The Hippest Name in Bowling Debuts in Milpitas

Bowlmor AMF, the world leader in bowling entertainment, is proud to announce the transformation of AMF Mission Lanes into the all-new Bowlero Milpitas—Santa Clara County's newest and coolest destination for birthdays, private parties, family night gatherings, and unforgettable corporate events.

Bowlero's blacklight lanes, upscale amenities, state-of-the-art amusements, and inventive new menus will all be on display during its Grand Opening celebration on Saturday, February 25. Hosted by San Francisco 49ers Legend and Hall of Famer Jerry Rice, the RSVP-only event will give ten lucky guests the chance to join Jerry on the lanes and bowl with the NFL great.

Located at 1287 South Park Victoria Drive, the completely renovated center features 33,000 square feet of fun, including 40 lanes of bowling, an interactive arcade, and a top-of-the-line sports bar. Bowlero's signature retro-meets-modern style is brought brilliantly to life by laneside video walls, vintage Edison light fixtures, a Winnebago-inspired wall graphic, and massive black and white letters that coyly display the words "LOVE" and "LUST" along the lanes' sidewalls.

Talking Traffic with the City of Fremont

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY VICTOR CARVELLAS

Fremont is changing and so is its traffic. Sitting at one of the City's 175 or so signals the other day, I began to wonder how traffic in Fremont is managed. Who are the people responsible for moving an increasing number of vehicles through a fixed number of streets?

To that end, I met recently with Noe Veloso and Donya Amiri, transportation engineers with the City of Fremont.

Tri City Voice: What is our city doing about traffic? How are decisions about traffic management made? Where do you put signals and how do you set speed limits?

Veloso: Typically, all that is governed by federal and state regulations and policies. Here locally we follow the California Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices (MUTCD). It provides guidance and regulation in terms of stop signs, traffic signals, warrant studies, everything that concerns the public right of way; it governs and regulates traffic control devices, how they are placed, when they are placed, and overall design.

TCV: What is a trip generation manual?

Veloso: When we look at a project, like a development, and we're trying to assess its impact on the traffic system, we need to determine how many trips that development will generate. A lot of these manuals are for standard conditions and standard situations. There will be situations where we have latitude for "engineering judgment."

Leslie D. Michelson is the author of The Patient's Playbook and host of The No-Mistake Zone™ podcast. He is a highly sought-after expert who has spent the last 30 years guiding thousands of people through our complex health care system. Leslie will be a special speaker at the April 9, 2017, Annual Women's Conference at Washington Hospital. For more information about the conference, call (510) 608-1301.

BY LESLIE MICHELSON

Question: I've been diagnosed with a serious condition and my daughter wants to join me on my appointments. I don't like leaning on people. Do I really need to bring her?

Leslie Michelson: As long as you trust and respect your daughter and her intentions, I highly recommend you

Ask Leslie

Should I bring my daughter to doctor visits? Plus: When to complete an advance health care directive bring her to physician visits. During this time, you're going to feel vulnerable and overwhelmed by the volume and intensity of medical information coming at you. Having a helper at your side is crucial, as she can take notes, ask thoughtful questions and relay relevant medical details.

Beyond the emotional and logistical support your daughter can provide, numerous studies show that patients are more likely to understand and follow their physician's advice and have improved communication with their doctor when a companion participates.

And, in my experience, most physicians appreciate when you bring a companion along. Having an extra set of eyes and ears ensures that your doctor's guidance and instructions are being heard. Also, your physician receives a fuller picture about your condition and symptoms when your companion speaks up about things you may forget to mention.

Under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, your doctor may discuss your health information in front of others as long as you do not object. It's up to you to let your doctor know if there are matters that are too private to openly discuss. But remember, she's there to help keep you on track. Understanding the full picture of your illness will help her to provide the best of her thinking, and it will strengthen your bond as mother and daughter.

Question: When I was admitted to the hospital, I received information about an advance health care directive. Is this something I can deal with later?

Leslie Michelson: This is an excellent question and one that I wish more people would consider now, while they are healthy. People approach sickness in different ways. Some prefer to accept the disease progression; others want to try the standard treatment protocols, but if their disease advances beyond hope, they would forgo risky or costly treatments. Then there are those who take an aggressive, go-for-broke approach.

How you approach an illness is completely up to you. As long as you are making informed decisions, there is no wrong approach. However, it's important that your caregivers and family members are clear about your wishes ahead of time, so that they are never in a position of having to make painful guesses about what's best for you.

One way to make your wishes explicit is by completing an advance health care directive, in which you provide basic instructions about your care and name an agent who can make decisions for you. Keep in mind, you can change your preferences at any time as you get older, as your health changes, and as your family evolves. But stating your current views now will make it much easier to adjust them later. Washington Hospital provides advance health care directive forms on their website (whhs.com).

Those diagnosed with terminal illnesses may want to complete a more detailed Physician Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment (POLST) form, which spells out preferences for medical interventions such as CPR, tube feeding, antibiotics, do-not-resuscitate orders, and comfort. You can find California's POLST form, in several languages, at www.capolst.org.

This can be a difficult conversation to have with loved ones, yet it's so important to decide what you want as early as possible. You can say: I want everyone to understand what my wishes are. I know you may have different views, and I'm happy to talk about them now. But please understand that it will make it much easier for me to go through this if I know that you understand what my goals are, and that you will respect them.

Finally, for any families facing end-of-life issues, it can sometimes be comforting to have a trusted primary care physician weigh in with guidance. They've been down this road before and often will bring clarity to a difficult situation.

New Cardiologist Delivers Quality Care With a Dose of Heartfelt Compassion

February Is American Heart Month

When asked why she decided to become a noninvasive cardiologist, Catherine Dao, MD, responds, "Becoming a cardiologist gave me the opportunity to combine my passion for the science of cardiology with my desire to help people lead healthier lives. I have always been fascinated by the anatomy and physiology of the cardiovascular system, and the many advances in cardiovascular medicine in recent years have made me even more enamored by the profession."

Joining Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF) in January, Dr. Dao now brings that passion and expertise to residents of the Tri-City Area.

"In general, noninvasive cardiologists focus on diagnosing and treating a wide range of cardiovascular conditions using external tests, medications and procedures, rather than inserting instruments into the body," she explains. "I care for adult patients with a wide range of cardiovascular conditions, such as coronary artery disease, congestive heart failure, heart valve disease, arrhythmia and diseases of the heart muscle known as cardiomyopathy."

Dr. Dao earned her bachelor's degree in molecular cell biology at the University of California, Berkeley and then went on to attain her medical degree from Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

"My experience in New York was great," says Dr. Dao, a native Californian who was raised in the Sacramento area. "I worked at hospitals in Queens, the Bronx and Spanish Harlem. Working with diverse populations helps underscore the need to respect people of various cultures and the health care issues they face."

The allure of returning home to California, however, proved stronger than Dr. Dao's attraction to the Big Apple. She completed her internship at California Pacific Medical Center in San Francisco, and a residency in internal medicine at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. In 2009, she became a post-doctoral fellow at Stanford University Medical Center, where she completed a research fellowship in cardiovascular imaging funded by the National Institutes of Health and a clinical fellowship in cardiac MRI. She remained at Stanford for an additional fellowship in cardiovascular medicine.

"My extensive training in research and clinical care at Stanford both expanded my knowledge base and gave me expertise in the latest scientific advances in cardiovascular medicine," she notes.

Prior to joining WTMF, Dr. Dao practiced noninvasive cardiology at the Community Hospital of Monterey Peninsula in Monterey.

"I wanted to come back to the Bay Area so I could be closer to the rest of my family," she notes. "I was attracted to WTMF, in particular, because of its emphasis on patient-focused, high-quality care. In addition, the foundation connects me to a network of primary care doctors and other specialists. I believe in minimizing unnecessary invasive interventions whenever possible, but I recognize that some cases require surgical procedures or other treatments that I can't provide. Being connected to the WTMF network of physicians helps me review all available treatment options with my patients and refer them to the proper health care provider.

"I strive to deliver evidence-based, quality care that is personalized and tailored to each individual's needs," she adds. "I seek to develop a respectful, compassionate relationship with all my patients while providing them with the skills, knowledge and motivation to take a proactive approach to improving their health. I try to promote wellness and a healthy lifestyle by advocating a 'heart-healthy' diet, regular exercise and modification of risk factors."

In her spare time, Dr. Dao enjoys spending time with family and friends. She also pursues hobbies such as cooking, international travel, visiting wine country and hiking along California's coastal trails.

"I also am an avid Golden State Warriors fan," she confesses as yet another reason to return to the Bay Area.

Dr. Dao's clinical practice is located at 2287 Mowry Avenue in Fremont. If you need help finding a physician, visit the Washington Township Medical Foundation website at www.mywtmf.com and click on the tab for "Your Doctor."

Tri-City's Benefits from Ohlone College

Ohlone College recently employed the services of Economic Specialists Modeling International (ESMI), a leading provider of economic impact studies and labor market data to educational institutions, workforce planners, and regional developers in the U.S. and internationally. The charge they were given was to research and report on the college's economic impact and investment analysis.

ESMI's Findings:

First and foremost, Ohlone promotes economic growth in the Ohlone Community College District

- It is an employer and a buyer of goods and services, and the living expenses of students benefit local businesses.
- Ohlone is a primary source of education to their District residents, and it supplies trained workers to industries in the District and beyond.

- Ohlone is an important employer in Fremont, Newark and Union City region.

- During the 2014-15 fiscal year, the college employed 729 full-time and part-time faculty and staff.

- Of these, 30% lived in the district.

- Total payroll at Ohlone was $47 million.

- Much of which was spent in the district on groceries, rent, dining out, clothing, and other household expenses.

The impact of Ohlone's Spending:

- Ohlone is itself a large-scale buyer of goods and services.

- During the same year the college spent $23.7 million to cover its expenses for facilities, professional services, and supplies.

- Ohlone added $46.8 million in income to the district during the analysis year as a result of its day-to-day operations.
- The $46.8 million in added income is equivalent to supporting 747 jobs.

The Impact of Student Spending:

- Approximately 46% of students attending Ohlone originated from outside the district in FY 2014-15, and some of these students relocated to the District to attend Ohlone.

- These students would not have come to the district if the college did not exist.

- A number of in-district students would have left the area for other education opportunities if not for the existence of the college.

- While attending the college, these "relocator" and retained students spent $16.1 million to purchase groceries, rent accommodation, pay for transportation, etc., generating $507,100 in added income in the district economy during the analysis year, which is equivalent to supporting nine jobs.

The Impact of Alumni:

- The education and training Ohlone provides for district residents results in the greatest impact.

- Since the college was established, students have studied at Ohlone and entered the district workforce with new skills.

- Today, thousands of former students are employed in the Ohlone College's District and region.

- During the fiscal year of analysis, past and present students of Ohlone generated $291.2 million in added income for the Tri-Valley region.

- This $291.2 million in added income is equivalent to supporting 3,014 jobs.

The Net Effect:

Including college, student, and alumni spending, the simple economic impact of Ohlone College within their district comes to $338.6 million, or the equivalent of 3,770 jobs!

- The $338.6 million in added income was equal to approximately 1.6% of the Gross Regional Product of the Ohlone Community College District.

- By comparison, this contribution that the college provides on its own is nearly as large as the entire Information industry in the district.

Ohlone College Says "Let's Play Ball!"

With melodies of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" playing in the background and rainclouds far away in the distance, a gathering of over seventy-five people came to celebrate the grand opening ribbon cutting ceremony of Ohlone College's new baseball and softball fields on Wednesday, February 8, 2017. Everyone was excited to welcome these sports back to the Ohlone College Fremont campus, after having the teams play off-site during construction of the new fields.

Completed with the latest technology and environmental considerations, the fields are covered with a 100% artificial turf that requires virtually no maintenance, no striping, water, weeding or pesticides, saving the college and its grounds staff considerable time and money.

After a brief welcome from Ohlone College Board of Trustees Chair, Richard Watters, celebratory words and acknowledgements were given by Ohlone College President, Dr. Gari Browning, Construction Partner, Devin Conway, as well as the Dean of Kinesiology, Athletics and Broadcasting, Chris Warden. The presentations were followed by a blessing of the field by Andy Galvan, a descendant of the Ohlone Indians.

With the assembled guests, college staff and softball and baseball players in place, a large green ribbon was ceremoniously cut by President Browning, flanked by Ohlone's Governing Board Trustees. Enjoying a break in what had been a rainy week, guest were offered a tour of the newly constructed facilities and baseball field, after first being given goody bags of peanut candy, Crackerjacks, and "We're #1" giant foam hands.

As one of the Ohlone Lady Renegades softball players shared, "These fields are beautiful and will be fun to play on. No high or low spots, no mud, and they have a really great sound system. It'll be great winning games back on the Ohlone College campus once again!"

Introduced bill requires all children be screened for lead

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUEÑAS

On February 17, 2017 Assemblymember Bill Quirk (D-Hayward) introduced Assembly Bill (AB) 1316 to require all children in California to be tested for lead.

Since the 1970s, federal and state policies banning the use of lead in gasoline and paint have resulted in drastic reductions in childhood lead exposure. However, legacy lead – in paint, plumbing, contaminated soil, water sources – means that children are still exposed to this toxic metal. Given the ages of California's infrastructure, lead exposure risks are ubiquitous.

"There is no safe exposure to lead. Lead has multiple toxic effects on the human body. Decreased intelligence and physical developmental challenges in children are among the more serious non-carcinogenic effects," explained Assemblymember Quirk.

The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) administers the Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program. Under the program, CDPH requires all children on government assistance programs and children that spend a majority of their time in pre-1978 buildings to have their blood tested for lead. However, that leaves large gaps in data of children that may be exposed to lead but are not being tested. To close that gap, AB 1316 will require all children to have their blood lead levels screened.

"As a scientist and chairman of the Assembly Environmental Safety & Toxic Materials Committee, it is important to me that we collect blood lead data for all children. This will make sure all kids have access to health care services for lead exposure. More comprehensive data will also help the state better identify where there are lead exposure clusters," Assemblymember Quirk stated.

AB 1316 has not yet been referred to policy committee.

Ohlone College seeks donations for 'Promise Scholarship'

SUBMITTED BY GOSIA ASHER

How often are promises made and not kept? No one can say for sure, but know that the Ohlone College Promise Scholarship is one solid promise.

As Ohlone College begins its year-long celebration of 50 years of teaching and community service, they are also reaching out to potential donors who want deserving high school students giving a 'leg up' to successfully complete her or his first two years of college debt-free.

What exactly is the Ohlone Promise Scholarship? It is a scholarship that pays required tuition, books and enrollment fees for two years at Ohlone College — a value of approximately $3,600. This scholarship is designed so that students can focus on their education, rather than on their finances.

But it is not a handout. For students to qualify, they must plan to attend full time (12 units per semester) for two years. They must also be a graduating senior in a public high school from Fremont, Newark or Union City School Districts. Additionally, they must maintain a 2.5 minimum grade point average, complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), and submit a letter of recommendation from a high school principal, teacher or counselor. Lastly, they must write a short essay of application.

Once accepted, scholarship recipients are matched to a counselor who will monitor his or her educational plan and help keep them on track. The combination of financial and educational support brings great results. Student success rates are 11 percent higher than for their peers, their GPAs are 17 percent higher, and even more; they are 43% more likely to persist in their education year-to-year than their peers.

Ohlone College has been committed to student success for 50 years. In celebration, the college is hoping to award 50 Ohlone Promise Scholarships in 2017. As an Ohlone Promise Scholarship recipient, Kyra Manalac says, "I am so grateful for having this great opportunity here at Ohlone College, and very thankful to the donors who made this scholarship possible. I will be continuing to study very hard so that I can inspire and also help other people someday." As a major donor and alumna of Ohlone, Victoria Maroulis says, "Ohlone College was my gateway to higher education and professional success. I wanted to give back to the school and help other Ohlone students."

Ohlone College invites you to join with them in celebrating and supporting student success for their very special anniversary event. The goal is to raise $180,000. Won't you join with Ohlone College to support the financial needs and educational goals of our Promise Scholarship recipients from Fremont, Newark and Union City? To learn more or to make a donation, go online to: www.ohlonepromise.org or contact the Ohlone College Foundation at 510-659-6020, or at foundation@ohlone.edu.

Talking Traffic

with the City of Fremont

Principal Transportation Engineer Noe Veloso and Associate Transportation Engineer Donya Amiri inside the City of Fremont's high-tech Traffic Control Center.

TCV: For example, if a new road comes in at a strange angle, you have to decide how to apply the regulations.

Veloso: Correct.

TCV: Traffic is always changing. What is your game plan moving forward?

Veloso: There are lots of ways to answer that. If you're looking from a development perspective, we have a General Plan that outlines exactly what will be approved given development that's allowed in the City. A traffic study was conducted in 2015 (<https://fremont.gov/DocumentCenter/View/29109>) to determine what our traffic will look like by 2035 if we allow all of this growth. The study identified which intersections would operate at an unacceptable level of service.

In response to the study, we then developed a program called the Traffic Improvement Program (TIP). Under TIP, fees are calculated and levied on developers in order to fund improvements needed to bring the level of service to an acceptable rating.

Fees are one way we address future growth and traffic impacts. Another way is to look at it from a traffic signal perspective. Over the last five years we've received approximately $700,000 in grant money to better coordinate our signals. We have coordinated traffic signals to optimize the flow through the system; we have over 170 signals and this money goes towards maybe 50 at a time.

Amiri: In order to apply for grant funds we must show how our streets are freeway reliever routes. We can clearly show the Feds, for example, or the State, that people exit Hwy 880 to cut through Fremont; that people get off Hwy 680 and come down Mission Boulevard.

Compared to the rest of the nation, Fremont is on the path of becoming very technically advanced in the area of signal communication. Every signal touches our management system through either copper or fiber lines. When we apply for a grant we try to showcase a corridor where we know our residents are feeling congestion. Fremont Boulevard is one, and of course people use Mowry Avenue to get to the Hwy 84. Stevenson, Mowry, Fremont, and Paseo Padre are areas where we have qualified for funding.

But, funding happens in three-year cycles, so even though the situation is constantly changing, we have to wait. Mowry, Stevenson and part of Fremont, for example, were just done last year.

Communication with our signals is a safety concern, and the City has invested in the kind of equipment that will immediately allow us, in the case of an incident, to run certain operations, such as a manual override, as long as there is communication.

TCV: Will tech employers contribute to fixing the problems, possibly with funding?

Veloso: In terms of the Googles, the Ubers, they are definitely a big part of the solution. Uber helps a certain portion of the demographic. As we move toward high-density urban housing situated near transit centers, hopefully people won't need cars, but if they do, Uber is a great alternative.

Companies like Google and Facebook offer what we call Transportation Demand Management (TDM) tools. A single shuttle bus replaces 80 single occupancy vehicles; other car-sharing tools include apps like Scoop, which matches you up with a car pool. Those are the kinds of efforts we're always looking to partner with. They don't necessarily provide us funding, but they are a big part of the solution moving forward.

TCV: What is the relationship between law enforcement and traffic management?

Veloso: We partner with Fremont PD. We've been working with them on the Vision Zero Project (<https://www.fremont.gov/DocumentCenter/View/29505>), a plan to eliminate traffic fatalities in Fremont by 2020. As you can imagine, speed is a major factor in surviving a crash. With the Police Department's help identifying areas of speeding, as well as higher than average incidences of DUI, we are taking a data-driven look to find where severe injury and fatality collisions take place. We're about to release a report that shows that, along with public works, we have significantly reduced severe traffic injuries and fatalities between 2015 and 2016.

Recently, according to Veloso and Amiri, grant funds of almost a million dollars were used to create a unique and groundbreaking traffic management tool to help alleviate traffic along Fremont Boulevard in the Centerville area. It has recently been completed; expect an announcement from Transportation Engineering in the near future.

Alameda County Water District adopts rate increases

SUBMITTED BY SHARENE GONZALES

At a February 9, 2017 public hearing, the ACWD Board of Directors adopted a 2-year water rate increase to both the bimonthly service charge and the per-unit water consumption charge. A 20 percent increase will begin March 1, 2017 followed by a 5 percent increase beginning March 1, 2018. Prior to the public hearing, the board also approved late payment fees and a customer assistance program that will provide a $15 bimonthly bill credit for income qualified customers.

The increases will fund major capital projects, cover significant revenue losses resulting from the drought, address the district's financial obligations to retiree pensions and benefits, and cover increased operating costs.

For the average residential customer using 16 units of water bimonthly (200 gallons per day) and with a 5/8 or 3/4 inch meter, the increase is $9.54 per month in 2017 and $2.86 in 2018.

In recent years, the district has deferred capital projects, reduced staffing and tapped into reserve funds to reduce expenses.

The 2-year rate increases are anticipated to provide $31 million in additional revenue. ACWD's amended budget for fiscal year 2016/17 is $119.6 million for total expenditures.

Self-driving car prototypes need less human help, data show

By JUSTIN PRITCHARD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Self-driving car prototypes appear to be getting better at negotiating California streets and highways without a human backup driver intervening, according to data made public Wednesday by California transportation regulators.

The data reflect safety-related incidents reported by 11 companies that have been testing more than 100 vehicles on public roads, primarily in the Silicon Valley neighborhoods where the technology has grown up. The reports were made to California's Department of Motor Vehicles, which posted them online.

The documents catalog the number of times from December 2015 through the end of November that humans took over control from a car's software for safety reasons.

Waymo, as Google's self-driving car project was recently rebranded, did far more testing than the other 10 companies combined.

Waymo reported that its fleet drove itself more than 635,000 miles with 124 safety-related "disengagements," which must be reported when the technology fails or the backup driver takes control out of concern the car is malfunctioning.

The Google project's disengagement rate was the equivalent of two incidents every 10,000 miles, a notable decrease over the prior year, when there were eight disengagements per 10,000 miles.

"This four-fold improvement reflects the significant work we've been doing to make our software and hardware more capable and mature," Dmitri Dolgov, Waymo's head of self-driving technology wrote in a blog post.

Waymo's chief critic acknowledged the improvement, but John Simpson of the nonprofit Consumer Watchdog said the number of disengagements shows the cars still "simply aren't ready to be released to roam our roads" without human backup drivers.

Cruise Automation, a startup acquired last year by General Motors, reported driving the second most test miles.

Cruise said its prototypes had 181 disengagements over 9,776 miles (185 per 10,000 miles) and that it was "pleased with our progress" during testing on the complex streets of San Francisco.

Though imperfect, the data represent the best peek the public gets into the secretive and fiercely competitive world of self-driving cars and how the prototypes are performing.

California requires the disengagement reports as part of regulations governing testing on public roads. Separately, the state also requires companies to report any collisions involving its cars.

When the technology will be ready for the public depends on several factors, including regulators' readiness and company confidence the vehicles are safe.

While Tesla's Elon Musk has been bullish, talking about months rather than years, companies such as Waymo have suggested 2017 or 2018 is more realistic.

Tesla's disengagement report said four prototypes drove a total of 550 miles last fall, experiencing 182 disengagements - the equivalent of 3,309 disengagements every 10,000 miles.

Tesla logged the miles primarily to develop a publicly posted video, set to the Rolling Stones song "Paint It Black," of the driver's seat perspective in a car where a person does not have to put their hands on the wheel or feet on the pedals. The video promoted how Tesla was shipping cars with advanced sensors that will be activated in the future.

The company already is gathering tens of millions of miles of real-world data when owners engage the current Autopilot feature, which can control steering and speed but is not sophisticated enough to make the cars self-driving from the regulatory perspective.

The Department of Motor Vehicles has been working for several years on regulations that will govern how the technology can be rolled out to the public when companies believe testing shows it is ready.

The state expects to release final "public operation" regulations within six weeks, according to Melissa Figueroa, a spokeswoman for California's State Transportation Agency.

The Department of Motor Vehicles, which is part of the agency, made public a first draft in December 2015, nearly a year after final rules were supposed to be in place. The department has since revised the language based on developments at the federal level and input from industry and other groups.

The agency and the department declined comment on the reports released Feb. 1.

Why Facebook keeps pushing you to go 'live' with video

By BARBARA ORTUTAY
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

From billboards to TV ads to endless notifications, Facebook is furiously promoting its live video feature as it tries to get more users to shoot and watch such videos.

But will it be a big business for the social network? The prospects for advertisers are uncertain, and even when users do "go live" — broadcasting their toddler's first steps to family or showing footage from protests around the world, for instance — their friends often don't see it until after the fact, just like any other recorded video.

So why all the big fuss? Some analysts believe it's just another in Facebook's ongoing efforts to keep people attached to its service as long as possible. "It's a usage thing — keeping them engaged, keeping them on Facebook, giving them an avenue to share," says eMarketer analyst Debra Aho Williamson. "As long as Facebook can be successful with that, it can show ads to them."

As is its custom, the company is first pushing the service to as many of its 1.8 billion users as possible. Users get special notifications when their friends go live, and ads prompting them to do the same have been prevalent in the last few weeks.

But making money off live streams isn't easy, starting with the fact that they offer few opportunities to display video ads. But that's OK, Williamson says, arguing that now is the time for marketers to experiment with the feature.

Some are already doing just that — not by advertising on other live broadcasts, but by streaming themselves. General Motors, for example, was the first automaker to livestream on Facebook, rolling out its Chevy Bolt EV at the 2016 Consumer Electronics Show.

Mobile video, especially live video, is already transforming how we experience the world online, whether that means puppies and kittens or witnessing crime, social unrest and other world events. We can stream official channels and news, as well as individual people's perspectives in a way that was not possible just a few years ago.

Last October, Facebook started an ad campaign featuring real users doing weird, quirky but generally upbeat stuff live with the goal of introducing more, possibly reluctant users to the feature. Think: pile of teddy bears, girl singing with a guitar, someone recording lightning in the distance.

While the company isn't disclosing data on how many users have gone live or watched a live video, anecdotally at least it seems to be catching on — somewhat. The company says people comment more than 10 times more on live videos than on regular ones, and that the number of people broadcasting live at any given minute has grown by four-fold since last May. Facebook gave regular users the ability to create live videos in April.

News outlets live streamed the presidential debates, as well as election night and Donald Trump's inauguration and last week's Supreme Court nomination. Users, meanwhile, are broadcasting from sports events, protests and their living rooms.

Live video provides "an immediate, synchronous conversation experience," says Forrester Research analyst Melissa Parrish. Tools that increase the "immediacy of interaction," such as messaging platforms, are growing more and more popular.

At the same time, live videos that have gotten outside attention — those showing police shootings, for instance — are not exactly good PR for the company. While the vast majority of live streams don't involve violence or crime, Williamson says the negative connotations are "definitely a red flag and could cause advertisers to take a second look on whether it makes sense for them."

Facebook warned last year that "ad load" — that is, the number of ads it can push in front of users without clogging up their feeds — is unlikely to keep increasing. After all, the company can't keep endlessly showing more advertisements before users without souring them on the experience. To maintain growth, Facebook needs higher-priced ad products.

Live video, Parrish says, is a good platform for that. Even if advertisers themselves are not yet "going live" with their own videos, splicing ads into live broadcasts could be a lucrative option to reach highly engaged eyeballs.

There's another upside for live video: anecdotally, it is popular with young users, the generation that's following millennials, according to Parrish. For Facebook, this could be a good way to fend off criticism that it's losing popularity with the younger set.

Shape Our Fremont

Where Fremont residents can learn about shaping proposed housing developments

Early 2017 Development News and Updates

As the New Year gets underway, housing development activities have picked up in several areas. Two older development proposals are moving toward a final decision, and a few new development proposals have popped up on the horizon. Here are some recent items of importance:

Development Meetings

Washington Place. A proposal to build 14 three-story townhouses on Washington Boulevard next to the southbound off-ramp from I-680 was recommended for approval by the Planning Commission. It is now tentatively scheduled for a City Council hearing on Tuesday, February 21, at 7 p.m. The project consists of 7 pairs of attached townhouses, called duets, on a parcel that slopes down to a creek. The land is zoned for single-family houses, but the developer has requested to make the project a Planned District, which would allow variations from the zoning standards. Opponents say the variations go too far and should not be allowed.

Hobbs Residential. This proposal for 55 single-family two-story houses on the east side of Mission Boulevard south of Palm Avenue has generated a flurry of reactions from residents. The large number of big houses on small lots, loss of views of the hills, and traffic congestion on Mission are among the top concerns. This development was recommended for approval by the Planning Commission and is tentatively scheduled to go before the City Council on Tuesday, March 14. Residents may still send emails about this project to Bill Roth in the Fremont Planning Department at broth@fremont.gov

New Developments

Ohlone College Frontage. Ohlone College has requested new proposals to develop the frontage property along Mission Boulevard. Ohlone would retain ownership of the land. Sealed bids are due on March 6 and will be reviewed by the college before presentation to the Board of Trustees at a future date. All proposals would have to go through a formal development application procedure with the City of Fremont and would be subject to prioritization of a General Plan Amendment request to change the land use designation, as well as a review by the Planning Commission and City Council.

North Fremont Blvd Townhomes. A proposal to build 14 three-story townhouse condominiums on Fremont Boulevard north of Paseo Padre has gone through a Preliminary Review Process and has now been submitted as a Formal Application. All parking will be on the site, and access to the project will be off Fremont Boulevard. Direct all comments and questions to Fremont City Planner David Wage at dwage@fremont.gov

Ursa Project. The remnant of an orchard operation in Warm Springs is the proposed site for 17 detached, single-family, two-story houses. An old house and water tank tower will be relocated on the site and rehabilitated. A barn and several sheds will be demolished. Access will be off Ursa Drive opposite Plomosa Way. All parking will be on the site. Send questions and concerns to Fremont City Planner Bill Roth at broth@fremont.gov

Jaynes Niles Mixed-Use. A proposal to build a three-story mixed-use building on a vacant lot at 37753 Niles Boulevard has been submitted as a Formal Application. The structure will have commercial space and parking on the ground floor with 12 apartments arranged around a second-floor courtyard on the upper floors. An additional live/work unit will face Iron Horse Lane at the rear of the building. Parking is accommodated by a three-level mechanical stacker. For more information, contact Fremont City Planner Steve Kowalski at skowalski@fremont.gov

Lincoln Condos. This small, in-fill project proposes to replace an existing house on Lincoln Street in Irvington with five three-story townhouses. All parking will be on the property. This site is within the Irvington BART Transit Oriented Development Overlay. Address questions and comments to Fremont City Planner Spencer Shafsky at sshafsky@fremont.gov

Several years ago, Fremont residents Chris and Alice Cavette started writing the Shape Our Fremont column in the Tri-City Voice as co-authors. Now that Alice Cavette has been appointed to the Fremont Planning Commission, she will focus on her duties as a Commissioner. Chris Cavette will continue to write the bi-weekly Shape Our Fremont column, distribute information on various developments, and speak at meetings as a concerned Fremont resident.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: FEBRUARY 22 - FEBRUARY 28

For All Signs: This week we encounter the second eclipse in a series of two. The New Moon in Pisces is eclipsed on Monday, Feb. 26. New Moon eclipses occur at the time of the month in which we can't see the Moon. The meaning is related to a new seed being planted, probably under the soil, or in the unconscious. The new seed must be protected for a while, until it develops strength enough to stand on its own and eventually grow into a blossom. We often don't know this is happening until the plant breaks through the earth to search for the sun. This particular eclipse is in Pisces, which is the sign of the unconscious, so it lends double meaning to something that will grow in the dark, gaining strength over time. Pisces is the sign of the humanity that we all share. It gives special nurture to those of the "we" mentality, rather than the "I Am."

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): There will be an explosion in the sign of Aries. You may set a bonfire, have an accident, or join activist movements. Motion and action are prominent. There is potential for your explosion to bring some kind of consequences having to do with career. Maybe this has happened just recently.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): On Mar. 4 your ruling planet will be turning retrograde for a few weeks. It is possible you are already leaning into withdrawal from one or more relationships while you evaluate their impact on your life. This is not necessarily a permanent change. It is designed to help you decide if the relationship(s) are for you.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This is an excellent time to pursue any activity that requires your mental concentration. Contracts and written communications, along with short distance travel, have go signals. The New Moon Eclipse plants a new seed in the house that describes life direction. You may not see it quite yet, but soon.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Follow your instincts about where you need to be, particularly if that includes a new social situation. Then give attention to whomever or whatever new enters your life. It will serve as a helpful teacher and guide you in the next direction.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): You or someone else may want you to feel guilty because you are unable to make things better. Recognize that you are not the magician you would like to be and let go of the guilt. Whatever happens now, you are highly prone to think dark thoughts about yourself. This is passing. Let it go.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Your ability to concentrate upon projects that require management of details is strong. Organizing files, closets and cabinets will clear the clutter from your mind. The new wrinkle in your life occurs through your partnership(s). That may be business or personal.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Venus, the ancient goddess of love and financial resources, will turn retrograde in your partnership house. You and your partner have need of increased space between you. It does not matter who initiates the idea for a breathing space. It comes from a joint need. This does not mean anything about love, so don't misinterpret and create trouble where there is not.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): You and Aries have things in common this week. An emotional explosion or accident may suddenly alter the picture. There may be consequences on your health, at your workplace, or in rental property that you own. Drive and handle tools very carefully.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Organize files and details early in the week in preparation for an event near Feb. 27 that will elicit a passionate response. You'll want to come from an informed and organized place in your head before that occurs.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): There are developing problems in and around your home that may suddenly become visible. If not property, then the restlessness and potentially surprising events may become apparent in your family life. Usually there are clues ahead of time about the nature of the disorder.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): If you focus your mind on a mentally challenging project that can have an identifiable outcome, things will move smoothly through the early part of the week. The New Moon Eclipse occurs in your territory of personal resources. That can be money, time, and/or energy. See the lead paragraph.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Please read the lead paragraph carefully. This eclipse in your sign signifies that something new, but very small, will be entering your consciousness soon. It will involve reshaping your sense of identity to include another factor. Your sense of compassion will increase, slowly at first. If, instead, you are being used by a vampire, you will realize this soon.

Brewing on the Farm

SUBMITTED BY IRA BLETZ

People have been brewing beer at home for over 6,000 years. It's fun, creative, and a great DIY activity.

Have you ever wondered how to get started? What does it take to brew your own beer? You can discover this ancient art in a three-part, hands-on workshop at Ardenwood Historic Farm. The workshop will take you through the entire brewing process. You'll boil wort, pitch yeast, and along the way explore the science of fermentation. You'll also learn beer's fascinating history as you brew and bottle a special batch of Ardenwood ale to take home.

From the 1850s to the mid-1890s, Ardenwood was a grain farm growing oats, wheat, and barley. George and Clara Patterson sent most of the oats to San Francisco to feed horses and other livestock. The wheat was shipped to San Francisco and exported to Europe. But the barley stayed closer to home, supplying breweries in San Jose, Hayward, and San Francisco.

The East Bay was once an important hop-growing region too. Hop farms were common until production moved to Oregon and Washington between 1920 and 1940. Hops are the flower that adds bitterness to beer. Next time you drive past Hop Ranch Road in Union City or along Hopyard Road in Dublin/Pleasanton, think about our area's brewing history.

It was common for East Bay farm families to brew their own beer. It was a regular kitchen activity usually done by women (brewster) on the same day they baked bread.

Brewing your own beer is a lot like cooking. Once you know how the ingredients work together – hops, barley, yeast – you can create your own tasty beer. Workshop participants will brew two batches: Ardenwood Honey-Wheat ale, using honey from the farm's beehives, and a Farmyard Alt (Alt is a German ale style).

The workshop begins on Saturday, March 4 and meets again on the following Saturdays March 11 and 25. We'll start with an introduction to brewing and the history of beer; next we'll boil the wort (unfermented beer), pitch (add) the yeast and put the beer into primary fermentation. At the second class, the beer goes into secondary fermentation during a discussion of brewing equipment and what you need to get started at home. At the third meeting, we will bottle the beer to begin the carbonation process. Once you complete the class, you will have the skills and techniques necessary to brew at home.

According to the American Homebrewers Association there are more than 1.2 million brewers in the U.S. and it continues to gain in popularity. Some 66 percent of homebrewers have started brewing since 2005, and one third of them live in the West. America's homebrewers produce 2 million barrels of beer a year (a barrel is 31 gallons) for a total of 62 million gallons of homebrew. Today's craft beer revolution has its roots in homebrewing. In fact, 90 percent of professional brewers got their start at home. Breweries such as Dogfish Head, Ballast Point, Sam Adams, New Belgium, and Sierra Nevada were all founded by homebrewers.

This is a great opportunity to see what homebrewing is all about! The workshop fee is $35 for East Bay residents, $39 for nonresidents. Registration is required and open to anyone 21 years or older. To register, call 1-888-EBPARKS (1-888-327-2757, option 2) or register online at <https://apm.activecommunities.com/ebparks/> and search for "homebrewing."

Home & Garden

Meaningful Art Enriches Gardens

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY DANIEL O'DONNELL

After the fall of the Western Roman Empire, people in the Middle Ages would walk past dilapidated Roman aqueducts, not understanding what they were or question what they had been used for. This may seem odd, knowing the importance of bringing clean water to a city and removing sewage. There was not enough time to inquire about those they quickly migrated across the country. Sales began to stall by the late 1960s as they were banned by homeowner associations as being kitschy lawn ornaments that could drive down real-estate prices. The 1972 John Waters movie "Pink Flamingos" helped fuel a resurgence and the plastic pink flamingo became a pop art icon. Featherstone, who kept 57 plastic flamingos on his front lawn, won the Ig Nobel and should be treated with respect and love. He did not believe in harming animals and thought it was the duty of all people to protect the environment. Stories about him being able to talk to the birds and other animals became popular after he died. Saint Francis believed the garden was a place of peace and spirituality. A statue of him in the garden is a pleasant reminder of that.

and in Colonial America, pineapples were sometimes rented to be placed on a dinner table to elevate a family's status. Eventually real pineapples were replaced by statues and motifs but they remain the symbol for welcome and hospitality.

The beauty of art is not always found by looking at the piece. The five pieces of garden art listed above might seem too common, too religious, or even too tacky to place in the garden. Their charm comes from the meanings behind them. The purposes of these art pieces is to bring joy, inspire peace, and warmly welcome visitors which elevates them from simple garden decoration into works of art that every garden could have.

things as people struggled with the difficulties of their daily lives. Centuries later many of us are following the same pattern. We walk past common pieces of garden art, but are too busy to learn the meanings, histories, and stories behind them.

It is not uncommon to see a pair of lions guarding entrances to gardens in ancient temples throughout Asia or the grounds of palaces in Europe. Closer to home, lion statues can be seen resting on wall columns, sitting on front porches, and at the entrances to Chinese restaurants. Lion statues have been used in gardens throughout history by kings and queens, emperors, and rulers as "Guardians of the Garden" because the lion represents power, strength, and bravery. The popular male lion statue with his paw leaning on a sphere represents supremacy over the world. The commonly used female lion statue restraining a playful cub that is on its back represents nature. Many Asian cultures will use both a male and female statue at the entrance to a garden to bring balance as well as protection.

Japanese-style gardens are very popular in the Bay Area and many of them have a stone lantern. Called a toro, the lanterns were originally only used to illuminate paths in Buddhist temples but became popular for use in private gardens over the centuries. A complete toro will have five parts representing the five elements of Buddhist cosmology. Earth is represented by the bottommost piece touching the ground. The next piece symbolizes Water or the formless things in the world. Fire is represented by the part of the lantern the houses the flame. The next section embodies the element Wind that includes air and smoke. The final top section represents what is translated as Void, the things that are made of pure energy such as thoughts, creativity, and spirit.

Art is subjective and the definition of garden art was pushed to its limits in 1957 when Don Featherstone designed the plastic pink flamingo. The bright pink birds began to fly off the shelves almost immediately and Prize for Art in 1996. The city of Madison, Wisconsin, designated the plastic pink flamingo as its official bird in 2009, helping to confirm that it is possibly the most famous piece of garden art in the United States.

A Saint Francis of Assisi garden statue is one of the few religious statues that even non-religious people choose to place in their yard. He is credited as the Patron Saint of Animals and of Ecology. Born into a wealthy family, he lived a wild lifestyle in high society and took part in military campaigns until he had a falling out with his father and moved out into the countryside. He decided to live a life of poverty and simplicity there. Saint Francis believed that all of nature was a gift from God

Pineapple statues are commonly seen at garden entrances on gate posts, in fountains, and around patios. Christopher Columbus introduced pineapples to Europe and they quickly became popular. They were difficult to grow in the European climates and the cost of transporting them made it so only the wealthy could afford them. The pineapple, considered the "Princess of Fruits" became the ultimate gesture hosts could give in appreciation of their guests. The tradition continued

When it's hip to be HIP: Home sharing program offers timely solution

BY DAVID R. NEWMAN

It's no secret that Bay Area housing prices have shot through the roof in the past five years, thanks in part to a stronger national economy, as well as incredible growth in local hi-tech jobs. In Fremont,

With low vacancy rates, stiff competition, long waitlists, and not enough development to keep up with demand, many feel it is a program whose time has come. It's a great way to build a housing history and improve a credit rating for those just starting out or getting back in. And for many seniors who fear losing their homes, it's a way to remain independent while gaining Fremont Home Sharing Coordinator Laura Moya.

Bay Area to learn more about our services. Sometimes we get requests to start programs in those communities but the funding is always a challenge. The City of Fremont really provided us with the infrastructure to start a program in their community, and we happened to have a housing coordinator who could manage it for us."

That housing coordinator is Laura Moya, who, after working in the East Bay for a few years, is now a brand new resident of Union City. "It really takes some process involving face-to-face interviews, background checks, and references. Once Moya spots a potential match, she notifies her clients. Says Moya, "I like to think of myself as a bridge, to form that initial connection. After that, it's really up to them as to what direction they would like to take it." This often involves the two parties meeting to get to know one another before making a commitment.

When clients decide to live together, they sign a Living Together Agreement, a very personalized version of a rental contract that details the rental rate, deposit amount, moving in/out instructions, etc. HIP provides support throughout the process, including a lot of follow-up to check in on how the clients are doing.

The program has been running since August 2015, and so far Moya has made 12 matches involving 30 people (the program allows married couples to look together). One of those clients (who wishes to remain anonymous) signed on about a month ago and is happy she did. "It takes a lot for me to trust somebody I don't know. HIP has been very helpful. They were very concerned and very understanding when they asked me what I was looking for. I decided to risk opening up my home to make someone else comfortable, because we all need a place to come home to."

Indeed, one of the biggest challenges facing the HIP Housing program has been educating the public. Says Shenfil, "We've had no problems interviewing people who are looking for home share situations. The trick is finding people who are willing to share space, and to see that having a roommate might be a positive thing that could enable them to continue living in the Tri-City area."

To qualify for the program, those with rooms for rent need to live in Fremont, Union City, or Newark. Those seeking housing need to live, work, or attend school in Fremont. Clients can choose one of two arrangements: paying straight rent, or paying a reduced rate of rent if agreeing to do certain chores around the house. The homeowner determines the rental rate, with HIP usually advising them. Current rates average from around $650 – $950 per month.

HIP Housing has been operating in San Mateo County since 1972 and is considered by many to be the best home sharing model out there. They also run a Self-Sufficiency Program for low-income parents currently attending school, and own/manage a portfolio of over 400 subsidized properties.

according to Zillow, the median home value is currently $917,000, up 4.7 percent from last year. And the median rental price is an astronomical $2,950.

In an effort to increase the amount of affordable housing, the City of Fremont Human Services Department (HSD) has teamed up with the Human Investment Project (HIP) of San Mateo to create a home sharing pilot program in the Tri-City area, matching local residents who have rooms for rent with people seeking housing. Says HSD Director Suzanne Shenfil, "There's a lot of underutilized housing in our community, especially if you think of households where there might be older adults still living in large, three to four bedroom ranch-style homes."

Home sharing provides a unique solution to the housing shortage by using existing stock.

extra income, not to mention companionship and help around the house.

This is the first time that HIP Housing has operated outside of San Mateo County. Says HIP Associate Executive Director Laura Fanucchi, "HIP Housing has been approached by many jurisdictions throughout the time to get a program going. We've worked really hard on educating the community about home sharing, what support we offer, as well as making sure we establish ourselves in the community as a trusted resource."

With each client, HIP goes through a thorough screening

Fremont native provides health protection for U.S. Navy sailors

SUBMITTED BY LT. CMDR.
KATY GRAY, NAVY OFFICE OF COMMUNITY OUTREACH

A 2005 Washington High School graduate and Fremont,

California native is serving in the U.S. Navy at Naval Medical Center San Diego.

Lt. James Brennan serves as an entomologist at the San Diego based preventive medicine unit.

According to Navy officials, the Navy Environmental Preventive Medicine Unit's (NEPMUs) priority is to provide preventive medicine, environmental and occupational health services.

"I work with pest control which includes education and outreach around pest management," said Brennan. "I work with disease response for vector control and I also teach the fleet about pest control. There is always variety in the job and I have an opportunity to learn something new each day."

The sailors who are part of Navy medicine are the most highly trained, educated and specialized force in history, said Navy officials. The role of Navy medicine in preserving the healthy and fighting readiness of that force has never been greater or more critical.

Cmdr. Shelton Lyons, the officer in charge of NEPMU FIVE, said the sailors who work in Navy medicine play a critical role in maintaining the medical readiness of the fleet.

"The NEPMUs are uniquely capable of providing preventive medicine, environmental and occupational health services," Lyons said. "We are also able to provide critical training for global health engagements and disaster responses, increasing readiness and overall capacity of our fleet and strategic partners."

Brennan said he feels honored to be able to serve at a command that is continually raising the bar in preventive medicine.

"I like that the command is supportive and that there are a variety of subject matter experts," said Brennan. "Opportunities to collaborate and work with peers allow me to work outside of my box frequently."

Those who serve in Navy medicine understand that they play a key role in meeting the missions of our armed forces, according to Navy officials.

"My father was a Navy surface warfare officer, so for me serving is continuity of a family tradition," added Brennan. "My sisters are both in the Navy as well and it is very rewarding to be part of the traditions."

St. Edward School's Robotics Program

SUBMITTED BY ROSANNE LYON

discovered his love for science and engineering and he

In September 2016, David Valencia, Class of 2014, partnered with Mrs. Castro, fifth grade and science teacher, to lead and mentor St. Edward School's first Robotics Club.

Valencia credits St. Edward School, Newark, for sparking his interest and ongoing pursuit of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Math) education and its application. During his years at the school, Valencia represented his school in several diocesan and county science fairs. It was at St. Edward where he continued this interest when he attended Bellarmine College Prep. Valencia joined the nationally ranked Bellarmine Robotics Club as a high school freshman and continues to this day. Now in his junior year, he is currently one of the team's student leaders and is very active in FIRST Robotics Competitions.

Wanting to give back to his alma mater and spread his love for science and engineering, Valencia volunteered to start St. Edward's own Robotics Club. Mrs. Castro has mentored him through this endeavor.

During this first year of St. Edward's Robotics Club, the students are learning engineering skills first hand with VEX IQ kits. A good representation of high school robotics, Valencia hopes that hands-on learning and experimentation with these kits will inspire students, both boys and girls, to also develop a passion for science and continue pursuing STEM education and careers in their futures.

Millard Elementary helps with nationwide recycling effort

SUBMITTED BY VERONICA RAJADNYA

Millard Elementary School in Fremont is kicking off the new year with good habits and keeping snack pouches out of landfills. Through a free, national recycling program in partnership with TerraCycle, sponsored by Entenmann's Little Bites®, Millard Elementary School has helped the nationwide collection reach the milestone of 2 million snack pouches diverted from the waste stream. Along with keeping the pouches out of landfills, collectors earn points that can be redeemed for cash donations to the non-profit or school of the collector's choice. Through the efforts of collectors like Millard Elementary School, donations have just passed $35,000.

"The TerraCycle recycling program was started by Mrs. Ellen Ng at Millard, who single handedly supervised and recycled items through TerraCycle creating awareness and trying to educate the children about the importance of recycling," said Millard resident Subin Varghese. "When my older child was in kindergarten, I became interested in the program and myself and two other moms (Kyoko Ehling and Fumiko Moon) joined forces with Ellen."

TerraCycle is an international recycling company that finds innovative solutions for materials not typically accepted at municipal recycling facilities. Through free recycling programs, participants collect waste and ship using a pre-paid shipping label to TerraCycle for processing. TerraCycle recycles the waste into plastic that can be used for products such as park benches, recycling bins and playgrounds.

Varghese continued, "The TerraCycle program was successful because we had the support of our principal and we sent reminders to our school community on what to collect via our school newsletter. It definitely was a messy job, and time consuming. However, we are happy to do it because we are educating our kids about recycling and taking care of the environment."

The Entenmann's Little Bites® Pouch Recycling Program is open to any individual, school or organization interested in reducing local landfill waste. To learn more about TerraCycle, please visit www.terra-cycle.com or www.littlebites.com.

Paul Nguyen wins 40 Under 40 Award in Economic Development

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF HAYWARD

Paul Nguyen, Economic Development Specialist for the City of Hayward has been selected as a winner in the economic development profession's 40 Under 40 awards, the only award of its kind recognizing young talent in the economic development profession.

An independent six-member selection committee evaluated and chose the winners based on their exceptional contributions to the economic development industry. The award's program was managed by Development Counsellors International (DCI), a New York-based firm that specializes in economic development marketing.

In early 2015, Paul's watershed "Industrial Technology & Innovation Corridor Baseline Profile" exposed a muscular and growing ecosystem of advanced industries in Hayward. Prior to the study's publication, the size and scope of Hayward's industrial corridor had been largely unquantified. His work also included development of the City's Business Concierge Program, a personalized customer service program designed to attract and expand the City's targeted industries. Paul's recent business attractions include food manufacturing and biotechnology companies.

DCI's 40 Under 40 award was designed to discover the economic development profession's rising stars. The committee evaluated over 170 applications from across the country. Paul was the only California professional recognized.

For more information on DCI's 40 Under 40 winners, visit www.aboutdci.com/40under40.

Celebrating Black history

SUBMITTED BY
ANUSHKA MADHAVANI, GRADE 5

Bay Area Child Care (BACC) is celebrating Black History Month with its students. The children are learning about segregation and how, in the past, black and white people were separated. One example was separate water fountains. Students are also learning about famous African-American people who were an important part of history. Martin Luther King Jr., for instance, protested peacefully against segregation and Rosa Parks was arrested in 1955 after refusing to give up her seat to a white man. Their courageous actions raised national awareness that eventually contributed to the passing of the Civil Rights Act. People like Jackie Robinson faced abuse, but because of his love for baseball, he persevered as a major-league player. BACC students really enjoy learning about these inspiring people.

Mardi Gras!

What is Mardi Gras?

Mardi Gras is French for "Fat Tuesday." The "fat" in the name comes from the ancient custom of parading a fat ox through Paris on this day. The ox was to remind the people that they were not allowed to eat meat during the time of fasting known as Lent. Lent runs from Ash Wednesday through Easter Sunday.

KID SCOOP DICTIONARY

fast v. To eat little or no food for religious or medical reasons.

fastback n. an automobile

Since "Mardi" means "Tuesday," you can tell the holiday is always celebrated on that day of the week. The date can fall between February 3 and March 9 depending on the lunar calendar, used by the Catholic Church to determine the date of Easter. Mardi Gras is always 47 days before Easter Sunday.

French people who came to the United States brought the custom of Mardi Gras with them.

Standards Link: History: Students understand cultural contributions from various regions and how they helped to form a national heritage.

Mardi Gras Customs

Mardi Gras parades happen throughout the world. Some of the most famous celebration centers are: New Orleans and Lafayette in Louisiana, Biloxi in Mississippi, Rio de Janeiro in Brazil, Nice in France and Viareggio in Italy.

Do the math to discover where these Mardi Gras customs take place.

$7 + 8 + 5 + 9 =$  Southern Italy

$37 - 9 =$  Nice, France

$4 + 3 + 5 + 5 =$  Rio de Janeiro

$31 - 6 =$  New Orleans

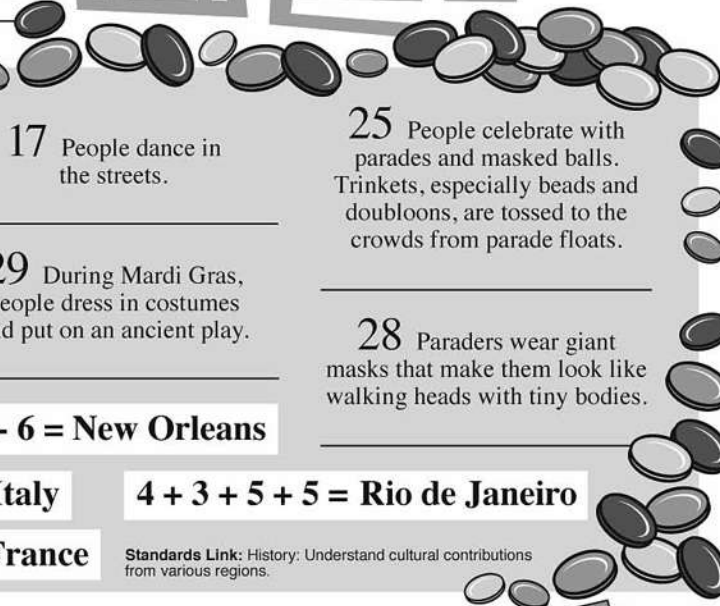

17 People dance in the streets.

29 During Mardi Gras, people dress in costumes and put on an ancient play.

25 People celebrate with parades and masked balls. Trinkets, especially beads and doubloons, are tossed to the crowds from parade floats.

28 Paraders wear giant masks that make them look like walking heads with tiny bodies.

Help the jester find his way to the Mardi Gras doubloons.

The Colors of Mardi Gras

Mardi Gras in the United States has three official colors. To find out what each of these three colors means, cross out the letters M-A-R-D-I G-R-A-S in each of the lines below. Write the remaining letters in order to learn what each color symbolizes.

Purple: M J A R U D S I G T R A I S C E

Green: M A F R D A I G I R A T S H

MASONIC HOMES OF CALIFORNIA

FEBRUARY 2017

HOME ON THE HILL

The Origins of the Masonic Home at Union City: Part Two

The Masonic Home at Union City, located on Mission Boulevard near Dry Creek Regional Park, has been part of the Tri-City community for more than a century. In line with the principles upon which it was founded, the Home has provided shelter and compassionate care for residents since its earliest days. Today, that spirit of generosity extends to the surrounding community, where residents and staff actively support and champion public education and other charitable causes throughout the Tri-City region.

In the first part of this series, we explored the history of the Masonic Home at Union City, from its 1850 conception through 1898 opening. To read the story, go to tricityvoice.com, select "Archives" from the top menu bar, then select January 17, 2017, page 12.

INTO THE 20TH CENTURY

As the Masonic Home entered the 20th century, it continued to expand and make improvements to serve its residents and the surrounding community. In 1900, a row of date palms was planted on either side of the driveway. (The same trees that are enjoyed by visitors to the Home today.) In 1903, the first Siminoff Masonic Temple was constructed on campus, a gift from Bro. Morris Siminoff, a member of Fidelity Masonic Lodge No. 120. Though the original Siminoff Temple was razed in the 1970s due to seismic safety concerns, the successive Siminoff Temple is still in use on campus today.

From the beginning, the Home warmly welcomed Masonic family members and friends. In 1912, the first ever Jam and Jelly Day was sponsored by matrons and past matrons of the East Bay chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star. Though the event was intended "to encourage social intercourse and a spirit of mutual helpfulness among its members," a primary focus of these festivities was to help residents take advantage of the Home's bountiful fruit crop. Guests harvested fruit, then made and preserved delicious jams and jellies on the spot to sustain residents throughout the winter. Over the years this tradition continued to evolve: As the campus maintained fewer fruit trees, chapters moved towards gifting homemade jams and jellies to residents during the festivities. Today, rather than focusing specifically on fruit preserves, Eastern Star members typically work with Masonic Homes residents and staff to identify and meet the campus' needs.

In 1917, when the United States' entry into World War I gripped the nation, the Home's residents patriotically sprang into action to support the troops. Records show that they were active in sewing and knitting warm clothing for the "boys in the trenches." And, in addition to supporting their own family and friends in the war effort, they were known to "adopt" additional soldiers to whom they would send personal letters and supplies to improve comfort on the battlefields. Their support was a true embodiment of the Masonic values of brotherly love, charity, and relief. Just as critical support had been provided to them in their hour of need, so did they wish to lift up fellow Americans in peril.

Learn more about the history of the Masonic Homes in next month's issue of "Living Well."

TAKE IT TO HEART

Valentine's Day isn't the only day or reason to celebrate your heart: February is American Heart Month! According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, heart disease is currently the leading cause of death for both men and women. But the good news is that many risk factors for heart disease can be reduced by adopting healthy lifestyle choices – and among the most impactful is choosing healthy foods. Jeegna Patel, Masonic Homes registered dietitian, shares her top tips for a healthy diet:

- 1. Eat fewer highly processed foods. Processed food is usually packaged in boxes, cans, or bags. Choose whole foods instead, like vegetables, fruits, legumes, dairy, and whole grains.
- 2. Eat more omega-3s. Omega-3s can help manage blood pressure, reduce the rates of hypertension, and improve mood. Boost your levels by getting at least two servings of fish a week, or adding walnuts and flax seeds to your diet.
- 3. Pile on the veggies. In addition to providing vital nutrients, including vitamins A and C, potassium, folate, and magnesium, vegetables are low in calories and can reduce the risk of diabetes and respiratory disease.

- 4. Increase fiber intake. Getting more fiber can help reduce your risk of cardiovascular disease, type 2 diabetes, obesity, and many cancers. To get the recommended daily dose of 21 to 38 grams, increase your intake of whole grains.
- 5. Eat less meat. Eat more vegetarian meals, using beans, tofu, or even eggs to replace meat or poultry. By decreasing meat, you'll naturally eat less saturated fat – increasing heart health and lowering risk of some cancers.
- 6. Swap one beverage a day for water. Calories from sugary beverages can lead to obesity and harm heart health. If you're not a fan of plain water, jazz up your H2O with lemon or cucumber slices to add flavor without added sugar.

Breast cancer conference provides answers and dialogue

SUBMITTED BY JIM ZELINSKI

How do you ride the emotional roller coaster of breast cancer?

What are the latest techniques to reduce recovery time and increase mobility after cancer surgery?

How do patients and their families sustain working relationships with a breast cancer medical team?

What is the role of nutrition and exercise in reducing cancer risk?

What is the latest research on genetics and the value of testing individuals who have a risk of an inherited cancer disposition?

Answers to these and other questions, combined with personal stories of those coping with cancer, will be addressed at "Current Breast Cancer Landscape in the Bay Area," the 16th annual breast cancer conference of Fremont's Cancer Prevention Institute of California (CPIC). The event is scheduled for Saturday, March 4 at the Golden Gate Club in the Presidio, San Francisco.

Featuring nationally and regionally prominent medical experts, the conference offers an abundant source of answers, dialogue, the latest research and compassion. Cancer patients and survivors benefit by receiving the trustworthy information they need to make informed decisions about their health. Participants will emerge from the conference with new ideas about treatment, nutrition, genetics, estate planning, fertility and family planning.

Ariana N. has attended every conference since 2014 - the same year she was diagnosed with Stage 1, Grade 3 breast cancer at the age of 44. She said, "The conference addresses the constellation of concerns that accompany a cancer diagnosis. I enjoy attending the conference each year because the information is delivered in a way that can be understood by both medical practitioners and survivors."

One much-anticipated conference speaker is Dr. Allison W. Kurian. Kurian, director of the Women's Clinical Cancer Genetics Program at the Stanford University School of Medicine, will discuss new techniques to identify women with an elevated risk of breast and gynecologic cancers during her keynote address.

There will be a new breakout session titled, "Networking to address breast cancer disparities:

Learning from researchers, community partners and advocates, and survivors," featuring a panel of experts from CPIC, Zero Breast Cancer, Tiburcio Vasquez Health Center, UCSF, and Stanford. Iona Cheng, a research scientist with CPIC and the Stanford Cancer Institute, will share recent trends in breast cancer incidence in the Bay Area.

Breakfast and lunch are included in the $30 registration fee. A scholarship program is available for those who cannot afford the fee. The California Breast Cancer Research Program is the exclusive Survivor Champion sponsor of this year's conference. Stanford Cancer Institute is a Research sponsor.

Visit www.cpic.org for more information, or call (510) 608-5094 or e-mail education@cpic.org.

Hopkins Advanced Orchestra delivers spectacular performance

SUBMITTED BY QUEENIE CHONG

On February 16 at the San Jose McEnery Convention Center, Advanced Orchestra of Hopkins Junior High School, Fremont, delivered a spectacular concert at the California All-State Music Education Conference. As the only orchestra featured at the prestigious event, the award-winning ensemble worked extremely hard for months with Director Greg Conway to fine-tune its performance. Fremont Unified School District Superintendent Jim Morris and Hopkins Principal Corey Brown were in attendance to show their pride and support.

Regional Park closures

BY NED MACKAY

All the winter storms have resulted in closure of some East Bay Regional Parks and other public open spaces due to landslides and flooding. You may also encounter trail closures within regional parks that are otherwise open, usually because of fallen trees.

So, when you're planning your park excursion, it's a good idea to check first to be sure you can get to where you want to go. You can do so by visiting the regional park web site at www.ebparks.org for up-to-date park closure information.

There's lots of other good information available at the web site, too. For instance, you can download trail maps of the regional parks, get up-to-date news about the district, and find out what activities are planned on the day you want to go.

Speaking of activities, there are lots of naturalist-led programs scheduled in the near future in the regional parks.

Let's start at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley, where "Arachnid Adventures" are on the agenda from 2 to 3 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 26. Drop by to learn about spiders and join in some spider-themed activities.

For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 3050.

The stock ponds are brimming now at Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch. So, the park's interpretive student aides will lead a winter pond exploration there from 10 to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 26. Designed for ages five and older, the program is a chance to find out what lives in the park ponds, and learn about local amphibian life. Wear clothes that can get muddy.

Meet the aides in the parking lot at the upper end of Somersville Road, 3-and-a-half miles south of Highway 4. For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 2750.

Muddy roads and trails make for good animal tracking. Naturalist Anthony Fisher will lead the way during a tracking trek from 9 to 11 a.m. Sunday,

Feb. 26 at Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley. The group will scout the trail for tracks, take track photos, and make plaster casts.

Then, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. the same day Anthony will lead an easy stroll through the woods to enjoy the beauties of nature.

For either program, meet Anthony at Tilden's Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Central Park Drive. For information, call 510-544-2233.

Anthony also is leading a bird walk from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday, Feb. 27 at McLaughlin Eastshore State Park. Meet him at the Seabreeze Market parking lot at the west end of University Avenue in Berkeley.

Sharks are the subjects of Family Nature Fun hour from 2 to 3 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 25 and 26 at Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda. Learn more about these toothy predators, some of which live in San Francisco Bay.

There's also a sunset low-tide walk from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 26, led by naturalist Morgan Dill.

Crab Cove is at the end of McKay Avenue off Central Avenue. For information, call 510-544-3187.

Naturalist Kristina Parkison will lead a meander through the marsh from 10 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 25 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont, for ages five and older.

The group will listen for bird calls, look for nests, and hear stories about the unique animals that inhabit the wetlands.

Meet Kristina at Coyote Hills Visitor Center, which is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. For information, call 510-544-3220.

The Year of Compassion Will Challenge Us

BY SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE

The State of the County is good financially and good in ways that aren't measured by dollars. We are rich in talent, compassion and perseverance. We are populated by people who care about the least among us and who will fight for the rights and dignity of all.

During my State of the County Address on February 7, I called 2017 the Year of Compassion.

The first ingredient of compassion is acceptance. We do not tolerate people in our County, we accept and embrace them. We will resist unconstitutional orders from Washington, fight for justice, provide health care for all, and champion inclusiveness.

Santa Clara County is home to one of the most diverse populations on earth, and we consider our diversity an asset. Immigrants come here chasing the American dream, they want to be free and safe, to pursue an education and build a better life for themselves and their children. They are no different than those in the past two centuries who boarded boats from their homelands seeking a better way of life and more freedom, including my grandfather.

Now more than ever, we must use all of our available means to protect our diverse population from threats of mass deportations, travel bans on Muslims and withholding federal funds from our County simply because we demand that undocumented residents receive due process and legal representation.

We must remember that compassion is not theoretical; it is not reserved for those we like or agree with. We must show compassion to those impacted by the new administration, but also to those who support the new administration. Compassion for one another doesn't mean we have to agree with one another.

But we do need to work together in the Year of Compassion, as we did in 2015, the Year of Opportunity, and 2016, the Year of Transformation. The Year of Compassion is a call to action. We are committed to:

- Creating temporary, unconventional housing while we invest in standard affordable housing through funding generated by our $950 million Housing Bond approved by voters in November.
- Helping children and families whose mothers are incarcerated. A working group will present a plan at the County's first National Conference on Women and Girls in the Criminal Justice System.
- Focusing attention on domestic violence. In 2015-2016, our crisis hotlines answered 21,000 calls, and we provided over 6,600 victims and children with in-person services. We need to fund this area now and adequately.
- Supporting our Pay for Success project, Project Welcome

Home, housing the chronically homeless. We have also launched the nation's first Pay for Success project for 250 seriously mentally ill clients.

- Equipping officers with body-worn cameras, installing surveillance cameras at the Main Jail, hiring corrections officers and psychiatrists, and expanding jail diversion programs so that mentally ill arrestees are treated, not jailed.

- Protecting the rights of all through a new Federal Affairs Advocacy Task Force to assess impacts of actions in Washington, and stepping up outreach to immigrants so they are aware of their rights and services.

- Ensuring that our parks are pristine and accessible to everyone and to connecting students and their families with County resources through our School Linked Services program.

You'll hear more about these initiatives during the coming year, but I also want to hear from you. What are your priorities? What is missing from our list? How can we help you, and just as important, how can you help each other?

For those of you who couldn't attend the event, I invite you to watch the video or read the speech by visiting the Clerk of the Board's meetings portal. For comments and questions, please call my office at 408-299-5030 or email me at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org.

Slavery by another name exposed in documentary

SUBMITTED BY REV. JEFFREY SPENCER

Academy Award-nominated Director Ava DuVernay draws a line from the constitutional amendment that freed slaves to the disproportionate number of African-Americans in American prisons today in "13th," to be screened on Saturday, March 11, at Niles Discovery Church in Fremont. The Second Saturday Documentary Series is free and open to the public. A discussion will follow the screening.

Section 1 of the 13th Amendment states, "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

DuVernay, director of "Selma," interviews historians, sociologists, and the formerly incarcerated who forward the thesis that the economic hardship faced by whites, particularly in the south, when slaves were freed in 1865, was mitigated by the loophole stating slavery could result as punishment for crime.

Using archival photographs and footage, the film documents the criminalization and intimidation of African Americans through lynchings, Jim Crow laws, and popular culture, especially the wildly popular film of 1915, "Birth of a Nation," that lionized and reinvigorated the Ku Klux Klan.

The documentary also looks at inequitable sentencing, particularly for drug offenses, which has stuffed American prisons - where 25 percent of the entire world's incarcerated are held.

The Second Saturday Documentary Series is co-sponsored by Niles Discovery Church and the San Jose Peace & Justice Center. For more information, call (510) 797-0895 or visit www.nilesdiscoverychurch.org.

Newark Memorial Wrestling Update

Wrestling

SUBMITTED BY TIM HESS

Saturday, February 11th was quite a day for the Newark Memorial HS Cougar Wrestling Program. The Lady Cougars took home the team title at the North Coast Section (NCS) Girls Wrestling Championships held at Albany HS. The Cougars took first place with 167.5 points while Logan HS (who won the last four NCS team titles) finished second with 165 points. Castro Valley placed third with 140 team points. The Cougars previously won the NCS team title in 2009 and 2010.

Five Lady Cougars qualified to compete at the CIF State Girls Wrestling Championships in Visalia February 24-25. Senior Captain Catli Tran led her team with an individual championship at 101 pounds earning three pins and a major decision. Sophomore Sierra Van Rossem also came from behind in the finals to pin her opponent and earn the 150 pound championship. Two freshmen also qualified for the finals and ended up in second place. Emily Patneaud (137) and Ariana Pereira (170) are headed to Visalia to compete in the CA State Championships. Senior Cynthia Celeste battled back after a loss in the semi finals to place third and also qualify for the State tournament. Freshman Ezra Vavao (143lbs) won five consecutive matches by pin and placed fourth for the Cougars. Freshman Daisy Rodriguez (106), freshman Christina Craig (111), sophomore Kari McMann (131) also contributed keys points to the NCS team title.

The boys team also had an outstanding day at the North Coast Section Division 2 Dual Meet Championships at Berkeley HS. The fifth seeded Cougars opened up the tournament with a 60-12 victory over fourth seeded Campolindo; NM lost to top seeded Las Lomas 24-58, beat the third seed Acalanes 45-32 in the consolation semi finals and defeated Campolindo a second time (48-30) to place third. Matthew Costa, Marcos Calvo, Chance Heffer, Justin Myers, Ritchie Punzalan, Kevin Nguyen, and Evan Smith were the top performers for the Cougars.

Clean finish to a wet season

SUBMITTED BY PAT MAPELLI

American Eagles Girls' Soccer finished their season with their Senior Night game at American on Thursday, February 9. Portable lights are brought in every year and the field is prepped for the senior's final game of their high school career. Their teammates make posters, hang balloons and treat the seniors like queens for the day. Come kick-off, however, everyone pulls their own weight.

The rains persisted all day, which changed the tactics of the game. The Eagles, however, adapted to the conditions and managed a 2-1 victory against Mission to end their season. Thanks to these seniors for their dedication to the program: Netra Ravishankar, Abigail Burnell, Gabriela Bontempo, Bhavi Patel and Jacqueline Le.

The Moreau Catholic Lady Mariners varsity basketball team got off to a quick start and never looked back in a February 10th meeting with the Lady Cougars of Newark Memorial. Following a 14 point deficit in the first half, the Lady Cougars fought to within five points but were answered by a stiff defense and fourth quarter offensive run by the Lady Mariners in the fourth quarter.

Fremont's Robertson High School named model continuation school

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN KILLGORE, FUSD

California State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Torlakson recently announced that Robertson High School in Fremont is one of 35 schools in the state designated as Model Continuation High Schools for 2017. These schools are recognized for operating innovative academic programs that help prepare at-risk students for 21st century careers and college.

"I applaud the dedicated administration and staff on their work to assist and motivate at-risk students and help them reach their full potential," Torlakson said. "The positive and nurturing climate these schools have created inspires students to do well in their academic work and also to contribute to their communities."

Continuation schools provide a high school diploma program for students ages 16 through 18 who have not graduated from high school, are required to attend school, and are at risk of not completing their education. The schools were selected based on a comprehensive and competitive application process that involved effectiveness, assessments, and use of data. The process included a peer review panel and an on-site visit.

The Model Continuation High Schools Recognition Program is a joint project of the California Department of Education (CDE) and the California Continuation Education Association (CCEA). The program honors continuation high schools for the comprehensive services they provide at-risk youth through instructional strategies, flexible scheduling, guidance, and counseling. More than 55,000 students attended the state's 452 continuation high schools during the 2015-2016 school year.

"We are proud to have Robertson recognized by the state for its innovative approach to meet the educational needs of its students," said Fremont Unified School District Superintendent,

Dr. Jim Morris. "Principal Sal Herrera and his staff are shining examples of dedicated educators committed to helping their students succeed no matter their circumstances."

Robertson and other schools selected as Model Continuation High Schools retain their designation for three years and will be recognized at the 2017 CCEA State Conference in Fresno on April 28-30.

Fremont School Board meeting report

SUBMITTED BY ROBIN MICHEL

At the February 8, regular meeting of the Fremont Unified School District Board of Education (FUSD) the Board of Trustees received the 2016 Measure E Bond Financial and Performance Audits. Terri Montgomery, of Vavrinek, Trine, Day & Company, LLP (VTD), the independent audit firm conducting the audits, reported out on the two audits, beginning with the Financial Audit.

The performance audit reviews a sampling of transactions in order to ensure that funds are spent only on projects approved by voters. After looking at a sampling of 37 percent of expenditures, the results of their tests indicate that all expenditures were only for the specific projects approved by voters and in

Takes from Silicon Valley East Website Development and Small Business Marketing under Web 2.0

By DAVID BOKASH

What exactly is Web 2.0 and how are small businesses in Alameda County using it? I had the opportunity to discuss this trend at Fremont's latest small business workshop.

Web 2.0, driven by the popularity of social media, has shifted the dynamics of customer communication to engagement and two-way conversation, over the one-way communication that characterized the early years of internet marketing and more than a hundred years of advertising. Web 2.0 is all about engaging the customer through interactive mediums, such as social media and blogs.

Much of what you have learned about Website development (Website analytics, search engine optimization, Website content, navigation, etc.) will continue to be relevant. And, the key to website effectiveness will still be viewing it through your customer's eyes (i.e. providing what your customers want or need). But, Web 2.0 now encompasses tools that allow people to build social and business connections, share information, and collaborate online. It includes both on-website tools (e.g. blogs, chat, etc.) and tools outside of the website (social media, online directories, email marketing, etc.)

Large companies are using Web 2.0 tools to collaborate with customers on product development, service enhancements, and promotion. They have found that using the online community is much faster and cheaper than the traditional tools (e.g. focus groups and surveys). Many small companies have also started using Web 2.0 tools for online marketing. Three of the tools most commonly used by small businesses are:

1. Facebook for consumer marketing (or LinkedIn for industrial marketing)

2. Blogs (website blogs are better, but blogging platforms can add some value)

3. Email marketing (e.g. frequent email newsletters)

In addition to the marketing and technology skills needed for online marketing, Web 2.0 also requires an understanding of psychology and sociology to manage the interactive discussions that take place on social media and other Web 2.0 platforms. Plan on training people in these skills or hiring/contracting a specialist to fill this need. Also, start small and budget time into your weekly schedule. It is better to choose one Web 2.0 tool and use it well, instead of producing a mediocre effort using two or three tools.

For more information on the Web 2.0 seminar, visit the Alameda County SBDC website at www.acsbdc.org/handouts.

For upcoming small business programs in Fremont, visit www.fremont.gov/doing-business accordance with the law.

"This is an important document for us to know that we are on track and doing what the people entrusted us to do," said FUSD Board President Ann Crosbie when thanking Ms. Montgomery for the report. "As trustees, we take our work very seriously."

The Board of Education also took the following action on agenda items pertaining to the Measure E Bond Program:

TOD Infrastructure

necessity of additional factors to provide a complete life experience for those residing in TODs. Is the supposition that all residents of a TOD will be childless and without a local social life? If automobiles become less important, goods and services need to be readily accessible. Social interaction venues such as restaurants and leisure activities will also be an important factor. Children living in the area will need schools within a reasonable distance and recreation too. These are not found in requirements to proclaim TOD zoning, yet are of paramount importance if such an area is to survive and thrive.

Proponents of restrictive parking requirements in TOD areas seem to lean toward a model millennial who is apparently well off financially, eschews children and finds employment and recreation at regional transit hubs. They do not want or need automobiles; the less parking requirements, the better. These perennial twenty somethings will inhabit small spaces at premium prices and fit the description of a resident of a bedroom community. This is the epitome of self-serving hubris. Of course Fremont and its environs are much more than this and, when planning TOD developments, need a broader definition and careful examination of mixed use and community attributes.

If people are to live in close quarters, provisions for open space need to be included in calculations for development.

Providing a postage stamp space or linear park that leads nowhere is simply an illusion of space that does not solve the issue. This type of consideration should be part of a comprehensive analysis that can determine whether development is appropriate even within a TOD determination. Enormous pressure has been brought to bear on cities to build more and more residential spaces but attributes that make locations in our area desirable should not be lost in the process. Many requirements of our planning departments are based on a case-by-case analysis of proposed development. Hopefully those entrusted with such decisions will look beyond simple binary decisions to protect the vision within General Plans for our cities.

A house without a solid foundation cannot withstand the test of time. The same can be said for a city whose foundation or infrastructure is the key to a vibrant and positive future.

Significant changes are in progress or planned in Fremont's historic districts. So called, "pruning" efforts are being employed to concentrate retail activity while expanding lucrative residential construction. If done well, the result should be a vibrant town center surrounded by housing that supplies customers for commercial enterprises. Use of Transit Oriented Development (TOD) zoning envisions less use of automobiles due to a rich tapestry of shops, services and regional transit options for citizens living close by.

The moniker of TOD may a bit unfortunate since it appears to focus on mass transit options rather than a comprehensive examination of what should be provided in these residential hubs. If transit is the only requisite for such living conditions, it minimizes the impact and

Wieckowski introduces food dye labeling bill

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

Citing mounting scientific evidence that synthetic food dyes contained in child-oriented food products trigger hyperactivity and other behavioral problems in some children with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and other behavioral disorders, State Senator Bob Wieckowski (D-Fremont) introduced Senate Bill 504 on February 16 to require warning labels on all food containing synthetic dyes in California.

"It's important for parents to have this information as they seek ways to help their children who suffer from behavioral problems," Wieckowski said. "Raising awareness through warning labels will educate parents about the adverse effects of food dye and empower them to make better-informed choices when they are shopping. These labels are in use in the European Union and Great Britain, and California parents deserve to be aware of the effects too."

"Mounting evidence demonstrates that synthetic dyes are not safe for many of our children," said Dr. Alan Greene, a practicing pediatrician in Menlo Park, and author of Feeding Baby Green. "California parents deserve fair warnings on food labels that dyes can trigger hyperactivity and other behavioral problems in some children."

The federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has acknowledged the growing body of evidence, concluding that "Exposure to food and food components, including artificial food colors and preservatives, may be associated with adverse behaviors, not necessarily related to hyperactivity, in certain susceptible children with ADHD and other problem behaviors, and possibly in susceptible children from the general population."

But the FDA has failed to protect children from food dyes, such as Yellow 5, Red 40 and many others. About 30 double-blind studies have investigated the effects of artificial colorings and other suspect additives. There's a growing consensus among physicians and researchers that excluding food dyes and certain other foods reduces adverse behavior in some children.

"We hope California enacts the sensible and science-based legislation being introduced today," said Michael F. Jacobson, executive director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest (CSPI), co-sponsor of the bill. "As long as the FDA is going to remain firmly planted on the sidelines, it makes perfect sense for California and other states to protect kids and their families from synthetic dyes.

The CSPI released a report in 2016, 'Seeing Red: Time for Action on Dyes.' Studies in the report found a connection between food dyes and adverse behavior linked to doses considerably lower than what's found in products, such as Kool-Aid Burst Cherry and Sunny D.

"This modest disclosure helping parents make informed choices about what they feed their children is long overdue," said Ed Howard, senior counsel at the Children's Advocacy Institute at the University of San Diego School of Law, a co-sponsor of SB 504.

Vintage social protest art on exhibit

SUBMITTED BY SUSAN HELMER

UC-Berkeley and UC-Santa Cruz.

Before the era of the personal computer and the internet, social protest movements sought a creative low-cost medium for carrying their messages to the public. On college campuses silk screen printing was done painstakingly by hand, often on the back of long fan-folding computer printouts.

Fremont residents have a chance to see a good collection of these posters through March 26 as the Fremont Art Association presents an exhibit, "The Art of Protest: 1960s - 1970s" at its gallery in the Niles district.

Posted on walls and bulletin boards, the posters were collected mostly after the events that they publicized were past, or after they had been displayed for a period of time or been discarded. The posters date from the period 1969 to 1972.

This collection of wood-framed posters was publicly unveiled at the San Jose Peace and Justice Center during its 50th Anniversary Celebration in 2007. The frames were fabricated out of wood recycled from deconstructed homes by workers at Whole House Building Supply in East Palo Alto which donated the materials and labor. The San Jose Peace and Justice Center continues to add to this collection.

On Sunday, March 19, Sharat G. Lin of the San Jose Peace and Justice Center will speak at the gallery about "The Art of Protest" posters and the opportunities for protest art today. An audience discussion will follow the presentation.

Fremont Police Log

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA
BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

Monday, Feb 6

At about 4:45 p.m. patrol units were sent to investigate a reported strong-arm robbery at Starbucks coffee shop in the Warm Springs district. Three suspects entered the business and stole a laptop from a victim who was pushed to the ground. The trio left the scene in a grey BMW X5 which fled on Mission Boulevard toward I-880. Several minutes later Officer Francisco spotted a similar vehicle northbound on I-880 near Thornton Avenue. He followed the car when it exited onto Decoto Road. After checking the license plate it's determined the car was stolen from Sacramento. After a short pursuit, the vehicle went back onto southbound I-880 where and escaped into heavy commute traffic. A witness later reports the BMW back traveling north on I-880, but it was not located.

Officers investigated a grand theft incident that occurred at Fry's Electronics. A woman was reported running out of the store carrying a camera valued at more than $1,000. She was seen fleeing with a male driver on a motorcycle on Osgood Road toward Washington Boulevard. Officer Berrier spotted the motorcycle and tried to stop it with Officer Loughery at the intersection of Roberts Avenue and Washington Boulevard. However, the motorcycle driver fled down an alley and was quickly lost.

Thursday, Feb 9

At 11:08 a.m. Officer Vucurevich responded to a call from Archstone Apartments and contacted the reporting party whose laptop was lost or stolen a few days prior. The reporting party was now getting text messages from someone stating he would get his laptop back in exchange for cash. Detectives began assisting with the investigation and arrested a 45-year-old, Antioch man on suspicion of extortion, taking a vehicle without permission and identity theft.

Monday, Feb 13

Fremont Police and Fire Department personnel responded to a report of a body found in the bay at the end of the Dumbarton fishing pier. PD and FFP responded to the end of the Dumbarton fishing pier when a body was spotted in the bay. Alameda County Sheriff's Office responded to recover the body and will be responsible for releasing the name after confirming the identity as well as determining the cause of death

A reporting party called from the Walmart store on Albrae Street and said she and her adult daughter had almost been run over by another driver. When units arrive they discover that when the mother and daughter arrived at Walmart, the daughter was immediately confronted by an older transient male. The victim was unsure what the suspect was angry about or why he was causing a disturbance with her daughter. The suspect then got into an older minivan full of garbage and almost struck the victim with the van while leaving. The suspect was described as a white male, 68-69 year-old, unshaven with a thin face.

Wednesday, Feb 15

At 5:55 a.m., Officer Sun investigated a call that was initially thought to be arson in the 38800 block of Fremont Boulevard. Fremont Fire called for assistance with a vehicle fire. A Dodge Neon was badly damaged by the fire and a second vehicle parked next to the vehicle was also damaged. There were no witnesses, but officers later viewed surveillance video that showed a white vehicle pull into the business. It appears that when suspects tried to jump start the Neon (to possibly steal) that it caught on fire. No further suspect information, the camera footage was not very good making it difficult to see details.

Fremont man arrested in murder investigation

SUBMITTED BY
LT. RAJ MAHARAI,
MILPITAS PD

Following a car chase near the Great Mall of the Bay Area, a Fremont man was arrested by Milpitas police on suspicion of murder, robbery, felony evasion and having an outstanding warrant.

Events started at about 10:45 p.m. Friday, Feb. 10 when police responded to a report of a single car collision on South Main Street near Great Mall Parkway. A man was spotted getting out of the car, described as a black 2002 Mitsubishi Galant sedan. He ran toward the nearby Ilara Apartments.

As officers arrived in the area, they heard an apparent gunshot and saw a car speed away. Officers attempted to stop the car, but it fled and a short pursuit ensued. The car ultimately collided with another vehicle on South Abel Street at Serra Way and became disabled. Officers were able to take the solo driver into custody. A search of the vehicle found a firearm in the front passenger seat area.

The driver was identified as Stuart Baronngau, a 30-year-old Fremont resident, who was on parole and had an outstanding felony warrant for parole violation from the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office.

With the assistance of the San Jose Police Department and Santa Clara County Sheriff's Office, police searching the apartment complex found a man in the parking garage with an apparent gunshot wound. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Baronngau was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail for several charges, including murder, robbery, felony evasion, and his outstanding warrant. Police don't believe there are other suspects involved.

This investigation is still active. Anyone with information regarding the case is asked to call the Milpitas Police Department at (408) 586-2400. Additionally, the information can be given anonymously by calling the Crime Tip Hotline at (408) 586-2500.

The good, bad and unknown about marijuana's health effects

BY MALCOLM RITTER AP SCIENCE WRITER

A new report concludes that marijuana can almost certainly ease chronic pain and might help some people sleep, but that it's also likely to raise the risk of getting schizophrenia.

Those are among the conclusions in a big review of past research that was released Jan. 12 by a federal advisory panel.

The experts also called for more studies about marijuana and its chemical cousins. They said the current lack of scientific information poses a public health risk because patients, health care professionals and policy makers need more evidence to make sound decisions.

In reviewing studies published since 1999, it reached nearly 100 conclusions about potential benefits and risks.

Fremont students named candidates for Presidential Scholars Program

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN KILGORE

The Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) is proud to announce 38 of its high school students have been named as candidates for the United States Presidential Scholars Program.

Established in 1964, by executive order of the President, the U.S. Presidential Scholars Program recognizes and honors some of our nation's most distinguished graduating high school seniors. In 1979, the program was extended to recognize students who demonstrate exceptional talent in the visual, creative and performing arts. Each year, up to 161 students are named as Presidential Scholars, one of the nation's highest honors for high school students.

Thirty-one students from Mission San Jose High School, 11 from Irvington High School, five from American High School and one from Washington High School are invited to apply for semifinalist positions from which the Scholars will be chosen in May 2017.

"It is always a thrill to see so many students from our District listed among those being considered for this honor," said FUSD Superintendent Dr. Jim Morris. Of the thousands and thousands of high school seniors from around the country to be considered, to have a significant number from the Fremont Unified School District representing four of our schools is a testament to the great work being done in our classrooms."

Students chosen as U.S. Presidential Scholars receive an expense-paid trip to Washington, D. C. in June and the U.S. Presidential Scholars medallion at a ceremony sponsored by the White House, in commemoration of their achievements. During their visit to Washington, Scholars have access to important national and international figures, including government officials, educators, authors, musicians, scientists and other accomplished people. Scholars are provided opportunities to: wrestle with issues that concern America and the world; attend recitals, receptions and ceremonies held in their honor; and visit area museums and monuments. But perhaps the greatest benefit to the Scholars, and the one they most often remark on, is the chance to exchange ideas with similarly motivated and accomplished peers, and to forge friendships that last a lifetime.

Drivers see higher premiums after not-at-fault crashes

JENNIFER C. KERR,
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most drivers don't expect to be hit with a rate hike on their auto insurance after a car accident that wasn't their fault. But a consumer group says it happens, and it's a problem.

The Washington-based Consumer Federation of America says it found rate hikes on annual premiums as high as $400, in some cases.

In the report released Monday, the group analyzed premium quotes in 10 cities, including New York and Chicago, from five of the nation's largest auto insurers. The researchers found that Progressive aggressively used a not-at-fault penalty, surcharging drivers in eight of the 10 selected cities. Rates in Oklahoma City and Los Angeles did not change. Oklahoma and California prohibit not-at-fault penalties.

The group said GEICO and Farmers raised rates in some states by 10 percent or more. Allstate had occasional penalties. State Farm was the exception, with no increases on premiums for not-at-fault accidents.

"Most people know that if they cause an accident or get a ticket they could face a premium increase, but they don't expect to be punished if a reckless driver careens into them," said Bob Hunter, CFA's director of insurance and the former insurance commissioner of Texas.

In response, the Insurance Information Institute said the underwriting of a new auto insurance policy requires the collection of much more information beyond what CFA gathered from the auto insurers' websites.

Loretta Worters, vice president of communications at the industry trade group, says it also is rarely clear-cut as to who the at-fault party is after a collision. But she said one reason rates may rise for the not-at-fault driver is subrogation—when an insurer, after paying a loss, seeks to recover money from the at-fault driver's insurer.

Neil Alldredge, a senior vice president at the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, says the report "only underscores the fact that insurance rates can vary widely from company to company, based on how different companies may weigh the many different factors that are considered in determining rates."

Among the cities tested, drivers in New York City and Baltimore paid out the most for doing nothing wrong, the consumer group said. In Baltimore, premiums increased more than $250 and in New York City, it was about $400. In Chicago and Kansas City, the average increase was about $100.

The federation's report found that people with moderate incomes often saw bigger premium increases than upper-income people. That seemed to mirror average premiums in the report even for people with clean driving records and no accidents, with middle-income people generally seeing higher premium rates than those people with bigger incomes.

The consumer group called the five biggest auto insurers and asked for quotes for two 30-year-old female drivers, living at the same address in the different cities, licensed for 14 years and driving a 2006 Toyota Camry with 10,000 miles. One woman had a master's degree and was a home owner. The other woman had a high school diploma and rented her home.

The report found drivers with higher incomes, on average, paid $78 more after a no-fault accident. Moderate-income drivers paid $208 more after an accident in which they were not to blame.

Fremont News Briefs

SUBMITTED BY CHERYL GOLDEN

Morrison Canyon Road closed

Due to recent storm-related damage, potential landslides from the expected storms, and time needed for repairs, the City of Fremont has closed Morrison Canyon Road. The closure will remain in place until approximately the beginning of March or when weather passes and repairs can be completed. A soft closure is in place at Canyon Heights Drive to provide access to the resident along Morrison Canyon. A hard closure (road will not be opened except for emergency vehicles) is in place immediately past this driveway, approximately 1,300 feet east of Canyon Heights Drive, and at Vargas Road. If you have any questions, please contact City of Fremont Maintenance division at 510-979-5700.

Fremont Continues to 'Go Green'

Over the past year, the City of Fremont has busy approving and implementing climate action initiatives to reduce the City's carbon footprint, conserve valuable resources, and reduce operational costs. New and continuing sustainability projects include:

The installation of over 15,000 LED streetlights and park lights, high-efficiency facility lighting and plumbing fixtures, weather-based irrigation controls for City parks, and energy conserving pumps at Aqua Adventure Waterpark. At project completion, the City will save 4.7 million kilowatt-hours of electricity, 8.7 million gallons of water, and 12,000 therms of gas annually. The project will also reduce the City's greenhouse gas footprint by 976 tons of carbon.

The installation of eight dual-port, Level II electric vehicle (EV) charging stations at the City's Development Services Center, Central Park Boathouse, and along Capitol Avenue between State Street and Fremont Boulevard to encourage EV adoption. An additional nine EV charging stations along Capitol Avenue between Paseo Padre Parkway and State Street will be added this spring.

Installation of a solar panel carport structure this spring at the City's Maintenance Center will offset the facility's entire electricity usage, reducing greenhouse gas emissions by more than 100 tons of carbon. The system will be pre-wired for future EV charging stations for City fleet vehicles. Together with the solar already installed at the Aqua Adventure Waterpark, Fremont Police Complex, and Irvington Community Center, this will amount to more than 1.5 megawatts of power, the equivalent of 422 Fremont homes' annual electricity use.

Installation of solar panel systems with energy storage units at three Fremont fire stations this coming spring. These projects, part of a "microgrid" energy demonstration for the California Energy Commission, will reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 35 tons of carbon, as well as increase the resilience of those facilities by providing them with stored energy power in the event of a utility outage.

The addition of buffered bike lanes along the City's main roads, pedestrian countdown signals at all intersections, green-striped bike lanes in the City Center, and a protected bike lane along Grimmer Boulevard. These projects create a bicycle and pedestrian-friendly community, aligning with the City's Bicycle and Pedestrian Master Plan and the Vision Zero 2020 Action Plan.

The rollout of a carshare pilot program with Zipcar outside the Fremont BART station and Centerville Train Depot, offering alternatives to individual automobile ownership and enhancing public transportation options.

To learn more, visit www.Fremont.gov/CityUpgrades and www.Fremont.gov/VisionZero2020.

City Building Permits Allow for Safe Construction and Peace of Mind

If you're thinking about remodeling your kitchen, installing a new water heater, or replacing your backyard fence, don't forget that City building permits are required before you build, alter, repair, or demolish any structure. This includes remodeling projects, re-roofing projects, replacing water heaters and windows, building fences over seven feet, and other similar projects. Check out the different types of permits required at www.Fremont.gov/BuildingPermits.

For more information, call the City of Fremont Plans and Permits division at 510-494-4460 or visit the Development Services Center at 39550 Liberty St. in Fremont.

Giving Hope Program's Crab Feed Fundraiser

This Crab Feed means two things: supporting a noteworthy cause and an all-you-can-eat crab feast! The Niles Main Street Association and the City of Fremont will host a Crab Feed fundraiser on March 11 that will benefit the City's Giving Hope Program and the Niles Community. You won't want to miss it! By participating in this fundraiser, you will have the opportunity to help out local families and seniors in need, while enjoying a full spread of all-you-can-eat crab, pasta, salad, garlic bread, and dessert.

But the fun doesn't stop there! After dinner enjoy the no-host-bar and live music, authentic Irish dancers, comedy from three local comedians, bid on auction items, keep the silent auction bidding going, take photos, and dance if the music moves you.

The event on Saturday, March 11 will take place at the Fremont Veterans' Hall, 37154 Second St. in Fremont's Niles District. The doors open at 6 p.m.—grab your table and enjoy the first hour mixer.

Tickets can be purchased online at www.niles.org/crab-feed or stop by Keith's Collectibles, the Nile Café, or Joe's Corner bar to purchase paper tickets.

Additional donations and sponsorships are always welcomed. Please contact Han Trinh at htrinh121@gmail.com or Jane O'Hollaren at johollaren@fremont.gov.

Now Recruiting Teen Police Explorers

The Fremont Police Department is currently accepting applications for the teen Explorer Program. The Explorer Program is a fun and safe way for teenagers to learn more about the field of law enforcement and get community service hours. Explorers donate between five and 20 volunteer hours each month by participating in a number of department activities including ride-alongs, traffic control, building tours, and special events. All new Explorers are required to attend a one-week Explorer Academy in Southern California in August 2017.

If you are between the ages of 14 to 18 and think that you might be interested in learning more about becoming a Police Explorer or having a future career in law enforcement, please visit www.FremontPolice.org/Explorers.

Applications will be accepted through Friday, March 3, 2017 at 5 p.m. For more information contact Community Services Officer/ Volunteer Administrator Lauren Baca at 510-790-6691.

HISTORY

SUBMITTED BY
KELSEY CAMELLO FOR WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP
MUSEUM OF LOCAL HISTORY

This year, Ohlone College is celebrating the fifty-year anniversary since the first classes were held in the fall of 1967. In those fifty years, much has changed at Ohlone College, but what's to be said about the history of the land during the two-hundred and fifty years preceding its establishment?

Like all California land, the geographic location of the Ohlone College Fremont Campus has passed through the hands of many people and cultures over the years. The first inhabitants were the Ohlone Native Americans (thus the naming of the College), followed by the Spanish and Mexican people during the Mission Period (1769 – 1833, with Mission San Jose founded in 1797) and the Rancho Period (1834-1849). In 1850, the land came under American control as California became the 31st state.

The pioneering history of the area, from 1850 through the building of the college's first structures in the 1970s, is itself just as colored and interesting as that of the earlier years.

In 1852, Joseph C. Palmer, a San Francisco banker, purchased the property that is now home to Ohlone College. On it he operated the Peak Vineyard and established a second home there. Palmer had cultivated 140,000 vines by 1874, and by 1876 he owned the finest and largest winery in Alameda County, with enough storage room for 100,000 gallons of wine. The winery was well known around the United States.

Palmer's father in law, Edward Field, loaned a large amount of money to the bank and the land was transferred to him as security. This is why a popular 1878 Thompson and West map of the Mission San Jose area shows the Peak Vineyard land as being owned by an E. Field.

Charles C. McIver and his wife Clorinda (maiden name Stevens) became the next owners of the land when, in 1888, McIver purchased the Peak Vineyard and cultivated it into his own vineyard and estate, called Linda Vista. The park was remarkable due to its beautiful newly built home and extensive gardens, so charming a place that the estate became a noted destination of travelling poet Joaquin Miller. Linda Vista wines were award winning, including seven first prizes at the 1892 Columbian Exposition in Chicago. Additionally, the wine was exclusively served by the Pullman Palace Car Company. McIver also operated a profitable dairy and raised pure blooded stock onsite.

In the late 1890s, the tranquil life at Linda Vista was disrupted forever. The 1892 home burned down, Phylloxera bugs killed all the vines, the McIvers divorced, and the property transferred into Clorinda's mother's name. By 1898, Clorinda and her mother had rebuilt the home (in a different style than the 1892 home). The building still stands today; it houses the police and security services on campus. Clorinda and her mother continued to farm the land, including prunes, other fruits, and olives for olive oil. They planted the olive trees that still line the walkway from Mission Boulevard to the Orchard House today.

Tom and Blanche Witherly purchased the land from the Stevens' in 1922. On their farm they cultivated peas and prunes, until the depression era forced hard times onto the Witherlys. Subsequently, they sold lots for homes along Witherly Lane (the road bordering the north side of campus). They turned the remainder of the land into

In 1968, the Huddleson Ranch property was chosen as the site of the future Ohlone Community College. It was a purchase of 480 acres for 1.9 million dollars. Eleven million dollars in bonds was passed that same year to provide for the building of the campus.

Between 1967 and 1974 classes were alternatively held at the Serra Center (the former Saint Mary of the Palms School for Girls), Our Savior Lutheran Church and the old Mission San Jose School. Graduation ceremonies and the ground-breaking for the new campus were held in 1971 at Linda Vista Park. Construction began in 1972, and the first classes on the new campus were held in 1974.

The only buildings that remain on the property today which existed prior to the campus' inception are the Orchard House (1898) – now home to police and security services – building 20, and the Huddleson Ranch Home (1960s) – now the President's Office – building 27.

While ownership of the land has changed hands numerous times over the years, the outlook atop campus looking out towards the San Francisco Bay remains. Take a walk up the hill sometime; recall the history of days gone by, and enjoy a beautiful panoramic view of the place many are lucky to have called "home."

5,000 people could be seen in the park in one day. The land was later purchased by Andrew Hynes and John Amaral and rebranded as the Linda Vista Park Co. in the 1940s.

E. E. Huddleson bought what was left of the original property in 1948. Huddleson employed a foreman, lived the life of an upscale farmer, and was active in the community. He built a new home near the base of the hill, which still stands today as the President's Office on campus.

Speeding Along...

A horse drawn cart (right), stands alone amongst numerous automobiles on B Street, c. 1920. The image is looking west toward Main Street.

BY JOHN CHRISTIAN

At the turn of the 20th century the horse was still the primary mode of personal transportation for those living in and around the Hayward area. Automobiles were a luxury for the wealthy, out of reach for most people living in the area.

One early reference to an automobile in the Hayward area comes from a 1907 issue of the San Francisco Call newspaper. The article describes a hit and run accident in which a man was killed. The driver fled the scene and raced toward Oakland. The

Much of the early newspaper coverage of automobiles revolves around accidents like these, especially in the Hayward area.

Part of what made early automobile driving so dangerous was the condition of most roads. Most roads were unpaved, poorly maintained roads that made them dangerous year-round. Another factor was the lack of laws and regulations. There were no posted speed limits along the roadways in and around Hayward until the 1920s. It was not until the 1908 introduction of the Ford Model T and subsequent explosion of automobile sales that groups article speculated that the man must have been wealthy because he presumably owned the car.

began forming to encourage the improvement of roads for drivers. One such group was the Lincoln Highway association. Opened in 1913, the Lincoln Highway connected New York to San Francisco. The new highway was routed through the Hayward area and brought large numbers of "auto-tourists" right to downtown Hayward. A 1915 Lincoln Highway guidebook noted the presence of three service garages in Hayward, offering gasoline for about 12 cents a gallon. Local businessmen began to see opportunity in the sale and maintenance of automobiles.

New California vehicle codes required speed limits be posted for motorists along public roads. In the 1920s the maximum highway speed anywhere in California was 35 miles per hour. The speed limit in downtown Hayward was a just 15 miles per hour. To enforce the new laws the city of Hayward hired full time traffic officer Walter Alves in 1923. Despite these efforts, there was no shortage of bad drivers in Hayward.

young child were also in the car during the chase but were not hurt—and probably had a little fun! The local newspaper caught up with Macabee after the pursuit and quoted him as saying "It was a peach of a chase and I had to pit my speed against his but when he has to peel off a ten spot he'll wish I had been canned before he ever saw Hayward."

Throughout the 1920s Judge Jacob Harder heard numerous cases of speeding and reckless driving. The frequency of automotive accidents and near misses were reported constantly in local newspapers. The Hayward Review newspaper even regularly ran editorial jokes describing the awful driving of area residents. Perhaps the best one was, "Papa what do you call a man who runs an automobile?" "It depends on how near he comes to hitting me."

In August of 1925, a local resident named Peter Cozzo raced through town at a blistering (at the time) 40 miles per hour. With no traffic officers on duty to give chase, Hayward Fire Department Chief Manual Riggs took it upon himself to chase down Cozzo and apprehend him. Less than a year later, off-duty police officer F.E. Macabee, gave chase in his personal vehicle of another man driving recklessly through downtown Hayward.

At the time Macabee's car was loaded with crates of peaches. The trail of smashed peaches left evidence of the dangerous pursuit. Macabee's wife and Poor driving aside, the number of automobiles in Hayward continued to rise through the end of the 1920s. Guard rails, pavement and more rules and regulations were making travel to and from Hayward by car safer than ever before. The creation of what would become the California Highway Patrol in 1921, no doubt helped as well. In less than two decades, automobiles had gone from a novelty, to almost replacing the horse entirely. Hayward entered the automotive age and never looked back.

DISNEY IN HAYWARD?

JOAN GARBE

Joan Marino Garbe, born in the old Hayward Hospital, and a long-time Hayward resident, lived in the same house from birth to adulthood, but had three different addresses. First she lived at 751 Niles Road, then 1369 Castro Street, and finally 24687 Mission Boulevard. Why? The obvious answer to this mystery is that they moved the house. But no. Instead, the name of the street changed, as it progressed from a two lane dirt road to a four lane paved thoroughfare.

Garbe's family was anchored to this spot because besides a home, they had a store, The Marino Market. Her parents—Gloria and Antonio Marino—plus her aunt and uncle, Joe and Carmen Marino, ran the neighborhood market, for 30 years, providing candy to the kids, food to the adults, and a walking field trip site for students at nearby John Muir School. After showing the store, Garbe's mom would take the kids out back for a soda before their return trip to school.

Garbe's brothers and sisters were older, and thus had plenty of work to do at the store. As the baby, she would just dance on the counters for the many salesmen they had become friends with over the years. Her favorite store memory was the penny candy corner, where sweet-tooth classics such as red licorice, malt balls, and Necco wafers awaited neatly in boxes, and could be hers at two for a penny.

Her grandparents had left wartime Spain for Hawaii, but after raising their kids on different islands, Garbe's family emigrated to the United States, first Niles and Decoto, and then Hayward. They established their home and business in a semi-rural neighborhood with nearby apricot orchards, and a next door landscape business, with a yard full of rocks, paving stones, soil, and fertilizer.

A horse ranch—Casson's—was just across the road, near the Burgermeister Beer Distribution center. Sometimes, sheep, complete with herders and sheep dogs, would crowd their way past their store headed who knows where. Marinos owned all the way from Mission Blvd. to O'Neill Ave., the parallel street behind.

Once Hillcrest School was built across Mission, their driveway became a natural pathway from O'Neill to the new school. As a neighborhood center, this daily flow of kids was fine with her family.

One day while Garbe was off playing somewhere in their huge yard, a man with a mustache pulled into their small parking lot. The chatty fellow, picking up some soda and gum, told her parents he'd just come from Fairyland, getting tips for the new theme park he was constructing in Anaheim. Now he was on his way back to L.A., a long trip before freeways.

He paid and left, and it wasn't until much later, in 1955, as Disneyland's opening made the news, that they realized who that garrulous customer had been.

And for Garbe, by then in elementary school, this was a great stroke of luck. Her parents, like most small business owners, didn't take many vacations they worked. But when it dawned on them that they had met Walt Disney, that snacks from their Hayward store must have played a tiny part in the development of America's favorite theme park, they put aside their work ethic and took Garbe, the only child left at home, on the trip of a child's lifetime—Disneyland!

With only an elementary school education, Garbe's parents led a very successful life based on thrift and hard work. They managed to raise a family, plus save enough to first buy a store and home, expand the store, later buy more property on O'Neill Ave., and then build houses to rent out, both there and in other areas of Hayward. For over 30 years, they were part of the stable backbone of the Hayward community.

Yet, from one brief visit with a talkative stranger, their ordinary work-a-day life connected with one of the brightest stars in American culture Walt Disney in Hayward!
