HAYWARD PARKS & RECREATION

Reptiles: Resilient, remarkable, and resplendent from the tip of their noses to the end of their tails. On Saturday, July 27 the Bay Area Herpetological Society and Bay Area Turtle and Tortoise Rescue will be sharing their amazing array of reptiles at Sulphur Creek Nature Center. Come face to face with creatures that have endured the test of time, are scaly, and love to bask in the sun. Bring the family and slither into an exciting day of learning about snakes, lizards, turtles, and tortoises. Bring a picnic and enjoy getting back into nature.

Lights for Liberty Vigil

SUBMITTED BY TONI SHELLEN

On July 12, more than 80 members of the Tri-City community gathered near Fremont's Unity Circle to stand up for refugees and asylum seekers, and to oppose the United States' inhumane treatment of them at detention camps. People are especially outraged over the callous and negligent treatment of children. The local event was organized in response to a call for mass mobilization by "Lights for Liberty," a coalition dedicated to human rights. The vigil was one of more than 788 Lights for Liberty national and worldwide events.

Speakers included Reverend Jo Green from Mission Peak Unitarian Universalist Church, who reminded us, "That to throw open our doors for those in need is what it truly means to be American." Reverend Jeff Spencer from Niles Discovery Church and president of Tri-City Interfaith Council, emphasized, "Although we probably don't all agree on what our immigration policy should look like, we all agree that everyone should be treated humanely."

Laughing is Great—Except When it Isn't

Free health seminar offered to address female occasional incontinence

Are you hesitant or afraid to really laugh at a funny joke or a comic scene in a movie for fear you might experience loss of bladder control and leak some urine? What about when you sneeze or cough hard? Similar problem?

Dr. Victoria Leiphart, a Washington Hospital gynecologist, will discuss causes of incontinence, the ways in which incontinence affects women, and treatment options at a free public seminar on Wednesday, August 21.

Titled "Laugh Without Leaking: Understanding Female Urinary Incontinence," the program will be from 6 to 8 p.m., at the Washington Township Medical Foundation Danielson Clinic (formerly known as the WTMF Newark clinic), 6236 Thornton Ave., Newark. The program is open to all community members, both men and women.

While the seminar will focus mainly on incontinence issues affecting women, Dr. Leiphart also will provide a brief overview of male incontinence issues. Time will be set aside for audience questions. Generally, incontinence affects up to 50 percent of women at some point in their lives, according to Dr. Leiphart. "Young women can experience incontinence but the majority of women with incontinence are middle-aged or older."

Laughing, exercising, even sneezing, can cause slight urinary leakage. Free seminar explains what you can do and when to seek help.

Incontinence can be caused by a variety of issues ranging from damage to the pelvic floor (which can occur from pregnancy, childbirth or surgery) to overactive bladder muscle. As one ages, the bladder muscle can be less elastic, decreasing the bladder's ability to store urine. The combination of age and obesity exacerbates the incidence of incontinence in women.

Treatments vary, depending on the root cause, Dr. Leiphart says, and she warns that it is very important that the treatment match the cause. "Often incontinence can worsen if the prescribed treatment isn't appropriate for the underlying cause," Dr. Leiphart explains. "One size does not fit all." Treatments range from pelvic floor exercises to medication to surgery in some cases.

Anatomy is one of the main reasons more women than men experience incontinence. The female urethra is shorter and wider than the male urethra and thus more affected by some of the common causes of incontinence such as obesity.

Dr. Leiphart encourages women with leaking issues to seek medical advice. Many women believe it's a female issue that comes with age, but she notes, "Women may think: if you leak, you leak. They don't realize that the issue often is easily treated."

Registration for the seminar is not required, but is encouraged. Register online at www.whhs.com/events. Or call (800) 963-7070 to register or for additional information.

Free Health Fair

Saturday, Aug. 10, in Union City

Nakamura Clinic To Offer Health Screenings and Expert Advice

The staff of the Nakamura Clinic look forward to welcoming community members on Aug. 10.

When was the last time you had professional screenings for your blood glucose and cholesterol levels, or for your blood pressure and body mass index (BMI)? Have you avoided scheduling an appointment for these critical tests because of the potential expense or because it might entail travel outside your community?

Fortunately, if you live in or near Union City, you soon will have an opportunity to get these vital health screenings for free on Saturday, August 10. The health fair is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF) Nakamura Clinic located at 33077 Alvarado-Niles Road in Union City. Free parking is available, and a stop for the AC Transit bus #97 is located in front of the clinic. While walk-in visits are welcome, registration is encouraged to schedule a specific time for the health screenings.

"Studies have shown that we have high rates of diabetes and cardiovascular disease in the Tri-City Area," says Washington Hospital Community Outreach Manager, Lucy Hernandez. "Prevention is key to maintaining good health, so we feel events like these are important for people in the communities we serve. People really need to know their numbers for blood sugar, cholesterol, blood pressure and BMI. This free health fair also will have WTMF physicians and Washington Hospital health care experts available to discuss the results of your screenings and answer your questions about health concerns such as diabetes, nutrition, heart disease and stroke.'

WTMF staff will conduct the blood pressure and BMI screenings. Laboratory technicians from Washington Hospital will perform the blood glucose and cholesterol tests. Experts also will be available from the following Washington Hospital clinics and programs to discuss participant questions:

- Outpatient Diabetes Center: diabetes and blood glucose management
- Stroke Program: education on stroke prevention, symptoms and treatment
- Outpatient Nutrition Services: nutrition tips and counseling
- Wound Healing: diabetic foot exams and tips for healthy feet
- Health Insurance Information Service: advice about insurance coverage, including Alameda Alliance, Medicare, Medi-Cal and private insurance
- Pharmacy: medication safety concerns

"The health fair at Nakamura Clinic will provide a friendly, inclusive atmosphere for meeting our experts and getting answers to your various health care questions," Hernandez notes.

"We have been making a concerted effort to bring our services out into the local Tri-City communities because some people are unable to leave their immediate community to attend health fairs at Washington Hospital," she adds. "We previously held a similar health fair at WTMF's Newark Clinic, which was well attended, and we hope to have a good response at the Nakamura Clinic, too." All community members are welcome.

For more information or to register for screenings at the August 10 health fair, call (800) 963-7070.

Day of The Cowboy

Rowell Ranch Rodeo, a non-profit organization will host a free "Cowboy Education Day" to honor the American Cowboy, on Saturday, July 27 (National Day of the Cowboy). Participants will learn about cowboy culture and western heritage, and watch demonstrations of saddle making, horse shoeing, and Chuck Wagon Dutch oven cooking. The arena will feature dog and horse demonstrations.

The celebration continues on Sunday, July 28 at 8 a.m. when Rowell Ranch Pro Rodeo will host the Third Annual Western States Ranch Rodeo Association-sanctioned free "Rowell Ranch Day of the Cowboy Ranch Rodeo." Competition will include tasks like those performed every day on the ranch such as Calf Branding, Team Roping, Yearling Doctoring, Line Sorting, and Trailer Loading. Contestants include local ranchers, as well as cowboys, and cowgirls from throughout California and Oregon—all competing for a spot in the Western States Ranch Rodeo Association Finals in Winnemucca, Nevada. (Food available for purchase)

The Rowell Ranch Pro Rodeo non-profit association was formed in 1977 to preserve the historic community rodeo begun by local rancher and businessman Harry Rowell almost 100 years ago. Proceeds from the annual rodeo and related events provide much needed funding to many local charitable organizations including, Special Olympics, Tough Enough to Wear Pink Breast Cancer Awareness Program, 4-H, Future Farmers of America (FFA), Hayward Rotary, Castro Valley Breakfast Lions

Plaque to commemorate Country Club of Washington Township

SUBMITTED BY AL MINARD PHOTOS BY AL MINARD AND ROBERT FISHER

The Washington Township Historical Society was founded over 60 years ago. Part of its mission is to recognize historic sites with plaques. This summer and early fall, three Tri-City area locations will be recognized. The first of these new markers will honor the Country Club of Washington Township building in Centerville, an important part of the historical fabric of

Fremont. The building is now occupied by St. Christina of Tyre Orthodox Church.

Formation of the Women's Country Club of Washington Township on December 10, 1896 was the result of a merger between two existing women's clubs. Later changed to Country Club of Washington Township, its stated purpose was to secure the advantages of unity and mutual helpfulness, to gain vigor of reason, to widen intellectual and moral vision and increase capacity to discern social justice.

Historical papers prepared by club members led to publication of The History of Washington Township in 1904. That same year, members decided to build a clubhouse near the center of the township. They raised funds and bought a lot for about $650 on Parish Avenue in 1913. Cornerstone ceremonies were celebrated April 7, 1914, and the first meeting was held there on July 6, 1914. The building was constructed by Lewis and Silva at a cost of $2,239.50 plus $60.20 for extras. The loan was paid off and mortgage burning ceremonies were held in 1919. The club has been involved in many efforts to benefit the community. They sponsored the first local health clinic and worked to found the area's first health center, which later became Washington Hospital. They began advocating for kindergarten in 1915 and were the first to push for a Parent Teacher Association. The building was used by the Women's Club and other organizations as well as for weddings and other celebrations.

Unfortunately, over the years, the cost of maintenance became too great for the organization, so the building was sold to a neighbor who later re-sold it to St. Christina of Tyre Orthodox Church. However, the spirit of the club lives on. The Women's Club is part of a national organization of women's clubs and is still meeting and continuing with their mission.

Dedication of the plaque will be held Saturday, July 27. The public is invited to attend this ceremony and recognize the good works of the Country Club of Washington Township Women's Club and Washington Township Historical Society.

Ban on glyphosate use in picnic areas

SUBMITTED BY DAVE MASON

On July 16, the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors unanimously approved Resolution 2019-07-187, which calls for an immediate ban on glyphosate use in picnic areas with full elimination in all developed park areas by the end of 2020. Glyphosate is currently used as part of the park district's pest integration management program for fire ignition prevention and vegetation maintenance around park structures, fences, walkways, parking areas, and in public right-of-way areas including roads, bike paths, and trails.

The park district recognizes that there are public concerns about glyphosate use. In 2016, the district updated its integrated pest management practices to focus on early intervention strategies and the use of organic products when possible as an alternative to glyphosate. Over the past two years, the park district has reduced glyphosate use by 66 percent for park maintenance.

"The park district has taken large steps over the past two years to reduce glyphosate use and find alternatives," said East Bay Regional Park District President Ayn Wieskamp. "We are proud to be a leader in parkland management. Managing the complex spectrum of land that the park district does, with requisite state and federal requirements, is not easy or inexpensive."

Jenny Lin Foundation Concert

SUBMITTED BY JENNY LIN FOUNDATION

Childhood is the time to explore life, to learn and to grow. For Jenny Lin, however, this time was brutally cut short when she was fatally stabbed in her own home in Castro Valley on May 27, 1994, two days after her fourteenth birthday. This murder marked the darkest day of the lives of her family and of the community, and made us wonder if joyful sounds would be heard ever again...

Following the loss of Jenny, her family and friends established a namesake organization with a mission to promote child safety. Jenny Lin Foundation has sponsored many events and projects that embraced Jenny's passion in music and friendship. Every summer the Foundation organizes a Youth Music Program offered free-of-charge to band, orchestra and choral musicians across the Bay Area. Over the years, thousands of school-aged musicians have benefited from this six-week program through musical opportunities, fellowship, leadership training, and scholarships.

At the 25th Anniversary Concert this year, Richard Meyer's heartfelt work From Darkness, Joyful Sounds Are Born—composed for and dedicated to Jenny Lin Foundation—will make its debut. Meyer is a highly sought-after music educator, guest conductor, clinician, and author. A nationally-recognized composer based in Southern California, he has made plans to visit Castro Valley to meet with our musicians who will be performing his recent composition! At the evening rehearsal on Monday, July 15, Meyer conducted a workshop with the Orchestra musicians to help them achieve an authentic rendition of his emotional piece.

Hosted by Emmy Award-winning journalist Cheryl Jennings, the free concert on Saturday, July 27 features the world premiere of Meyer's From Darkness, Joyful Sounds Are Born, which is all about overcoming hardships. To deliver the audience from darkness and sorrow, everyone in attendance is invited to join in producing joyful sounds of clapping, stomping and singing to share in the joy and hope that eventually emerge after suffering. This uplifting experience is expected to help the community find solace in Jenny's legacy, and stay hopeful that justice will be served before long as law enforcement authorities continue their relentless efforts in bringing closure to Jenny's case.

Bike straps coming to BART trains

SUBMITTED BY
SINDHU ANANTHAVEL

A simple but effective idea — straps attached to the rail in bike spaces on BART trains — has proven so popular with riders that the straps are being added to all trains.

Cyclists can use the straps to secure their bike to the rail, so there's less chance of bikes jostling each other. The cyclist doesn't have to hold on to the bike, freeing up their hands to steady themselves during the ride, too. Each strap can secure two bikes.

Steve Beroldo, Manager of Access Programs at BART, spearheaded a pilot project where different types of straps were tested and riders were surveyed for their feedback. Beroldo, who is also the liaison to the BART Bicycle Task Force, worked with a UC-Berkeley civil engineering student on the prototype for the straps.

"We wanted to offer a more formal method for people to hold their bikes," Beroldo said, one that would be safer and steadier for cyclists and non-cyclists alike, so people wouldn't resort to makeshift solutions like bungee cords.

What was ultimately chosen as the best design is a flame-retardant nylon strap, similar to the overhead hand straps riders use to stabilize themselves, with a simple, black buckle, attached to the rail using a rivet for security.

An online survey to gather rider input on the straps produced "overwhelmingly positive feedback," Beroldo said. One rider wrote, "I love them! They are very helpful and I don't have to worry about my bike sliding and hitting others sitting nearby. Please install them everywhere!" Another commented on the increased room straps provide: "I love, love, love them. Such a huge help and clears up space."

The straps were originally tested in about 60 bike spaces on legacy cars throughout the BART system, with two straps per bike space. Now they're being gradually added to all the original train cars.

And they'll eventually be in new Fleet of the Future cars, too. The new cars were originally outfitted with built-in bike racks to test with riders, but the three rubber U-shaped docks turned out not to be ideal for many cyclists. Bikes with larger tires didn't fit easily in the docks, and although there were three spaces, sometimes only two bikes could fit.

"We listened to the feedback from bike riders, and they said the racks weren't working well, so we're going to take them out and go with the straps on all trains," Beroldo said.

The goal for these new straps is to make bicyclists' onboard experience easier, and thus encourage more people to ride their bikes to BART. This stems from the 2012 BART Bicycle Plan which sets a goal of doubling the number of passengers who access BART by bicycle from the current 4% to 8% by 2022. An increase in this method of transport means less traffic congestion, increased ridership and a better BART experience for everyone.

California readies $1.6 billion rail design contract

By Kathleen Ronayne Associated Press

California is moving toward awarding a $1.65 billion contract to design and construct the tracks and system for the first segment of its beleaguered high-speed rail project.

The California High Speed Rail Authority's board of directors on Tuesday approved releasing a request for qualified bidders for the project. Rail officials hope to issue the contract by next summer.

The contract would cover a 119-mile segment of rail in the Central Valley. The firm it's awarded to would be responsible for designing and building rail infrastructure including tracks, a signaling system, platforms and the overhead electrification system. It would maintain the tracks for a set period of time, likely 30 years.

A U.S. subsidiary of a German rail company has already been awarded a contract for early operation of the train.

Plan to build 1st small US nuke reactors in Idaho advances

By Keith Ridler Associated Press

A plan to build the nation's first small modular nuclear reactors to produce commercial power is a step closer to being realized.

A Utah-based energy cooperative said Wednesday that it has sales contracts for enough carbon-free power to begin a license application process with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to build the reactors in eastern Idaho.

Utah Associated Municipal Power Systems already has agreements with the U.S. Department of Energy to build the reactors at the federal agency's 890-square-mile (2,300-square-kilometer) site that includes the Idaho National Laboratory.

A small modular nuclear reactor can produce about 60 megawatts of energy, or enough to power more than 50,000 homes. The proposed project includes 12 small modular reactors.

The energy cooperative said it has carbon-free contracts for more than 150 megawatts. Its goal is to begin construction on the reactors in 2023, with the first reactor starting up in 2026.

Specifically, the energy cooperative is embarked on a plan called the Carbon Free Power Project that aims to supply carbon-free energy to its nearly 50 members, mostly municipalities, in six Western states. It says 34 members have now signed on, pushing it past 150 megawatts and triggering work on the license application with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The company said the carbon-free plan is in response to new technologies and regulations targeting fossil fuels.

Last year, it reached an agreement with the Energy Department that would use one of the reactors for research and development, and another for power needed by the Idaho National Laboratory, considered the nation's primary federal nuclear research lab. Scientists at the lab will have access to one of the modular reactors for experiments.

Licensing from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the reactors, being built by an Oregon company called NuScale Power, and an environmental analysis of the high desert site where they will be built are needed before construction can start.

The small modular reactors will usher "in a new generation of smaller, safer, more flexible, less expensive, carbon-free nuclear energy," the energy cooperative said in a news release.

The modular reactors are also part of a much larger federal plan to replace current reactors, many of them decades old, with more efficient and safer reactors. U.S. officials say nuclear power helps reduce carbon emissions from coal and natural gas, a cause of global warming.

About 20% of the nation's energy comes from nuclear power.

Study: Rising sea levels could cost Seattle $23B by 2040

AP WIRE SERVICE

A climate study has estimated that Seattle's costs associated with sea level rise could be more than $23.8 billion by 2040.

KOMO-TV reported Wednesday that the Center for Climate Integrity conducted the evaluation of potential costs of constructing seawalls in 22 coastal states and the District of Columbia.

Washington state ranked seventh between New Jersey ($24.9 billion) and California ($21.9 billion).

Florida ($75.8 billion), Louisiana ($38.4 billion) and North Carolina ($34.8 billion) are projected to have the highest costs.

The study released in June says U.S. overall costs will top $400 billion.

The analysis was done in conjunction with engineering firm Resilient Analytics and the University of Colorado.

The study used a sea level rise model, storm surge estimates and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration shoreline data.

Apple, Google continue inclusive push with new emojis

AP WIRE SERVICE

Apple and Google are rolling out dozens of new emojis that of course include cute critters, but also expand the number images of human diversity.

The announcement coincides with Wednesday's World Emoji Day. Apple Inc. is releasing new variants of its holding hands emoji that allow people to pick any combination of skin tone and gender, 75 possible combinations in all. There are also wheelchairs, prosthetic arms and legs, as well as a new guide dog and an ear with a hearing aid.

And then there's the sloth, the flamingo, the skunk, the orangutan, as well as a new yawning emoji.

New emojis routinely pop up every year. Earlier this year the Unicode Consortium approved 71 new variations of emoji for couples of colors.

Apple said its new emojis will be available in the fall with a free software update for the iPhone, iPad, Mac and Apple Watch.

US citizenship test to be redesigned

SUBMITTED BY SHARON RUMMERY

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) is revising the current naturalization test with improvements to ensure it continues to serve as an accurate measure of a naturalization applicant's civics knowledge and that it reflects best practices in adult education assessments. The goal is to create a meaningful, uniform, and efficient test that will assess applicants' knowledge and understanding of U.S. history, government and values.

This spring, the former USCIS director signed the Revision of the Naturalization Civics Test Memorandum. This memorandum announces the revision of the naturalization test and formalizes a decennial revision schedule of the naturalization test based on adult education best practices.

"Granting U. S. citizenship is the highest honor our nation bestows," said USCIS Acting Director Ken Cuccinelli. "Updating, maintaining, and improving a test that is current and relevant is our responsibility as an agency in order to help potential new citizens fully understand the meaning of U.S. citizenship and the values that unite all Americans."

In December 2018, USCIS formed a naturalization test revision working group with members from across the agency. The working group has been reviewing and updating the naturalization test questions. The working group will also assess potential changes to the speaking portion of the test. USCIS is soliciting the input of experts in the field of adult education to ensure that this process is fair and transparent. After careful analysis of the pilot, and thorough officer training, USCIS will set an implementation date in December 2020 or early 2021.

Section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act outlines the English and civics requirements for naturalization. By law, candidates for naturalization must have "...an understanding of the English language, including an ability to read, write, and speak words in ordinary usage in the English language..." and "... knowledge and understanding of the fundamentals of the history, and of the principles and form of government, of the United States..." This test revision will comply with all statutory and regulatory requirements, and USCIS will pilot it this fall.

In Fiscal Year 2018, USCIS naturalized nearly 757,000 people, a five-year high in new oaths of citizenship. The naturalization test revision is a key part of preparing legal immigrants to fully exercise their rights and meet their responsibilities. For more information on USCIS and its programs, please visit their website at www.uscis.gov.

Chevron spills 800,000 gallons of oil, water in California

By Don Thompson ASSOCIATED PRESS

Officials began to clean up a massive oil spill Friday that dumped nearly 800,000 gallons of oil and water into a California canyon, making it larger – if less devastating - than the state's last two major oil spills.

The newly revealed spill has been flowing off and on since May and has again stopped, Chevron spokeswoman Veronica Flores-Paniagua said. She and California officials said the spill is not near any waterway and has not significantly affected wildlife. The last flow was Tuesday.

Chevron reported that 794,000 gallons (about 3 million liters) of oil and water have leaked out of the ground where it uses steam injection to extract oil in the large Cymric Oil Field about 35 miles (56 kilometers) west of Bakersfield. The steam softens the thick crude so it can flow more readily and is a different process from fracking, which breaks up underground layers of rock.

The state has issued Chevron a notice of violation ordering it to stop steam injections around the spill. The company also increased its production of oil from wells in the area. Both actions are intended to relieve underground pressure that may be forcing the mix of oil and water to the surface.

Chevron will pay for the cleanup, though the state will oversee the process, said Steve Gonzalez, a spokesman for the California Department of Fish and Wildlife's Office of Spill Prevention and Response.

The cleanup and the investigation into what caused the oil flow were somewhat delayed as officials ensured there are no dangerous fumes or sinkholes that could trap workers or heavy equipment, he said.

"At this point, they have it dammed off and they're sucking it out, sucking the oil out," Gonzalez said.

Environmental groups said the Chevron spill is another sign of weakened regulations under an embattled California agency. Gov. Gavin Newsom this week fired the head of the state's oil and gas division over a recent increase in hydraulic fracturing permits and amid a conflict-of-interest investigation of other division employees.

The Last Chance Alliance, which opposes California's oil and gas industry, said the state's Division of Oil, Gas and Geothermal Resources adopted weaker restrictions on steam injection earlier this year, "making these operations even more dangerous."

The group said state regulators and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency last year approved an exemption that removed protections from an aquifer in the Cymric Oil Field at the request of Chevron and other oil companies.

"California's industry-friendly oil regulator continues to provide about as much protection as a screen door on a submarine," Hollin Kretzmann, a senior attorney at the Center for Biological Diversity and member of the Last Chance Alliance, said in a statement

Neither Chevron nor division spokesman Don Drysdale commented on the criticism.

About 70 percent of the fluid is water, Chevron said, meaning about 240,000 gallons (908,472 liters) of the mixture is oil.

The spill, which was first reported by KQED News, comes after a judge earlier this year fined Plains All American Pipeline nearly $3.35 million for causing what had been the worst California coastal spill in 25 years.

A corroded pipeline spilled 140,000 gallons (529,942 liters) of crude oil in 2015 onto Refugio State Beach in Santa Barbara County, northwest of Los Angeles, tarring popular beaches for miles, killing wildlife and harming tourism and fishing.

In 2007, the container ship Cosco Busan leaked nearly 54,000 gallons (204,406 liters) of heavy fuel oil into San Francisco Bay after the ship hit the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge in thick fog.

The state's worst spill was the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill that leaked at least 80,000 barrels of crude oil into the Santa Barbara Channel. Each barrel is 42 gallons (159 liters).

But the effect of this year's Chevron spill on birds and wildlife appears minimal, Gonzalez said. Chevron said the spill flowed into a dry stream bed, and Gonzalez noted that it is unlikely to rain anytime soon.

"There's no active waterway that it's nearby, so that's the good news," he said.

Facebook's currency plan gets hostile reception in Congress

By Marcy Gordon AP BUSINESS WRITER

Under sharp criticism from senators, a Facebook executive on Tuesday defended the social network's ambitious plan to create a digital currency and pledged to work with regulators to achieve a system that protects the privacy of users' data.

"We know we need to take the time to get this right," David Marcus, the Facebook executive leading the project, told the Senate Banking Committee at a hearing.

But that message did little to assure senators. Members of both parties demanded to know why a company with massive market power and a track record of scandals should be trusted with such a far-reaching project, given the potential for fraud, abuse and criminal activity.

"Facebook is dangerous," asserted Sen. Sherrod Brown of Ohio, the committee's senior Democrat. Like a toddler playing with matches, "Facebook has burned down the house over and over," he told Marcus. "Do you really think people should trust you with their bank accounts and their money?"

Republican Sen. Martha McSally of Arizona said "the core issue here is trust." Users won't be able to opt out of providing their personal data when joining the new digital wallet for Libra, McSally said. "Arizonans will be more likely to be scammed" using the currency, she said.

The litany of criticism came as Congress began two days of hearings on the currency planned by Facebook, to be called Libra. Also Tuesday, a House Judiciary subcommittee was extending its bipartisan investigation of the market power of Facebook, Google, Amazon and Apple.

of aggressive questioning, Marcus indicated the currency plan is a work in progress. "We will take the time" to ensure the network won't be open to use by criminals and illicit activity like money laundering and financial fraud. "We hope that we'll avoid conflicts of interest. We have a lot of work to do," Marcus said.

On the defensive from bursts

The grilling followed a series of negative comments and warnings about the Libra plan in recent days from President Donald Trump, his treasury secretary and the head of the Federal Reserve.

But some senators emphasized the potential positive benefits of Facebook's plan, meant to bring money transacting at low cost to millions around the globe who don't have bank accounts. Facebook had its strong defenders of the project, too, on the panel.

"To strangle this baby in the crib is wildly premature," said Sen. Pat Toomey, R-Pa.

In that vein, Marcus said Libra "is about developing a safe, secure and low-cost way for people to move money efficiently around the world. We believe that Libra can make real progress toward building a more inclusive financial infrastructure."

The planned digital currency is to be a blend of multiple currencies, so that its value will fluctuate in any given local currency. Because Libra will be backed by a reserve, and because the group of companies managing it will encourage a competitive system of exchanges, the project leaders say, "anyone with Libra has a high degree of assurance they can sell it for local (sovereign) currency based on an exchange rate."

Promising low fees, the new currency system could open online commerce to millions of people around the world who lack access to bank accounts and make it cheaper to send money across borders. But it also raises concerns over the privacy of users' data and the potential for criminals to use it for money laundering and fraud.

To address privacy concerns, Facebook created a nonprofit oversight association, with dozens of partners including PayPal, Uber, Spotify, Visa and MasterCard, to govern Libra. As one among many in the association, Facebook says it won't have any special rights or privileges. It also created a "digital wallet" subsidiary, Calibra, to work on the technology, separately from its main social media business. While Facebook owns and controls Calibra, it won't see financial data from it, the company says.

Senators demanded to know exactly what that separation will "Facebook isn't a company; it's a country," said Sen. John Kennedy, R-La. Kennedy and other conservative senators took the occasion to air long-standing grievances against Facebook, Twitter and Google for a perceived bias against conservative views.

Facebook's currency proposal has also faced heavy skepticism from the Trump administration.

Trump tweeted last week that the new currency, Libra, "will have little standing or dependability." Both Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin and Fed Chair Jerome Powell have expressed serious concerns recently that Libra could be used for illicit activity.

The Treasury Department has "very serious concerns that Libra could be misused by money launderers and terrorist financers," Mnuchin told reporters at the White House on Monday. "This is indeed a national security issue."

Facebook has "a lot of work to do before we get to the point where we're comfortable with it," Mnuchin said.

Tri-City Stargazer for week: JULY 24 – JULY 30, 2019

For All Signs: Events of this week may bring sudden changes in the world of economics. Global resources have been in a precarious balance for quite some time. The aspect of Sun squaring Uranus may represent a "last straw" event, an apparently minor happening that triggers an inevitable avalanche over the next few months.

Keep some cash on hand (not in the bank), just in case the financial outcome is tight. Uranus is strongly connected to high tech equipment, computers, and the internet. The "last straw" may be composed of lost gigabytes. Keep backups of important data in the cloud or on a thumb drive outside your computer hard drive.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): This week will likely feel like a "hurry up and wait" time. You may not be feeling well. Try to keep a perspective on what is important and what is not. The "maya" of the world around you is demanding, but you do not have to keep up the pace that others want.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): The sudden changes described in the lead paragraph may have much to do with your home, hearth, and family matters. Someone may shift attitudes or plans that shake up your expectations and beliefs about your security. Wait for the dust to settle before you make decisions based upon what is happening this week. Mercury is retrograde.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): You are somewhat edgy and irritable this week. Parts of your mind are scattered into so many corners that it is hard to pull everything together. But you know clearly where boundaries need to be drawn, and you are not hesitant to do so. The best of verbal warriors is concise and says what is needed, but no more.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You are drawn to all things beautiful and truly tempted to buy the wonderful items you see, especially those for your home. If you need to watch your dollars, leave your credit cards at home and wait a couple of days before making a big purchase. Now is a good time to take a creative look at your life and bring harmony into the picture.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): Take extra good care of yourself this week. You may be subject to accidents and falls. Stay aware of your body and stop when it says "enough"! Venus enters your sign this week and will travel "with you" through the first half of August. The subject of relationship will be very important as you travel through this time.

Virgo the Virgin

(August 23-September 22): Irritability and a tendency to short temper may be your companions this week. Beware the temptation to obsess over minor issues. Take especially good care of your body now. You are in a physical low cycle and subject to accident or minor injuries with tools or vehicles.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

Stay alert and be aware of your surroundings. You might become the target for those who would take advantage of you. If one or more people approach who are unknown to you, change directions or back off. Librans have a generally open and friendly appearance that sometimes attracts users.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

If you have been channeling your energy into a project that has positive value for many you may be receiving recognition and applause now. If, instead, you are working on something that is purely to make your ego shinier, you will find others are fighting you every step of the way. Think about your motives.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

You may very well be involved in an ambitious project. You must take care with those who could be thought of as 'authorities.' If you press as hard as you want to, you will likely encounter resistance from these folks. If your plan is good for a number of people, and not at the expense of others, you could score a win.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

Read the lead paragraph carefully, as the general message pertains to you. Don't attempt to pressure or bend others to your will now. They will retaliate in some form. Keep your focus on a large picture of what is the best for all. If your plans are self-aggrandizing, they will fail.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Currently, your frame of mind is more than a little bit maverick.

You may be compelled to declare your freedom in every direction. It won't make a lot of friends on the playground, but this feels truly mandatory now. If your energy is directed toward social justice, there will be many on vour side.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

Give attention to what you consume this week. Your body is reacting to drugs or alcohol in unusual ways. If you feel less alert than normal, focus your attention on the task at hand. Dizziness or blurred vision require medical evaluation.

Oakland Zoo welcomes two male American bison bulls

SUBMITTED BY ISABELLA LINARES PHOTO STEVEN GOTZ: OAKLAND ZOO

In May, Oakland Zoo sent 11 American bison moms and their calves to Montana as part of an ongoing conservation program with the Blackfeet Nation, known as the Iinnii Initiative, which aims to restore American bison to Blackfeet Nation land and nearby National Parks in Montana. The 11 bison are now part of that free-ranging and growing herd.

The next step in this conservation effort includes the recent addition of two new male American bison to the remaining females at Oakland Zoo. These 3-year-old males are part of a secondary and separate conservation project led by Dr. Jennifer Barfield of Colorado State University, Ft Collins, to preserve Yellowstone bison genetics. The intent behind the move of these new males is to diversify the genetics of future offspring with Oakland Zoo's Pablo Allard herd. These future, genetically-diverse calves, along with their mothers, will also be brought bi-annually to Montana to roam freely on Blackfeet Nation land and nearby National Parks in Montana.

The aim of this multi-pronged effort for genetic diversity is to ensure the health and longevity of future American bison generations; the species reached near-extinction in the early 1900s when millions were killed during the westward expansion for grasslands needed to feed livestock. Though their numbers have increased tremendously, herds in the wild and herds in private and public reserves are

The two new males now at Oakland Zoo have lived together all of their lives as part of the Laramie Foothills Bison Conservation Herd in northern Colorado, helping them create a close bond. This bond was a key factor for why they were chosen to come to the Oakland Zoo as a pair. These bulls are much larger than female bison of similar age, and the pair have yet to reach their mature weight and size (about 5 years of age).

Barfield, a reproductive physiologist and assistant professor in the Department of Biomedical Sciences at CSU, said that she is thrilled about this new partnership with the Oakland Zoo. "When we established the herd, our hope was really that these bison would be able to contribute to the larger landscape of bison conservation in the U.S. Bringing bison back to tribal lands is a really key component of bison conservation," she said.

The new project has additional ties to Fort Collins. The Oakland Zoo's president and CEO, Dr. Joel Parrott, is a veterinarian and CSU Doctor of Veterinary Medicine program alumnus.

"I am excited to partner with my alma mater to bring Yellowstone Park ancestry to Oakland Zoo's California Trail," Parrott said, referring to a 56-acre park in the zoo dedicated to iconic California species, including bison. "Introducing these two bulls to our female herd will bring a more diverse and strong genetic line to the animals we release to be free-ranging on Blackfeet tribal land and U.S. and Canadian national parks through the Iinnii Initiative."

Thanks to the work of Colorado State University, the City of Fort Collins and Larimer County — partners who manage the Laramie Foothills Bison Conservation Herd — more disease-free bison are being returned to native lands. Some of the bison have been produced using non-surgical embryonic transfer techniques, which increases the genetic diversity of American bison in the wild and captivity, avoids issues with diseases, and ensures stronger and healthier herds. Oakland Zoo's Iinnii Initiative is benefitting from these techniques.

Oakland Zoo and Blackfeet Nation partner in educational programs and support mutual interest in promoting bison conservation and cultural preservation with their Iinnii Initiative. This partnership also includes youth exchange for education, fundraising for projects, and promotion of ecotourism programs.

BORN YESTERDAY

THEATRE REVIEW

By David R. Newman Photos by Georgia Lee

Born Yesterday, the 1946 Broadway play about a rich and corrupt junk dealer who visits Washington D.C. with his showgirl mistress, has just opened at the Chanticleers Theatre in Castro Valley. It's as fresh and relevant today as it was back then, perhaps even more so.

Directed by Micheal Sally, who is no stranger to Chanticleers, and originally written by Garson Kanin, it's a tale as old as time. Uncouth businessman Harry Brock is in our nation's capitol on a mission: to bribe a senator to help pass legislation that will help Brock's business make more money. Brock is accompanied by his sleazy lawyer, Ed Devery, his go-fer brother Eddie Brock, and his ditzy girlfriend, Billie Dawn.

The entire show takes place in the suite of a swanky hotel. As Brock prepares for his business dealings, he realizes that Billie should have "more learning", so he hires a local reporter, Paul Verrall, to help educate her. Brock's plan backfires, however, as Billie begins to realize what a bad bunch they are and, with Verrall's help, foils their plans. In the end, she leaves Brock to marry the idealistic Verrall, and the two ride off into the sunset.

Born Yesterday is a mix of I Love Lucy and The Godfather, with plenty of hilarious moments that lighten an otherwise dark melodrama. Throughout the show, Brock gets his way by bullying, intimidating, and bribing all those around him. Jason Berner is brilliant in this role, his New Jersey accent spot on as he spews forth double negatives and phrases like "youse guys".

It's easy to hate this character, yet Berner brings a complexity to Brock that has the audience sympathetic with his plight. Is it his fault he has turned out this way, or should we blame the system (not unlike a certain president)? We need to realize that Kanin's script came at a time when McCarthyism had a grip on America. People were questioning our capitalist roots as social reforms gathered steam.

Laura Zimmerman shines as Billie Dawn. Charming and honest, her desire to better herself amidst a broken relationship is admirable. Zimmerman nails the squeaky accent and rough undertones of an uneducated
"blonde bombshell", and her comedic timing is a joy. In one scene she plays a game of gin rummy with Brock. Initially, no words are spoken as they deal the cards,
yet it's so funny as she repositions the cards in her hand and effortlessly wins every round.

It's a stellar cast all around. Kyle Smith plays the washed-up lawyer Ed Devery well. Part legal counsel, part town drunk, his habit of summing up situations with cliched sayings has Brock constantly trying to figure out what he means, a never-ending source of amusement for the audience. And Mike Ettel plays the straight man Paul Verrall with confidence. Also, hats off to the young Castro Valley Dramatic Arts Academy alums Live Langer and Santiago Sena-Guerra.

Set Designer Jon Gourdine has really hit a home run with this one. The lavish furniture and wall decor instantly transport us back to the 40's. There are other details that bring us back as well, thanks to certain props, like cigarettes, cigars, and plenty of whiskey in glass

It's easy to see why this play was revived twice on Broadway (1989 and 2011) and adapted for film twice as well (1950 and 1993). I can't think of anything more American than this, a story of a country searching for its' lost identity, where anyone can make it big. Where dreams come true, for a certain price.

One last note: Chanticleer Theatre productions are a group effort. The number of volunteers that share their time to make this community theatre such a success is impressive.

Born Yesterday continues at The Chanticleers Theatre July 19 - August 11

Five must-have garden garments

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY DANIEL O'DONNELL

Fifty years ago, Neil Armstrong lumbered off the Apollo Lunar Module Eagle wearing a pressurized bulky white "bubble" spacesuit and made history as the first man on the moon. Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin gathered lunar material by using plastic bags on the ends of sticks. Their spacesuits were too bulky for them to easily bend over and collect the samples. A lot has changed in spacesuit design; referred to as bio-suits or "Second Skins," spacesuits fit comfortably, offering incredible mobility and 360-degree visibility. Modernization in spacesuit technology and design have made astronauts' work less awkward in the same way innovations in gardening apparel have made gardening easier.

It might seem like an overreach to compare NASA or MIT spacesuit technology to ingenious garden apparel. However, the advances in gear are lightyears ahead of what astronauts and gardeners used to wear. The nice thing about innovative garden apparel: it does not come with an astronomical price tag.

Farming was the precursor to gardening. Since ancient times, people farmed (gardened) in the clothing of the period. Depictions of the Pilgrims show them gardening in felt top hats, stays (corsets), waistcoats, and linen collars. After that, slight changes were made, such as adding larger brimmed hats, sturdier boots, and denim overalls to better outfit people for working in the garden. These changes began to address sun protection and durability. Today, leading edge apparel companies address comfort, mobility, temperature regulation, ventilation and safety, as well as the longevity of the clothing.

Below are five companies who have launched a new generation of garden apparel items to help gardeners maximize the time they spend in the garden.

The best way to take one small step or a giant leap into the garden is by putting on a pair of Muck Boots from the Original Muck Boot Company (www.muckbootcompany.com). They have created a specific line of neoprene gardening shoes and boots that are 100 percent waterproof, have high traction outsoles, specialized mid-soles for added comfort, and either a warm fleece lining or a breathable mesh lining. The line offers a wide range of colors and patterns as well as six different styles that range from slip-on clog to low-ankle shoe to high boot. The boots and shoes are washing machine safe and suitable for all seasons, even extreme cold.

Astronauts wear helmets in space to breathe and protect themselves from harmful radiation. Athletes, outdoorspeople, hikers, sailors, and anyone else active outside, including gardeners use a Buff for clean air or sun protection.

A Buff is a seamless polyester microfiber fabric tube with a protective UPF50, which is made from recycled bottles. The tube can be stretched without losing its elasticity. A Buff can be worn around the neck for sun protection, can be pulled up over the mouth and nose to help filter dust and warm/cold air, or can shield the wearer from wind. The Buff can also be worn on top of the head in place of a hat or can be rolled into a headband to keep sweat out of the eyes. Buff USA (www.buffusa.com) has a huge selection of colors, sizes, and

Bionic gloves will not make someone stronger in the garden, but they will boost a gardener's ability. The Bionic Gloves company (www.bionicgloves.com) is highly regarded for its golf, tennis, racquetball, motorcycle, driving, and equestrian gloves. Now gardeners' accolades can be heard throughout the Bionic Glove universe, because they developed a garden glove line as well. Silicone-reinforced fingertips improve durability but do not blunt the sense of touch. The gloves have four styles, and all have specialized padding, effectively located soft mesh ventilation areas, and innovative motion zones that provide flexibility while still offering optimal protection.

Women astronauts and gardeners shared the same fate in outfits. Space suits and garden work wear have traditionally been designed for men. Today, both have better options. Rosies (www.rosiesworkwear.com) sells a line of overalls that are specifically designed for women. These colorful, yet tough overalls have built-in knee pads and deep pockets, are easy to slip on and off, and are cut to fit and flatter a woman's proportions.

Sometimes the best innovations for gardening apparel increase a person's comfort. The Utilikilts Company (www.utilikilts.com), selling different lines of everyday kilts since 2000, engineered a kilt for construction workers and gardeners. Called Workman, this Utilikilt is made from a tough canvas-like material and has multiple cargo pockets, loops for holding tools, wicking cotton twill liner, and seams that are reinforced with metal rivets. A person does not have to be Scottish to wear the Workman, just open to being comfortable.

Whether working on a space station or trimming in the garden, specialized clothing will help people do a stellar job.

Real Estate Notebook

24988 Plum Tree Street 94544 793000 3 1647 1997 6/6/19

Real Estate Notebook is a monthly column focusing on home buying, selling and owning experience.

By David Stark Public Affairs Director, Bay East Association of REALTORS®

The three most important things in real estate may be numbers, numbers, and numbers. Specifically, number of homes for sale, number of dollars a buyer will pay, and number of days the home has been on the market. That first number, number of homes for sale, grew during the first half of 2019 in most of the communities along the 880-corridor. The increase wasn't just due to the seasonal nature of real estate; there were more homes on the market during that period than compared with the same period last year.

Nancie Allen, 2019 President of the Bay East Association of REALTORS®, explained what the growing number of homes for sale means to buyers. "You can be more particular and a little more careful with your offer. You may not have deal with the multiple offers like we had six months ago."

On the other side of the transaction, Allen observed, "Sellers need to remember they are selling their home today and look at what is happening in today's market, not going back to last year and what their neighbor may have sold their house for. Know that with more inventory buyers have more choices so you should expect to get what your home is worth today."

5205 Del Mar Court

The next number, sales price, is typically where all parties want to start. Allen explained the number of homes for sale will directly influence this number. "When you have more inventory, pricing for a seller becomes so much more critical, they need to find that sweet spot where buyers are still going to be jumping on your property, so it doesn't linger on the market."

94587 1457000 5 2766 1999 6/3/19

While sales prices throughout the region are still at historically high levels, Allen said that the real estate markets are responding to buyer behavior. "A factor in prices coming down is that Buyers are hitting their affordability price points. If prices didn't come down there were going to be fewer and fewer buyers who could afford to buy anything."

Buyers and sellers need to track a final important number, how many days a home has been on the market. Allen said, "If a house continues to linger on the market, buyers begin to wonder what's wrong with it, they start assuming it's over-priced because it didn't sell right away; they are still used to homes selling within the first week or two."

"We are seeing houses stay on the market longer because sellers are still remembering last year and clinging to those prices. They need to be listening to their agent who knows their market," Allen said.

Allen explained that both buyers and sellers can't just focus on price. They need to consider the number of comparable homes for sale, and how long they have been on the market. "It doesn't matter if there are 30 homes on the market, if they are all over-priced and only one home is priced correctly, that home will sell while the others will probably sit."

Wrapping up her first year as police chief: Fremont's Kimberly Peterson

By Johnna M. Laird PHOTOS COURTESY OF FREMONT POLICE DEPARTMENT

In late July 2019, Kim Petersen finishes her first year as Fremont's first female police chief. Petersen brings a wealth of experience: For 22 years she served in every position in the department from patrol, to field training officer, to SWAT team leader.

Petersen arrives early to work, avoids a congested commute, and makes time for fitness in the department gym. She models officer wellness, an internal goal she emphasizes: "Policing is a stressful job. It's important to take care of our officers through their lifetimes. A good majority will be with us 20 plus years; they need support systems. This is a difficult career, physically-taxing." A dedicated soccer player who played department has compressed hiring processes, reducing six to nine months to four or less. Fremont currently has 26 officers in its training pipeline.

Once on the streets, officers continue to train on how to conduct interviews, assess drug influence, and write search warrants. "We are highly dedicated to training," says Petersen, noting Fremont's training budget exceeds that of any other city police department in the county. All officers undergo five days of training annually, ranging from driving skills to handling active shooters, emergency wildfires, and trauma and suicide.

Petersen inherited a police department serving a city ranking seventh among America's top 10 safest cities in 2019, according to SmartAsset. Yet preventing and fighting crime remain complex tasks, says rising homelessness. A point-intime biennial study conducted in January 2019 showed Alameda County's homelessness increased 43 percent; Fremont saw a 21 percent increase. "We are impacted by multiple [homelessness-related] calls per day, taking more police officer time." Calls include negative encounters with the general public. Fremont is addressing these issues with a mobile evaluation team and a navigation center in the works to be operated by Bay Area Community Services.

While violent crime increased in Fremont from 2017 to 2018, Petersen notes that even with a slight rise Fremont's crime remains "quite low" for a city its size. Three homicides occurred in 2018 compared to two in 2017. Aggravated assaults, resulting from any number of factors—eruptions between friends, alcohol homelessness, professionally in Japan to pay her way through college, Petersen made an instant connection with police work while on a ride-along with a friend during college. "It was everything I wanted, a career that was bigger than myself, with a higher purpose of helping others, a sense of camaraderie, a feeling of teamwork, and exciting. Every day is different."

Having earned a Stanford University bachelor's degree in human biology and a Naval Postgraduate School master's degree in security studies, Petersen comments on the diversity of today's police officers. "Many are college graduates and hold master's degrees; many have developed significant life experience in the military, or they come to us as a second career."

Officer recruitment has become a major issue for Fremont. Applications are down from 4,000 annually a few years ago to 1,500. "There is diminished desire to become a police officer," says Petersen. A negative national narrative toward officers is taking a toll locally. In early July, 18 positions remained unfilled, including one at the animal shelter. Fremont contracted with Hoffman Agency to develop recruitment materials. For its part, the police criminal activity—numbered 228 in 2018, up from 174. Nonviolent crime showed a downward trend in 2018 but is showing an uptick in 2019.

Petersen, made more challenging by voters' ballot-box decisions on propositions lowering penalties for property crime. Criminals, Petersen notes, have a saying: "Property crime, do no time."

Petersen believes in community policing, valuing

"We need citizens to be active partners," says Petersen. She praises Fremont citizens for police support. In the face of national negative attitudes toward police, Fremont has "not been a city to jump to conclusions in response to slanted articles. They wait for us to explain when violence happens. We can't explain in the first five minutes. We need time to investigate," she says. Encouraging open dialogue and community partnership, Fremont Police routinely offers Coffee with Cops and Badges and Boba at local businesses. As she has the last seven years, Petersen will participate in National Night Out on Tuesday, Aug. 6 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. when the police department hopes to visit 200 neighborhoods, up from 175 last year.

For an up-close look at the department, Petersen recommends residents sign up for a 12-week Community Police Academy. "It's palms up, a look under the hood," she says, with lectures and a ride-along. Watch for the next class on the police department website and Nixle.com.

As her first year as chief comes to a close, Petersen says an unexpected benefit has emerged—broad smiles of young girls in the community. "Such a pleasant surprise that they see themselves as future police chief. I had not thought of that before. . . These girls see me as police chief and it opens possibilities for them. It's pretty exciting,"

But every day, there's a part of Petersen that misses being on the streets. "No one becomes a police officer to sit behind a desk," she says.

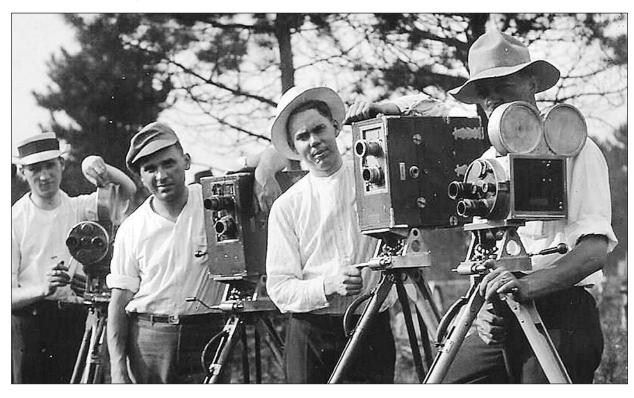

Broncho Billy Film Festival

SUBMITTED BY RENA KIEHN PHOTOS COURTESY OF NILES ESSANY SILENT FILM MUSEUM

Broncho Billy rides into Niles again Friday, July 26 -Sunday, July 28. He will be joined by Francis X Bushman, Mr. Bell & Mr. Howell, Alkalai Ike and Mustang Pete, Serial Queen Helen Gibson, Alic Joyce, ZaSu Pitts, and Patsy Ruth Miller.

Friday night opens with a salute to Francis X Bushman, called "The Handsomest Man in the World," "The King of Photoplay" and before Clark Gable inherited the title "the King of Movies." A rough cut of a new documentary, This is Francis X Bushman, will debut, presented by film historian Lon Davis and editor Zack Sutherland. Following that film will be a Spanish film shot in Hollywood with Italian subtitles; the print came from an archive of the boot-shaped country (don't worry, we are getting the title cards translated!). Restoration of the 1928 film The Charge of the Gauchos is also making its Northern California debut; it may be the first screening in the U.S. since its original debut, 91 years ago.

Saturday morning includes a Walking Tour of Niles ($5 fee includes an information booklet) and a free screening of recent Niles-made silent two reeler, Broncho Billy and the Bandit's Secret, featuring an enthusiastic local cast and a hand-crank movie camera capturing the story. The screening will be followed by a documentary explaining the painstaking methods employed by the film companies back in the day.

Saturday afternoon features a salute to Bell & Howell. If you watch late night infomercials, you may see all-weather flashlights with that brand name or, if you are of a certain age and were an AV geek in grade school running a projector, you might recognize the name as the kind you worked with. Well, Bell & Howell also made movie cameras and other important movie-making machines a century ago. With ASC (American Society of Cinematographers) celebrating their centennial this year, David Kiehn, historian of the Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum, will preside over a talk about these important figures of silent film history and their legacy.

Then, on to a focus of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company – five films that show what the West looked like (shot in Chicago, Golden, CO, San Rafael and Niles!).

Saturday night is all about trains – a salute to the 150th Anniversary of the completion of the Transcontinental Railroad. You may believe that happened in May in Promontory, Utah but no! The actual last leg of the TCR happened in September in – wait for it – Niles Canyon! So, we are screening several rail adventures involving bandits and bad guys and a few heroes including The Broken Brake, The Train Wreckers and Red Signals.

Sunday, you can take a nice train ride through the picturesque canyon with the Niles Canyon Railway or attend a free program at the Edison Theater. Film Historian Larry Telles will present a program on screen cowboys who made the transition from silents to talkies followed by Meanwhile, Back at the Ranch, a film made from clips from old Westerns stitched together, similar to Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid.

Then, Film Historian Jon Mirsalis, an accomplished film accompanist, will discuss how films thought to be lost forever are being found in home grown film collections rather than archives. 13th Washington Square will follow - it is a unique film that ends up as a wacky haunted house comedy.

The last film of the program is Lorraine of the Lions which follows the melodramatic adventures of a female Tarzan and her beloved, nurturing gorilla friend – this one is a doozy.

July 9 City Council Work Session Identified Two Potential Fremont Locations for Temporary Housing Navigation Center

The Fremont City Council held a Work Session on Tuesday, July 9, 2019, to review 11 potential City-owned and privately-owned sites analyzed by City staff for locating a temporary housing navigation center in Fremont. The sites were based on previously recommended Council-approved criteria from the June 18 Council Work Session. After discussion from City staff, the City Council, and public comment, the Council selected two sites to further evaluate and directed staff to provide additional analysis on each location for the implementation of a housing navigation center, including cost estimates, and conduct community outreach.

City staff will further analyze the following two sites: Parking lot at Fremont City Hall (rear area) and the Decoto surplus property (unleased property next to Regan Nursery). Both locations are within one-half mile of food services and bus stop/bus services to BART, utility connection points abut property, and located outside of a fault trace zone.

The temporary navigation center will provide 45 beds and up to 6 months of housing to homeless adults while they are supported and focused on finding stable, permanent housing. The navigation center will be operated by Bay Area Community Services (BACS) who will provide 24/7 staffing and supportive services to the residents of the program. BACS also operates the Berkeley navigation center and two navigation centers in Oakland. Since 2013, BACS has successfully transitioned 1,006 individuals into permanent housing using the navigation center model. The creation of a navigation center in Fremont is in response to the growing homeless crisis. Recent data from the 2019

Point-in-Time Count indicated Fremont's homeless population grew by 27% over the past two years, rising from 479 homeless individuals to 608.

Most crimes reported within the homeless population are of the lower level crime types, and while scholarly articles nationally show there is a higher proportion of criminal activity within the homeless population, they are often acts of drinking, petty theft, and trespassing. In Fremont, police data from 2018 through April 30, 2019 have shown that criminal activity within the homeless population is slightly higher proportionally than the general population, and mirrors the national trend with misdemeanor-level crimes such as drugs, trespassing, petty theft, and battery/domestic violence. In a similar navigation center operated by BACS in Berkeley, they have reported less than a handful of calls to the police for that location.

Throughout the summer, City staff will conduct outreach to obtain community input and comments on the two potential sites selected. At a City Council Meeting in September (date to be determined), staff will return with completed analysis and community feedback to present to the Council. It is anticipated that the Council would then select a final site to locate a temporary housing navigation center and City staff would proceed with procurement of contracts to implement the center.

To watch the recording of the July 9 City Council Work Session visit https://fremont.gov/AgendaCenter/City-Council-4. Copies of the full staff report and exhibits can be accessed by visiting http://fremontcityca.iqm2.com/Citizens/Detail_Meeting.aspx?ID=1709.

Fremont National Night Out Registration Underway

Start organizing your neighborhood to participate in the 36th Annual National Night Out on Tuesday, August 6, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Join Fremont Police staff along with community organizations, neighborhood groups, and City leaders in celebrating the 36th Annual National Night Out.

In years past, neighborhoods have participated in National Night Out by organizing a social gathering such as a block party, barbecue, or ice cream social where neighbors share good food, laughter, and updates on neighborhood happenings. National Night Out provides the opportunity for neighbors to get toknow each other better and sends a strong message to criminals that our community will look out for each other by reporting suspicious activity in their neighborhoods. Throughout the night, City staff will make visits to the registered parties where they will share information, network, and answer questions that community members may have.

Registration is open for Fremont community members to register their parties to participate in this year's event. Register your event with the Fremont Police Department at www.FremontPolice.org/NNOReg.The registration deadline is 5 p.m. on July 30, 2019, to be considered for a visit by the Police or Fire Department. Our goal is to provide each party with one visit from City staff, but it will depend upon the number of parties and staff who sign up to participate.

Requests for a visit from the Fire Department must be made separately. First register your party and then contact Pam Franklin at pfranklin@fremont.gov or call 510-494-4200.

To learn how other communities celebrate National Night Out, visit the National Association of Town Watch online at https://natw.org.

If you have questions about National Night Out in Fremont, please call the Fremont Police Department's Community Engagement Unit at 510-790-6740.

Fremont's Central Park Summer Concert Series Returns

The summer heat marks the return of Fremont's Central Park Summer Concert Series. The City will be hosting free concerts every Thursday evening between July 11 and August 15, featuring a variety of musical genres and performers, from billboard hits and country music to soulful R&B classics. The remaining 2019 concerts include:

- July 25
- Joel the Band (Billy Joel Tribute)
- August 1
- Rachel Steele (Country Music)
- Long Train Runnin' (Doobie Brothers
- Tribute) August 15
- East Bay Mudd (Big Horn Band Playin' R&B Hits)

All concerts will be held at the Central Park Performance Pavilion (next to 40204 Paseo Padre Pkwy.) on Thursdays from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Children are also welcome and can head to the Kids' Fun

Zone, a kid-friendly environment sponsored by Bay Area Jump. Remember to come hungry! Concert cuisine for purchase will be provided by the Food Truck Mafia with mouthwatering food trucks that vary from week to week. Parking lots near the concert venue fill up by 5 p.m., so plan to arrive early if you want a good spot.

This year's Summer Concert Series is presented by Washington Hospital Healthcare System and Fremont Christian School. Special thanks to Fremont Bank, Sunrun, Bay Area Jump, Echo Church, Niles Rotary, Dale Hardware, and Nothing Bundt Cakes for their sponsorship.

For more information, please call 510-494-4300 or send an email to RegeRec@fremont.gov.

Summer Movies in the Park

Visit Central Park's Performance Pavilion just after sunset on July 26 and August 16 to enjoy Summer Movies in the Park! The City of Fremont's Recreation Services Division will be playing How to Train Your Dragon on July 26 and Dumbo on August 16. Admission is free, so grab some blankets, low beach chairs, and a picnic dinner to enjoy two great films with your family. For more information, visit www.Fremont.gov/MovieNight.

Tickets Now on Sale for FRC's 20th Anniversary Benefit Concert and Dinner

This year marks the Fremont Family Resource Center's (FRC) 20th anniversary! The event, With a Little Help From My Friends, will be held on September 13 at 6 p.m. at Campo Di Bocce of Fremont. The Benefit Concert and Dinner will feature The Sun Kings, California's premiere Beatles Tribute Band. General Admission tickets are $95 per person. The VIP experience at $175 per person includes a pre-concert show with Drew Harrison, lead singer of the Sun Kings and premier John Lennon vocalist, and front row seating at the concert.

Founded in 1999, the Fremont Family Resource Center (FRC) innovatively combines the best efforts of 24+ State, County, City and non-profit social service organizations working to build a vibrant Tri-Cities community with strong, healthy families and children. The FRC helps individuals and families achieve financial stability and success by building assets, advancing their education and gaining sustainable wage jobs. Additional services include:

- CalFresh & Food/Nutrition Assistance
- Legal Assistance
- Culturally informed immigrant services
- Employment and Job Training
- Benefit assistance and family services coordination
- Mental Health services for all ages
- Substance use intervention for teens
- Specialized disability services
- Housing search assistance and support for the homeless
- Child Care Information, subsidies and drop-in child care
- Volunteer and faith-based support services
- Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program

Proceeds will benefit the Fremont Family Resource Center and its programs including Discovery Cove Childcare Center, offering free childcare for parents accessing FRC services, SparkPoint Fremont and Family Support Services providing financial coaching, workshops, and family support to strengthen Tri-City families in need. Tickets are available online at www.Fremont.gov/FRC20. For general questions about the event, send an email to FRCevent913@gmail.com or call 510-818-9888. For more information about sponsorship opportunities, contact Paula Manczuk-Hannay at PManczuk-Hannay@fremont.gov or call 510-574-2049.

Park It

By NED MACKAY

The East Bay Regional Park District wants to hear from the community. The district has set up an online survey to obtain the public's thoughts on the district's future programs and facilities. Survey participants can weigh in on what they feel are the most pressing issues facing the district, what features and activities could be added, and what present offerings can be improved. The survey is available in English, Spanish, Chinese and Korean. The deadline to submit the survey is Wednesday, July 31; to take the survey online, visit eastbayparksurvey.com.

This year is the park district's 85th anniversary. The district was founded in 1934 because of a grass roots movement led by community activists who saw the need for preservation of the East Bay's beautiful open spaces for public recreation and wildlife habitat. Tilden, Sibley and Temescal were the first three regional parks established. From these modest beginnings, the district has expanded to comprise 73 regional parks totaling more than 122,000 acres and hosting 25 million visits annually.

Here's a chance to let your voice be heard about how you'd like to see the district evolve in the coming years. District staff and board will value your input.

A family game night and campfire are on the agenda from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, July 27, at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley. Bring your favorite card or board game, skit ideas and cozy blanket. S'mores, that gooey campfire confection, will be provided for free.

From 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, July 28, the park's naturalists will lead an insect detective session to find out what scuttles through the park's wetlands.

Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road, off Oakley's Main Street. For details, call (888) 327-2757, ext. 3050.

At Contra Loma Regional Park in Antioch, naturalist Virginia Delgado will lead a family night hike from 7:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27. During the 3-mile hike on even terrain, find out how the reservoir comes to life as the sun goes down. The hike is for ages 6 and older. The program is free, but reservations are required; to reserve a spot, call (888) 327-2757, select option 2, and refer to program number 25905.

Contra Loma has a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. For information on the night hike, call (510) 544-2750.

Bees and beeswax are the theme of a program, led by naturalist Jenna S. Collins, from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, July 28, at Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley. The group will make beeswax candles and sample local honey.

Meet at the Little Farm classroom, a short walk past the north end of Tilden's Central Park Drive. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

At Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont, naturalist Kristina Parkison hides with her Cart of Curiosities somewhere within the park, awaiting your discovery. The cart contains artifacts of cultural and natural history. Parkison and her cart will be out in the park from 3:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27; 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, August 3; and 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, August 17.

Parkison also plans a free "Night of the Moth" program from 8:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27, in celebration of National Moth Week. Yes, there is such a thing as National Moth Week. It's the last full week in July. I looked it up on the internet.

Intended for ages 6 and older, "Night of the Moth" is a "bioblitz" to determine which different species of moths pollinate Coyote Hills' night blooming plants.

Meet at the Coyote Hills visitor center. The park is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road, off Paseo Padre Parkway. Parking fee per vehicle is $5. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

This is just a sample. There's lots of variety in the East Bay Regional Parks. For a full listing of programs, visit www.ebparks.org.

Summer brings live music

Summer is the perfect time to lay out a blanket or pull up a lawn chair and listen to your favorite bands (or discover new ones!) in the long pleasant evenings around the East Bay. In 2019, the summer season will kick off with on June 15 in Fremont with the Pacific Commons Summer Concert Series, starting with pop and rock hits from Cover Story. The fun will continue with concerts from Milpitas to San Leandro. Milpitas will start their season with their Juneteenth summer concert on June 18, to pick up again on July 16 with Lyin I's. Meanwhile, Hayward will join in with their Municipal Band and Summer Music in the park series, starting June 16 and August 4 respectively. Hayward's lineup includes Chris Marquis' Giant Garage Spiders, Sycamore 129 Blues Band, and What's Up Big Band and that's just the start of the season. Newark will host Music at the Grove (starting June 21 with Big Band Beat), and San Leandro will join in with Hot August Thursdays.

With concerts running through September, there is plenty of time for music lovers to make the most of those summer days.

Get in step for wellness

SUBMITTED BY TRI-CITY HEALTH CENTER

Officials from the Tri-City Health Center (TCHC) are busily getting ready for the organization's inaugural 5K Walk for Wellness event through central Fremont in mid-September.

Participants in the family-friendly event, set for Saturday, Sept. 14, will start at the Town Fair Plaza a temporary community space along Capitol Avenue at State Street. Starting at 9:00 a.m. walkers will follow a path through Fremont's developing downtown area, which is growing into a pedestrian-friendly public realm with a mixture of street-level commercial, retail, civic uses and public open spaces. TCHC officials are expecting a turnout of more than 500 participants, including representatives from local police and fire departments, civic leaders, active military, veterans and local business and nonprofits.

After the walk, participants are welcome to enjoy free events at the plaza which include numerous kid-friendly areas and interactive items for children's play along family-oriented games like table tennis, miniature golf, bocce ball and basketball.

Early registration fee is $25 for walkers 13 and older; $10 for walkers ages 4 through 12 or $60 for a family of four. The registration fee will increase by $10 on Aug. 1. Proceeds will help support TCHC's eight primary care Fremont clinics which provide comprehensive primary, dental, behavioral health, vision and other services.

To register online visit the TCHC website at www.tri-cityhealth.org, then click the "Events" link and follow the prompts to the 5K Walk for Wellness event. For details, send an email to Desrie Campbell at dcampbell@tri-cityhealth.org or call (510) 770-8040.

Gridiron Gladiators reunite

Players, coaches and colleagues reconnect

1962 team

By Alfred Hu PHOTOS COURTESY OF MATT SCHWAB/CHABOT REUNION

On Sunday, July 28 at the Shannon Community Center in Dublin, a Chabot College Football reunion will offer an opportunity for past coaches and players to reconnect, catch up with old buddies, reminisce and most of all to have a great time. This event, the brainchild of former head coach Keith Calkins for his 80th birthday celebration, will recognize teams and coaches from 1962 through 1978. The years were chosen to represent the first year of the Chabot football program until Calkins' retirement. Former players and assistant coaches were recruited to make the reunion possible. A year-long undertaking, it was a formidable task to contact over 600 former players, but the response was extraordinary.

Attendance is expected to reach over 150 as attendees travel from a myriad of locations throughout the United States. Along with former teammates, former management and physical education staff members as well as former sportswriters are expected to attend including players who moved on to professional athletic careers as well as those inducted into the California Sports Hall of Fame, California Community College Hall of Fame and Chabot Athletic Hall of Former coaches expected to attend are Larry Aguiar (1972-73), Rich Statler (1963), Rusty Anderson (1965-66) and Master of Ceremonies Gerry Fisher (1962-63).

Berkeley banishes gender-specific terms from city code

AP WIRE SERVICE

California's Berkeley City Council adopted an ordinance Tuesday to replace gendered terms with gender-neutral words in the city's code.

The San Francisco Chronicle reports Wednesday that "she" and "he" will be replaced by "they." The words "manpower" and "manhole" will be replaced by "workforce" and "maintenance hole."

The measure to replace more than two dozen commonly used terms passed unanimously.

There will be no more "craftsmen" in city code, only "craftspeople" or 'artisans."

Councilmember Rigel Robinson, who sponsored the ordinance, is 23 years old and recently graduated from the University of California, Berkeley. He says his time in college expanded his awareness of gender issues.

Robinson says critics suggested the council spend time on more important matters.

Berkeley has a long history of leading on politically and socially liberal issues.

Flavors of Newark - a Delicious Enabler of Business

By Asok Chatterjee

In the early afternoon of July 10th, a diverse group of business leaders congregated at Ray's Crab Shack in Newark. Greeted by Valerie Boyle, President and CEO of Newark Chamber of Commerce, and Anne Stedler, Economic Development Manager of the City of Newark, each guest was introduced to other attendees upon arrival. Chamber Board Member Fallon Tran was on beverage duty to make sure everyone was comfortable. The event, Flavors of Newark, is an effort by the chamber to help local businesses connect with others, a critical component of building successful relationships and taking advantage of opportunities for growth.

That afternoon, the lunch venue was Ray's Crab Shack. After enjoying excellent seafood offerings by owners Ray Dai and Amy Wu, guests were escorted next door to the Comfort Inn and Suites, where a beaming General Manager Brian Suarez was more than happy to familiarize them with recent first-class upgrades to the property. To cap off the afternoon, pastries were served by Ashley Wong, owner of newly launched Ashley Wong Sweets, LLC. Dessert was complemented by freshly brewed MOTIVAT Coffee, served by MOTIVAT owner, Collin Young. MOTIVAT is a unique single origin coffee roaster with a social mission to aid in children's education and women's restoration.

Flavors of Newark is a multi-faceted program that offers small restaurant tastings by invitation for representatives from businesses, corporations and service clubs. It is designed to introduce business people and Chamber members to each other over delicious food. Flavors introduces representatives from corporations and businesses to local restaurants that may be "new" to them; lets them meet the restaurant owners and chefs and familiarize themselves with the cuisine and specialties. Hosting restaurants can explain what they can offer for parties, events, meeting facilities,

Flavors was launched when business leaders asked for information about local restaurants. They wanted to know the range of cuisines, event services and facilities offered. Chamber leadership found these were frequently asked questions by corporate businesses and decided to help facilitate an exchange of information. Assisting large employers of Newark discover, enjoy and support local restaurants and food experiences became a priority. And, it held great potential for Newark restaurants.

Large corporations were not the only ones asking, however. Other Newark business leaders were also seeking new locations and facilities to host special employee gatherings, events and business meetings. Chamber leaders discovered that these businesses often sought catering services but were unaware of nearby restaurants that provided these services. The information simply wasn't effectively reaching this audience.

Another link in this chain of connecting restaurants and new patrons is local Newark hotels. On a daily basis hotel personnel are asked to recommend local restaurants to their guests. First-hand experience at a restaurant, and a relationship with personnel supports confidence in referrals.

Another factor that favors the Flavors of Newark approach is that most people are creatures of habit, repeatedly going to a few favorite restaurants, knowing what to expect. This can exclude other possibilities and specialties for fear of trying new international offerings, or worries that language might be a barrier. Flavors of Newark provides important informal introductions to expand gastronomical experiences.

In June 2018, the Fremont City Council directed city staff to study the Mission San Jose Town Center to determine the potential for commercial success in the area – with special emphasis on retail, restaurants, entertainment options, and mixed use developments that include housing – and to develop strategies to support it accordingly. The Mission San Jose Town Center is a commercial district near Washington Boulevard and Mission Boulevard, anchored by the historic Mission San Jose church and museum.

The city has concluded the study, and the council reviewed and accepted the final report for the study in May 2019. Key strategies include focusing revitalization efforts on a smaller "primary commercial area" within the town center; enhancing the identity of the area through marketing, events, and signage; incorporating a leasing/merchandising plan for property owners and commercial tenants; and improving the public realm.

City staff encourages the public to attend a community meeting on Thursday, July 25 where the staff will outline the findings in detail. The study report and the council report are available at Fremont.gov/MissionSanJoseStudy. For more information, call Wayne Morris, deputy community development director at (510) 494-4729.

Transition to new janitorial service company

SUBMITTED BY CHERYL GOLDEN

As of July 1, a new contractor is providing professional janitorial services for 70 public City of Fremont facilities, including community centers, libraries, park and recreation buildings, fire stations, and city administration buildings. SWA Services Group successfully competed to provide janitorial services, among four firms, based on a comprehensive consideration of qualifications, experience with public facilities, quality control program, staffing levels, and annual cost.

Previously, the City of Fremont had a janitorial contract with GCA Services with a term extending up to 2024. Following an acquisition of GCA by ABM, the City was informed that ABM could not afford to service Fremont under the terms of the current contract. Consequently, a transition plan was developed, which led to a new selection process for a janitorial contractor by the City. ABM did not participate in the process.

The mayor and the city council have approved the contract with language amendments to ensure the retention of janitorial employees by SWA, which were previously employed by GCA/ABM, and to provide them with equivalent pay, seniority, and cost for health care benefits. The total cost of janitorial services with SWA is approximately $1.6 million annually, and the agreement allows the option to extend the term to June 2027 subject to satisfactory performance.

As rhetoric heats up at the national level, a recipe for turmoil reflects the warnings and malevolence of three witches in William Shakespeare's literary classic, Macbeth. Foretelling misfortune and doom, their song "Double, Double Toil and Trouble" casts a spell of deception and misfortune. As the witches gather ingredients of their poisonous brew, they repeatedly chant the refrain: "Double, double toil and trouble; Fire burn, and caldron bubble."

Although a concoction of fillet of fenny snake, eye of newt, toe of frog, wool of bat and tongue of dog is fictional fantasy, it references very real and present dangers that not only posed problems in the 1600s, but have persisted to contemporary life. Beginning with a pinch of actual or perceived grievances, a pot of turmoil is stirred with anger, jealousy, fear and resentment to produce a toxic emotional overload that, as in Macbeth's situation, leads to tragedy.

On a national and international level, we are witness to a populist uprising that has taken simmering political inequities to a boil. Healthy doses of malevolent ingredients have been injected into a brew that threatens the structure and foundation of our society. Reason and civil dialogue give way to demands, threats and ultimatums that define hard lines of defense without room for discussion or compromise.

While armchair pundits of all types can speculate on the ramifications of national strategies and tactics, at the local level, some of the same factors are at work too. At the July 16 Fremont City Council meeting, hundreds of demonstrators and public speakers attended to oppose locating a proposed Navigation Center for homeless individuals on a vacant parcel of land adjacent to Regan's Nursery near the intersection of Fremont Boulevard and Decoto Road. One of two locations selected as a possible site, neighbors expressed a familiar refrain heard in prior protests from Niles District neighbors: good idea, wrong location.

While forceful and peaceful protest is a staple of a free society, outrage and emotional outbursts directed toward a navigation center for homeless individuals in Fremont has been sprinkled with vitriolic fervor that implies immediate danger and revulsion of these people whatever their circumstance. It appears that only a location far from any residential development is satisfactory to many residents. Of the two locations selected for consideration by the city council, it may be that the parking lot next to City Hall is preferable since the protests, at this time, have been limited to a few developers who fear a negative impact on property values. Residential development in the downtown area is currently nascent, not yet consolidated, so wholesale protest is not expected.

Lessons have emerged from Fremont's Navigation Center debacle:

Assess a project with transparent and open community outreach before any tentative agreements are initiated.

Thoroughly inform the community of what is proposed along with proven data and experience to support the proposal and its location to allay fears.

If a proposal is a prototype, address concerns and unknown factors prior to negotiations. New and controversial enterprises are best demonstrated in less impacted locations before introducing them to more debatable sites.

Decisions should be based on community dialogue and rational expectations; funding should be an essential, but not the only primary deciding factor.

Shakespeare fashioned Macbeth as a parable, warning of temptation that transcends consequences. His witches created a "charm of powerful trouble" that resulted in a "hell-broth" for the Scottish king and Lady Macbeth. The result was disastrous for both of them; a deceitful Lady Macbeth was doomed to roam castle corridors trying desperately to wash away a psychological "damn'd spot" of murderous betrayal.

For a charm of powerful trouble, Like a hell-broth boil and bubble.

Double, double toil and trouble; Fire burn and caldron bubble.

National Night Out Is Around the Corner

SUBMITTED BY
SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE

Now is a great time to plan your National Night Out event and register for a visit from law enforcement and other official representatives. In San Jose and the other cities in the County, the annual nationwide crime prevention campaign will be on Tuesday, August 6.

More than 38 million neighbors in 16,000 communities across the nation participate in National Night Out, an annual community building campaign that promotes police-community partnerships to make our neighborhoods safer and more caring places to live.

My staff and I attended dozens of events last year in San Jose, Sunnyvale and Milpitas and are looking forward to our visits this year at the annual event, which brings together residents, police officers, firefighters and public officials at evening barbecues, potlucks and neighborhood parties.

By planning early, you can invite law enforcement partners who can put your event on their list of visits. Crime fighting is strongest when we all work together.

• The Santa Clara County Office of Reentry Services, the Probation Department and the Sheriff's Office invite you to a community event from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on August 6 at the Reentry Resource Center Courtyard, 151 West Mission Street, San Jose. The event will feature food, prizes, entertainment and activities.

• If you're hosting an event in Milpitas, contact Kita Inthasack at the Milpitas Police Department at 408-586-2526 or email kinthasack@ci.milpitas.ca.gov. The deadline is 5 p.m. on Friday, August 2.

If you have questions about any events, please call my office at 408-299-5030 or email me at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org.

Obituary

F. Barry Rader

May 22, 1939 – June 5, 2019

Born in Detroit, MI, Barry passed away in Fremont, CA, on June 5, 2019, surrounded by friends and family, after battling pancreatic cancer for several months. The youngest of four children of Louis and Rose Rader, he was preceded in death by both parents and his siblings-- Shelia Mosten, Edward Rader, and Alton Rader--and his first wife, Nata Lieb Rader. He is survived by his wife, Karen L. McCready; his son, Andrew Rader; and several nieces and nephews.

Barry "grew up" in Los Angeles in the 1950's. He attended the University of Nevada in Las Vegas and received his B.A. in Social Science and a Secondary Teaching Credential from UN-Reno in 1963. He and Nata moved to the San Francisco Bay Area in 1964 to begin his 40-year career as a high school teacher and administrator, first in San Francisco and then
San Leandro. In 1968, Barry received his M.A. in Education from Stanford and became the principal at Continuation High School in San Leandro, the youngest principal in California at that time. He, Nata, and Andy traveled and taught in Europe in 1974. Barry established and ran Sports America, a summer day camp, for 17 years.

In the late 1970's, Barry was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer and was saved by surgery at Stanford Hospital. That close call motivated him to "live for life." He was an avid sports fan, especially of football and basketball. Always a theater devotee, he and Karen subscribed to as many as three theater companies at a time.

Following retirement in 2003, Barry was able to focus more on his own Fantasy Football League and several other leagues.

Traveling with Friendship Force from 2002, they were hosted in 20 countries, in more than 40 households, and hosted several guests. Barry was president of the Bay Area chapter and then West Coast Field Representative for 3 years. Barry's greatest satisfaction came from volunteering as a counselor for Alameda County's HICAP program, providing advice on Medical and Medicare. In 15 years, he counseled more than 2,500 clients, serving in Fremont, Union City and San Leandro.

In August, Barry will be honored at a Celebration of Life. For more information, contact the family.

Gerard F. Wallster

Resident of Fremont January 10, 1941 – July 16, 2019

Gerard F Wallster, 78, of Fremont, California passed peacefully on Tuesday July 16th with family by his side. Born in Boston, Massachusetts on January 10th, 1941, he was the son of the late Everett and Dorothy Wallster.

Gerard was a man who wore many hats, literally. To friends, he was known as Gerry; to his family, he was Papa; and to his wife, he was her King Porky.

No one who met Gerry forgot his infectious passion for his favorite hobbies: golfing, gardening, music, photography, billiards, attending horse-races, and spending time with his beloved wife. His graciousness, optimism, and endless supply of jokes touched the life of everyone he came into contact with.

Gerry married the woman of his dreams on December 6, 1963. They had 56 wonderful years together filled with unconditional love that only continued to grow as the years went on. His legacy lives on through his wife, two daughters, six grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

Gerry will be fondly remembered as a family man, retired pressman, humorist and proud peacetime veteran of the US Navy.

A Celebration of Life will be held at a later date.

Obituary

Earnest Oliver Webster

Resident of San Francisco, CA March 12, 1935 - June 27, 2019

Our loving father, grandfather, brother, uncle and friend departed from this world on June 27th in Oakland, California.

Earnest was born in Houston, Texas to Ola Burks and Eddie Webster. He was raised in the 1st Ward with his two older siblings, Herbert (HB) and Christine Olivia and his younger sister, Betty Jean. During his youth, Earnest attended Mallalieu Methodist Church and he was an alto singer in the youth choir. Throughout his childhood, he loved sports, especially basketball and football so much so that during his time at Booker T. Washington High School, he earned a four year scholarship to the University of California, Los Angeles.

After high school, Earnest left Texas and settled permanently in San Francisco to escape the prejudice of the South. In 1961, Earnest married Elizabeth Morris and raised two children, Angela and David.

Earnest was a man of many hats. He served the San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency as a bus driver for 40 years driving over 3 million miles without an accident. He was known for his famous quote, "Be consistent and you'll be alright." He served as a basketball and weightlifting instructor at the YMCA for nearly 20 years. In his spare time, he enjoyed cars and riding motorcycles. Earnest also dabbled in real estate. To his family, he was a source of unconditional love. That love came in the form of kind words, his thoughtfulness, encouragement and often in the way of financial support.

Over the years, he maintained close relationships with his family in Houston and he frequently made trips back home to visit. He especially loved and cherished his mother, Ola, ensuring that she was always well cared for and supported from miles away. He will always be remembered as strong, generous, independent and highly respected.

He was preceded in death by his parents and his brother, HB Gibbs, Sr and sister, Christine Goodie; nephews-Herbert Gibbs, Jr, Danny Gibbs and Donald Goodie; niece-Grace Goodie.

He leaves to cherish special memories- daughter, Angela Webster; son, David Webster and daughter-in-law, Tatia Brown-Webster; sister, Betty Wilson; former wife, Elizabeth Morris; granddaughters, Angelina Hatch and Marina Hatch; grandsons, Derrion Webster and Tyvaughn Ross; great-grandchildren, Elijah-Earnest Segura, Zatyiah Murphy, Abe Brannon Pickett, Kaiden Webster; nieces, Christine Jones, Rosalind McKinney, Beverly Jones, Christine Lewis; nephews, Milton Goodie III, Howard Goodie, Paul Goodie, Richard Goodie, Michael Wilson, Jeffery Wilson, Brian Wilson and a host of extended family members.

Resident of Fremont

December 5, 1948 – July 11, 2019

Barbara S. Mendes was born on December 5, 1948 in Oakland, California and entered into rest on July 11, 2019 in Fremont, California at the age of 70 years old.

Barbara is survived by her children Lennie and Kristina, granddaughter Morgan, sister Nancy, brothers Dan, Mike, Jim, Charlie, her very close friends Dana, Efran, and The Hammons family as well as many more extended family members and friends.

She graduated from St. Elizabeth High School in 1967 and worked as a teacher for Fremont Unified School District for over 30 years.

Her red hair and beautiful smile would light up the room when she walked in. She loved arts & crafts, her students, laughing, spending time with her friends, going to festivals, and listening to music. She had a big heart and was very giving.

"The good Lord could never make a cloud dark enough to shut out the sunlight of love" May Peace Be Upon Her

James W. Lopes

5/31/32 - 7/14/19

James W. Lopes passed away peacefully with his wife at his side in Vernalis, CA at the age of 87.

Jim was a source of inspiration to many with his positive outlook that "Today is good, tomorrow will be better and, if it's not better, we will make it better".

Graduating from the University of San Francisco (where he was President of the debate team) with a degree in finance, Jim pursued his passion for farming beginning in Fremont and later in Vernalis. Up to the time of his passing, Jim continued to be an active advocate for the farming industry serving on many boards and committees over the years (often as President or Treasurer) including Alameda County Farm Bureau (63 years) and Ag Advisory Committee member, Westside Hulling Association, El Solyo Water District, Blewett Mutual Water Company, Diamond Walnut District Advisory Committee, California Farm Bureau Water Advisory Committee and Commodity Committee and often represented Alameda County at the annual California Farm Bureau House of Delegates meeting. He was a member of Stanislaus County Farm Bureau and also served on the Alameda County Grand Jury in the early 1970's. In addition Jim has served as a founding member and Treasurer of Clear Creek Services, Inc. (501C-3) which provides aging-in-place housing and care for adults with developmental disabilities at its Niles Boulevard location in Fremont.

It was an honor for Jim to receive Alameda County Farm Bureau's "Agriculturalist of the Year" award both in 1986 and 2016 as well as California Farm Bureau Federation's "Distinguished Service Award" in 2017.

In Jim's early years, he was an avid skier. For several years, Jim taught Confraternity of Christian Doctrine at St. Leonard's Church in Fremont. He was a 4th degree member of the Knights of Columbus and active member of Sacred Heart Church in Patterson.

Jim leaves behind his wife, Joan of Vernalis, his brother-in-law and sister-in-law Bob & Pat Depaoli, nephews Joe Depaoli and Rob Depaoli and 2 great nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, Dr. Joaquim and Blanche Lopes and sister Diana Lopes.

Rosary and Mass of Christian Burial will begin at 10:00 a.m. on Monday, July 22 at Sacred Heart Church, 529 I Street, Patterson, California.

In lieu of flowers, family prefers any remembrances be made to either Clear Creek Services, Inc. Corporate address: 316 Cliff Drive, Aptos, CA 9003-15136 or Fr. Conner's Endowment Trust Fund, P.O. Box 1174, Patterson, CA 95363.

Fremont detectives thwart auto burglar in action

SUBMITTED BY FREMONT PD

A prolific auto burglary suspect, well known to police in Fremont and other Bay Area cities, was arrested July 17 after being tailed by Fremont Police Detectives to Dublin where he was caught attempting to break into a car.

Fremont Police Department officials said detectives were conducting extra patrol checks in several commercial centers in the city where multiple auto burglaries have been reported. During their operation, they came across an auto burglary suspect whom they knew. They followed the suspect in unmarked cars to Dublin where they watched the driver and an occupant of the car preparing to commit an auto burglary. Using their unmarked vehicles, detectives blocked in the suspect's vehicle and immediately took one of the suspects into custody. Meanwhile, the second suspect fled on foot but was quickly captured and taken into custody by a detective.

Several Fremont police officers responded to the scene to assist and were soon joined by officers from the Dublin Police Department. Property from multiple auto burglaries was recovered from the suspect vehicle. Meanwhile, officials from the Sunnyvale Department of Public Safety confirmed that they were also investigating the same suspect for crimes in their city.

Fremont detectives were able to give property back to one victim the next afternoon. Because of the ongoing nature of the case, police are withholding the names and booking photos of the suspects.

In addition to this case, swing shift officers were also busy with auto burglaries in Fremont that same evening. Patrol officers likely scared off the driver of a suspicious Ford Explorer with stolen plates that was being driven around in the Mowry East Shopping Center and got into a short pursuit with a black Infiniti believed to be the suspect vehicle in four auto burglaries reported in the Ranch 99 Center in the Warm Springs District. Additional auto burglary reports were taken at Shakers Pizza on Thornton Avenue and on Whitney Place.

Officials from the Fremont Police Department said they are committed to disrupting these crimes. Toward that effort, they are adding additional staffing resources on a daily basis to provide extra patrols in all known auto burglary hot spots throughout the city. Meanwhile, police are reminding the public to not leave any valuables in parked cars because that can increase the chance of an auto break-in.

Milpitas Police Log

SUBMITTED BY LT. FRANK MORALES

Thursday, July 18

• At about 11:31 p.m. officers responded to a report about an assault with a deadly weapon on the 1600 block of E. Calaveras Boulevard. The suspect, identified by police as Titans Quang Ho, 49, of Milpitas had reportedly swung a kitchen knife at a woman. She was able to avoid being cut, but sustained minor injuries from falling while eluding Ho. As Ho fled, he reportedly brandished the knife at nearby bystanders before shutting himself inside his apartment on N. Temple Drive. Officers ordered Ho to come out and surrender, but he did not, prompting a call to the police Hostage Negotiation Team and SWAT team. After a four-hour standoff, SWAT officers entered the apartment and arrested Ho without incident. He was booked into the Santa Clara County Main Jail.

County to receive funding for wildfire preparedness

SUBMITTED BY JANICE ROMBECK

In the wake of numerous destructive wildfires throughout California during the past several years, officials from Santa Clara County are planning to use an allocation of $4 million from the state 2019-2020 budget to upgrade communications technology in order to better fight wildfires.

Efforts by Assemblyman Evan Low, (D-Campbell) were instrumental in the funds being allocated to the Santa Clara County.

Low and several other county officials, including County Supervisors Dave Cortese and Susan Ellenberg and Santa Clara County Fire Chief Tony Bowden were to publicly announce details about the funding at a news conference on July 22 in Cupertino.

Santa Clara County is the fifth largest county in California. Its government serves a multi-cultural population of 1.9 million residents with a $7 billion budget and more than 70 agencies/departments and 22,000 employees.

Apollo 11 astronaut returns to launch pad 50 years later

By Marcia Dunn AP Aerospace Writer

Apollo 11 astronaut Michael Collins returned Tuesday to the exact spot where he flew to the moon 50 years ago with Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin.

Collins had the spotlight to himself this time – Armstrong has been gone for seven years and Aldrin canceled. Collins said he wished his two moonwalking colleagues could have shared the moment at Kennedy Space Center's Launch Complex 39A, the departure point for humanity's first moon landing.

"Wonderful feeling to be back," the 88-year-old command module pilot said on NASA TV. "There's a difference this time. I want to turn and ask Neil a question and maybe tell Buzz Aldrin something, and of course, I'm here by myself."

At NASA's invitation, Collins marked the precise moment – 9:32 a.m. on July 16, 1969 – that the Saturn V rocket blasted off. He was seated at the base of the pad alongside Kennedy's director, Robert Cabana, a former space shuttle commander.

Collins recalled the tension surrounding the crew that day.

"Apollo 11 ... was serious business. We, crew, felt the weight of the world on our shoulders. We knew that everyone would be looking at us, friend or foe, and we wanted to do the best we possibly could," he said.

Collins remained in lunar orbit, tending to Columbia, the mother ship, while Armstrong and Aldrin landed in the Eagle on July 20, 1969, and spent 2 1/2 hours walking the gray, dusty lunar surface.

A reunion Tuesday at the Kennedy firing room by past and present launch controllers – and Collins' return to the pad, now leased to SpaceX kicked off a week of celebrations marking each day of Apollo 11's eight-day voyage.

At the Air and Space Museum in Washington, the spacesuit that Armstrong wore went back on display in mint condition, complete with lunar dust left on the suit's knees, thighs and elbows. On hand for the unveiling were Vice President Mike Pence, NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine and Armstrong's older son, Rick. Armstrong died in 2012.

A fundraising campaign took just five days to raise the $500,000 needed for the restoration.

Calling Armstrong, a hero, Pence said "the American people express their gratitude by preserving this symbol of courage."

In Huntsville, Alabama, where the Saturn V was developed, thousands of model rockets were launched simultaneously, commemorating the moment the Apollo 11 crew blasted off for the moon. Hundreds of youngsters attending Space Camp counted down ... "5, 4, 3, 2, 1!" – and cheered as the rockets created a gray cloud, at least for a few moments, in the sky.

Back at Kennedy, NASA televised the original launch video of Apollo 11, timed down to the second. Then Cabana turned the conversation to NASA's next moonshot program, Artemis, named after the twin s ister of Greek mythology's Apollo. It seeks to put the first woman and next man on the lunar surface – the moon's south pole – by 2024. President John F. Kennedy's challenge to put a man on the moon by the end of 1969 took eight years to achieve.

Collins said he likes the name Artemis and, even more, likes the concept behind Artemis.

"But I don't want to go back to the moon," Collins tole Cabana. "I want to go direct to Mars. I call it the JFK Mars Express."

Collins noted that the moon-first crowd has merit to its argument, and he pointed out Armstrong himself was among those who believed returning to the moon ``would assist us mightily in our attempt to go to Mars."

Cabana assured Collins,
"We believe the faster we get to the moon, the faster we get to Mars as we develop those systems that we need to make that happen."

About 100 of the original 500 launch controllers and managers on July 16, 1969, reunited in the firing room Tuesday morning. The crowd also included members of NASA's next moon management team, including Charlie Blackwell-Thompson, launch director for the still-in-development Space Launch System moon rocket. The SLS will surpass the Saturn V, the world's most powerful rocket to fly to date.

Blackwell-Thompson said she got goosebumps listening to the replay of the Apollo 11 count-down. Hearing Collins' "personal account of what that was like was absolutely amazing."

The lone female launch controller for Apollo 11, JoAnn Morgan, enjoyed seeing the much-updated firing room. One thing was notably missing, though: stacks of paper. "We could have walked to the moon on the paper," Morgan said.

Collins was going to be reunited later in the day with two other Apollo astronauts at an evening gala at Kennedy, including Apollo 16 moonwalker Charlie Duke, who was the capsule communicator in Mission Control for the Apollo 11 moon landing. The U.S. Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville also had a special anniversary dinner on tap Tuesday night, with Aldrin and other retired Apollo astronauts and rocket scientists.

Only four of the 12 moonwalkers from 1969 through 1972 are still alive: Aldrin, Duke, Apollo 15's David Scott and Apollo 17's Harrison Schmitt.

NASA spokesman Bob Jacobs said Aldrin, 89, bowed out of the launch pad visit, citing his intense schedule of appearances. Aldrin hosted a gala in Southern California last Saturday and planned to head directly to the Huntsville dinner. Aldrin and Collins may reunite in Washington on Friday or Saturday, the 50th anniversary of Apollo 11's moon landing.

California takes a stand against ticket scalping scheme

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUENAS

A bill introduced by Assemblymember Bill Quirk (D-Hayward) to prevent ticket scalpers from purchasing large quantities of tickets and reselling them at inflated prices, sometimes up to 30 times the ticket's face value, has been signed into law.

A 2018 investigative report revealed that representatives from Ticketmaster marketed its ticket resales platform, TradeDesk, directly to ticket scalpers at a conference in Las Vegas. TradeDesk representatives purposely highlighted the capability of the platform to circumvent state limits on the amount of tickets that can be sold before additional consumer protections kick in.

"Services like TradeDesk can help circumvent California consumer protection laws and take advantage of consumers," said Quirk. "It is wrong when companies allow scalpers to drive up the cost of tickets in their pursuit of increasing the resale volume through their services."

AB 1032, approved by California Gov. Gavin Newsom on July 12, expands existing penalties on using software to circumvent protections on bulk purchases of tickets. Current statute primarily targets third-party bots used to scan webpages hundreds of times a minute. With AB 1032, these protections will include software or services offered by the primary ticket seller, such as Ticketmaster.

While Ticketmaster did not take a position on the bill, they did inform Quirk that they do not support the use of their software to bypass consumer protection laws and provided a technical demonstration of the TradeDesk service.

"It shouldn't matter if scalpers are using custom-made bots or using sophisticated services like TradeDesk," continued Quirk. "There is no reason consumers should pay hundreds of dollars over face value for concerts or musicals just because they are competing against software for a limited amount of tickets. I'm glad Governor Newsom agreed with my logic and signed this measure into law." The law goes into effect Jan. 1, 2020.

Fremont teachers receive donations from nationwide eatery

SUBMITTED BY SONIC DRIVE-IN

During May, SONIC Drive-in restaurants recognized incredible teachers and the contributions they make to education as a part of its Limeades for Learning initiative in partnership with nonprofit partner, DonorChoose.org. With the goal of helping teachers obtain much-needed classroom supplies and learning resources, SONIC launched a donation match in honor of Teacher Appreciation Month and gave five teachers in Fremont $904.

In total, SONIC donated $1.2 million matching donations made to SONIC Teacher projects. As a result, SONIC rewarded five entrepreneurial teacher-lead projects at three schools in the Fremont community, including:

- Bruce & Antoinette Schlobohm at Ardenwood Elementary School for the project, 'Wearing a Button is a "Badge of Honor!"
- Wearing a Button is a "Badge of Honor!"
 Bruce & Antoinette Schlobohm at Ardenwood Elementary School for the project,
- 'Just Add Students: STEM in Action with Snap Circuits"
- Stephanie Ynzunza at Brookvale Elementary School for the project, "Let's Find Out!"
 Alicia Norling at Harvey Green Elementary School for the project, "Help Get Rid of the litch!"
- Alicia Norling at Harvey Green Elementary School for the project, "Out with the Old, In with the New!"

"SONIC fans who love teachers responded incredibly during Teacher Appreciation Month and we were delighted to support 3,937 teachers and their students across the country," said Christi Woodworth, vice president of public relations for SONIC.

While Teacher Appreciation Month is celebrated in May, SONIC supports teachers year-round. Visit www.LimeadesforLearning.com for updates on contributions, future donation matches, how to get involved and explore public school teacher projects in the Fremont community in need of support. Teachers can become SONIC Teachers and submit projects through nonprofit partner DonorsChoose.org for a chance to receive funding.

Grant to boost online learning at Chabot and Las Positas Colleges

SUBMITTED BY
GUISSELLE NUNEZ

Chabot and Las Positas colleges have been named two of 70 colleges throughout California to receive grants from the Improving Online CTE Pathways program developed by California Community Colleges' California Virtual Campus — Online Education Initiative.

The grant, totaling approximately $326,000, is earmarked to develop six online Career and Technical Education certificates, fund improvement in online course accessibility with an emphasis on Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliance and equity, and create and curate zero textbook cost materials. LPC's grant, totaling $177,187, will be allocated to develop a fully online Supervisory Management certificate of achievement, provide for faculty professional development and fund course accessibility coordination.

"Chabot is committed to providing equitable opportunities for student success," said Dr. Stacy Thompson, Vice President of Academic Services. "We strive to create an environment where all students receive the tools they need to reach their academic and career goals. Receiving this grant allows us to create six additional online certificate programs that lead to jobs in high demand in the Bay Area and that pay a living wage. In addition, our faculty and staff will work to increase accessibility through improved ADA compliance in our online courses. We will also use the grant funds to adopt Zero Textbook Cost materials, which supports increased student retention and success."

It's estimated that online course enrollment at Chabot increased 144 percent between 2012 and 2017, and improving online course availability assists in accommodating students' need for flexible scheduling, reduces transportation costs and eliminates the need to find adequate childcare. In developing Online Educational Resources (OER) and Zero Textbook Cost materials, Chabot will significantly reduce one of the largest financial hardships of attending college. In its 2017 Student Satisfaction Survey, 50% of Chabot students reported they had a hard time paying for books, which surpassed responses for housing (16%), transportation (20%) and food (21%).

"Giving students more options for online education is a priority for Las Positas College," said Dr. Kristina Whalen, Vice President of Academic Services. "Not every student can study in a traditional classroom setting. Disabilities that make it difficult to attend classes on campus. Lack of transportation, childcare issues, demands at home and work schedules have traditionally prevented students from enrolling in college. The more opportunities we provide for students to study when and where they can, the more students we'll be able to serve. Receiving this grant allows us to create our first completely online certificate program, further develop our faculty and help us fund coordination that will allow us to optimize course accessibility for our online students."

LPC's grant project will begin July 1 and run through June 30, 2020. It's estimated that one-third of students in the California Community Colleges system now take at least one class online. Improving Online CTE Pathways grants are aimed at helping community colleges develop online programs that either lead to short-term, industry-valued credentials, or enable a student in a career pathway developed by Calbright College (the new California online community college) to continue their education in a career pathway offered by a traditional community college. This year, Improving Online CTE Pathways grants totaling $27.5 million were awarded to California community colleges and college districts to develop and strengthen career education programs that can be completed online.

"These grants will help improve the online education ecosystem in the California Community Colleges," said California Community Colleges Chancellor Eloy Ortiz Oakley. "This holistic approach includes strengthening traditional college offerings and the opening of Calbright, the new online college that will serve low-wage working adults who can quickly gain short-term credentials."

Operated by Foothill-De Anza Community College District, CVC-OEI is focused on student success in California's community colleges through innovative online learning practices. Its primary focus is to increase the number of transfer degrees awards by the state's community colleges. Chabot College offers over 120 degree and certificate programs, nine of which are fully available online, and LPC has over 85 degree and certificate programs, with four degrees fully available online.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Needs, Wants, Concerns

"Students First" is the slogan that Ohlone College often advertises. All around the campus, in the main building, posters on the sidewalks – everywhere; Ohlone projects this idea that it recognizes students first. However, due to recent events, ASOC believes this slogan to be a shameless and hypocritical presentation by a college whose actions are clearly counter to that principle.

The Associated Students of Ohlone College (ASOC) is currently trying to reveal that the college is actually not supporting its students. In the ASOC constitution, Article 6: Source of Power allows the college President, Dr. Gari Browning, to ignore any voting decisions of ASOC or clubs at her own discretion, for any reason.

In the past, the college president used Article 6 to forbid ASOC from endorsing a letter by the students of Ohlone requesting transportation between the two Ohlone campuses. This was despite a survey showing that students were largely in favor of the plan and a student petition. The college eventually relented and created a shuttle system between campuses but to this day, omits the fact that this was the result of student outcry, and they actively tried to stop it.

In a different use of Article 6, ASOC voted that minimum GPA and unit requirements to become a member of the ASOC should not be changed. ASOC realized that changing eligibility requirements would affect student representation. "Since this hasn't even been a problem in the past, why bring this change - a change that in no way benefits Ohlone students?" asked one concerned Senator. Despite this, Dr. Browning ignored the students' vote.

Secretary, Tanzim Amin, was unable to send out minutes of ASOC's meetings because the college banned ASOC from posting them to the college website, possibly forcing ASOC to be in violation of the Brown Act. In an attempt to prevent future meetings of a quorum of ASOC elected members to discuss these happenings, Ohlone College also banned ASOC from reserving any room on campus to hold meetings. This collective attempt to gag the student's voice to communicate to the board, violates student's 9+1 rights by preventing future meetings on campus, and erasing any indication of student discontent from official records.

It has become extremely apparent that the college president is abusing her power and preventing students from exercising free speech. Therefore, ASOC has demanded that the Board of Trustees remove this clause from the constitution. On July 10th, ASOC responded with an active protest at the Ohlone College Board of Trustees meeting. ASOC then launched a change.org and video describing their situation and asking the public to sign a letter of support to the Ohlone Board of Trustees.

Public officials, other college student governments, clubs, local businesses and, as of July 13th, the Student Senate for California Community Colleges (representing all 114 community colleges) have supported ASOC. We are now seeking community support to ensure free speech and student autonomy at Ohlone.

City Council votes to close fire station

SUBMITTED BY LAUREN SUGAYAN

During a July 16 study session in Union City members of the City Council received the findings of a recent analysis conducted on the efficiency of fire services in Union City and to discuss amendments to the city's contract with the Alameda County Fire Department.

An independent analysis was conducted by the Center for Public Safety Management (CPSM) to examine calls for service data in Union City to understand if the deployment of fire department resources were effective and cost-efficient in providing fire and medical response to Union City residents. The analysis determined that Fire Station 30 located at the border of Union City and Fremont (35000 Eastin Court) is underutilized and not needed.

Staff recommended that the City Council consider closing Fire Station 30. Most councilmembers agreed and voted 4-1 to close the station, with councilmember Emily Duncan dissenting.

Next, the City Council also directed staff to explore possible options with the cities of Newark, Hayward and Fremont to look at the option of potentially reopening Fire Station 30 in the future as a part of a shared services model. As a part of its next steps, the City will convene a team to develop a plan, a timeline and a community outreach process associated with the closure of Fire Station 30.

Tuesday's council vote comes after the City contracted with the Center for Public Safety Management (CPSM) in October 2018 after the City Council's Fiscal Stability Committee directed staff to study and evaluate the delivery of fire services in Union City with the goal of determining ways to reduce the rising cost of the fire services contract while balancing service demands.

The purpose of the July 16 study session was to present the results of the independent analysis conducted by CPSM. In addition, the Alameda County Fire Department presented the findings of a report from a 2017 study that was conducted by CityGate Associates, LLC to review the adequacy of current fire station resource deployment system for areas served by the Alameda County Fire Department, the risks to be protected, and the emergency incident outcomes desired by the community.

The CPSM report focused on deployment of fire services to Union City, whereas the CityGate Associates LLC report examined the standards of coverage throughout Alameda County.

Ban on glyphosate use in picnic areas

SUBMITTED BY DAVE MASON

On July 16, the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors unanimously approved Resolution 2019-07-187, which calls for an immediate ban on glyphosate use in picnic areas with full elimination in all developed park areas by the end of 2020. Glyphosate is currently used as part of the park district's pest integration management program for fire ignition prevention and vegetation maintenance around park structures, fences, walkways, parking areas, and in public right-of-way areas including roads, bike paths, and trails.

The park district recognizes that there are public concerns about glyphosate use. In 2016, the district updated its integrated pest management practices to focus on early intervention strategies and the use of organic products when possible as an alternative to glyphosate. Over the past two years, the park district has reduced glyphosate use by 66 percent for park maintenance.

"The park district has taken large steps over the past two years to reduce glyphosate use and find alternatives," said East Bay Regional Park District President Ayn Wieskamp. "We are proud to be a leader in parkland management. Managing the complex spectrum of land that the park district does, with requisite state and federal requirements, is not easy or inexpensive."

THEATRE REVIEW

seizes the spotlight

On July 20, 1899, New York City newsboys launched a strike to fight the cost increase to their daily batch of newspapers imposed by Joseph Pulitzer, William Randolph Hearst, and other publishing giants. Louis "Kid Blink" Ballatt united orphan and runaway workers and led a two-week long battle against the corrupt establishment, standing against injustice and exploitation and making their voices heard.

One hundred and twenty years later, StarStruck Theatre brings the historic story to vibrant life, their production of "Newsies" opening appropriately on Saturday, July 20. The musical is based on the 1992 Disney movie by Bob Tzudiker and Noni White, and opened on Broadway in 2012 featuring music by eight-time Academy Award winner Alan Menken, lyrics by Jack Feldman, and a book by four-time Tony Award winner Harvey Fierstein. Its timeless David versus Goliath story with themes of struggle, poverty, friendship, love, and taking a stand for what is right earned 23 major theatrical nominations during its Broadway run, winning Tony, Drama Desk, and Outer Critics Circle Awards for Score and Choreography.

"Newsies" is a perfect package of exciting song and dance, and director Lori Stokes and her creative team expertly orchestrate a rousing and jubilant production that is an absolute joy to watch. The live orchestra unleashes powerful, punchy music under the skilled direction of Nancy Godfrey, and set designer Stephen C. Wathen creates a wonderful sense of place with moveable stairs and scaffolding and news-related elements.

Family ties also mark this production as Courtney Stokes is aboard as assistant director, and former StarStruck leading lady Juliane Godfrey, who made her Broadway debut and served as dance captain in the musical "SpongeBob SquarePants" in 2017, returns to her roots to take the role of choreographer. Godfrey first saw "Newsies" when it premiered at the Paper Mill Playhouse in New Jersey in 2011 and thought it was an incredible story of children's voices and speaking up for what you believe in. She later worked with "Newsies" Tony Award-winning choreographer Christopher Gattelli on "SpongeBob." While she admits the StarStruck job offer was daunting, Godfrey was grateful for the opportunity and knew she had to give it a shot. "It means the world to me," she said.

The cast is a delightful, robust troupe that gives their all; it is impossible not to be lifted by their energy. Diego China wears the role of charismatic leader Jack Kelly as easily as the cap on his head, carrying the story with tremendous heart, fun, and fire.

Niko Le is warm and engaging as Davey and adeptly moves through his character's progression from reticent new newsboy to inspirational leader. Russell Lym as Davey's brother Les adds cute factor, and Gabriel Lew as Crutchie brings spirit, and has a nice tender moment in "Letter from the Refuge."

Mehaa Mekala brings confident and poised girl power as Katherine and leaves an indelible mark among the boys. She is terrifically fun and relatable in the wonderful number "Watch What Happens," and pairs perfectly with China to form a fun and feisty couple with natural rapport.

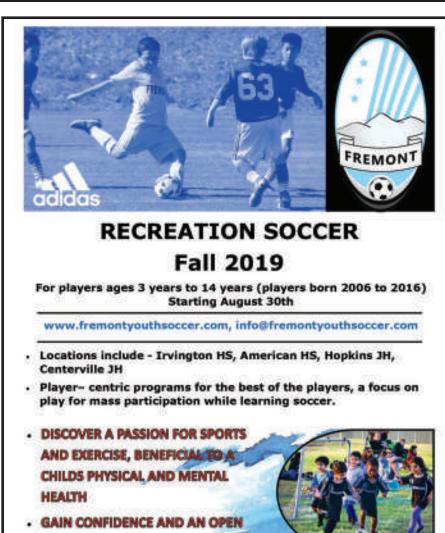

A strong female presence is also created by Maya Hoyt, who struts her stuff as theater chanteuse Medda Larkin and delivers a great performance in "That's Rich." Roman Severtson impressively embodies Joseph Pulitzer's authority and distain, and while all of the newsies have their own delightful quips, Roeen Nooran's Race jumps to the forefront with his delightful gibes and personality.

Every minute of "Newsies" is a treat, but a few standout numbers rise to the top including "The World Will Know," "Seize the Day," and "Once and For All." The finest number of the night is arguably "King of New York," in which Godfrey employs tap shoes and spoons to tremendous effect.

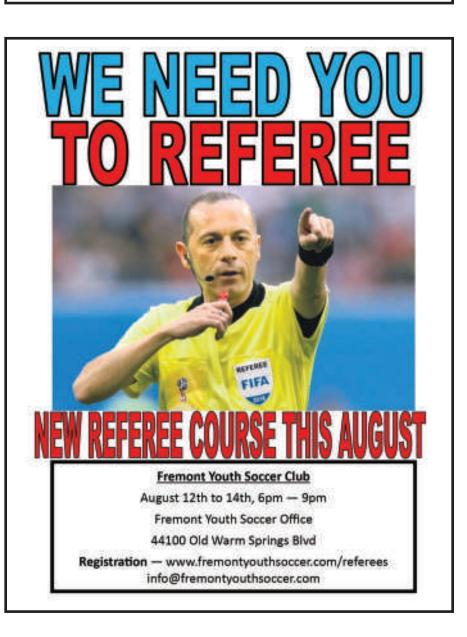

With its sassy verbal sparring, energetic music and dance, spirit of brotherhood and standing against the odds, StarStruck's "Newsies" is an invigorating night of theater that should have everyone seizing tickets.
