Music, Magic, Memories

By ISABELLA OHLMEYER

"Music is the literature of the heart; it commences where speech ends," said 19th Century French writer, poet and politician Alphonse de Lamartine. Some have difficulty expressing themselves in conversation, through writing or even emotionally, but for many, music is therapeutic, freedom of the heart which creates beautiful expression beyond measure. Celebrate the wonderful power and communication of music at the 25th Annual Music for Minors II Gala on Friday, March 15 at the Fremont Marriott.

Celebrating love of music began for Music for Minors II (MFMII) in the East Bay in 1988. Its programs are not only present in the East Bay, but through parent organization, Music for Minors, serves peninsula cities and school districts of Los Altos, Mountain View, San Mateo, and Sunnyvale. MFMII Executive Director Carol Zilli says the nonprofit organization empowers children through the power of music. "I was first and foremost concerned with students not getting involved in school and in their community; therefore, I believed that through music performance and education, these East Bay students will feel motivated to become involved."

Zilli began teaching MFMII's docent training program at Ohlone College in 1990, increasing the number of local volunteers. Each Fall, between mid-September and mid-November, approximately 25-30 volunteers trained annually in Fremont until 2005 when a second training location was added through the Castro Valley Adult School, increasing annual new vol-

Sharing both a classically trained voice and her unique journey as a blind musician, mezzo-soprano Laurie Rubin, showcases an extensive and rich repertoire at the Smith Center at Ohlone College Saturday, March 9.

ments that Rubin is a "compelling force at the center of the music."

Rubin began playing piano at the age of three. Her piano teacher recommended singing lessons, as she was singing along as she played. "That is where everything snowballed," says Rubin.

In her adult years, Rubin continued her musical career at Oberlin College and went on to receive a Master's in music from Yale. Rubin was presented with the 2010-2011 Yale Alumni Ventures Grant, awarded to develop a curriculum aimed at dispelling stereotypes faced by disabled individuals. Rubin is currently an Artist in Residence in Saratoga at Montalvo Art and was recently interviewed by Michael Krasny on KQED.

"I get so tired of talking about myself as a blind person all the time. What I would really like to see happen is to have more blind people have the opportunity of living as a normal person without being a novelty all the time," says Rubin. Rubin credits her success to her supportive family and mentors, including Kenny Loggins, who she names as her first teacher, as well as her grandparents who regularly played opera music in their home. "I was mesmerized by the sound of it. It was just different than everything that I have ever heard and so I started to just imitate the sounds to see if I could make the sounds myself."

In an interview with San Francisco Chronicle's music critic Joshua Kosman, Rubin commented that "my blindness is my biggest strength, and I hope to challenge people to use all their best resources and skills to achieve their dreams."

From exclusive wine-tasting, exquisite food sampling, and the opportunity to shop in a stylish fashion and accessory marketplace, women can enjoy a fun-filled evening with good company, food, and an entertainment extravaganza. On Thursday, March 14, the St. Rose Hospital Foundation is proud to present its first ever "A Taste of Style" event to benefit Patient Services. At the hospital, patient services can include everything from a simple thermometer to complex medical equipment. Ultimately, the foundation's mission is to help the underserved and/or underinsured members within the community.

Several Bay Area wineries, including, but not limited to, Lone Oak Estate Winery, Peju Province Winery, and J.Lohr Vineyards will provide wine tasting for attendees. Fashion partners - Macy's, Lancôme, Heller Jewelers, Walk-In-Closet, Tootsies and Tribes Salon & Spa and many others - will participate in the marketplace. Silent auction items range from wines donated from local wineries to an overnight stay at the Claremont Hotel and Resort complete with a spa package and dinner.

Event sponsors and local dignitaries will participate as models in a fashion show sponsored by Macy's. Upcoming Spring and Summer fashions will be showcased in a peek at the coming seasons' must-have looks. During a live auction, attendees will have the opportunity to bid on dinner at the Hayward Firehouse, a theater getaway weekend to New York City, a cocktail piano-bar party for 24, and a few other surprises.

This is the twelfth year that the St. Rose Hospital Foundation has hosted a women's spring event, but the St. Rose Hospital Foundation is excited about the newly formatted "A Taste of Style" event. "Women's styles and fashions change every year and we created this broader subject so that, as fashion, wine, and fun change through the years, the event will remain relevant," said Executive Director Michael Cobb. "We want to host an evening during which [guests] can help the hospital and at the same time enjoy time with their friends."

Event sponsors currently include Fremont Bank, Macy's, CBS Channel 5, Diablo Magazine, Splurge Catering & Special Events, Diablo Country Club, Nothing Bundt Cakes, R. Would You Know if You Were Having a Heart Attack?

Learn About Women and Heart Disease at Washington Hospital Seminar

If you felt tired and dizzy, would you think you were having a heart attack? It turns out women don't always experience the classic symptom of chest pain when they suffer a heart attack. That tends to be more common in men. Instead, women may feel light-headed and short of breath.

“The symptoms of a heart attack are often different for men and women,” said Dr. Pradeep Kumar, a Fremont cardiologist and member of the Washington Hospital medical staff. “Women need to know the signs because their risk of having a heart attack is equal to men’s, particularly after menopause.”

Heart disease is the number one killer of both women and men in the U.S., according to the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute. In fact, one in four women dies from heart disease each year.

Dr. Kumar will present "Women and Heart: What You Need to Know" on Tuesday, March 19, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. The free seminar will be held at the Conrad E. Anderson, M.D. Auditorium, located at 2500 Mowry Avenue (Washington West) in Fremont. Register online at www.whhs.com or call (800) 963-7070 for more information.

The symptoms of a heart attack are often different for men and women. Dr. Pradeep Kumar, a Washington Hospital cardiologist will discuss the critical warnings signs that appear with female heart disease and during a heart attack. The free upcoming lecture will take place on Tuesday, March 19 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Conrad E. Anderson, M.D. Auditorium located at 2500 Mowry Avenue (Washington West) in Fremont. Register online at www.whhs.com.

Dr. Kumar will first provide an overview of heart disease. Coronary heart disease is the most common type of heart disease for both women and men, he said. It occurs when plaque builds up on the inner walls of the coronary arteries. This plaque buildup – a condition called atherosclerosis – restricts the flow of oxygen-rich blood to the heart. This can cause serious heart problems, including irregular heartbeats, angina (chest pain), heart attack, and heart failure, Dr. Kumar explained.

More Common in Women

Coronary microvascular disease is another type of heart disease. It occurs when the heart's tiny arteries are damaged or diseased. Women are more likely than men to have this type of heart disease, according to Dr. Kumar.

He said there are also differences in noninvasive diagnostic testing in women and men. For example, treadmill stress testing has higher false positive rates in women.

"Symptoms for women can include neck pain, vomiting, and sleep disturbances," Dr. Kumar added.

“With heart disease, it’s important to get an early diagnosis. Don’t wait until you are further along in the disease process. If you are experiencing these symptoms, you should consult with your physician.”

Reducing the Risk

Dr. Kumar will discuss some of the risk factors associated with heart disease and ways to reduce them. Some risk factors are unavoidable such as being older, having a family history of heart disease, and being post-menopausal. But other risk factors can be controlled through lifestyle changes. These include high blood pressure, high cholesterol, smoking, diabetes, physical inactivity, obesity, and stress.

He said it's important to keep blood pressure and cholesterol levels under control. Eating a healthy diet that is low in salt and fat and high in lean protein, fruits and vegetables, whole grains, and low-fat dairy can help.

Getting plenty of physical activity is also important. Regular exercise can help to keep blood pressure and cholesterol under control, and maintain a healthy weight.

"Exercise can also help to reduce stress levels," he added. "If you smoke, you need to quit. Smokers have more than twice the risk for a heart attack than nonsmokers."

Dr. Kumar said people with diabetes need to properly manage the chronic disease. High levels of glucose in the blood can cause atherosclerosis and damage the heart.

He will also talk about medications that can help to keep some of these risk factors under control as well as treatment options for heart disease.

Creating a Healthier Diet: A Guide to “Eating Clean”

Lecture Offers Advice on Using Whole, Unrefined Foods

Have you been hearing people talk about the benefits of “eating clean” and wondering what the buzz is all about? The concept is actually very simple, according to Macaria Meyer, RD, a registered dietitian at Washington Hospital.

“Eating clean is based on the idea that the best way to follow a healthy diet is to eat whole foods that are as close to their natural state as possible, without a lot of processing or additives,” she explains. “Basically, this means eating more

To help people learn more about how to create healthy meals for their families using unrefined, whole foods, a Washington Hospital registered dietitian will show you how to cook healthier foods in an economical way. The lecture and food preparation demonstration will take place on Wednesday, March 13 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Washington Women's Center located at 2500 Mowry Avenue in Fremont. The fee for attending the program is $5. Class size is limited. Call (510) 608-1301 to register.

fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grains and lean proteins, rather than processed, pre-packaged foods or foods that contain a lot of saturated fats or unhealthy additives.”

While the concept of eating clean is simple, Meyer acknowledges that putting it into practice requires more effort than grabbing a quick meal at a fast-food restaurant or popping a pre-fabricated frozen dinner in the microwave.

“We live in a society that is rush, rush, rush,” she says. “It’s important, though, to take the extra time to plan and prepare your meals to ensure that you’re getting high-quality, healthy food. And, by planning your meals in advance, making out weekly menus, purchasing foods in bulk and buying produce when it’s in season, you can avoid using unhealthy processed foods without spending significantly more money.”

To help people learn more about how to create healthy meals for their families using unrefined, whole foods, Meyer will be speaking at an Evening Lecture Series program on Wednesday, March 13 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Washington Women's Center located at 2500 Mowry Avenue in Fremont. The fee for attending the program is $5.

As part of her presentation, Meyer will discuss the types of fruits and vegetables that are always good to have on hand.

“Fresh produce is always the best choice, and it’s cheaper when it’s in season,” she notes. “Farmer’s markets also may have lower prices on fresh fruits and vegetables. Freezing your own vegetables also can help you economize. You can purchase vegetables in season and flash-freeze them for later use. Flash-freezing involves boiling the vegetables for a short amount of time and allowing them to drain to get as much moisture out as you can before freezing them in freezer bags or containers.

“Organic produce that is grown without pesticides is often preferable,” she adds, “but there are some types of vegetables that are grown with minimal amounts of pesticides and can be non-organic. Also, with fruits such as bananas and oranges that you have to peel before eating anyway, it’s not as important to buy organic.”

When it comes to using canned or packaged goods, Meyer recommends reading the product labels carefully.

“The key to clean eating is choosing those products with as few non-food ingredients as possible,” she says. “In choosing pasta and breads, look for ‘whole grain’ as the first ingredient. Use brown rice rather than white rice, and choose organic sprouted-grain breads if your food budget allows. Avoid foods with added ingredients such as hydrogenated fats, high-fructose corn syrup, preservatives and salt or sulfites. If you’re in doubt about obscure ingredient listings such as ‘natural flavorings,’ call the company for an explanation. To cut down on the amount of salt in your diet, use herbs and spices more often.”

Getting the right types of protein is another part of eating clean. Meyer suggests lean meats such as skinless, white-meat poultry and sustainable seafood. Dried beans,

Now Is the Time to Find Out If You’re at Risk for Stroke

Free Event Features Advanced Screenings, One-on-One Chat with Physicians

According to most sources, stroke—also known as a brain attack—is up to 80 percent preventable. However, the disease stubbornly remains on the Centers for Disease Control (CDC)’s top 10 list of leading causes of death in the United States, and many people still don’t know enough about it, according to Dr. Ash Jain, M.D., cardiologist and medical director of Washington Hospital’s Stroke Program.

“It’s always best to learn about stroke before it happens,” according to Dr. Jain. “Most risk factors for stroke—such as high blood pressure—build up over time with no outward symptoms. Then you suffer a stroke, which leaves you at risk for permanent disability.”

Later this month, Washington Hospital will host its free Stroke Awareness Day & Screenings event—an opportunity for members of the community to identify risk factors for stroke—on Saturday, March 23.

The event will feature important screening tests for stroke, including blood pressure, blood glucose (diabetes), electrocardiogram (EKG) for atrial fibrillation, and a test for carotid artery disease, as well as a chance to discuss the results of the screenings with Dr. Jain or another Washington Hospital Medical Staff physician.

Ischemic strokes—which account for the majority of strokes—are caused by blockages of the arterial pathways that deliver oxygen and nutrients to the brain, according to Dr. Jain. As a result, brain cells are literally starved of oxygen and begin to die off, making both prevention and early detection key, he says.

“This is why it is vitally important for members of the community to take advantage of free community screenings like the one coming up so that they can achieve a better understanding of their overall risk for stroke and take steps to prevent this devastating disease process,” Dr. Jain says.

Doug Van Houten, R.N., clinical coordinator for the Stroke Program, points out that Washington Hospital is fairly unique in the level of educational and preventive measures it offers to the community regarding stroke.

“The hospital actually does three kinds of screenings a year, all vascular in nature,” he says. “There’s the Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm Screening in January, the Peripheral Vascular Disease Screening in June, and Stroke Awareness Day and Screening coming up later this month.”

Van Houten says the event is the perfect opportunity to get screened and also learn from health care professionals what steps can be taken to lower stroke risk.

“My goal is to get as many people in and assessed as possible,” he says. “We have all these professionals to test community members for various risk factors and to teach them. Then, two physicians will be available to put it all together for them.”

Fortunately, most of the risk factors being screened for during the Stroke Awareness Day and Screening event are ones that can be reduced through simple lifestyle changes. Others, however—like atrial fibrillation—require a doctor’s care.

Atrial fibrillation is not only the most common type of irregular heartbeat, but also one of the main risk factors for stroke, according to Dr. Jain. In fact, the American Heart Association (AHA) cites data indicating that AF accounts for between 15 percent and 20 percent of strokes in the United States.

“With atrial fibrillation, it is very important to identify these patients and treat them so that they don’t go on to have strokes,” Dr. Jain says. “Irregular heartbeat causes blood clots to form in the heart chamber, and these then travel to the brain, clogging the circulation and causing stroke. Also, heart function is decreased by as much as 30 percent, and this decrease in function makes people tired, short of breath, and they experience less energy and weakness and tiredness."

While AF and carotid artery disease require medical intervention, Van Houten is a big proponent of tackling the many preventable risk factors for stroke—like high blood pressure and obesity—with lifestyle changes like healthy diet and regular exercise.

"After someone has just gotten blood glucose and blood pressure tested, we'll do some really fast one-on-one education," he says of the event. "We might say, 'Your blood sugar is fine, but your blood pressure is high. Now you really need to be careful about sodium intake.' Then we might tell the person about the DASH diet and the benefits of exercising every day."

"The big thing is that this event is free, and a lot of people don't have money for preventive care. We're providing free health information and really good, focused tests that can help people determine their stroke risk."

Dr. Jain says that he would much rather help community members prevent stroke than have to treat them in the hospital. Still, he continues to see younger patients—including those in their 40s and 50s—coming to the hospital with stroke.

"Recognizing the signs and symptoms of stroke is important for every member of the community, because the faster people call 9-1-1, the sooner we can treat them and improve outcomes," he says. "At the same time, the more people we see and assess during Stroke Awareness Day, the less likely it is that we'll see those people in the ER because they'll be better able to manage their risk factors."

Don't get off track - make sure to change your clocks on March 10 when Daylight Savings Time (DST) kicks in at 2 a.m. Though this transition initially robs us of one hour, DST treats everyone to more daylight as the longer days of spring and summer approach.

Extended evening daylight is thought to reduce use of artificial light, save energy, increase outdoor activity, and decrease driving accidents. Not to mention the enjoyable feeling that the day doesn't run out before you do!

Benjamin Franklin first came up with the idea in 1784, presented in an essay titled "An Economical Project for Diminishing the Cost of Light." New Zealand entomologist George Vernon Hudson presented the proposal of moving two-hours forward in October and two hours back in March to the Wellington Philosophical Society in 1895. But English butler William Willett gets the credit for DST when his proposal for moving clocks 20 minutes forward each Sunday in April and moving them back in the same manner in September led to the introduction of a bill to the House of Commons in February 1908. The bill, however, received a lot of opposition and never made it into law.

DST was finally put into practice in 1916 during World War I as a measure to replace artificial lighting in order to save fuel. Many countries returned to standard time after the war and wouldn't practice DST again until World War II and, once again it was necessary to conserve vital energy resources.

Year-round DST was instituted in the U.S. by President Roosevelt during World War II from February 9, 1942 to September 30, 1945 and referred to as "War Time." The schedule has been revised many times over the years, but the one we currently follow began in 2007 and starts the second Sunday in March, ending on the first Sunday in November. DST is observed throughout the U.S. with the exceptions of Hawaii and Arizona, as well as areas of Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and Guam. DST is followed in over seventy countries, although the beginning and end dates often vary from the U.S.

For those who have difficulty adjusting to the change, a brisk walk or run has been found to help, as well as an hour or two spent in bright natural light. Eating earlier and avoiding caffeine and alcohol can also trick the body and may help you to fall asleep sooner.

Remember to move clocks forward one hour before you go to bed on Saturday, March 9 and wake up Sunday morning to the promise of extra sunlight courtesy of Daylight Savings Time!

POPS Italian Dinner Concert

SUBMITTED BY RUTH DUNCAN

American High School in Fremont is hosting its annual Pops Concert and Italian Dinner on March 21. The public is invited to an evening of a delicious pasta dinner, followed by performances by the American High School Choir, Concert Band, Symphonic Band, Jazz Band, Winter Percussion, and Winter Guard.

Along with dinner and music, a silent auction of many enticing items will be presented. The Band Parent Organization has been busy acquiring donations from a wide variety of sources including theme parks (e.g. Disneyland), local businesses, restaurants and individuals. Value of these items range from a few dollars to several hundred. Anyone with an interest in bidding on a wide selection of tickets, gift certificates, baskets, and other "finds" is invited. All auction winners will take home their items at the end of the evening, and all proceeds will directly benefit the American High School Music Department.

The pasta dinner is prepared on premises by parent volunteers with thanks to the Culinary Arts Department of the high school for the use of the department's kitchen facilities and catering trays. Hot spaghetti with the choice of red or white vegetarian sauce and the option of meatballs will be the main course. Green salad, fruit salad, and garlic bread will accompany dinner. A variety of hot and cold beverages will be served as well as dessert.

The main event of the evening will be music performed by award-winning musicians of American High School; a variety of popular music including selections from "Hercules," "Les Miserables," and "Shrek." Most of the concert and symphonic band members are also members of the American High School Marching Band, which received many awards this past fall for their performances at Newark Days, Feste Del Mar (San Jose), Santa Cruz Band Review, Vintage Band Review (Napa), Fairfield Band Review (where the Symphonic Band also received first place), and Oakland's Children's Holiday Parade where they received first place. The Winter Percussion, Guard, and Drum Majors have started out their season with several first and second placings. This fundraising event will help pay for the 70-plus member marching band's new uniforms.

Although the Fremont School District supplies a classroom and the salary of American High School's excellent music and band instructor, Mr. Richard Wong, all instruments, repairs, uniforms, supplies, travel expenses, and ancillary instruction are funded by donations.

Dinner starts at 6:15 p.m. in the Rotunda of American High School. Parking and event entrance are on the side street, Alder Avenue. The concert will start at 7:30 and no food will be served during the concert. Admission is $10, general; students and seniors, $7; children 6 and under are free. AHS students with ASB sticker get in for $6. Please note: there is no separate admission for the concert only.

Creating a Healthier Diet: A Guide to “Eating Clean”

At the seminar, Meyer also will provide tips on cooking methods and menu planning, as well as recipes for healthy, economical clean-eating meals.

“Eating clean might mean you have to pay a little bit more for your food,” she admits. “It’s still a good ‘bargain,’ though, because you can’t buy extra body parts to replace ones that may be damaged by eating an unhealthy diet.”

To register to attend the seminar on March 13, call 800-963-7070 or visit www.whhs.com/event/class-registration.

peas and legumes are good vegetable sources of protein. Her clean-eating recommendation for dairy products and eggs is to buy organic products if you can afford them.

But what about desserts and other sweet treats? Can they be part of a “clean eating” diet?

“Pure maple syrup and honey are the best sweeteners for clean eating,” Meyer says. “Also, pureed fruits such as applesauce or prune whip can be used in place of sugar in a variety of recipes.”

Cataract surgery can mean freedom from glasses!

In the past, choosing the type of lens to implant was made by the cataract surgeon; few options were available. All lens implants were monofocal, providing excellent vision after cataract surgery, but usually only for seeing things at a distance such as distant signs when driving, going to a movie or a ballgame. Corrective glasses were necessary for near vision activity: reading, knitting, sewing, playing cards or keeping your golf score.

Today, Dr. Shobha Tandon is able to offer a choice – a multifocal lens. This type of lens provides excellent vision after cataract surgery at a variety of distances. Multifocal lens implants correct both your distance and near vision. For the vast majority of patients, having a multifocal lens implant means that they will be able to see at distance and up close - drive, watch television, read or do crafts - without glasses.

Springs. There was even a boat landing in the muddy bay waters and farmers established vineyards on the slopes above the bay.

Leland Stanford purchased the Warm Springs Resort in 1870. His brother, Josiah W. Stanford took over management of the Colombet ranch, planted more vineyards and developed the winery. By 1875, wine production reached 50,000 gallons a year and Warm Springs became the second largest wine producer in the country. Josiah W. and his family managed the property for many restoration of the Curtner Mansion. The National Wildlife Refuge and the Mission Peak Regional Preserve have been set aside to protect wildlife and provide areas for enjoyment of the natural environment. Trail hikes up Mission Peak are popular and City parks have been developed for recreation and social activities.

cover is an 1878 map of the Warm Springs area. Acknowledgements recognize some of the important contributions made to the book by local residents.

The first chapter of the book briefly covers contributions of the Ohlone, early explorers, the Mission and Rancho eras. Native Americans discovered the springs that bubbled from the ground and recognized their value. Pioneer Spanish families used the springs to wash their clothes. When Mission San Jose was founded, the springs became part of the Mission.

Don Jose Jesus Vallejo came in 1836 to dispose of the Mission properties. Fulgencio Higuera was granted a large rancho that included the Warm Springs area from Mission Peak to San Francisco Bay. His family built adobe homes near the springs and Agua Caliente Creek. Clement Colombet bought the area around the springs and established a health resort that became widely known; customers came to drink, gamble, eat and enjoy the medicinal water.

The earthquake of 1868 damaged buildings and ended the resort days. Fulgencio sold 3,000 acres of his best farmland to Americans who not only converted the area to farms, but built houses and settlements. The railroad came through in 1869 and named their station Warm years. He had a Winton automobile that was probably the first auto in the area. The property was sold in 1923 and eventually, part of it became the world famous Weibel Champagne Vineyards of Fred Weibel and family. The other part of the property became Hidden Valley Dude Ranch owned by the Goossen family.

The Warm Springs area was a rural farming community of predominately Portuguese immigrant families from the 1920's to the 1960's. It was a close knit community with most activities centered on family gatherings, church functions and school and club activities. Neighbors helped each other and served as fire fighters in the volunteer fire department.

General Motors established their huge factory in the 1960's and Warm Springs began to change. Housing developments, new roads, more traffic, crowded schools and factories became part of the scene. The Apple Computer plant became a prominent part of a number of high tech and other business firms. Warm Springs began to lose its reputation as an isolated frontier area.

There have been recent attempts to preserve some of the special features of the area including reconstruction of the Higuera-Galindo adobe and village but has been a ghost town since 1979.

Warm Springs is a fascinating and unique place with a rich history and a bustling, promising future. Residents have always been proud of the area and feel privileged to live there.

Three new directors bring change to the water district

For the first time ever, there are three women on the Santa Clara Valley Water District Board of Directors. In December 2012, Nai Hsueh and Barbara Keegan joined District 4 Director Linda J. LeZotte, who is now in her third year on the board. Also noteworthy is that this year marks the second consecutive year that we've had a woman board chair. In January, the board unanimously voted to elect District 5 Director Nai Hsueh as the chair to follow Director LeZotte's run.

Director Hsueh represents District 5, which includes the cities of Cupertino and Saratoga, as well as parts of Sunnyvale, Santa Clara and west San José. She has 30 years of experience working for the water district on water issues, including large construction projects. In her role, she designed a rolling five-year capital improvement program.

Director Keegan, a civil engineer, represents District 2, which includes central and downtown San José, portions of east San José, and Willow Glen. She worked for 19 years for the city of San José's Public Works Department, where she rose to the level of division manager. Keegan subsequently became the city engineer and assistant director of public works for the city of Sunnyvale. She spent the last two years of her career at the water district.

The end of January brought more change to the board when I, and the full board of directors, voted unanimously to appoint Dennis Kennedy to replace former District 1 Director Don Gage, who left the board after being elected mayor of Gilroy. As former mayor of Morgan Hill, Kennedy brings both a South County perspective and political experience to the board. District 1 includes the cities of Morgan Hill and Gilroy, the town of San Martin, the Evergreen and Silver Creek neighborhoods of San Jose, parts of south San Jose, and the hills east of San Jose and Milpitas.

He led the city's efforts to advance the Upper Llagas Creek Flood Protection Project. He has served on the water district's Environmental Advisory Committee and Santa Clara Valley Habitat Conservation Plan planning committee. A graduate of Santa Clara University, Kennedy is a registered professional mechanical engineer.

The three new directors are joining me, Director Richard Santos, and my fellow board members, Linda J. LeZotte, Tony Estremera and Brian Schmidt. For those who don't know me, I was elected to the board in 2001 as your District 3 representative, serving the areas of Sunnyvale and Santa Clara, Alviso, Milpitas, and the north San Jose and Berryessa communities.

Director LeZotte was elected to the Board in 2010 to represent the City of Campbell, portions of Willow Glen and the Cambrian, North Almaden and Blossom Hill areas of San Jose. Director Estremera was appointed to the board in 1996 to represent District 6, which includes San Jose areas north of Capitol Expressway, east of Highway 280, south of Highway 280 and as far north as the Alum Rock community. Director Schmidt was elected to the board in 2010 to represent District 7, which covers the western side of the county and extends as far south as Almaden and Calero reservoirs and borders Saratoga heading as far north as Palo Alto.

For more information about the Santa Clara Valley Water District and its board of directors, please visit our website www.valleywater.org. There you can ask questions or provide feedback 24-7 through Access Valley Water, our online customer communications service.

As always, I am available for questions or comments as your District 3 representative for the northern areas of Sunnyvale and Santa Clara; Alviso; Milpitas; and the north San Jose and Berryessa communities. Feel free to contact me at (408) 234-7707.

The United States of ALEC

SUBMITTED BY ISABELLE MCANDREWS

The League of Women Voters of Fremont, Newark & Union City will host a DVD-viewing of ALEC on March 18, 2013 at the Fremont Congregational Church, Fremont. ALEC is the acronym for the American Legislative Exchange Council.

The free screening illustrates how companies drive state legislators to create laws that favor corporations. In the past, corporations have influenced state legislators to pass laws on raising credit card limits, privatizing schools and prisons, and modifying the Clean Water Act. ALEC's widespread influence is featured in the DVD which also covers what is being done to restrict ALEC from growing stronger.

A discussion of the film will proceed immediately after it is viewed.

Beals speaks at Chabot for Women's History Month

SUBMITTED BY KAREN SILVA

Dr. Melba Pattillo Beals, author of "Warriors Don't Cry" and "White is a State of Mind," will be speaking at Chabot College on Tuesday, March 12 in the Reed L. Buffington Visual and Performing Arts Center. Dr. Beals made history as a member of the "Little Rock Nine," African-American students involved in the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School in 1957.

These students braved unrelenting intimidation and bullying from those who opposed desegregation of the formerly all-white high school. Dr. Beals' experiences during her distressing year at Central High are described in "Warriors Don't Cry." She is the first of the nine students to recount her experiences in a book that won the Robert F. Kennedy Book Award in 1995. An academician and a Congressional Gold Medal recipient, Dr. Beals appears in the segment on the crisis at Central High School from the award-winning documentary film "Eyes on the Prize."

In celebration of Women's History Month, the community is cordially invited to attend Dr. Beals' free speaking engagement on Tuesday, March 12 at noon. There is a $2 charge to purchase a temporary parking permit from meters in each campus parking lot. For more information, contact Jane Wolford at (510) 723-6680.

Lou Scarpa named Senior Commercial, Multifamily Loan Officer at Fremont Bank

SUBMITTED BY KURT HEATH

Fremont Bank announced today the addition of Lou Scarpa to its commercial lending team as a senior commercial, multifamily loan officer and relationship manager on February 26. In his new role, Scarpa will focus on growing the bank's portfolio of multi-family apartment, commercial real estate, and commercial and industrial loans.

Scarpa has 30 years of commercial real estate lending and brokerage experience in the Bay Area, including nearly a decade of previous service with Fremont Bank. He has also served as a vice president with Colliers International, TMC Development and, most recently, with Bank of the West, where he specialized in small business, multifamily, SBA 504, and commercial real estate loans.

According to Kim Burdick, senior vice president of Fremont Bank's community banking group, "Lou is an outstanding addition to the commercial lending team, and we are proud to welcome him back to the Fremont Bank family."

Calif. Republicans seek to restore party's luster

BY JULIET WILLIAMS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), California Republicans began gathering for a round of soul-searching Friday at the start of their spring convention as they seek to restore the party's luster after years of election defeats.

The state GOP is in debt and lost seats in the state Legislature and California's congressional delegation in November. Democrats hold all statewide offices and won supermajorities in the Assembly and Senate last fall.

Rep. Kevin McCarthy of Bakersfield joked that the good news for California Republicans is that they cannot get any lower. He urged Republicans to fundamentally restructure the party's operations, modeling the effort on President Barack Obama's re-election campaign last fall, which he called a "wake-up call to the California GOP."

"The political operation that this president has — communicating, identifying and data-mining — is by far superior to anything that Republicans have," McCarthy said during a gathering of the Sacramento Press Club. "And if there's a place that we should learn it, and if there's a place we should engage in it, and if there's a place we can apply it, it's right here in California."

Giving Day

SUBMITTED BY HILDA FURTADO

On March 2nd, Better Homes and Gardens Mason-McDuffie's Fremont Office provided services to help benefit Abode Services, a non-profit organization that offers housing programs and assistance to homeless and low-income families and individuals. Dozens of Fremont office agents and their families spent the day sprucing up Abode's Sunrise Village by painting and freshening up the shelter's community dining room and adding new plants and herbs to the family patio.

The Sunrise Village Emergency Shelter, located in Fremont, was specially designed and built to house homeless families and single adults in an efficient and dignified manner.

Longtime Better Homes and Gardens Mason-McDuffie agent, John R. Smith, is a member of Abode's Board of Directors. "No one in the Bay Area needs reminding that housing here is expensive," said Smith. "For a family struggling to get out of homelessness, finding affordable housing can be a huge obstacle. I am proud that Better Homes and Gardens Mason-McDuffie supports Abode as they work to ensure everyone has a home."

For more information about Abode Services, visit www.abodeservices.org.

NASA Mars rover in safe mode; science halted

AP WIRE SERVICE

PASADENA, California (AP), Science experiments by the NASA Mars rover Curiosity have been put on hold as engineers troubleshoot a problem with its computer.

NASA says the car-size rover is in "safe mode." In this state, Curiosity suspends science activities but is still in contact with Earth.

Engineers discovered a problem with Curiosity's flash memory earlier this week and switched to its backup computer.

Curiosity landed last summer in Gale Crater near the Martian equator to examine whether environmental conditions were favorable for microbes. It recently drilled into a rock and transferred a pinch of powder to its onboard laboratories to study the chemical makeup. It won't be able to finish the analysis until its systems are back to normal.

Navy dolphins losing out to robots

AP WIRE SERVICE

SAN DIEGO (AP), Dolphins used by the Navy to track down mines will soon lose their jobs to robots.

UT San Diego (<http://bit.ly/VbJkA0>) reports some military-trained dolphins will be replaced starting in 2017 by a 12-foot unmanned torpedo-shaped vehicle.

The military says the machines can do some of the same mine-hunting duties. And they can be manufactured quickly, unlike the seven years it takes to train a dolphin.

The dolphins won't be relieved of duty. They will still be used for port security and retrieving objects from the sea floor.

The Navy's $28 million marine mammal program dates back to the late 1950s. It uses 80 bottle-nosed dolphins and 40 California sea lions.

Dolphins have been deployed to Iraq and Bahrain to keep ports safe for American ships.

Tri-City Stargazer MARCH 6 – MARCH 12, 2013 BY VIVIAN CAROL

For All Signs: Infants born between Feb. 25, 2013 and March 11 have highly unusual horoscopes. During this period, there are six planetary bodies in the sign of Pisces. Many of these children will be deeply in touch with the collective unconscious and their wisdom may be astounding. This is likely so, even though they may be slower to learn practical matters of tying shoes, for example. Many will have special talents in the arts, writing, and music because of their gifted imaginations and the ability to mentally travel on frequencies most of us have tuned out. If you are the caretaker of one of these children, offer many opportunities to play in color and music. Given the tools, your child will lead you where he/she needs to go.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): You may feel droopy at the beginning of the week, but on the 12th your ruling planet, Mars, enters your sign. This will bring you a jolt of energy that will be with you for nearly seven weeks. Now is the time to prepare to take initiatives. Mercury turns direct on the 17th so you can then focus this energy productively.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Double check all incoming information this week, including that which you are thinking. This is a good time to enjoy friends and loved ones all around you. Romance looks favorable. Someone from the past may return for another “go” at relationship. Take your time on that one.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Important issues in the areas of life direction, career, marriage, and family are prominent at this time. There are almost too many options! Your mind is flying with thoughts, details, questions and maybe answers. Write down your better ideas for reflection in the future. Right now Mercury, your ruling planet, is retrograde, so it is better to collect, rather than act upon information.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You have favorable aspects concerning romance, social life, and family life with husband and children. This is a good time to heal rifts in any relationship. You may be traveling or making plans for your next journey. Aspects favor the law, education, the internet and publishing.

Leo the Lion (July 22-Aug 22): Given that Mercury is retrograde in your 8th house, the probability is that you are searching high and low for data in order to prepare your taxes. Don't panic if paper or data is lost during a Mercury retrograde, because it almost always resurfaces quickly. Aspects favor researching information about family heirlooms or history.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Because Mercury is retrograding in your 7th house, changes will be coming to you through others. Those of you engaged in any kind of contract or promise may feel the need to back off and rethink the situation. Those who are recently separated may want to try the relationship again. Hang onto your center. You can't make everyone happy.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Make it a point to triple check important details this week or you are liable to have to do your work over again. People from your work past return for a happy reunion. Aspects favor income, home repairs, and family life. Your frame of mind is steady, in spite of multiple activities.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Go with the flow at the beginning of the week. You can't push a 100 lb. rock uphill, no matter how hard you try. On the 12th, your planetary ruler, Mars, moves into a sign of strength and will be with you seven weeks. The romantic horizon is favorable. Just don't push the river. The wheels of the Powers that Be are finally turning in your direction.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): The symbols appear as though all your family members, their children, and their in-laws are visiting you at the same time. Although this is unlikely, your circumstances may feel as though you have so much change happening in your home (or in your psyche) that you can hardly contain it all. Take your time. Calm is in the future.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): Since November your path has become gradually easier. Work is available if you want it, which is reassuring in these times. Your mind is steady and you may be preparing to teach something soon. The flow is coming your way and you are “called” to lead others. Right now is the time to gather information.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Social and romantic life is favored this week. You may be mixing business and pleasure in a pleasant combination. This is a good time to discuss issues within a relationship because you are steady of mind and likely to be realistic, in relation to yourself as well as others. Avoid making concrete promises because circumstances may soon change.

Pisces the Fish: (Feb. 19-Mar 20) Give special attention to the lead paragraph. All those planets (6) in your sun sign suggest that you may be filled to overflowing with people and things in your life. Even the New Moon is in your sign on the 11th, suggesting a new creative idea is just beginning to emerge. Make time for your introversion in order to keep your balance.

BYE BYE BIRDIE

SUBMITTED BY
PAMELA ROSEN

Irvington High School Conservatory Theatre (ICT) is proud to present "Bye Bye Birdie" as its spring musical, March 7 through March 23 at Irvington's Valhalla Theatre in Fremont. Featuring the talents of 100 high school actors, singers, dancers, technicians, and musicians, "Bye Bye Birdie" recalls with joyful spirit the teenagers of early 1950s middle America, and their singular obsession with a new phenomenon called rock n' roll.

"Bye Bye Birdie" is one of the most beloved shows in American musical theatre history. It was among the first shows to incorporate rock music into the score. Based loosely on real events, it tells the tale of teen idol Conrad Birdie who is drafted into the army. At the urging of his songwriter Albert Peterson, Conrad travels to Sweet Apple, Ohio, with Albert and Albert's long-suffering girlfriend, Rosie.

Rosie has convinced Albert to write a farewell song for Conrad in a last-ditch attempt to create a hit for both Conrad and Albert so she can finally marry the elusive Albert. Conrad will kiss one lucky fan chosen at random on the Ed Sullivan Show; the lucky winner is 16-year-old Kim MacAfee.

But the trip to Sweet Apple is nowhere near as sweet as Albert and Rosie planned. Kim is a girl in a star-struck town with a jealous boyfriend, a well-meaning but overbearing family, and a free-spirited mind of her own. Her energy and attitude inspire Rosie—and the soon-to-be drafted Conrad—to realize they still have "a lot of living to do."

Featuring such memorable songs as "Put on a Happy Face," "Kids" and the iconic "Telephone Hour," Irvington's production of "Bye Bye Birdie" is full of energy, color, and fun. Irvington High School is Fremont's Arts Magnet high school, and its conservatory program is known for exceptional quality education for talented students in both academics and the arts.

Under the direction of Scott Di Lorenzo, "Bye Bye Birdie" will be performed March 7 - 9, 14 - 16, and 21 - 23 at 7:30 p.m. with additional matinee performances on March 10 and 17 at 2 p.m. Ticket prices range from $12 for students and seniors to $20 for premium seating. The Friday, March 8 performance will be interpreted for the hearing impaired. Tickets are available at www.irvingtondrama.com. Just click the "Buy Tickets" button to choose the best seats for you!

Music, Magic, Memories

unteers to 30-40. MFMI’s 25th Docent Training Classes will be taught at both the Castro Valley Adult School and the Fremont Adult School with a goal of preparing 50 new docents for schools in the fall of 2013.

Today MFMI serves Fremont, Newark, and Castro Valley School Districts along with some Extended Day Care Centers in Dublin and Pleasanton, private schools and pre-schools. Currently, about 100 docents share half hour weekly music lessons with almost 5,000 children. Music for Minors II has been warmly received in the East Bay community, receiving generous funding donations from the Fremont Unified School District, Niles PTA, and the Candle Lighters.

The Benefit Gala will celebrate the organization’s devoted volunteers as former and current volunteers reunite while increasing the program’s visibility in the community. Funds raised will expand MFMI within current school districts served and introduce its programs to Hayward, San Lorenzo, San Leandro, and Milpitas. Since its inception, MFMI’s mission is to fill a “void” by bringing music education to schools and nurturing the love and literacy of music in children’s lives. Zilli says, “The void continues and has even become more severe due to budgetary cutbacks and the current economy. Children cannot wait for future funding. They are the most susceptible in their formative years and often a musical experience can open up a child to the amazing world of music for a lifetime.”

Gala attendees will enjoy a delicious dinner, fun-filled silent and live auctions and talented local entertainers including Music for Minors students who will perform opening songs, “You Can Make a Miracle” and “Music in Me.” Docents, Newark Memorial Advanced Choir, an Indian dance troupe and the Dream

Achievers Band of young adults with autism will also be providing entertainment. A harpist, opera singer, live Peruvian band led by a new MFMI docent and dancing are all part of the evening’s festivities. Dessert will include a champagne toast to another 25 years and certificates of sponsor recognition. MFMI thanks “Fremont Bank for being such a strong Platinum Sponsor of the Gala along with many other sponsors and donors to make this milestone event so memorable.”

Early registration is requested since dinner entree selections are necessary. Tickets will not be available at the door. All proceeds from the Gala go directly to Music for Minors II.

ARE YOU READY FOR THE SUMMER?

SUBMITTED BY RENA KIEHN,
CITY OF FREMONT
RECREATION SUPERVISOR

It’s never too soon to start thinking about your future. Even if that future is just a few short months away. And what happens during those summer months can help establish your life and career in ways you would never expect.

Working at the City of Fremont Recreation Services Division for the summer season this year could prove to be that very thing. The skills learned and experiences, whether serving food to a customer, singing a song with a group of children, practicing drills with young sports enthusiasts or guarding patrons at the swimming pool in the Aqua Adventure water park will reinforce other life experiences during this rapidly developing time of life. These positions are ideal for older high school students and college-age young people.

Joel Teran says, “Working for the City of Fremont has introduced me to various amounts of responsibilities and put me to the test. Through training and of course experience I obtained countless skills. Upon being hired, I wasn’t the most confident or outgoing person in the world, but in an environment where being yourself is encouraged, I then found myself singing and dancing in front of an audience.”

Edris Kamal adds, “The City of Fremont Recreation Services Division is a great opportunity for all styles of people. Whether you are artistic, athletic, creative, or have musical talents, there is a spot for you. This opportunity offers future experience and helps to build confidence and character. You will always be working around fun and friendly co-workers who share the same interests as you.”

About 100 positions being filled this summer and will vary in length of committed time and range of duties. You can learn more about the specific job duties and download the part time recreation application by visiting: www.fremont.gov/employment.

Turn in completed applications and take part in preliminary interviews at the first ever City of Fremont Summer Job Fair on March 11 at the Centerville Community Center, 3355 Country Drive from 5:00 – 7:30 pm. The LOOP

Mission-Foothill makeover almost complete

SUBMITTED BY CHRIS GILLIS

Construction of “The Loop” in Hayward will start Friday night, March 15, 2013 and be completed before Monday’s morning commute on March 18, 2013. This is a final piece of the biggest public works project in Hayward’s history, designed to relieve congestion, improve traffic and provide easier access to Hayward’s Downtown. However, completing this critical piece of the 238 Corridor Improvement Project will require major traffic disruptions for a short period of time.

The Loop is part of the 238 Mission Corridor Improvement Project, started in August 2010. Three hundred new trees, Bay Friendly-rated landscaping, landscaped medians, improved sidewalks and new LED street lighting are just some of the highlights. The final product will be a massive improvement for Hayward. Construction of this huge project will be complete by June 2013.

The Loop: new traffic flow takes effect on March 18, 2013. For a video about The Loop, visit <http://bit.ly/XLjd7W>

The Loop changes the flow of traffic to a single direction - in a loop configuration - affecting the critical Five Flags area from Jackson Street and Mission Boulevard up to A Street and Foothill Boulevard. It will send southbound traffic from Foothill Boulevard down A Street then onto Mission Boulevard. Northbound traffic will flow from Mission Boulevard and Jackson Street in the south onto Foothill Boulevard until it becomes two-way again north of A Street. From the north, Main, A, C, and D Streets offer several easy ways into Downtown. Heading out of Downtown, Main, B, C, and D Streets all have ways to jump back into The Loop or across it to access the Hayward BART Station or the Upper B Street neighborhood.

The Route 238 Corridor Improvement Project is paid for primarily with Alameda County Measure B funds, the half-cent transportation sales tax passed by voters and administered by the Alameda County Transportation Commission. The Project is designed to improve access for residents and businesses while improving traffic flow and reducing congestion.

For more information about the Route 238 Corridor Improvement Project, visit <http://bit.ly/JxjHb>

Dark Matter

Mysterious dark matter and dark energy are aspects of our Universe that we cannot see, taste, or feel, but they are very important: dark matter keeps galaxies gravitationally bound, and dark energy is accelerating the expansion of the Universe. We wouldn't exist without dark matter, or if dark energy were much stronger than it is!

Cougars continue to dominate

SUBMITTED BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

On Friday night, May 1, sparkling Cougar play clearly demonstrated why they are the best team in their division. Newark Memorial's Cougars, using a stifling defense, dismantled the Dublin Gaels to claim the North Coast Section Division II title, 74-60.

Number one ranked, the Cougars defense dominated the well regarded, high-powered Gaels offense which previously had not scored less than 85 points in any other playoff game. Dublin started on a good note as they scored first four points of the game but then things quickly fell apart when the Cougar defense stepped in forcing several turnovers – the ton was set for the rest of the night. Newark started using its great team speed and a defense that never let up all night, refusing to give the Gaels any second shot opportunities.

Along with a powerful offensive attack by Joey Frenchwood, Jo Jo Zamora and Chandler Rockwell, the Gaels were knocked off balance without an effective counterpunch. Joey Frenchwood had the hot shooting hand for Newark with 21 points. He had help from Chandler Rockwell who found great open lines to drive the ball to the hoop, resulting in 16 points and Jo Jo Zamora was unstoppable from the outside as he racked up 13 points of his own.

Dublin did start a run of its own three minutes into the second quarter when Devin Koeplin went in for nice layup. Hard contact under the basket resulted in a foul shot and he found the net in a free throw to give the Gaels a 20-18 lead. But the Newark offense went back to work and the Cougars scored six straight to points regain the lead. Another well-timed 8-0 Cougar run closed the half.

The Gaels made one last push to close within three points, 36-33, with two minutes left in the third quarter, but again, Newark's defense stepped in and led the way to the title as the Cougars fought back and took control of the game with dogged determination. Back in control, the Cougars used the outlet pass to run the court for a 12-0 streak to finish the game with a final score, 74 to 60.

Newark Memorial 23-7 (ranked #7 - North Host) will travel to Archbishop Mitty High School 26-4 (ranked #2 - North Host) of San Jose for the first round of California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) Regional playoffs March 8th.

Cougars advance in Division II Championships

Newark Memorial's Cougars advanced to the North Coast Section Division II Championship as they overcame a furious first quarter assault by the Montgomery Vikings (Santa Rosa) in the semi-final matchup February 27 at Washington High School (Fremont). The Vikings attacked quickly with a determined offense by shooting stars Keil Long and Alec Raven, hoping to put the Cougars off-balance. It worked, barely, creating a slim one point lead (11-10) at the end of the first quarter.

Landing on their feet, the Cougars displayed why they will go to the championship game as they put on a display of all-around basketball prowess. The defense led the way, fighting hard on every play under the basket and smothering Raven and Long with double coverage. As the tone of the game changed, the Cougar offensive power of Jo Jo Zamora (17 points) and Joey Frenchwood (13 points) began to score at will.

By the end of the contest, it was clear that the Newark Memorial Cougars (22-7) belong in the championship game facing the Dublin Gaels (24-5) on their home court at Dublin High School Friday, March 1. Dublin advanced to the finals with a convincing win over Mt. Eden (Hayward).

WORLD SERIES TROPHIES COME TO TOWN

BY SIMON WONG

The SF Giants and City of Hayward will host a reception at City Hall from 3:30 p.m. until 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 12, 2013. Guests of honor will be the 2010 and 2012 World Series trophies and all are welcome to attend. SF Giants fans and other baseball supporters will have the opportunity to pose for photographs.

Hayward Police Department's (PD) Lt. Sheryl Boykins wears many hats including that of the Hayward Junior Giants Commissioner for the City of Hayward, a post in which she has served for 12 years. Originally, as a Hayward PD Officer, she coached local children who enrolled in the Junior Giants program held during the summer vacation. As her professional career progressed, it became increasingly difficult to devote time as a coach. The Junior Giants' invitation to become Commissioner of the Hayward League enabled her to continue her association with the program.

Youngsters who enroll in the Junior Giants program can play baseball in a non-competitive environment. It is geared toward those who are unable to join Little League because of financial issues, lack of knowledge of the game and similar constraints. It costs approximately $150 for a child to play in Little League, a substantial sum for a family on a very tight budget.

The Giants Community Fund finances the program which is facilitated by Hayward PD. Officers coach the young athletes and interact with them as sporting role models rather than law enforcers. To continue to engage young people and assure the program's future in Hayward, the Hayward League hires former participants, too old to qualify to play, as the next generation of coaches. Hayward PD organizes an annual basketball tournament in July to raise monies to enable the Junior Giants

"The Junior Giants program, which is open to youngsters aged five to 15 years, has kept many on the straight and narrow."

Fund to cover the following year's stipends for young coaches.

In 2012, more than 500 children enrolled. They were organized into teams based on age group and, to some extent, ability. There are players with learning difficulties, partial sight and other issues requiring accommodation. Nobody is turned away unless staff finds the numbers too overwhelming. Although some might prefer a different field, baseball is played at Weekes Park, South Hayward. Conveniently, most children can walk there.

"The Hayward League aims to instill and develop qualities in players, including leadership," stated Boykins. "In 2012, a father took his eight-year old daughter to Target for new shoes. Customarily, she would leave her old ones behind and return home in her new footwear. On this occasion she refused the new items, explaining to her father that 'this is not what leaders do,' adamant the Junior Giants would not let her play in better kit than everyone else. She left the store barefoot. This was a family on a limited income and a young girl wrestling with her conscience. We were able to obtain backpacks, shoes and other items for her through Hayward Rotary and when we informed Target, they highlighted her.

"There is a former player who came up through the program and has learning disabilities. He joined when he was 10 and is 24-years old now and one of our coaches. All he wants is to be a Giant; sadly, that will never happen but he loves the SF Giants, wears their colors all the time, talks about them incessantly and is another of our success stories," Boykins reflected.

The Junior Giants program, open to youngsters aged five to 15 years, has kept many on the straight and narrow. Rather than leave them generally unsupervised during the summer months, at an impressionable age and subject to peer pressure, they can play baseball in a safe environment. The Hayward Area Recreation and Park District allows the program free use of Weekes Park. Similarly, the "Let's Do Lunch, Hayward... and Breakfast, Too" program provides free meals for the players and families. According to Boykins, it is impossible to put a monetary value on the program's success; the rewards for all concerned are the personal and social values the program imbues.

"I had to write a proposal to the SF Giants explaining why the Trophies should come to Hayward. I highlighted our involvement with the Junior Giants and how the program has grown each year. One of the requirements that must be met, if the Trophies are to be displayed in our City, is at least 1,000 visitors. There are 500 children, plus parents, and we have engaged with Chabot and Cal State University's Athletics Departments. The whole community is encouraged to attend," explained Boykins. "How often do you have the opportunity to see the World Series Trophy? The SF Giants also request a $2 donation from anyone whose photo is taken with the Trophy for the benefit of the Junior Giants Fund.

If there is an opportunity to volunteer or participate in some other way with our program, please get involved. This program is easy to fund; our overheads are low, so a few donations each year are the difference between the program's continuation and demise. The Giants provide free shirts, hats, gloves... all the equipment. Baseball is the all-American game," concluded Boykins.

African American Heritage

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

Assemblyman Bob Wieckowski (D-Fremont) honored African American leaders from Alameda and Santa Clara counties at his 2nd Annual African American Heritage Leadership Awards Ceremony on Sunday, February 24, 2013 at the South Bay Community Church, 47385 Warm Springs Boulevard, Fremont.

“I am honoring four leaders from the 25th Assembly District whose leadership and community service stretch over decades and who continue to have a positive influence in our area, today,” Wieckowski said. “Each of these leaders has a strong commitment to education and helping families and children in their communities.”

Wieckowski is honoring Rev. Horacio Jones of the Family Bible Fellowship in Newark; Jean Ficklin, founder of the Afro-American Cultural and Historical Society; Rev. Jethroe Moore, president of the San Jose/Silicon Valley NAACP; and Will Ector, superintendent of the Berryessa Union School District.

Ficklin was one of the first African American teachers in the Newark Unified School District and has helped create programs celebrating diversity and social equality. Rev. Jones began his work in the ministry at the age of 21. He mentors other pastors and church leaders on a variety of subjects, including ministry growth and expansion.

In addition to his work with the NAACP, Rev. Moore

WILLIAM MARSHAK

The word "Waffle" has come through the ages, courtesy of the Dutch word "wafel" referring to a cloth weave and, better yet, resulting in the description of a yummy, crisp honeycomb of baked dough. However, another, less palatable, use of the term appears to have originated as the verb "Waff" in Northern England and Scotland, possibly imitating animal sounds, used to describe a yelp or bark. Both morphed into the same word but with much different meanings.

It appears that the same word which can elicit positive feelings in anticipation of a delicious treat can also degenerate into the chaotic and confusing realm of indecision. In some respects, the same dilemma can apply to political leadership. Elected representatives are artful at giving the illusion of a warm, toasty and delicious future, while, hiding within the details of budgets and political decisions, hide an entirely different type of waffle.

From the national/international scene to state and regional politics, the art of waffle has been perfected over many years. Witness the current "sequestration" or forcible possession of the national budget resulting from the inability of those elected to make decisions. The State of California has been manufacturing budgets filled with smoke and mirrors for years, so we, the people, tiring of the game, have simply let it continue. At the local level, however, the effect of popular support or opposition can be visibly dominant and, it is at this level that each of us can make a difference.

In recent weeks, I have observed the power of the electorate and feel privileged to watch as some City Councils have responded to the will of their communities rather than function as a simple rubber stamp of Staff recommendations. Staff input is important and should be viewed as valuable advice, but their role is as a technical and practical advisor. It is at the nexus of council meetings that citizens are able to help elected representatives fulfill their function as final arbiter. Defining the shape and scope of cityscape and budgets is important to each city's future. There is always a place and time for citizens to participate through reasoned and rational input, assisting the process without rancor.

With active participation of the electorate, we can all make waffles that taste great. Without it, politicians are prone to make waffles out of waffles.

For Each and Every Child

SUBMITTED BY THE
OFFICE OF CONGRESSMAN MIKE HONDA

The future of the American Dream depends on what we do at this decisive moment. As an educator for more than 30 years, I know the dream is first ignited in the classroom. Education is the origin of opportunity in our cities and towns and is the engine of exceptionalism on the world stage. Now, more than ever before, the attainability of the American dream is imperiled by an opportunity gap in public education - a gap exacerbated by wealth disparities at the local level. Our nation's global leadership is also threatened by widening disparities between American children and students from other developed nations, as our children and families fall further below the poverty line.

At this decisive moment, the Commission on Equity and Excellence in Education issues "For Each and Every Child." The report is not a restatement of public education's struggles, nor is it a mere list of recommendations. Rather, this is a declaration of an urgent national mission: to provide equity and excellence in education in American public schools once and for all. This collective wisdom is a historic blueprint for making the dream of equity, and a world-class education, for each and every American child a reality.

After a year-and-a-half of ground-breaking public dialogue and debate, of study and scrutiny, this report reflects the thinking of the nation's foremost educational experts, who worked arduously and collaboratively, despite our sometimes-disparate ideas about educational reform. It is also inclusive of the input, experiences and ideas of teachers, parents, students, school board members, counselors and principals from across the nation. We present a big and bold new vision on the federal role in education by recommending transformations in school funding structures, implementation of vibrant early-education programs and a commitment to a stronger investment for teacher preparation and retention in the field. This will affect how we assess and address the educational needs of each and every child in America, thereby forging equity for all.

This game-changing report embraces the urgent truth in education reform: that parity is not equity. The report commits to a transformative vision on how local, state and federal governments can, and should, wield power to ensure excellence in education for all of America's children.

We are at a formative moment in American education and this report reflects the gravity of the moment. We must all work together tirelessly to make public education thrive in every community in this great nation. By rising to meet this moment, and by guaranteeing that each child is inspired and equipped to succeed, we safeguard America's founding values and advance our competitiveness, our prosperity and our security. When public education is equitable, the dream of America endures. - Foreword by Congressman Mike Honda from the Commission on Equity and Excellence in Education's "For Each and Every Child" report.

Honda submitted the Citizens' Commission on Educational Equity Act 2008 (HR 7203) to convene a commission to examine and propose solutions to the inequalities present in the public education system. The Commission's charter was filed in February 2011.

"I am humbled and honored for the opportunity to work with the nation's foremost educational leaders and researchers. As an educator, I witnessed disparities in the system and am gratified to see this process of addressing all of America's children's needs is underway. The Commissioners represent various philosophies, backgrounds and perspectives but share a common passion and vision to guarantee an equitable education for every child. Accordingly, the report contains one singular, common vision for student achievement," stated Congressman Mike Honda.

"This is the first time the federal government has called on providing access to high-quality, early childhood education for each and every child. We must ensure that everyone can begin their education on a level-playing field and close gaps early before they are too wide. We cannot afford to play catch-up later. I applaud President Obama for calling for the same policy in his State of the Union. I look forward to working with the administration to realize this.

"We must overhaul financing of schools; the federal government needs states to acknowledge each and every child's needs when funding their schools. We must ensure our children have access to high quality and effective teachers by recruiting, rigorously training and retaining the best and the brightest to staff our schools.

"This report is not the culmination of the Commission's work but the start of much serious effort to address the inequities in opportunities for our students in public schools so they have a fair shot at the American Dream. I look forward to moving forward the recommendations of "For Each and Every Child" through Congress, working with my friend and colleague Congressman Fattah. We are both passionate and committed to providing a quality education for all children.

"To begin this next chapter of ensuring educational equity, I will host a roll out event in my district shortly. Additionally, we will introduce the Commissioners to discuss the recommendations with schools and the community. We will examine not only the disparities but how schools work to provide a high quality education that affords each child the opportunity to succeed. I look forward to continuing this dialogue in my district.

"It is only when our nation begins to address the needs of each and every child that we can ensure America will continue to remain a global leader and innovator. This is neither a minority issue nor a poverty issue but an American issue. To ensure our future economic and social prosperity, it is imperative we work together to effect reform," concluded Honda.

Did you know...

- ☐ is the leading producer of spinach in the United States.
- Spinach is an important way for kids to get Vitamin ☐.
- Spinach was the first ☒ vegetable to be sold back in 1930.

Vitamin

Vitamin K is the clotmaster! Remember the last time you got a cut? Your blood did something special called clotting. This is when certain cells in your blood act like glue and stick together at the surface of the cut to help stop the bleeding.

Spinach is a great source of Vitamin K!

Kid Scoop Together:

Fill In The Blanks

Ask a friend to give you each type of word. Fill in the blanks and read the story aloud for some silly fun.

Loopy Lunch

Last Friday, something very strange happened in the school cafeteria. Instead of the regular menu, they served _____, _____ and _____.

Students had to _____ in a very long line to get their _____ lunch. This _____ caused a lot of confusion, so they were instructed to _____ in line instead.

Later, Britney McHale slipped on some spilled _____ and her tray went flying through the _____. Students were completely covered in gobs of _____.

Our principal tried to calm everyone. He spoke into the _____, but everyone was too busy trying to _____ through the mess. Our custodian used a _____ to mop up the spill, which seemed really strange, but it worked.

I'm pretty sure that's the last time they will allow _____ to prepare the school lunches!

Standards Link: Grammar: Understand and use nouns, adjectives, verbs and interjections in writing and speaking.

Kid Scoop-doku

- 1 tbsp vinegar

Wash and dry 6 ounces of raw spinach.

Add 1/4 cup raisins (or other dried fruit).

Make a dressing by mixing olive oil, orange juice and vinegar.

Toss and serve for a fresh, crunchy, sweet treat!

Strong to the Finish

When this spinach-munching cartoon character made his debut in 1929, spinach became the third most popular children's food after turkey and ice cream. Circle every other letter to discover his name, then write it on the spaces.

Interfaith Harmony week
SUBMITTED BY MOINA SHAIQ

The United Nations General Assembly has proclaimed the first week of February to be World Interfaith Harmony Week. The Alameda County Human Relations Commission supports this notion that all people, regardless of religion or no religion, faith, culture or belief, observe the need for dialogue to enhance mutual understanding and cooperation. We encourage members of all communities to reach out to other communities to share one another's customs, ceremonies, and fundamental beliefs so that awareness, education and knowledge may be the basis for acceptance, respect and common ground. Focusing on the similarities and acknowledging the differences possessed by all people provides the foundation for community, collaboration and caring.

Reserve Office volunteers for schools

SUBMITTED BY NEWARK PD

The Newark Police Department, in partnership with the Newark Unified School District, is pleased to announce that Reserve Police Officer Phil Holland has graciously volunteered his time to be a resource at our elementary schools a couple of days each week. Reserve Officer Holland, who spent over 30 years with both the Oakland and Newark Police Departments before retiring and becoming a Reserve Police Officer with the City of Newark, spear-headed this idea and has been working closely with the Special Enforcement Team (SET) and school administrators for the past few months to set this plan in motion. Reserve Officer Holland began spending time on our elementary campuses helping students, greetings families, and serving as a resource to our schools on Monday, February 25, 2013. We are very excited to have Reserve Officer Holland working with our schools in this capacity.

Gasoline excise tax to increase 3.5 cents

SUBMITTED BY JAIME GARZA

Effective July 1, 2013, the excise tax on gasoline will increase by 3.5 cents to 39.5 cents per gallon and the excise tax on diesel fuel will remain unchanged at 10 cents per gallon. This follows a vote February 28, 2013 by the California State Board of Equalization (BOE) which executed its legislative mandate to adjust the rate by March 1, 2013.

Although excise tax is not paid directly by the consumer, the gas station owner may choose to pass this tax onto the customer in the form of higher gas prices. While the excise on

Statement from Supervisor Dave Cortese

SUBMITTED BY
JANICE ROMBECK

Supervisor Dave Cortese received a letter of resignation from Supervisor George Shirakawa on the morning of March 1, 2013, and is releasing this statement:

“By stepping down and pleading guilty to the District Attorney’s charges, Supervisor Shirakawa is doing the right thing for his constituents and the county. I’ve known George for 20 years and am sorry that he got into this situation, but it’s better for us as a board and for Santa Clara County to put this cloud of controversy behind us.

“The investigations into his alleged misuse of expense accounts, campaign finance reporting and personal spending habits were affecting his ability to represent residents of his district on issues that affect them. I strongly support Supervisor Shirakawa’s efforts to receive medical help and counseling for his depression and gambling addiction.

I hope that we can move forward quickly to fill the District 2 seat. I will work with my colleagues as soon as possible to determine the most appropriate way to do that. In the meantime, my office is prepared to help out the District 2 residents who need information and services.”

gasoline will go up by 3.5 cents, the BOE cannot predict what the selling price of gasoline will be on July 1, 2013.

In 2010, Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger signed Assembly Bill x8 6, Ch. 11, and Senate Bill 70, Ch. 9. These bills lowered the sales and use tax rate on gasoline and increased the excise tax rate on July 1, 2010. The laws require the annual sales and excise taxes paid on gasoline to remain revenue neutral. They also mandated the BOE to adjust the excise tax rate by March 1 of each year in order to ensure revenue neutrality.

“The legislature mandated that we equalize the sales and excise taxes to avoid a net increase in taxes,” said BOE Chairman Jerome E. Horton. “We could protest the legislation and not make the rate adjustment; however, we would be violating law and, arguably, exposing taxpayers to even higher taxes in the future.”

Public Art Registry

SUBMITTED BY GUY ASHLEY

The Alameda County Arts Commission invites artists from the nine counties of the San Francisco Bay Area to apply for potential inclusion in the 2013 Artist Registry, a prequalified artist pool that will be used for upcoming public art opportunities associated with Alameda County capital improvement projects.

Public art opportunities may include exterior and interior projects, be appropriate for artists working in a variety of materials and styles, and have a range of project budgets. Many of the opportunities will be for artists to make a new series of smaller artworks in the studio. Therefore, artists who make two-dimensional, low-relief, or wall sculptural artwork are encouraged to apply. Specific project sites include: San Lorenzo Library, East County Hall of Justice (Dublin), Highland Hospital (Oakland), and other sites to be determined.

Three information meetings for artists interested in applying are scheduled: Tuesday, March 19, 4:30 - 6:00 p.m. at the Dublin Library, 200 Civic Plaza, Dublin; Thursday, March 21, 5:30 – 7:00 p.m. Lakeside Plaza Building, 1401 Lakeside Drive, Oakland; and Monday, April 1, 6:00 – 7:30 p.m. at the San Lorenzo Library, 395 Paseo Grande, San Lorenzo.

Complete application information is available at www.acgov.org/arts (click on “Opportunities”) or call (510) 208-9646 to receive the information by mail. To be considered for these opportunities, artists must register and submit an application through the CaFÉ website, www.callforentry.org (search for “Alameda County” in the list of current calls).

Mary and Herb Tovar of Fremont celebrated sixty years of married life

Mary and Herb Tovar of Fremont celebrated sixty years of married life Friday, February 22, 2013 at China Chili Restaurant. During their lifetimes, they have experienced many changes and innovations; as young children, The Great Depression and later, in the thirties, radios at home, talking movies and expansion of travel by automobile.

The forties brought WWII, rationing and war bonds for Mary and the ETO (European Theater of Operations) and crossing the English Channel for Herb. After the war they met, married and were blessed with their first child. The fifties brought television into homes, the Korean War and three more children.

During the sixties, their eldest child was sent to Vietnam and his marriage resulted in two beautiful grandchildren. The seventies, eighties, nineties and two thousands have brought highs, lows and another grandson, three great-grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

Mary and Herb are very thankful for their family and friends, a wonderful city of residence and the support and comfort of their church.

Mass. boy, trying to avoid bedtime, calls 911

AP WIRE SERVICE

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP),Police in Massachusetts say a 10-year-old boy called 911 because he didn't want to go to bed.

Brockton police say the boy made the emergency call just after 8 p.m. Wednesday and told the dispatcher he was calling to report his mother because he did not want to go to bed.

There was no emergency.

The Enterprise (http://bit.ly/YoKmJZ) reports that according to the police log, an officer went to the boy's home and explained to him when it's appropriate – and when it's not – to call 911.

No one was charged.

Swalwell disappointed
by sequester

SUBMITTED BY ANDREW GINSBURG

Congressman Eric Swalwell (CA-15) released expressed his disappointment on March 1, 2013 that the indiscriminate budget cuts, known as the “sequester,” were not averted:

“I am deeply disappointed that the sequester goes into effect today, setting off across-the-board budget cuts that will hurt our critical services like those for schools, public health and public safety and research and development. Americans are rightly sick of economic crises like the sequester manufactured by Washington, and they deserve a Congress that comes together to act in ways that will help grow our economy and responsibly reduce the deficit.

“We can cut foolish spending, without foolishly cutting spending. The sequester is no doubt foolish. It takes a meat cleaver approach to the budget when we should be using a scalpel to cut waste while ensuring teachers are not laid off, children do not lose access to vaccinations and seniors continue to receive meals. Millions of jobs and our entire economy have been put at risk by this recklessness.

“I am proud to be a co-sponsor of H.R. 699, the Stop the Sequester Job Loss Now Act, which would replace indiscriminate budget cuts with a combination of smart spending reductions and additional revenue. Unfortunately, the House Republican Leadership refused to consider this or any other plan for this Congress to stop the sequester from going into effect.

“We can mitigate the damage these budget cuts cause by acting without delay to replace them with a balanced approach. I stand ready to work with anyone, from either party, to move away from this senseless policy toward a thoughtful and rational approach to fiscal responsibility. It is time for Congress to put politics aside and compromise to provide certainty for our economy, protect jobs and develop a responsible budget.”

Hayward City Council February 19, 2013

Joint City Council/Planning Commission Work Session

General Plan Update: Overview of initial community outreach efforts and presentation of draft Vision and Guiding Principles. Only 135 people (of 160,000 residents) have joined the www.2040.org discussion forum.
Councilman Jones suggested outreach might be improved with either the biennial, telephone customer-satisfaction survey's contact list of 600 randomly-selected individuals or, if this is not possible, that a new survey be commissioned for the General Plan Update. A small group of active community members participates in most things but there is a real need for input from a broader and more representative section of the City's population. The Vision and Guiding Principles should include both public and private sector education. Hayward has some excellent private schools that draw families. Mayor Sweeney criticized those who did not proffer solutions but considered outreach efforts might be better.

Consent

Accepted resignation of Monica Ruiz from the Keep Hayward Clean and Green Task Force.
Approval of plans and specifications, certification of Negative Declaration and call for bids for the new Hayward Executive Airport Administration Building – item held until March 5, 2013.
Approved the purchase of one acre of land for the Greenwood Park expansion for $655,560 from the Park-in-Lieu account.
Authorized City Manager to execute a professional services contract with Willdan Financial Services for a maximum amount of $40,555: $11,985 for a full overhead cost allocation plan/OMB A-87 plan and $28,570 for a comprehensive master fee study.

Public Hearing

South Hayward BART Transit-Oriented Development: approval of action plan for the South Hayward BART Joint Powers Authority (JPA), establishment of Mixed-Use Preferential Parking District and Parking Permit Program for residents and BART commuters. Introduction of ordinance amending the Traffic Code and related actions, including appropriation of $200,000 for initial start-up costs.

Councilmen Zermeno and Mendall invoked the JPA's spending authority by proposing specific language as an amendment to staff recommendations, viz. to direct parking revenues to combat graffiti and litter in the neighborhood around South Hayward BART. Both serve on the JPA. Mayor Sweeney supported the motion reluctantly and asked BART not to disappoint.

Legislative Business

Received Comprehensive Annual Financial report for year-ended June 30, 2012 and Memorandum on Internal Control and required Communications.
Adopted interim urgency ordinance imposing a temporary moratorium on the development, establishment and operation of Computer Gaming and Internet Access businesses in Hayward, to take immediate effect. Adopted staff recommendations with an amendment by Councilman Greg Jones to include premises with more than one computer with wireless or network connectivity.

Public Comment

Don Biles complained of paint spots on his car arising from road striping crews.
Gilbert Hessia, VP SE1021, Maintenance Unit, spoke of non-economic changes to terms of employment at the City of Hayward.
Linda Reid spoke of comparative salaries in other cities.
Gail Eakin spoke of her career at Hayward Police Department's jail and how her household income has fallen by 38 percent. Her husband also works at the jail.

Francisco Abrantes complained that the City does not adhere to the published street sweeping schedule despite paying for the public service. Given that the official schedule is not maintained, he is unhappy that he receives citations for parking in prohibited areas.

Consent:

Move former Redevelopment Agency funds into appropriate Successor Agency accounts.
Authorize submission of Project Application for $2,000,000 Teen Center improvements from Measure WW funds. Overall project at Kennedy Park includes Teen Center, Recreation and Family Center, parking and access is divided into four phases. Appropriation will begin the process, but additional funds are required and will depend on outside sources (i.e. grants, etc.).

Removed from Consent:

Resolution appropriation of Proposition 84 grant funds to Decoto Green Street project. Award design contract to Bellecci & Associates.

Public Hearings:

Introduce Ordinance to modify permitted and conditional uses in Industrial Districts. Discussion of existing and grandfathered nonconforming businesses that would like to expand within the Industrial area but will be restricted by new ordinance.

Council split on whether this should be explored by Staff or code should be firm in outlining Industrial use areas. Ordinance was approved unanimously, 4-0 (Councilmember Gacoscos absent) but a proposal to direct Staff to explore exceptions for grandfathered businesses failed by a 2-2 vote (Ellis, Navarro – aye / Dutra-Vernaci, Duncan – nay).

City Manager Reports:

Fiscal report of 2012-13 second quarter, Budget to Actual Results July 1-December 31, 2012 and Preliminary Expenditure Projections. Although income is below expectations, expenditures have also been reduced and preliminary projections are relatively stable at this time. Future reports will reveal more substantial information. A troubling aspect for the financial future of Union City is the future retirement of Measure AA and Measure UU funding which will create a very difficult economic scenario. Thought is being given to place an extension for Measure AA on a future General Election ballot.

He urged Republicans to deliver a message of optimism and “embrace a little bit of our libertarianism.” If Republicans can turn around their fortunes in California, they can do it anywhere, he said.

Fewer than 30 percent of California voters are registered Republican, continuing a 20-year decline. The party has lost support among the fastest-growing segment of the electorate, Latino voters, who have shunned the GOP in California since 1994, when Gov. Pete Wilson championed Proposition 187.

That ballot initiative prohibited illegal immigrants from using public health care programs, education and a variety of social services. The law was later overturned by the courts but has left lingering resentment among Latinos.

Despite McCarthy’s appeal to embrace libertarianism, there is little appetite among the party faithful to revisit the party’s conservative platform, which includes opposition to gay marriage, abortion and universal health care. McCarthy said “California has spoken” on gay marriage, and he personally believes marriage should be between a man and a woman.

California voters banned gay marriage with the approval of Proposition 8 in 2008, and the U.S. Supreme Court will take up a challenge to the law later this month. A Field Poll released this week found that six in 10 Californians now say they approve of gay marriage, including 71 percent among those who are not affiliated with either of the two major political parties.

He was also asked to weigh in on legalization of marijuana, a topic he said draws more attention online than any other, even in the midst of an economic crisis. He said he does not believe legalizing marijuana is the answer, but he is open to discussions on changing current laws.

“I do think there’s a role somewhere, though, that government should not be in every single part of our lives,” McCarthy said. “And I think there’s things that we can look at, things that we can talk about.”

A slim majority of California voters also said they support allowing marijuana to be sold and taxed like alcohol, the Field Poll reported this week.

McCarthy, the House GOP whip, is among those who have tried to turn around his party’s fortunes, with limited success. He leads the party’s candidate-recruitment program and backed several candidates nationwide last November.

In California, a few of the candidates his group backed won election to the Legislature, but the party failed in its attempt to unseat Democratic Rep. Jerry McNerney despite heavy spending.

He said he believes his group laid the foundation for future success and that 2012 was not the year they could win, given Obama’s massive campaign infrastructure nationwide. McCarthy said that helped Democratic candidates at all levels.

Delegates at the party’s weekend convention in the state capital also will hear from Republican strategist Karl Rove before they are expected to elect former Senate Minority Leader Jim Brulte as their new chairman. Brulte, of Rancho Cucamonga, has said the party is deeply in debt and that he wants to fix its organizational problems before taking on its messaging.

Brulte said the party needs to recruit, train and provide whatever technical resources it can afford to help Republican candidates running at all levels of office.

“I want to be the most boring Republican Party chairman in the history of California. I want to focus on nuts and bolts. It’s not glamorous, it’s not exciting, it’s just necessary,” he said in an interview with The Associated Press last month.

Brulte and other Republicans want to focus on what they call the GOP’s core values, which they say align closely with those of the state’s growing ethnic populations.

Merrill Gardens presents check to USO

Merrill Gardens has partnered with the USO to raise funds to support their programs for the past three years. Since that time the company has raised a total of $166,000 to support USO activities.

Many of the senior residents living at Merrill Gardens communities have fond memories of the USO from their days in the military. For the past 69 years, the USO has been the bridge between the American public and the U.S. military, delivering comfort, morale and recreational services to our troops. The USO is a congressionally chartered, private, nonprofit organization that relies on the generosity of individuals and corporations to support USO activities.

Merrill Gardens at Fremont presented a check for $10,236.33 to the USO Northern California Chapter on February 27. This money was raised during Merrill Gardens annual companywide Support Our Troops Week with each of the 56 Merrill Gardens communities across the country hosting a fundraiser for the USO. Merrill Gardens donated all food and labor costs and a total of $66,000 was raised for the USO this year.

Together

“Wherever we go, whatever we do
We’re gonna go through it together”

Ethel Merman belted out these words in the stirring musical “Gypsy” loosely based on the memoirs of famous striptease artist Gypsy Rose Lee. Her show business mother was both a sail and anchor, but reminiscing in song, they always had each other to share and understand their fate. Not everyone has their life story retold in books or musicals, but the twists and turns of life are remarkable, even when the world seems to turn too fast to notice. As age overtakes even those most hardy, more often than not, some life companions disappear, mobility can decrease and children grow up, trying to balance the needs of older relatives with those of their own nuclear families.

Finding new companions who share similar life experiences, decade-related memories, empathy for joys and compassion for the trials and tribulations of aging can be a daunting task. When faced with the task, siblings and children are inundated with a myriad of feelings and responsibilities that can be confusing and overwhelming. Simple requests by elderly relatives for transportation and companionship become monumental problems without easy answers.

Barbara Proctor has the solution. As the daughter of an active centenarian mom with years of management experience at an assisted living facility and Volunteer Coordinator for Meals on Wheels in Fremont, her own life journey has prepared Barbara to interact with a wide variety of people, especially the elderly, in search of comfort, empathy and companionship. Known in her family as a “Gorgeous Grandma” or “GG,” she has transformed her bubbly personality, easy manner and love for people into a new enterprise.

GG’s Caring Companion Service is filled with energy and fun. The company motto, “Getting older is not for sissies – I can help!” says it all. Proctor not only fills in when needed for trips to the doctor, shopping, lunch outings or just taking a walk, her experience is invaluable when clients and families are considering life decisions involving assisted living and adjunct care. “GG” is an easy solution no matter what the Bay Area location; she is just a phone call away. Barbara is mobile and insured to handle almost any companion request. With her trusty GPS by her side to find any venue, think about expanding the family tree with a Gorgeous Grandma branch.

Through thick and through thin, all out or all in.
And whether it’s win, place or show.
With you for me and me for you,
we’ll muddle through whatever we do.
Together, wherever we go.

Officer-involved shooting and assault on police officer

SUBMITTED BY
SGT. ERIC KRIMM, HAYWARD PD

On March 3, 2013, at 3.20 a.m., a Hayward Police Officer in a marked vehicle observed a car being driven recklessly at speed on City streets. The Officer, who was accompanied by a civilian ride-along, engaged emergency lights, gave chase and attempted contact with the driver of the other vehicle which entered a residential/business area and came to a halt on the driveway of a closed business.

The Officer left his vehicle and issued verbal commands which were ignored by the other driver who proceeded to maneuver his car and drive at the patrol vehicle by which the ride-along and Officer were standing. The driver accelerated rapidly toward the ride-along. The Officer fired his handgun at the driver to defend himself and the ride-along.

The suspect vehicle struck the police vehicle’s passenger door which, in turn, caught and injured the ride-along, then sped away. The police vehicle gave chase but the Officer lost sight of the other car.

Moments later, responding officers and bystanders saw the suspect vehicle racing northbound along Foothill Boulevard from the vicinity of Fletcher Lane. It left the roadway, collided with a sign and came to rest in a planter area east of Foothill Boulevard, near D Street. The driver attempted to flee the scene before collapsing after a short distance.

He was detained and his injuries were believed to have been sustained in the collision, he had not been shot. An adult male passenger in the vehicle was pronounced dead at the scene on Foothill Boulevard and had at least one suspected gunshot wound. Due to the nature of the collision, it is not known if he died because he was shot or because he was injured in the collision or due to a combination of both.

The driver has been identified as 23-year old Arthur Pakman, last known address in Oakley. He was later booked at Hayward Police Department’s jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and homicide, as his actions appear to have caused the death of his passenger who has not been identified. The investigation is continuing.

Auto Review

BMW 328i: Powered by four once more

BY STEVE SCHAEFER

The BMW 3 Series has become so identified with its role as "the" sports sedan (or coupe or wagon) that it defines the segment. Automotive buff magazines rate the car in their top ten favorite lists, year after year.

To redesign the sixth generation car, which came out as a 2012 model, BMW made it slightly larger and a bit more fuel efficient. The sedan now stretches 3.66 inches longer and has a wider track (1.46 inches front, 1.85 inches rear). And the car looks bigger now, too, thanks to horizontal body lines and tricks like linking the flattened twin-kidney grille to the headlamp pods with a chrome bridge. De-torque out of just 2.0 liters of displacement in the 328i. The entry 320i model offers 180 horsepower from the same displacement. With a 5.7-second ion, is more fun, but here in the United States, automatic is king. Eight gears allow some precise and efficient gear selection. For an extra $500, the Sport version of the eight-speed provides handsome steering wheel paddles for racecar style quick shifts. My tester had that Sport version.

Order an xDrive model if you want your 3 Series with all-wheel-drive traction. Or, opt for a convertible for a refreshing open-air experience.

The EPA awards the four-cylinder 328i with automatic an average of 26 miles per gallon (23 City, 33 Highway). In my Alpine White test car, I achieved 25.7 mpg; that essentially matches the EPA, for a change. The manual-equipped car gives up one mile per gallon in the city but gains it back on the highway, earning the same 26 mpg. The Green numbers are pretty good, at "7" for Greenhouse Gas and a "6" or an "8" for Smog.

Driving a 3 Series is always a joy, even on the freeway, but hours of commute traffic make it feel like it's all cooped up. I took it to a favorite back road and it stretched out and ran. The carefully tuned independent suspension provides quick reflexes and sufficient comfort, while the floating-caliper disc brakes on all four wheels stop the car in a hurry. As a BMW, it flaunts an ideal 50/50 front/rear balance, and it uses rear-wheel drive — a fairly rare but highly touted platform for a sports sedan.

You can customize your experience using the Driving Dynamics Control to select one of four settings. Besides "normal," choose the Sport or Sport + setting. Or, set it to ECO PRO and the car will tailor the throttle mapping to burn less fuel. My tester actually shut down at lights to save gas - an unexpected sensation.

The newest 3 Series interiors have more curves, trim pieces and richness than their predecessors. My tester featured leather bucket seats in Dakota Coral red and black. Select from four trim levels: Sport, Luxury, Modern and M Sport. In shorthand, think rich black trim for the Sport, chrome for the Luxury, and satin aluminum trim for the Modern. The M Sport offers even more, including especially nice 19-inch wheels.

BMW hides the cup holders under a removable tray. You can pop it out and store it in the glove box. Another interesting hidden feature is the control for playing the satellite radio. You have to push the main iDrive controller to the left to expose the selection. You'd never see it on the dash.

Will the BMW faithful go for this new and powerful four-cylinder engine? The sixth car I ever tested (and my first BMW) was a 3 series with the 1.8-liter four of its day. It had a lighter touch than the more common straight six.

Pricing for 3 Series cars starts at $33,445 for the 320i with automatic transmission and 180-horsepower inline four. My 2013 328i test car, with the 240-horsepower engine, top M Sport package, the Dynamic Handling Package, the Cold Weather package and variable sport steering, came to $47,295.

That 3 Series I drove in 1992 was a 318i, and put out just 113 horsepower. It still felt wonderful, and the 3 Series continues to please its constituency. It's just a bit bigger now — in every way.

spite its grander dimensions, the new car weighs almost 100 pounds less than the old one.

To make the 3 Series more fuel efficient, BMW again offers a four-cylinder engine, after many years of selling only the inline six. This latest model uses Twin-Power Turbo technology to get 240 horsepower and 260 lb.-ft. of zero-to-sixty time, the four in the 328i is no slouch. It just sounds less like the BMWs we're accustomed to.

I recently drove a 2013 328i for a week. With the four-cylinder engine, you can choose the standard six-speed manual or a remarkable new eight-speed automatic. The manual, in my opin-

Steve Schaefer's first car memories are of riding in his father's Austin-Healey with the top down to get ice cream on a summer afternoon. He was four. As a teenager, Steve rode his bike to car dealers' back lots to catch a glimpse of the new models when they first rolled off the truck. A founding member and currently vice president of the Western Automotive Journalists, he has been testing and writing about cars since 1992. Contact him at sdsauto@sbcglobal.net.

Tamil Mandram

SUBMITTED BY
GUNASEKARAN PATHAKKAM

On February 16, San Francisco Bay Area Tamil Mandram conducted a Pattimandram (Tamil debate) and Kavi Arangam (presentation of poems). Kavi Mamani Dr. Abdul Khadar preceded both events. Prior to start of the events, Bay Area Tamil community observed two minutes of silence in memory of Dr.M.S. UdayaMurthy, an influential thinker and social reformer in Tamil Nadu, India.

Kavi Arangam was the first event of the evening. Five Bay area Tamil poets namely, Mr.Kandasamy Palanisamy, Mr.Kannan, Mrs.Malarvizhi Palaniappan, Mr.Rosary Arogyasamy, and Mr.Ilango Meyyappan presented their poems in eloquent and poetic manner. The theme of the poems was "Perennial Water Flow" ("va-TRaatha neerOttam") with five sub-topics, "Tear Drops of Women", "Blood Drops of Patriot", "Rain Drops of Sky", "Sweat Drops of Labor" and "Ink Drops of Writer". Dr.Abdul Khadar introduced each of the poets, prefaced with his critical remarks about their poems and provided thoughtful insight on each of the above topics with his unique poetic abilities which garnered lots of applause from the audience.

KaviArangam was followed by an entertaining Pattimandram (Debate). The topic of the debate was "Does happiness and fulfillment in life occur before marriage or after marriage?". Two teams of five members each debated the topic with the winners being judged by Dr.Abdul Khadar. Mr. Abu Khan as the leader, Mr. Vedha Narayanan, Mr.Gopal Kumarappan, Mr.Padmanaban, and Mr.Thirmudi argued in favor of "Before Marriage" with funny stories, anecdotes, their life experience with wishful arguments that took all of us to the past, provided an opportunity to recollect, remember our past pleasant memories.

The other team with Mrs. Nithya Sundarash as the leader, Mrs.Shanthi Pugal, Mrs.Nachi-ammai, Mrs.Chitra, and Mr.Shankar argued in favor of "After Marriage" by categorically denying that a person can get happiness before marriage but he will get fulfillment, self-content in life only after marriage with so many emotional stories, their personal experience, and references from Thirukkural that got attention, appreciation from the entire audience.

After weighing the merits of the arguments, Dr.Abdul Khadar presented his judgment as "A Person gets happiness and fulfillment after Marriage" by quoting references from many Tamil literatures, poems and specifically emphasizes on Motherhood, which brings in at most fulfillment, happiness in human life. The crowd was so pleased with his decision, eloquent delivery, timely injection of appropriate quotes and relevant references supporting the Pattimandram theme from literature, like, Chilapathikaram, Manimekalai, and Thirukkural.

The events concluded after Mr.Daya, convener of Bay Area Tamil Mandram presented the vote of thanks to the audience, participants, volunteers, advertisers, and the event sponsors.

Puppy-napping has happy ending

SUBMITTED BY FREMONT PD

On February 26, 2013, a 19 year old adult male and a juvenile went dog browsing at the Tri-City Animal Shelter. While inside, they decided to steal a pit bull puppy. The puppy had already been adopted and was waiting to be united with its new family. The two set the puppy outside the shelter and after leaving, hopped the fence and nabbed the puppy.

They later listed the puppy for sale on Craigslist. Animal Services enlisted the assistance of a Community Service Officer who was able to locate the puppy for sale online. Detectives set up a sting to buy the puppy today in the area of Decoto Road and Fremont Boulevard. Once Detectives got their paws on the puppy, the team swept in and detained the seller and his accomplice.

The puppy was positively identified by Animal Services and returned to the shelter where it will be united with its new owner. Both suspects were cited for theft.

We are happy to have been able to reunite this little guy with his new family!

Math Really Does Count!

BY MIRIAM G. MAZLIACH

The New Haven School District has a lot to be proud of including the Alvarado Middle School (AMS) student team that recently won third place at the East Bay Chapter competition of Mathcounts, for middle school/junior high students.

Mathcounts is a large scale national middle school competition, created in 1984, to promote the enjoyment of mathematics and problem solving. (www.mathcounts.org)

Geeta Arora, who serves as the coach for the team, explains that the group just started 10 months ago. "I found out about Mathcounts and my daughter and her friends began during the summer. They participated in several other competitions as well," says Arora.

Out of the 16 teams participating in the recent Mathcounts competition, the Alvarado group had some of the youngest students overall on their official team, with three sixth graders and one seventh grader. First place winning team, Diablo Vista from Danville and winner of second place, Black Pine Circle School of Berkeley, were all eighth grade students, except for one seventh grader.

The competition focused on Algebra, Geometry, Probability, Number Theory and Problem Solving. Arora states that the questions were harder than those typically seen at school.

Alvarado's official four-member team participants were: Daphne Pan, Riya Arora, Albert Pei and Sanjim Uppal. Remaining "mathletes" from AMS, Haaris Kadri, Arshia Deep, Alex Fong, Serena Lee, and Michelle Yi, all did extremely well.

Arora, a parent of one of the AMS team members, has previously worked in the computer industry and says math was always one of her favorite subjects.

"The kids were nervous, but I reassured them that even though the questions would be difficult, they could do well," she added. "They were excited to win the third place trophy. I couldn't have asked for more!"

Alvarado Middle School's Mathcounts team has been selected to participate in state level competition at Stanford University on March 23.

Students in more than 60 schools in Alameda County will walk, bike and car-pool as much as possible for two weeks to win the "Pollution Solution Golden Sneaker Contest" as part of the Alameda County Safe Routes to Schools Program, funded by the Alameda County Transportation Commission and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.
