Hop, hop, hop to Downtown Hayward for literary showcase

BY STEPHANIE GERTSCH

On Saturday, April 27, Hayward will hold its third annual "Lit Hop," an event to introduce this year's Hayward Poet Laureate and celebrate the creativity and literary talent of Hayward and Bay Area writers.

The event begins at 2 p.m. with a musical performance at Heritage Plaza, courtesy of the 30-piece East Bay Symphonic Band. At 2:45 p.m., the event will transition into its literary portion with an announcement of Hayward's 2024 Poet Laureate and Youth Poet Laureate, by Hayward Mayor Mark Salinas and a representative from State Senator Aisha Wahab's office. The two poet laureates will give a poetry reading.

The "hop" portion of the event starts at 4 p.m. Members of 13 local writers' groups will be reading their work at eight historic and much-loved venues concentrated in downtown Hayward, mostly on

B Street. (Everything is a five- to 10-minute walk from Hayward BART station for those who prefer not to drive.) A full schedule is posted on the Hayward Lit Hop website (<https://haywardlithop.com/>), but a few groups include the Hayward Peer Writers, AfroSurreal Writers Workshop of Oakland, Women Who Submit Lit, and Bay Area Queer Writers—as well as students from Cal State East Bay, and Chabot College students who will do a bilingual English and Spanish reading.

Dr. Maria Ochoa, who will be reading with Women Who Submit Lit, says, "My work as a writer is primarily in creative non-fiction and fiction. Although I've been known to drop a line or two of poetry. I'll be reading from my creative non-fiction writing that reflects my experiences as a Chicana elder. The writing is a combination of

Washington Hospital Honors Volunteers for Their Service

Washington Hospital will honor its adult volunteers on Friday, April 26, at a special luncheon celebration held during National Volunteer Week.

“In addition to volunteers from our Service League, which has supported Washington Hospital and its health care program for the past 69 years, we will recognize volunteers from Spiritual Care, Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation, and the Washington Hospital Employee Association,” says Director of Volunteer Services Evangeline Imana-Iyemura.

“Our volunteers are the heart and soul of Washington Hospital, breathing life and comfort into what are often stressful situations for people who require hospitalization or other services,” she notes, “Volunteers support the Hospital in many ways. They provide funds through fundraising, make baby bonnets for newborn patients, and have a presence in the lobby, gift shop, nursing units, and surgical waiting areas. The WOOF canine therapy teams bring their four-legged volunteers to visit patients and staff. The Spiritual Care team ensures that patients’ spiritual wishes are attended to in a way that exemplifies Washington Hospital’s Patient First Ethic.”

The April 26 luncheon will feature comments by Washington Hospital CEO, Kimberly Hartz; President of the Washington Township Health Care District Board of Directors, Jacob Eapen, MD; and Chief of the Medical Staff, Mark Saleh, MD. Presentations will also include an update on Washington’s progress to become a trauma center.

Imana-Iyemura shares that as of the end of February 2024, the Service League had 549 active volunteers. “In 2023, 532 Service League volunteers logged a total of nearly 25,000 hours and through fundraising efforts, donated $20,000 to the Healthcare System.” She continues, “We are always working to bring new adult volunteers and college students into the program and welcome new applicants. We guarantee that our volunteers have a great time while contributing their time and talent.”

While Washington Hospital didn’t open until 1958, volunteer efforts began three years earlier. In 1955, a group of civic-minded local women met to determine how they could help bring a community hospital to Washington Township. By 1958, those volunteers had raised $15,000 for that effort. Through the years, volunteers have logged more than 2,155,940 hours. In addition to that first $15,000 contribution, through their fundraising efforts, Service League volunteers have donated more than $2.5 million to Washington Hospital and approximately $360,000 in scholarship funds for students pursuing health-related careers.

Some of the many ways volunteers contribute to Washington Hospital include:

- Staff the lobby desks at Washington Hospital and Washington West.
- Manage the gift shop.
- Act as surgery liaison to keep friends and families updated on patients’ status.
- Provide support to patients, families and friends in the Emergency and Critical Care Departments, as well as offering information about visitor policies.
- Volunteer in the Birthing Center, providing treats for new moms.
- Cuddle newborns in the Special Care Nursery

- Visit patients and staff members as members of the WOOF Canine Therapy program.
- Offer coaching for physical therapy patients in the Institute for Joint Restoration and Research.
- Make gifts and comfort items for newborns and Infusion Center patients as part of the Puppets/Hankies/Quilting Group.
- Play the piano in the lobby for patients and visitors.
- Assist with patient appointments and educational classes in the Women’s Center.
- Collaborate with Spiritual Care Team to sit with comfort-care patients with the No One Dies Alone program.
- Assist with special projects and events, including Health & Wellness seminars, health screenings, and community events such as Think Pink and the city of Fremont’s Concert in the Park Series.

Imana-Iyemura joined the staff at Washington Hospital in November 2018 partly because of her own experience with the Service League volunteers’ efforts. “Both of my children were born at Washington Hospital, and they received baby bonnets made out of hankies by the volunteers,” she recalls. “I still have those bonnets and have saved them for my children. It’s an honor to be part of this community.”

For more information on joining the Service League at Washington Hospital, please contact Imana-Iyemura at 510.818.5466 or by email at Evangeline_Imana-Iyemura@whhs.com.

One of the Service League’s main fundraising events, the Masquerade $5 Jewelry and Accessories sale, is scheduled for Monday, April 29, Tuesday, April 30, and Wednesday, May 1, from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium in the Washington West building at 2500 Mowry Ave. in Fremont.

Free Screenings Help "SPOT" Skin Cancers

Former Melanoma Patient Urges Residents to Attend May 11 Event

If Johan F. of the Bay Area has one regret, it's that he didn't go to Washington Hospital's free SPOT Skin Cancer Screening Program sooner. The 51-year-old was busy with work, travel, family, and life, and put off seeing a dermatologist last summer. To make matters more complicated, he had trouble getting in to see a dermatologist because appointments were limited.

When he couldn't readily get an appointment, he researched skin cancer screening locations online, and Washington Hospital's SPOT Skin Cancer Screening popped up, in association with the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD). He was diagnosed at the screening with a spot on his chest that needed further evaluation, and urged to see a dermatologist immediately. A biopsy confirmed that the suspicious spot was a melanoma, the most serious type of skin cancer. He had it surgically removed a week later, and is doing well.

Screening Saves Lives

"Be persistent about getting yourself checked," he urges. "These things can grow so quickly." Johan, who describes himself as "not a beach guy," says he is cautious about the sun, and always uses SPF 50 sunscreen when he hikes. His 2022 screening found nothing, so when the melanoma was diagnosed last year, he was surprised and frightened. "I had that spot a long time," he notes.

"It's beautiful that Washington Hospital offers this free screening," he says. After his melanoma was removed, to be diligent about the possibility of cancer spreading, Johan had a full-body scan to check for internal signs of disease.

Happily, he was cleared, but required treatment for two other less serious skin cancer spots.

Screening Set for May 11

The next Hospital screening, which is supported by the ADA, will be offered May 11, 10 a.m. to noon, at the Nakamura Clinic, 33077 Alvarado-Niles Road, Union City.

Clinicians doing the screenings are affiliated with the Fremont Center for Dermatology, including dermatologist Sunil Dhawan, MD, a member of the AAD. The center is located at 2557 Mowry Ave., Fremont.

Appointments are available for the May 11 screening, by calling 510.818.7009. Parking is free, and the Union City clinic is located next to an AC Transit bus stop.

"At our SPOT Skin Cancer event last April, we saw 24 patients," says Washington Hospital Community Outreach Manager Kayla Gupta, who arranges screening events.

Gupta notes that the clinicians doing the free screenings will include Dr. Dhawan, Shurong Chang, MD; Lindsay Daley, PA; Brittany West, PA; Phuong Nguyen, PA; Olivia Martinez, NP; and Tiffany Galarsa, MA. Screenings will take place in private exam rooms, and participants can request a medical chaperone to be present during the exam.

Full Body and Spot Checks Offered

Participants can request a full-body check or have the practitioner examine specific areas of concern. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, changes in skin are the most common signs of skin cancer. Changes could include a new skin growth, a sore that doesn't heal, or a change in a mole.

Every three years, Washington Hospital Healthcare System (WHHS) conducts a comprehensive community health needs assessment (CHNA) to identify critical health issues in the local community. The CHNA enables Washington Hospital and WTMF to target services and education programs to improve the health of people in the community. "One issue identified in our CHNA is the importance of prevention and early detection of various types of cancer, including skin cancer," Gupta explains. "Our SPOT Skin Cancer events are one response to that need. We consider providing quality health care services to our community a matter of great importance."

Portraiture—Beyond Pure Representation

SUBMITTED BY
LINA MELKONIAN

The Fremont Art Association (FAA) is delighted to have Sandra Smith-Dugan as the guest artist at its virtual General Meeting and Art Demo on Wednesday, May 1, at 1 p.m.

Smith-Dugan is an accomplished painter known for her expressive seascapes, landscapes, and figurative work. In her demo, "Portraiture—Beyond Pure Representation," Smith-Dugan will share her process and approach to gouache portraiture. Using a live model, she'll show the different phases of development as she evaluates and edits her work in creating an emotive portrait.

Smith-Dugan was born into a creative family. Her mother, an accomplished artist, held a Bachelor of Fine Arts in painting; and her father was active in the local theater. While it may be that Smith-Dugan was destined to become an artist, it is her strong work ethic, curiosity and dedication to lifelong learning that has led up to her successful art practice. She holds a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in painting and drawing from San Jose State University and has studied at the San Francisco Art Institute, UC Santa Cruz, and various professional workshops.

Smith-Dugan's core artistic approach is rooted in her fascination with the intrinsic character of her subjects be they depictions of nature, urban structures, or the human figure. Her landscapes possess a contemplative quality affirming that she takes the time to see and experience nature in recreating the sublime through her unique lens. Her figurative work exhibits her commitment to honestly capture and express the essence of her subjects.

Beautiful colors, lines, brushstrokes, and compositions informed by the underlying mood, energy and feeling of the places and people Smith-Dugan chooses as subjects, define her body of work.

Smith-Dugan and her work have been featured in numerous solo and group shows and publications. She is currently a member of California Art Club, American Impressionist Society, Laguna Plein Air Painters Association, and Los Gatos Art Association.

National Help a Horse Day: April 26, 2024

SUBMITTED BY
OHLONE HUMANE SOCIETY
PAINTING BY CHERRYL PAPE

The government's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) is responsible for overseeing the wild range lands left in America. On some of those 26.9 million acres of public lands across 10 Western states live wild horses and burros. As great as this sounds for the horses and burros to run free and graze to assist in shrub control, the government has to oversee the health and population of these native animals.

Problems are similar to cities with overpopulation of community cats. To manage the lands and herds, the government started the Wild Horse and Burro program that not only cares for the animals but tries to match animals to appropriate individuals, sanctuaries and rescues to purchase or adopt them. In 2023, the BLM program placed over 8,000 horses and burros into new living quarters, homes or businesses. The BLM has an educational program with an activity book for children.

Park District Set to Receive $1.38 Million in Federal Funds for Wildfire Mitigation Work in the East Bay

SUBMITTED BY JEN VANYA

The East Bay Regional Park District will receive $1,380,000 in federal funding secured by U.S. Representative Eric Swalwell (D-CA14) for wildfire mitigation and safe, resilient forest work. On Saturday, March 23, 2024, President Biden signed bipartisan funding legislation, which included the funding request for East Bay Regional Park District's wildfire mitigation work.

"The federal funds secured by Representative Swalwell will reduce wildfire risks by removing hazardous vegetation from the East Bay hills," said Park District Board President Elizabeth Echols. "The Park District Board and staff are grateful to Representative Swalwell for his leadership and contributions toward improving wildfire safety."

The new funding will help thin and remove vegetation, specifically dead and dying trees in areas of Anthony Chabot Regional Park. In the fall of 2020, while conducting ongoing vegetation management work, Park District staff noticed significant tree die-off in its parks. Further investigation identified over 1,500 acres of dead and dying trees within Regional Parks, mostly eucalyptus, but also bay and pine.

"I was proud to secure nearly $1.4 million in Community Project Funding for the East Bay Regional Park District," said Congressman Eric Swalwell (CA-14). "The Park District's leadership in vegetation management and wildfire mitigation projects reduce the ongoing risk of catastrophic wildfire, keeping our homes safe throughout the East Bay and California."

Wildfire safety is one of the Park District's top priorities. Year-round efforts include monitoring fire danger and weather, maintaining professionally trained full-time and on-call firefighters, maintaining specialized wildland firefighting equipment, and removing flammable vegetation to reduce wildfire risks.

"We thank Representative Swalwell for his support and leadership in prioritizing the region's wildfire mitigation work," said Park District General Manager Sabrina Landreth. "This funding will allow the Park District to continue its interagency collaborative work at the local, state, and federal level."

The funding will help reduce the risk of a catastrophic wildfire and create fire-resilient landscapes, which also lessen ongoing mitigation and maintenance costs. The Park District's vegetation management plan includes providing valuable habitat for threatened plants and wildlife such as the pallid manzanita, monarch butterfly, and Alameda whipsnake.

The Park District continues to work with its federal, state, and regional partners to secure additional funding for the project.

Writing a short story versus writing a novel

SUBMITTED BY
NANCY GUARNERA

Whether you choose to write a short story or a novel, there are obviously some stylistic choices writers have to make—length, for one. However, what are the not so obvious choices that make a short story yearn to be a novel and vice-versa? Fiction writer and creative writing teacher, Irene Zabytko will discuss some stylistic techniques for developing short stories and ways to grow them into novels.

Irene Zabytko is a writer, filmmaker, and teacher. She completed her 2016-2017 tenure as a Fulbright U.S. Scholar Award in Ukraine where she was doing research on her next novel The Riddle of my Existence, based on the life of the 19th century Ukrainian writer, Nikolai Gogol.

Zabytko's first book, The Sky Unwashed (Algonquin Books, 2000), is a novel about Chernobyl and the evacuees who returned to their irradiated villages. It was a Barnes & Noble Discover Great New Writers Book, A Book Sense '76 Pick Selection, and a New England Booksellers Association Discovery title. The e-book version was Number One on Amazon.com and appeared on "The New York Times Bestseller E-Books List."

She was the writer, co-director (with Peter Mychalcewycz), and producer for the award-winning documentary film short, "EPIPHANY AT CHORNOBYL," loosely based on her novel. It screened at colleges, film festivals, with a worldwide stream at the 2016 Culture Unplugged Film Festival.

Zabytko's second book, the short story collection When Luba Leaves Home (Algonquin Books, 2003) is based on the Ukrainian community in her Chicago neighborhood. One of the stories, "Obligation," won the PEN Syndicated Fiction Award, and was read on National Public Radio's "The Sound of Writing."

Her latest book is The Days Of Miracle And Wonder: Stories, a short story collection set in post-Soviet Ukraine. (A revised and agent-edition is forthcoming). She is also the author of The Fiction Prescription: How To Write And Improve Your Fiction Like The Great Literary Masters, a non-fiction collection of her lectures on writing literary fiction.

Applications for Alameda County Youth Poet Laureate Open For 2024-2025 Term

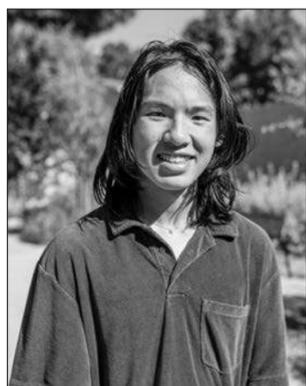

BY NANKI KAUR

Poetry has always found a way to connect thought with emotion, discussing a variety of subjects through deliberate and graceful phrasing of words. Alameda County has developed a youth-centered program to spotlight poetry's potential to make a difference in our communities while fostering a fondness for language among younger generations.

The Alameda County Library Foundation has opened applications in search of the next Youth Poet Laureate for the 2024-2025 term. This is a unique opportunity for young poets to utilize their writing talents to voice messages of "civic engagement, social justice, cultural awareness, and literary excellence" throughout the community.

The position of Youth Poet Laureate (YPL) entails a responsibility much more profound than simply spreading a love for literature. The YPL forges a bridge between the community through the power of poetry, using their platform to speak at public events, voice their values and opinions, and share their experiences and writing processes during their one-year term.

Brian Guan, Alameda County YPL for the 2023-2024 term, shared that the role offered him opportunities he would not have been able to experience otherwise. "Being the Youth Poet Laureate has allowed me to delve deeper into my own kinship with poetry. It's a role that incorporates poetry and public speaking but also lets you take the initiative to plan your own projects that you want to do within the role."

Brian Guan

During his term, Guan planned and hosted a college admissions workshop with a panel of collegiate-level poets at the Albany Library, something he says he was able to do with the resources and leadership opportunities provided by the Foundation.

Guan was also able to perform his poetry and speak at multiple events, including at the Ashland Youth Center, allowing him a new perspective into the "Bay Area gems" he would not normally have had the opportunity to visit. "Getting to engage with different communities in the different spaces they hold, has given me a new perspective in what we offer to youth and what the value of public facilities really are."

Along with the opportunity to explore their own interests via projects and initiatives that can be taken as the YPL, the role also allows poets to make connections with youth from around the Bay Area and make a direct impact on their perception of not only literature but also themselves. "More than anything, this position has taught me to value my own voice," Guan noted. "I was able to recognize my duty to spread that value to others, by encouraging elementary students to understand that their voices matter."

He encourages all teens and young creatives with a passion for poetry, learning about the "intricacies of crafting language," and social justice to apply. "YPL as much as it is a title, as much as an honor as it is, it is also an opportunity to create change and spotlight issues within your community. That's something I would try to remember as an applicant."

His advice to prospective applicants is to "embrace that there's nothing to lose. There are wonderful platforms you will be able to get access to so you can voice your values and concerns that you wouldn't otherwise."

Applications are due April 30th. More details can be found on the Alameda County Library website: aclibrary.org/youth-poet/

UNION CITY BIKE PARK ADVOCATES

A new BMX Bike Park may be in the works for Union City. Plans for the exciting recreation venue were presented at the April 9 Union City Council meeting by Bob Singer, on behalf of Union City Bike Park Advocates.

The presentation outlined a proposal to convert a three-acre section of the Alameda Creek Regional Trail in Union City into a modern bike park. The proposal includes plans for a dirt "jumpline" racing track; an asphalt course with berms, hills and drop-ins; and toddler tracks with obstacles for improving balance and coordination. Plans are for the park to be free and open to the public.

The site for the bike park is the Alameda Creek Regional Trail entrance at Union City Boulevard and Eastin Drive in Union City. This small park is a popular destination for dog walkers. It features a four-mile flat trail along the north shore of Alameda Creek that leads to an impressive panoramic view of the bay. Hikers may also access the Alameda Creek trail eastward to Quarry Lakes and Niles Canyon.

Constructed in 1973, this East Bay Regional Park District property was designated as the Alameda County Stables. Adjacent to the parking lot and equestrian staging are several acres of cleared land with the remains of a stable facility. Horseback riders can still occasionally be seen using the park.

Union City Bike Park Advocates (UCBPA) is a 501(c)(3) non-profit with a simple vision:

- Build and maintain a multi-use bike park in Union City
- Provide an open space for multi-generational outdoor activity
- Offer riding skills and safety programs
- Offer scholarships to BMX riders

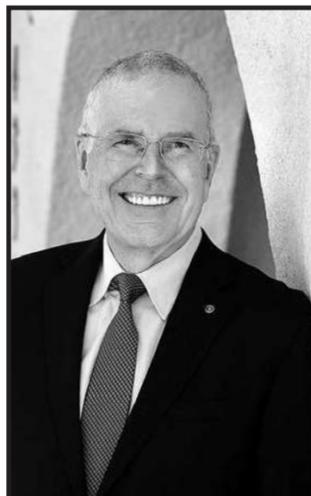

UCBPA has coordinated two independent site assessments; facilitated discussions with potential corporate sponsors and brought the idea to the attention of County, City, and Park District leaders.

During the February 8 meeting of the East Bay Regional Park District, the Board was open to a Memorandum of Understanding or lease agreement regarding the park's potential. The Union City Parks & Recreation Commission gave a unanimous statement of general support at its February 14 meeting.

Alameda County District 2 Supervisor Elisa Marquez committed to leveraging resources to seeing this "important community project" move forward. This includes identifying county funds to support a park feasibility study.

Next steps for moving the bike park forward are to conduct a formal feasibility study and solicit community input. The community led Union City Bike Park Advocates has asked the Union City Council for a statement of support and a commitment to taking over leadership of the project.

Awareness Can Bring Change

SUBMITTED BY ANDREA SCHACTER

"Not everything that is faced can be changed, but nothing can be changed until it is faced."
-James Baldwin

This simple yet powerful quotation from one of America's most famous writers reminds us that becoming aware of a situation is the first step to bringing about change.

The League of Women Voters, Fremont-Newark-Union City (LWVFNUC) invites the entire community to become aware of the issues and problems at the Alameda County Jail (also known as Santa Rita Jail) in Dublin.

Nearly 70 people have died while incarcerated at the Santa Rita Jail in the past 10 years. In November of 2021, Maurice Monk, a 45-year-old Oakland man, was left for dead on his bunk with stacks of uneaten food and medications scattered on his cell floor, along with a puddle of urine. No one checked on him for at least 3 days.

Alameda County has paid out millions of dollars in lawsuits related to these deaths. Whether or not one has a personal connection to the Jail, we should all be concerned about what is going on at this government agency that acts in our name. Meet the KTVU investigative journalist who has been covering these stories for 10 years, learn about California Assembly Bill 1185, and hear from the dedicated advocates who are lobbying for change and accountability.

This panel discussion will include the following individuals:

- Lisa Fernandez, KTVU Journalist
- Anne Janks, Coalition for Police Accountability
- Norma Nelson, California LWV Criminal Justice Interest Group
- Judy Zlatnik, Interfaith Coalition for Justice In Our Jails
- Syeda Inamdar (Moderator) Alameda County Sheriff Oversight Coalition

Please plan to attend this FREE community awareness event.

Each School District will determine which students are awarded the scholarships and how much the scholarships will be for, but the sustainable funding will support many eligible students well into the future. Scholarships can be utilized for continuing education at trade schools, community colleges, and universities.

Battle of Lexington

On April 18, 1775—the eve of the start of the Revolutionary War—the Redcoats uncovered a stockpile of Patriot artillery in Concord. They dispatched troops to scoop up the cache, and arrest the leaders, Samuel Adams, and John Hancock.

History.com says that “by 1775, tensions between the American colonies and the British government had approached the breaking point, especially in Massachusetts, where Patriot leaders formed a shadow revolutionary government and trained militias to prepare for armed conflict with the British troops occupying Boston. In the spring of 1775, General Thomas Gage, the British governor of Massachusetts, received instructions from Great Britain to seize all stores of weapons and gunpowder accessible to the American insurgents. On April 18, he ordered British troops to march against Concord and Lexington.”

Thomas Edison created the Kinetoscope in 1891, but Grey and Otway Latham, their father, Woodville, and Edison Laboratory employee, W.K.L. Dickson, conceived 1895's Panopticon—the first movie projector in America.

According to History.com, “Although motion pictures had been shown in the United States for several years using Thomas Edison's Kinetoscope, the films could only be viewed one at a time in a peep-show box, not projected to a large audience. Brothers Grey and Otway Latham, the founders of a company that produced and exhibited films of prize fights using the Kinetoscope, called on their father, Woodville, and W.K.L. Dickson, an assistant in the Edison Laboratory, to help them develop a device that would project life-sized images onto a screen in order to attract larger audiences.”

First African American drafted to the NBA

In 1891, basketball was “discovered” by graduate student, James Naismith, at the YMCA Training School in Springfield, Massachusetts; fifty-nine years later, on April 25, 1950, an African American was picked to participate in the big leagues.

According to History.com, the Boston Celtics made “Chuck Cooper, an All-American forward from Duquesne University, the first African American to be picked in an NBA draft ... With [that] Cooper broke the NBA's color barrier and [changed] the league for the better ... The pick was met with skepticism by some in the NBA, including some of the Celtics' owners. But Celtics founder and original owner Walter Brown famously said that Cooper could be ‘striped, plaid or polka dot ... All I know is the kid can play basketball, and we want him on the Boston Celtics’.”

Trinie Dalton, of CSU East Bay Creative Writing team, says, "Participating in Lit Hop gives our students a fun, meaningful opportunity to practice literary citizenship, to discover links between college education and our world at large, and to find new avenues for imagining creative space."

Readers this year include editors from the school's literary magazine Occam's Razor, which has run for over forty years.

Venues provide a bit of Hayward culture to complement the readings. Of course, Books on

The event concludes with an after party at Odd Fellows Lodge with live background music, and free food from Golden Safari, Marley's Treats, and Vypasseti Cake Pops. (The Women's National Book Association, also reading at the Lit Hop, helped with the food budget.)

Music For Minors II creates and celebrates!

SUBMITTED BY CAROL ZILLI

Music for Minors II (MFMI) since its inception in 1988, has created and celebrated music in the schools and on professional stages throughout each school year, and April is no exception! MFMI will be participating at the "Fremont Creates Finale" on Saturday April 27th at the City Event Center on Capitol Avenue by having a homemade instrument-making booth in the Center and our youngest musical ambassador and YouTube Star, Bella Dong, along with MFMI troubadour, Barry Walter, guitarist and vocalist, will offer their musical skills on the outdoor stage.

The very next day, April 28th, MFMI is sponsoring our annual, exciting Children's Showcase, "United We Sing," at the Castro Valley Center for the Performing Arts at 3 p.m. We welcome the community to experience the joyful voices of over 200 children from FUSD and NUSD schools in grades TK to 4th grade before an audience of 500! MFMI volunteer music Docents have prepared their students to perform during their weekly MFMI classroom lessons.

For tickets visit www.musicforminors2.org/showcases.

MFMI will also feature our youngest music Docent, Minna Fu, an incredible award-winning pianist, and our ever-popular 60-member MFMI Kids Choir directed by former Docent and professional musician, Mrs. Lydia Concepcion. Guest MC will be the talented and renowned Brandon T. Sass of Fremont.

The MFMI Kids Choir numbering 61 members will also provide wonderful community entertainment at their annual free "Sing for Spring" Concert on May 10th at Niles School in Fremont. Look for another standing ovation event as these children sing their hearts out with signing and choreography.

Winners of our third annual MFMI's Got Talent (MGT) contest will be announced at the Showcase. MFMI received 100 entries this year from children in FUSD and NUSD who submitted their musical talent in 2 min. videos that are shared on our website for the popular vote straw poll which ended on April 20th. Excitement is in the air as children await the results.

Thank YOU to some of our Showcase sponsors and donors:

Morris Memorial Foundation, 4 Imprint, San Jose Barracudas, and Docent Minna Fu. We appreciate the generosity of this support in this special fundraiser that enables the students to unite and shine in song. Proceeds benefit the support of our dedicated and wonderful volunteer music Docents who share the joy of music each week with children.

MFMI continues to create, motivate and celebrate arts education to balance us and feed our brains while touching our hearts. Annually we recruit, train and support community volunteers who become music Docents sharing weekly lessons in the schools. Docents partner with classroom teachers to reinforce school curriculum through the powerful learning tool of music.

Tell Us More – New Survey Launches for the Multi-Use Community Center at Central Park

A new survey has launched for the Central Park Community Center project. The survey focuses on preferences on exterior materials and interior design inspiration. Over 900 responses were received for the first survey, which covered programs, services, and exterior design inspiration. Help shape the vision of the new multi-use community center by completing this new survey by April 30. Take our survey and learn more at my.fremont.gov/newcommunitycenter.

Age-Friendly Fremont Survey

In 2019, the City of Fremont established its first Age-Friendly Action Plan for 2020-2025. An Age-Friendly City is a livable city for everyone. Older adults should feel safe, healthy, and happy while living in Fremont. The City's Human Services Department is in the process of updating this Plan for the next five years. One of the first steps is to survey the community about its feelings regarding what it's like to age in Fremont and to better understand the concerns and needs of older adults in the community. Learn more and take the survey at my.fremont.gov/agefriendlyfremont.

Will there be a 'superbloom' this year in California? Here's what to know

Overlooking the Pacific Ocean, flowers bloom in Mussel Rock Park in Daly City, Calif., Monday, April 1, 2024. Carpets of tiny, rain-fed wildflowers known as "Superblooms" are appearing in parts of California and Arizona. Their arrival draws droves of visitors who stop to glimpse the flashes of color and pose for pictures. (AP Photo/Haven Daley)

Carpets of yellow, orange and gold flowers are beginning to cover Southern California's vast deserts, the Bay Area's dramatic bluffs and even near Los Angeles International Airport.

But do they add up to a "superbloom"? There is no single definition of the event, but so far this year's blooms haven't been as vibrant or abundant as those that took over swaths of California last spring following drought-busting rains. This year, too, the state received ample winter rains.

After especially wet winters, bursts of color may appear in the spring, drawing droves of visitors to California and other parts of the Southwest to glimpse the flowering fields and pose for pictures.

Here are some key facts about the natural spectacle:

WHAT'S A SUPERBLOOM?

Scientists don't agree on any one definition. Across California and Arizona, there are stretches of desert that can quickly transform into dense fields of wildflowers, since seeds lie dormant in the soil and then germinate and blossom at around the same time.

A recent study found that such widespread blooms, which have been visible by satellite imagery in some years, take place after seasons with greater than 30% average precipitation, said Naomi Fraga, director of conservation programs at the California Botanic Garden, east of Los Angeles.

DOES THIS YEAR COUNT?

No, according to Fraga. That's because there isn't a huge diversity in the flowers that have blossomed in places like California's Death Valley.

This year's blooms aren't as large or as dense as wildflowers in past years, she said.

"When I think of superblooms, I think of a bloom that is so extraordinary, that's a once in a lifetime event," Fraga said, adding that the wildflower display this year "still makes a beautiful show."

Last spring, early April visitors to Southern California's Antelope Valley California Poppy Reserve were treated to dazzling orange displays of the state flower. But around the same time this year, the fields were absent of the orange blooms, with the reserve's officials posting that the window for an impressive show was becoming "increasingly narrow."

In Death Valley, one of the driest places on earth, stretches of desert are dotted with gold thanks to sunflowers that emerged after an especially wet winter and spring.

Whether that constitutes a superbloom is "really in the eye of the beholder," said Evan Meyer, executive director of the California-based nonprofit Theodore Payne Foundation, which works to preserve California's native plants.

WHEN DOES IT HAPPEN?

April is typically the peak month for spring wildflowers, but in high-elevation places they can continue to blossom later into the spring.

Superblooms generally refer to low-elevation desert regions, Fraga said.

"It's much more geographic than seasonal," Meyer said. "Spring in the mountains hasn't started, and in the low desert, it's past its peak."

When temperatures rise in the desert, the flowers can quickly dry out.

HOW DOES CLIMATE CHANGE AFFECT THE SUPERBLOOM?

Experts say it might be too soon to tell.

Climate change is making precipitation patterns more erratic, but the effects on wildflowers could play out over decades or even centuries, Fraga said, since seeds stay dormant in the soil for long periods of time.

Southern California received heavy rain last summer, unlike its usually dry summers, which she said probably stimulated flowers to germinate out of season. Winter temperatures also were higher than average, so many of them were able to stay in bloom through the spring season.

"That made for a very unusual bloom," Fraga said.

Growing Greens in the Garden

BY MADHVIKA SINGH

Growing leafy greens in your home garden is an easy and gratifying pursuit, and they start rewarding the grower in no time.

Greens can be directly sowed or started indoors. I prefer seeds that do well in my area, and are non-GMO, certified organic. Start by reading the seed packet for factors like spacing, and depth. Some relatively easy to grow greens are chard, kale, lettuce, mustard and spinach. If buying transplants, look for green, healthy-looking plants that are stout rather than lanky and tall. I choose between seeds and transplants based on the amount we will be consuming. For example, our household uses lots of arugula, kale, lettuce and spinach, so I find direct sowing easier. Fenugreek also gets directly sown. On the other hand, although we use a lot of chard and mustard greens, these produce bigger leaves so a couple plants are enough. I start seeds in pots inside and transplant when they are about three inches tall. Direct-sown cool-weather leafy greens prefer warm soil, and 60-65 degrees Fahrenheit (°F) for germination. Transplants can tolerate soil temperatures as low as 40° F.

Greens can be planted as early as fall and in succession until spring. Some might be sensitive to unpredictable temperatures but most do well in this time frame. I like to grow greens in raised beds and containers. To prepare, mix compost or well-aged manure into the soil. Water the soil, and spread seeds on the surface, lightly pressing them down. Cover seeds with a thin layer of soil and water gently. Continue to water just the top surface once or twice per day to make sure the soil does not dry out. Once seeds have germinated and plants put on true leaves, reduce watering frequency, keeping a consistent schedule without letting the soil dry out. Although reapplying fertilizer is not necessary for greens like arugula, lettuce and spinach, you might need to fertilize chard and mustard lightly. While ample sunlight is a must for many vegetables, some greens prefer partial shade, especially in the afternoon.

Weather, soil type, and variety determine when greens can be harvested. Baby lettuce can be harvested as early as five weeks after planting, but chard takes around eight weeks. Some greens, like spinach, can be harvested as soon as the plants put on five to six leaves. To harvest, use a clean knife or scissors to trim, starting with outward leaves, avoiding new growth at the center. Plants that can be harvested this way are called "cut and come again" crops. Some examples are chard, kale, leaf lettuce and spinach. Greens to be consumed raw, like arugula and lettuce, taste much better when picked young. Ones that start to bolt can be used for their flowers. Arugula, kale and mustard flowers impart peppery notes to salads and soups. I add flowers to my dishes uncooked to preserve their delicate taste and texture.

Harvesting is also an opportunity to inspect for pests. While caterpillars and slugs can be handpicked, others might require a pesticide. Follow label instructions to minimize harm. Or consider growing the plants under row covers of agriculture fabric to protect them from pests, birds, and the elements.

Once greens are harvested, gently wash and let excess water drain. If storing, wrap them in a damp towel and store in the refrigerator for best flavor, and consume within a few days. They can be enjoyed in salads and stews, as pizza toppings, in pastas, as sautéed greens, or to replace a burger bun.

Here are some seasonal favorites:

Fenugreek leaf fritters

Ingredients

Fenugreek leaves - Two cups, washed and coarsely chopped

Thai or serrano chilies - Two, deseeded, finely chopped

Chickpea flour or besan - One cup

Ginger - One tablespoon, finely chopped

Lemon juice - One tablespoon

Water - Half cup

Salt to taste

In a mixing bowl, combine all ingredients thoroughly into a thick batter without overworking, and let rest for few minutes. Heat frying oil on medium in a deep pan or heavy-bottom wok. Gently drop spoonfuls of batter into the oil and fry until golden brown. Remove fritters with a sieve and lay on a paper towel. Bitter fenugreek is an acquired taste; pair with tangy tamarind chutney to balance the flavors.

Kale chips

Ingredients

Kale leaves - Eight to ten, aim for bigger leaves

Olive oil - One to two tablespoons

Salt to taste

Thoroughly wash kale leaves and dry on a towel, under a fan, or by leaving in an airy place (not in the sun) for a few hours. The moisture must be completely drained for chips to become crisp. Preheat the oven to 275° F. In a mixing bowl, tear leaves off the fibrous "spine" into bite sized pieces. Add olive oil and sprinkle salt. With clean hands or tongs, gently toss ingredients to evenly coat the kale leaves. Place on a baking sheet in a single layer. Bake for about 10 minutes. Check for "doneness" and bake more if chips are not yet crisp. Time and temperature settings might vary depending on the oven, but the recipe remains the same. Chips can be enjoyed right away as a snack or as a side with soup.

Spinach strawberry salad

Start by layering spinach, merlot lettuce, strawberries, sliced apples and onions in a salad bowl. Top with walnuts, crumbled feta cheese and pickled jalapenos. Add borage, mustard, and radish flowers for a burst of color and flavor. Drizzle with your favorite dressing. Let stand for a few minutes for flavors to incorporate, and enjoy!

Note: This article gives an overview of growing plants, sun and soil requirements, moisture needs etc. Plant health and growth will vary based on various factors. This article is intended for gardening and culinary inspiration only. Please consult your healthcare provider should you have any questions or concerns about adding any new foods or ingredients to your diet.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: APRIL 23, 2024

ALL SIGNS: Three things of note this week: On Tuesday, we have a powerful Full Moon (which will be liberating for some). On Thursday, Mercury retrograde will be over, which will reduce errors, goof ups, delays and transportation problems. Finally, the Sun has entered Taurus, which brings a shift of focus. This is because throughout the year, the Sun moves through all 12 signs, staying in each sign for four weeks, creating "the flavor of the month." This Taurus Sun will increase everyone's focus on finances because more than any other sign, Taurus is about banking and accrued wealth.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

Good news! This week Mercury stops being retrograde in your sign! Some of this might culminate with Tuesday's Full Moon, which will affect your possessions and finances. You might have a dispute with someone about shared property, inheritances, taxes or debt. Something will come to a head at the beginning of this week. Fortunately, things will likely be settled in your favor because lucky Jupiter is in your sign for one more month. Keep your eyes open, especially for someone who might not have your best interests at heart.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

The Sun is in your sign for the next four weeks, which is your turn to recharge your batteries! You'll feel physically energized and have increased confidence and enthusiasm about life. However, on Tuesday this week, the Full Moon will be opposite your sign, which could create difficulties dealing with spouses, partners and close friends. Don't make a big deal out of things. Whatever troubles you will diminish by the end of the week. Instead, look forward to the fact that at some point in the next 18 months, you will get richer!

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

In the last several weeks, you've heard from old friends because of Mercury retrograde. You might have also been involved with people from organizations from your past. At the beginning of the week, the Full Moon energy could create problems with coworkers. Avoid making a big deal about things because whatever arises is short lived. The next four weeks are more low key because the Sun will now be "hiding" in your chart. This will give you time to think about what you want for your new year ahead (birthday to birthday).

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

You're heading into a popular four-week window because the Sun is in your House of Friendships, which will make your interactions with others more important. In fact, you might give more thought and examine the role that your friends play in your life. For example, what kind of friends do you have? Use this window of time to establish who you are with others. However, at the beginning of the week, you might be at odds with a friend or a member of a group because of the Full Moon.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

The next four weeks will be an exciting window for you because the Sun is at the top of your chart, which happens only once a year. Symbolically, this means you're in the spotlight of the Sun—and this light is flattering! (Even if you don't do anything different.) This is why you might be approached to take on increased responsibilities. Meanwhile, your adoring public will fawn over you. (Leos love to be adored.) However, at the beginning of the week, the Full Moon could put you at odds with authority figures.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

Pay attention to everything you say and do at the beginning of the week because the Full Moon will create an accident-prone influence for you. You might be embroiled in arguments about religion, philosophy or racial issues. Fortunately, later in the week, after the energy of the Full Moon subsides, these tensions will diminish or disappear. Meanwhile, you want to travel in the next several weeks! You'll love to learn through film and books. Be patient with partners and close friends because Mars opposite your sign can make you easily annoyed.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

Financial matters will be an issue at the beginning of the week because Tuesday's Full Moon activates both your Money Houses. This could create a quandary about putting the needs of others before your own. Fortunately, money and wealth will come to you for the next few months. You have been thinking more about ex-partners, ex-spouses. You might have wondered why these people are in your mind or your dreams so much? It's due to Mercury retrograde. This will diminish now because Mercury will no longer be retrograde in your House of Partnerships.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

Expect tension at the beginning of the week dealing with close friends and partners because the Full Moon on Tuesday is taking place in your sign. The thing to know is that as the Full Moon approaches, your problems seem to intensify. Then after the Full Moon peaks, these same problems will diminish or even disappear. Therefore, don't take things too seriously at the beginning of the week. The good news is that Mercury will no longer be retrograde creating so many goof ups in your world. Life will run more smoothly.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

In the next four weeks, you'll be gung-ho to be productive. You will want to make all your actions count. In fact, while your expectations are so high, you will apply these same standards to your health. This is certainly well-timed so make the best use of your strong motivation right now to improve every aspect of your life. This will also help you deal with some of the confusion or increased activity at home, while Venus will continue to boost romance and bring fun opportunities to socialize.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

Lucky you! For the next four weeks, you'll have increased opportunities to enjoy fun outings, vacations, social diversions, plus the arts and the entertainment world. You'll also have more focus on sports and playful activities with children. At the beginning of the week, the Full Moon could create tension with romantic partners as well as dealing with your kids. It's important to know that this tension is temporary and will disappear by the end of the week. Enjoy redecorating and fixing up your digs because this will please you.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

Difficulties with family members might be a problem at the beginning of the week due to the Full Moon on Tuesday. You might feel caught between the demands of home and family versus the demands of your career or your involvement in your community. In fact, you will enjoy hunkering down at home in the next several weeks. Continue to look for ways to improve your own home or find a better one. You'll be happy to hear that Mercury retrograde ends this week, which means fewer communication errors and transportation problems.

Pisces the Fish

(February 19-March 20):

Pay attention to everything you say and do because the beginning of this week is an accident-prone time. This same energy can provoke arguments with daily contacts, siblings and neighbors. Fortunately, the threat of these disturbances subsides by the end of the week. Meanwhile, the pace of your days will accelerate because the next four weeks will be busy with appointments, schedules and short trips plus increased time with siblings as well as more reading, writing and studying! Fortunately, fiery Mars will give you the physical energy to handle all this.

Tip of the Hat

When we meet others, whether old friends or new acquaintances, the initial greeting sets the tone for what is to follow. A friendly open-handed wave and smile accompanied by appropriate speech such as "hello" or "I am glad to meet you" is the gateway to a pleasant and productive interaction. Even if there is no formal meeting, we often wave or nod to people passing by. When hats were fashionable, a slight nod and tip of the hat signaled recognition and respect. In a more formal manner, military salutes are similar. On the other hand, a scowl, closed hands or ignoring the presence of others is a sign of disapproval and/or animosity.

Tri-City Voice originated and continues publication with the belief in a positive and open dialogue with all members of our community. When local people, venues or events - and controversy - are notable, our newspaper can provide a forum for information and discussion without bias or prejudice.

To provide a space for personal messages and support of our efforts, Tri-City Voice now offers a section called "Tip of the Hat". Announcements (births, birthdays, engagements, marriages), congratulations (graduation, awards, etc.) and sentiments you wish to share can now appear in Tri-City Voice.

For those who have asked how they can support local journalism and specifically, our publication, consider Tip of the Hat.

In a difficult world of political strife and economic challenges, Tri-City Voice has continued to be a source of local news. To continue our work, we ask for support of our advertisers and use of Tip of the Hat. As always, Tri-City Voice tips its hat to our vibrant community.

James Logan Softball Atop League

BY ANDREW JOSEPH

The James Logan Colts softball team beat the Moreau Catholic Mariners 11-1 on Thursday, April 18 in Hayward in a league game.

With the win the Colts are now 15-1 overall and undefeated in first place in the Mission Valley Athletic League (MVAL) at 8-0. They have now won 13 straight games with their last loss coming at Bishop O'Dowd 6-5 on March 13.

"It feels good to be in first place and we've been in this position the last couple years so now the goal is to go further in the North Coast Section (NCS) playoffs," said James Logan head coach Mandy Camuso. "We've only gotten to the second round of NCS while I've been here and we want to go further than that this season."

The Colts had a commanding lead the entire game, scoring six runs in the first three innings. Starting pitcher Anastasia Marquez had everything going her way as the Mariners struggled the entire game to string hits together. Moreau falls to 5-4 overall and 5-3 in league now sitting at third place in the MVAL.

"Mainly I throw a lot of curves because I'm a spin pitcher so my goal was to make sure I'm doing my part and hitting my spots," said Marquez.

This Colts team is loaded with great talent and their performance against the Mariners is a showcase of their potential. Ava Medellin had a game high two home runs, including the third inning to go up 5-0 and another in the seventh to give the Colts a 10-1 lead. Medellin also had two homers in the Colts last game at Kennedy High.

"I knew there were runners on base and I wanted to get them in and I was able to do that with my two home runs," said Medellin.

James Logan is hoping to win league and make a deep push in the NCS playoffs with a successful season thus far. Their next game is Tuesday, April 23 at Newark Memorial in another league matchup.

Chabot College Host Coast Conference Swim Championships

BY ANDREW JOSEPH

Chabot College hosted the 2024 Coast Conference Swim Championships from April 18-20 in Hayward with men and women swimmers from 13 schools from throughout the Bay Area.

West Valley College (Saratoga) came in first place overall with 1,821 points, Chabot College finished in fifth place with 720 points and Ohlone College (Fremont) finished in eighth place with 451 points.

The top 16 performers in each event in California advance to the state championship. Ohlone College had outstanding performances by men's swimmer Moataz Bayoumi and women's swimmer Teagan Rees.

Moataz Bayoumi placed first in the men's 100-yard fly event on day two finals with a time of 53.10, third place in the 100-yard backstroke with 57.02 and fifth place in 100-yard freestyle with 50.32.

"My first-place finish in the 100-meter fly was my favorite moment of the entire season," said Bayoumi. "I've been practicing all year for that race and all my hard work finally paid off."

Bayoumi is a promising freshman and hopes to continue to improve his performances and transfer to a four-year school to further his swim career.

Teagan Rees competed in three events and her best finish was fourth in the 400-yard IM women's finals with a time of 5:32.71.

"This is the last meet of the season so you want to do well here and drop times," said Rees. "We practiced all year for this meet and there was a lot of excitement."

"The results from this meet exceeded my expectations," said Ohlone College Head Coach Jensen Chen. "I am very happy about this season and the way our swimmers performed especially Moataz and Teagan."

Social Contract

As sentient beings, we are aware of ourselves and surroundings including family, friends, workplace and environment. Philosophers, have long grappled with concepts of social norms and how and why humanity (and others in the animal kingdom) form groups with formal and informal structures and rules.

Social sciences attempt to understand human behavior and predictions of future reactions to internal and external factors. As people form groups with similar concerns and goals, it is more likely to predict their response to a variety of issues. Political science uses these techniques to uncover core motivations of the electorate and respond to their concerns. Visceral issues including preservation of self and family are often used to invoke an intense reaction. At the apex of political rhetoric is hope and aspirations for the future. The nadir or inverse and negative side is populated with fear, hate and lack of faith in future accomplishments.

How we, as a society, respond to the stress and strain of changes in our environment – physical, mental and political – will determine the type and strength of our social contract. Our society depends on a set of rules to control behavior, enforced by a system of laws, courts and police. Ultimately, however, its structure is dependent on a general recognition of the existential quality of this structure to maintain our way of life. Created to be flexible and accommodate changes of lifestyles and attitudes, social contracts ultimately rely on the willingness and participation of all involved. Without control of aberrant behavior, a social contract will quickly unravel.

Spring is here and with it a season that celebrates renewal and growth. It can also be a time to rededicate ourselves to a social contract with each other and our communities. Open to amendments and revisions, this contract is one that not only invites participation, but demands it. As a democratic society, our social contract is only as strong as we, the people, make it. Our successes and failures are directly attributable to our willingness to pay attention and participate. Local government is the place to start by checking out the agenda for the next council meeting (published on line) to find out who and what is happening in your community.

"As soon as any man says of the affairs of the State 'What does it matter to me?' the State may be given up for lost."

Booming cold drink sales mean more plastic waste. So Starbucks redesigned its cups

BY DEE-ANN DURBIN
AP BUSINESS WRITER

Booming sales of cold drinks at Starbucks have created a problem: growing amounts of plastic waste from the single-use cups that Frappuccinos, Refreshers, cold brews and other iced drinks are served in.

The coffee giant said Thursday it plans to alleviate some of that waste with new disposable cups that contain up to 20% less plastic. The cups are set to be rolled out to stores in the U.S. and Canada starting this month.

Amelia Landers, Starbucks' vice president of product innovation, said the Seattle-based company spent the last four years developing the new containers. Engineers tested thousands of iterations to see how much plastic they could remove while still making the cup feel sturdy.

"We feel like it's industry-leading," Landers said. "It's the best expression of a cold plastic cup." Starbucks says Frappuccinos and other cold drinks now account for 75% of its U.S. beverage sales, up from 37% in 2013. The company estimates the new cups will keep more than 13.5 million pounds of plastic out of landfills each year. Producing the tumblers also requires less water and creates fewer carbon emissions, a leading cause of climate change, it said.

Starbucks made other changes as part of the redesign. The new cold cups feature raised dots near the bottom, so baristas – including those with impaired vision – can quickly feel with the swipe of a thumb which size cup they're holding. And the 12-ounce cup — that's the "tall" size in Starbucks lingo — is shorter and wider to accommodate the same-size lid as larger cups.

Landers said the new cups are part of a sustained sustainability push at Starbucks. The company adopted strawless lids in 2019. Last year, it said it would accept customer-provided cups for drive-thru and mobile orders in the U.S. and Canada.

The company plans to roll out a reusable cup program at thousands of stores in Europe, the Middle East and Africa by next year. Under the program, customers will pay a small deposit

This photo provided by Starbucks shows a new version of the company's cold cup which is said to be made with up to 20% less plastic. The introduction of the cups will be announced on Thursday, April 18, 2024. (Starbucks via AP) when they buy a hot or cold drink in a specially designed cup that can be used up to 30 times. They will get the deposit back when they return the cup to a store.

Starbucks also has tested U.S. reusable cup programs in California, Arizona and Colorado. "Every market has their own challenges, their own requirements and customer behavior. Some are more prime for reusables, some are less prime for reusables," Landers said. "There is no one silver bullet to a sustainable cup."

Longer term, Starbucks has said it wants all of its packaging to be reusable, recyclable or compostable by 2030. The reduced-plastic cup making its debut is a small step toward that goal: even though the cup is recyclable, it still was designed for one-time use, Landers said. The company will continue to explore ways to make single-use cups more sustainable, she said.

"I think we will never take our foot off the gas, evaluating new ways and new methods and new technologies to go further," she said. "We're not done."

Starbucks isn't the only company rethinking plastic packaging. In some markets, McDonald's has introduced McFlurry cups without plastic lids, and salad boxes and cutlery made from renewable fiber. Late last year, Coca-Cola said it had developed a bottle made entirely from plant-based sources. Coke produced a limited-run of 900 bottles to show that the technology can be commercially scaled.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (800) 280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet Web site - www.auction.com - for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case: 171607. A painting of Winston Churchill by an artist whose work he hated is up for auction

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A portrait of Winston Churchill by an artist whose work the British leader loathed went on display Tuesday at Churchill's birthplace ahead of an auction in June.

The painting by modernist artist Graham Sutherland was made in preparation for a larger portrait that Churchill hated and which was later destroyed — an episode recounted in the TV series "The Crown."

The surviving oil-on-canvas study shows Churchill's head in profile against a dark background. It is expected to sell for between 500,000 pounds and 800,000 pounds ($622,000 and $995,000) at Sotheby's in London on June 6.

Sutherland was commissioned by the Houses of Parliament to paint Churchill to mark his 80th birthday in 1954. The full-length portrait was unveiled in Parliament that year, with Churchill calling it, with a smirk, "a remarkable example of modern art."

Churchill is said to have complained that the painting "makes me look half-witted, which I ain't." It was delivered to his home and never seen again. The Churchill family disclosed years later that it had been destroyed.

Its fate was recreated with poetic license in an episode of "The Crown" in which Churchill's wife, Clementine, watches the painting go up in flames.

Andre Zlattinger, Sotheby's head of modern British and Irish art, said that in the surviving study, "Churchill is caught in a moment of absent-minded thoughtfulness, and together with the backstory of its creation, it gives the impression of a man truly concerned with his image."

Sotheby's put the picture on public display inside the room where Churchill was born 150 years ago at Blenheim Palace, a country mansion 60 miles (100 kilometers) northwest of London. Visitors can see it there until Sunday. It will go on show at Sotheby's offices in New York May 3-16 and London May 25-June 5.

Alleged homicide suspect fatally shot by police in San Francisco Bay Area

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A man linked to a homicide investigation in California's capital was fatally shot Wednesday by police 80 miles (128 kilometers) away in Oakland after he allegedly emerged from a home with a firearm, authorities said Thursday.

Sacramento police officers notified the Oakland Police Department that they were in Oakland investigating a homicide and requested assistance in arresting a suspect, the Oakland Police Department said in a brief statement.

Oakland police officers arrived in West Oakland and were securing the area where the suspect was located when the man exited a house holding a firearm and officers opened fire, killing him, the department said.

The officers gave the man first aid until emergency personnel arrived, but he died at the scene, it said.

The officers involved in the shooting were put on paid administrative leave while the Oakland Police Department's Homicide Section, Internal Affairs Division, and the Oakland Community Police Review Agency investigate the fatal shooting.

The Oakland Police Department said it couldn't share any other information "to ensure the integrity of the investigation."

"Additional details will be shared as soon as the investigative process allows and in compliance with the law," the department said.
