Fremont Bank Foundation donates forklift to Harbor Light Church

By GELSEY PLAZA

Harbor Light Church started a drive-thru food distribution in Spring of 2020 in response to food security issues spurred by the global pandemic. Partnering with City Serve International and Farmers to Families, the church provides farm fresh produce and dairy items to households in need. The Farmers to Families Food Box program was designed and implemented as a temporary, emergency relief effort to respond to severe market disruption caused by the pandemic.

According to Harbor Light Pastor Terry Inman, his church has delivered over twenty thousand 30-pound boxes of food in the Fremont and Tri-City communities over the past year. These boxes have included fresh fruits, vegetables, meats, cheese, milk and eggs. Harbor Light typically distributes over twelve boxes to more than 600 cars in their bi-weekly Saturday drive-thru events. Most volunteers are from Harbor Light Church and Fremont Christian School, yet many community members also joined by volunteering through their website.

Fremont Bank project is part of the vision for Fremont's New Downtown

By STEPHANIE GERTSCH

The 55-year-old, independently-owned, Fremont Bank broke ground at the site for its new headquarters on Thursday, May 20, 2021. Located at 39150 Fremont Boulevard, the mixed-use building will be located opposite Fremont Hub in the center of Fremont's downtown area.

Fremont Bank was founded by Morris Hyman in 1964 because he saw a need for a locally-owned bank that truly served the community. Since then, it has expanded to 21 branches and services over 400 nonprofit agencies.

At the event, representatives from the bank, City of Fremont, and Ress Inc., spoke about the significance of the new building. In attendance were Chris Olsen, CEO of Fremont Bank; Andrew Mastorakis, President of Fremont Bank; Todd Wright, Ress Inc. Project Lead; Lily Mei, Mayor of Fremont; Brian Hughes, President of Fremont Bank Foundation; Michael Wallace, Chair of the Board for Fremont Bank; and Alan Hyman, Vice Chair.

Diet and Exercise are Key to Aging Gracefully

Washington Hospital Physician Offers Tips for Staying Healthy

Through Washington Hospital Zoom Fitness, community members can receive instruction while exercising at home.

How to age gracefully is a perpetual topic in a culture obsessed with youth. There is a constant barrage of ads promoting the newest lotion or potion meant to keep us looking and feeling younger. But the advice from a local physician is pretty simple: eating right and exercising are the best ways to improve your health as you age.

National Senior Health and Fitness Day on May 26 focuses on the importance of staying healthy and fit. According to the American College of Physicians, more than 20% of the U.S. population will be over age 65 by 2030.

“Functional impairment is the major concern as we get older,” said Vanessa Wilson, MD, a physician with Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF) who specializes in internal medicine. “Progressive loss of skeletal muscle mass and strength correlates to physical disability and poor quality of life. With the growing senior population, that means a lot of people could face health problems in older age if they don’t start moving.”

She said the greatest risk factors for functional impairment are obesity and lack of muscle strength.

Nearly 40% of people over age 60 are in the obese range. “You need to maintain a healthy weight throughout your life, but it becomes particularly important when you get older,” she added. “Seniors who are obese have a much higher risk of being placed in a nursing home because they can’t perform the daily activities of living.”

Eating Right

Diet and exercise are key to keeping your weight under control and improving muscle mass and strength. Dr. Wilson noted that a healthy diet means one that includes plenty of fruits and vegetables, whole grains, nuts and seeds, and lean proteins. “Avoid processed foods like fast food and packaged foods. They are full of salt and fat and they don’t have as many nutrients.”

Dr. Wilson emphasized eating enough protein is critical because it prevents muscle loss. “The recommended daily allowance for protein is at least 0.8 grams per kilogram of body weight per day,” she added. “But a higher protein intake, like 1 gram per kilogram of body weight per day, is more protective of muscle mass.”

Dr. Wilson said it’s best to get protein from plant sources like quinoa and beans as well as fish and chicken. She encourages older adults to avoid fattier proteins like steak and pork chops. Getting plenty of calcium and vitamin D in your diet is also important for preventing bone loss. Dr. Wilson recommends taking a calcium supplement that includes at least 1,000 units of vitamin D, to help the absorption of calcium into the bones.

Get Moving

Exercise can help you stay healthier at any age, and it’s never too late to get started, but Dr. Wilson advised don’t wait until you’re old to adopt an exercise regime. Get moving now.

“Starting when you’re younger will help to maintain muscle mass as you age,” she explained. “You don’t have to go to the gym and workout to stay in good shape. Find something you like to do. I love to dance. Walking, hiking and biking are great ways to get moving. Exercise is more sustainable if you enjoy it.”

Physical activity also helps to maintain bone density and prevent osteoporosis as well as reduce the risk for depression and anxiety, which can increase as we grow older. She recommends at least three hours of physical activity every week. “When you’re physically healthy, you feel stronger emotionally,” she added. “Yoga, meditation and socializing with friends and family can also help.”

While the pandemic may have made it hard for people to participate in some group activities, Tri-City residents may want to try Washington Hospital’s Zoom Fitness Program, which offers meditation and fitness classes in the comfort of your own home with live instruction through Zoom.

“It is preferred that people don’t wait until they are in their 60s to start focusing on health,” Dr. Wilson said. “But if you are older, get started now—it’s never too late. You will feel better and reduce your risk of becoming physically impaired as you age.”

Washington Urgent Care to Close June 30

Same-Day Appointments and Occupational Health Services Will Continue to be Available at Multiple Clinic Locations

The urgent care services landscape has undergone great change in recent years and fewer hospitals are operating urgent care clinics as a result. Washington Hospital has made the difficult decision to close Washington Urgent Care on June 30, 2021.

Washington Hospital is currently in discussions with potential urgent care partners that specialize in urgent care and have the infrastructure and technology platforms to better serve evolving community needs. The Hospital will announce its collaboration with an urgent care organization as soon as a partnership is confirmed.

Washington Urgent Care has been meeting local urgent health care needs at its Washington West (2500 Mowry Ave., Fremont) location for two decades. Our expert staff has welcomed patients on a walk-in basis for minor emergencies and illness, like cuts, sprains, fractures, asthma, colds, flu, stomach pain and vomiting. Once the pandemic hit, those with COVID-19 symptoms were directed to our Emergency Department, which has isolation rooms designated for suspected COVID-19 patients.

Washington Urgent Care has been dedicated to patients with minor illnesses and injuries since the year the clinic opened. "Washington Hospital is grateful to all the staff and physicians for upholding the Hospital's Patient First Ethic, providing high quality, efficient and compassionate care to our community these many years," said Sr. Director of Ambulatory Care Services, Walter Choto.

Washington Hospital is committed to continuing to serve the Tri-City Area's urgent care needs with convenient access near people's homes and workplaces. As of now, those who require same-day, non-emergency care, can continue to use Washington Urgent Care at Washington West through June 30, 2021.

Beginning July 1, same-day urgent care appointments will be available at the most appropriate Washington-affiliated medical clinic. The clinic will provide the patient's primary care physician with visit information. In late June, a phone number to schedule same-day urgent care appointments beginning July 1 will be posted at whhs.com/UrgentCare.

"We look forward to assisting patients on a same-day basis as needed for urgent care in the clinics, said Thomas Collins-Pallett, MD, a board-certified family medicine specialist with Washington Township Medical Foundation. "Using our comprehensive network of specialists, we hope to offer patients the precise care they require, when they need it."

Local employers will also continue to have access to occupational health services at one of these community clinics beginning July 1. Pre-employment physical exams will be available at a Washington Township Medical Clinic as well.

Go to whhs.com/UrgentCare for the latest information about urgent care, occupational health and pre-employment services. The phone number to schedule urgent appointments will be available at whhs.com/UrgentCare in late June.

As always, for emergency medical care, call 911 or go to the nearest Emergency Department. Washington Hospital's Emergency Department is located at 2000 Mowry Ave., Fremont, in the Morris Hyman Critical Care Pavilion.

Until June 30, you can continue to walk in to Washington Urgent Care on the 2nd floor of Washington West or call for a same-day appointment at 510.791.2273. Visit whhs.com/UrgentCare in late June for more information you can use to schedule same-day urgent care appointments or for occupational health services starting July 1.

Washington Urgent Care will be closing June 30, 2021.

Fremont Bank Foundation donates forklift to Harbor Light Church

Inman says that they are grateful for the support of Mayor Lily Mei, city council members Teresa Keng and Teresa Cox, county Supervisor David Haubert, and the whole Harbor Light and Fremont Christian School community.

"We are so grateful for all the community support we have received for this food outreach during this challenging time," Inman said. "Everyone appreciates this tangible kindness. Fremont Bank Foundation is a great community partner, [and] compassionate volunteers made this happen."

Perishable food arrives by truck and must be unloaded and distributed the same day to preserve its freshness. Over the past year, Harbor Light's forklift was a key tool to assist in the distribution of food; however, their forklift broke down and became inoperable. Fremont Bank

Foundation donated a grant for the church to purchase a newer reconditioned forklift so that they could continue providing food to the needy. In the future, Harbor Light hopes to use the new forklift for additional community outreach programs.

According to President and Executive Director Brian Hughes, Fremont Bank Foundation thrives by fostering lifelong relationships with community organizations. So when the Covid-19 pandemic hit communities hard, the Foundation began a series of grants to support hospitals, community needs, food banks, and education. When Hughes heard about the food distributions happening at the church, he asked Harbor Light Church and Fremont Christian School Facilities Manager John Eshelman if the Foundation could provide any assistance.

These are the types of efforts the Foundation likes to support. "It's not too often that nonprofits have excess cash lying around to fix or replace broken equipment," Hughes said. "It becomes very difficult for nonprofits to fulfill their mission when the main equipment is broken. It is important for nonprofits like Harbor Light Church to keep fulfilling their mission, to keep helping others in making this community a better place to live. This is why the Fremont Bank Foundation exists."

On Saturday, May 22, Harbor Light had their final drive-thru food distribution of the current USDA Farmers to Families program. Safe distancing protocols were followed as drivers opened their trunks and volunteers loaded the pre-packed produce boxes into cars.

Harbor Light is working with City Serve International and the USDA to participate in new programs as they become available.

"We are [also] working with our local and National City Serve and Compassion Network to expand our community services," Inman said. "Our dream is for warehouse space so we can receive and distribute food and other critical household resources to those in the last mile if needed. We are thrilled with what our volunteers have been able to do this last year!"

Ordination of new reverend by Mission Peak UU congregation

SUBMITTED BY ALEX JENSEN

Alex Jensen (Robert Alexander Jensen) of Fremont, will be ordained to the Unitarian Universalist (UU) ministry, Sunday, June 6, 2021, at 12 noon via Zoom. Mission Peak UU Congregation (MPUUC), Fremont, and the First Parish in Wayland, MA (FPW) will ordain and bestow the title, Reverend, upon him in a service of ritual, music, and affirmation.

Jensen is currently the intern minister for FPW and the newly called minister of the UU Congregation of Grand Traverse in Traverse City, MI this fall. He grew up in Fremont and joined MPUUC in his young teens. A graduate of Washington High School, he developed a call to ministry in his high school years. At Harvard Divinity, Jensen was chosen as the intern minister at FPW while he completed his studies. He has served at the congregation for two years, with his time ending this June.

Jensen is a graduate of California State University, Monterey Bay (BA Human Communication) and received a Master of Divinity from Harvard Divinity School in Cambridge, MA. His internships include chaplaincies at the UU Urban Ministry in Roxbury and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston, as well as his two-year part-time ministry at FPW.

Rev. Greg Ward, minister of MPUUC, commented, "Because of his sensitivity and attunement to those in his care, his sense of history, his commitment to justice and his ability to understand this moment we're in, Alex's ministry carries significant gravitas. We believe he is one of the most important leaders to watch in the coming decade."

Rev. Dr. Stephanie May, minister of FPW, commented, "Alex quickly became a cherished leader in the congregation and has been instrumental throughout the pandemic to the community and staff of First Parish. He will be deeply missed in Wayland even as we joyfully support his new ministry in Michigan."

Jensen's family, friends, and colleagues will join him virtually for this auspicious occasion. <https://mpuuc.org/>

O'Malley says she will not seek re-election

SUBMITTED BY ANGELA RUGGIERO

After 37 years as a member of the Alameda County District Attorney's Office, District Attorney Nancy E. O'Malley announced on May 18 that she has decided not to seek a fourth term in the upcoming election. O'Malley joined the District Attorney's Office in September 1984 and became the first woman elected to the position of District Attorney, taking on the role in 2009.

"I could not be more thankful for the career I have had in the best District Attorney's Office in the state and certainly one of the best in the nation. The overwhelming respect for this office is widespread and well earned," O'Malley said. Malley will complete her term that ends in the beginning of 2023.

Under O'Malley's leadership the office expanded the victim/witness division to 40 victim advocates and opened the Family Justice Center (FJC), the second of its kind in the country. The FJC provides services primarily to women and children who are victims of domestic violence, sexual assault or human trafficking, or elder/dependent care abuse or child abuse.

In 2009 O'Malley stepped up efforts to combat human trafficking by introducing H.E.A.T Watch (Human Exploitation and Trafficking), a blueprint for all communities to build their anti-trafficking initiatives. H.E.A.T. Watch is now a national model. Two years later, O'Malley created the District Attorney Justice Academy (DAJA) for juniors and seniors in high school. The now countywide program helps youth find their passion, and advocate for a better society. More than 1,000 students have participated in the program, and 100% have gone off to college.

During her career, O'Malley has fought for the appropriate treatment of inmates and under her watch, people sentenced to state prison for the most serious crimes committed in Alameda County make up less than 3% of the total prison population. "We have created more alternative courts to incarceration than any other county in the state and perhaps the country, per capita," O'Malley said. "I am grateful to all of those in the county and in the office who have given me great support over the course of my career. Your voices have contributed to the success and progress of the office and to the safety of our community."

Fremont Bank project is part of the vision for Fremont's New Downtown

Completed in 1970, the original building was removed just three weeks shy of its 50th birthday. The project for the new building was started in 2013 as part of the vision for Fremont's new downtown. In 2017, the bank began submitting proposals to developers, but several pulled out of the project that was also delayed by Covid-19 in 2020. Now, MIG Real Estate will be developing 240 new apartments as well as commercial space around the bank's new building.

This project will involve the bank's internal team, ELS Architecture, 12 engineering and design consultant firms, two general contractors, and 40-50 subcontractors.

Building features include:

- Two-story retail space with 20-ft ceilings
- Rooftop terrace on the 6th floor with a bar and board room
- Three floors of office space
- Electrochromic glass designed to turn dark in sunlight

- Accent color that can be turned on at night

The structure is expected to be completed by fall 2022.

Todd Wright, project lead from Ress Inc., said, "Near the end of 2022 we will be meeting again up on the 6th floor on the outside terrace with views of the hills and toward the Bay."

Military Appreciation Month

SUBMITTED BY ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS

This year, Memorial Day will be celebrated on May 31 and, once again, it will be defined as the unofficial beginning of summer—a time for raucous parties and barbecues and the opening of beaches, pools, and amusement parks. "Have fun," is the motto. That is not necessarily a bad thing if you take the time to reflect on the true meaning of the holiday.

It is a day to remember the brave men and women who gave their lives to protect our lives. Rebecca Weber, CEO, Association of Mature American Citizens, says, "Take the time to remember those who died so we could live: the men and women of our armed forces."

In fact, May is Military Appreciation Month—remembering Loyalty Day on May 1, VE Day on May 8, Armed Forces Day on May 15, and Memorial Day on the 31. This year it presages the celebration come November of the 100th Anniversary of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Sergeant Major Gavin McIlvenna served in the U.S. Army over a period of 23 years, including distinguished service as a sniper team leader and operations sergeant major in Iraq, Bosnia, Baghdad, and Africa. He also was an Honor Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Fewer than 700 soldiers have served as Honor Guards at the Tomb since it was dedicated on November 11, 1921.

You do not hear much about the Tomb or about the Honor Guards, so McIlvenna, along with three fellow guards, created the Society of the Honor Guard in part to "continue to serve as we did at the tomb" by creating a group dedicated to spreading its history.

In a recent interview published in the monthly magazine of the American Legion he put it this way: "This tomb is not just a big piece of marble, or as some have described it, 'a rock.' There is an unknown American resting under the tomb and in each of the crypts. Each one represents so much more than conflict; they represent the heart of America and what it truly means to serve and sacrifice for others. I look back fondly on my time at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and like most former tomb guards wish I could be there again standing watch."

A complete list of the Unknown Soldier events taking place between now and November can be found at <https://tombguard.org/assets/images/news/TUS100-List-of-Events-as-of-050521.pdf>.

Share your thoughts about East Bay parks and trails

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT

The East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) would like to hear about the experiences visitors have when using their parks and trails. Guided by the UC Davis Center for Regional Change, their 2021 Community Survey includes questions about feeling welcome at parks and trails, barriers to visiting, and new programs and events that communities would like to see.

Responses and insights from the survey will be used to guide future decisions, community programs, and investments by the park district. The online survey is available in English, Spanish, Korean and traditional Chinese and will take approximately eight to 10 minutes to complete. All responses will be anonymous.

The survey is posted on the EBRPD website at <https://www.ebparks.org/about/survey.htm>.

Californians urged to vacation in state

BY JANIE HAR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

California tourism leaders are urging residents to spend their pent-up travel dollars exploring their home state, as coronavirus case numbers stay low and the industry reels from a 55% decline in revenue.

The state of nearly 40 million people has been among the most conservative in the U.S. with tight restrictions in place to curb the pandemic. Now, California has the lowest infection rate in the country and on May 4, Los Angeles and San Francisco received permission from the state to reopen bars, restaurants, museums and businesses more broadly.

Gov. Gavin Newsom, a Democrat who faces a recall election this year due in part to his handling of the pandemic, announced that the state is on track to fully reopen its economy in mid-June. As vaccination numbers rise, more people are booking trips to favorite sites such as Northern California wine country, the Santa Barbara coast, and Disneyland, which recently reopened after an unprecedented 13-month closure.

Tourism revenue in the state plummeted from $145 billion in 2019 to $65 billion last year. The figure is not expected to top pre-pandemic levels until 2024 as international travelers stay away for now, said Caroline Beteta, president and CEO of Visit California, the nonprofit that markets the state. The travel and tourism industry has lost half of an estimated 1.2 million jobs. Travel spending is expected to near $98 billion this year and $126 billion in 2022, topping $151 billion in 2024.

Elected officials and travel executives appeared at San Francisco's convention center May 4 to promote in-state travel. "It's a call to all Californians to not only help support this industry, which supports so many jobs in so many small businesses, but also the fact that it's time you can safely get out in public, again, and I think we all need a little weekend getaway," said Lt. Gov. Eleni Kounalakis.

San Francisco and other gateway cities that rely heavily on international tourism were especially hard hit, said Joe D'Alessandro, president and CEO of San Francisco Travel. Spending from international visitors dropped 84% to $829 million last year, and spending on meetings and conventions fell 85% to $275 million.

During the pandemic, the Moscone Convention Center served as shelter for homeless residents, the city's emergency operations hub, and a mass vaccination site. "Now it's time to get this building open for its core function of hosting meetings and large-scale events to really support the heart of this city, and you'll see this happening this fall," D'Alessandro said.

Beteta said the state lost $12 billion from June 2020 through February as residents left to vacation out of state, including $1 billion that went to Mexico. "This is about choosing California and choosing your fellow Californians first as a modern-day act of patriotism, and helping get the state back on track," she said.

Shape Our Fremont

Development Slowdown

The pace of new housing development in Fremont has decreased due to several factors. The number of projects that Fremont residents could have their say about has also declined. As a result, this is the first Shape Our Fremont article in nine months.

Construction Costs

The price of building materials, fixture supplies, and construction labor rose in the years before the pandemic hit because of the major increase in housing production in California. Those costs were intensified by the March 2020 pandemic shelter-in-place. Developers who had already successfully contracted for labor and supplies are finishing up their projects. The 4,000 units near Warm Springs B.A.R.T. by Lennar, Valley Oaks, and Toll Brothers are nearing completion. The 3515 Walnut Apartments project with 275 units, adjacent to Paragon Apartments, is rising in the Downtown Center.

Building Permits

Project applications that have been approved must submit building specifications and get building permits approved before they can start construction. Many of the city and school impact fees must be paid at the time of final building permit issuance. Several project sites are sitting empty awaiting either their designers' plans or investors' financing. Niles Gateway, Fremont Bank Residences, and Villas of Irvington are a few examples.

Waiting it Out

Developers who see daunting construction and permit costs are letting their project sites sit empty even if the planning enti-lement has been approved.

When a developer has more than one project, they sometimes focus on completing the one that was furthest along last March. No new formal planning applications have been submitted since the pandemic hit. Two requests for a Preliminary Review Procedure (PRP) have been processed but no previous PRPs have been submitted as formal applications. Several applicants have requested Historical Reviews for old houses on lots they want to develop.

State Housing Acts

California has enacted several housing bills in the last five years that take project approval away from local city control. If a proposal follows all of the "objective" city planning rules, the city must approve it. Fremont residents no longer have a say about new housing development. The city planning staff and residents can only question whether the plans really do fulfill all the requirements. Planned districts or projects that require a General Plan Amendment still must be approved by the city council.

SiliconSage Bankruptcy

The Centerville project of 165 residential units and a commercial front on Fremont Boulevard is now under receivership due to SiliconSage Builders' bankruptcy. The approved entitlement is being offered for sale by the court-assigned receiver to a new developer who would take over the grading, building, and selling of the units.

SiliconSage's Osgood Residences is almost complete, and the receiver is hopeful of a sale. The nearby Osgood II project had not been approved yet, so it is only the land that is subject to sale.

Starting to Pick Up

Several affordable housing developments are finally starting to be built. Grading has begun for the apartment building portion of the Granite Ridge project on Paseo Padre Parkway at Sequoia Road. The Irvington Senior Housing site near the post office is also being graded. City Center Apartments near Washington High School is up and being finished.

A few development applicants have resumed their review with scaled down plans. The proposal for The Argonaut, at the corner of Mowry Avenue and Argonaut Way, was revised to lower the building to five stories and reduce the total units to 55. Mission Paradise, at the southwest corner of Washington Boulevard and Ellsworth Street, was decreased from 20 to 14 units.

Robson Homes has submitted a Housing Crisis Act Preliminary Application (HCA) for a mixed-use project in Mission San Jose on the same parcel they had previously asked for a General Plan Amendment to build only townhouses on. An HCA Preliminary Application certifies a date that an application is complete and thus subject to housing ordinances in place at that time. It is not the formal planning application that will go through the review process.

ORGANIC HERITAGE FARMING

ARDENWOOD HISTORIC FARM

SUBMITTED BY DAVE MASON

On Tuesday, May 18, 2021, the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors unanimously approved a 5-year lease with Dig Deep Farms to continue organic heritage farming at the Park District's 205-acre Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont. Dig Deep Farms is a nonprofit enterprise of the Alameda County Deputy Sheriffs' Activities League. Ardenwood Historic Farms, in operation by J.E. Pery Farms since the mid-1980s, ceased operations in 2020 due to retirement.

Ardenwood Historic Farms is a working farm that provides a journey back to the 1850s Patterson Ranch – a prosperous, 19th-century country estate with a beautiful Victorian mansion and elaborate Victorian Gardens. The farm still grows the same kind of produce grown in the region over the last 100 years, utilizing historical agricultural practices from the 1870s to present. Park District interpretive staff and volunteers guide guests through the Victorian house, demonstrate historical farming practices and chores, and describe what life was like in the early 1900s. Ardenwood receives over 120,000 visitors annually.

"The lease is an important step to continue the historical farming at Ardenwood and provide the public, especially youngsters, an opportunity to learn about the history of science and agriculture and what life was like in the late 1800s and early 1900s," said Ayn Wieskamp, who represents Fremont on the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors. "The farming operation provides the mechanical labor that produces all of the traditional heritage fruits and vegetables, all of which helps educate visitors about the history of agriculture in the region."

Ardenwood Historic Farm is owned by the City of Fremont and operated by the Park District on a long-term management lease. Established in the 1996 Ardenwood

Business Plan, the purpose of Ardenwood Historic Farm is to preserve agricultural land, provide an opportunity to demonstrate historical and current farming practices, and offer educational, cultural, and recreational opportunities to the community related to historical and heritage farming and horticultural practices. The Park District's 2005 Land Use Plan for Ardenwood Historic Farm requires preservation of the land through agricultural use.

"I would like to first express my thanks to the members of the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors for awarding the lease agreement to Dig Deep Farms to operate Ardenwood Farms," said Alameda County Supervisor Richard Valle. "Alameda County has invested in and partnered with Dig Deep Farms and other stakeholders to strengthen the local food system, increase food security, and provide training and employment to disadvantaged residents by building local capacity to harvest, process, and distribute fresh and sustainable specialty crops."

"Dig Deep Farms uses traditional farming methods and applies years of Certified Organic Farming experience to work harmoniously with the land, minimizing waste and maximizing nutrient rich soil and produce," added Valle.

Dig Deep Farms is expected to begin site preparations in June, with the first crop harvest in late summer/early fall.

Motivated Buyers Push Up Prices and Sales

BY DAVID STARK
PUBLIC AFFAIRS DIRECTOR,
BAY EAST ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Record-setting prices are just one of several reasons real estate is unseasonably hot in the Tri-Cities.

"Things continue to expand at such rates, it's amazing," said Nancie Allen, Fremont-based REALTOR® and past president of Bay East Association of REALTORS®.

Allen indicated that the number of buyers making offers and the number of pending sales and actual sales in Fremont is astonishing. "I can show you examples where regardless of the price point, there are multiple offers coming in," she added.

According to Allen, while the number of buyers in the market is growing, the brisk pace of home sales is quickly consuming the few homes that are on the market. She predicts that several factors could bring more homes on the market starting with a homeowner's ability to transfer their current property tax rate to a new home, made possible by the passage of Proposition 19.

"Sellers understand now that they can move anywhere in California and take their current property taxes with them. I know several people who have been sitting on the fence and when they found out about the passage of Prop 19 it was a huge relief for them to know they can move out of the area, still stay in California, and not get dinged with a huge property tax increase," she explained.

Homeowners wanting to match their homes to their lifestyles and needs is a second factor which may drive up inventory. Allen said, "We are definitely going to see sellers 'right size.' Some of the homes coming on the market are going to be from sellers who have been living in their property for a long time and now they don't need the size they have anymore. They have large amounts of equity, and they are going to be moving, probably out of the area, closer to where their families are living."

New rules regarding open houses may help ease the shortage of homes for sale. Allen said, "I do think that more houses will be coming on the market in the next few months as sellers feel more comfortable as we come out of the pandemic. They are becoming less concerned about having people tour their homes and just feel more comfortable about having their homes on the market."

Chabot-Las Positas reopening offers flexible options

SUBMITTED BY
MUJEEB DADGAR

Chabot-Las Positas Community College District (CLPCCD) has announced that both of its colleges will reopen for the fall 2021 semester with schedules that allow for the most flexibility for students, including hybrid online/on-campus courses and fully online offerings.

Both Chabot College and Las Positas College will have more hybrid online/in-person classes for the fall than they have had since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Safety protocols as recommended by both the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) will be in place for all in-person meetings of classes at both Chabot College and Las Positas College.

CLPCCD Chancellor Ronald Gerhard said he feels certain that all students, faculty, and staff will be safe to return to either the Chabot College or Las Positas College campuses, given the intense preparation by the district.

"As COVID-19 cases decline across the country and in our region, we feel very comfortable allowing more classes to be held on-ground on both campuses," Gerhard said. "This hybrid format will allow our students to cautiously enjoy some of the benefits of learning in a traditional setting, while reaping the rewards of a distance learning environment during the pandemic."

Class schedules are subject to change to maintain compliance with COVID-19 state and county guidelines. Fall classes for both Chabot College and Las Positas College start on August 18; registration began on May 17.

Newsom proposes $12 billion to house state's homeless

BY JANIE HAR, ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Gov. Gavin Newsom has proposed $12 billion in new funding to get more people experiencing homelessness in the state into housing and to "functionally end family homelessness" within five years.

"As governor I actually want to get something done. I don't want to talk about this for a decade," he said at a former San Diego hotel that's been converted into housing for the homeless.

Newsom's proposal includes $8.75 billion to expand a California program created during the pandemic that converts hotel and motel rooms and other properties into housing for people in need. Roughly half of that money would go toward creating housing where mental health and other behavioral services are provided on site to people living there. California, the nation's most populous state, has an estimated 161,000 people experiencing homelessness, which is more than any other state. Beyond the money for converting hotels, Newsom proposed spending $3.5 billion on new housing and rental support payments for families.

If Newsom's plan wins support from the state Legislature, it's implementation would depend heavily on the willingness of local governments to go along. Local leaders showed support for the plan during the pandemic by converting 94 hotels, motels and other properties across the state into housing for people experiencing homelessness, said Jason Elliott, a Newsom adviser who works on housing and homelessness.

Still, San Diego County Supervisor Nathan Fletcher, a fellow Democrat, acknowledged that tackling the issue is challenging and urged Californians to step up efforts to solve the politically difficult problem. "Every community group that you go to demands that you solve the problem of homelessness, and then in the exact same meeting they'll demand you don't solve it anywhere near them," he said.

The new pending proposal came as part of a $100 billion pandemic recovery plan Newsom is rolling out. The massive amount comes from an astounding $76 billion estimated state budget surplus and $27 billion in new funding from the federal government's latest coronavirus spending bill.

Focusing on homelessness, a vexing issue for the state, could prove politically helpful for Newsom as he faces expected recall election later this year. A new state database shows that nearly 250,000 people sought housing services from local housing officials in 2020. Of that number, 117,000 people are still waiting for help while nearly 92,000 people found housing.

Newsom -- a former mayor of San Francisco, where the homelessness is very visible -- seized the twin crises of homelessness and affordable housing even before the pandemic started last year. He launched projects "Roomkey" and "Homekey," using federal funding to house homeless residents in hotels and motels during the pandemic and helped cities, counties and other local entities buy and convert motels and other buildings into housing.

Summer Activities FOR FITNESS AND FUN

Summer is the time to get outside and get moving!

Animal Charades

This is a great game for two or more. One person says the name of the animal and the other person starts moving around and making sounds like that animal. When the laughter starts to slow down, the person acting as an animal gets to yell out an animal name for the other person to imitate.

Draw a line from each child to the animal they are imitating.

Super Sponge Splash Zone

Win or lose, everyone winds up soaked in this game for three or more players.

STUFF YOU'LL NEED: bucket, several sponges, water

- One person holds an empty bucket and stands about 10 feet apart from the other players.
- Players toss water-soaked sponges towards the player holding the bucket.
- If the player with the bucket catches one of the sponges in the bucket, the person who tossed that sponge becomes the bucket holder.

How many sunglasses can you find on this page?

Make and Play Giant Pick-Up Sticks

Look outside for some sticks about two feet (60 cm) or longer. Paint the sticks different colors. Toss the sticks into a pile and then try to pick them up one at a time. If you play with another person, you each have to pick up sticks without moving any stick except the one you are picking up. A player loses their turn if they cause another stick to move. Give each color stick a different number of points. See who can pick up sticks that add up to the most points.

Draw a line from each stick on the left to its exact twin in the pile on the right.
NOTE: Each stick can appear more than once.

Water Balloon Piñata

Skip the unhealthy sweets and try a piñata that can cool you down on a hot day!

- String a bunch of water balloons in the yard between two trees. The water balloons are your piñata!
- Take turns with a friend or brother or sister or cousin—someone you like to be with and swing a plastic bat or a large stick at the piñata. A wrapping paper tube would work as well.
- EXTRA CHALLENGE: Blindfold the hitter!

Extra! Extra! Newspaper Baseball

Summertime is a great time to get some exercise while also having fun with family and friends. Try these outdoor games this summer.

Water Balance Dance

Crank up your favorite music and dance while holding a plastic bowl filled with water over your head. Can you dance through the whole song without getting soaked?

Flashlight Tag

Start an egg timer at 5 minutes. The person who is "it" has a flashlight but must close their eyes and count to 30 while everyone hides. While standing in place (base), the person who is "it" must try to spotlight those hiding. And those hiding must make it back to base before the egg timer dings.

Sponge Volleyball

Make a clothesline between two trees with a rope. Hang a plastic tarp over the rope so that each team of 3 or more players can't see the team on the other side of the tarp. Each player has a bucket of water and some sponges. Three, two, one... GO! Every player starts tossing sponges over the net towards the other team, while the other team does the same. First side to have no sponges left on their side of the "net" wins one point. Repeat. Which team can earn 10 points first? Still dry? How about 20?

Kevin Finnerty, President of Union City Lions Club, hopes the community will respond to this unique opportunity to demonstrate their support for the club and the Tri-City communities. The Crab Feed was a huge fund raiser for the club, and without it, the Lions' ability to support community programs could be impacted! To sweeten the deal, any person who wears the 2021 Pardon shirt at the 2022 Union City Crab feed event, will receive 10 raffle tickets free.

The Union City Lions Club "Pardon" of the Crabs will be held June 1 through June 30, 2021. For more information on the event and to order your shirt in support of the Lions Club, go to www.uclions.com.

Makes some waves!

The Fremont Art Association (FAA) is delighted to have fellow FAA member Tetiana Taganska as a guest demo artist at the virtual general meeting on Wednesday, June 2. Taganska will be demonstrating oil painting of ocean and beach scenes – using color to create dynamic and lively ocean waves. For spectators that would like to paint along with her, suggested materials are listed on the FAA website.

Taganska defines herself as an impressionist artist. She is passionate about painting from life and considers it the best way to reflect the most beautiful moments of "here and now." Her favorite subjects include landscapes, flowers, and portraits – telling her viewers a story about light and color. Originally from Ukraine – she studied fine art at Svyatoslav Brakhnov's Atelier in Kiev, Ukraine, and with Anthony Ryder at The Ryder Studio in Santa Fe, NM. She moved to the USA in 2011, and she resides in Fremont.

Taganska is a multi-talented artist and works in a variety of mediums. She has been teaching art classes for children and adults since 2016. In 2018, Taganska and her friend Olga Tymoshchuk opened the Imaginook Art Studio in Newark, CA. (<https://www.imaginook.us/>) Through Imaginook, Tetiana currently teaches both children's and Adults' online and in-person classes, starting with children as young as four years old! Available classes and summer camps include just about every medium from crayons and colored pencils up to painting, drawing, clay and digital animation. The upcoming demo is an excellent opportunity to see her skill in action!

FAA is excited to have Taganska provide a demonstration. She received the FAA Artist of the Year award in 2017, and her works won Best in Show awards at Ohlone College Arts shows in 2016 and 2017. Her paintings and handmade journals and cards can be found at the FAA gallery and are for sale in the online shop. She is also a Member of the Board of Directors for FAA, helping support and promote local art in our community.

Please join us for an exciting demonstration where we will get to see ocean waves coming alive! The meeting will be held online via Zoom. Participants must register ahead of time and will receive the Zoom link via email. All details may be found on the Fremont Art Association webpage: www.fremontartassociation.org/monthlymeetinganddemo.

SAME BATH, TWO LOOKS

BY ANNA JACOBY

In housing tracts, neighborhoods will contain half a dozen or so models spread throughout the tract. If you are like me, you take walks around the neighborhood, seeking out examples of your own model to see what other owners have done with it.

After 20 years as an interior designer in the Tri City Area, there have been more than a few instances where I have been able to design the same model of house for two different families. Maybe throughout this column you have even been able to identify your own model.

A few years ago, I designed the hall bath in a house in the Northgate neighborhood in Fremont. Then, last year I designed the same hall bath in the same model house, but in a different neighborhood (Brookvale this time). While both baths were the exact same size and in the same configuration, both have their own personalities and styles.

The bathroom itself is not big; it measures a typical 5' x 9' - just enough space for a tub, toilet, and vanity. But even in a small footprint, enhanced function and style are possible. Let us compare them here:

Northgate Bath

This bath features a charming free-standing tub that my client affectionately nicknamed "the teacup." It perfectly fits the back of the room and creates a lovely spot for a relaxing soak. The tub itself has contemporary clean lines, which contrasts with the more ornate, traditional plumbing fixtures. I chose this tub because it was the largest tub I could fit into the space; traditional clawfoot tubs would have fit but would have been narrower, and less comfortable for bathing.

Another traditional element in the bath is the wainscoting, which in this case with gray glass subway tiles on the tub skirt. I used the same tiles on the floor to create a cohesive and expansive look. Even in small baths, using large format tiles is good to do - the large scale can make a space look larger.

As in the Northgate bath, I used polished chrome fixtures, but in this bath, I also introduced a few black accents for contrast. Note the black cabinet knobs and the black narrow frame around the mirror.

This cabinet features Shaker styling. The clean lines of Shaker work well in both traditional and contemporary rooms. This bath leans more contemporary, but still has some softness to it with the curves on the mirror, and the marble veining.

Both baths are attractive and functional, and meet the needs of the families that live there. It is always a fun challenge for me to reinvent a space, and seeing the same bath two different ways is even more enjoyable.

is made from porcelain tile, making it a more practical choice than wood. The floor is a cute, retro gray, and white mosaic. The cabinetry has some ornate detailing, but not too much for this small area. The storage cabinet is from Pottery Barn—a nice blend of function and style.

I kept the mirror simple - frameless with a beveled edge; a heavy frame might have been too much with all the other details, and the clean lines tie back to the streamlined tub. I love the pretty toile Roman shade on the window—it is a feminine touch that adds some color and softness.

Brookvale Bath

Same configuration, with a completely different look. Large format marble-look porcelain tiles surround the alcove tub,

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: MAY 25, 2021

All Signs: We have all been feeling the effects of Mercury retrograde; however, this week, Mercury Retrograde officially begins.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): This is a busy fast-paced week. Relations with siblings, relatives and neighbors will be warm and cozy. Nevertheless, Mercury Retrograde will threaten transportation issues. Expect missed buses, car problems, truck mishaps, flat tires, and unexpected repairs to ground transportation, including bikes. Also, increased chaos on the home front will be maddening and require patience with family members. Reward yourself with some fun socializing. This week, your ability to work effectively with everyone will contribute to your productivity.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): This week you will be busy socializing with friends. Furthermore, you will be proactive in all your communications with others. Meanwhile, the Full Moon on Wednesday might bring financial matters to a head, especially related to the wealth of your partner or something to do with loans and mortgages. Fortunately, because you are the financial wizard of the zodiac, you will work things out in your favor. Nevertheless, cheques in the mail will be late and goofy, financial delays will be frustrating. Having said that, Venus in your House of Earnings will attract money to you.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This is a happening week! The Sun, Mercury retrograde, and Venus are all in your sign, and on Wednesday, the only Full Moon directly opposite your sign all year will take place. Tension with a partner or close friend might take place. Fortunately, both the Sun and Venus will empower you and make you confident, charming, and diplomatic. In addition, Jupiter at the top of your chart makes your reputation shine! This means whatever happens, you will come out smelling like a rose.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You are pulled in several directions this week. Part of you wants to hide and keep a low profile, especially because hidden activity (or a hidden relationship) is going on and you might want to avoid the fallout. Nevertheless, Mars in your sign makes you confident, proactive, and ready to jump on anything with both feet. It might be a good idea to use physical exercise to blow off any pent-up steam that could be building up within you. Midweek, the Full Moon could bring a health situation to a head or something to do with your job or a pet. After the Full Moon is over, especially by the end of the week, these problems will dissipate or disappear.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This is a popular week, and you are more involved than usual with creative, artistic people, who you adore. You might hear from old friends or members of group from the past because of Mercury retrograde. Meanwhile, you might be unsure of future goals. By early July, you will have a better idea of what you really want to do. Issues related to your kids or a romantic partner might be tough to deal with midweek. Fear not because after the Full Moon peaks, by Friday or the weekend, everything is copacetic. At the beginning of this week, it will serve you well to be generous to others.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): You are high viz. this week, making a great impression on everyone. In fact, you make such a great impression on bosses and important people, you might begin a romance with someone. It is time to revisit old issues with parents or bosses you have not seen for a while. When it comes to dealing with friends and groups, you will be enthusiastic, possibly even competitive. The Full Moon on Wednesday will challenge you because despite the demands of your job or your career, a family member will also make demands on your time. Cope as best you can, but do not ignore career.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): You want to travel and do something different and exciting! You can learn new things and study something new because that can be exciting. You might also have a formal dinner with your family or do something "different" that makes you feel turned on and energized by life. You might "go out for dinner" or "have a drink" in a classy way at home. All things are possible. The trick is to satisfy the urge in your mind, not your body. Guard against accidents midweek. Pay attention to everything you say and do.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Money, mortgages, shared property, and the responsibility for others is a primary focus for you. The Full Moon on Wednesday will bring something to do with these areas to a head. Hopefully, afterwards, there will be resolution or a solution in sight. Whatever comes up in the beginning of the week could create financial tension. Fortunately, after the Full Moon peaks, problems that were intensifying will diminish or disappear. Work to benefit others this week, especially before Wednesday's Full Moon. What you give will come back to you multiplied.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): The only Full Moon in your sign all year will peak on Wednesday. Problems seem to intensify as the Full Moon approaches, and then after the Full Moon peaks, these same problems will diminish or disappear. Some of these problems could be related to tension with partners and close friends. You might also have a dispute with someone about shared property or an inheritance. Keep faith that by the end of the week, everything will mellow out and fall in place because it will.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): This will be a busy week for you because you are motivated to accomplish as much as you can. Admittedly, Mercury retrograde will create some hassles. Misplaced paperwork, confused communications, missed appointments are just some things that might dog your footsteps. Nevertheless, you are motivated and focused! Furthermore, relations with coworkers will be smooth. Having said that, be patient with partners and close friends because some tension here is likely. Problems will intensify before Wednesday's Full Moon and then they will diminish.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): This is a playful, fun-loving week! You will also enjoy any chance to express your own creativity. Old flames are back in your world either literally or in your thoughts or in your dreams. This is due to Mercury retrograde. In fact, Mercury retrograde might encourage you to resurrect a previous creative project to either finish it or take it in a new direction. Despite your involvement with arts and children, you are still keen to work hard. Do not let tension building up toward Wednesday's Full Moon sideline you.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): This is a powerful week for you with lucky Jupiter in your sign. Mars makes you want to play and have fun! It will give you a competitive spirit in any activity. Your focus on home and family will be primary, especially dealing with a parent. You will particularly enjoy making where you live more attractive. Wednesday's Full Moon will make you feel pulled between the demands of your career versus the demands of home and family. This week you cannot ignore home and family and your personal life.

Art installation honors lives lost to racial violence

SUBMITTED BY JOHN R. SMITH

A moving art installation that combines visual and digital art to make a stunning appeal for attention to lives lost to racist violence returns to Niles Discovery Church on June 1 and will be on display through June 25.

The "Pray Their Names" installation is an outdoor sculpture of 160 large wooden hearts, created in memory of 160 of the more than 7,000 Black lives lost to racial violence since the lynching of Emmett Till in 1955. It will be set up on a portion of the church's property on Niles Boulevard, near Nursery Street. Admission is free and open to the public.

In addition to the riveting visual of hearts with names emerging from the ground, there is a digital component to the traveling memorial. Imprinted on the hearts is a QR code readable by smart phones. Scanning the code will take viewers to a web site where they can read the stories and see photos of those people named in the installation.

The installation was last at Niles Discovery Church in late August and early September of 2020. Between then and its return this June, the installation has traveled to other churches and faith communities around the Bay Area.

"The installation asks us to consider what's in a name," Rev. Jeffrey Spencer, Senior Pastor at Niles Discovery Church, said. "A whole life is in a name.

From conception to death, our names speak of the hopes and dreams of our parents, of our own aspirations and accomplishments, and of our bruises and our blessings."

Rev. Brenda Loreman, Associated Pastor, added, "Religious communities around the world are standing with those on the margins, the poor, and the disenfranchised. This is one way Niles Discovery Church is standing with the disempowered."

"Pray Their Names" was created by Rev. Katie Morrison, a Special Education teacher known to her learners at San Rafael's Venetia Valley K-8 School as "Ms. Mo." Her students learn about their beauty, worth, and belonging under Morrison's tutelage. Before she was a teacher, Morrison traveled the nation, teaching churches about inclusion.

For Morrison, the vision for the installation comes out of a lifelong sense of solidarity with the pain and suffering endured by black and brown bodies. Morrison hopes that this visual work will be a source of healing for all bodies, a unifying force to bring people together to meet in the pain and wrestle with the implications of institutionalized racism. She says, "Once we acknowledge and face the wrong, we can begin to do what is right."

"We are proud to host this interactive opportunity to experience the cumulative and visceral loss that these hearts represent," Loreman said. "As progressive Christians, we believe that there can be no peace until there is justice for all God's children...no exceptions."

Celebrating the life of Castro Valley teen slain 27 years ago

SUBMITTED BY JENNY LIN FOUNDATION

At the 27th anniversary of the loss of Jenny Lin, her family is hosting a virtual ceremony on Thursday, May 27, at 7 p.m. to renew their commitment to finding Jenny's killer and working with friends and volunteers in building long lasting, community-based program services that model Jenny's love of music and friendship.

A young, talented musician and a straight-A student, Jenny was murdered in her own home in Castro Valley 27 years ago, at the age of 14. This brutal death devastated her family and shocked the community. Jenny's parents, John and Mei-lian Lin, vowed to continue working with the police until the case is solved, and to carry on Jenny's dreams so that her life may be extended in a unique fashion.

Since its establishment, the Jenny Lin Foundation has offered annual music scholarships and free youth music programs during the summer. Safety fairs, workshops and contests were some of the other events that the Foundation has organized to raise awareness of child safety issues and to improve safety knowledge and precautions for parents and children. More recently, the Foundation donated a wide selection of titles covering safety-related topics targeting different age groups. These materials benefit the Alameda County Library through branches in Castro Valley, San Lorenzo, Union City and Fremont, and may be accessed using the keyword "Jenny Lin (Jennifer Han-chi Lin) Foundation."

To date, there is still no arrest or conviction related to Jenny's murder. However, her family remains hopeful that through continuous police effort and public help, this senseless, horrifying case will be solved soon. A $100,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of Jenny's murderer is still available. Anyone with information should call the Alameda County Sheriff's Department at (510) 667-7721 or the toll-free hotline at (855) 4-JENNY-LIN.

Classified employees honored by county education office

Barth Paine, a web designer for the Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) was recently named as one of nine classified employees of the year by the Alameda County Office of Education (ACOE).

In March, Alameda County school districts nominated exemplary employees in nine categories designated by the California Department of Education (CDE): Paraprofessional, Clerical and Administrative Services, Transportation Services, Food and Nutrition Services, Custodial and Maintenance Services, Security Services, Health and Student Services, Technical Services, and Skilled Trades. Paine was selected as winner in the Technical Services category. A panel of judges from ACOE selected an honoree in each category to be considered for recognition by the CDE as one of the State Classified Employees of the Year.

In its May 18 announcement, ACOE cited Paine's expertise in every department and at every school site. "He is quick to respond to requests and develops content often beyond expectations to provide families and the community with needed information and resources. Barth always takes time to meet every task with the same high level of effort and reliability, ensuring that each task is done professionally, accurately, and in a timely manner," the AOE statement read.

Other winners representing school districts throughout Alameda County include:

California proposes to steer new homes from gas appliances

AP WIRE SERVICE

California's energy policy and planning agency wants to transition new homes away from gas-powered appliances.

The California Energy Commission released a draft building standards code on Thursday that would require new homes to be equipped with circuits and panels that support all-electric appliances for heating, cooking, and drying clothes.

The commission is set to adopt the updated code in August, and it would take effect on Jan. 1, 2023, the San Francisco Chronicle reports.

While the code does not explicitly forbid gas, the commission hopes it will lead builders to construct all-electric structures as part of a growing effort to eliminate fossil fuels from buildings, which account for about one-quarter of the state's annual greenhouse gas emissions.

"We're encouraging the technologies of the future," energy commissioner Andrew McAllister said.

Yosemite climbers face new obstacle: overnight permits

BY BRIAN MELLEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Climbing El Capitan and the famous big walls of Yosemite National Park just got a bit harder.

The park had added red tape to cut through before climbers can begin the physically grueling and mentally demanding feat of inching up vertical granite walls that take days to conquer and require spending the night suspended on tiny platforms hundreds or thousands of feet above Yosemite Valley. Starting Friday, May 21, climbers need to secure free permits before they can attempt multi-day climbs on El Cap, Half Dome, the Leaning Tower and other big climbs.

The long-rumored plan will inevitably cause grumbling in the mecca of American rock climbing and among a culture that embraces freedom. But it could help limit the number of climbers on classic routes that have become more crowded as the sport has grown exponentially in popularity.

"I think we're going to have a lot of climbers whining and complaining because they were gifted this thing that they think is a right and it was really a privilege," said Hans Florine, who with 170 ascents has climbed the 3,000-foot face of El Capitan more than anyone. "We were given incredible rag-tag Wild West privileges for the last 40 years in Yosemite. All they're asking is to let us know you're there."

The two-year pilot program will put climbers on par with backpackers who have been required to get wilderness permits for decades to spend the night in protected backcountry areas of national parks and forests. Unlike hikers, though, the climbing permits will not at first be rationed on a quota basis that limits how many people can be on a designated route each day.

Jeff Webb, the wilderness manager for Yosemite, said the program will measure for the first time how many people are doing overnight or multiday climbs to see what areas are getting the most use and could eventually lead to limits on certain routes, such as The Nose on El Capitan. The park will seek voluntary compliance but could fine climbers who break the rules, Webb said.

Daniel Duane, a climber and author of "El Capitan: Historic Feats and Radical Routes," said there was a certain sadness to the development because it was a reminder of an era when Yosemite's signature climbs weren't crowded.

While he's not opposed to the change, Duane said permit reservations required four to 15 days in advance will remove any spontaneity and will be seen as another slap by climbers who have often been odds with the park administration. "Climbers are not crazy to have felt that some really substantial part of park culture just wishes they would go away," he said. "This little step, as benign as it seems and, frankly, as sensible as it seems, definitely raises those concerns for all of us."

Corey Rich, cinematographer of "The Dawn Wall," who has spent his professional career hanging off the side of Yosemite's largest cliffs as an adventure photographer, said the move would be polarizing among climbers. The loss of freedom is a bummer for him but it seems like a necessary evil as the sport evolves and grows and will help protect the walls they all cherish.

"I'm also one of these old dogs that will have to learn the new trick of how to apply for a permit the next time I go up El Cap," Rich said.

5 ways to help small businesses recover from the pandemic

AP WIRE SERVICE
BY RANDA KRISS OF NERDWALLET

When the COVID-19 pandemic hit, communities around the U.S. rallied to help small businesses by launching "shop local" initiatives, purchasing gift cards and starting fundraising campaigns.

Now that states have begun to roll back social distancing restrictions and vaccination rates continue to climb, small businesses still need continued support.

"When we shop local, the statistics have shown us that more money is put into your community, which you then benefit from," says Ash Cintas, founder of City Shoppe, an e-commerce platform serving local retailers and products in multiple cities.

Every dollar that's spent locally helps businesses get through this challenging time so that we keep our communities and the character of our cities, she says.

We talked to small-business owners to find out how consumers can best support them as they slowly transition out of the pandemic. Here are five of their tips:

1. CHANGE YOUR MINDSET

Put small, local businesses at the forefront of your mind – and your shopping list. Although large retailers like Amazon or Walmart offer speed and convenience, ask yourself, "Can I purchase this from a small business instead?" Patrick Connelly, co-founder of Stellar Villa, said in an email.

"It's important to remember that the cheapest option isn't always the best," said Connelly, whose company sells art from Brooklyn, New York. "Oftentimes, small businesses can offer unique products (opposed to mass-produced), a more personal experience and superior customer service when compared to huge corporations."

2. DO YOUR RESEARCH

Explore your local area, browse for small businesses online and, if you travel, check out the businesses in those areas too.

"Depending on where you live, most communities have pop-up markets, flea markets and, of course, local boutiques," says Cara Luke, owner of Hope Street Candle Co. in Providence, Rhode Island. "(They) are really needing people to come and shop, and at least where I live in Rhode Island, they're still taking a lot of precautions to make sure that consumers feel safe."

Luke recommends searching online or local community publications to see if there are business directories in your area that highlight small businesses to support. A city's chamber of commerce website may have a list of small businesses, or you can check sites like TripAdvisor or Yelp.

3. TELL A FRIEND

Don't underestimate the power of word-of-mouth marketing. Tell your friends, family members and co-workers about your favorite small and local businesses – and suggest that they do the same.

"Small businesses are at a distinct disadvantage to being found online compared to their large counterparts," JB Manning, owner of Wimberley Puzzle Company in Wimberley, Texas, said in an email.

"Telling our friends, neighbors, and social media world about great products with excellent service will be not only the key to success for small-business recovery but future growth as well," Manning said.

4. GET DIGITAL

Instead of just following your favorite small businesses online, share them with your own followers. If you have a particularly enjoyable visit or purchase, create a post and be sure to tag the business.

Subscribe to newsletters, attend virtual events or workshops, add local products to gift registries and write reviews.

"If you love what we make or had a great experience with our team, share it," Zox CEO Jason Kuipers said via email. Kuipers and his brothers have been selling collectible wristbands in Los Angeles since 2011.

"In a time where many people only bother to leave a review if they're upset, letting others know when you've found a company that goes above and beyond helps more than you could ever realize – it's how even small brands end up with a big following," he said.

5. THINK CREATIVELY

If a shop near you is struggling, consider launching a fundraising campaign, volunteering to set up a booth or sell goods at a flea or farmers market, donating your professional skills or helping to organize an event in support of small businesses in your area.

Avani Modi Sarkar, co-founder of Modi Toys in Edison, New Jersey, recommends supporting local businesses in small-business grant competitions.

"I have entered a couple of grant competitions where finalists were selected based on the number of votes they garnered from their supporters. This is the easiest way to support a small business since it doesn't cost a dime," Sarkar said via email.

When in doubt, talk to local small-business owners about what they need and where you can help. And remember, the pandemic has been a tough time for small businesses and consumers alike, so a little kindness and compassion can make a real difference.

Rescued Mountain Lion lands at Oakland Zoo

SUBMITTED BY ISABELLA LINARES

A wayward mountain lion found in a tree in San Francisco's Bernal Heights neighborhood was captured the evening of May 19 by officers from the California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW). It was immediately taken to Oakland Zoo for a temporary stay where it would receive a physical exam and preventative vaccines.

Mr. Handsome, unofficially named by Oakland Zoo veterinary staff, was examined the next morning and found to be in good shape with a healthy weight of 98.5 pounds. He was treated for internal and external parasites (common in wildlife) and given vaccinations during his exam. Zoo officials estimated the animal is about two years old.

"We take pride in doing our part to help rescue and protect animals in the wild, through our partnerships and collaboration with CDFW, Bay Area Puma Project, and the San Francisco Police Department," said Dr. Alex Herman, Vice President of Veterinary Services at Oakland Zoo.

Oakland Zoo officials said that long-range travel into urban neighborhoods isn't out of the ordinary for mountain lions of this age. Mountain lions are long-ranging species known to exhibit "dispersing behavior," causing them to travel long distances searching for food, good homes, and mates.

After being released from Oakland Zoo, CDFW officers planned to take Mr. Handsome to a rural, unpopulated area of Santa Clara County and release him to continue living freely in the wild.

Mr. Handsome, unofficially named by Oakland Zoo's veterinary staff, awaits an examination in a temporary holding area at the zoo's veterinary hospital.

Oakland Zoo officials said that mountain lions face numerous threats in California including being struck by cars, killed with depredation permits and illegal poaching. These factors culminate in the human-wildlife conflict, putting them at odds with humans, encroaching urban areas and developments.

The zoo partners with conservation organizations like the Mountain Lion Foundation and the Bay Area Puma Project to educate the public on the issue and help conserve the species in the wild. The zoo helped found BACAT (Bay Area Cougar Action Team) in 2013, an alliance with the Bay Area Puma Project and the Mountain Lion Foundation, to help support the CDFW to save mountain lions caught in the human-wildlife conflict.

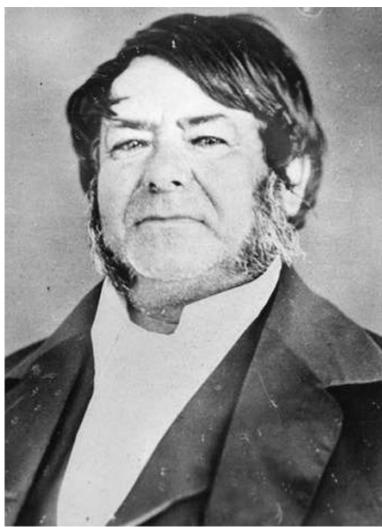

Tri-City History Queries No. 5

BY KELSEY CAMELLO, FOR THE
WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP MUSEUM OF LOCAL HISTORY

Q: Where do the street names come from? (Niles)

A: Every street in each town in every city was named by someone, be it a city planner, private party, or otherwise. But, not every street name has an interesting backstory. In the Tri-City Area, like many locales with a rich local history, there are a myriad of streets with accompanying historical backgrounds. Here follows a short-form history of only a few street names in Niles, that step-back-in-time, hillside repose in Fremont.

Rancho Arroyo Parkway:
When California was ruled by Mexico

Jose de Jesus Vallejo

Artistic depiction of Vallejo's two flour mills at Niles. Painted in 1860 by Vallejo's daughter Maria del Carmen when she was 12 years old.

Vallejo Flour Mill, already a broken down relic of the past, photo taken July 1910

Mayhew Orange Orchard

(1821-1848), the lands that had previously been owned by the Spanish via the Mission System were broken up into ranchos, also known as Mexican land grants. The Tri-City Area was broken down into four large tracts: Rancho del Agua Caliente (Warm Springs area), Rancho Potrero de los Cerritos (Newark – Alvarado area), and Rancho Arroyo de la Alameda (Niles – Decoto area). The land surrounded by these three grants was known as Ex-Mission San Jose land (Mission San Jose – Irvington – Newark).

Vallejo Street & Vallejo Way: In 1842, Jose de Jesus Vallejo, who had recently resigned as administrator of Mission San Jose, was granted by Governor Alvarado the entirety of Rancho Arroyo de la Alameda - about 17,000 acres. In 1853, Vallejo built a flour mill at the mouth of Niles Canyon (then known as Alameda Cañon, named after the waterway that flowed through it then and continues to do so today). From about 1848 on, Vallejo fought legal battle after legal battle trying to regain his land from American squatters. The Gold Rush was in full force, and ownership of California was changing hands once again. In 1860, Vallejo was the richest man in Alameda County, but he later died a penniless man.

Mayhews Road: The Mayhew Family settled in Niles in 1882, where they owned land on the hillside just north of Vallejo Mill. There they planted an orange grove, raised cattle, grew grapes and farmed almonds. Florence Mayhew grew up on the family ranch, and in 1905 married Joseph Clark Shinn Sr. Florence and J.C. raised their family on their own estate outside Niles proper. Their family home still stands inside Shinn Historic Park and Arboretum, located at 1251 Peralta Boulevard in Fremont.

School Street and Rail Drive: These two are simple and aptly named. School Street runs along the northern edge of Niles Elementary School. The school itself opened in 1875 and the main school building that stands today was built in 1939. Rail Drive runs parallel to the Union Pacific tracks. Those tracks still run all the way east to Chicago.

Essanay Avenue and Essanay Place: Named for the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, whose talented folks overran the small town of Niles in 1912. For four years, Essanay turned Niles into a second Hollywood. Silent stars included Broncho Billy and Charlie Chaplin, among others. Help support a major renovation of the theater and museum (and learn Essanay history from the experts) by visiting the Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum (37417 Niles Blvd. in Fremont) on Sunday, June 6, beginning at 12 noon. This will be a socially distanced outdoor fundraiser. Visit <https://nilesfilmmuseum.org/> and click "upcoming schedule" for more information.

Oh Freedom

Memorial Day should rein us in with solemn reflection on the true path of our founders and those that have forfeited so much to retain its direction.

For those who have little or nothing to lose, the attraction of freedom should be strengthened, not abandoned. Yielding to the siren call of populist rhetoric that pretends to care and guide if only freedom and unfettered expression of ideas is relinquished, is the antithesis of who and what we are. In a bitter-sweet reminder of that thought, Janis Joplin's classic rendition of Kris Kristofferson and Fred Foster's "Me and Bobby McGee", reveals the ethos, hardship and heartache of a lost love and the sentiment that "... freedom's just another word for nothing left to lose..." In that phrase, the difficulty, weakness and strength, and soul-searching aspects of freedom are exposed. Maintenance of this critical feature of our society is not an easy task. However, disrespect of it, and therefore the foundation of democracy and true freedom, is a denial of our essence.

Pseudo-patriotic symbolism and threats of violence to coerce compliance shows contempt for the population at large and makes a mockery of our country and democracy. Patriotism based on a thin veneer of civility is not the strength that propelled the men and women who sacrificed so much to defend our country and others repressed by cruel and intolerant leaders. A constant barrage of news from beyond our borders reveals that the battle for freedom is constant. At this time, we are also facing a significant domestic threat as well. Some have been wooed by a promise of preferred treatment or, at least, dominance over others. This is a painfully obvious ploy to gain power and control while performing a sleight-of-hand shift toward tyranny. This is not the country and direction our predecessors fought for.

In my opinion most of those honored by Memorial Day would align with an African-American hymn often associated with the Civil Rights Movement of the '60s. Adopted from the 1931 E.R. Nance family/Clarence Dooley "Sweet Freedom", its sound and words reveal the emotion and essence of freedom. This is what it's all about. Let's honor them and our heritage.

Oh freedom

Oh freedom

Oh freedom over me

And before I'd be a slave

I'd be buried in my grave

And go home to my lord and be free.

As we approach another Memorial Day weekend, many people view it as a signal for the beginning of summer. However, it really serves as a perennial reminder of the horrors and sacrifices of so many men and women, through wars and conflicts, to preserve the American dream of freedom for all. The concept is so powerful that people have given their lives for it.

Our country was founded on the belief that everyone, including outcasts from other societies, held value and worth no matter the circumstance of birth, religion or ethnicity. The basic human right of freedom from fear and oppression is inherent with life; blind bigotry and ideology, hate and prejudice have no place in such a society.

At the foundation of this belief is the origin of the United States of America; a nation that is built on a system – admittedly imperfect – of laws that should protect rather than oppress, dominate and subjugate its population. However far from that concept we stray,

Space-aged wine is out of this world

SUBMITTED BY ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS

A bottle of France's famed Petrus 2000 Bordeaux can fetch $6,500 per bottle or more, but a bottle that Christie's is offering in a private sale is expected to bring in a lot more -- upwards of a million dollars, reports the Association of Mature American Citizens. Why? Because of its unique flavor, according to a panel of wine experts.

The wine, the British auction house claims, is extra special and worth the big bucks because it spent 14 months aging in space aboard the International Space Station. A company called Space Cargo Unlimited put the bottle up for sale. Space Cargo's CEO Nicolas Gaume said that "After spending almost 440 days in space, or the equivalent of 300 trips to the moon, legendary Bordeaux wine Petrus comes back having been transformed in a way which is, literally, out of this world."

The buyer who winds up with this rare bottle of Petrus will receive a bottle of regular, down to earth Petrus so that he or she can compare them. They'll also get a decanter, glasses and a corkscrew made from a meteorite, to boot.

Fremont Unified Board Meeting Summary

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN KILLGORE

At its May 19 meeting, Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) Board of Education:

- Received Return to In-Person Instruction Update – FUSD expanded its Learning Hub model on April 26 and has approved the full return to in-person instruction for the 2021-2022 school year. In addition to a full return to campus, the district will offer a virtual learning program at both the elementary and secondary levels. FUSD is planning for in-person graduation events, modified to align with state/local requirements.
- Provided Additional Information for Expanded Learning Opportunity Grant – Expanded Learning Opportunities (ELO) Grants address accelerating progress to close learning gaps, integrated pupil supports, community learning hubs, supports for credit deficient pupils, additional academic services, and training for school staff. At the May 5 board meeting, trustees approved a plan to provide secondary schools with additional sections to address learning gaps/loss in a core subject. The ELO Grant Plan must be adopted by the local governing board or body of the LEA at a public meeting on or before June 1 and must be submitted to the County Office of Education, California Department of Education (CDE), or the chartering authority within five days of adoption, as applicable. The final plan will come forward for review and approval on May 26.

• Discussed Possible Reinstatement of School Resource Officer (SRO) Program – FUSD will remain in distance learning for the duration of the 2020-2021 school year. To have an SRO program in place for the return to campus in August, FUSD must finalize a new Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the City of Fremont for police services as soon as possible. Staff presented information outlining the following:

- Current progress of discussions with the City of Fremont and Fremont Police Department
- Future steps FUSD can take for improvement of the program
- Programmatic and cost considerations for a reduced service model (one sergeant and three officers = $452,000 plus an estimated $200,000 - $300,000 in additional services for co-curricular event coverage)
- Programmatic and cost considerations for a full program model (one sergeant and six officers = $913,332, security coverage for all games, dances, graduations, other special events/activities, included)

Board votes 4-1 to direct staff to negotiate MOU with City Fremont for full reinstatement of the SRO program and to begin preparation of the SRO/FUSD handbook with the Board of Education acting as oversight.

- Approved Districtwide Indoor Facility Use/Rental – On March 16, 2020, FUSD canceled all facility use/rentals for students and staff safety due to the school closure/COVID-19 pandemic. FUSD has received numerous inquiries from the community regarding when FUSD will resume use/rental for indoor facilities. Tentatively, the first available date for indoor facility use/rental is August 18 (first day of school). The following are key points for consideration in opening indoor facility use/rental:
 - Safety of students and staff (FUSD schools are currently under limited use by students through learning hubs, and teachers using their classrooms for their virtual learning instruction)
 - Safety of participants and/or facility users (crowd control and maintaining physical distancing)
 - Preparation of indoor facilities for on-site instruction in fall 2021 (use/rental by outside organizations may affect the preparation time needed for the opening of in-person instruction in the fall 2021)
 - Use of restrooms by facility users (crowd control and maintaining physical distancing)
 - Negative impact to District's revenue if facilities are not rented
 - Community members and facility users utilizing outdoor school facilities (i.e., play fields, playgrounds, and basketball courts) for walking, jogging, general play, etc. (crowd control and maintaining physical distancing)
 - Additional fees for disinfecting/sanitizing (additional custodial support and supplies for disinfecting/sanitizing of indoor facilities i.e., furniture and equipment)

Santa Clara County moves into Yellow Tier

SUBMITTED BY EDEN HEALTH DISTRICT

Santa Clara has joined San Francisco and San Mateo counties in the Yellow Tier -- the least restrictive stage of California's color-coded pandemic reopening plan. Counties in the Yellow Tier can allow businesses to expand capacity, indoor bars to reopen, and Silicon Valley companies to bring employees back to the office. "We are in a very different and much safer place than we have been before," said Dr. Sara Cody, Santa Clara County's health officer.

Engineers work to silence loud hum on Golden Gate Bridge

AP WIRE SERVICE

The Golden Gate Bridge is making a racket and engineers are trying to figure out how to shut it up. The San Francisco Chronicle reported Saturday that the iconic span started emanating a loud hum following a retrofit last year of the sidewalk safety railing on its western side. Crews replaced some 12,000 wide slats with narrower ones, to give the bridge a slimmer profile and make it safer in high winds. But as safety was increased, so was the noise, as gusts whipped through the new slats, the newspaper said. Commuters on the 83-year-old bridge have posted recordings of the din online. "It's really loud," San Francisco resident Aneela Brister told the Chronicle. "Huge and all-encompassing. It makes you worry if the bridge is coming apart"

The noise can be heard as far away as Daly City, about 10 miles (16 kilometers) south of San Francisco, the newspaper said. "Some people have found it to be meditative and angelic," said bridge spokesman Paolo Cosulich-Schwartz, while quickly acknowledging that most people find it distressing. Cosulich-Schwartz said engineers using full-size sections of the bridge railing inside a wind tunnel are working on a solution, but he couldn't provide additional details. "We'll have more to say this summer," Cosulich-Schwartz said. "It's a tricky business. We want to be absolutely sure we get it right. We will never sacrifice the structural integrity of the bridge, but we want to be responsive to our neighbors."

Facebook food group creates cookbook

BY MARK KENNEDY
ASSOCIATED PRESS ENTERTAINMENT WRITER

The pandemic gave them lemons. So, they made lemon rosemary chicken. A Facebook group that swapped homemade recipes after restaurants were shuttered during lockdown has blossomed into a vibrant online community and has now produced a cookbook.

"In the Quarantine Kitchen" offers some 120 recipes from pastas to fish dishes that pandemic users have proudly posted -- with all proceeds going to charity. "It kind of grew and grew and snowballed," said Daniella Cangiano, one of the organizers. "We were able to take something really negative and make it something really positive."

Some dishes are cherished family hand-me-downs, like Nanny's Stuffed Calamari in Red Sauce and Aunt Nellie's Fried Chicken. Others were concocted during the pandemic, like one for tres leches ice pops that was created because ice cream shops were closed. It uses cans of condensed and evaporated milk, coconut milk, vanilla and a sprinkle of cinnamon.

The project started in the Staten Island home of the Cangiano family. Traci Cangiano and her daughters Daniella and Kristina launched a Facebook page in March 2020 when the COVID-19 quarantine began. "We started it as a way to just share our dinner with our family and friends. We didn't see in the beginning what it would become. We just thought it was something fun to do, something to distract us," said Daniella Cangiano.

Now, more than a year later, the page has more than 44,000 members who post recipes for others to try and comment on. The top posters by country are the United States, Canada, Philippines, Italy, United Kingdom, Portugal, Vietnam, India, Cambodia and South Africa.

The Cangianos decided to go further, collecting all the recipes and self-publishing their cookbook on Etsy. It is dedicated to front-line workers. They use a printing press in Kansas, buy the copies and then resell them online for $35.

The book is in its second printing. All proceeds go to The Stephen Siller Tunnel to Towers Foundation, honoring firefighter Stephen Siller, who lost his life saving others on 9/11, and all first responders. The 250-page cookbook is filled with stories and family photos, memories of relatives coming together over meals and ways to honor lost members with dishes.

Online, too, the community remains active. New postings go up every few hours. "We could probably do five more books, I kid you not," said Traci Cangiano. "The interaction between the page and the book then became like this collaboration between virtual and the hard copy. It's just amazing," said Traci Cangiano. "It's become such a welcoming place and it's a safe ground."

All are welcome to join the online community, but there's one rule: No politics. The Cangianos check every post to make sure it is family-friendly and nonpartisan.

Tesla settles air quality violation complaints

SUBMITTED BY BAY AREA AIR QUALITY MANAGEMENT DISTRICT

Tesla Inc. has agreed to pay a $1 million penalty and install a solar roof project to settle air quality violations at its manufacturing plant in Fremont. The agreement was announced May 7 by the Bay Area Air Quality Management District, a regional agency responsible for protecting air quality in the nine-county Bay Area.

The settlement covers 33 notices of violation that the Air District issued to Tesla which cover a range of violations including emissions exceeding Tesla's permit limits, installing or modifying equipment without proper permits, failure to conduct required emissions testing, failure to maintain records and failure to report information to the Air District in a timely manner.

"This settlement requires Tesla's compliance with Air District regulations at its Fremont facility and demonstrates the Air District's continuing efforts to ensure strict compliance with air pollution regulations while seeking mutually beneficial solutions for the community," said Jack Broadbent, executive officer of the Air District. "As part of this settlement, Tesla has agreed to implement a community microgrid project, which leverages the company's technological expertise in developing next generation power here in the Bay Area."

The community microgrid project will consist of the installation of a solar electric system of approximately 160 kilowatts, paired with a two-powerpack storage system. Tesla will fund the implementation of this solar microgrid system in a community prioritized under the Air District's Community Health Protection Program, which focuses on improving air quality and public health in the Bay Area's most heavily impacted areas. The goal of this project is to reduce electricity costs as well as localized air pollution emissions within the community. The project will provide emissions-free electric power and also reliability in the event that grid power is unavailable due to Public Safety Power Shutoffs or other reasons.

The settlement agreement also requires Tesla to implement a comprehensive environmental management system, which will track all applicable environmental requirements and ensure that the company's managers are trained on what is needed to comply with them. Tesla has already begun implementing such a system, but the settlement agreement will make it a legally binding and enforceable commitment.

All the violations which led to this settlement have been corrected and are back in compliance. The Air District will use all penalty funds received for its programs to improve air quality in the Bay Area.

Digital map of California Coastal Trail unveiled

AP WIRE SERVICE

A digital map showing existing sections of the California Coastal Trail has been released by the Coastal Commission and Coastal Conservancy in a move to spur completion of the route.

“There are currently 875 miles (1408.1 kilometers) of trail and now we can finally see exactly where they are, so we can eventually bridge those gaps and finish the trail,” Coastal Commission Executive Director Jack Ainsworth said in a statement Wednesday.

Planning of the California Coastal Trail has been underway since 1975 and it is hoped that eventually it will allow people to traverse the length of the state’s 1,230-mile-long (1979.4-kilometer) coast.

The trail is a network of footpaths, sidewalks, and bicycle paths rather than a single pathway. Users can traverse beaches, bluffs and hillsides, and portions are accessible by wheelchair or on horseback.

Coastal Conservancy Executive Officer Sam Schuchat said many Californians have walked a segment or two without even realizing it.

“With this map, people can find trail segments easily, as well as public access points to get to the shore,” he said.

Users of the free map can zoom in for information on access points, amenities, and other details.

California lawmakers seek $200 million to fight hate crimes

BY DON THOMPSON
 ASSOCIATED PRESS

California lawmakers said Wednesday that they are seeking $200 million over the next three years to fight hate crimes against Asian Americans that have increased since the coronavirus entered the U.S. after originating in China.

More than half of the money would go for grants to nonprofit and community groups that provide legal services, health care, mental health, victim compensation or counseling. Also eligible would be groups providing escorts for older residents who fear attacks and organizations that provide education on systemic racism.

Funding of $10 million would be provided for a statewide hate crimes hotline to collect reports in victims’ own languages and to direct them to police or legal, health or mental health services.

Another $20 million would help cultural enclaves including traditional Chinatowns, Japantowns, Koreatowns, and Little Manilas.

The proposal comes from the California Asian & Pacific Islander Legislative Caucus, which has 10 members in the 120-member state Legislature. The caucus includes Phil Ting, a Democrat from San Francisco who heads the Assembly Budget Committee, and members said they’ve had early support from other budgeting and Democratic leaders who control the Legislature.

“We want to address not only, of course, the recent events of hate directed toward our community, but also to recognize longstanding issues in terms of access for our community to public services, government services,” said the caucus chairman, Democratic Sen. Richard Pan of Sacramento.

The caucus is seeking the money as Gov. Gavin Newsom and lawmakers stake out their positions this week on spending what the governor said will be a $76 billion budget surplus. Lawmakers have until June 15 to approve a budget for the fiscal year that starts July 1.

The caucus’ plan includes funding to help children of Asian and Pacific Islander descent in schools, including combating school bullying; for the organization Stop AAPI Hate, which the lawmakers said is the first to collect data on hate crimes in victims’ own languages; and to create a California Interpreters Corps of state workers who can help residents in their own languages.

EPA rule to phase out gases used in refrigerators, coolants

BY MATTHEW DALY
 ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the first Biden administration rule aimed at combating climate change, the Environmental Protection Agency is proposing to phase down production and use of hydrofluorocarbons, highly potent greenhouse gases commonly used in refrigerators and air conditioners.

The proposed rule follows through on a law Congress passed in December authorizing a 15-year phaseout of HFCs. The new rule is intended to decrease U.S. production and use of the gases by 85% over the next 15 years, part of a global phaseout intended to slow climate change.

HFCs are considered a major driver of global warming and are being targeted worldwide. President Joe Biden has pledged to embrace a 2016 global agreement to reduce HFCs.

“With this proposal, EPA is taking another significant step under President Biden’s ambitious agenda to address the climate crisis,” EPA Administrator Michael Regan said in a statement Monday. “By phasing down HFCs, which can be hundreds to thousands of times more powerful than carbon dioxide at warming the planet, EPA is taking a major action to help keep global temperature rise in check.”

The phasedown of HFCs is widely supported by the business community, Regan said, and “will help promote American leadership in innovation and manufacturing of new climate-safe products. Put simply, this action is good for our planet and our economy.”

A huge pandemic relief and spending bill passed by Congress in December, and signed by former President Donald Trump, directs EPA to sharply reduce production and use of HFCs. The measure won wide support in both parties and was hailed as the most significant climate change law in at least a decade.

Besides targeting HFCs, the so-called American Innovation and Manufacturing, or AIM Act also promotes technologies to capture and store carbon dioxide produced by power and manufacturing plants and calls for reductions in diesel emissions by buses and other vehicles.

Delaware Sen. Tom Carper, a Democrat who chairs the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, praised the EPA rule and said the United States was joining the rest of the world in reducing the use of HFCs, helping to avoid the worst effects of global warming.

“Passing the AIM Act was a momentous climate achievement that will help save our planet, and today we are one step closer to its benefits being a reality,” Carper said.

EPA estimates the proposed rule would save nearly $284 billion over the next three decades and prevent the equivalent of 187 million metric tons of carbon dioxide emissions, roughly equal to annual greenhouse gas emissions from one out of every seven vehicles registered in the United States.

Biden issued an executive order in January that embraces the so-called Kigali Amendment to the Montreal Protocol and directs the State Department to submit it to the Senate for formal ratification. The amendment phases down HFCs globally.

Police release video from officer-involved shooting

SUBMITTED BY OFFICER CASSONDRA FOVEL, HAYWARD PD

Hayward Police Department (HPD) officials have released police officer body-worn camera video, security camera video, and other information relevant to the March 16, 2021 officer-involved shooting that occurred in a Motel 6 parking lot in the 30000 Block of Industrial Parkway SW in Hayward.

Initially, the body-worn camera footage and other video was withheld to preserve the integrity of the investigation in the interest of justice for all parties involved. While this remains a valid concern, video footage and other information was released May 21 so that HPD can remain as transparent with the community as possible, even as the investigation continues.

The video is posted on HPD social media platforms and can also be located on the Critical Incident Briefing page of the HPD website at www.hayward-ca.gov/critical-incident.

Leading up to the incident, officers were investigating a string of violent robberies that largely targeted elderly women returning to their cars after leaving a bank or an ATM. During the robberies, the suspect(s) physically assaulted and took the purses of the women as they got into their vehicles. On several cases, the suspect(s) smashed the passenger side windows and took the women's purses from inside their cars.

On March 11, 2021 at about 12:00 noon security cameras captured one of the robberies in a shopping center parking lot on Hesperian Boulevard. The suspect's car, a blue Volvo, entered the camera's view and drove to the back of the parking lot of the shopping center and parked in a stall.

A man exited the Volvo, smashed the window of a Maroon SUV, and robbed the victim inside. The man got back into the Volvo and sped out of the parking lot. Security footage revealed the Volvo to have a white passenger side mirror as it fled the area.

Four days later, on March 15, officers conducted extra patrols in the same shopping center where the robberies had occurred. Officers saw what appeared to be the same Volvo from the previous robbery, which fled at a high rate of speed when officers tried to contact the occupants.

Then, on March 16, Officer Michael Miller, Officer Christopher Suozzo and Officer Dynaton Tran located the same blue Volvo in the Motel 6 parking lot in the 30000 Block of Industrial Parkway SW. As officers approached the car and parked in front of it to detain the three occupants, the driver accelerated and rammed police vehicles multiple times. This is when the officer-involved shooting took place.

Officers ordered the driver, later identified as 22-year-old Caleb Smith, out of vehicle. After several minutes he complied and medical aid was given by officers until paramedics arrived. Smith was taken to a local hospital where he later died from his injuries.

The two other passengers in the car, a man and woman, were not injured and were detained. An officer was also taken to a hospital and was treated for minor injuries. A firearm was recovered inside the Volvo.

Prior to this incident, there were at least 12 known robberies since December of 2020 in Hayward, and many more throughout the Bay Area. Police believe Smith was involved in at least one of these robberies, and an investigation is ongoing to determine his involvement in other robberies in the area.

HPD is still in the process of conducting this investigation and said their understanding of the incident may change as additional evidence is collected, analyzed, and reviewed. HPD officials also said they do not draw any conclusions about whether the officers acted consistently with department policies and the law until all the facts are known and the investigation is complete.

Anytime Hayward Police Officers use force, regardless of degree, it is a serious matter that requires a thorough investigation. The HPD Criminal Investigations Bureau will investigate the actions of Smith, while the HPD Internal Affairs Unit will investigate whether officers acted within policy. Meanwhile, the Alameda County District Attorney's Office has been notified and will review this incident. The case will also be referred to the California Office of the Attorney General.

Police urge safety around motorcycles

SUBMITTED BY FREMONT POLICE DEPARTMENT

May is Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month, and officials from the Fremont Police Department (FPD) are reminding drivers to check twice for motorcycles.

"It's important for drivers to understand motorcycle rider behaviors and learn how to drive safely around riders," said Lieutenant Ariel Quimson. "Motorcycle riders are more vulnerable and have much less protections than those in vehicles do, which is why it is critical for drivers to be mindful of those on two wheels."

Statistics show that motorcycle riders are 28 times more likely to die in a crash than vehicle occupants. In 2019, there were 474 motorcycle deaths on California roads. In an effort to promote road safety, FPD is sharing numerous safety tips for drivers and motorcyclists.

Drivers:

- Always check twice for motorcycles, looking at all mirrors and blind spots.
- Motorcycle riders have the same rights to the road as other vehicles. Allow motorcycles to always use the full width of a lane.
- Never follow a motorcycle too closely; always keep a safe distance.
- If you see a motorcycle with a signal on, be careful. The rider may have forgotten to turn the signal off. Be sure that the rider is turning before proceeding.

Motorcyclists:

- Always wear a Department of Transportation compliant helmet. Learn how to identify a safe helmet that fits by visiting the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration website.
- Wear appropriate gear like leather clothing, boots with nonskid soles, and gloves. Consider adding reflective tape to your clothing to make it easier for drivers to see you.
- Ride defensively. Don't assume a driver can see you. Try staying out of a driver's blind spot.
- Always keep your lights on, even during the day.
- Signal well in advance before changing lanes and watch for turning vehicles.
- Lastly, both drivers and riders should never drive/ride under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs.

Funding for this program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Disney Junior series aims to give a kid's-eye view of race

AP WIRE SERVICE

"Rise Up, Sing Out," an animated shorts series presenting the concepts of race, racism and social justice to young viewers, is coming to Disney Junior. Designed for children ages 2 to 7 and their families, the series will include music by Ahmir "Questlove" Thompson and Tariq "Black Thought" Trotter of The Roots, who are executive producers with Latoya Raveneau. "We hope these shorts will encourage the young audience to recognize and celebrate our differences as human beings while learning the tools to navigate real-world issues of racial injustice," Thompson and Trotter said in a joint statement Tuesday. They said their hope is to "empower and uplift the future generations in the way we know best, through music." "Rise Up, Sing Out," produced in collaboration with Oscar-winning studio Lion Forge Animation ("Hair Love"), will debut this year on Disney Junior platforms including the channel and app. A date wasn't announced. Disney Junior recognizes that children are "experiencing a multitude of feelings around what's happening in our world today" and that families are struggling to discuss "sensitive issues around race," said Joe D'Ambrosia, its general manager and a senior vice president. The shorts are intended to give families "the tools and knowledge to address these important topics with their preschoolers in an age-appropriate manner through music and relatable kid experiences," he said in a statement. A viewing guide for parents is being developed by The Conscious Kid, described on its website as an organization "dedicated to equity and promoting healthy racial identity development in youth."

PUBLIC NOTICES

CITY OF UNION CITY NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Integral Communities, the project applicant, is proposing the Station East Residential/Mixed Use Project (project), an infill project involving the redevelopment of an approximately 26.5-acre site (project site). Project proposes up to 974 multi-family dwelling units including 146 affordable housing units, 30,800 sq. ft of ground-floor commercial uses along Decoto Road, and new roadways, bicycle and pedestrian improvements, and public parks. The project site is bound by Decoto Road to the north, 7th Street to the east, Bradford Way to the south, and the Union Pacific Railroad Niles Subdivision rail line to the west. The project site Assessor's Parcel Numbers [APNs] include: 87-21-5-2, 87-21-13-1, 87-21-13-2, 87-23-12, 87-23-10, and 87-23-13-2. You can view prior planning documents prepared for this project, including the May 13, 2021 Planning Commission staff report and attachments, at https://www.unioncity.org/347/Planning-Documents.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing will be held by the City Council of the City of Union City for the purpose of considering the following:

Final Environmental Impact Report (EIR). The Final EIR identifies that the proposed project would not result in any significant and unavoidable project-level impacts. All potentially significant environmental effects of the project would be reduced to less-than-significant levels through implementation of either existing regulatory requirements or mitigation measures as recommended in the Final EIR. The Final EIR including responses to comments on the Draft EIR is available on the City's website at: https://www.unioncity.org/347/Planning-Documents.

General Plan Amendment (AG-20-001). A General Plan Amendment is proposed to adjust the targeted mix of uses in the Station East subarea identified in the General Plan, change the minimum density, delete minimum parcel size, adjust policies regarding timing of development, and update several figures.

Specific Plan Amendment (SP-20-001). An amendment to the Decoto Industrial Park Study Area (DIPSA) Specific Plan is proposed to reflect new land uses, density/intensity of development, open space framework, design attributes, and circulation system.

Zoning Text Amendment (AT-20-002). A new Zoning Chapter, Chapter 18.37, Station East Mixed Use Residential (SEMU-R), is proposed to be added to Title 18, Zoning, of the Union City Municipal Code for consistency with the site's General Plan designation of Station East Mixed Use.

Zoning Map Amendment (A-20-001). The 26.5 acre project site described above is proposed to be rezoned to the new SEMU-R zoning designation.

Development Agreement (DA-20-001). A Development Agreement is proposed to establish the policies, regulations and fees that will be applied to the multi-year project for a specified term.

Tentative Tract Map (TTM-20-001). A Tentative Tract Map is proposed to divide the property into parcels that can be developed in phases with different project types. Multiple subsequent Final Maps will be used to further divide the parcels with for-sale units into condominiums. The Tentative Map also includes proposed dedications of land to the City for public purposes such as streets and parks.

The Planning Commission reviewed the Final EIR and the project applications listed above at their May 13, 2021 meeting and recommended approval to the City Council on a 5-0 vote.

This item will be considered at a public hearing by the City Council at the meeting listed below. In Person Participation Prohibited due to Public Health Emergency, comments may be submitted in writing prior to the hearing or at the hearing consistent with the Teleconference Guidelines. The project planner, Leslie Carmichael, can be reached via email at LeslieC@unioncity.org, or by calling the Planning Division's main line at (510) 675-5319.

BASEBALL

Warriors show spark, but Huskies prevail

BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The May 17th game between the Mission San Jose Warriors (Fremont) and Washington Huskies (Fremont) was fun to watch, a close battle through the first two innings as the Warriors drew first blood and entered the third inning with a 2-0 lead. However, the Huskies broke through in the top of the third inning, loading the bases and beginning an onslaught that resulted in six runs. The Warriors answer in the bottom of the third inning resulted in a single score and, although mounting an offense in the last few innings, they could not close the gap. A 2-run sixth inning for the Huskies sealed the game, finishing with an 8-3 win.
