This year, the month of April is designated as Arts, Culture and Creativity month in California, and the Juried Photography Exhibit will be held in conjunction with the celebration.

The exhibit opening is planned for Saturday, April 1. After that, photographs selected by the panel of judges will be on display on the first floor of Fremont Main Library during library hours until Saturday, May 6. Julie Gilson, FCAC President said, "I'm very excited to see the photographs in the library, particularly because the number of entries this year was a new high. I have the honor of selecting the President's Award, which will be a fun challenge because of the

New Physician Brings Additional Infectious Disease Expertise to Community

Infectious Disease specialist, Benedict Villanueva, MD

"I find my work with infectious diseases fascinating because it allows me to deal with the entire human body, not just one specific organ system," says Benedict Villanueva, MD. A board-certified infectious disease specialist, in January he joined the Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF) Internal Medicine & Infectious Disease Program and the Washington Hospital medical staff. The clinic is located at 2557 Mowry Ave., across the street from the Hospital.

Dr. Villanueva earned his Bachelor of Science degree in biology as well as his medical degree at the University of Santo Tomas in Manila, in his native Philippines. He then moved to the United States, where he discovered a passion for pursuing a career in infectious diseases when he was enrolled in his internal medicine internship and residency programs at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey at Hackensack University Medical Center.

"The physicians supervising my residency were both infectious disease specialists, and they inspired me," he explains. "I also enjoyed learning more about microbiology while I was there – all the various types of organisms that can cause infections, including bacteria, viruses, fungi and parasites."

After his residency in New Jersey, Dr. Villanueva decided to pursue a fellowship in infectious diseases at hospitals associated with the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) – the VA Medical Center and Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. "The infectious disease doctor at the UCLA program was well known in that field of medicine and also very good," he notes. "He furthered my fascination with the numerous types of infections and their effects on the body's various systems."

During his fellowship years, Dr. Villanueva also worked as an urgent care physician for Kaiser Permanente's Southern California Division in Los Angeles and as an independent medical examiner in Kern County, California. He later served as an associate professor at University of Nevada Hospitals in Las Vegas.

Along the way, Dr. Villanueva met his wife, who happened to be a native of Fremont. "We met through our sisters, who are longtime friends," he recalls. "This year we will celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary. In fact, we got married at Mission San Jose Church right here in Fremont."

The couple's family ties were one reason they decided to migrate to northern California. Dr. Villanueva worked for many years as a consultant for the Infectious Disease Medical Group at the San Ramon Region Medical Center, serving several years concurrently as the center's Medical Director of the Antibiotic Stewardship Program.

In addition to his duties in San Ramon, Dr. Villanueva served concurrently for several years as the Medical Director of the Infection Control Committee Department of the Sutter Solano Medical Center in Vallejo. In 2021, he took on new duties as the Infection Control Physician for the UC Davis Student Health and Counseling Services Clinic.

"When I heard about the opportunities for practicing infectious disease medicine at Washington Hospital and WTMF in Fremont, I was excited about possibly moving to my wife's hometown," he recalls. "We wanted to stay in California, and I wanted to be part of a stable, well-respected organization. We also wanted to be close to our two sons' schools. The older son is completing graduate courses that will enable him to apply to medical schools. Our younger son is a senior at De La Salle High School in Concord."

Dr. Villanueva notes that patients at the WTMF clinic can be affected by a variety of conditions, including infections caused by unusual bacterial pathogens, joint infections and diabetic infections that require intravenous antibiotics. He also sees patients with bloodstream and urinary tract infections.

For patients in Washington Hospital, he handles serious infection referrals from the Emergency Department and Critical Care. Even a simple flu can develop serious complications that require an infectious disease specialist. In some cases, he sees patients with sepsis, an overwhelming and sometimes life-threatening infection that can lead to tissue damage, organ failure and death.

As for pursuits outside of work, Dr. Villanueva says he and his wife both enjoy traveling. "Now that we might be facing an 'empty nest,' there may be more travels on our agenda," he admits.

Shoulder Pain: Causes and Treatment Plans

Medical Director of Washington Sports Medicine and orthopedic surgeon, Russell Nord, MD, explains reasons for shoulder pain and treatment options for each type of condition.

Free Screenings Help “SPOT” Skin Cancers

Local Woman Diagnosed After Screening Last August Is Now Cancer-Free

Shirley A. had an annoying little scab on the back of her leg, just above the knee. Since it was in an awkward location, it wasn't easy for her to see it. She tried various home remedies, including salves and ointments, and covered it so the scab would not chafe against clothing. Still the scab wouldn't heal or go away, and then it started to itch.

Shirley had seen a notice about a free event offered through Washington Hospital, the SPOT Skin Cancer Screening Program – a program supported by the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD). The screenings took place last year on August 27 at the Nakamura Clinic in Union City, not far from Shirley's home in Newark. The medical professionals performing the screenings were affiliated with the Fremont Center for Dermatology, including dermatologist Sunil Dhawan, MD, a member of the AAD. The center is located at 2557 Mowry Ave., Fremont, across the street from Washington Hospital.

“I decided I might as well take advantage of the free screenings just to make sure that scab wasn't something serious,” Shirley recalls. “I made an appointment and met with Lindsay Daly, who is a physician assistant (PA). She told me that the scab looked suspicious and recommended that I make an appointment with her at the Fremont Center for Dermatology for a biopsy.

“They were able to get me in quickly,” Shirley continues. “The biopsy was not painful at all since they numbed the site of the scab. When the biopsy resulted in a diagnosis of basal cell carcinoma, a type of skin cancer, they scheduled me to have surgery with Dr. Shurong Chang, also at the Fremont Center for Dermatology. I returned to see Lindsay on December 15 so she could remove the stitches and check on the healing of the incision, and everything looked good.”

Shirley went back to see Lindsay for a follow-up appointment in January 2023.

“Lindsay gave me a full-body exam, and all the samples she took turned out negative,” Shirley notes. “She was very thorough, and that made me feel a lot better to know other ‘sun spots’ were not cancerous.”

Free Screening Appointments

To help other people in the community who might need skin cancer screening, Washington Hospital is repeating the free SPOT Skin Cancer Screening Program on Saturday, April 15, at WTMF's Nakamura Clinic, located at 33077 Alvarado Niles Road in Union City. Appointments are required. Community members can call 510.818.7009 to register. Free parking is available, and the clinic is located next to an AC Transit bus stop.

“At our SPOT Skin Cancer event last August, we saw 22 patients,” says

Washington Hospital Community Outreach Manager Kayla Gupta, who arranges these free screening events.

“For the April screenings, we have 24 appointments available on a first-come, first-served basis. Unfortunately we do not accept walk-in appointments, but we'll have a waiting list for those who are unable to schedule an appointment.”

Gupta notes that the medical professionals providing the free screenings this spring will include Dr. Sunil Dhawan; Lindsay Daly, PA; Brittany West, PA; and Olivia Martinez, NP. Screenings will take place in private exam rooms, and participants can request a “medical chaperone” if they want someone else present during the exam.

Participants in the April 15 screenings can request a full-body check or have the practitioner examine specific areas of concern. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), changes in your skin are the most common signs of skin cancer. Changes could include a new skin growth, a sore that doesn't heal, or a change in a mole.

Every three years, Washington Hospital Healthcare System (WHHS) conducts a comprehensive community health needs assessment (CHNA) to identify critical health issues in the local community. The CHNA enables Washington Hospital and WTMF to target services and education programs to improve the health of people in the community. “One issue identified in our CHNA is the importance of prevention and early detection of various types of cancer, including skin cancer,” Gupta explains. “Our SPOT Skin Cancer events are one response to that need. We consider providing quality health services to our community a matter of great importance.”

Shirley, for one, is grateful for that response. “I'm so glad I went for that free screening,” she emphasizes. “I hope more people take advantage of this service. I was a ‘Navy brat’ who learned how to swim in the ocean, and I spent a lot of my childhood and teen years in the sun. The screening and my timely treatment for skin cancer made me more self-aware of the importance of sunscreen and paying attention to my skin.”

Magikid Robotics Fremont Lab opened with a blast!

SUBMITTED BY OLIVIA MA

Silicon Valley is full of magic. In late February, Fremont welcomed the K-12 Kids Robotics Education company, Magikid, to open its new Silicon Valley flagship lab right across the street from Fremont Main Library.

A soft opening party was held for local parents and children. They were treated with a robot dance and hands-on robotics activities. Many parents and children attended this two-hour-long event to hear presentations from robotic competition winners.

Fremont City Councilman Dr. Yang Shao attended the event as a guest speaker. He encouraged all students to explore their interest in STEM, including engineering, robotics and other technology driven subjects. "Fremont has a tradition in pursuing education excellence," Yang said. "Our city encourages technology and education companies to set up a presence here, as we will give them the best support. I'm so glad that Magikid opened their flagship lab in Fremont, and I'm very confident it will bring great robotic education resources to our students and families."

Founded by two women, Magikid Robotics Lab focuses on providing students and families with diverse education in STEM through their 12 locations in California alone. Furthermore, Magikid strives towards creating a sense of community and helping youth make their dreams come true.

On March 15, 2023, Magikid students were invited to the NASA International Space Apps Winners celebration in Washington D.C. "We would like to bring our expertise in kids robotics education to Fremont," said co-founder and CEO Angell Liao. "Though we have many labs in California and other states, Silicon Valley has a special place in my heart. This is where new technologies are created, new companies are established, and young talents are excelled. This is where the dream comes true."

Students and families are welcome to visit the Fremont Lab. Trial classes are available for kids 5-14 years old.

From Baking to Business: How a local teen's passion bloomed into a venture

BY NANKI KAUR

We grow up building the most intricate Lego bridges, designing and modeling creative clothing, and finger-painting masterpieces. But, as we get older, we tend to spend less and less time devoted to our passions, some of us losing sight of them entirely. That's not the case for Katie Tang, a junior at Mission San Jose High School in Fremont. Tang's ever-growing love for baking began in elementary school with baking brownies, cupcakes and cookies for her friends. After discovering her passion, Tang realized the satisfaction and joy she got from baking for clients and decided to start a business, Mitai Bakery. "Giving a physical product to clients is rewarding for because I get to be part of a lot of different events. My cakes are part of birthdays and anniversaries. So, I think having it there as a key part of an event... And everybody gets to see it as a centerpiece which is really meaningful to me," Tang describes.

Mitai Bakery has a variety of confectionaries to choose from, including cakes, macarons and Hawaiian butter mochi, all made with Tang's specially made fresh cream. Customers can reach out through Instagram, Yelp, or her phone number to place orders and ask for all relevant information. Once orders are placed, customers pay a minimum deposit and schedule a pick-up date. As Mitai Bakery operates out of Tang's kitchen, customers pick up orders at her Fremont home. Unlike other bakeries, Mitai Bakery custom makes every order, and customers can send in reference photos to ensure that their vision for their order is executed perfectly. "I think that because of this customization, it's really fun for me because I never make the same thing twice. It's always like a new challenge for me to take on," Tang remarks.

As a proactive student and avid dancer, Tang often has much on her plate. As a student nearing the end of her high school years, juggling the responsibilities of academics and her other commitments can be a challenge. "Because I'm a student, I'm balancing academics. And I'm also a competitive dancer," she explains. "So, I also balance dance practice. Every week I must limit myself to a certain number of orders, or else it will be overwhelming." On average, Tang spends ten to fifteen hours weekly on her bakery, dedicating the rest of her time to other extracurriculars. With time, though, Tang has come to find that baking acts as a stress reliever, giving another meaning to her business. Finding support from her parents and close friends, who advise her on how to expand the bakery, has also helped Tang push through hard times.

With hopes to expand her business commercially, Tang has been reaching out to partner with local food influencers and Bay Area businesses like Teazen Tea and Brian Black Tea to promote her confections and even create specialized products with them. "Though making cakes for clients is really fun, I also think I would [like to] venture out and learn more about the retail space and learn more about how it is to sell in a physical storefront." Her advice for others who'd like to start small businesses of their own is to "do something that you really like and enjoy," nothing that though many are worried that their businesses may not take off, "if you're doing something that you're really passionate about, there's always a market for it. And there's always going to be people who are going to support you."

A rare bongo

The Potter Park Zoo in Lansing, Michigan described the bongo as "one of the most majestic and endangered members of the antelope family" in its announcement of the rare, recent birth of a female eastern bongo calf. How rare are bongos? According to the zoo, only about 100 eastern bongos remain in the wild and about 300 bongos are protected in accredited zoos; "their ornate horns and vibrant orange coat make them a target for hunting and poaching. A rare tongue

Just a month ago the Guinness Book of World Records declared Nick Stoerber of Salinas, California had the longest tongue in the world. He wasted no time to seek a second award, visiting the Guinness offices in an attempt to set the record for touching his tongue to his nose. He didn't break that record and so he used his nearly four-inch-long lingua to set the record for removing five blocks from an unstable tower of 54 blocks in less than a minute.

A rare catch

Fishing guides Dylan Wier and Blaine Kenny knew that the fish they had hooked on Orange Beach, Alabama on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico was a big one. They thought they might have a tiger shark on their hook. About a half an hour later they, indeed, found themselves reeling in a shark but it wasn't a tiger shark; it was an eleven-foot great white shark, a species that is rare in the Alabama coast. In fact, the state's Department of Conservation and Natural Resource, believes it might just be the very first great white caught off the Alabama coast. Watch video of the big fish on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=LffStwR16RQ

Handmade Lampwork Glass Landscapes

SUBMITTED BY
LINA MELKONIAN

Fremont Art Association (FAA) is delighted to have Shelly Woollvin as the guest artist at its virtual General Meeting and Art Demo on Wednesday, April 5, 2023, at 1 p.m.

Woollvin is an accomplished, self-taught glass and jewelry artist. Her menagerie of spellbinding creations conveys her love of the natural world and her gratitude for the precious moments of life. In reference to her creative pursuits, Woollvin simply says, "I work in my home studio with a small torch, some glass and my imagination."

Following a virtual tour of her studio, Woollvin will showcase two kinds of landscape beads in the style of Murano glass in her demo "Handmade Lampwork Glass Landscapes." With the tide pool bead, consisting of a beach scene, she will demonstrate how to manipulate the shape of glass and add movement to it. With the second landscape bead, she will show the process of preparing and shaping its background and then drawing a silhouette on it with thin strands of glass.

Woollvin's creative journey was catapulted in 2015 when her husband and son gave her a Hot Head Torch and some sticks of effetre glass. Immediately hooked, she honed her skills in making beads and then turning them into beautiful necklaces, bracelets and earrings. It didn't take long for those around Woollvin to take notice of her alluring work. What started as a hobby would eventually lead to the launch of Perle di Vetro, her artistic practice. Today, in addition to her creations of wearable art, Woollvin mostly sells her magnificent beads to other artisans.

Woollvin's evocative beads depicting ocean scenes, sea creatures, tidal pools, trees, wildflowers and celestial objects, give perfect form to feelings and experiences and compel us to marvel at the splendor of our natural world.

How do businesses become circular?

BY VANDANA BALAKRISHNAN

Most businesses operate on a linear product life timeline. A product is designed for a particular use, resources are extracted for that use, the product is made, marketed and then distributed to its core commercial market. That's it. This is sometimes referred to as the "take, make and dispose" model. Traditional business models don't concern themselves with what happens to the product and resources embedded within after it has reached the customer and the business has profited from that sale. It is assumed that the customer, sometimes in conjunction with other parties or governmental agencies, will take care of how the product and respective resources will be disposed of, re-used or resold. The original producer of the product is cut off from much of the life of the product after the initial exchange of money between business and consumer.

It can be argued that this model has been used for ages, and hasn't been particularly damaging, until recently. Imagine your provincial town maybe a century or two ago. Most products were made of high quality materials, and the philosophy of re-use and low waste were built into the fabric of life to a large degree.

All that has changed with the age of consumerism and convenience, and technology has risen to the challenge of meeting that demand for fast-paced convenience culture. The advent of plastics and low quality disposable materials has contributed hugely to this model becoming unsustainable and actively damaging to the environment. The scale at which economies have grown and globalized over the world only adds to the predicament. Something has to change.

The circular business model aspires to take the product end cycle into account when designing a product. This model mimics a more natural resource cycle seen in nature. Everything in nature that is created ultimately goes back into nature and regenerates. Circular and regenerative business models attempt to mimic natural life cycles when designing and manufacturing products. The goal is to create a business model that is ethical and sustainable, but also financially beneficial to the business. Quite an ideal to live up to!

This is sometimes also called "cradle to cradle," as pioneered by Michael Braungart and William McDonough, who wrote a book by the same name in 2002. Products, services and value chains are designed in a manner that allows for the use and reuse of products and resources in smarter and more efficient ways. The designer of the product considers how the product can be re-used and how more value can be extracted even after the initial sale. One way could be for a company to take back materials after consumers are done, and re-use or recycle the resources for future uses.

There are many creative ways in which the circular economy model can be realized. However, for this model to have an impact, it is crucial that these businesses thrive both in popularity and profit. Happily, many enterprises have taken on the challenge and have managed to find profitability and circularity in tandem, as we will explore in future posts.

How modernizing infrastructure can help to capture more storm flow

SUBMITTED BY JULIE SPEZIA

The series of atmospheric river storms that brought record-breaking amounts of rain and snow in January had many Californians asking if our existing water infrastructure is able to capture and store flows from these extreme weather events. With climate change resulting in stronger storms carrying more water and the possibility of major flooding, the answer is more complicated than one might think.

“As the world gets warmer as a result of climate change, we see a change in the distribution of rain and snow,” said State Climatologist Michael Anderson. “This results in more runoff during the storm event itself, potentially creating a flood hazard and leaving less to run off from the snowpack in the spring for storage in our reservoirs.”

Whether it falls as rain or snow, the majority of that water flows through the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta – the center of California’s water distribution system – on its way to the San Francisco Bay. From state and federal pumping facilities in the south Delta, water is lifted into the aqueducts that carry it to the Bay Area, Central Coast, Central Valley and Southern California, to be delivered to 27 million people and 750,000 acres of farmland.

Regulations govern how much water may be diverted to the aqueducts in order to protect water quality and fisheries. These regulations are based in part on the physical location of the facilities.

The Delta Conveyance Project is a proposed infrastructure modernization project outlined in Governor Newsom’s strategy to adapt California’s water supply for a hotter and drier future. The project is an essential climate adaptation strategy that will help adapt to climate change and aid the State Water Project in capturing, moving and storing water during extreme weather events like January’s nine atmospheric rivers.

For example, if the Delta Conveyance Project had been operational during the high rain events of January this year, the modernized conveyance system could have moved 228,000 acre-feet of water into San Luis Reservoir while still meeting fishery and water quality protections and regulations. That’s enough water to supply about 2.3 million people for an entire year and is equivalent to approximately 40 percent of the total State Water Project exports in water year 2022.

As encouraging as the recent rainfall and snowpack statistics are, state water managers note that drought conditions persist, and it will take years to replenish groundwater basins. While the winter season has been positive, the most important measurement of the year will be April 1 when the snowpack is typically at its highest.

“These storms made clear the importance of our efforts to modernize our existing water infrastructure for an era of intensified drought and flood,” said DWR Director Karla Nemeth. “What we need to be positioned to do in California is move water when it’s available because moving and storing that water is going to help California weather longer and deeper droughts.”

Veteran educator honored in Fremont

SUBMITTED BY
FREMONT UNIFIED
SCHOOL DISTRICT

Rachel Brown, a longtime teacher with Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) has been named 2023 Teacher of the Year.

Brown, who has been with the district 24 years, was honored March 22 during the district’s Board of Education meeting. She is a 4th grade teacher at Mission San Jose Elementary School (MSJE). She was selected from a pool of six other district candidates from various schools.

“Being selected as district Teacher of the Year is such an unexpected honor, and I am so humbled and grateful to be chosen,” Brown said at the meeting.

In addition to Brown, the 2023 finalists included Melissa Auger, Thornton Junior High; Stephanie Keller, Mattos Elementary; Maria Dimitrova, Brier Elementary; Anjum Mujeeb, Glankler Early Learning; Jason Boyer, Parkmont Elementary and Ida Wong, Warm Springs Elementary.

“Rachel Brown is an exemplary representative of our outstanding district educators, who balance nurturing each student’s needs and strengths with challenging all learners to approach content with curiosity and a drive for deeper understanding,” said FUSD Superintendent CJ Cammack.

Katy Carter, principal at MSJE also praised Brown: “In all domains of her teaching and school leadership, Mrs. Brown provides a voice for student advocacy that is informed, data-driven, and thoughtful of the well-being of the whole child,” she said. “Mrs. Brown models kindness, empathy, compassion, and respect for all members of the MSJE community; this same display of upstanding character is mirrored by her students.”

Later this year, Brown will represent FUSD to be considered for Alameda County teacher honors, and then possibly state recognition.

WATER SECTOR CLIMATE CHANGE VULNERABILITIES

Climate change is having a profound impact on California’s water resources, as evidenced by lower water supply reliability, greater weather extremes, reduced snowpack, higher sea level, and changes in river flows. Further impacts include:

Tri-City History - Street Names #3: Mission Boulevard

BY KELSEY CAMELLO,
FOR THE WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP MUSEUM OF
LOCAL HISTORY

Mission Boulevard: A street that runs from Warm Springs Boulevard in Fremont (south) to East Lewelling Boulevard in Hayward (north), and for most of the way runs along the base of the East Bay foothills. Mission Boulevard itself stretches across three cities – Fremont, Union City and Hayward.

Mission Boulevard is named for the old mission in Fremont, which was established in 1797 as the 14th mission in Spanish-controlled California. In 1809, the original adobe church was built. That church fell due to an earthquake in 1868. In 1869, a wooden church was built in place of the original adobe. That church was sold for $1 in 1982, when plans were forming for the current reconstruction (still standing). An Anglican church in San Mateo bought the 1869 building, and it still resides there. The mission church that stands today is a reconstruction of the original 1809 church. It was dedicated in 1985. Four of the five bells used in the church are original.

Mission San Jose during its heyday was one of the most productive and prosperous of all 21 missions. There were cattle; and crops, such as pears, apricots, olives, figs, pomegranates, grapes, and apples, among many others. Mission San Jose was also known as the musical mission, as the choir and orchestra flourished under Father Duran, who served there for 27 years.

By 1830, close to 2,000 native people lived at the mission. Four years later, in 1834, the mission was secularized, with half of the ex-mission lands assigned to the native people. We know that very little land actually landed in their hands, and instead most of them went to work on Mexican Ranchos.

The stones at the base of the mission museum were originally part of the foundation of the 1809 adobe church. The mission museum itself is the only surviving original portion of the adobe quadrangle that made up the Mission San Jose compound. It remains the oldest existing structure in Alameda County, as Mission San Jose was the first Spanish outpost in the East Bay.

Visit the Old Mission San Jose Museum during their open days/times. You can find more information at: <https://missionsanjose.org/>

A balanced news report provides different points of view about the news.

There is a highway that starts in Alaska and ends at the southern tip of Argentina in South America. Or does it start in Argentina and end in Alaska? It depends on your point of view.

This silly news article is about Popcorn declaring itself the best movie snack. This is Popcorn's viewpoint. Clearly not everyone has the same opinion, so the reporter interviewed a couple of other snacks to get their point of view.

IS POPCORN REALLY THE BEST MOVIE SNACK?

By Reed Enwright
STAFF REPORTER

HOLLYWOOD — In an interview Tuesday, Popcorn declared itself the best movie snack in the world.

"Not to brag, but I'm the best-selling movie snack of all time. Obviously, people really love me!"

While signing autographs for fans, Popcorn added, "I'm crispy, buttery, salty and delicious. I've been a movie tradition for generations!"

Red Licorice was asked to comment on Popcorn's statement. "It's true that movies wouldn't be the same without Popcorn," Red Licorice said. "But with all that crunching, Popcorn can be kind of noisy. I'm sweet, tasty and quiet, which is good in a movie theater."

After hearing Red Licorice's comments, Chocolate Mints said, "I'm quiet, too. And I'm in a box that you can close and take home if you don't finish during the movie. I'm delicious and convenient."

Dismissing concerns about noise, a confident Popcorn replied that "people with good manners know how to eat popcorn quietly in a movie theater."

"Besides," Popcorn added with a grin, "Chocolate Mints can melt in a warm car ride home. Popcorn never melts."

Fremont Appoints New Fire Chief

On March 15, 2023, Fremont City Manager Karena Shackelford announced the appointment and promotion of Deputy Fire Chief Zoraida Diaz as Fremont's next Fire Chief. Chief Diaz will officially begin her new role as Fremont Fire's ninth Fire Chief and serve as the highest-ranking woman in the fire department's history, effective April 7, 2023.

"I am pleased to announce Zoraida Diaz as Fremont's next Fire Chief," stated City Manager Karena Shackelford. "Zoraida has a broad and accomplished career, bringing a wealth of knowledge and professional experience from more than two decades in the fire service and 15 years working in social services. Zoraida will be an integral part of our City's executive management team and is committed to building upon a legacy of excellence and leadership and is aligned with the City's highest priorities."

City Manager Shackelford didn't have to look far to fill the executive role, as Diaz is currently the Fremont Fire Department's Deputy Chief of Operations. In this capacity, Diaz has been responsible for a variety of complex work programs and has created effective working relationships within the fire department, as well as with partnering organizations such as local law enforcement and private ambulance agencies. Those relationships have resulted in enhanced service delivery to the community. Chief Diaz has also taken the lead in developing and implementing incident action plans for civil unrest, public safety power shutoff events, the COVID-19 pandemic and most recently, unprecedented weather events. Some of Diaz's additional accomplishments include developing Special Operations Task Force redeployment plans based on analytics and collaboration between labor management and operations staff, revising the Fire Department's Operations Policy section, and helping a team of employees to secure an Assistance to Firefighters Grant for Wellness and Fitness that established cancer and cardiac preventative health screenings. Chief Diaz is also a current member of Cohort X of the Fire Service Executive Institute, a highly competitive program developed by the International Association of Fire Chiefs to provide new and aspiring executive leaders with the tools necessary for a successful tenure.

Prior to working for the City of Fremont, Diaz spent 18 years with the City of Oakland, where she established her career in the fire service and promoted through the ranks, to Assistant Fire Chief. Bilingual in Spanish and English, Deputy Chief Diaz is a volunteer instructor and graduate of the prestigious Executive Development Institute (EDI), a five-year program focused on preparing members of the International Association of Black Professional Firefighters to become chief officers. Following college and prior to becoming a firefighter, she spent 15 years working as a social worker. Diaz continues to be involved in mentoring and teaching at the local and national level and is instrumental in the progression of recruitment initiatives.

Chief Diaz is proud to be named as the City's first female Fire Chief and embraces her Afro-Latina heritage. "I am honored to be named Fremont's next Fire Chief and my mission will be to cultivate a professional environment where civic, and employee pride promotes excellence in a workforce that values transparency, equity, inclusiveness and belonging. I am confident of my ability to advance this mission for our fire service professionals to thrive, improve proficiency, enhance their capacity to adapt and heighten organizational development," stated Deputy Chief Zoraida Diaz. "I look forward to leading the Fremont Fire Department and its' ongoing legacy as industry leaders regarding best practices, and we will continue to identify and implement innovative procedures to best serve the Fremont community."

Chief Diaz attended The State University of New York at Albany where she earned a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology with a minor in Spanish and a Master of Science in Rehabilitation Counseling. A badge-pinning ceremony will be scheduled at a later date, which will be announced.

ADU Ordinance Community Meeting

The City's Community Development Department is hosting an in-person community meeting to discuss necessary updates to Fremont's accessory dwelling unit (ADU) ordinance on Monday, April 3 from 6:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. ADUs are independent living units attached or detached to a single-family home or established within a multi-family development. An update to Fremont's ordinance is necessary for consistency with recently adopted state laws and to simplify local development standards, consistent with the City's General Plan and Housing Element.

This community meeting will be held at the Downtown Event Center, State Room, located at 3500 Capitol Ave. in Fremont. All members of the public are welcome to join. Parking is available adjacent to the building, and the Fremont BART Station is just a 15-minute walk away.

Join the meeting to learn about current laws governing the development of ADUs and the need for changes to the ordinance. The City wants your input!

For additional meeting information, please contact James Willis, Associate Planner, at 510-494-4449 or by email at jwillis@fremont.gov.

EV charging comes home

BY DAVID R NEWMAN

When looking to purchase their next car, more and more consumers are considering an electric vehicle (EV). According to the California Energy Commission, the market share for EV's in the state grew to just over 17% in 2022. There are a wide variety of models to choose from, prices continue to drop, and they're quiet, speedy, easy to maintain, and good for the environment. What's not to like?

Once you own an EV, the next step is figuring out how to charge it. All EV's come with a Level I charger - an extension cord that can plug into any standard household outlet. Although, technically, it's not a charger. The proper term is "electric vehicle service equipment," or EVSE, and it feeds the actual charger which is attached to the car battery.

A Level I EVSE adds 2-3 miles of range to your car every hour. So, after being plugged in for 10 hours, you've added about 30 miles of range. It's often referred to as a "trickle" charge because it's so slow. For many urban drivers who don't have far to travel it can be enough, especially if their workplace provides charging stations as well.

But for most people who want the option to charge faster, Level II EVSE is required. And if you own your own home, installing one of these in your garage is a fairly simple task. Level II runs on a 240-volt circuit like an electric range or dryer, not the 120 volts of a common outlet. You can either plug it in to an existing outlet, or an electrician can hardwire it for you.

Level II EVSE can add 12 - 60 miles of range to your vehicle per hour, depending on the amperage, which varies according to your service panel and the type of EV you own. And it's important to note that this is generic AC power we're talking about, so it doesn't matter what brand EVSE you buy. They are all equipped with an SAE J1772 plug connector, which will service any EV, except for a Tesla, which has its own proprietary technology. Adapters are available.

Level II EVSE can cost anywhere from $500 - $800, and it's super simple to mount yourself using a few screws. Electrical work can cost between $800 and $1,500 depending on your situation. Some people install EVSE outside, in which case hardwiring is recommended. Rebates and incentives exist for those interested in installing an EVSE, so be sure to check for those online.

There are several companies who make EVSE, such as Jukebox and Lectron. One of the largest is ChargePoint, whose system is controlled using an app on your phone. Says Wendy Wilson, Global Head of Residential, "One great thing about our app is you can plug in your rate plan and it will keep track of your usage and recommend when the best times are to charge. It's very simple to use."

The app can also help you find charging stations when you are on the road, not only in the ChargePoint network but also using partner networks as well (they boast the largest network in North America). It can also give you the charging speed, cost and availability of each station.

Wilson has been driving EV's for 11 years and is a staunch supporter. "I love never having to go to the gas station," she notes. She has seen the technology become more mainstream over the years and sees it growing more and more in the future. "We're really about to see a boom in the 30-minute retail economy at road stops across the state, where people with EV's can stop for a fast charge and eat or shop while they wait."

For anyone considering EVSE for their home, Wilson offers this advice, "The easiest way for anyone to charge is where they park at night. Where they sleep determines where they charge."

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: MARCH 28, 2023

All Signs: This is such a marvelous and upbeat week, when I saw this coming, I booked a little getaway. Everyone will want to seek out adventure this week. They'll be eager to try new things. This is because we're full of positive energy! Please note that Thursday is a particularly lovely day for romance.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

This super positive week begins with Mercury lined up with Jupiter in your sign. Mercury is all about communicating, thinking and learning. When it lines up with Jupiter, it enhances your appreciation of things. It makes you see the most comprehensive view possible. You will be more tolerant of others' viewpoints. This is an excellent week for business and commercial activity. However, you will do something impulsively. Money, gifts and goodies might unexpectedly come to you. (Well, guess whose birthday it is?) Big changes might take place on the home front.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

This is a feel-good week! It begins with a vibe of quiet enthusiasm and confidence. You'll be eager to communicate your ideas, which means if you're in sales, marketing, teaching and acting, you'll be persuasive! Meanwhile, Venus is in your sign lined up with unpredictable Uranus, which will create unexpected events, new experiences and excitement in your world! You might encounter a new relationship with someone different from you. This could also mean a sudden financial gain. Expect to amuse yourself in new ways because you're open to trying new and unusual things.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

You love excitement. This week will not disappoint because you're popular! Expect increased interactions with groups and friends, especially younger people.

Discussions might encourage you to rethink future goals. Admittedly, you might be tempted to go overboard financially this week. Be cautious and think things through a second time during financial negotiations. Likewise, if you're spending money, think twice before you part with your cash. A secret flirtation or love affair might take your breath away. The main thing to know is that this week schmoozing with others will please and benefit you.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

It's important to know when to act and when not to. This week, you're a winner because you have the energy of fiery Mars in your sign, making you confident, proactive and up for anything. Meanwhile, the Sun, Mercury and lucky Jupiter are at the top of your chart making you look wonderful in the eyes of others, especially bosses and VIPs. People admire your big ideas! You impress people from other cultures or different countries. You have the ability to see trends and patterns and amaze others with your insights. Don't waste this!

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

You need a change of scenery. This is why you'll enjoy seeing new places and faces. You will be fired up by new ideas. Fair Venus is at the top of your chart, which creates favorable circumstances for business and attracting help. Someone will ask advice, perhaps about design, layout work, office redecorating or PR ideas. Because you look so attractive, a romance with a boss or authority figure might begin. Thursday is romantic, and the weekend promises fun times. The Moon enters your sign Thursday afternoon to stay until Sunday morning.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

Every aspect of travel and exploration will appeal this week. For some, romance with a person from another culture or country might blossom. Meanwhile, business and finance favor you. It's an excellent time to ask for a loan or mortgage. Discussions about shared property and inheritances will be in your favor. Don't be afraid to be generous, because you can afford to do so. (You might want to help a friend or a charitable organization.) Meanwhile, this week is full of passionate feelings and secret romance.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

This is a great week to enjoy the company of others, even though you will need more sleep. Relations with partners and close friends will be upbeat, and intimate relations will be passionate and affectionate. Meanwhile, fiery Mars is at the top of your chart, arousing your ambition. People will see your ambitions and that you intend to make a difference. This is timely because you're willing to work hard right now. It's a time of culmination for you, which helps you expand beyond your usual sphere of influence. Work with others for best success.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

This is a happy week but it's also a busy and industrious time, which is why you will accomplish so much. Please note: Your ambition and optimism are key. Once you have the motivation, the rest unfolds. You can improve your work situation; and you can improve your health. Not through magic fairy dust; but through effort and commitment on your part.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

You are a lucky person because lucky Jupiter is your ruler. This is a marvelous week to party, socialize, enjoy vacations, attend sports events, delight in playful times with children, travel for pleasure and appreciate galleries and museums. Whatever you do this week will be a fun way to expand your world. Some might have disputes about inheritances and shared property. However, these will likely be settled in your favor. Meanwhile something unusual might impact your work or health.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

Home, family and private life continue to be your primary focus. Because this is a friendly week for everyone, this means you will enjoy entertaining at home. Invite the gang over for good food and drink because warm camaraderie and friendly feelings are the flavor of the day. In addition, social outings, playful activities with children and romance are beautifully favored. Admittedly, your relationship with a partner or close friend might be tested. Instead focus on enjoying good times with family and friends. Likewise, real-estate exploration could be profitable.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

This week is busy, fast-paced, upbeat and joyful! Short trips and a demanding schedule are likely; nevertheless, because you're in a happy mood, everything will flow beautifully. Unexpected situations may take place at home. For example, you might suddenly entertain. Or you might impulsively buy something modern or high tech. You might even make a sudden decision regarding real estate or a residential move. Your ability to think big and convince others of the wisdom of your ideas is what makes this a winning week for you. Plus, you're working hard!

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

This is the year for you to increase your earnings. Many of you will get a raise or see a way to earn more money. Some will get a better paying job. Some will have moneymaking ideas. Whatever the case, you can boost your wealth. (This will happen next year for later-born Pisces.) Work-related travel will please many. Stay light on your feet so that you can impulsively take a short trip if you want. Opportunities to appreciate your daily surroundings and meet exciting people will abound.

Park It: Coyotes and You

BY NED MACKAY

While visiting Briones Regional Park the other day, I had a conversation with another hiker about coyotes in the parklands. No more than five minutes later, a coyote crossed my path on the Briones Crest Trail. I took this as a sign that it's time again to provide some information about these dog cousins. So, here's some coyote lore, mostly from Park District naturalists.

Coyotes live throughout the western United States and beyond. You can see them in almost every East Bay Regional Park. Intelligent and adaptable, they also prowl nearby suburban neighborhoods, including mine in Pleasant Hill.

If you don't see the animal itself, you may see its distinctive scat, which has a lot of fur from the small rodents that make up coyotes' basic diet. Through their eating habits, coyotes help to control the population of rabbits, ground squirrels, skunks and raccoons. They are pretty much omnivorous and will prey on fish, birds, reptiles and even insects.

Although they look like skinny German shepherd dogs, coyotes are wild and may be aggressive, especially if protecting a den. If you are walking with your dog and see a coyote approaching, it's best to call your pet back and leash it. If a coyote follows you, make loud noises to scare it away.

In 2021, a specific coyote was implicated in attacks on people in Moraga and Lafayette. Until those incidents, coyote attacks on people had been rare. I've heard of no attacks locally since then.

Cows do not differentiate between coyotes and dogs; they regard both as predators. This may account for cows' sometimes-nervous behavior when you walk past with your dog. If there are cows nearby in a Regional Park, your dog should be leashed.

It's best for both species if coyotes remain wary of humans. So don't feed coyotes, or leave pet food or garbage where they can get to it. Especially if you live near open space, feed your pet indoors and use trash containers with lids that clamp shut.

It's also advisable to keep small pets indoors, such as cats, rabbits and dogs. If allowed to run free outside, they can become coyote prey. Large dogs should be brought indoors after dark and should not be allowed to run loose.

For more information about coyotes, check out the California Department of Fish and Wildlife website, www.wildlife.ca.gov. There's also information at the Washington state site: <https://wdfw.wa.gov/living/coyotes.html>.

Saturday, April 1, is April Fools Day. However, Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont will offer a legitimate program, "Animal April Fools," from 11 a.m. to 12 noon that day. Join naturalist Erin Blackwood to learn how various animals use camouflage and mimicry to fool predators and prey, then draw an imaginary animal of your own invention to take home.

The program is free and registration is not required. Parents must participate with their children. Meet at the visitor center. Coyote Hills is at 8000 Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

Beetles will be the stars of a program on Saturday, April 1 near the visitor center at Sunol Regional Wilderness in southern Alameda County. No hiking is involved. Naturalist Erica Stephens will preside. Visit the beetle station any time between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m., obtain a coloring sheet, and build a beetle.

Sunol Wilderness is at the end of Geary Road off Calaveras Road about five miles south of I-680 and the town of Sunol. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle; the program is free of charge. For information, call (510) 544-3249.

"Historic Days" will be a recurring program every Thursday, Friday and Sunday beginning Sunday, April 2 at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont. From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., activities will recreate life on a family farm circa 1890-1930. Ride a narrow-gauge train, tour the restored Patterson House Museum, and join park staff in historic costumes for activities throughout the day. Farmyard programs begin at 10:30 a.m. and end with an animal feeding at 3 p.m.

Ardenwood is located at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard, just north of Highway 84. Admission fees apply. Parking is free. For information, call (510) 544-2797.

"Insects (And Other Curious Phenomena)" is the theme of a program from 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 1 at Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley with naturalist Anthony Fisher. On a casual stroll, the group will look for plants and animals, and bring some back to view under a microscope before releasing them back to the wild. The program is free; registration is not required.

Meet at Tilden's Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Central Park Drive. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

The Alameda whipsnake is a rare and seldom-seen reptile. Naturalist Kevin Dixon will lead a hike through whipsnake habitat at Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, April 2. The trek is for ages nine and older; parent participation is required. It's free of charge and registration is not necessary.

Meet Kevin in the park's upper parking lot on Somersville Road, 3½ miles south of Highway 4 and a mile past the entrance kiosk. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle when the kiosk is staffed. Heavy rain may cancel the hike. Call (510) 544-2750 for information.

These are just a few of the programs and activities planned in the East Bay Regional Parks. For the full story, go to www.ebparks.org/things-to-do. Check "alerts and closures" at the top of the home page before you venture out to a Regional Park, in case storm damage has resulted in limited access.

Fremont Creates

SUBMITTED BY
ANNIE KORUGA

April, as Arts, Culture, and Creativity Month is right around the corner, and Fremont Creates, an umbrella organization of many groups within the Fremont arts and cultural community, is coordinating festivities all month long!

The first part of April includes the Washington Township Museum of Local History, an organization which preserves the history of Southern Alameda County, showcasing historical art pieces in a new exhibit running from April 1 to September 30, 2023. This exhibit features creations by local women of the past, including mosaics by Alice Ebright, photographs of historic buildings taken by Julianne Howe, and writings by Milicent Shinn. Artist Nancy Pratt's watercolors of the five villages of Fremont round out the exhibit. These pieces interpret many of the same sites throughout the Tri-Cities across multiple decades which showcase the multitude of possible interpretations of our local area.

Washington Township Museum of Local History will also provide an opportunity for children to try their hand at making art themselves at an April 15 Plein Air (outdoor painting) event for children nine years old and up at Rancho Higuera Historical Park. A $32 fee covers painting supplies and a small donation to the museum.

Fremont Cultural Arts Council (FCAC) and Olive Hyde Art Guild (OHAG) are also integral in programming throughout April. FCAC is organizing its 28th annual Juried Photography Exhibit, with the exhibit running from April 1 to May 6 at Fremont Main Library. Additionally, OHAG is hosting its biennial Members Juried Show, running from April 6 to May 27.

The Fremont branches of the Alameda County Library system also have events starting the first week of April. At Fremont's Main Library, families will enjoy "Fremont's Dragons," a collection of illustrations by Eva Demel. Also on exhibit is "My World: Ukraine" - images from young Bay Area artists. Music abounds as well, with "Music Hour" by Eternity Band, on April 8 at 2:30 p.m. at the Main Library. The Centerville branch is hosting the Dave Rocha Jazz Trio for a performance and lecture at 12 noon, also on April 8.

The Niles district is participating in April's celebration of Arts, Culture and Creativity month with the Fremont Art Association's (FAA) opening reception for its Annual Art Show at 1 p.m. on April 2 with the exhibition running weekends through April 30. Niles will also host a five-week children's art class by Janine Pitta at her studio ($150).

Finally, in preparation for Earth Day on April 22, Grey Water Project's juried art, music, dance and literature competition is open for submissions by students kindergarten through 12th grade. This year's theme is Climate Change; the entry deadline is April 15.

How the X-plane program is helping innovation in Aeronautics

KAILASH KALIDOSS, AEROSPACE ENTHUSIAST

The NASA X Plane program highlights the "A" in "NASA" which is aeronautics. It is a series of research and development projects aimed at advancing aviation technology and improving the efficiency, safety, and environmental impact of air transportation.

The NASA X Plane program has been responsible for developing many famous examples of advanced aviation technology that have helped shape the future of air travel. Here are some examples:

X-1: The X-1 was the first aircraft to break the sound barrier in 1947. It was a rocket-powered plane that had a distinctive bullet shape and was designed to fly at high altitudes. The X-1's success paved the way for supersonic flight and led to the development of many other X Planes.

X-15: The X-15 was a rocket-powered plane that set several speed and altitude records in the 1960s. It was designed to fly at extremely high altitudes and speeds and was used to test materials and technologies for the development of the Space Shuttle.

X-29: The X-29 was a unique aircraft that had forward-swept

The Quiet Supersonic Technology, or QueSST, the concept is in the preliminary design phase and on its way to being one of NASA's first X-planes, Source: nasa.gov wings and was designed to test advanced aerodynamics. Its wings were angled forward, which gave it a very distinctive appearance. The X-29 was used to study the effects of advanced aerodynamics on flight performance and handling.

X-43: The X-43 was an experimental aircraft that was designed to fly at hypersonic speeds. It was powered by a scramjet engine, which allowed it to reach speeds of up to Mach 9.6. The X-43 set a world speed record for a jet-powered aircraft in 2004.

X-59 QueSST: The X-59 is a supersonic aircraft that is being developed to fly faster than the speed of sound without producing a sonic boom. It has a long, slender shape and is designed to fly at high altitudes. The X-59 uses advanced aerodynamics and propulsion systems to reduce the noise of its sonic boom, which could pave the way for the return of supersonic flight over land.

The X Plane program has been instrumental in advancing aviation technology and shaping the future of air travel. While some have criticized the program for its high cost and focus on advanced technology, the program has already achieved many significant milestones, such as the successful test flight of the X-59 QueSST supersonic aircraft in 2021. It has the potential to continue to make a positive impact on the aviation industry.

Kailash first fell in love with aerospace as a teenager when he learned about aviation from his father's role as a Ground Operations Manager. Kailash has since spent his efforts sharing knowledge about aerospace, astronautics, aviation, science, technology, and of course, the night sky. Kailash also represents the Civil Air Patrol and NASA as a volunteer.

AC Transit bus operators honored

SUBMITTED BY ROBERT LYLES

Eleven veteran AC Transit bus operators are recipients of the transit agency's 2022 Safe Driving Award. The award is given annually to bus operators who have maintained a minimum of five years safe driving with no preventable accidents.

That's quite a feat, said transit officials, noting that bus operators navigate scores of challenges while safely maneuvering coaches that start at 40-foot-long, 11-foot-high, and nearly 31,000 pounds, all the while maintaining a timed schedule and avoiding unpredictable behavior from others sharing the road.

This year's honorees have a combined safe driving service experience of 295 years. They include:

- Yolanda Lomax Binion, 20 years
- Deborah Scarbrough, 20 years
- Tony Simington, 20 years
- Cheryl Brown, 20 years
- Rogelio Barrientos, 20 years
- William Collins, 25 years
- Michael Winston, 30 years

- Claudia Waters, 35 years
- Ricardo Perez, 35 years
- Tejinder Brar, 35 years
- Jerry Strong, 35 years

This year's Safe Driving Award honorees represent more than 1,000 AC Transit Bus Operators who serve riders in Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

OPINION

The chicken or the egg

WILLIAM MARSHAK

An oft posed conundrum that has persisted is the question of which comes first... the chicken or the egg? The answer is clouded by the genesis of each. Without a chicken, there can be no egg. But, without an egg, there can be no chicken? How can the cause and effect be determined? Circular arguments such as this depend on both elements existing simultaneously.

A partial answer to a similar dilemma was suggested in the 1989 film, Field of Dreams in which Ray Kinsella, an Iowa farmer, responds to a desire to honor his late father, a devoted baseball fan, a vision and a mysterious whisper of advice... "If you build it, they will come." Risking financial ruin, he follows the directive, builds a baseball field in the midst of his corn crop and "Shoelless" Joe Jackson along with other baseball players from the past emerge from the cornfield to enjoy the new field. On the brink of losing his farm to bank foreclosure, the film ends as a stream of headlights approach indicating financial relief from those who want to visit the Field of Dreams.

Whether considering the existential egg dilemma or fantasy cornfield quandary, there are circumstances where it is appropriate to ask a question of what should come first. Is there a logical progression in which the order of action can dictate sensible priorities? City planning is often faced with similar decisions when tasked with directing the speed, direction, type and style of growth required by internal and external demands. Trying to balance a vision of the future with realities of the present is daunting and often contradictory.

The Osgood Road corridor in Fremont is a good example of such a scenario. The anticipated BART station in the Irvington District of Fremont remains a unfulfilled promise that has nonetheless prompted use of Transit Oriented Development funding and subsequent housing production. Without a BART station that may be ill advised due to its location, residents are isolated from easy access to public transit and other amenities.

However, in a recent review of affordable housing production, Fremont touted construction on Osgood Road as a major contributor to its RHNA [Regional Housing Needs Allocation] numbers. The theory is that occupants of such facilities will be close to amenities and regional transit so work and daily needs are within walking distance. Therefore, there is less need for cars and parking spaces for them. However, with no BART station and few other alternatives to automobile transportation, what practical solutions does a current occupant have?

We come back to the classic chicken or egg problem. Is it better to build housing, especially affordable housing with relaxed regulations, in anticipation of future amenities or wait for assured production of those amenities? What will residents do in the meantime to compensate for lack of services?

Mission San Jose Tennis Victory

MSJHS TENNIS TEAM

On Friday, March 25, Mission San Jose High School Warriors (Fremont) went head-to-head against American High School Eagles (Fremont) in a fast-paced boys tennis game. The game consisted of multiple matches that took place simultaneously, with players facing off against one another in an excellent display of sportsmanship and skill.

At one court, American Eagles went against Mission San Jose Warriors Jayden Kim and Kevin Pan. Despite facing a formidable opponent, Kim and Pan worked together seamlessly, with impressive skills utilizing a combination of powerful serves and quick footwork leading them to a 3-6, 7-5, 10-5 victory. "One of the highlights was definitely our doubles 2 winning in the tiebreak third set. They were down a set and losing in the second, but were able to display exceptional teamwork and make a comeback." Mission San Jose Varsity Co-Captain Junior Waylon Li said.

As the matches continued throughout the afternoon, the energy on the courts remained high, with students cheering on their teammates and coaches providing guidance and encouragement. In the end, the Warriors emerged victorious with a score of 6-1, maintaining their undefeated position thus far into the 2023 tennis season. "I think the game went really well overall. The other team changed their lineup from the last time we played them, but our team was versatile and able to adapt, only losing one match," shared Li.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Birthday of Cesar Chavez

March 31 is the birthday of Cesar Chavez (3/31/27 - 4/23/93), co-founder (with Dolores Huerta) of the United Farm Workers.

Chavez did not limit his concerns to only labor and civil rights. He was also an outspoken advocate for the welfare of animals. Consider this excerpt from a treasured 12/90 letter to action for animals.

"Kindness and compassion towards all living things is a mark of a civilized society. Conversely, cruelty, whether it is directed against human beings or against animals, is not the exclusive province of any one culture or community of people. Racism, economic deprival, dog fighting and cock fighting, bullfighting and rodeos are cut from the same fabric: violence. Only when we have become nonviolent towards all life will we have learned to live well ourselves." Words to live by.

President Biden has a bust of Chavez on display in the oval office. Chavez & Huerta deserve a national holiday.

Sincerely,

Eric mills, coordinator

Cohousing—An Educated Choice

SUBMITTED BY EVELYN LATORRE AND
JANE MUELLER

An advertising phrase popularized in the 80's declared, "Inquiring minds want to know." With respect to cohousing, the statement is still relevant. People attracted to cohousing tend to be eager knowledge seekers who are practiced in acquiring information they need to enhance their lives. The people who are currently expressing interest in the Tri-Cities' first cohousing project, Mission Peak Village in Fremont, are much like those who have already joined the fast-growing cohousing movement—people who take an active role in creating the type of home and neighborhood in which they can thrive.

In 1988, when the first edition of Kathryn McCamant and Charles Durrett's book Cohousing was published, few people had heard of this concept of neighborhood, which had been pioneered successfully in Denmark decades before. McCamant and Durrett coined the term "cohousing" to describe an intentional community in which residents of all ages live in their own private households while sharing extensive amenities with their neighbors, such as a Common House (clubhouse), recreation space, pedestrian walkways, and gardens. Since that time, hundreds of cohousing groups have formed in North America and elsewhere.

The Mission Peak Village project is already bringing together group members as friends and future neighbors. They are a diverse group. One is a videographer and former journalist. Another is a beekeeper and fly fisherman. One is compiling a dictionary for Quechua, the language of the Incas. Another is a high school student gaining proficiency on both piano and ukulele. Three are Peace Corps alumnae. Collectively, Mission Peak Villagers have attended a selection of learning institutions: Ohlone College, Stanford University, UCLA, Pomona, Mills College, Texas Tech, Texas Divinity, Illinois State, San Francisco State, Santa Clara, Tulane, USF, Claremont, UC Davis, and Birmingham, England. Ten have graduate degrees in subjects as varied as library science, international development, psychology, social work, divinity, physics, electrical and mechanical engineering, policy administration, and multicultural education. They acquire and apply their knowledge in varied ways, but are united in their pursuit of creating an environment in which they will continue to learn in the coming years.

Many self-identify as introverts and others as extroverts, but what do "cohousers" have in common? They generally have inquiring minds, particularly when it comes to obtaining knowledge and taking action that can make a positive impact on their lives. As Mission Peak Village approaches city approval of its conceptual design this spring, perhaps it is unsurprising that potential members are joining as "Explorers" to add to their knowledge of this innovative way of living.

This article is part of an ongoing series on cohousing. To learn more on the topic of cohousing, visit www.cohousing.org. To learn more about Mission Peak Village, visit www.missionpeakcohousing.org.

Mission Peak Village is a group of friends forming Fremont's first cohousing community. Explorers are welcome and memberships are still available. Call Kelli at (510) 413-8446 or visit Mission Peak Village on Facebook, Instagram, or the www.missionpeakcohousing.org website, where you can register for a monthly walk to explore the neighborhood around the future site in the Irvington district of Fremont.

Alan Kenney

Alan Kenney passed away on March 11, 2023 at the age of 85. Alan was born on June 11, 1937 to Austin and Muriel Kenney. He was born and raised in Massachusetts until the age of 11 when he moved to Fremont, CA in 1949.

Alan married his high school sweetheart Elaine on June 21, 1957 in Reno, NV. They were happily married until Elaine's passing in June 2022. Alan is survived by his two sons, Michael Kenney and wife Liza of Fremont and John Kenney of Fremont. Alan is also survived by his brother Thomas and wife Patricia of Folsom, CA as well as many nieces and nephews.

Upon graduating from Washington High School in 1955 Alan joined the U.S. Navy rising to the rank of Storekeeper 2nd Class by the time of his discharge in 1959. Alan served aboard the U.S.S. General A.E. Anderson and the U.S.S. Regulus in the Pacific Fleet and several shore establishments.

Alan was a fan of the Oakland A's and the Raiders. He was an avid reader, baker, and golfer. He enjoyed traveling across the country with Elaine in their RV, with their favorite stops being Pismo Beach, Reno, NV and Phoenix, AZ. He was a member of the Benevolent and protective order of the Elks. Alan was Elk of the year, officer of the year and Elk of the month on multiple occasions.

Alan worked for the Fremont Fire Department for 32 years from 1960-1992. He started his career as a fireman, worked his way to being captain in 1965, battalion chief in 1984 and finally to Deputy Chief in 1987 which he maintained until his retirement. Some say Kenney's most notable contribution to the department has been his supervision of the opening and staffing of four new fire stations, the demolition of two others and the acquisition of 13 trucks and engines. But Kenney believes his greatest contribution was as a fire captain and training officer-when he trained dozens of young firefighters, some who later became captains and battalion chiefs.

In addition to his Fire Department service Alan coached youth athletics. From 1967 to 1975 he coached in Fremont Baseball Incorporated. In 1974-1975 Alan coached Football. Starting in 1975 and continuing until 1980 Alan coached Corpus Christi Basketball winning two championships. Coaching and guiding others both in the athletics and the Fire Department meant a lot to him.

Funeral services will take place at Berge-Pappas-Smith Chapel of the Angels on Monday April 3, 2023 at 2:30 PM located at 40842 Fremont Blvd, Fremont, CA 94538.

Oakland Zoo mourns loss of Lisa the African Elephant

SUBMITTED BY ERIN DOGAN

After several years of chronic and degenerative health issues, despite progressive treatments and cutting-edge therapies, Lisa, Oakland Zoo's elderly 46-year-old African elephant, was humanely euthanized on March 26 due to irreversible worsening of those health issues, compounded by recently developed ventral edema.

Lisa came to Oakland Zoo in 1979, and her decades-long residency has deeply impacted her dedicated keepers, veterinary team, staff, volunteers, and millions of Zoo guests. She was one of only sixteen female African Elephants 46 years and older in AZA-accredited zoos; her geriatric years brought age-related afflictions including ongoing eye ulcers, progressing degenerative arthritis, foot and nail lesions, and in the past few weeks, ventral edema causing excessive fluid retention in her belly which then caused ulcers.

"We are heartbroken. Over the years-long course of care and treatments to provide her a good quality of life through multimodal pain control, her disease progressed to a point where we didn't want her last day to be her worst day, and it was time to do the most humane thing and to let her go," said Dr. Alex Herman, VP of Veterinary Services at Oakland Zoo.

Lisa's arthritis first presented itself in 2013, and with her care plan constantly evolving as her arthritis progressed, by 2021 a multimodal medical treatment plan was put in place. In the past several months her degenerative arthritis became debilitating enough to affect her mobility to the point she began avoiding bending her body to lie down and sleep in her heated elephant barn. Her care team provided modifications to her sleep area, but with limited success. Her increased standing brought about recurring foot and nail lesions.

Lisa's care team has consisted of Oakland Zoo veterinarians, animal care staff, and experts in the field including ophthalmologists, physical therapists, arthritis researchers, wildlife behaviorists, and consulting veterinarians from other AZA-accredited zoos. Her medical care plan included physical therapy, pain medication, laser treatments, cryotherapy, and daily foot soaks in Epsom salt, and two cutting-edge stem cell procedures in October 2022 and January 2023, in partnership with researchers and veterinarians from Michigan State University. The procedures involved infusing stem cells from a healthy elephant into Lisa's bloodstream in hope of alleviating arthritic inflammation, restoring cartilage, and easing her general discomfort. While Lisa showed some improved mobility, her limbs and joints remained stiff and continued declining in winter months.

Oakland Zoo staff and volunteers are mourning her loss. Elephant zookeepers recently arranged a celebration of her 46th birthday by presenting Lisa with a large spread of treats, enrichment, and piñatas filled with her favorite fruits.

"Lisa has been a deeply beloved part of our Oakland Zoo family since 1979. She was truly special to me, and to all of us here. Her loss is felt by so many, especially her closely bonded elephant keepers," said Colleen Kinzley, VP of Animal Care, Conservation and Research at Oakland Zoo.

Lisa was transported to the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine for necropsy.

Oakland Zoo has been a decades-long advocate for elephants in captivity and in the wild. Supporting elephant conservation partners and organizations, Oakland Zoo lobbied for the successful passing of SB 1062 and SB 313 in 2016 to ban the cruel use of bull hooks on elephants in California.

Notices Regarding Production of Groundwater Public Hearing for Proposed Replenishment Assessment Increase

A public hearing on the replenishment assessment for Fiscal Year (FY) 2023/24 will be held at 6:00 P.M. on Tuesday, April 11, 2023. Members of the public may participate in this meeting either in person at the District office at 43885 South Grimmer Boulevard, Fremont, or via webinar https://us02zoom.us/j/83359856504?pwd=ZkxkUGJvVHwvNTB9aFZuLjJCYzRkZzZ099 (passcode: 438204), or by calling any of the following phone numbers: 1-669-900-9128 or 1-346-248-7799 or 1-301-715-8592 followed by 833 5985 6504.

Alameda County Water District (ACWD) staff is proposing a 4.9% increase in the replenishment assessment rate for groundwater pumped or extracted for purposes other than agricultural and municipal recreation, effective July 1, 2023. This would change the rate from $513 to $538 per acre-foot of groundwater extracted. Only property owners with a well, well owners, and operators of wells (or other groundwater extraction facilities) within the ACWD-managed Niles Cone Groundwater Basin would be affected by this proposed rate increase. It does not apply to the rates and charges for water served to residences and businesses by ACWD's distribution system. The basis for the proposed 4.9% increase is set forth in the 2023 Survey Report on Groundwater Conditions (Survey Report) and Resolution 23-013, which are available for review at the ACWD Headquarters. They can also be found on-line by doing the following steps:

- To access the Survey report: 1. Visit us at: https://www.acwd.org/ 2. At the top, click on "Services" 3. In the list on the left side, click on "Groundwater Resources" 4. Click on "Groundwater Management" 5. Click on "Annual Survey Report on Groundwater Conditions" 6. Click on "Annual Survey Report"

Revenue from the replenishment assessment helps ACWD offset its costs to replenish and maintain groundwater supplies for the benefit of the users of the groundwater basin. In recent years, ACWD has made substantial upgrades and repairs to aging recharge facilities to render them in compliance with the Endangered Species Act. Although grant funding has helped offset the cost of these projects, an increase in the replenishment assessment rate is necessary to help pay for remaining work, invest in long-term water storage and supply initiatives, and pay for other necessary upcoming capital costs identified in the Capital Improvement Program for the groundwater basin. The water storage and supply initiatives are critical to ensure reliability of sources of groundwater replenishment for the long-term as each of ACWD's sources is subject to future uncertainties related to climate change and regulatory and environmental pressures.

You are invited to attend the public hearing, to be held in support of or opposition of the proposed increased replenishment assessment, the Survey Report, or the Board determination in Resolution No. 23-013 that a replenishment assessment is required. In addition, if you wish to comment on, or protest, the proposed replenishment assessment rate increase, you may submit a written comment, or protest, by mail or online to:

Alameda County Water District Attn: Proposed Groundwater RA Rate Increase Protest By Mail: P.O. Box 5110, Fremont, CA 94537-5110 By Drop Box - 43885 South Grimmer Boulevard, Fremont, CA 94538 Online: https://www.acwd.org/raprotest

For all protests, please be sure to include your name, daytime phone number (for protest verification), and the address of the property where the well is located. Written comments or protests, including online, must be received by ACWD by 5:00 PM on April 11, 2023. If providing a protest during the public hearing, you will be asked to provide the information above for protest verification, and ACWD will document that information as a written protest. Under state law, there is a 120-day statute of limitations for challenging any new, increased, or extended fee or charge.

Extension of Deadline of Metering Low Producing Groundwater Production Facilities

On February 9, 2023, the Board of Directors of the Alameda County Water District, adopted Resolution No. 23-014 which extended the deadline to install water measuring devices (flow totalizers) on groundwater-producing facilities (e.g., wells), located within the jurisdiction of Alameda County Water District, and which produce such low volumes of water that the cost of metering would not be justified by the replenishment assessment revenue that would be generated within a reasonable period of time. The new deadline is March 12, 2024. For more information, contact ACWD at 510-668-4469.

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. Notice to property owner: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. Water district rescinds drought surcharge

SUBMITTED BY SHARENE GONZALES

At a special meeting on March 21, Alameda County Water District Board of Directors voted to rescind drought surcharges effective April 1 for its customers in Fremont, Newark and Union City.

The unanimous vote to roll back surcharges comes nearly three months sooner than prior assumptions based on financial planning and by recent significant local and statewide precipitation that points to lessening drought conditions in coming months.

"The rains have quenched our drought-stricken state, and for the first time in several years, we see California edging its way out of drought," said ACWD Board President Paul Sethy. "On behalf of the board, I extend a big 'Thank you' to our customers who have done a tremendous job conserving water -- because of their water-saving efforts and ACWD's solid fiscal position, including reserves, the board can deliver on our promise to sunset drought surcharges," Sethy added.

Temporary drought surcharges provide financial stability when revenues drop during a water shortage emergency and water demands are reduced. Since March 2022, surcharges have generated $11.6 million, covering increased costs for water supply, operations, and necessary capital improvements.

"The board's action to rescind the surcharge signals that our water supplies are nearly sufficient to meet regular demands," Sethy said. "We look forward to easing restrictions, but we know recurring drought is a reality in California, and we encourage customers to turn some of their water-wise habits into a permanent practice."

Customer demands remain at 20% less compared to 2020, with a modest 3-year rebound projected beginning in 2024.

ACWD's water use restrictions and ordinance prohibiting some types of water use remain in effect. Several criteria will be considered to determine ending the local drought emergency status, including the State's drought emergency declaration and executive orders, associated State emergency regulations, and local and imported water supply conditions.

For more information on ACWD's drought status, visit acwd.org/drought.

Fremont housing plan gets state approval

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES

On March 22, the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) announced that the City of Fremont's updated 2023-2031 Housing Element, which is part of the city's General Plan, is in full compliance with California state law -- becoming the sixth city in Alameda County to receive state certification.

"HCD applauds the leadership of the city in taking significant steps to affirmatively further fair housing and accommodate the future housing needs of all segments of the community," HCD's Senior Program Manager Paul McDougall wrote in a letter to the city.

Key policy commitments in the city's updated Housing Element include:

- Planning for approximately 300 units of housing on an 8.4-acre city-owned property at Fremont Boulevard and Decoto Road.
- Considering revisions to parking requirements in transit-oriented areas.
- Updating city ordinances and standards to maximize residential density in certain areas.

Under California law, all local governments are required to adopt a Housing Element and update it every eight years to help meet the housing needs of everyone in the community.

Fremont's assigned share of the region's housing need for the next eight years is almost 13,000 new residential units, over 7,000 of which are intended to be affordable. In 2022 alone, the city permitted 1,133 housing units, including 298 affordable units. An additional 947 units of affordable housing are currently under construction or in early phases of the development pipeline in Fremont.

According to the HCD website, other Alameda County cities to receive State certification include Alameda, Berkeley, Emeryville, Oakland, and San Leandro. To learn more about the City's Housing Element, please visit fremont.gov/housingelement.

City of Hayward Council Sustainability Committee

BY JACK ALCORN

Hayward City Council maintains eight standing committees to support Council endeavors. Councilmembers Julie Roche, Angela Andrews and Elisa Marquez comprise the Council Sustainability Committee (CSC). Their efforts provide Hayward residents cleaner air, cleaner water and less litter on the streets. They also ensure clean and green practices for city services.

The CSC provides recommendations to Council. For example, the City of Hayward is expected to receive $197,040 from the Energy Efficiency & Conservation Block Grant program. The funds must be used on a project that reduces carbon emissions, improves energy efficiency, or reduces energy use. The CSC has identified several potential projects for consideration, including landfill diversion; planting 1,000 trees; and increased public transportation.

Sustainability is the practice of using natural resources wisely to support present and future generations. The CSC stewards a Climate Action Plan designed to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and put the city on the path to carbon neutrality. Hayward's Environmental Services Division drafted the plan and provides direction to city staff for plan implementation. Many City of Hayward Departments, including Economic Development; Housing; Utilities; and Transportation, work collaboratively to realize the plan's numerous strategies.

The Climate Action Plan includes potential regulations that could help to create a clean and green community for Hayward residents and businesses. Proposed ordinance changes include requirements for zero trash in stormwater by installing trash capture devices. Preventing pollution from entering the storm drain system will benefit Hayward's aquatic ecosystems and improve the health of the San Francisco Bay.

The CSC is also considering amending the Building Code to require all electric new building construction without the use of natural gas, and an ordinance requiring existing single-family home heaters and appliances to become 100% electric. Electrification reduces greenhouse gas emissions, cleaning the air and slowing global warming.

CSC members are working with East Bay Community Energy to install 100 new publicly accessible electric vehicle charging hubs on municipal parking lots and garages. The Committee also works with PG&E to incentivize residential electric vehicle charger installations.

The Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP), which collects data from cities and private companies, has awarded the City of Hayward an "A" rating for environmental sustainability - the highest rating given by the international organization. More information about Hayward's Climate Action Plan and the work of the CSC can be found @ hayward-ca.gov/your-government/council-standing-committees/council-sustainability-committee.

Federal judge blocks key parts of California handgun law

STEFANIE DAZIO ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge on March 20 blocked key provisions of a California law that drastically restricts the sale of new handguns in the state, saying parts of the legislation violate the Second Amendment.

A lawsuit challenging the law was filed last year by the California Rifle & Pistol Association and other gun rights supporters following a landmark 2022 decision from the U.S. Supreme Court that set new standards for evaluating firearm restrictions. The ruling left many laws aimed at regulating and limiting the sale and use of guns - in California and nationwide - at risk of being struck down.

U.S. District Court Judge Cormac Carney, sitting in Santa Ana, wrote on March 20 that California's requirements for new handguns are unconstitutional and cannot be enforced. Because of these restrictions, Carney wrote, no new models of semiautomatic handguns have been approved for sale since 2013 and Californians are forced to buy older and potentially less safe models.

He issued a preliminary injunction to take effect in two weeks, meaning the state would have to stop enforcing the law. The delay gives the state Department of Justice time to appeal. California Attorney General Rob Bonta's office did not immediately return a request for comment.

In California, state law requires new handguns to have three components: A chamber load indicator, which shows whether the gun is loaded; a magazine disconnect mechanism that will stop the gun from firing if the magazine is not properly inserted; and microstamping capability so law enforcement can more easily link spent shell casings to the guns they were fired from.

"No handgun available in the world has all three of these features," the judge wrote. "These regulations are having a devastating impact on Californians' ability to acquire and use new, state-of-the-art handguns."

Older handguns have been grandfathered into what's known as the "roster," or a list of guns that pass a safety test under state law known as the Unsafe Handgun Act.

"Californians have the constitutional right to acquire and use state-of-the-art handguns to protect themselves," he wrote. "They should not be forced to settle for decade-old models of handguns to ensure that they remain safe inside or outside the home." Previous attempts to challenge the state law, filed before last year's Supreme Court ruling, failed.

Chuck Michel, head of the California Rifle & Pistol Association, said the three requirements were "impossible to satisfy."

"For decades this 'roster' law has deprived law-abiding citizens of the right to choose a handgun appropriate for their individual needs," he wrote in a statement Monday. "If we can hold on to this great Second Amendment win, people will be able to choose from among thousands of the latest, greatest, and safest handguns made today."

Only New York also has a similar microstamping requirement, according to gun control group Everytown for Gun Safety. The National Shooting Sports Foundation, the trade association for the firearms industry, hailed the preliminary injunction in a statement on March 20.

"For too long, the Second Amendment has been significantly infringed upon by elected officials who have taken every opportunity to put roadblocks in front of law-abiding citizens seeking to exercise their Second Amendment rights," said Lawrence Keane, the organization's senior vice president. "The order is the first step in what will be a protracted legal battle, but it is a significant win."

City pays $750K after police accused of painting swastika

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mar 20, 2023

The Southern California city of Torrance has paid a man $750,000 after two police officers were accused of spray-painting a swastika inside his car three years ago.

The investigation into that incident led to the discovery of a trove of racist and homophobic text exchanges among police officers in Torrance, home to about 143,000 people south of Los Angeles. The resulting scandal prompted LA County prosecutors to toss dozens of felony cases.

The payout settles a federal lawsuit filed by Kiley Swaine, who discovered the swastika on his car's back seat after he and two other men were arrested on suspicion of mail theft in Jan. 2020, the Los Angeles Times reported Monday. Swaine was later cleared of the mail theft charges.

Two Torrance police officers allegedly spray-painted the swastika, as well as a happy face, on Swain's car seats before having the vehicle towed away, said Swaine's attorney, Jerry Steering.

The officers, who have left the force, each pleaded not guilty and are awaiting trial on conspiracy and vandalism charges.

An investigation by the Times in 2021 found that officers of the Torrance Police Department traded hateful comments via text messages about people of color, particularly Black people, as well as Jews and members of the LGBTQ community.

Other messages spoke about using violence against suspects and lying to investigators about a police shooting.

Newark Unified School District Athletic Director selected as Athletic Director of the Year

SUBMITTED BY
JOSEF HOLPER

Newark Unified School District proudly announces Newark Memorial High School (NMHS) Athletic Director Rachel Kahoalii "Coach K" as 2022-23 Athletic Director of the Year by the California State Athletic Directors Association (CSADA).

Coach K accurately represents the mission of Newark Memorial Athletics by instilling respect, pride and integrity through a team's willingness. Her student-athletes demonstrate commitment, responsibility, and a solid academic work ethic while maintaining the highest level of sportsmanship. Her more significant impact on the community is by far the most admirable. Coach K established the Student-Athlete Advisory Council at Newark Memorial High School and the character development class "Champions of Character." The program provides training to instill values that build character so students, coaches and parents know, do and value the right thing on and off the field. Furthermore, Coach K has also added a spotlight ceremony for college-bound student-athletes and award recognition for scholar-athletes.

"I was always impressed with the positive behavior of our student-athletes and the leaders they became on campus. As influential peers, they encourage others to do the right thing," said Olivia Rangel, former Principal of NMHS. "Many were scholar-athletes who also held multiple responsibilities on site, such as ASB or club leaders. Coach K set this high standard and expectation by teaching them how to uphold the standard of a champion."

Furthermore, Coach K's impact on the students and families in our Newark community is remarkable. She partnered with a local restaurant during the pandemic to provide weekly dinners to needy families. Coaches and athletes came out to package and distribute meals to support families. She also led food distribution for holidays, gift-giving for Christmas and organized support when families were in need due to loss or financial burden.

"Rachel Kahoalii develops, not just strong student-athletes, but true champions of character. Every day, she models the commitment, teamwork, integrity and skills required to be successful in school and life," said Nicole Pierce, Assistant to the Superintendent of Newark Unified School District.

"I am honored to be selected as the State Athletic Director of the Year. This award reflects the incredible work of our coaches, student-athletes and community volunteers," said Rachel Kahoalii. "It gives me great pride to be the face of this award that honors the work of so many."

Kahoalii will be honored with an award ceremony at the 2023 CSADA Conference in Santa Clara.

Local athlete's road to D1 soccer

BY ERIC DONATO

Fremont high school junior, Jenna McDonnell, from American High School and her family have much to look forward to. Jenna has accepted a collegiate sports scholarship and will join the Utah Tech soccer roster January 2024; an NCAA Division I team. Her road to becoming a soccer athlete playing at an elite collegiate division level has been paved with diligent hard work, family support, sacrifice and, most importantly, a true passion for soccer.

I sat in a cafe to interview Jenna and her parents, Heather and Tom. As Jenna described her soccer life, she exuded confidence and the competitive spirit that college sports teams thrive on. As Jenna spoke, her parents beamed with pride and affection.

Tom dished out the genesis, "Part of our parenting style is sports. If your kids are busy with sports, they're not busy with other things." Jenna did not start out playing soccer, but was exposed early to many other sports starting at five years old. Her dad added, "We started them early and wanted them to try everything. We don't want to pigeonhole them." Jenna's sports discovery in her early years led to her excelling in baseball and soccer. She pointed out, "Soccer is year-round where baseball wasn't. So, I would get really good at soccer and then stop for half a year, and I'd lose everything." At around eleven, Jenna decided to focus on soccer.

She played her early years in local soccer clubs in Fremont and Newark. Eventually, Jenna and her family realized that as good as the Newark team was, as a promising competitive athlete, Jenna required exposure outside the Tri-City to advance her playing skills. Acknowledging the limitations of what a small club can offer, the Newark club helped Jenna and other teammates by arranging an opportunity to play with a higher-level club in the South Bay. Tom said, "They contacted a bigger club, De Anza Force." De Anza Force Soccer Club is part of the US Soccer Development Academy, which provided Jenna with the foundational training needed to advance her soccer skills to even more competitive levels.

With Jenna's involvement with De Anza Force Soccer Club, she was coached by a former US Women's national team player and two-time World Cup veteran superstar, Brandi Chastain. Reflecting on her development, Jenna noted, "Brandi's a very technical coach. She taught me how to dribble, curve the ball, and how to run a play. A lot of these technical skills that you can only learn from a higher level." Equally important, Jenna added, "[She even taught me] how to carry yourself as a person."

The exposure to playing with the De Anza Force was also a humbling. Jenna reflected, "It's a lot to overcome when you first come, especially if you're coming from a team where you played every minute of every game. Now you're coming to a new team where you're not." It was a reality that Jenna had to adapt to.

Her strength in the midfield position evolved from her early playing days as a center-back. She noted "I always had the mentality that the defense wins games. If they can't score, they can't win." She added, "I now really enjoy playing midfield." Jenna admits it's a fun position that plays to her strengths, "I can make things happen. I'm everywhere and I get the ball so much more, it's just more like action-packed."

Soon to be college-bound, next on the family's soccer agenda was to bring recruiting attention to her soccer capabilities. Tom explained, "You kind of have to get yourself onto the colleges' radars. And that's done through sending emails, showcases, camps, things like that." Heather chimed, "We blasted emails to Division I colleges. Have you watched [Jenna] play? Here's her schedule." Heather further added "We also sent highlight videos, that's a big part of it."

Among many college team suitors, Jenna decided on Utah Tech after a school visit along with interactions with the team and staff. When asked about choosing Utah Tech, Jenna lit up and explained, "The coach, especially the team, reminds me a lot of the team I'm in right now where it's more like a family." She added, "A huge thing that stuck with me was that there are two types of coaching. One is where you're urging the players to compete against each other. The other one is where players are helping each other to get better. And that's how I feel Utah Tech is; everyone's trying to elevate each other."

On her Division I recruitment, her current Pleasanton Rage coach Walter Pratte remarked, "Not surprised at all. I mean, we knew that it would come. I'm happy for her that it came this fast, it was a matter of time because again, what I saw was a very talented player."

As for the future, Jenna would like to pursue a career as a teacher and someday hopes to coach soccer. Jenna takes particular pride in the legacy that many of her family members are educators, including her mom Heather who teaches elementary school in Fremont. The apple doesn't fall far from the tree in more ways. I first picked up this story when I met her mom Heather playing soccer with her local Fremont adult team.

Track standout breaks 48-year-old record

SUBMITTED BY CHABOT COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Muhammed Ahmed put his stamp in the Chabot College record books in his track 5k debut. Ahmed broke the record at Occidental College March 11, with a time of 14:30.19. The 48-year-old record was held by Chabot and Cal State Hayward legend Ted Quintana (14:30.44).

Ahmed, a Newark Memorial High School alum, sets his sights on significantly surpassing the college's 10k record at the Mike Fanelli Invitational on March 30 to April 1 at San Francisco State.

The Gladiator's sent a split squad to what was supposed to be sunny Southern California this past weekend. Sprints and hurdles spent the day at the Ben Brown Invitational hosted by CSU Fullerton. In what has been an extremely cold and wet start of the season, many seasonal best marks were achieved.

On the men's side, the duo of Zion Mayo and Marcell Anderson dipped under 11 seconds in the 100-meter. Mayo had a time of 10.86 and Anderson at 10.97. Both would come back with strong 200-meter performances, Mayo (21.99) and Anderson (22.23). On the women's side, freshman pair Egypt Hughes and Aniya Shields ran 12.72 and 12.75 for the 100.

Jumpers, vaulters and distance attended the Ben Brown Invitational. Rowen Connelly achieved a 12 second personal best in the 1,500 of 4:27. Freshman Tad Kawabata ran 4:05.71 over that same distance. Ariana Chavez and Mason Romant both ran seasonal bests in the 800, Chavez with a time of 2:22.38 and Romant 1:59.04. The evening would be capped off with some blazing times over the 5,000-meter distance. Logan Phulps posted a time of 16:20 and Daniel Trampe with a State A standard of 15:16.

A panel of judges selected photographs worthy of being displayed in the show. Quality, creativity, originality and the photographer's skill played an important role in the selection. This year well over 200 photographs, which is the highest number of entries ever for the exhibit, were submitted, and around 120 of them made into the show. Rajeev Shankar, Chairperson of the exhibit said, “We are organizing this event as part of California Arts, Culture and Creativity month and it is heartening to see so many people participating, including many first-time contestants. It is truly great to see art is alive and well in Fremont.”

This is a well-known and popular event in the local community. The exhibit showcases the original photographs by Fremont residents, students, employees of Fremont businesses and members of FCAC or Fremont Photographic Society. There is both an open category and a separate category for students under 25 with separate prizes. Rajeev Shankar pointed out that, “This year some very creative images, especially from students, have been submitted. A lot of nature photographs, especially those of hummingbirds and dragonflies can be seen in the show.”

Judges selected the winning photos in the “Open” and “Student” categories. In addition, a few other awards will be given. Visitors at the opening night reception will vote to select the winner of the People's Choice Award. The Alvin Dockter Nature Photography Award will be selected by the jury, and the President's Award will be selected by Julie Gilson. The winning photographs, along with the photographer's name and information about the photo will be displayed on the FCAC website.

Opening night reception will provide the guests an opportunity to talk to the photographers and mingle with community members. Visitors can also buy the prints that are available for sale, as indicated by a title card. A master list will also be kept at the library reference desk of items available for purchase and their prices. Interested visitors are given the photographer's contact information. Sales are between the photographer and buyer. FCAC and the library are not parties to any sales. Any print sold will remain in the exhibit until the final day, Saturday, May 6. Participants can pick up prints after the show on May 6 at the library and at the FCAC building after Sunday, May 7.

Hayward Baseball falls to Pittsburg

BY ANDREW JOSEPH

The Hayward Farmers lost to the Pittsburg Pirates 8-0, Saturday, March 25 at home in a non-league game. This loss marks Hayward's fifth straight loss falling to 0-8-1. They have yet to play a Western Alameda County – Shoreline League (WACC) opponent which gives them hope of still being able to win the league.

“We've had a tough start so far, so the mindset for today was to try to get the wheels back on the wagon,” said Hayward head coach Cesar Brown. “We're moving into a good stretch of our season getting into league play and the expectation is to keep battling to hopefully win some league games.”

Pittsburg began the first inning with a triple and later scored one run to go up

1-0. Hayward had two ground outs at first base and one strike out to finish the first inning. The Farmers' starting pitcher, Fernando Ramos, pitched well in the second inning, denying any runs to be scored, but Hayward's offense was unable to get on base. “My mindset for today was to focus on throwing a strike on my first pitch,” said Ramos. “Pittsburg's hitters were aggressive, so I had to make sure not to pitch down the middle.”

Vic Valle had a base hit for the Pirates to start the third inning, later stole second base during a pitch, and also stole third base after a pass ball while Halen Guerrero was at the plate. Guerrero hit a triple which allowed Valle to score with no outs to give Pittsburg a 2-0 lead. Aaron Del Real then hit a double to drive Guerrero home to score with only one out to go up 3-0. Hayward was able to get on base in the third inning when Ryland Bueno was walked to first base, but was unable to score as the Farmers struck out.

Pittsburg added to their lead in the fourth inning when Devin Simonton hit a deep solo home run past center field to go up 4-0. Hayward's Jeremiah Caldwell got on base with a ground ball to left field and then later stole second base. Jacob Lewis then hit a single to right field to put Caldwell in scoring position at third base, but he was later tagged out to end the inning.

Pittsburg scored again in the fifth inning as Octavio Lopez hit a sacrifice ball driving Guerrero in to score from third base giving them a 5-0 lead. Pirates' Josh Painter hit a deep left field double in the sixth inning and later was drove in to score to go up 6-0. Simonton then had a single to left field and Antonio Moreira hit a double leaving two on base with only one out. Guerrero then stepped to the plate and drove in both runners giving Pittsburg an 8-0 advantage. “They were very quick with everything they did and they are a hardworking team,” said closing pitcher Caldwell. “We have to build and learn from this game.”

Hayward's Jakey Smith and Nate Cordoba both hit singles in the sixth inning, but they were unable to score. The Farmers played good defense the remainder of the game and Caldwell didn't allow any runs, though they were unable to drive in any runs on offense to get on the board.

“Their first pitcher was pretty dynamic, but we put the ball in play against him which is an improvement for us over the last few games which I see as a positive from today,” said coach Brown. “People looking at our record might say we can't get it done, but I'm still very optimistic about our league play.”

The Farmers still have 15 games left in the season. With the rest of the teams in their league still winless, Hayward can move into first place in the WACC Shoreline and North Coast Section (NCS) Division 3 with a win in their next game against Mt. Eden Tuesday, March 28 to turn their season around.
