Fall lovers and those seeking a harvest experience can get a close-up, nearby look at organic farming on Sunday, October 16 when the AgPark in Sunol opens its fields for tours at a time when crops are expected to be in full harvest bloom.

Visitors to the free Open House can learn about seed saving and composting from Livermore-Amador Valley's Garden Club, taste honey provided by Alameda County Resource Conservation District, shop native plants offered by GreenThumb Works, and peruse works for sale by local Niles Canyon Artisans.

Produce and goods from eight individual farms that sublease the AgPark's 18-acre site will be available for sale, including pumpkins in a pumpkin patch. Children can enjoy hands-on experiences that include making cornhusk dolls, fish decorating, and face painting.

Visitors will also be able to walk the AgPark's full acreage, estimated to take 20 to 30 minutes. For younger children, parents are encouraged to bring wagons or bicycles.

Ghost House celebrates 48 years of giving back

By Toshali Goel

As autumnal weather seeps through the cracks of summer and the color of the country begins to change, another event is right around the corner - Halloween. And as per tradition, the Candle Lighters will be hosting their annual "Ghost House," for the 48th time. The event will take place from Saturday, October 15 – Sunday, October 30th at the Fremont Hub.

This year's Ghost House theme is "The Web," a spine-chilling concept centered on arachnids. It is a kid-friendly event, catering to all ages. There is a "Good Fairy" available to lead the way, to ensure that it is not too frightening for the younger guests. Games are 50 cents each to play, and feature Ring Toss, Lollipops, Beanbags, and Wheel of Fortune to mention a few. There will also be a general store and a food booth, as well as the Halloween favorite, caramel apples. continued on page 4 t's October again. Time for cooler weather, falling leaves, pumpkins and, hopefully, some rain. It's also the beginning of flu season and a good time to get your annual flu shot. To get a flu shot, check with your family doctor, the Alameda County Health Department, or many local drug stores.

"Almost everyone age 6 months or older should have a flu shot each year," advised Dianne Martin, MD, infectious disease specialist with Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF). "The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reports flu activity so far this year is low, but it's early. As we get further into the flu season, it is likely that more people will get sick."

According to the CDC, every year in the U.S., "millions of people are sickened, hundreds of thousands are hospitalized, and thousands or tens of thousands of people die from flu."

"Statistics show that, if just 5 percent more people would get a flu shot, illness would be reduced by 800,000 and there would be 100,000 fewer hospitalizations," Dr. Martin observed.

The majority of flu cases tested so far this year have been the H3 virus, which appears to be a good match with the flu vaccine being distributed for the current 2016-17 season. The CDC reports that more than 90 million doses of the vaccine have been distributed across the country.

Should you be vaccinated?

Nearly everyone over age 6 months should be vaccinated. But, it is even more important that certain groups get the vaccine because they are at high risk for complications if they should get the flu. This includes people with:

- Asthma
- Diabetes
- Heart disease
- History of stroke
- Cancer
- HIV or AIDS

Having the flu vaccine is particularly important for older adults, who are at higher risk for getting serious flu complications. Seniors account for a majority of flu hospitalizations and deaths each year. A recent CDC study found people 50 and older who had the flu vaccine reduced their risk of being hospitalized for flu complications by half.

A high-potency dose vaccine is available for people 65 and older. According to a study published in the New England Journal of Medicine, the high-dose vaccine was 24 percent more effective in preventing flu in older adults compared to the standard-dose Children younger than 5, and especially those under 2, are also at higher risk of flu complications.

"Sometimes a child gets the flu but does not become very ill," Dr. Martin stated. "In this case, they may unwittingly pass it on to siblings or grandparents who live with or care for them. This is another reason why it's so important that children be vaccinated."

Women who are pregnant should receive the flu vaccine, and this will also provide mild protection for their baby, according to Dr. Martin. Pregnant women should be sure to have the mercury-free vaccine. Today, nearly all flu vaccines being given are free of mercury.

You should not get the vaccine if you have a severe egg allergy. If you have ever had Guillain-Barré syndrome, talk to your doctor before getting a flu shot. Some people who have had Guillain-Barré should not get the vaccine.

No nasal sprayOne change this year is the known as the live attenuated vaccine (LAIV), is not being offered. The CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommended against the nasal flu vaccine based on three years of data showing relatively low effectiveness.

"For people who want the nasal spray vaccine because of a fear of needles, the intradermal quadrivalent vaccination, which uses a smaller needle injected into the skin instead of the muscle, is a possible alternative," suggested Dr. Martin.

Despite warnings about the importance of having a flu shot, many Americans get the flu each year. During flu season, which can run from October to May, you should be on the lookout for flu symptoms. The illness tends to come on quickly and may include fever, chills, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle or body aches, headaches, and fatigue.

If you think you are getting the flu, you may wish to check with your doctor about taking an antiviral medication. Available by prescription only, an antiviral may help keep your symptoms from getting worse. It is not a preventive measure and should not be taken in place of the flu shot.

If you do get the flu, your best course of action is to stay home and rest, drink plenty of fluids, and take acetaminophen, a pain reliever and fever reducer available over the counter. If your symptoms continue to worsen, be sure to see your doctor.

Early Detection Key For Lung Disease Treatments

re you a smoker or former smoker who is at risk for lung cancer? Do you or someone in your family have asthma? What about the risks for pneumonia, especially for older individuals?

Learn more about these three lung diseases and more from Dr. Jason Chu, Washington Hospital pulmonologist, at a free community seminar on Wednesday, Nov. 9.

The program, part of Washington Hospital's ongoing public health and wellness education series, will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium located in Washington West, 2500 Mowry Ave., Fremont.

Lung disease ranges from bronchitis and pneumonia to pulmonary hypertension and lung cancer. At the seminar, Dr. Chu will discuss how our lungs function, lung diseases, how to care for one's lungs and new tools now available to screen for lung diseases.

Lung Cancer. Smoking increases one's risk of lung cancer whether you smoke now or stopped 20 years ago. Other factors such as environmental exposure — air pollution, asbestos, silica, formaldehyde and other carcinogenic agents — also can cause lung cancer, Dr. Chu explains.

While lung cancer can strike at any age, the median age at diagnosis is 70 years old, he says. That's why it is important to be screened for lung cancer if you are at risk.

Jason Chu, MD, Washington Hospital pulmonologist, Washington Township Medical Foundation

A highly successful new tool for lung screening is a low-dose CT scan of the chest, available at Washington Hospital and other medical facilities. Recent results from the National Lung Screening Trial have shown that the scan, if performed in a timely manner, can reduce one's risk of dying from lung cancer by 15 to 20 percent, Dr. Chu says.

Dr. Chu believes the low-dose CT scan will become a regular preventive medical routine like mammograms, colonoscopies and bone density screenings that are now used. The radiation exposure is minimal with maximum benefits in early detection, he adds.

At the seminar, Dr. Chu will discuss the two types of lung cancer (small cell and large cell) and explain how they can be treated. He also will discuss the four stages of cancer growth and why it is important to catch lung cancer early.

Asthma. Asthma is a common condition usually triggered by

Learn more about lung diseases at the November 9, 2016, Health & Wellness seminar at Washington Hospital. allergies, viruses and/or cold weather. In the United States, more than 25 million individuals are known to have asthma. About 7 million of these are children.

As asthma is a long-term disease that has no cure, Dr. Chu says the goal of asthma treatment is to control the disease. He will share an Asthma Action Plan with those attending.

Good asthma control helps prevent chronic and troublesome symptoms such as coughing or shortness of breath, he adds. It also helps reduce the need for quick-relief medicines, helps maintain normal activity and sleep levels, and helps prevent asthma attacks that can result in a trip to the emergency room or a hospital stay.

Pneumonia. While anyone can become ill with pneumonia, it tends to be a more serious illness for infants and young children, adults 65 years or older, individuals who have other health problems such as heart failure, diabetes or COPD, and those with weakened immune systems from chemotherapy, an organ transplant or HIV/AIDS.

While some individuals become ill with pneumonia while in the hospital, the most common type of pneumonia — whether viral, bacterial orcaused by fungi - is "community-acquired pneumonia (CAP)," Dr. Chu explains.

About 4 million individuals become ill with CAP each year and about one in five ends up having to be hospitalized. "Pneumonia is a very serious disease and some individuals can become severely ill from it," Dr. Chu adds.

Again, early recognition and treatment is essential to avoid having to be hospitalized, Dr. Chu says.

"Pneumonia is hard to diagnose because it may seem like a cold or the flu," he adds. "Depending on the particular type of pneumonia one has, treatment with antibiotics usually can be very successful."

The Pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine is highly effective and is recommended for individuals who are 65 years old or older, those with chronic diseases, children under the age of 5 and children ages 5 to 18 with certain medical conditions. The flu vaccine also helps prevent pneumonia, as many individuals get pneumonia after having the flu.

As seating is limited to 69 persons, advance registration for the free program is recommended. For additional information or to register, call (800) 963-7070.

Seminars also may be televised on InHealth, a Washington Hospital television channel (Comcast Channel 78) and online at inhealth.tv.

Cholesterol levels

Dear Doctor,

What affects my cholesterol levels the most? Is it red meat, fat, and eggs or sugars and carbohydrates?

Dear Reader,

Your total cholesterol is a measure of all the cholesterol levels in your blood, including high-density lipoprotein (good HDL) and low-density lipoprotein (bad LDL).

For years we were told that fat raises cholesterol and causes heart attacks but it has recently been proven to show that excess consumption of glucose (as found in sugars, breads, rice, fruit juices and soda) is the main culprit.

With HDL cholesterol, higher levels are optimal (more than 45mg/dL) as it helps protect against heart disease. HDL levels are affected by exercise, moderate alcohol consumption and genetics.

As we understand it now, although a low-level LDL (less than 100mg/dL, which is affected by the consumption of sugar) is optimal, lowering your LDL levels should no longer be the primary focus.

Your overall cholesterol goal should depend on your age and other risk factors such as diabetes and high blood pressure. Speak to your primary physician to ensure you are following a heart-healthy physical activity regimen and diet.

Ghost House celebrates 48 years of giving back

On Saturday, October 22, there is a Kiddie Costume Parade at 1 p.m. with more fun and prizes. On Sunday, October 23, the Candle Lighters will be hosting a "Lights-On" Version of the Ghost House tour from 1 p.m. - 2 p.m. for those who want to go through the house with the lights on so it is not as frightening.

Sandy Strong, president of Candle Lighters, attended the first Ghost House in 1969 and has since become a prominent member. "[The Ghost House] is the only event hosted by the Candle Lighters," said Strong. "We work all year in different capacities to get ready for it. It takes all of our energy to have the Ghost House. We start preparing in September."

While the event has been held in different locations in the past, it has remained at the Williams Historic Park in the Fremont Hub since the '70s, inside the Chadbourne Carriage House.

who marched in the parade, and there was a Halloween float that they made for us. Some of our members got to ride the float. So it was a really proud moment to be recognized by the community in that way."

The Candle Lighters have done a lot for the community to earn such recognition. Previously, they have supported various community projects including but not limited to Abode Services, Fremont Senior Center, HERS Breast Cancer Foundation, Meals on Wheels, Music for Minors, Safe Alternatives to Violent Environments, and the YMCA. This year, they hope to be able to fund the Tri-City Band Corps, Friends of Heirloom Flowers Garden Club, Math Science Nucleus, Ohlone College Foundation, Fremont Parents Nursery School, Fremont Art Association, and Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum, Inc.

"All of our profits go to other non-profit organizations. Each

We have seven trailers stored offsite, and we bring them in about a month and a half before we start," said Strong. "We work about five Saturdays, and have around 50 to 60 volunteers every Saturday, and we start building everything – putting it together. The city gives us an exclusive use permit. So this park is ours, from the time we start building until we close.

"The city's been really good to us, so we try and help them out too. This year, we are very excited to be able to award the City funds for an electric, trackless train for the Central Park. It's going to be for the Recreation Department and the Day Camp kids. It will transport the children from one activity to the next around the park in Lake Elizabeth. It's adorable," said Strong.

She also talked about a big change the Candle Lighters recently underwent. "This was a women's organization, and this last year we opened the organization to men. We've always needed our men, husbands, and friends to help us build, but now they can be members if they choose. They can have an opportunity to help make decisions, and vote." Strong continued, "This year was also very exciting for us because for the Fourth of July, we were asked to serve as the Grand Marshal for the Fourth of July Parade in Fremont. That was just a real honor. We had 30 members

January, non-profit organizations come to us and request funds. It can be schools in the Fremont, Newark, Union City area, it can be different city departments. We give to many different non-profits," said Strong. "We vote on who we are going to be able to fund. And at the end of the year, after our Ghost House, our proceeds are distributed to the people that we voted for. The main thing is just to support the community."

Keep the Influence of Developer Donations

out of the Fremont City Council

Because our current City Council has been too developer-friendly

Fremont's pace of development has risen rapidly over the last few years. It is hurting our schools, creating major traffic problems, and straining city services. Our city can't take any more of this!

The three candidates below have all pledged not to take money from developers. They will represent the residents of Fremont in development negotiations without conflicts of interest.

Lily Mei for Fremont Mayor

www.lilymei.org

Lily was elected to the Fremont School Board in 2008. She served there for six years until 2014, when she was elected to the Fremont City Council. Lily has a track record of opposing poorly planned developments.

Vinnie Bacon for Fremont City Council

www.bacon4fremont.com

Vinnie first got involved in Fremont politics by opposing the Patterson Ranch development. He was elected to the City Council in 2012. Like Lily, he has a track record of opposing development that hurts Fremont.

Cullen Tiernan for Fremont City Council www.cullen4fremont.com

Cullen is an Iraq war veteran who served as a Marine combat correspondent for nine years. He was motivated to run for City Council by his passion for campaign finance reform and his desire to end cronyism in politics.

Don't Listen to the Campaign Rhetoric

Look at the Voting Record

The Fremont Citizens Network compiled a list of the Fremont City Council votes over the past four years. Vinnie Bacon and Lily Mei have often voted together against some of the recent residential housing proposals. The other Councilmembers have voted for every single residential development to come before them during this time. For example:

Centerville Junction: 52 homes in the Centerville district. No commitment to preserving historic "Pop" Goold house or providing more than the minimum required school fees. Approved by a 3-2 vote.

Connolly's: Conversion of the Connolly's store and surrounding stores to a 67 townhome development in the heart of the Irvington Business District.

Granite Ridge: Proposal to build 127 apartments and condos on an empty lot along Paseo Padre. Paid minimum required schools fees. Approved by a 3-2 vote.

Niles Gateway: Conversion of old Henkel site to 98 townhomes despite opposition from Historical Architectural Review Board and many Niles residents. Approved by a 3-2 vote.

These close votes show how important this election is to the future of Fremont.

SUBMITTED BY CAROL ZILLI

urturing the love and literacy of music in children's classrooms and lives since 1988, has been the mission of Music for Minors II (MFMII), the 501 c(3) nonprofit serving the Fremont, Newark, and Castro Valley school districts, due to budgetary cutbacks in arts education. The magic continues this fall as 40 new community volunteers have begun their training and music adventure to become MFMII Docents sharing the joy of music with children throughout the school year. They join the team of 85 Docent volunteers who served almost 5,000 children weekly last school year! Are you interested in volunteering as well?

Most of the docent trainees are parents of the children served but also include community businessmen and women, retired teachers, professional musicians, etc. All love music and children and know that music is integral to a well-balanced education so that children achieve academic and social success .Our society and world thirsts for creative critical thinkers with compassion who strive for a better world. Music is the only thing that feeds the brain and heart at the same time.

MFMII provides exciting community events and enrichment by offering music workshops and concerts. Don't miss our upcoming Drummm Circle Workshop on Wednesday, October 19 in Fremont and an upcoming Charlotte Diamond Concert planned for February, enable students to perform on professional stages with children's recording artists before audiences as large as 1,000 people, building their self-confidence and uniting them with other students in other schools. Recently, the MFMII Kids Choir had an incredible experience of a lifetime singing "Tomorrow" at the St. Rose Hospital Foundation Gala before an audience of 500 attendees. The opportunities are endless when children learn how to offer their musical gifts to others!

The MFMII story continues in its 28th year of service thanks to the dedication of its volunteers and the support of the community such as the Candle Lighters, Fremont Bank, Niles Rotary, Cargill Salt, Dale Hardware, Allegro Music. FUSD students named 2017 National Merit Scholarship semifinalists

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN KILLGORE

Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) High Schools were again well-represented among the approximately 16,000 National Merit Scholarship semifinalists for 2017. In all, 123 FUSD students, representing four of the District's comprehensive high schools, were on the list, helping Fremont post the 3rd-highest number of semifinalists (128) among cities in California – trailing only San Jose (224) and San Diego (167).

"It is always exciting to see our students consistently perform well and represent the Fremont community in such a positive way," said FUSD Superintendent, Dr. Jim Morris. "I thank all the students for their hard work and congratulate their teachers and families for their support in and out of the classroom."

Leading the way for FUSD was Mission San Jose High School with 84 semifinalists - the most of any school in California for the fourthconsecutive year. Irvington High School placed 19 students on the list, followed by American High School with 15 and Washington High School with five. After submitting applications demonstrating their academic record, community service, leadership, employment and honors/awards received, FUSD students will join other semifinalists nationwide competing for 7,500 scholarships worth more than $33 million. Those selected as National Merit Scholarship Finalists will be notified in the spring.

Merit Scholar designees are selected on the basis of their skills, accomplishments, and potential for success in rigorous college studies, without regard to gender, race, ethnic origin, or religious preference. Fourteen FUSD students were named 2016 National Merit Scholarship Finalists last year. Visit www.nationalmerit.org for more information about the program.

Visit the District's website at www.fremont.k12.ca.us, Facebook, or Twitter pages for more information about local semi-finalists.

Your TV may use more energy than you think, group charges

By MICHAEL LIEDTKE AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), An environmental group accused three major television manufacturers Wednesday of misleading consumers and regulators about how much energy their high-definition screens devour by designing them to draw less power during government testing than in ordinary use.

The Natural Resources Defense Council concluded that the TVs made by Samsung, LG Electronics and Vizio saddle households with an extra $120 million in electricity bills each year and generate tons of additional pollution.

The added expense works out to about $10 to $20 per household annually over the anticipated decade-long life of the typical widescreen TV.

Both Samsung and LG Electronics disputed the findings.

"It appears that some major manufacturers have modified their TV designs to get strong energy-use marks during government testing but may not perform as well in consumer homes," said Noah Horowitz, senior scientist and director for the NRDC's center for energy efficiency standards.

The report called to mind elements of the Volkswagen emissions scandal in which the automaker duped U.S. regulators by using sophisticated software to turn on emissions controls when the cars were being tested and turn them off during real-world driving.

Samsung and LG did not break any laws, according to the report, but rather exploited weaknesses in the Department of Energy's system to measure electricity usage.

The behavior "smacks of bad faith," Horowitz said.

The findings were based on an analysis of high-definition TVs with screens spanning at least 55 inches made in 2015 and 2016. The estimates on electricity costs are based on high-definition TVs with screens 32 inches and larger.

The study concluded that Samsung and LG exploited the testing system to get better scores on the yellow ``EnergyGuide" labels that appear on sets in stores. Those scores often influence the buying decisions of consumers looking to save money on utility bills.

Samsung and LG sets have a dimming feature that turns off the screens' backlight during the 10-minute video clip used in gov ernment tests, according to the study. But that does not typically happen when the sets are being used in homes to watch sports, comedies, dramas and news programming.

The reason the TVs perform differently during tests is because the government relies on an 8year-old clip that stitches together 260 separate scenes that rapidly change, keeping the backlight off. The NRDC study found scenes lasted longer in a football game, the HBO comedy ``Silicon Valley," the AMC drama ``Breaking Bad" and a CNN program. The longer scenes resulted in the picture staying brighter, drawing more electricity than in government tests.

LG spokesman John Taylor wrote in an email that the company was ``confident that our products are being tested properly and are delivering energy efficiency in real world use."

Samsung said the governmenttested ratings are based on the factory settings for the picture _ something that most consumers do not change. That is consistent with the report, which assumes that two-thirds of consumers leave those settings in place.

The company did not comment on what happens to energy usage when the settings are changed except to say that consumers should have the option to choose the picture they want.

Vizio did not respond to requests for comment.

The NRDC called on the Department of Energy to test energy usage with a montage of clips mirroring how TV is typically watched in homes. The department said Wednesday that it is reviewing whether it needs to change its testing to keep up with the latest TV technology.

The analysis also found that Samsung, LG and Vizio disable energy-saving features in their TVs when consumers change the factory setting on the picture with a remote control. The report estimated that happens in onethird of all homes.

The energy-saving feature is turned off with little or no warning on the screen, sometimes doubling the amount of electricity consumed, according to the NRDC report. This potential uptick in energy usage is not detected in government testing either.

Other IV sets made by Sony and Philips did not deactivate their power-saving features when changes were made to the default setting for the picture, according to the study.

Add it all up, and the report estimates that total electricity bills during a decade of watching the high-definition TVs will be $1.2 billion higher than the energy ratings imply. The higher energy usage generates an additional 5 million metric tons of carbon pollution, potentially affecting the climate, the report warned.

Bill to improve Wireless Lifeline Service Program signed into Law

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUENAS

Assembly Bill (AB) 2570, a bill that will give guidance to the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) to improve the administration of the wireless California Lifeline Program (Lifeline) was signed into law by Governor Brown.

The Moore Universal Service Telephone Act of 1987 directed the CPUC to develop Lifeline to provide basic telephone service at a discounted cost to low-income households. In January 2014, the CPUC expanded the program beyond just wireline service to allow wireless carriers to offer LifeLine service. "The enrollment process for Lifeline has experienced problems with customers enrolling in multiple service plans within a short period of time or repeatedly switching among various services," Assemblymember Quirk stated in explaining his reason for authoring the bill. "Failure to act and create more stability would put the program at risk of being eliminated," he continued.

In order to expeditiously begin to deal with existing problems in the program's administration, AB 2570 requires the CPUC to adopt a rule regarding an enrollment freeze by January 15, 2017. In adopting a rule, the CPUC must consider that the enrollment freeze be for 60 days, but also include some period of time where an enrollee can terminate lifeline service without penalty. Lastly, the CPUC must also consider putting requirements in place that would enable the lifeline program administrator to provide more information in real time to providers about the enrollment status of potential subscribers.

"This bill will provide more market certainty to providers, reduce fraud, and decrease administrative costs to the CPUC in the long run. Signing of this bill continues to improve access and affordability to the program," Assemblymember Quirk commented upon learning his bill was signed.

It's great fun for all riders: avid cyclists looking for an end of season challenge can take the 70 mile ride; recreational riders looking for a distance challenge can take the 35 mile ride; beginners and families with kids will appreciate the 15 mile ride. All routes are fully supported with SAG vehicles, well stocked rest stops, route markings, and cue sheets.

Our community-minded cyclists will tour the scenic Livermore Valley wine country and return to a celebration complete with entertainment, a delicious BBQ lunch (with vegetarian options) and family-friendly fun!

Meals on Wheels of Alameda County supports the preparation and delivery of over 2,200 meals to homebound seniors every week day throughout the county. The Wheels for Meals Ride raises funds through registration and rider solicited fundraising. We offer fundraising incentives and a grand prize for the rider or volunteer who raises the most. Californians consider taxing e-cigarettes

By Julie Watson ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Diego, (AP), After 10 years of unsuccessful efforts to raise cigarette taxes, anti-smoking activists are trying a new approach — a ballot initiative that would not only steeply increase taxes on tobacco products but also add them to previously untaxed electronic cigarettes.

If voters pass Proposition 56 in November, California would become only the fifth state to tax ecigarettes, following Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota and North Carolina. Still, such action in the nation's most populous state and the first one to ban smoking in bars — could start a trend in the midst of a growing debate over how the multibillion-dollar vaping industry affects public health.

California voters defeated measures to raise cigarette taxes in 2006 and 2012, and the tobacco industry is strongly opposing this one, which would add $2 to the current 87 cents-a-pack state tax on cigarettes.

The industry has raised more than $56 million to defeat Proposition 56, while anti-smoking activists, supported by billionaire environmentalist Tom Steyer, medical groups and educators, have raised more than $20 million.

Anti-smoking advocates say the vapor liquids that come in candy flavors in e-cigarettes with labels featuring minions and friendly cartoon characters like Tinkerbell are being marketed to young people with the intention of hooking a new generation on nicotine.

"We're facing a particularly alarming new public threat with the rising popularity of electronic cigarettes, especially among our youth," said Dr. Ted Mazer, president-elect of the California Medical Association.

Proponents note that both California and Hawaii recently raised the legal age to 21 to purchase either tobacco or e-cigarettes and that California now treats e-cigarettes the same as tobacco products, banning them in many public places, including restaurants and workplaces.

The vaping industry responds that its products are a better, safer alternative to smoking tobacco.

E-cigarettes heat liquid nicotine into a vapor, delivering the chemical that smokers crave without the harmful by-products generated from burning tobacco. That makes them a potentially useful tool to help smokers quit, industry officials say, adding that taxing them at the same rate as tobacco products could threaten that.

"Burdensome taxes on innovative tobacco products like e-vapor could impede adult consumer interest and therefore could interfere with the development of an effective and consistent national tobacco strategy," said David Sutton, a spokesman for Altria Group Inc., which includes cigarette makers as well as the e-vapor company Nu Mark.

Ethan Maxwell, who says he once smoked several packs of cigarettes a days, agrees that a steep tax on e-cigarettes would make it tougher for other smokers to switch.

At the San Diego e-cigarette store he manages, a paper sign on a glass counter displaying colorful vape pens lists new federal regulations, the first for the industry. Paper signs throughout the store and on its front door also list new state rules

Maxwell, who started smoking at 18, said he wasn't motivated to try e-cigarettes just for his health. But in the end, he said, the switch cut his spending on smoking in half.

"For me, there's no going back," the 22-year-old businessman said as he blew out a sweetsmelling cloud that wafted past a board advertising 70 flavors, including graham cracker cream, vanilla custard and a tropical fruit blend dubbed "Yoda Brains."

"But a couple of friends of mine would go back to cigarettes if this becomes a lot more expensive," he said.

California's legislative analyst and the state's finance director say Proposition 56 could raise $1 billion to $1.4 billion in state revenue by the 2017-2018 year, with potentially lower annual revenues over time.

The measure calls for that money to go to California's Medi-Cal fund, as well as anti-smoking campaigns and medical research.

Tobacco companies say the money would simply benefit insurance companies and hospital corporations. Medi-Cal, the staterun program for low-income residents, pays insurance providers and hospitals.

California voters have not approved raising cigarette taxes since 1998. The state ranks 37th in the country on per-pack taxes, according to Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, an advocacy group that estimates that every 10 percent increase in cigarette prices can lead to as much as a 5 percent decline in cigarette consumption.

Are You Telling Yourself a Ghost Story?

By Anne Chan, PhD, MFT with life's challenges.

ow we love to tell scary ghost stories during this time of the year! Young children, teenagers, and adults alike gravitate toward tales of things that go bump in the night. Even though we are wide-eyed with fear, we cannot seem to resist the lure of harrowing stories. During Halloween, we tell stories to scare each other at the witching hour. At other times, we love hearing stories about the ordinary and extraordinary. You probably have a whole repository of cherished family stories that are repeated time and again at family dinners, like the time you had a toilet training accident, or your prom night fiasco. Aside from thrilling and entertaining us, stories have other functions in our lives. They help us make sense of our world, they give us a sense of identity, and they provide insights into coping

Each of us is a story-teller in several ways. We tell stories about our world and we tell stories about ourselves. Sometimes, you may not even be aware of the story you are telling yourself. Yet, the stories we tell ourselves can have the greatest power over our lives. As a counselor, I am privy to the story that each person brings into my office. Oftentimes, the story that is told is completely at odds with the person who is sitting in front of me. For instance, a perfectly lovely woman might tell me a story of how ugly and fat she is. Like the ugly duckling, she goes into great detail about how much she hates her appearance. A seemingly upbeat man might tell me that he is anxious and scared. He tells me story after story of how he has screwed up in life. Each person gives me a narrative of who he or she is. Sadly, it's often a story of powerlessness that they have been telling themselves over and over again.

What is the story that you have been telling yourself? Take a moment and think about the story that you have been repeating over the years. Perhaps your story begins with one of the following opening lines:

I'm not smart I'm not good looking I'm not lucky in life I'm too fat I'm no good at... I'm too scared to... I'll never make it as a... I could never get the job... I suck at... I'll never be able to get over...

These statements usually herald a story that we tell ourselves and that we finish with a sad ending. For example, a slightly overweight person might say, "I'm so out of shape and I hate going to the gym. I've never been slim and trim. I'm probably born this way. I'll always feel fat and awful. Nobody will love me because of the way I look." Someone who wasn't a popular kid in high school might say, "I've always been a loser. Everyone in high school called me a loser. I never got invited to hang out with the cool kids. I'll always be a loser."

These stories that we tell ourselves are like the ghost stories we heard as kids. They haunt our imaginations and take on a reality of their own. If you constantly tell yourself that you are not good at something, you will eventually believe this to be true. If you believe this to be true, you will not do anything to get better at it. And so, the story in your head tragically becomes a reality.

The hardest stories to lay to rest are the ones that have been handed down to us. Our friends and frenemies tell us stories about ourselves. Parents unwittingly tell stories about their children, not realizing that innocent ears are absorbing these stories. Go to a playground and listen to the stories that people tell about their kids. "He's so stubborn; I can never get him to do anything," or "She can't pay attention to anything; she's hopeless." These stories can take hold of a child's imagination and shape him or her. In family, my parents had labels for each child: one was the hard working one, one was spoiled, and one was the naughty one. This was the story that each of us was given; even to this day, I still remember these labels!

Be careful about the stories that you tell yourself. Like the Halloween stories that we circulate around this time of year, these stories can scare (and scar) us for life. I'll leave you with, yes, a quick story of a truck driver who auditioned to be a vocalist in a band. The young man was a complete unknown with very little singing experience. The leader of the band turned him down, probably thinking he was doing the young man a favor when he advised him to go back to his day job. This could have been the ending to the young man's singing story. Most of us, I suspect, would have slunk back to our regular lives, sunk with embarrassment. But the young man chose to ignore the manager's words. He refused to accept the story of his failure as his whole story. Instead, he told a different story to himself and kept pursuing his singing dream. As a result, the world got to know a different story entirely, the story of Elvis Presley.

Tri-City Stargazer October 12 - October 18, 2016

For All Signs: Venus, the goddess of love, is caught between the crosshairs of Saturn and Pluto. Venus rules romance, loving relationships, available money supply, beauty, and luxuries. Saturn and Pluto add lack of tolerance and manipulation in relationships. This suggests a time for serious game playing and lack of authenticity among us. It can show up in the forms of global, national, local and personal situations. Step back as soon as you realize you are caught in any inauthentic communications. If you remain in the game, a disagreeable development in an important relationship may be the result.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): Your warrior self is front and center during this period. The best use of this energy is on behalf of the Greater Good or another person who needs a champion. Use that energy with thoughtful intentionality. Your reflexes may be off kilter. Ground your adrenalin with heavy exercise.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): If you share resources with anyone, now is the time to work out whatever arrangements need to be made. This could be over a debt, home resources, insurance, stocks, bonds, or checking accounts. It is time to settle pending financial matters and make a plan for your future.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Irritability and a tendency to short temper may be your companions this week. Beware the temptation to obsess over minor issues. Take especially good care of your body at this time. You are in a physically low cycle and subject to accident or minor injuries with tools or vehicles.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Although others are not fair on the playground of life, you and your partner are synchronous. The two of you are focused on practical affairs of living and you are in agreement about many things. You have what it takes to be a warrior on behalf of yourself or others. People will listen to you.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): It is probable that others in your life may be erratic. Partner(s), clientele, good friends, and even professionals may be far less reliable than you would like. If this has already started, then do your best to choose activities that depend only upon yourself for a short time.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): You are somewhat edgy and irritable this week. Parts of your mind are scattered into so many corners that it is hard to pull everything together. But you know clearly where boundaries need to be drawn and you are not hesitant to do so. The best of verbal warriors is concise and says what is needed, but no more.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): During this week you will be finishing projects of the last couple of months. It is also possible that a relationship is coming to a closing phase. This could mean eventual separation. On the other hand, it does not have to be permanent, and may represent preparation for moving into the next phase of growth with this relationship.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

Whatever is occurring in your life at this time is clearly intense and emotion-laden. You may feel as though your very life depends upon making your point of view heard and acknowledged. It is important to play your personal political cards carefully. Don't attempt a takeover unless you are prepared for a serious pushback.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): For much of this week you are in a gregarious and talkative mood. You want to reach out to friends and share ideas. Love, relationships, and social life are given a go signal. Your mind is stable and organized to improve your higher good. Study and writing activities will go favorably.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You are the initiator in every arena of your life. You are strong and confident. I would not want to be on your enemy list right now, lest you attack. Count to 10 and rattle your sabers before you explode. Give people a fighting chance. No doubt others will let you speak, break in line, or generally do what you want to do. Use this power for the benefit of all.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

Your ability to concentrate upon projects that require management of details is strong. Organizing files, closets and cabinets will clear the clutter from your mind. Fortunately you are able to make mindful decisions. If information is needed, you can find it readily. The week favors education in practical skills.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): There are vampires loose in the world and the Fish tends to attract them. If you have experience, you probably have begun to smell them when they enter your vicinity. Those who have not will be learning a lesson soon. It's a required course for this sign. Save some energy for yourself. Don't take over someone else's problem.

Open House gives urbanites close-up view of farming

"The goal for this event is to once again bring together the local communities near Sunol to celebrate the harvest season!" explains Ayano Jeffers-Fabro, program associate for Sustainable Agriculture Education (SAGE), which leases land to farmers. "We hope to give visitors an experience where they can enjoy the fields in full bloom while learning from community members about farming, conservation, and natural resources. It's also a great chance for families and kids to see where and how their food gets from the soil to the table."

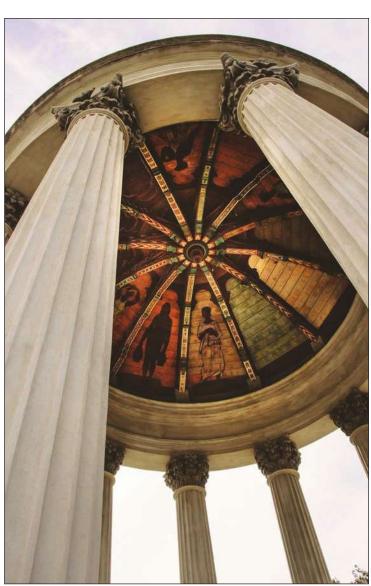

Last year's third annual event attracted an estimated 500 people. This year Jeffers-Fabro anticipates 300 to 500 people.

Founded in 2001 and headquartered in Berkeley at the David Brower Center, SAGE is a nonprofit organization that cultivates urban-edge places to model sustainable agriculture integrated with communities while broadening support for urban-edge farming. SAGE provides expertise to farmers to advance regional agriculture and help farmers thrive. "Through our two linked programs -Urban-Edge Agricultural Revitalization and Urban-Rural Connections – SAGE works to revitalize agricultural places that sustain, contain, and define cities and to connect urban and rural communities for their mutual benefit," says Jeffers-Fabro.

SAGE leases 18 acres of farm land from San Francisco Public Utilities Commission and then subleases to Baia Nicchia, Bluma Farm, Feral Heart Farm, Happy Acre Farm, Jellicles Farm, Majid's Farm, Namu Farm and Roger's Farm. When subleasing, SAGE looks for farmers with experience in organic farming and a willingness to cooperate with other AgPark farmers and Sunol community members, and host frequent field trips and other public visits.

Paving the way to a better home

f you're looking to really put some dazzle into the outdoor areas around your home, then you might want to consider installing paving stones. These interlocking brick-like systems are becoming more and more popular and can magically transform a non-descript path, patio, or driveway into a beautifully landscaped mosaic that is sure to catch the eye.

Pavers have been used in construction for over 5,000 years. Historically, clay has been the material of choice. This naturally occurring material was mixed and placed into molds, then baked at high temperatures in a kiln. The Sumerian culture in Mesopotamia used these baked bricks when building paths, and there are many brick pavements throughout Europe that date back to the 15th century.

While clay pavers are still used by many builders today, concrete pavers have become very popular due to their low cost and high versatility. Art Rodriguez of Superior Paving Systems in Campbell has over 25 years of experience working in the paving industry. According to him, "Brick is still used, but manufacturers of concrete pavers have come up with so many different colors and designs that they can simulate anything these days."

Not only can concrete pavers double as flagstone or brick, but they are stronger as well. Clay pavers tend to chip and crack with age, while concrete pavers will not. Says Rodriguez, "Concrete pavers are four times stronger than clay. It's definitely a much more durable product."

In fact, interlocking paving systems in general are incredibly strong. A typical driveway made from poured cement can withstand about 2,000 pounds of pressure per square inch (PSI), whereas that same driveway made from pavers can withstand up to 8,000 PSI. And while poured concrete can degrade and form cracks over time, many manufacturers of paving systems guarantee their product for life. "In the long run, a paver patio or driveway is the last one you'll ever have to put in," says Rodriguez.

But durability is often not the main reason why so many homeowners decide on pavers. For many, the big appeal is in the aesthetics. With a great variety of colors and shapes available, the design options are virtually limitless. Says Rodriguez, "The most common is called a 'random' design where we take three different size pavers and we set them up in a random formation, which gives it a more European look." Herringbone patterns are also popular. Homeowners can even incorporate letters or symbols into the design.

Says Rodriguez, "Any design you can dream up, we can make it happen."

When installing pavers, most of the work goes into preparing the ground. Soil is excavated to create a smooth surface. Sometimes a geotextile fabric is laid on top of the soil that will help prevent settling or erosion. Then comes a layer of gravel, followed by a layer of sand. Finally, pavers are set by hand. Compaction occurs at every stage using a plate compactor. A crucial element to any paving system is the border, often created using concrete footers, that pushes inward and locks the whole system in place.

To prevent everything from washing away in the rain, a polymer sand is often swept across the finished surface to fill the joints. This special mix becomes a hard, gel-like substance when wet, allowing water to pass through while holding the position of the pavers. Sealants can be applied as a final step, primarily on driveways, to add an extra layer of protection against the sun, water, and oil.

The average cost to have pavers installed ranges from about $12 to $17 per square foot. This rate is typical for a company like Superior Paving Systems, which, Rodriguez points out, is certified by the Interlocking Concrete Pavement Institute (ICPI), and provides a 25-year warranty for labor.

The type of pavers you choose can also affect your overall cost. Concrete pavers are the most affordable option, but you may want a more classic look that can only be achieved with clay pavers or bricks. The color of clay pavers looks more natural and does not fade, but the edges can be rougher, making it more challenging to lay them straight.

While this type of project is often best left to professionals, it is possible, and more affordable, for brave DIYers to tackle themselves. There are several rental ool options out there; a plate compactor, mini excavator, and a circular saw with a diamondedged blade will be required. And installation tips and advice can be found online.

Whether installed by a professional or an ambitious homeowner, adding a paving system to your property can dramatically improve any home. There are even lights shaped like pavers that can be incorporated into your design. Pavers are an excellent way to boost curb appeal and create a more charming outdoor space.

Chrysanthemum Cheer

By PAT KITE

hrysanthemums make wonderful autumn gifts. They symbolize friendship, loyalty and honesty in many countries. Since Chrysanthemums originated in both China and Japan, both countries have special ceremonies. The Chinese name is "jiu," translated loosely as "wait" or "long time," suggesting reflection and patience. Confucius wrote about this plant in 500 B.C. When you send a goodwill message, using chrysanthemum and "jiu" you are wishing the person a long life. In Japan, this flower is considered holy, as well as a symbol of long life, and is used in special ceremonies. In 910 A.D. Japan held its first Imperial Chrysanthemum Show, declaring it the national flower. The country's imperial seal is a 16-petal golden Chrysanthemum. There is even a chrysanthemum-based national holiday, the Festival of Happiness.

Chrysanthemums toddled over to Europe in 1688, but were not particularly appreciated. In 1798 chrysanthemums meandered to the U.S. In 1843 the Royal Horticultural Society sent a representative to China, specifically to get the hardy autumn-flowering variety. European gardeners now paid lively attention. Come autumn, a cheerful flowering plant is a welcome garden addition.

The calendar continues: The Chrysanthemum Society of America was established in 1900. Today there are at least 160 different chrysanthemum types. You will see pompon (a French favorite), brush, spider, quill, single, incurve, spoon, and thistle. These are named for the flower shape. The Netherlands is today's primary grower of cut and pot plant flower types, but they are also grown commercially in Columbia, Africa and Vietnam.

What happens when someone gives you a potted plant? When potted, the roots are shallow, and while Chrysanthemums are sun lovers, too much direct sun will easily bake them. Better to bring them indoors to a showplace. Remember to give them drinks of water, but don't make the soil soggy. Cut off faded blooms but leave stems. When no more flowers and/or buds appear, it's worth trying to move the plant outdoors. I find our Tri-City clay soil difficult sometimes, and have a tendency to move things into larger pots with commercial and/or recycled soil. Gently take the potted plant out of the pot. If there appear to be a few individual rooted plants put together for appearance sake, gently separate these. Repot. Place in a sunny area, but not in baking sun. Water kindly at first until the roots takes hold. Fertilize occasionally. With luck, you will get flowers next fall season.

A billion dollar power problem

SUBMITTED BY BART DISTRICT

To someone who had never seen it before, electricity would likely appear indistinguishable from magic. The way it brings to life all the objects we love and depend on—everything from street lamps, to refrigerators, to the screen on which you're reading this article—is wondrous.

As an all-electric system, BART harnesses the flow of countless, infinitesimally small electrons to move a gargantuan amount of metal and people everywhere from the hills of Pittsburg to the tunnels under San Francisco. All that weightnearly a million pounds per fully loaded 10-car train—requires a staggering amount of power to start (and stop).

So how do we tame this electric horse? First, our power comes from a variety of original sources like solar and natural gas. After we get it from PG&E (but before it gets sent into the electrified third rail), it flow of the water representing the current. This is the essence of electrical power-taking advantage of "flow" between differences in potential energy. However, there lies a looming problem threatening to grind every commuter, tourist, and traveler to a halt if left unaddressed.

But like water pressure's tendency to spring leaks, current persistently seeks to rush from areas of high concentration to low concentration (the "ground"), and can leak through the old pipes. Over time, this "stray current" can eat away at the already-decayed outer casing via a process called electrolysis. Moreover, because the pipes must be kept under pressure, any hole caused by decay or electrolysis means wasted gas-and the cost adds up! BART has spent almost $90,000 on nitrogen alone over the past fiscal year to keep the gas pressure high enough to insulate the cables in the decaying pipes throughout the system.

BART needs to replace these

At BART, much of the cabling technology and substations channeling all this energy is outdated and in a state of age-related disrepair. The 34.5 kV cables themselves don't even really resemble what the average person would imagine a cable to be: they're quite large, and encased within nitrogen-filled pipes about the circumference of a grapefruit. The 34.5 kV cables run through these pipes—original hardware dating back to when the system was built.

The cost of this project, to replace the nitrogen-filled pipes of yesteryear with modern cabling, is enormous: millions per mile. That's where this November's bond measure enters the picture.

Infrastructure bonds are major investments for big projects like fixing our power problem, similar to how homeowners finance a roof replacement. You can patch here and there over the years, but eventually the whole thing must be replaced with equity taken from the home. Likewise, the bones of BART—things beyond cabling such as eroded trackway and leaking tunnels—are decaying. Measure RR, if passed, would raise $3.5 billion to help cover the cost of big-ticket repair items, with all the money dedicated by law to these capital improvements and additionally protected by an independent audit committee.

In fact, a full $1.2 billion of the $3.5 billion potentially raised by Measure RR would be slated to go toward rebuilding our power infrastructure. BART's plan to rebuild comes just at the right time - and keeping the electric horse tamed is one of our top safety and reliability priorities. Learn more about the bond measure by visiting bart.gov/betterbart and see our plan to keep you moving around the Bay.

Lake Temescal and Quarry Lakes closed to swimming due to toxic algae

SUBMITTED BY CAROLYN JONES

The East Bay Regional Park District has closed Lake Temescal and Quarry Lakes to swimming due to outbreaks of toxic algae.

The lakes remain open for fishing and the parks remain open for picnicking, hiking and other activities. Lake Temescal is located at Temescal Regional Recreation Area in Oakland and Quarry Lakes Regional Recreation Area is in Fremont.

Lake Anza at Tilden Regional Park in Berkeley has been closed since August due to a toxic algae bloom. The Park District's swim season is over, but visitors may swim at their own risk at Lake Del Valle in Livermore and Shadow Cliffs in Pleasanton.

Exposure to toxic algae, either through ingestion or skin contact, can cause rashes, skin and eye irritation, allergic reactions or gastrointestinal problems, according to the California Department of Public Health. Toxic algae can be fatal to dogs and they should refrain from direct contact.

Park District staff monitor all our lakes regularly. Find updates at: http://www.ebparks.org/features/Toxic_Algae_Update for Advancing Solar Energy Growth

SolSmart, a program funded by the U.S. Department of Energy SunShot Initiative, has awarded the gold designation to Fremont, recognizing the City as a national leader in advancing solar energy.

As a SolSmart Gold designee, Fremont is receiving national recognition for adopting programs and practices that make it faster, easier, and more affordable to go solar. A SolSmart designation is a signal that the community is "open for solar business," helping to attract solar industry investment, generate economic development, and create local jobs.

Fremont is one of a select group of 14 communities from across the nation to receive the SolSmart Gold Award designation for its significant achievements in permitting, planning and zoning, inspection, construction, solar rights, community and utility engagement, market development, and finance.

To achieve designation, cities and counties take steps to reduce solar "soft costs," which are non-hardware costs that can increase the time and money it takes to install a solar energy system. Examples of soft costs include planning and zoning; permitting; financing; customer acquisition; and installation labor. Soft costs now represent roughly two-thirds of the total price of an installed residential system. Reducing these costs leads to savings that are passed on to consumers.

Fremont's efforts in reducing solar "soft costs" include simplifying permitting and installation requirements. The City received a Special Award for Excellence in Permitting due to its streamlined solar review process and over-the-counter permitting, efforts that align with the Solar America Board for Codes and

Make A Difference Day is Saturday, October 22

Fremont Individuals, Families, Clubs, Schools, Faith Communities, and Nonprofit Organizations Join Together for a "National Day Of Doing Good"

The annual Make A Difference Day, sponsored by the City of Fremont Human Relations Commission, Kaiser, Fremont Bank Foundation, CityServe's Compassion Network, Cargill, and Dale Hardware, is an opportunity for Fremont residents to serve their community in a variety of practical ways. Volunteers can help with activities such as sprucing up parks, community gardens, graffiti removal, beautification projects at participating local schools, yard projects at mobile home parks, trail maintenance, writing thank you notes to veterans, serving at the food bank, feeding the homeless, gathering warm winter clothing for those in need, and much more. Activities will be available throughout Fremont on Saturday, October 22. This is a way for each of us to Make A Difference in our city.

Last year's event drew more than 1,700 people who served on 100 projects. All of these projects were of great benefit to residents, schools, and religious organizations within Fremont. And, it was a great honor that USA WEEKEND and Newman's Own awarded the City of Fremont with the "National City Award" and $10,000 for our incredible efforts. This year we already have more than 80 projects planned. We encourage Fremont residents of all ages to create a community service project or sign up to volunteer for someone else's posted project. Opportunities exist for families, for students to earn service hours, and for companies to serve as teams.

If you are unable to volunteer there are opportunities to drop off items such as shoes or peanut butter at local drives.

For more information about Make A Difference Day, contact Fremont's Project Manager Christine Beitsch at makeadifferenceday@fremont.gov or 510-574-2099, or visit our local Fremont Make A Difference Day website at www.MakeaDifferenceDayFremontca.co m to search for projects, submit a project, or register for projects. The first 1,000 people who sign up and volunteer this year will receive a Make A Difference Day T-shirt for free. Keep up to date on our Facebook Page for all the latest information at www.Facebook.com/FremontcaVolunteer.

National Wildlife Refuge W

Fremont resident Stacy Chen's colored pencil drawing of a pair of Ross's Geese was selected as the winning design for the 2016-17 National Junior Duck Stamp

SUBMITTED BY CARMEN MINCH

If it's October it's time again to celebrate nature and the abundance of wildlife at the Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge in Fremont. As part of the annual National Wildlife Recognition week, the refuge is planning a bounty of free fun and educational activities on Saturday, October 15.

Visitors will have a chance to get close up views of many of the birds, insects and other critters that live in the sloughs and mud at the center and contribute to our food chain. Visitors also will have a chance to enjoy a bike ride along the bay or take a relaxing stroll along the waterfront.

Among the highlights of the day will be a duck stamp display program featuring Fremont resident Stacy Chen, who created the winning image used on the 2016-17 National Junior Duck Stamp sponsored by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Services.

Stacy's colored pencil drawing shows a pair of Ross's geese swimming in water. A limited number of the stamps will be available for purchase at the event and Stacy will be on hand to autograph them from 1 to 1:45 p.m. Proceeds from the stamp sales raise money for environmental education programs.

Visitors also will have a chance to learn about and buy native plants at 10 a.m. at the Visitor Center. Other events include an introduction to nature drawing session led by children's book illustrator Linda Knoll at 11 a.m. and a live bird show with representatives from Sulphur Creek Nature Center at 3 p.m.

Admission to the center is free, but reservations are needed to participate in the nature drawing session and the twilight marsh walk and can be made by calling the center or visiting the website.

Vamato Bonsai Kai Exhibition

Tiny trees hold sway when Yamato Bonsai Kai returns to the Southern Alameda County Buddhist Church for their annual bonsai tree exhibition. The two-day event offers a large collection of beautiful and meticulously crafted trees to admire, along with vendors selling plants and bonsai equipment. Already have a bonsai but experiencing problems? An onsite "Dr. Bonsai" will offer free plant advice.

Daily demonstrations feature the creation of a beautiful bonsai landscape by Yamato Bonsai Kai Sensei Johnny Uchida, assisted by Mike Baker and Tony Hayworth. Attendees have a chance to win the demonstration landscape in a raffle, and can bid on a variety of trees in the silent auction.

Uchida helped found Yamato Bonsai Kai in 1969 and is the owner of Grove Way Bonsai Nursery in Hayward. The club has meetings the third Tuesday of each month at the Eden Japanese Community Center in San Lorenzo.

Jater-wise gardening to help your yards

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT

As the drought continues and summer comes to an end, you may be feeling frustrated with the dead grass, brown foliage, and overgrown weeds in your yard. But there are ways to bring your yard back to life. With water-efficient landscaping, you can convert your yard into a beautiful year-round garden that is easy and cost-effective to maintain. With sheet mulching, you can remove your lawn without using grass-killing chemicals and without spending a lot of money. You can then plant drought-resistant trees, shrubs, succulents, native plants, and grasses. Surround your plants with a 3-inch layer of bark mulch to help prevent water runoff and allow air and water to penetrate the soil.

To learn more about water-wise gardening, the Alameda County Water District (ACWD) is hosting a free workshop, "Gardening with CA Native & Drought Tolerant Plants," on Tuesday, October 25.

aircraft passing through the sky above, Hayward Executive Airport is once again opening its doors for a day of fun and aviation excitement at their "Open House" on Sunday, October 16.

This year, the Open House will be jam packed with great things to see and do. A number of emergency and law enforcement aircraft will be on static display, among many other types of aircraft. "We're going to have corporate jets, the Channel 7 helicopter, a law enforcement helicopter, and one medevac helicopter available," said Hayward Executive Airport Manager Doug McNeeley.

The Experimental Aviation Association's (EAA) Young Eagles program will also return to offer one of the event's biggest hits – free rides for kids between the ages of 8 and 17 in their aircraft. This incredibly popular event is free and available on a first come, first served basis. "The demand for the free rides almost always exceeds the pilots," McNeeley said, adding, "By early afternoon, all rides are booked!" They will be accepting passengers from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., but the best bet is to get to there early if you want the best chance at getting a ride. Free Federal Aviation Administration Air Traffic Control Tower tours are also available throughout the day.

Certain to be a highlight of the day will be the scheduled flyby of the U.S. Coast Guard's C27J Spartan transport aircraft, so remember to look up or you might miss it. A truly unique classic in the aviation world existence. "The Tri-Motor is part of aviation's Golden Age. It's a once in a lifetime opportunity (to fly in it)," McNeeley said. Rides will run $75 for adults and $50 for children.

In addition to all these great vehicles that travel by air, there will be an array of classic and vintage cars on display, along with Aircraft Rescue & Firefighting (ARFF) trucks and SWAT (Special Weapons And Tactics) personnel with their equipment. Representatives from local agencies will be there in person to meet and greet the public. "Everyone will be here to talk and address your questions. It's a way for us to reach out and touch a lot of people in one event," McNeeley explained.

The Open Houses have been a hit since they first became a staple at the airport in 2011. "It's a collaborative event between the City of Hayward, the Bay Area Black Pilots Association, local Tuskegee Airmen Inc. and their families, and the FAA... It's a lot of work, but on the day of, it's such a joyous thing," McNeeley said. Their first year saw an estimated 800 visitors, but last year, that number blossomed up to 5,000 people. "It's an opportunity for kids and young adults to learn more about aviation careers... It's really important for aviation education," McNeeley said.

Hayward Executive Airport, which was founded in 1942 as Hayward Army Air Field, currently boasts a roster of 427 aircraft, varying is size and type. "We (are home to) corporate jets, pilots who build their own airplanes," McNeeley said. The airport contributes 300 jobs to the local community, which in turn contributes an estimated $300 million annually to the community. Volunteer work is prevalent at the airport, with many pilots volunteering to transport medical patients for treatment, or even offering to transport pets for adoption purposes. "The airport has a long history of not only Open Houses but air shows, extending back into the '50s and '60s," McNeeley said, but explained that air shows are no longer feasible there, given its proximity to

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Eerie peace at Mission Peak

An eerie peace descended upon the park at Mission Peak on October 1, where visitors have been restricted by government decree:

"These plunderers of the world, after exhausting the land by their devastations, are rifling the ocean: stimulated by avarice, if their enemy be rich; by ambition, if poor; ... To ravage, to slaughter, to usurp under false titles, they call empire; and where they make a desert, they call it peace." gutenberg.org/files/7524/7524-h/7524-h.htm

Here, the Roman historian Tacitus paraphrases Calgacus, a chieftain in Scotland who fought the Roman army in AD 83.

Many people in Fremont don't welcome the new parking enforcement centurions and their exclusionary "permits." Though some see the parking ordinance which took effect on October 1 as imposing order, instead it has made a desert. Not a single car was parked on Weibel Drive or along the upper stretch of Stanford Avenue that morning. Not one home has a Weibel Drive address, so non-existent residents there can't be impacted by parking congestion: Weibel Drive should not be restricted. It appears that property owners are taking advantage of the free "permits" to keep visitors out of the park, thanks to the largesse of the park district and the city.

Homeowners near Lynx Drive recently expressed their displeasure with the inconvenient parking restrictions to the city council. Their street parking is already congested, because more units are sited on fewer acres with smaller two-car (not three-car) garages.

Visitors to Mission Peak and to the recently-closed Vargas Plateau park shouldn't have to relive ancient history, as Fremont's parks are being restricted by government decree.

Chamber board announces interim transition plan

SUBMITTED BY CASTRO VALLEY/EDEN AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

There will be a smooth transition following the departure of Bill Mulgrew at the Castro Valley/Eden Area Chamber of Commerce (CVEA) on September 30.

On September 8, 2016, the CVEA Board of Directors unanimously approved an interim transition plan. Ashley Strasburg was named the interim executive director. Strasburg is currently the operations manager and takes over her new duties beginning October 1. As part of the interim transition, two additional staff members, Career Pathways Program Director Kathy Gatterer and Membership Director Caryl Mahar, will also see their duties increase as they take on innovative rolls in the chamber. Gatterer will become the interim associate director and Mahar the interim business and marketing director.

CVEA Board President Al Hearne said, "Bill Mulgrew served the CVEA Chamber of Commerce with excellence, casting a vision for the 'Chamber of the Future.' He groomed and developed a magnificent staff, people with a passion for business and community service. The Board of Directors was very pleased when Strasburg, Gatterer, and Mahar accepted the interim positions. They have the vision, passion, and drive to continue to move the CVEA forward in the 21st century. The Board is confident that these three will far surpass the standard of excellence expected from our membership and community.'

alloween is lurking in the near future, and with it comes the Haunted Railroad at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont.

This is a mildly spooky round-trip ride through the park's "haunted forest," designed for families with children up to 12 years old. Riders will see Ardenwood's spooky witch haunting the woods, along with silly pirates, ghosts, goblins, and giant pumpkins.

Tickets cost $7 for ages 13 and older, $5 for ages 3 to 12, and are free for age two and under. Parking is free, too. You can purchase advance tickets by going to www.spcrr.org and clicking on "Haunted Train Tickets." Tickets are available online now, though they sell out quickly. You can also purchase tickets for each train ride at the train depot, starting at 4:30 p.m. on each operating night. For group ticket sales or other information, email haunted-train@spcrr.org.

Country Club of Washington Township

SUBMITTED BY KELSEY CAMELLO

During the mid to late 1800s and the early 1900s women across the country, especially in cities, began forming social clubs en masse. Some clubs were dedicated toward social life, while others tackled pressing issues of the day. Despite Washington Township's more rural locality, women of the area did not escape this trend. The year was 1896, when two prominent ladies (Laura Tilden Thane of Niles and Mary C. Allen of Centerville) decided to merge their separate women's clubs into one. Together they formed the Country Club of Washington Township, an organization founded upon the principles of unity and togetherness, helpfulness, logic and reason, social justice and morality. This year, the club celebrates 120 years of continuous work in the local community.

Hundreds of women have been a part of the club's history. Most joined as young mothers in their 20s and 30s. For some, Washington Township was their birthplace, and for others, their adopted home. For all of them, one cause - community outreach - became a part of their personal identities. Eight of these committed women continue to serve today, and have done so for over 50 years.

Bernice "Bunny" Voorhees joined the Country Club in 1942, Virginia "Ginny" Marriott joined in '49, Corinne Young in '53, Catherine Mozzetti in '54, Gwen Cowell in '56, Joy Frederick in '62, Jean Messick in '63, and Mary Jane John in '64. Together they form the "over 50" group within the club.

Bernice joined during World War II, while her husband was away in the service. In her first few years in the club she assisted in the war effort through countless hours of community work. She went on to become very active in the local Little League and the Washington Township Business and Professional Women Association.

Virginia recalls working with children with special needs, as she was instrumental in opening a nursery school and acquiring funds for playground equipment. Additionally, she remembers fondly the fun of fashion shows, garden parties, speaker luncheons, plays, dance clubs, and card games. She enjoyed being a part of the club during a time when its membership was near 200!

When Corinne became a member of the club she first joined as a member of the Junior Women's Club. Many women joined as juniors and later "graduated" to become members of the Country Club, when they turned 35. Once she moved up, Corinne joined the Hobby section, responsible for decorations at events and meetings, as well as fundraising for the group and other charities. She recalls working on the reprint of the book History of Washington Township, alongside other members.

Like Corinne, Catherine joined as a junior and later became involved with the Hobby section of the group. She was also instrumental in the raising of funds for and the restoration of the historic Shinn House, including doing hands on work herself! Additionally, she fondly recalls working with at-risk females at Serra Center and that for years afterward they would approach her with gratitude.

Gwen's early years in the club were spent staffing polio clinics around Fremont, where vaccines were distributed on sugar cubes. She also aided in eye testing that took place in elementary schools for many years. Like Corinne, she worked hard on the Shinn House restoration, both in fundraising and elbow grease. She is also a founding member of the Candlelighters, an organization that continues to run the Ghost House and Halloween Carnival at Williams Historic Park every October.

Joy recalls the fun of fashion shows, twice-monthly meetings, card playing marathons, and assisting with eye testing and the work on the Shinn House. She was instrumental in fundraising for many local charities, including Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of America, The Salvation Army and Serra Center.

Jean's original motivation for joining the club was to make social connections and to become involved in the growing community that was to become Fremont. Far from simply making friends, Jean soon found herself busy as she took the lead in many projects over the years. Her proudest accomplishments include the opening of Ardenwood Historic Farm and development of the Early American Antique and Craft Museum at the Alameda County Fair.

Mary Jane recalls the charitable work of leading story time for children at the Newark Library, advising high school truants, and helping the club win the distinguished District Federation of Women's Clubs Award for "Building a Better Community."

All of these women should be praised for their tireless devotion to community and service, as a part of an organization that has continually been at the forefront of progress in Washington Township, now the Tri-City Area, for 120 years. Here's to another 100 years of women working to change and improve both the heart and the face of this dynamic, ever evolving community.

The public is invited to attend a reception on Saturday, October 22, to honor the Country Club and the women who have been members for more than 50 years. If you would like to attend, please RSVP to (510) 623-7907 or info@museumoflocalhistory.org

Chabot De Anza report

SUBMITTED BY TONY GONSALEZ PHOTO BY TAMI SHEPHERD

The Chabot College football was thrilled and relieved to notch its first win of the season on October 1, holding off De Anza-Cupertino 55-49 in the final non-conference game for both teams.

'Getting this first win under our belts is more of a relief," Chabot coach Danny Calcagno said. "We played well enough to win last week but we fell just short."

The Gladiators (1-4) got a combined five touchdown passes from quarterbacks Johnny O'Brien and Jack Moroney as Chabot scored more points than they did in the first four games combined. O'Brien had 127 yards and two touchdowns on 9 of 13 passing in the first half, but left early in the second half with a shoulder injury. Moroney, who shined in Chabot's 21-19 loss to

Quarterback Jack Moroney

City College of San Francisco on September 24, came in the second half and tossed three more touchdowns and finished with 123 yards in the air.

Chabot's Tahir Mills set the tone by fielding the game's opening kickoff, a short kick, and racing for an 80-yard touchdown.

"That gave us a lot of momentum early on," Calcagno added.

"Tahir hasn't been 100 percent, so it was great to get him going by getting the ball in his hands."

Chabot's Alan Busey, back at full strength after suffering from a hamstring injury, caught four passes for 53 yards, including a 24-yard scoring play from O'Brien that gave Chabot a 28-14 advantage in the first half.

De Anza finished with 597 yards on the night. "We missed a lot of tackles tonight and by no means was this a good performance for us," Calcagno said.

Chabot lineman Aaron Andrews continued his dominating start to the season with three more sacks. Mills finished with 170 all-purpose yards. Keon Suber led the Gladiators with 72 yards on the ground on 14 attempts.

Both teams will begin conference play on October 15. Chabot opens defense of its National-Valley conference crown at home against Fresno City. De Anza will hit the road and play at the College of San Mateo in the National-Bay 6 conference opener.

Stires named as Head Women's Basketball Coach

SHANELE STIRES

SUBMITTED BY STEVE CONNOLLY

Shanele Stires, who served as Associate Head Coach for the women's basketball team at the University of San Francisco the last four years, has been named the new Head Coach at Cal State University East Bay (CSUEB) by Interim Director of Athletics Dr. Don Sawyer. Stires' appointment follows the recent resignation of Molly Goodenbour.

'I am excited to introduce Shanele Stires as the head women's basketball coach at California State University East Bay," stated Sawyer. "Coach Stires' experience, background and commitment to student- athletes' success well position her to lead and continue the program's strong momentum over the last several years."

In her role as the Associate Head Coach, Stires was USF's recruiting coordinator as well as the team's primary defensive coach. She was instrumental in the Dons' recent success as the West Coast Conference champions in 2015-16 and NCAA Tournament qualifiers for the first time in 19 years.

"This is a great University that attracts great student-athletes who have worked hard to establish a successful program and achieve the first conference championship and appearance in the NCAA Tournament last year. I look forward to working with the returning and new players to build upon this momentum in the years ahead," said Stires. Stires received her Master's Degree in Collegiate Athletics from University of San Francisco (2016), and holds a bachelor's degree in social science from Kansas State (1995).

Hayward receives $2.74 Million Grant

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF HAYWARD

On September 14, the U.S. Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration (EDA) awarded the City of Hayward a $2.74 million grant to support the design and installation of a fiber optic network to improve access to high-speed internet in the industrial zone.

"Today, access to broadband internet service is as vital to industry as electricity was a hundred years ago," said Paul Nguyen, Economic Development Specialist. "This federal funding will help expand Hayward's broadband infrastructure and enhance our community's ability to attract new advanced industries. It will also provide our existing businesses with the tools they need be competitive in today's high speed, data-driven global economy."

The fiber optic network will leverage existing city-owned underground conduit and fiber optic cables used primarily for traffic communications and include new construction to complete a loop in the Industrial Technology and Innovation Corridor. This crescent-shaped corridor, located along Hayward's western and southwestern city limit, is home to a wide range of businesses including manufacturers of food, pharmaceuticals, auto parts and electronics. The area is also becoming home to an increasing number of biotechnology and medical device makers.

New construction will include, at a minimum, the installation of 11 miles of new conduit and fiber optic cabling. Construction of the fiber loop is slated to begin in September 2017 and be completed the fall of 2019. Internet services will be offered by private provider(s), who will lease fiber optic cable strands and/or physical space from the City in the new conduit.

The City is currently in discussions with San Leandro Dark Fiber, who partnered with the City to submit the original grant application to the EDA in June 2015. The company is the service provider behind the City of San Leandro's Lit San Leandro fiber network, which received a grant from the EDA in 2012.

The grant award comes on the heels of the formulation of the City's Fiber Optic Master Plan. A draft plan, which will provide the results of a needs assessment and recommendations on the network's technical specifications, route, management and phased implementation, is scheduled to be completed by the end of the year.

By Bastin Gerald, CEO of Apptivo with Bastin Gerald, CEO of Fremont-based Apptivo, an open-source customer relationship management (CRM) software company. Here's a bit about the company's growth, its commitment to CRM and why Fremont is a great location for its headquarters.

Apptivo has received significant third-party recognition from PC Magazine and Capterra as a powerful, user-friendly, versatile, and affordable CRM alternative. What kind of companies and industries are benefitting from this tool? What are some of its unique competencies?

The Apptivo product is highly configurable and therefore can be applied to many industries with proper configuration. A significant number of requirements for service-oriented businesses are available out-of-the-box. For example, if you are a consulting firm, you can use Apptivo to track the progress of a project, record time and expenses, and invoice customers. Data flows between these apps smoothly so that you don't ever have to worry about integration between various point solutions being used. Another example is field service. If you are running a solar installation company, you can track work orders and labor, identify materials used in performance, and invoice customers.

We have several product-oriented businesses using the product as well. For example, a jeweler uses Apptivo to power its ecommerce portal. We also have an "App Builder" that allows you to build custom apps without writing a single line of code. This lets you "fill the gap" if you need to track something that is not available as one of the standard apps. Due to the configurability of the platform and the variety of out-of-the-box apps, you can pretty much string together any business flow you need in order to model and manage your business processes.

IoT is another focus for Dew Mobility. Can you tell us more about what you're doing in this area?

Dew Mobility is part of the Dew Software family. Dew Mobility is the team lead for IoT-based smart city projects endorsed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST). As part of NIST's Global City Teams Challenge, Dew Mobility has designed and developed four pilot smart city projects that are being deployed in multiple cities across the United States and Europe. Dew has also partnered with universities for IoT research and academic syllabuses, and has designed IoT course materials for undergraduate and graduate students.

In addition, Dew initiates discussions and communitybased IoT courses at Ohlone College. Such community-based courses enable local Fremont students and adults to get exposure to IoT training and work with companies in surrounding cities and counties. Dew Mobility also developed an IoT development kit consisting of monitoring air quality, temperature, humidity, gas, and pressure sensors. Such development kits have been installed and utilized at many universities in U.S. cities. To learn more about Dew Mobility, please feel free to visit www.dewmobility.com.

Cloud-based computing is the common thread for all of your business endeavors. How is the cloud changing IT, both now and in the future?

The cloud model is the reason that we are able to bring in a heavyweight application like Apptivo to the reach small businesses. Before the advent of cloud, it is hard to think of a software project costing less than $25,000, an out-of-reach cost for many small businesses. Now, you can pretty much get going with a product like Apptivo for less than $1,000 ,and in a large number of cases, it's almost $0 to get started, followed by an affordable monthly or annual fee. The cloud also enables businesses to scale up and down without heavy IT investments. Being able to convert IT investments from capital expense to operational expense is a huge boon for businesses.

You've been based in Fremont for almost 20 years, what makes Fremont attractive for software companies?

Fremont is the center of Silicon Valley and San Francisco, and it's an easy commute to Pleasanton, San Ramon etc., which is where most of our consultants are located. Most of our consultants live in Fremont due to affordability, diversity, low crime, great food and restaurants, and shopping (Whole Foods, Trader Joe's, Costco, etc.) Rental and housing are affordable, and there are also good public schools for kids and community colleges (Ohlone, etc.) There are also great spots for hiking and recreation (Mission Peak, Lake Elizabeth, Quarry Lake, Niles, etc.), as well as a variety of places for religious worship.

ext week, Fremont will officially open an improved Capitol Avenue connection between Paseo Padre Parkway and Fremont Boulevard. This represents a major step to create a civic center that has in the past been the subject of much talk without action. As plans move forward for a new city hall, plaza and adjacent structures, it brings to mind previous efforts to create intra-city connections within this large city. BART is expected to complete its Warm Springs extension this year and move beyond Fremont city limits in the foreseeable future but this connection, while welcome, does little to create a practical and inviting transportation system within the city.

A reliable and inviting transportation system to connect centers of government, commerce and intercity links such as BART is sorely needed. While planners tend to rely on solutions such as a Warm Springs connection to high tech workplaces, AC Transit buses and Uber-type vehicles to replace personal automobiles, another solution used in large cities is either a fixed rail or dedicated route service to connect people to places. Concerns about traffic congestion are certainly valid and need to be addressed. However, there are two distinct problems – inter-city traffic that flows from one city border to another and intra-city traffic of residents and workers who need to move within city borders.

If a intra-city system is created that is economical, predictable and practical, workers and residents would prefer to use this rather than facing the hassle of clogged streets and the effort of using their personal automobiles. Also, those using BART or the Altamont Express train would appreciate an efficient transportation system from the Central Fremont station to a downtown and beyond. The planning tool known as "the last mile" is appropriate for access to city resources, not only to connect with work sites, but also for shopping and recreation. BART can bring people to a city, but how do they get from that point to their real destination?

A test of this concept would be the creation of a single route for an electric Jitney Bus that would travel from the central Fremont BART station along Capitol Avenue to Fremont Boulevard and north through Centerville's train depot (and beyond). It could double back either retracing that route or include Irvington and then back to BART. If fares were minimal and collected through the City or by electronic means and a pass was created, the driver would not handle any cash. A distinctive design of the bus – open air in the summer? – would create a welcoming environment and quickly distinguish the bus as a fun experience.

Shoppers, workers and residents would be attracted to this form of transportation as economical and stress free. Parking of personal cars, if necessary, could be accommodated along the Jitney route. If a trial run proves successful, the route could be expanded or additional bus routes created to include more of Fremont and even extend to surrounding cities such as Newark and Union City. Instead of competing with existing bus service, the Jitney would expand possibilities for residents and local employees who could travel quickly and easily to other parts of the city for lunch breaks, shopping or business.

As Fremont and other local cities grow, it is time to think outside the traditional box to relieve the pressure of existing traffic patterns. With the reality of a new downtown, Fremont should be considering the means to provide pedestrian friendly and transportation friendly traffic patterns. A one year trial of the Jitney Bus concept could be an answer.

Bill to help human trafficking victims signed into law

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUENAS

Assembly Bill (AB) 2027, a bill that will give victims of human trafficking a clearer path to obtaining a T-visa, was signed into law by Governor Brown. "Human trafficking, also known as trafficking in persons, is a form of modern-day slavery, in which traffickers lure individuals with false promises of employment and a better life," explained Assemblymember Bill Quirk.

Congress created the T-visa out of recognition that human trafficking victims – sexual and labor – without legal status may otherwise be reluctant to help in the investigation or prosecution of the criminal activity they were subjected to. Assemblymember Quirk decided to author AB 2027 after chairing an information hearing last year.

Immigrants can be particularly vulnerable to human trafficking due to a variety of factors, including but not limited to: language barriers, separation from family and friends, lack of understanding of U.S. laws, fear of deportation, and cultural differences.

"I am thrilled that Governor Brown has signed AB 2027. All forms of trafficking, but specifically labor trafficking crimes can be hard to prosecute without the cooperation of the victim. Although the work labor trafficking victims do is legal – home services, agricultural, service jobs, or farm work – what is illegal is the exploitation – stolen wages, no rest or days off, and dangerous working conditions, and that is what prosecutors have difficulty proving. This is an important measure that will help these vulnerable victims," Assemblymember Quirk stated upon learning his bill was signed. AB 2027 goes into effect January 1, 2017.

Georgi and the Rough Week at Mission Coffee

SUBMITTED BY BRASK HOUSE CONCERTS

Georgi and the Rough week return to the stage at Mission Coffee Saturday, October 15. R&B influenced by the Blues with a Rock flair, Georgi and the Rough Week have a wide range of music. Combining original songs with classic covers, this band has a style best described as hot!

Singing for over 30 years, Georgi Sneckner Longboya's vocals are sexy and guttural, like those of Janis Joplin or Tina Turner. Lead guitarist Roland Longboya has been playing guitar for over 30 years as well and brings over the top licks. Mike Tringali on bass brings strong background vocals and foundation, while Dan Lewis on drums with his beat and strong background vocals ties it all together.

Founded by Sneckner Longboya and Longboya in 1996, Georgi and the Rough Week has played at many local events, including a Drivers for Survivors fundraiser show and twice at the annual Olive Festival, serving as headliners for this year's fest on October 1.

To say that Sneckner Longboya is a cancer fighter is a massive understatement. An 11-year survivor, she has dedicated untold hours at a Pleasanton cancer clinic, helping, holding, listening to people going down the same road she went down. Wayne Brask spent four years on that road as well. For years she was there for others, and we thank them for the passion they bring to the stage and appreciate their support in the fight against cancer over the years.

On a recent Facebook post, Sneckner Longboya said that the Mission Coffee concert could be Georgi and the Rough Week's "final performance as a collective musical collaboration and otherwise collection of pretty fabulous players! We are moving." Don't miss the chance to see this great group in action!

National attention surrounding Clowns

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

The Fremont Police Department is aware and actively monitoring the national attention surrounding clown sightings and threats. As of Friday, October 7, 2016, our dispatch center has received at least one call of a possible clown sighting in Fremont. The caller did not report the clown as acting in a manner in which could be considered threatening. Aspects of this problem must be taken seriously and we recognize the public safety component of this trend. The safety of our community is our top priority and we will continue to monitor and actively follow up on any reports of activity which could be considered suspicious or potentially threatening in nature.

With Halloween only a few weeks away, we anticipate an increase, as we have each year, with persons wearing masks and/or costumes, and would encourage community members to contact us with concerns of suspicious, criminal or other activity which could be considered dangerous in nature.

This topic provides a good opportunity to speak with your children about making good choices online. Social media posts that threaten a person, school and/or any student is considered a criminal threat, is punishable by law, and could also result in disciplinary action from the child's school. As always, please remind your children to be aware of their surroundings and immediately report any suspicious persons or activities to their parents, teachers, principal, a school staff member or police.

To report a non-emergency to the Fremont Police Department, please call (510) 790-6800 x3 and dial 911 for a crime in progress. Non-urgent tips can be sent to FremontPD by texting TIP FremontPD followed by your message to 888-777 or online at

November General Election Propositions and Measures

To Our Readers:

Tri-City Voice does not give endorsements to candidates. Tri-City Voice does not hold private meetings or Star Chamber style proceedings between candidates and editors. At other publications, many of those making such decisions do not reside in the area or closely follow local politics unless a dramatic and usually negative issue arises. We do not presume that the personal bias of a few individuals or a hidden political agenda should determine favorable treatment and who will receive a formal "blessing." Instead, we try to follow political and social events each week, all year, and allow our readers to become informed constituents, able to make good, reasonable decisions by separating fact from questionable rhetoric and prejudice.

Although our staff spent a considerable amount of time and effort to gather the information presented in this special supplement, Tri-City Voice considers it our contribution to the democratic process. Those in the Tri-City Voice workforce are residents of the areas we serve and will be directly affected by the choices made in this election. This is our home; we have a personal stake in the results of this, and all similar elections. By providing this supplement and connections to additional information, we place our faith and trust in our neighbors to make wise decisions.

Fremont receives "SolSmart Gold" Award

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT

SolSmart, a program funded by the U.S. Department of Energy SunShot Initiative, has awarded the gold designation to Fremont, recognizing the City as a national leader in advancing solar energy.

As a SolSmart Gold designee, Fremont is receiving national recognition for adopting programs and practices that make it faster, easier, and more affordable to go solar. A SolSmart designation is a signal that the community is "open for solar business," helping to attract solar industry investment, generate economic development, and create local jobs.

Fremont is one of a select group of 14 communities from across the nation to receive the SolSmart Gold Award designation for its significant achievements in permitting, planning and zoning, inspection, construction, solar rights, community and utility engagement, market development, and finance.

To achieve designation, cities and counties take steps to reduce solar "soft costs," which are non-hardware costs that can increase the time and money it takes to install a solar energy system. Examples of soft costs include planning and zoning; permitting; financing; customer acquisition; and installation labor. Soft costs now represent roughly two-thirds of the total price of an installed residential system. Reducing these costs leads to savings that are passed on to consumers.

Fremont's efforts in reducing solar "soft costs" include simplifying permitting and installation requirements. The City received a Special Award for Excellence in Permitting due to its streamlined solar review process and over-the-counter permitting, efforts that align with the Solar America Board for Codes and Standards permitting best practices.

Fremont is also participating in the Northern and Central California SunShot Alliance, an initiative of PG&E and SolarCity, to reduce the time it takes to go from permitting to installation as part of the U.S. Department of Energy's SunShot Prize: Race to 7 Day Solar. To learn more about the City's solar permitting processes, residents can visit our webpage about solar permits.

To encourage the community to adopt solar, Fremont offers qualified vendors and special pricing through a residential solar and clean vehicle group purchasing program, Bay Area SunShares. To learn how to participate, residents can visit:

https://fremont.gov/2295/SunShares-Program Fremont has also recently launched the Fremont Green Challenge residential plathttps://www.fremontgreenchallenge.org/ providing residents with customized savings calculations and links to resources on a number of climate engagement activities, including installing solar.

The City of Fremont is proud to be recognized as a national leader in advancing solar energy. The City will continue to adopt programs and practices that establish Fremont as a solar-friendly and environmentally sustainable community.

Park It

Mission Peak

By Ayn Wieskamp

Porming the scenic backdrop for Fremont, Union City and Newark, Mission Peak used to be described as the most underrated summit in the Bay Area, overshadowed by Mt. Diablo and Mt. Tamalpais despite its equally spectacular vistas.

No longer. On any given fair weather weekend, hundreds of people make the ascent to enjoy the panoramic views that the mountaintop provides, most starting from the trailhead at the end of Stanford Avenue. The peak's popularity, however, has brought with it increasingly severe parking and congestion problems for neighborhood residents, as well as frustration for visitors unable to find parking.

One parking alternative is the Ohlone College campus, about three miles north of Stanford Avenue. Enter the campus at Pine Street off Mission Boulevard. Visitor parking is available at a new 900-space enclosed structure, or in lots E, G, and H. Vending machines dispense daily parking permits for $4 each. The machines accept cash or credit and debit cards. A trail alongside Pine Street leads into Mission Peak Preserve and up to the summit. It's not as steep, there's some shade, and nice views.

East Bay Regional Park District has worked in consultation with residents and the city of Fremont in an effort to alleviate parking shortages caused by the peak's popularity. In 2012 the district began an extensive planning process, which included a public meeting, analysis of traffic, parking, and geology, an archaeological study, and a park user survey sent to 20,000 people. At its meeting on Sept. 20 the park district board of directors unanimously approved the resulting environmental impact report and plan for expansion of Stanford Avenue parking.

The plan calls for construction of 300 new parking spaces on 11 acres close to the present parking lot. The 43 existing parking spaces will remain available. A kiosk, restrooms, picnic tables and landscaping are included. It's expected that the new parking lot will accommodate all likely park visitors on weekdays, and most on weekends. Estimated total cost of the staging area expansion is $6.5 million. Projected completion date is January of 2020.

Meanwhile, the city of Fremont enacted a permit parking system effective Oct. 1. To park on street near the Stanford Avenue staging area on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays you must have a residential parking permit. The permits are not required on weekdays, except legal holidays. Also, you don't need a permit to park within the existing staging area. Nor are permits required on Antelope Drive and Vineyard Avenue except where signs indicate otherwise. There are about 150 on-street parking spaces on these two streets. Additional permit-free parking is available on streets west of Mission Boulevard.

You can find out more about Fremont's Mission Peak permit parking program by visiting www.fremont.gov. Wherever you park, please don't block residents' driveways, and please observe posted park curfew hours. The East Bay Regional Park District staff and board have worked hard to strike a balance between public access to Mission Peak and minimizing impact to neighbors. EBRPD apologizes for any inconveniences and appreciates everyone's cooperation while enjoying this great natural resource.

Preparing for a flood safe winter season

By Richard P. Santos, Director District 3, Santa Clara Valley Water District

The signs of seasonal change are upon us: trees shedding colorful leaves, dewy mornings and chilly evening gusts. With the arrival of fall we will soon welcome chances of rain. Our region's rainy season can begin as early as October.

While climatologists do not predict a weather phenomenon like an El Niño this year, any time it can rain, it can flood. It is to our benefit to invest time and efforts toward being flood safe.

The Santa Clara Valley Water District offers you a few tips to prepare your family and home for flooding:

Prepare an emergency kit for your home and your car with non-perishable food, water, medical subscriptions, copies of important documents and supplies such as a flashlight, batteries and tools. Keep a full tank of gas in your car so you don't get stranded during a flood. An emergency kit is essential for any kind of disaster, including earthquakes.

Check you rain gutters and drainage system and remove any debris clogging them. Check your property for cracks in foundation, exterior walls and small openings around pipes; be sure to seal

Learn how to turn off utilities in your home, such as gas, electricity and water. Keep a wrench handy near the shut-off valves to assist you.

Keep a stockpile of emergency building materials on hand, like plywood, plastic sheeting and sandbags. Sandbags are available at any of the water district distribution sites. For more information visit: www.valleywater.org/sandbags

Know your flood hazard. Be familiar with neighborhood streams and learn the best route to higher ground, if necessary. Never walk or drive in flood water. Six inches of moving water can you make you fall and as little as one foot of water will cause many vehicles to float.

Purchase flood insurance. Even if it's not required by your mortgage lender, flood insurance is a good way to protect your property and belongings. Be aware there's a 30-day waiting period before your policy goes into effect.

As the flood protection agency for the county, the water district fights floods year round. During the summer months, district crews repair banks and remove accumulated sediment and clean up vegetation in creeks throughout the county to help our waterways carry floodwaters safely. Year round, the water district works on long-term flood protection projects to protect thousands of homes and businesses in the county. In November, our award winning flood awareness campaign kicks-off flood safety messaging through the rainy season with the help of Charles Chicken Little, our flood spokesperson.

In the last few decades, the water district has invested approximately $900 million in flood protection programs and protected almost 100,000 properties. There are an additional 18 flood protection projects underway, like the Lower Berryessa Flood Protection Project which when completed will protect more than 3,400 properties.

The water district's flood prevention and flood awareness outreach efforts also contribute to flood insurance savings by as much as 10 percent. FEMA's National Flood Insurance Program evaluates the flood protection efforts communities make and provides a rating. In our area, participating communities earn points based on their own flood risk reduction efforts, and those points are combined with the points the water district has earned, resulting in insurance premium discounts of 10 or 15 percent.

To report blockages in our creeks during a storm, such as trash or a downed tree, call the flood hotline at (408) 630-2650 or report it online at www.valleywater.org, by clicking the Access Valley Water button. For more information on keeping your loved ones, homes and businesses flood safe visit: www.valleywater/org/services/floodprotectionrsources.aspx.

As always, I am available for questions or comments as your District 3 representative for the northern areas of Sunnyvale and Santa Clara, Alviso, Milpitas, and the north San Jose and Berryessa communities. Feel free to contact me at (408) 234-7707.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Union City's Public Safety Measure QQ is on your local ballot

In the past year, the City of Union City and the Police Department have been soliciting feedback from you, our community, about your priorities for public safety services and keeping Union City safe. We greatly appreciate the strong response you have given, with more than a thousand of you letting us know what services are important to you in a formal survey, and thousands more of you expressing via social media your appreciation and support for all we have accomplished together in building a strong police-community partnership. This is a source of pride for all of Union City, especially in light of nationwide challenges in police-community relations.

As a result of your feedback, the City Council unanimously placed Measure QQ on the November 8th ballot to extend the existing voter-approved funding that has been in place since it was last approved in 2008. Extension of this existing funding will maintain and prevent cuts to public safety services, without raising taxes or creating any new taxes; it simply extends the expiration of existing funding for essential public safety services. As identified in the City's Budget Impact Analysis, if the existing funding is not renewed the City will lose $4.1 million per year, which will adversely impact current 911 emergency response levels, and will require the reduction of community and neighborhood policing, and the elimination of dedicated youth and family services. Fire stations throughout the City would be partially closed as well.

Thanks to your consistently strong collaboration with us, and because of the intrinsic power of unified neighborhoods as a result, incidents of youth violence in Union City have decreased by 30 percent between 2012 and 2015. Measure QQ will maintain public safety services that help keep our neighborhoods safe and continue to drive down the rate of youth and gang violence in Union City.

Approval of Measure QQ will expire in four years, and in the tradition of fiscal prudence and accountability, there will be independent financial audits and yearly reports to the community to ensure all funds are properly spent.

Along with the unprecedented 17 statewide measures on the November 8th ballot, Union City's Measure QQ is the only local measure. I encourage all Union City residents to be informed and remember to vote this November. For more information about Measure QQ, visit www.unioncity.org/measureqq. Al Minard, who has been organizing this event for the last few years, said, "We had 44 Flash Fiction entries. We had over 100 people vote for their favorite story. The quality of the stories seemed to be a little better this year and many people made comment of how much they enjoyed reading the stories and curious about entering next year. For those interested in participating in next year's contest, the theme will be, '50 years from now,' to be set in 2070 or later."

This annual event was sponsored by the FCAC and Half-Price Books. The winning stories can be read at www.fremontculturalartscouncil.org.

Fremont News Briefs

By Cheryl Golden, Communications Manager, City of Fremont

Community Ambassadors for Seniors Launched nearly 10 years ago by the City of Fremont Human Services Department, the Community Ambassador Program for Seniors (CAPS) has flourished into a nationally-recognized, award-winning model program. Over the years, nearly 200 CAPS volunteers have been trained by the City and its partners to assist seniors and their families navigate the often daunting task of locating programs and services in the Tri-Cities (Fremont, Newark, Union City) and Hayward. These include, for example, finding places to socialize, applying for social security, health insurance, and housing, and learning more about transportation options in the area.

The majority of CAPS volunteers are older adults themselves who speak more than 20 major languages. They also represent local ethnic, faith, community and neighborhood organizations. Though the volunteers have made huge inroads in assisting seniors with more than 750 families already assisted this year alone, the CAPS program is still a well-kept secret. On Wednesday, Oct. 19, they hope to change that by holding the first-ever CAPS Outreach Day. On this day, be on the lookout for CAPS Ambassadors wearing bright purple T-shirts placing business cards and flyers at local stores, restaurants, coffee shops, dental/doctor's offices, nail and beauty salons, ethnic markets, and more.

The goal is to make the Tri-Cities an Age-Friendly community and ensure every household knows CAPS Ambassadors are available to assist older adults by providing free information and referral services to local agencies or Fremont's Senior Helpline at 510-574-2014. For more information, visit www.capseniors.org or contact the City's Asha Chandra at achandra@fremont.gov.

Fremont's Energy Efficiency Efforts

In honor of the first annual National Energy Efficiency Day on Oct. 5, the City of Fremont would like to highlight a few of the energy-saving initiatives we have recently implemented, consistent with the City's Climate Action Plan to reduce community-wide greenhouse gas emissions by 25 percent by 2020. The City would also like to thank volunteers, community members, and staff who made these efforts possible!

Last year, the City installed 1.2 megawatts of solar carport structures at the Aqua Adventure Waterpark, the Robert Wasserman Fremont Police Center, and the Irvington Community Center, reducing our municipal greenhouse gas footprint by 5 percent and earning the City an EPA Green Power Partnership Award. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/MunicipalSolar.

This summer, the City partnered with the California Youth Energy Services

Program to provide no-cost energy and water efficiency services to households throughout Fremont. Residents that signed up for a Green House Call were visited by trained Youth Energy Specialists who installed new equipment to help save energy, water, and money. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/GreenCall. Please note that this program is only offered in the summer.

This summer, the City launched a new residential climate action engagement platform called the Fremont Green Challenge. Dubbed a "Fitbit® for Sustainability," the Fremont Green Challenge website offers residents all the information they need to save energy, water, and money, while at the same time reducing their impact on climate change. Visit the website at www.FremontGreen-Challenge.org.

With the City-sponsored Bay Area Sun-Shares Program, residents are able to learn about the benefits of rooftop solar, hire qualified solar contractors, and receive solar discounts. So far this year, the program has resulted in the installation of 42 new residential solar systems. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/Sun-Shares. Please note that program registration closes on November 4.

The City is upgrading all streetlights to LED technology as part of our efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, reduce energy costs, and improve roadway visibility through the Vision Zero 2020 program (www.Fremont.gov/VisionZero2020). The project begins this month, and the goal is to upgrade all city streetlights to LED by the end of the year. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/LEDStreetlights.

SolSmart, a program funded by the U.S. Department of Energy SunShot Initiative, just awarded the gold designation to Fremont, recognizing the City as a national leader in advancing solar energy. Initiatives that contributed to the award include Fremont's streamlined solar review and permitting process. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/SolSmartAward2016

City of Fremont Youth and Family Services, Fremont Fire Department and Vision Zero 2020 Team up for Children's Bike Helmet Drive as part of Make a Difference Day

The City of Fremont Youth and Family Services, a division of the Human Services Department, is partnering with the Fremont Fire Department and the Vision Zero 2020 outreach campaign to hold a Children's Bike Helmet Drive as part of Make A Difference Day on October 22. Donations of new children's bicycle helmets will help children who are staying in local homeless shelters safely be able to ride bikes and help those children whose parents cannot afford to buy them helmets.

Riding bicycles without a helmet is not safe. Recently, a young child was riding a bike without a helmet at one of Fremont's local shelters and was severely injured. This incident highlighted the need for donated bicycle helmets for those who cannot afford them.

Please join the City's Youth and Family Services and Fremont Fire Department as they seek donations of new bike helmets in medium and large sizes and neutral colors. Though these sizes and colors are preferred, Fremont Fire will accept any sizes or colors donated as long as they're new bicycle helmets. Drop off donated helmets at the Youth and Family Services Clinic, located at the Fremont Family Resource Center at 39155 Liberty St. in Suite E500 by Thursday, October 20.

The Children's Bike Helmet Drive is helping to spread awareness around Vision Zero 2020, an effort to reduce all fatalities and severe injuries caused by traffic accidents to zero by 2020. The City of Fremont greatly appreciates the community's participation in helping keep Fremont's children safe.

If you have any questions, please contact Youth and Family Services Counselor Anya Marquez Richard at 510-574-2125 or call the Youth and Family Services' main line at 510-574-2100.

Installation of LED Streetlights Underway

As part of the City's efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, reduce costs, and improve roadway visibility through the Vision Zero 2020 program, the Fremont City Council in May approved a contract to upgrade all streetlights to LED technology. Replacement of over 14,000 streetlights is under way with completion anticipated by the end of the year.

The project kicked off on October 6 along Fremont Boulevard between Peralta and Washington boulevards. This section is anticipated to be completed in approximately two weeks.

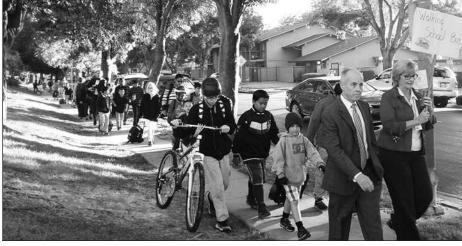

On Monday, October 10, installation of new LED streetlights begins in Fremont neighborhoods. Crews will be upgrading streetlights in the following neighborhoods: Lakes and Birds, Ardenwood, and Northgate. The LED streetlight upgrade project will continue throughout all Fremont neighborhoods throughout the year. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/LEDStreetlights.

To stay safe in a burning building, a firefighter must wear special gear. A turnout coat, for example, is a special jacket designed to protect a firefighter from heat and flames.

Reflective stripes on the coat and pants help firefighters see one another in a dark. smoky building.

Smoke can be one of the biggest dangers in a fire. Firefighters wear face shields and an air mask to be able to see and breathe.

If a fire breaks out in your home, it is VERY important to STAY LOW. Crawl towards an exit as quickly as possible to avoid breathing in smoke. And if a firefighter wearing gear like in the photo above is there, don't be afraid. They're there to help!

The verb prevent means to stop something from happening.

Feds accuse Silicon Valley firm of hiring bias

By Brandon Bailey AP Technology Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), The U.S. Department of Labor has filed a lawsuit accusing a fast-growing Silicon Valley software company of systematically discriminating against Asian job applicants.

Palantir Technologies was cofounded by prominent tech financier Peter Thiel, with backing from an investment arm of the CIA, and was recently valued at $20 billion. The privately held company makes powerful dataanalytics software used by U.S. military, intelligence and law-enforcement agencies, along with banks, insurance companies and other non-government clients.

The unusual lawsuit — which comes as Silicon Valley is grappling with broader criticism for a lack of diversity claims Palantir "routinely eliminated" Asian job candidates during the resumescreening and telephone-interview stages of the company's hiring process. The claims are based on a statistical analysis conducted by federal officials responsible for making sure government contractors comply with anti-discrimination rules.

Palantir denied the allegations Monday and said it will contest the suit. It argued in a statement that the government's case "relies on a narrow and flawed statistical analysis relating to three job descriptions from 2010 to 2011."

A spokeswoman didn't respond to questions about the ethnic makeup of Palantir's workforce. But the statement added: "The results of our hiring practices speak for themselves." Palantir is based in Palo Alto, California, and employs more than 1,800 people.

The federal lawsuit comes as leading Silicon Valley tech companies are struggling to answer criticism about a lack of diversity in staffing. One legal expert said the federal lawsuit may reflect a broader aim by the government "to shed more light and get more accountability" from the tech in-

"It's the new economy, but we still want to make sure there aren't new forms of discrimination in these industries," said Orly Lobel, a University of San Diego law professor who's studied Silicon Valley hiring patterns.

Another leading tech company recently agreed to pay $750,000 in back wages to settle discrimination claims brought by the Labor Department, without admitting wrongdoing. Those charges involved African-Americans, Asians and Hispanics who sought inside sales jobs at an Arkansas data-processing facility operated by Hewlett Packard Enterprise, the government announced last week. In a statement, HPE said, "we are confident in our hiring processes and we will continue to promote and build a diverse and inclusive workforce."

In recent years, Apple, Google, Facebook and other prominent Silicon Valley corporations have acknowledged they employ disproportionately low numbers of women, African Americans and Latinos, compared with the general population. Hiring figures released by those larger companies generally show that employees of South and East Asian descent are better represented.

The federal lawsuit against Palantir, however, focuses on Asian job candidates because they applied in relatively large numbers. Rose Darling, a senior trial attorney for the Labor Department, said the government's analysis showed a disproportionate number of Asian applicants were rejected for positions at the

For example, the suit alleges that Asians made up 77 percent of a pool of more than 730 qualified applicants for the job of quality assurance engineer at Palantir. The company hired one Asian and six non-Asians, according to the Labor Department's compliance office, which calculated the statistical likelihood of that result is one in 741.

For another position, described as an engineering intern, the lawsuit said there's a ``one in a billion" chance that Palantir's hiring pattern occurred by chance.

While the analysis involved hiring statistics for 2010 and 2011, Darling said the company hasn't shown evidence that it has changed its practices since then.

Appellate courts have allowed the use of statistical analyses in discrimination claims because it's rare to find more explicit evidence, like a memo that says "Don't hire" from a certain group, Lobel said.

"You used to have 'smoking guns,' but that's more rare these days," she said. "So the courts are recognizing that you can prove discrimination by showing that the odds that this would be the result, without discrimination, are just so low."

The lawsuit is the first of its kind brought against a Silicon Valley company in recent years, Darling said. She declined to say if other investigations are pending.

The suit was filed with the Labor Department's Office of Administrative Law Judges, which is a quasi-judicial system within the department. The outcome of the case can be appealed to the regular federal court system.

Remove standing water

SUBMITTED BY ALI BAY

California Department of Public Health (CDPH) Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith today called on the people of California to help reduce the number of mosquitoes by eliminating standing water, especially in areas that have recently had rain and continue to experience warm temperatures.

To help control mosquitoes, check your yard weekly for water-filled containers. Clean and scrub bird baths and pet watering dishes weekly, and dump the water from dishes under potted plants. Contact your local vector control agency if you detect unusual numbers of mosquitoes or you are being bitten during the day.

The Aedes aegypti mosquito, an aggressive mosquito that bites during the day, has been detected in 12 California counties. This black-and-white striped mosquito has the potential to transmit Zika and other diseases, such as dengue fever, chikungunya and yellow fever. While the mosquito is especially active two hours after sunrise and several hours before sunset, it can also bite during the day. These mosquitoes often enter buildings through unscreened windows and doors and bite people indoors.

While there has been no local transmission of Zika in California, as of September 23, 302 travel-associated cases have been reported in the state.

Zika symptoms typically include a fever, rash, joint pain and red eyes. Most people infected with the Zika virus will not have symptoms, but Zika is a major concern in pregnant women because it can cause severe birth defects. In addition to Zika, West Nile virus, another mosquitoborne illness, continues to concern public health officials.

To prevent mosquito bites, apply repellents containing U.S. Environmental Protection Agency-registered ingredients such as DEET, picaridin, oil of lemon eucalyptus, or IR3535 to exposed skin and/or clothing (as directed on the product label). During the times mosquitoes are most active you should wear long- sleeve shirts, long pants, socks and shoes. Be sure window and door screens are in good condition to prevent mosquitoes from entering your home.

Governor Brown signs Wieckowski's urgency bill to assist key housing development

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

State Senator Bob Wieckowski's (D-Fremont) bill allowing the state Department of General Services to modify the terms of a property sale with the Santa Clara Housing Authority to allow an innovative housing development to move forward, was signed by Governor Brown today. SB 680 is an urgency bill and takes effect immediately.

"By signing my bill, the Governor is giving Santa Clara and the developer, The Core Companies, an opportunity to advance plans for a creative and crucial project to provide housing for seniors, veterans and people of all ages," said Wieckowski, a member of the Senate's Transportation and Housing Committee. "With a sustainable agriculture component, and educational programs in food production, horticultural sciences and gardening, this will be an innovative development in a terrific location for its residents."

Santa Clara Mayor Lisa Gillmor and Chris Neale, The Core Companies' executive vice president, spoke in support of the project with Wieckowski last week at a press conference at the site. The six-acre property is located on Winchester Boulevard. It was formerly the Bay Area Research Extension Center, an agricultural branch of the University of California.

Last fall, the Santa Clara City Council chose The Core Companies to develop the site. The proposed project includes a total of 359 housing units, comprised of 34 for sale market rate townhomes, 144 market rental units and 181 affordable rental units, of which 165 are for seniors with 20 percent set aside for a veteran preference for those over age 62.

"I thank Senator Wieckowski for moving SB 680 through the Legislature and being a strong advocate for smart urban growth and progressive developments," said Kirk Vartan, a Santa Clara business owner and a leading supporter of the agrihood concept. "This will benefit our community, our local economy and hopefully inspire other cities to think more creatively when considering development proposals in Silicon Valley."

More than 100 supporters of the project urged the Governor to sign the bill by adding their names to a Change.org petition. Local affordable housing organizations also support the project.

"We are in a housing crisis, especially in the Bay Area, and Santa Clara is ready to move forward on this project," Wieckowski said.

Senator Wieckowski's district stretches from southern Alameda County to Santa Clara.
