland and the San Leandro BART station. The BRT will operate inside a transit-only lane for most of the 9.5 mile route with stops at raised station platforms. The service will run on brand new, environmentally friendly, diesel-electric hybrid buses. These low- CO? emission 60-foot articulated buses are manufactured in the U.S. by New Flyer. Each bus is specially designed with five-doors to quicken the boarding process.

Once aboard BRT, riders will get to their destinations even faster:

The service will make stops every five minutes during peak hours and every 10 minutes during off-peak hours;

Stops are spaced an average of one-third of a mile;

Transit signal priority extends green lights allowing the BRT to maintain its enhanced frequency;

Interior bike racks will quicken the boarding of cyclist;

Innovative wheelchair tie-down systems will reduce dwell time to secure passengers.

Bus Rapid Transit offers all the benefits of a light rail train system without the exorbitant cost of building light rail. In the U.S., construction of a typical light rail system averages $70 million per mile or more. By contrast, the BRT's average construction cost is $25 million per mile which includes new pavement.

The construction of the BRT was planned in three distinct projects. The first project, which has been completed, was a prep work project to relocate sewer and water lines typically adjacent to future station locations. The second project, which is about 50 percent complete, is a two-part effort to mitigate parking and traffic impacts identified during the environmental phase. Phase two involved the construction of two off-street parking lots, now completed, along International Boulevard near 35th and Auseon Avenues to address parking displacement resulting from new alignment. Phase two also included a street improvement project in the vicinity of Derby Avenue, East 10th and San Leandro Streets to accommodate anticipated increased traffic through this area once the BRT begins operation. The third project, major roadway and station construction, is the award to O.C. Jones & Sons.

The BRT will make direct connections to 46 bus lines, five BART stations, and the Oakland Airport (via transfers with Line 73 – Eastmont Transit Center/Oakland Airport).

For more information on AC Transit's BRT, to track BRT updates, or join-in on the conversation visit: http://brt.actransit.org/

Riders will enjoy these new benefits:

Quieter: "micro-plug" doors will help seal out noise

Cooler: cooling systems will distribute air directly to the ceilings, making it more comfortable for standees on hot days

Comfortable: padded seats with lumbar support will be covered with wipeable fabric for easy cleaning

Easy to use: routes will be color-coded like the BART system map, and next-stop information will be readily available via automated announcements and digital screens.

More space and options: aisles are wider, seats are higher for space to fit luggage underneath, the ceiling is higher for tall folks, there are dedicated bike racks in each car, more reserved seating for seniors and people with disabilities, more handholds for standees of all heights, and a third door makes it easier to board and off board the train.

775 new train cars are on order, but our goal is to find the funding to bring that number up to 1,081 - increasing the number of seats in the fleet by 49 percent.

The 775 cars will arrive in the Bay Area in stages from 2016-2021, with the 10 test cars arriving in 2016 and an additional 54 cars arriving in 2017. BART will begin to retire the aging cars when appropriate, paying close attention to ridership needs and safety.

ast week's events reminded me of the opening lines of the Charles Dickens classic novel, A Tale of Two Cities: "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times."

Although Dickens was describing a time and place much different from the year 2016, citizens of the Greater Tri-City area have experienced the hills and valleys of civic life that could easily fit the narrative. As many of us celebrated the transition of family and friends in graduation ceremonies, a much different scenario played out in the Irvington District of Fremont. Two police officers were brutally attacked and injured by someone who resides on the opposite end of the civility spectrum. This incident is, unfortunately, not isolated in time or location as a police report from Hayward noted a thankfully minor injury to a Union City motorcycle officer, sustained when a motorist fled from a traffic stop.

This series of events reminds us that even though our communities strive for harmony and peaceful coexistence, we have our differences. Although there is an element of our society that has little or no interest in a safe and calm environment, the vast majority find common purposes and work to understand and peacefully resolve contentious issues. Local governments work toward common goals and, although not a perfect system, manages to carry out day-to-day operations in a relatively efficient manner. This process depends on input from informed citizens who care about their environment. Just as the civility spectrum spans many attitudes, so does that of social responsibility.

I attended graduation ceremonies of the Fremont Adult School, paradoxically on the same day as the shooting incident in the Irvington District. It was obvious that both represented two ends of a spectrum. The graduation was filled with joy, exhuberance and pride in achievement; the camaraderie that evolves when these students were faced with the challenge of new customs, a new country and integration with foreign backgrounds. To witness the positive energy was moving. Later in the day, as the police action unfolded, it was apparent that our protective services were faced with a severe and visible representation of what they face daily; the other end of that spectrum.

Protective services work toward maintaining common security and safety but they do not represent the entire process. Our civic infrastructure includes actions by citizens to participate in decisions by elected representatives and local staff. Just as police, fire and other personnel work to maintain a safe environment for all, actions by government are also important to a sense of security. It is imperative that just as those who celebrated their achievements in graduation ceremonies, we bring that same spirit to our communities by participating in local government. Information, including video broadcasts are available on the internet for those unable to attend meetings. The message is clear... get involved and add your weight to the positive side of the civic spectrum.

Can you guess what happened on May 22?.. the first Gomes Kite Festival! We were able to increase volunteer efforts in the Gomes community by hosting the festival. Everyone showed spirit by flying colorful kites high in the sky. There were many carnival games such as toilet hoops and noodle bulls eye and information booths for Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, softball, and cricket. There were also many delicious cuisines such as Indian and Chinese. Yet there were still improvements to be made. Many people didn't know about the Gomes Kite Festival because of the lack of banners. People at the event had so much fun flying kites, they wished for more wind so they could fly their kite higher and longer. People also wanted more carnival games. It was nice to see many families come together.

Gomes Elementary School, Fremont. The NORCAL Girl Scout Troop 30929 helped set up booths, carnival games, banners, as well as cleaning and distributing supplies for the day. Troop 30929 includes 12 girls from the fourth grade at they went interviewing moms, dads, grandparents, and other children. After that it was time for the girls themselves to enjoy the festival. They played games, and flew kites with their family and friends.

the event a success.

Litter cleanup needed

While there are a number of positives about residing in Fremont, one aspect that is bothersome is all the litter cast about by those who, deliberately or through carelessness, view our streets and sidewalks as trash bins. Not sure what can really be done to correct this individual behavior.

It would be great though if our city leaders can have Caltrans regularly clean up trash around the on- and off-ramps along 880. For example, the approaches to the 880 off-ramps to Stevenson Blvd, Mowry Ave., and Thornton Ave. scream out, "Welcome to Fremont - Trash city." This eyesore is blight and an unwelcoming sign for those entering Fremont from 880. Can our leaders have Caltrans address this issue?

FUSD needs help

Previous funding measures that allowed Fremont Unified to keep school libraries open but is due to expire in December. Facility needs are depleting our resources and making it difficult to continue to offer the programs that have made Fremont Unified one of the most desirable school districts in this area. YES on Measure I will offer a steady funding source for math, science, reading and writing programs that help Fremont students be prepared for jobs in the 21 century and for higher education.

Measure I is fiscally accountable. A citizen's oversight committee and annual independent audits are included. The Fremont Chamber of Commerce, Citizens for Better Community and the Fremont Education Foundation all support Yes on Measure I. We hope that you will, too.

Vote YES on I June 7th.

The Fremont Unified School District Governing Board prohibits unlawful discrimination against and/or harassment of district employees and job applicants on the basis of actual or perceived race, color, national origin, ancestry, religious creed, age, marital status, pregnancy, physical or mental disability, medical condition, veteran status, gender or sexual orientation at any district site and/or activity. The Board also prohibits retaliation against any district employee or job applicant who complains, testifies or in any way participates in the district's complaint procedures instituted pursuant to this policy.

·Delta-De Anza Trail crossing at Neroly Road in Oakley ·Bay Trail easement at Atlas Road in Richmond

The May 3 agreement is a result of an objection the Park District filed in 1996 regarding Union Pacific's merger with Southern Pacific. The Park District argued that the increased rail traffic due to the merger would hinder recreational access to the shoreline. As a condition of its approval of the merger, the U.S. Surface Transportation Board ordered Union Pacific to provide right-of-way and funding for trail connections. The Park District and railroad recently updated the agreement to reflect current trail priorities.

The Park District expects to complete the projects over several years, as trail connections are developed. Design is almost complete for the project at Pinole Shores with construction anticipated for spring 2017.

Strengthening Santa Clara County's transportation backbone

SUBMITTED BY SANTA CLARA VALLEY TRANSPORTATION AUTHORITY

Often it is said we must explore the past to understand the present and to shape the future. In this four-part series, we will reflect on how Santa Clara County's transportation network evolved over the last 40 years through thoughtful planning, broad-based collaboration and solid investment. We hope this series will provide residents and the communities we serve with a deeper appreciation for where we have been, as well as a clearer vision for where we are headed. As Silicon Valley was busy connecting the world electronically, Santa Clara County Valley Transportation Authority (VTA) was building the transportation infrastructure necessary to keep employees, equipment, and products moving. VTA was expanding its transportation network, building a mass transit system crisscrossing the growing urbanized area.

By 1987, the County received over $253 million from the federal government to fund the County's first light rail line. Construction officially commenced with the groundbreaking for the light rail maintenance facility, followed by construction of the first segment of in-street track. The initial track, which spanned 1.5 miles, was essential for testing the light rail vehicles as they were delivered. Additional tracks were installed north of downtown San Jose in December 1987.

By June 1988, the two-mile stretch of tracks through revitalized downtown San Jose opened for service. The entire 21-mile light rail line opened on April 21, 1991. The County now had its first completed light rail line, connecting the suburban neighborhoods of south San Jose through downtown, and north to the industrial areas of Silicon Valley.

A significant change for County Transit occurred on January 1, 1995, when the organization was combined with the Congestion Management Agency (CMA), charged with the additional responsibility for planning and constructing highway, bike, and pedestrian infrastructure within the County. Consolidating responsibility for these planning and development efforts allows for greater coordination, as well as maximizes the efficiency and performance of the entire transportation network.

The signing of a new joint powers agreement by the County of Santa Clara and the 15 cities in the County combined the Santa Clara County Transit District with the CMA. This action coincided with the effective date of new legislation, which reconstituted the Board of Directors, an event that has commonly been referred to as the "separation" of the Transit District from the County. Recognizing the change that occurred in 1995, the new name of "Santa Clara Valley Transportation Authority" was adopted in January 1996 and in December of that year, a new corporate identity was created for VTA.

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956 established the Highway Trust Fund to provide a dedicated source of revenues for transportation. The Highway Trust Fund is intended to be a "pay-as-you-go" system that uses receipts from excise taxes to fund federal surface transportation programs. In 1983, the Highway Trust Fund was divided into the Highway Account and the Mass Transit Account. Over the years, Congress has enacted multiyear legislation authorizing federal spending for surface transportation programs from the Trust Fund.

Counties may place a sales tax measure for transportation purposes on the ballot for voter approval. With federal and state funding historically being insufficient to meet all of California's mobility needs, local sales tax revenues have provided more than 50 percent of new capital funding for the state's transportation infrastructure over the last several decades. Counties representing more than 85 percent of the state's population currently have in place local sales taxes for transportation purposes. Most of these taxes are temporary in nature and will expire if they are not renewed by the voters. Currently, Santa Clara County has three local transportation sales taxes in place - one is permanent and two are temporary.

For more information, visit www.vta.org/News-and-Media/Connectwith-VTA/Strengthening-the-Countys-Transportation-Backbone#.Vz-gl_krLcv. The next decade, and the next part of our informational series, was defined by a period where VTA really hit its stride in delivering transportation improvements. Up next, 1996 to 2005. All aboard!

BART Police Log

SUBMITTED BY LES MENSINGER

Monday, May 30

At 6:53 p.m., an officer contacted an adult male for fare evasion at Castro Valley Station. The male ran from the officer and out of the station. Two sergeants, who were responding for cover, located the male and tried to detain him, but he ran from them. They were able to catch up to him and had to physically force him to the ground. The male, who was not injured, was eventually booked into Santa Rita Jail for resisting arrest.

At 2:45 p.m., an officer noticed an adult male suspect driving slowly through the parking structure and checked the license plate of the suspect's vehicle. While waiting for the return, the officer watched the male park the car and walk away from it. The vehicle returned showed that it was reported stolen. The officer was able to take the male into custody. New Haven Schools Foundation awards grants

SUBMITTED BY HELEN KENNEDY

New Haven Schools Foundation (NHSF) delivered 15 grants totaling almost $20,000 to teachers and classrooms during the month of May. This annual tradition recognizes innovative ideas for learning that may not be covered by normal classroom and school budgets. Money for these grants comes from donations to NHSF and proceeds from fundraising events. Funding for programs underwritten by the Brian Kelly program comes from donations from the Kelly family.

Three types of grants were distributed to the following recipients:

Innovations in Education (classroom grants for teachers):

1. Digital Readers for the Digital Student by Cathaleen Hampton of Alvarado Elementary

This grant provides eight Kindle tablets for use in Hampton's third-grade classroom. The goal is for reluctant readers to enjoy active reading along with the rest of the class.

2. What's Happening Wildcats? by Maureen Tecson of Alvarado Elementary

The combo class of second and third graders suggested this project to help provide information about school activities to students and their families. The students were making mini-newspapers at recess and passed black-and-white copies out to other students. Tecson asked for funding to provide a few color copies of the newspapers to share in the classroom, media center and school office.

3. Multimedia Center by Victoria Kuhlmann of Cesar Chavez Middle School

The grant will outfit the new center with Raspberry Pi Minecraft kits, Snap Circuits, Kano computer kits, and Samsung Nexus 9 tablets.

4. Robots at Hillview by Kerri Mc-Goldrick of Hillview Crest Elementary

Students will learn vital skills using Lego WeDo 2.0 robotics as they have fun learning. The grant will provide eight Lego student packs, as well as eight laptops that are compatible with robotics programming languages.

5. Amazing Life Cycles by Katherine Thornberry of Kitayama Elementary

First grade students will observe and compare the life cycles of different plants and animals. Students will observe three different plants as they grow, and compare and contrast their growth from seed to plant using a journal.

6. Reading Tools and Art Supplies by Trish Tripepi of James Logan High

Students will use miniature white boards, markers, colored pencils and highlighters for annotation, helping them to understand literature and analyze ideas in challenging texts that are a part of the curriculum.

7. San Francisco Bay Estuary Trip by Elisabeth Childers of James Logan High

This grant provides an authentic opportunity for students to practice and develop their skills in scientific data collection, data analysis, and drawing valid scientific conclusions from that data.

8. Improving Reading Skills in Kindergarten through a Quality Nonfiction/Fiction Classroom Reading Center by Catherine Schoon of Pioneer Elementary

Schoon's dream was to have a fully equipped reading center filled with quality nonfiction and fictions texts for students to access during their guided reading lessons and throughout the day.

Project: Enrichment (for co- and extracurricular programs):

1. The Village Method (TVM) After-School Enrichment Academy by Kellee Thomas of Cesar Chavez and Marla Ramirez of Itliong-Vera Cruz Middle School

TVM is focused on helping students of African descent achieve their full potential by providing a pipeline for these students to progress to college, to careers, and back to their community.

2. Pain of the Prison System (POPS) by Sharyl Larson of Conley-Caraballo High

The POPS Club serves students who have been affected by the incarceration of a loved one. It is a safe place at school where students can express themselves in speech, writing and art.

3. Technology for Student Leadership by Katelin Shelley of Hillview Crest Elementary

This grant will help the student leadership council to write, produce and broadcast a monthly newscast that teaches students about the school's character trait of the month. The grant provides a camcorder and other tools needed to record topical videos and publish them on their own YouTube channel.

Brian Kelly Tutoring Grants (awarded to tutoring programs):

1. Walk Through the Revolution by Lisa Mata of Hillview Crest Elementary

The program augments the social studies curriculum with experiential learning opportunities that bring stories of the American Revolution to life for fifth-grade and special education students.

2. Collaboration Made Easy by Erin Sandoval of Itliong-Vera Cruz Middle School

Eighth-grade students in Sandoval's class work in teams and small groups, learning collaboratively by working through content-based concepts. This grant will provide round tables and swivel chairs that allow students to move around as they grapple with issues allowing intelligence and curiosity to flourish.

3. Math Mentor Appreciation Luncheon by Ken Prucha of James Logan High

More than 125 Logan students served as math mentors this year to provide assistance to fellow Logan students who need help in math class. The annual luncheon is an opportunity to show appreciation for the service these mentors provided during the school year.

What is the language deprivation that Nyle DiMarco is talking about?

SUBMITTED BY: LAURA T. PETERSEN

Congratulations to Nyle DiMarco for shining so bright and winning Dancing with the Stars and America's Next Top Model. He is using his fame and time in the media spotlight to shed light on the overlooked issue of language deprivation that continues to plague Deaf children.

What is this language deprivation that he has mentioned in most of his interviews? Unlike Nyle, ninety percent of Deaf babies are born to parents who can hear and have never met a deaf person before giving birth to one. Since 2000, federal legislation requires newborn hearing screening in the hospital. This identifies infants as Deaf or Hard of Hearing while they are very young, with the goal of getting these children access to language as early as possible. The problem has been the definition of this early access and which language. The medical community sees cochlear implants or hearing aids hand in hand with listening and speech therapy as essential for access to language, whereas deaf educators with their history of seeing Deaf children develop from young children to adults, see all their students able to learn and navigate the world using American Sign Language (ASL) and written English, and for some spoken English.

Parents are told by the medical community, "Don't sign." For those parents who do choose to sign, some have been told by medical professionals that they will not implant their child with a cochlear implant if they continue to sign. We believe parents should not be limited to one avenue for providing language to their child. On the other hand, there are many families who are learning signs with their young (hearing) infants because it promotes earlier communication, reduces frustration and provides access to language. It seems ludicrous to limit language opportunities to Deaf babies while many parents are signing with their hearing babies. Hence, the passion from Nyle and the Deaf community against the establishment that has limited the potential of Deaf children for generations. Rachel Coleman is a wellknown parent of a Deaf child and creator of Emmy nominated videos Signing Times. The videos teach ASL to toddlers and their families. She created Signing Times because when her daughter was one year old, she was told by a public school principal in L.A. that she will probably only have a 4th grade reading level when she graduates high school. Rachel was horrified to learn what the Deaf community has been frustrated with for years. Rachel was able to advocate for a Language Rich Environment with access to her daughter's native language, ASL. This should be the norm for all Deaf children.

Children are wired ready and eager to learn language. Most infants are exposed to language in their first minute of life. Ninety percent of Deaf children are not. It takes time to get a cochlear implant, often a year to find out whether the baby is a candidate. Even when young children get cochlear implants or hearing aids we do not know how much speech they are able to understand and access; they can't tell us. During this critical time for language development, Deaf children should not be limited. When her daughter was a baby, Rachel Coleman was shocked to learn that the entire Deaf community knows that babies can sign at 6 months. "Why don't we know this?" stated Coleman during a recent presentation at the Early Hearing, Detection, and Intervention conference.

Unfortunately Nyle is experiencing a backlash for his promotion of ASL. Proponents of a listening and spoken language only approach are threatened by his fame and his glamorization of ASL. Lisa Goldstein, who describes herself as a freelance journalist who happens to be deaf, wrote "He wants to make ASL a requirement for deaf children, which infringes on parental choice". In her article, "Nyle Di-Marco's Activism Is Dangerous For The Deaf Community," she calls Nyle, a Deaf Culture Extremist. "Someone who only uses ASL, like Nyle, can't interact with society without help from others." Lisa says, "I can speak the predominant language of this country rather than being dependent upon the few hearing people who know ASL." What about the many children who do not master spoken English despite dedicating hours and hours on speech therapy during school time instead of mastering written English or ASL? That is the language deprivation Nyle is trying to change. Lisa writes in another article "I cannot understand speech without seeing the speaker's face or reading captions. I miss audible information." Why would you settle for that? Nyle has been clear that he is not against hearing aids or cochlear implants only that he is against denying Deaf children access to sign language. "It's fine if parents want to get their kids implants or hearing aids," says Di-Marco, in a People magazine interview, who admits he has never seriously considered getting an aid or implant for himself.

"But research shows that being bilingual improves their chances of speaking. Depriving them of ASL is denying them language."

The conundrum is that most hearing parents are not experts in providing a language rich environment for their deaf child. It is natural that parents, who have no knowledge of what it means to be Deaf, want their child to talk. It's the only path they know to becoming a happy adult. Naturally they would defer to the medical professionals who say, "Don't sign; we will get your child a cochlear implant." The results are devastating. Students, who transfer into the California School for the Deaf in Fremont from public and private listening and spoken language schools, are an average of five grade levels behind.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing's President, Meredith Sugar, pushes the organization's long-standing platform of listening and spoken language for deaf children. In a response to an article in the Washington Post about Nyle she said ASL use is declining. She stated "Ninety percent of these families are choosing listening and spoken language for their deaf child." This is exactly the crux of the problem that Nyle is trying to bring to light. Medical professionals not trained in language acquisition and organizations like hers have first contact with naive parents who think they are doing what is best for their child. These parents do not know the facts. A majority of children with cochlear implants, 70 percent were judged by their teachers to be below the median level of their class in academic achievement particularly in English and Math. (June 2011 International Journal of Otolaryngology Punch and Hide) It is a silent atrocity, which is causing language deprivation in a majority of these children.

That is why Nyle's time in the Mother and daughter killed in collision with Amtrak train

SUBMITTED BY LT. ROBERT MCMANUS, SAN LEANDRO PD

On May 24, San Leandro Police officers responded to a tragic incident in which a mother and her young daughter lost their lives following a collision with an Amtrak train.

At 1:30 p.m., officers responded to reports of the collision at the railroad crossing on Washington Ave. near Chapman Rd. Responding officers found the Amtrak train stopped on the tracks, approximately one-quarter mile north of Chapman Rd., with a Toyota Rav-4 trapped underneath its front rail car. Officers found a mother and daughter inside, and attempted life-saving measures, but were unsuccessful.

Alameda County Fire and Paramedics Plus personnel responded and pronounced 30 year old Vanessa Henriquez and her 3-year old daughter, Saidy, both of Oakland, deceased at the scene.

"We offer our condolences to the family and friends of those that lost their loved ones this afternoon," stated Lt. Robert Mc-Manus. "This is tragic. There are absolutely no other words to describe it."

San Leandro Police will serve as the lead investigators in this tragic event and will work closely with Amtrak authorities, as they determine how and why this collision occurred.

During the early stages of the investigation, police learned that the Toyota, driven by Vanessa Henriquez had been travelling south on Washington Ave. and was stopped in traffic between other vehicles and the railroad crossing arms when the collision occurred.

As police continue their investigation, they will be searching for witnesses and reviewing surveillance video from nearby businesses in hopes that they gather additional information that will assist them in answering the many questions that they still have.

spotlight is so exciting for deaf education professionals. We finally have an opportunity to show the world how capable Deaf people can be when language is not a barrier. Parents need to know about the benefits of ASL. I am tired of parents visiting the California School for the Deaf and leaving in tears because they did not know we were a public school option for their child. They see our students full of confidence, introducing themselves and welcoming us to the school. They see them hanging out and laughing with their friends... just like any other child except in another language, ASL, which they were told not to learn.

"Be Better" for Improved Health

SUBMITTED BY ALI BAY

California Department of Public Health (CDPH) Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith says you don't have to be perfect to improve your health, but you can strive to be better. "Be Better" is the new recently unveiled CDPH "Champions for Change" campaign.

"Be Better is a reminder that even small steps can make a difference in improving your health," said Dr. Smith. "Take the stairs, snack on fruits and veggies, and quench your thirst with water instead of soda – these are simple ways that we can all be better to enjoy better health."

The "Be Better" campaign promotes new federal dietary guidelines that recommend Americans focus on making small shifts in what they eat and drink to prevent chronic health conditions like type 2 diabetes, hypertension and heart disease. Having a normal weight reduces your risk of developing type 2 diabetes by 70 percent.

The campaign will include English and Spanish ads on television and radio stations, billboards and Web banners. There will also be community-level promotions coordinated with local health departments. The ads will feature "Champions for Change" – real people who have committed to be better for themselves and their families by being more active, drinking water instead of sugary drinks, and eating more fruits and vegetables.

Safer Streets, Safer People, Safer Vehicles Introduction to the Vision Zero 2020 Action Plan

Vision Zero, adopted by the City Council in September 2015, is the City's traffic safety policy that strives to eliminate traffic fatalities and reduce severe injuries for all modes of transportation. Vision Zero considers the loss of life from traffic crashes to be unacceptable and preventable, and identifies safety as the highest priority for the design and operation of the transportation system. In March 2016, the Vision Zero 2020 Action Plan was approved by the City Council. The Plan presents a comprehensive set of actions to improve traffic safety over the next few years, with a goal to significantly reduce fatalities and severe injuries by 2020; it's organized around the themes of safer streets, people, and vehicles.

Safer Streets

The majority of the Vision Zero 2020 Action Plan involves engineering investments to improve the safety of Fremont streets, including efforts to provide safer street crossings for pedestrians, improve visibility and nighttime lighting, and manage vehicle travel speeds. Projects include retrofitting all Fremont pedestrian signals by 2017 with "countdown" indicators to inform pedestrians of available time to cross intersections, building better bikeways and narrowing vehicle lanes to 10 feet wide on high-speed arterial streets. Many t of these changes will be seen quickly as 20 Safer Streets projects will be implemented in 20 months starting in summer 2016.

Safer People

The Vision Zero actions related to safer people are focused on enhancing enforcement and education programs. Human errors and unsafe behaviors account for 90 percent of crashes. This includes speeding, running red lights and stops signs, drunk driving, distracted and inattentive driving, biking, and walking. The City's Public Works Department will work closely with the Fremont Police Department on sharing Vision Zero data analysis and working in partnership on traffic safety campaigns. In addition, they'll work collaboratively with Fremont Unified School District and other community organizations to enhance traffic safety education.

Safer Vehicles

Ultimately, the continued development of safer vehicles has the potential to virtually eliminate traffic crashes. Today, exciting new technologies are being developed that can help avoid traffic crashes through the use of sensors and automated vehicle controls for braking and steering. These advanced safety features include forward collision warning, active collision avoidance, pedestrian and bicycle detection, and lane departure warning. The City of Fremont will encourage programs to accelerate the deployment of crash avoidance technology in all new vehicles, which is perhaps the way to achieve Vision Zero everywhere. Student gives back through Medical Brigade

SUBMITTED BY KIMBERLY HAWKINS

Cal State University East Bay (CSUEB) pre-medical student, Osman Sharifi, remembers a childhood in Mazar-e-Sharif, Afghanistan, where medical care was virtually nonexistent. Families, including his own, lived in mud homes with no furniture and children clung protectively to "People (in my hometown) died from things that could have been treated easily in the U.S. ... it motivated me to provide (care) to people who are from low-socioeconomic backgrounds," Sharifi said.

Medical Brigade students like Sharifi are spending the last few weeks of the school year raising their final funds and collecting items they'll take with them. If ou would like to donate fina cially to their campaign, visit: https://www.globalbrigades.or g/empowered/chapter/cal-stateuniversity-east-bay-medicalbrigades-chapter/brigade/californi a-state-university-east-bay-medical-dental-june-2016-panama The following items can also be donated in the bins located in offices (North Science - 113, New Union-2011, North Science-131) around the CSUEB campus at 25800 Carlos Bee Blvd, Hayward: Garbage bags, paper towels, pens and markers, brown paper bags, small disposable cups, small liquid containers, small resealable plastic bags, travel size shampoo and conditioner and lotion, soap, floss and dishwashing gloves.

their one or two homemade toys like kites — prized possessions in a community with so little.

So when Sharifi and his fellow students landed in Nicaragua last year for a weeklong humanitarian trip providing medical care to a rural village, he was reminded about why he wants to go into medicine.

"When I went and saw that people lived in houses made out of mud that was my childhood ... and I wanted to do the best I could to help out," Sharifi said. "I didn't have access to health care as a child, which was one of the main motivating factors of me going into medicine."

This summer, Sharifi and more than 30 others from CSUEB's Medical Brigade are headed back overseas to help this time in Panama. They are asking the community for help getting there. Angela Arata, co-president of Global Medical and Dental Brigades, said she expects 34 students to attend the trip to Panama this year. Students are responsible for raising about $1700, which covers their airfare and simple accommodations in the village. They can fundraise on their own, work at various events to raise money, and people can donate to a group fund that will be distributed among the students. Raising the money for the trip can be tough for some students, but most feel it's worth every penny, Arata explained.

"These trips give you a chance to shadow physicians and see how health care is delivered in another country — it's really different from here," she said. "It makes you realize that healthcare is not equal everywhere; it's nice to get that broader perspective."

For Sharifi, it's a reality that reminds him of why he spends countless hours studying each week and will apply to medical school this summer.

As a child, he knew of a peer in Mazar-e-Sharif who died from an untreated fever and recalls the experience having a profound affect on his interest in medicine.
