Celebrating India's Republic Day

BY ISABELLA OHLMEYER

Republic Day holds historic value in the heart and mind of every Indian. January 26 honors the date when the citizens of India began to govern themselves by choosing their own government. The path to self-rule was not easy.

Vasco da Gama, a Portuguese explorer, discovered India in 1498. Portuguese were the first European power to arrive to India, but they were isolated due to lack of resources to maintain an empire. The British and the French then took control in 1961. Britain ruled India as a colony and would relinquish power only after a long struggle.

During World War II, India was controlled by the British who had declared war with Germany.

Imagination on the loose at Children's Film Festival

SUBMITTED BY CHABOT SPACE & SCIENCE CENTER

Chabot Space & Science Center and the Bay Area International Children's Film Festival (BAICFF) have joined forces to present the 6th annual "Playdate for the Imagination" where education and imagination collide. The festival offers families a cinematic view of the world's varied cultures and traditions, with films that inspire curiosity and conversation and allow children to experience a wide range of cultural perspectives.

Oakland's The Renaissance School partnered with Screen 360: Films for Children of the World in January 2009 to produce the first Bay Area International Children's Film Festival. It began as a fundraiser to support educational programs which foster global understanding and cultural exchange, such as The Renaissance School's biannual international travel program. The festival has grown each year, presenting over 185 highly artistic family-friendly films from across the globe in its five year history. Workshops are also incorporated into the day, introducing hundreds of children to the world of animation and live-action filmmaking.

The January 25 and 26 festival will showcase animated, live action and documentary short and feature films from around the

WELCOME THE YEAR OF THE HORSE

BY SARA GIUSTI

Get ready to party like it's 4712!

Chinese New Year is one of the most important holidays in Chinese culture and is celebrated for fifteen days, from New Year's Eve to The Lantern Festival on the 15th day of the first month in the Chinese calendar (typically in February or early March). This year, the New Year falls on January 31, marking the 4712th year of the Chinese calendar.

Legend has it that the Chinese New Year began with a ferocious monster, Nian, who lived in the mountains and would hunt in villages when winter's famine struck. For years Nian terrorized villages, pillaging all he could eat, ransacking peace of mind for a piece of meat. Finally, the villagers realized that Nian was afraid of three things: the color red, fire, and loud noises. Thus, the jubilation of Chinese New Year celebrations that we know today was born: red ornaments decorated houses, firecrackers lit up the night, fires roared, and drums were beat to ward off Nian. It worked. The ritual has been repeated ever since in celebration of people's willingness to cooperate and in Nian's demise.

How Healthy Are Your Lungs?

Learn How to Stay Healthy This Winter and Beyond

Lungs are critical to our breathing, yet many people are unaware of the many risks they take with these vital organs. Smoking and exposure to harmful chemicals or illnesses can compromise the health of lungs, with the possibility of long-term or debilitating conditions such as chronic bronchitis, pneumonia and even lung cancer.

Dr. Jason Chu, a pulmonologist at Washington Hospital, will address some of the many ways that people can take care of their lungs and avoid lung disease at an upcoming Health and Wellness seminar at Washington Hospital on Tuesday, January 28.

Dr. Chu will review the various kinds of lung disease, update attendees on recent updates in lung care and provide expert advice for keeping healthy during the current season of colds and infections, including particularly flu and pneumonia.

Staying Healthy in Flu Season

"It's important to stay as healthy as possible," asserts Dr. Chu. "People are not immune, particularly in this season. Air quality is sometimes bad, and there are many people already infected with other illnesses, making it challenging to stay healthy."

Dr. Jason Chu, a pulmonologist at Washington Hospital will be discuss some of the many ways that people can take of their lungs and avoid lung disease at an upcoming Health and Wellness seminar at Washington Hospital.

What You Can Do Right Now to Avoid Getting Sick

- Use common sense. Make sure you've had a flu shot; if you haven't had one this season, get it now. Consider getting a vaccine against pneumonia; these are recommended and should be renewed every six years.
- Wash your hands frequently and thor-

Washington Hospital's lung health seminar is a great opportunity to learn more about recent updates in lung care and how to stay healthy during the current flu season. The free lecture will take place on Tuesday, January 28 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Conrad E. Anderson M.D. Auditorium located at 2500 Mowry Avenue. oughly. Using soap and hot water, wash hands thoroughly for 30 seconds, being sure to scrub not only the palm but between the fingers and the back of the hand. Use hand sanitizers at home and in public places. Keep them in your desk and your car. "It's a basic precaution but very necessary," he says.

- Follow a healthy diet with proper nutrition and lots of fluids. Get plenty of rest and exercise to stimulate the body's health.
- It's easy to pick up infections and illnesses while traveling or even at the office, school or shopping areas. Follow the above practices no matter where you are.

Many people each winter get sick, but they don't seek care, thinking they can get through a cold or sore throat, a cough or a stretch of feeling tired and achy. Dr. Chu, however, says that people should “set their own limitations.”

“If you haven’t felt good for three or more days, and have a fever or phlegm in your throat and chest, these are all signs of an illness or infection.”

Don't put off a visit to a doctor or health facility. Monitor symptoms of fever and fatigue and don't self-diagnose: seek medical expertise and diagnosis. Many people think, 'I probably have a cold.' But, if you feel worn down and are lacking energy, he notes, you should have these symptoms checked out by a health professional. It's important to identify lung infections quickly, because these infections can spread throughout the body in 48 hours.

Community Vaccination Event a Great Success

The severe flu that has spread across the U.S. has arrived in California and is causing illnesses and hospitalizations in much of the state, according to the California Department of Public Health. The flu typically peaks in late February or early March. To help the local community prepare for this worse-than-usual flu outbreak, Washington Hospital launched a "Don't Procrastinate, Vaccinate" public awareness campaign.

As part of the campaign, Washington Hospital held two community flu clinics on January 16 and 17. Washington Urgent Care will continue to offer flu shots seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Washington Urgent Care is located at 2500 Mowry Avenue, 2nd floor (Washington West) in Fremont.

Celebrating 60 years

Independence

BY JESSICA NOËL FLOHR

The history of the City of Milpitas extends far beyond its 60 years of incorporation. Like much of the Bay Area, Milpitas was originally home to Ohlone people. Native American artipieces across the nation, created the bronze sculpture known as the "Minute Man." The inspiration for the 16-foot project was found in the city's official seal. In the sculpture, a farmer stands with his musket and plow, a remembrance of the stand against incorporation and a symbol of the strength and enterprise of the early settlers to the area. The facts have been found beneath the soil of local cities many times. In the 1700s, Spanish missionaries arrived and began to settle in the area, establishing several missions up and down the California coastline. Modern-day Milpitas sits between Mission San Jose in Fremont and Mission Santa Clara. In the 1700 and 1800s, much like today, this region was a hub of activity connecting these areas.

Eventually, the land became divided between several families. Portions of the land were later sold to newer settlers. The city was named after Rancho Milpitas, one of the ranchos that included a portion of what would later become the town. According to Kraig Bunnell of the Milpitas Historical Society, the local cities were named after landmark identifications. He claims that Milpitas was a Spanish term for "thousand agaves," which he says are native to the region. Another story says that Milpitas refers to milpas, which were fields or clearings used for agriculture, and that this is what the landowners named the rancho after.

In the mid-1800s, groups of non-Hispanic European settlers began to migrate to the area. The arrival of the railroad in 1867 gave the Milpitas area a lift economically. Local produce could be canned and shipped out of the region to other areas. Businesses cropped up and the small town continued to grow.

Nearly 100 years later, it was time for Milpitas to stand on its own. The City of San Jose expressed a desire to annex Milpitas and residents defensively incorporated into their own city in January 1954. When San Jose pursued the issue further in 1960, a group of local citizens banded together, calling themselves the Minute Men. They fought against annexation and Milpitas maintained its independence. The symbol of the Minute Man was then included in the city's flag and official seal.

In honor of its 60th anniversary of incorporation, the City of Milpitas is hosting an Anniversary Gala on Saturday, January 25 at the Barbara Lee Senior Center on North Milpitas Boulevard. This is part of a two-day kickoff event to set the tone of celebration for the anniversary year. Throughout 2014, the anniversary theme and logo will be incorporated into various city events, holidays, and décor.

The Anniversary Gala is a free, evening event open to anyone 21 and older. Guests will be greeted with hors d'oeuvres, a no-host wine bar, and entertainment by Milpitas native turned Broadway performer Courter Daniel Simmons. At the close of the evening, attendees will witness the unveiling of a commemorative statue in front of Milpitas City Hall. David Alan Clark, an award-winning artist in Wyoming who has sculpted several monumental revealing of the sculpture is to be accompanied by a champagne toast and dessert.

From 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, January 26, the city will round off the opening celebrations with a Family Day. Also at the Senior Center, this event will include activities for all ages. The Milpitas Community Concert Band, Milpitas High School String Orchestra and Glee club, as well as several dance groups will provide the entertainment. Activities will be offered in music, art, and science, as well as by the fire and police departments. Food and prizes make this day fun for the whole family!

Many local businesses have joined together to sponsor the yearlong anniversary celebration. Sponsorship includes the Milpitas Post Newspaper, Milpitas Park and Recreation Foundation, the Milpitas Historical Society, McCarthy Ranch, SanDisk Corp., and many others. Space for this event is limited, so be sure to RSVP to Milpitas60RSVP@ci.milpitas.ca.gov in advance of the gala. No additional admission will be offered at the door on the night of the event. Smart Growth Bill passes Senate committee

SUBMITTED BY SERGIO REYES

Senate Majority Leader Ellen M. Corbett (D-East Bay) announced that the Senate Environmental Quality Committee passed SB 674 on January 15. This important bill assists the development of community-oriented projects that encourage locating businesses and services closer to the day-to-day needs of local residents.

Specifically, SB 674 allows a mixed-use project that includes neighborhood-serving goods, services and retail uses—primarily small businesses and local projects—in up to 25 percent of the total building square footage of the project to be eligible for the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) residential infill exemption, as long as the project meets all other requirements.

WELCOME THE YEAR OF THE HORSE

Today, families gather from near and far for a reunion dinner on New Years' Eve and to spend time with each other. Multitudes of people travel during this time, and the Chinese government makes arrangements to smooth the process. Chinese New Year travel time, called "Chunyun" in Chinese, is recognized as the largest annual human migration. The number of people traveling has even surpassed the population of China.

It is not uncommon for families to thoroughly clean their houses to "sweep away" bad luck, making room for good luck, or decorate windows and doors with red paper ornaments. The well-known practice of gifting little red envelopes with money inside also takes place during the Chinese New Year.

With the New Year comes a new Chinese zodiac animal. From January 31, 2014 to February 18, 2015, it will be the Year of the Horse. Those born during the Year of the Horse (2014, 2002, 1990, 1978, 1966, 1954 and 1942) are known to be friendly, energetic, and good communicators; according to lore, they will have good fortune in 2014.

San Francisco is home to the oldest and largest Chinese New Year celebration held outside of Asia; the city's Chinese New Year Parade is also the largest Asian cultural celebration in the country. The parade is held two weeks after the first day of Chinese New Year. Luckily, the Tri-City area offers events for those wanting to celebrate sooner.

Costly Homeseller Mistakes You Need to Avoid When You Sell Your Home!

Tri-City – A new report has just been release which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that nearly three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and – worse – financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-228-3917 and enter ID #1000. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

How Healthy Are Your Lungs?

“Cover your mouth correctly when coughing,” reminds Dr. Chu. “Cough into a tissue, and wear a face mask if your or sick, or are around others who are coughing.”

If you are being treated for a respiratory illness or flu, take the medication until the entire prescription is finished, not just until you are feeling better.

Keep Your Lungs Healthy for Life

Prevention is the key to lung health. While a healthy diet and exercise are keys to overall health, it's also good to monitor your lung health.

“A nagging cough is a symptom of lung cancer. So is blood in the phlegm. Do you have pneumonia that doesn't clear up? Has the sound of your voice changed? Be proactive and get screened as soon as you note a change in your lungs. Don't put off a test because you're afraid,” Dr. Chu emphasizes.

Early screenings can detect chronic bronchitis and other lung conditions, including cancer. Radiation, chemotherapy and some surgical procedures can help. In some cases, oxygen therapy can help relieve bronchitis and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

Don't smoke

The many carcinogens in tobacco can affect not only lungs, but also heart and bladder. Dr. Chu reports that up to 95 percent of lung cancers are caused by smoking, and even by exposure to second-hand smoke.

“Recently the U.S. Surgeon General reminded the public that 50 years ago the office stated that smoking was dangerous to the health of people, and yet it's still a leading cause of death today,” notes Dr. Chu. “This remains a national health concern.”

Looking to the Future

Dr. Chu believes better testing for lung diseases and increased awareness of lung diseases give us hope for the future. In the meantime, healthy practices are the best assurance of lung health. If you don't smoke, don't start. Avoid second-hand smoke. Practice good nutrition and get plenty of exercise. “Prevention is the key,” stresses Dr. Chu.

them on foot. The suspect pointed a firearm at the victims and demanded valuables. The male victim attempted to give the suspect cash but this did not prevent the suspect from firing at least one round at the victim. At the same time the female victim, who was holding her two year old child, attempted to flee into the backyard of the residence. The suspect followed her and demanded valuables. The suspect fired at least one additional round in the direction of the female victim and child. The three victims were not harmed and the suspect fled with the victim's property. The suspect was last seen running northbound on Dyer Street from Santa Susana Way.

The motive appears to be robbery, and the person responsible for this crime has not been apprehended. The suspect was described as an African-American male, 20-30 years, 5'7"- 5'10", medium build, wearing a dark hooded sweatshirt. Union City Police Detectives are following up on all potential leads and are seeking information from any potential witnesses.

The suspect even threatened to kill the arriving officers. The suspect was arrested for multiple felony charges and sent to jail.

Officers conducted a probation search at a residence on Third Street at 9:30 p.m. and located a stolen Suzuki Motorcycle in the backyard. The motorcycle had been stolen from the City of Fremont on 12/23/13. Richard Salangsang was arrested for being in possession of stolen property.

Brake pedals that feels spongy or that get substantially higher after repeated pumping likely have air in their hydraulic systems. To remove the air, the system must be “bled” by a technician. In rarer cases, a spongy brake pedal may be caused by brake fluid “vapor lock,” which is a condition that occurs when there is localized boiling of the brake fluid. This can result from the considerable heat generated by continued forceful braking combined with moisture in the brake fluid. Moisture, which can lower the boiling point of brake fluid, eventually may make its way into the system because brake fluid is “hygroscopic” (it attracts and absorbs water). When it does, the brake fluid must be replaced.

Do you have any questions about how to check your tires? Do you need advice on other aspects of car maintenance? In either case, you should bring your car into BAY STAR AUTO CARE. Our friendly and experienced ASE-certified technicians can provide the regularly scheduled care that your car needs to keep running longer and more efficiently. We can also teach you the at-home maintenance that you need to know. If you have any questions, or would like to schedule an appointment, please call today.

HINT: If moisture is not removed from hydraulic systems, it will eventually lead to corrosion of braking components, particularly the calipers.

History

A Lady Visits Mission San Jose

Eliza Farnham came round the horn in 1850 to take charge of a farm near Santa Cruz bequeathed by her husband Thomas Farnham. She arrived at age 34, a widow, an educated, progressive reformer and a capable writer. She plowed, planted, hammered and performed whatever tasks were necessary to build a home in the Santa Cruz wilderness. She rode horseback about the country clad in whatever clothes were available and functional; she even wore bloomers at times. As Eliza traveled, she made notes about the crude, barbaric activities of men in early California society.

Jane Beard

a bit of muslin, an Indian work basket, a good thimble and several books... evidence of a woman's touch. Eliza located her friend, Jane Beard, in the home that she and her husband, Elias Beard had fashioned in the inner quadrangle of the mission complex. She found Jane to be not only a sweet woman but a charming hostess. Dr. Horace Bushness described Mrs. Beard after a visit. He said, “Mrs. Beard is one of the finest and most interesting of women. Sensible, easy, simple as a child, and practical as one of the out-door characters who has seen all sides of the world, the

Mission store owned by Beard and Smith

She wrote a book, California, In Doors and Out, describing her adventures. Her writings are especially interesting to us because we have so few eye witness accounts by women in these early days. One experience described by Farnham was a trip to Mission San Jose in the summer of 1850.

and jogged impudently ahead forcing Tom to walk in the hot mid-day sun. At the top of the hill, Eliza saw a Spaniard riding toward her. She motioned him to lasso the runaway horse, but when he started to swing his rope, Bill bucked his saddle off and galloped out of sight. Eliza entered the mission, not-rough and the elegant, and meets them all with a welcome.” He also described the home as “one of the old adobe structures, walls four feet thick, built by the monks on three sides of a square of about 200 feet on the sides. It is only one story high and one room wide with a piazza all

Mission San Jose, 1860

She was making one of her horseback trips from Santa Cruz to San Francisco and decided to make a detour to visit a friend who lived at the mission. It was a hot summer day. The countryside was very dry and the road piled with dust beaten fine by the pounding of many hooves during the long drought. Eliza, as usual, was riding her horse, Sheik. She was annoyed that she had to take her hired hand Tom away from the farm to escort her on this trip. Tom was riding Bill who was moving along with his usual free gait. Sheik was exhausted from the previous day's journey over the mountains and stumbled awkwardly along, jolting Eliza each step of the way. The riders decided to exchange mounts to make the journey more comfortable for Eliza. Bill was smooth to ride, but he was not much for looks. He was a small rough roan with one cropped ear, not a respectable kind of horse for a lady to ride in public. About a mile from the mission, the riders halted to exchange horses again so that Eliza could approach the mission in style mounted on Sheik. Bridles and saddles were transferred, and Bill was left nibbling on a bit of grass with his saddle uncinched and bridle off. When they tried to catch Bill, he darted up the hill toward the mission ing the beauty of the spot and the dilapidated condition of the adobes. She had been told to ask for the home of Mr. C. She spotted a man, with a very large gold chain, sitting on the porch of one of the old adobes. She rode near and spoke to him, but the man was taking his siesta and did not respond. She was attracted by the incessant jabbering of half-dozen Indians dressing a carcass of beef and three or four more wrestling with a live animal nearby. She was about to move on when the Indians suddenly stabbed the animal and bled it on the street right in front of her. Eliza was horrified. She had never seen an animal butchered, and the sudden shock almost caused her to faint. She nearly fell out of her saddle. She wondered if there could possibly be anything pleasant in a place where the people permitted such horrors to be enacted in the public streets. When she recovered her composure, she saw a young American on a fine gray horse. He readied his rope to lasso Bill, who had followed Eliza and now stood nearby. However, Bill ran through the lasso and dashed away out of sight. The sleeper awakened from his siesta and escorted Eliza to the house she was seeking. She was ushered into a room and was pleased to see a tumbler of roses, around covered much of the way with vines.” Eliza explored the mission grounds and saw an abundance of pears, apricots, olives, figs, pomegranates, grapes and apples planted by the padres. Eliza and Tom spent the night there, apparently much to the satisfaction of the fleas, and the next morning returned to Pueblo San Jose without any further trouble with Bill.

Celebrating India's Republic Day

The Indian National Congress demanded independence from Britain before Indians joined the war effort. At the end of World War II, in 1947, Indians enhanced their political and economic power, moving on a path toward complete independence. In January 1950, the country adopted a republic and adopted a constitution, independent of British rule. The Union of India became the contemporary Republic of India.

Every year, India celebrates the adoption of its constitution on January 26. A huge parade is held in India's capital, New Delhi; schoolchildren present cultural dances, and floats of union ministries of defense and cultural affairs commemorate this national holiday.

Indian communities throughout the world gather in celebration, including the Greater Tri-City Area. Bay Area Youth Vaishnav Parivar (BAYVP) will host an "India Republic Day Celebration" at Shreemaya Krishnadham Temple on Sunday, January 26 in Milpitas. Event highlights include face painting, dancing, flag hoisting, games, and a parade. Traditional Indian cuisine and beverages will be served, such as mango lassi (yogurt-like drink), raj kachori (a flavorful chaat with stuffings and chutney) and pav bhaji (a spicy, fast food dish with vegetables).

The Federation of Indo-Americans warmly invites the public to attend their Republic Day event on Saturday, January 25 at Chabot College. Patriotic songs, dance performances, cultural programs, dignitary recognition, speeches and dinner fill out the day's itinerary.

Radio Zindagi and Youth Leaders Academy will present their 8th annual India Republic Day celebration at the Performance Pavilion at Lake Elizabeth on January 25. Eight years ago, organizer Ajay Bhutoria was in search of various Indian events in order for his son to connect with and embrace the country's rich culture, heritage, and history. Taking the reigns into his own hands, Bhutoria came up with the idea of starting the "Radio Zindagi and Youth Leaders Academy's India Republic Day" celebration. "The goal is to provide kids and youth with a platform to showcase their talent and connect with India's rich culture," Bhutoria said.

This popular event has grown from 30 to over 300 contest participants, with more than 500 people attending the event. From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., there will be a kids painting and art competition for ages 4-11. Paper will be provided but participants will need to bring their own paint colors and art supplies. The talent contest competition will also take place at 9 a.m.

and will feature a variety of talents, including India's folk dances, Bollywood dancing, singing (both in Hindi and English) and public speaking. The talent contest is open to kids ages 4-11.

Folk dances and cultural performances by talented artists representing the various states in India will be held from 1:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m. A rendition of the U.S. National Anthem sung in English and the Indian National Anthem, "Jana Gana Mana," sung in Hindi will follow. Towards the end of the event, elected officials and dignitaries, including state senators, state assembly members and city council members, will present trophies to the winners of the talent and art contests.

For those concerned about spending money, no need to worry; there will be free parking, free admission and free food at the event. If you are unable to attend, you can see a live recording of the festivities by tuning into IND-TV USA through Roku or watch at www.indtv.usa.com during the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. For further information, e-mail Ajay Bhutoria at Bhutoria.ajay@gmail.com.

7 Things You Must Know Before Putting Your Home UP for Sale

East Bay, CA - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their homes and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their homes on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".

The Globe is coming to Fremont

SUBMITTED BY JOSEPHY NGUYEN

After completion, the Globe will be one of the largest new real estate developments in Fremont. The project is on Stevenson Boulevard, right next to Interstate 880. Total land area is 31 acres, with over 450,000 square feet of commercial retail space available for restaurants, grocery stores, spas, fitness centers, theaters, banquet halls, and other retail businesses.

The concept of the Globe first started in 2005. After a series of owners, and a failing economy, American Pacific International Capital (APIC) purchased the Globe project in late 2012.

APIC is a large real estate private equity firm headquartered in Portland, Oregon. APIC has been very active, and currently owns a diverse portfolio of landmark properties throughout the United States. Recent purchases by APIC include the KOIN Center in Portland, the Tri-County Mall in Cincinnati, Thomas Mellon Business Park in San Francisco, and five hotels in San Francisco: Hotel Metropolis, Hotel Vertigo, the Good Hotel, then Carriage Inn, and Best Western Plus Americana. With solid financial backing, and a rebounding economy, APIC believes the Globe is in a perfect position to succeed now.

The Globe concept is simple. There are many successful shopping centers throughout the San Francisco Bay Area that focus on one culture or ethnicity. The Globe combines multiple ethnicities into one shopping center, creating the first internationally-themed lifestyle and entertainment center.

The Globe will have seven different shopping districts, representing different parts of the world:

Europe, Japan, Korea, China, South East Asia, India, and Pacific Island Nations. World class architects have carefully designed each district to be unique, and representative of a specific part of the world. Businesses at the Globe will celebrate culture through a diverse sampling of cuisine, fashion, art, and entertainment.

At the center of the Globe is “The Heart,” which offers one-of-a-kind water features, interactive hard-scape, and outdoor staging areas to host music festivals, art shows, fashion shows, and cultural celebrations throughout the year.

The Globe will also feature a 12-story luxury hotel with 248 rooms. The full service hotel will include conference rooms, banquet rooms, multiple restaurants, and other luxury amenities. A free BART shuttle will transfer patrons to and from the Globe and the Fremont BART station. Once complete, the hotel will be the tallest building in Fremont, and serve as a landmark along I-880.

Other features at the Globe include “Restaurant Row.” This unique area will have boutique restaurants lined on both sides of the street, all providing al fresco dining. Restaurant Row will host a Night Food Market, a Farmers’ Market, and cooking competitions, creating an active environment at all times during the day. On site will be a 40,000 SF International Grocery Store, an art-house movie theater, and one of the largest banquet hall facilities in the Bay Area (maximum 1,000 person occupancy).

The Globe is currently under development. Phase 1 is complete, and now available for sale or lease. For more information, please visit www.theglobemall.com, or contact 510.279.4066.

Tesla sending new adapter due to overheating worry

AP WIRE SERVICE

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP), Tesla Motors says it will offer Model S customers new adapters to assuage safety concerns of overheating.

The electric auto maker said Friday that corrosion, faulty wiring of an electrical outlet and other issues could cause an existing adapter to overheat while the vehicle is charging.

There had been multiple consumer complaints to the National Highway Safety Traffic Administration of smoke or fire while the car was plugged into the adapter for charging.

Tesla already provided a software update in December to address the problem. The new software is designed to reduce the charge current by 25 percent if it senses conditions that could lead to overheating. The Palo Alto, Calif.-based company says it does not believe the new adapter is necessary, but is providing as another layer of assurance to customers. The improved wall adapter, available in a few weeks, has a thermal fuse to prevent current from flowing to the device if an electrical socket heats up.

The NSHTA could not be reached immediately for comment. Tesla did not return a request for more information on incidents related to the adapter.

Tesla is also under increased scrutiny for safety following several battery-related fires last year.

No one was hurt in the fires, which began in the batteries and happened along freeways near Seattle and Nashville, Tenn. In the Seattle case, the Model S hit a curved truck part. The car hit a trailer hitch in the Tennessee crash. Another fire happened in Mexico after the driver ran through a concrete wall at more than 100 miles per hour.

The company and its owner, Elon Musk, have stood by the safety of the vehicles.

University of California, California State receive record number of applications

AP WIRE SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), More students than ever are applying for undergraduate admission at the University of California and California State University systems.

The UC system reported Friday more than 183,000 students applied to at least one of its nine undergraduate campuses for this coming fall. The 4.9 percent increase marked the 10th consecutive year of rising applications.

The increase was driven by a sharp jump in applications from students outside California. UC officials reported a 19 percent jump in domestic out-of-state applicants and 21 percent increase in international applicants.

The number of California freshman applicants only rose 0.6 percent to nearly 100,000. On average, in-state students applied to four UC campuses.

The largest number of applications came from Chicano-Latino students, who made up 32.7 percent of California freshman applicants. There was a slight drop in applications from students who identified as white, African American or Pacific Islander.

About 46 percent of California freshman applicants say they would be the first in their families to graduate from college.

Earlier this week, the CSU system reported a record 284,000 students applied to at least one of its 23 campuses for fall 2014. That's up nearly 10 percent from two years ago.

CSU officials say the Fullerton, Long Beach, Northridge, San Diego and San Luis Obispo campuses each received more than 50,000 applications.

University officials say they are developing more fully online courses to allow more students to attend college and earn CSU degrees.

City of Fremont Warm Springs/South Fremont Community Plan Available

The Warm Springs/South Fremont Community Plan will guide future development within the approximate 879-acre Community Plan area. The Community Plan area is generally bounded by Interstate 880 on the west, Interstate 680 on the east, Auto Mall Parkway on the north, and Mission Boulevard on the south.

The Community Plan sets the framework for a transformation of the area into an Innovation District and employment center accommodating a mix of compatible uses focused around the synergy of the new Warm Springs/South Fremont Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) station and adjacent undeveloped land. The Community Plan would be a transit-oriented development (TOD) around the BART station.

The existing area has a substantial job base of approximately 15,000 industrial and commercial jobs and no residential development. The Community Plan identifies potential new development and redevelopment of properties to accommodate approximately 11.2 to 11.6 million square feet of light industrial, research and development, office, retail and hotel uses that would generate as many as 20,000 jobs. In addition, the Community Plan would provide for approximately 2,700 to 4,000 residential units and an approximate 750-student public elementary school. Most of the new development is expected to be within one half mile of the new BART station to promote high-density residential development between 30 units and 70 units per acre with the potential for mixed-use retail and commercial uses. Development of individual sites would vary in intensity and height, based upon the targeted use and location within the plan area. The Community Plan would also include associated infrastructure improvements and public facility needs, as well as transportation and circulation network improvements.

The Warm Springs/South Fremont Community Plan and corresponding

Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR) are available for public review at the following locations:

The Bookworm

The Bookworm is Terri Schlichenmeyer. Terri has been reading since she was 3 years old and she never goes anywhere without a book. She lives on a hill in Wisconsin with two dogs and 11,000 books.

“The Tell: The Little Clues That Reveal Big Truths about Who We Are” by Matthew Hertenstein

The new hire came highly recommended.

His college transcripts proved that he was a good student. Professors liked him, former employers lauded him, and he seemed to know his stuff.

You brought him aboard, of course, but you're not sure he'll work out and you can't quite put your finger on why. There was just... something, and you wish now you'd listened to your gut. Read “The Tell” by Matthew Hertenstein, though, and you'll see how your inner voice can be wrong, too.

For most of your working life, you've been told that you have just a few seconds to make a first impression. You know it's true because you, too, make snap-decisions about the people you meet – but you may also remember times when you've been wrong.

Our brains, says Hertenstein, “predict, both consciously and unconsciously, what's going to transpire before events unfold.” We are “sophisticated statistical whizzes” and are barely aware of it.

The error comes in our propensity toward decision-and-prediction-making “biases of the mind.”

We also forget that “predictions are probabilistic” and can go awry (it happens more often than we'd like to think in court cases). And yet, we truly can determine a lot about someone just by watching.

We can, for instance, get a good idea of how a child is being raised by observing its interactions with others. We quickly size up strangers for mate potential (whether we need a mate or not) and we put a lot of stock in the width of their faces (men) and their hips (women). On that note, we're attracted to facial symmetry and “baby faces.” We can instantly perceive someone who is our social equal and, with a surprising degree of accuracy, we can also determine their intelligence, their honesty, and whether or not we want to do business with them.

This all happens, often within seconds. The foil comes because we are “dismal lie detectors” and often misread mixed or unclear signals, since supposed-“telltale signs of dishonesty” are, in truth, “merely clues.” Instead of relying on a gut-feeling (which sometimes lacks in accuracy), we need to “ask more questions” or, if all else fails, ask a child: research shows that younger kids were up to ninety percent accurate in predicting the winner of the 2008 election.

Though it does sometimes descend into laboratory-worthy academia, “The Tell” is, overall, an enjoyable, informative book to read.

Obviously fascinated with the topic, author Matthew Hertenstein lends that enthusiasm to this book quite well, making us excited to take people-watching (and hiring) to another level. We learn why we're inexplicably drawn to some people more than others; how we can predict the outcomes of marriages and sales; how we make friends and fall in love; and how we can be better teachers, parents, and co-workers.

In his introduction, Hertenstein warns that this is not a self-help book and he often urges caution for snap-judgments. Here, you'll learn why. If you've ever sized up a situation quickly and felt small about it later, “The Tell” is highly recommended.

Hayward honored

SUBMITTED BY FRANK HOLLAND

The successful execution of the largest capital improvement project in Hayward's history has led American City & County magazine to select the City as one of its 2013 “Crown Communities.”

The annual award recognizes exceptional accomplishments by local governments within the last year. Winning entries are selected for their uniqueness, short - and long-term value to the community and effective or innovative financing. Hayward joins six other cities across the nation in accepting the honor, each of which is profiled in the December issue of the magazine.

The city achieved the distinction for its sweeping 238 Mission Corridor Improvement Project, which began in August 2010 and was fully operational for traffic by June of 2013. For more than 40 years, Route 238 in Hayward had been a highly-congested regional commute corridor and a source of constant frustration to local residents and that needed better access to community facilities, educational institutions and transportation hubs.

The project – totaling more than $100 million and accomplished in coordination with Caltrans, Alameda CTC, and Alameda County – included six hundred new trees, “Bay Friendly”-rated landscaping, landscaped medians, improved sidewalks, new way-finding signs and new LED street lighting among many other infrastructural improvements. The city's efforts transformed a congested, barren roadway into a beautifully landscaped facility that now provides for pedestrians, bicyclists, transit, trucks and cars.

“This honor is gratifying on many levels,” said Hayward Mayor Michael Sweeney. “The scope of the job and the number of people involved in executing it make it an extraordinary accomplishment. I thank all of the agencies and partners who collaborated with us in all phases of the project.”

Taking Stock of Your Career at the Year's End

BY ANNE CHAN, PHD, MFT

Happy New Year everyone! Last column, I wrote about taking stock of your career for the New Year. This month's column will focus on taking stock of your personal life for the New Year. I've been wanting to write about this topic ever since I received a piece of wisdom from one of my mentors, David Fetterman. David gave me this advice when I became a new mom and was embroiled in all the complexities and effort involved in this immense role change. Motherhood for me felt like I was stretched to the max in all directions. There were numerous demands on me – from my new baby, from work, and from family – and it was an overwhelming struggle trying to balance these demands. And as any new mother knows, I was also coping with the worst sleep deprivation I'd ever experienced. Despite all these demands, I was trying to do everything I possibly could for my baby but failing miserably (of course).

When I met with David to discuss some work issues, I put on a brave front and tried to act as professionally as I could, even though my brain and body were severely fatigued. David took one look at me, laughed, and said, "You know, becoming a parent is one of the most intense things you could ever experience, but you've also got to look at other aspects of your life and make sure you're taking care of them as well."

"What aspects?" I asked, blinking stupidly.

"Friends, work, your partner – these are all important pieces of your life and you've got to make sure you're solid on as many fronts as possible because you never know when one of these pieces will let you down and you will need the support of the other aspects of your life. Sometimes, your kid might act up and hate you, but you'll be okay if you have friends and a partner to support you. Or maybe you and your partner aren't getting along, and you'll need support from friends to help you through it. Don't get all caught up with just one aspect and forget about the other aspects."

It's been many years since David imparted this wisdom and I've never forgotten it. I've also taken his advice to heart and have tried my best to make sure that I take care of different aspects of my life. Being a parent can be all-consuming and one can easily and understandably be caught up in providing for one's kids and forgetting about all other aspects of one's life. After all, raising children is, in my mind, one of the most serious obligations there is. However, I have also come to see that I need support and diversity from other aspects of my life. Inspired by David, I have come to see life divided into six pieces, in no particular order:

- Children
- Partner (if you have one)
- Self
- Work
- Friends
- Community, such as a religious, spiritual, or cultural group you belong to

When taking stock of my life, I look at each of these pieces and think about which areas are solid and which areas might need more attention. Perhaps you have been so involved in work that you've forgotten to spend time with your kids. Or perhaps child-raising has been so absorbing that you've had little to no time to cultivate or maintain friendships. Perhaps you've always wanted to be a part of a community group but have neglected this aspect of your life – perhaps this is the year to join the group you've always wanted. Perhaps you've been a long-time neglecter of yourself – you take excellent care of your kids and partner, and you are a loyal friend, but you've let your health and interests fall by the wayside.

I invite you to examine your life and see which of the six pieces you'd like to work on. You can also pat yourself on the back for areas where you feel you've achieved a level of support and participation that is satisfactory to you.

No one is perfect of course – no one can be perfectly balanced in all six areas. However, it is worthwhile to look at imbalances in your life and see where you can effect some change that would be healthy and beneficial for you.

I hope you've found David's wisdom as profound and important as I have and I thank him for sharing his wisdom with me. Wishing you all a happy and more balanced New Year!

Gen Silent documentary

SUBMITTED BY LIFE ELDER CARE AND LAVENDER SENIORS OF EAST BAY

Gen Silent, a critically acclaimed documentary is being shown for the first time in the Tri cities area on January 31. The evening includes a rare presentation by the Producer/Director Stu Maddux and a panel discussion with LGBT Seniors. Gen Silent has won multiple film awards including 'Best Documentary' at the Frameline Film Festival.

What would you do if you were old, disabled or ill - and the person feeding you put down the spoon and said you are going to hell unless you change your sexual preference? This film asks six LGBT (Lesbian Gay Bisexual Transgender) seniors if they will hide in order to survive the care system. Their surprising decisions put a face on what experts call an epidemic: LGBT older people so afraid of discrimination by caregivers that many simply go back into the closet. Others know they'll be ignored or (even quietly) bullied at places like their local senior center, so they simply don't go. Others stay on constant guard to not mention loved ones or their whole lives – silenced. But some are now taking a stance against the isolation. Care about seniors, your neighborhood, or civil rights? Please come see the film!

Investigate the FBI

BY STEVE TAYLOR

The best mid-day wake-up method isn't another cup of coffee, splashing water on your face or an energy drink. It's pulling the buzzing phone out of your pocket and seeing "FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION" on your caller ID. It was Peter Lee, Public Affairs Specialist in the San Francisco Division to answer some questions about the upcoming event at the Fremont Main Library. "The presentation is just an overview of the Bureau's mission, what we do and what we don't do. And it's more of a question and answer session. I like to let the audience guide the discussion," said Lee. Now that's a responsive public servant!

With the mission "to protect and defend the United States against terrorist and foreign intelligence threats and to enforce the criminal laws of the United States," the FBI investigates spies, terrorists, hackers, pedophiles, mobsters, gang leaders, serial killers, and many more. The Bureau is broken into five branches, including Criminal, Cyber, Response, and Services Branch; Human Resources Branch; Information and Technology Branch; National Security Brach; and Science and Technology Branch. There are field offices around the country with four located here in California: Sacramento, LA, San Diego and, of course, San Francisco.

The FBI started in 1908 during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt under the name Bureau of Investigation (BOI). Altered to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1935, the organization enforced liquor laws through the "lawless" years of the '30s, then changed to investigate foreign saboteurs during World War II. The FBI's golden years were the '50s and '60s when J. Edgar Hoover gathered so much power and famously kept files on everyone from President Kennedy to John Lennon, running the FBI like a shadow government. After 9/11, the FBI's mandate changed when the U.S. Patriot Act granted new laws to address the threat of terrorism. The Bureau accepted their new responsibility for protecting the American people against future terrorist attacks by counter-ing foreign intelligence operations against the U.S., and addressing cybercrime-based attacks and other high-technology crimes.

At "Inside the FBI" on Tuesday, January 28, anyone can come and find out the techniques and methods they use and ask questions of real FBI agents. "The Alameda County Library asked for it, and we're happy to help people understand what we do," said Lee. An East Bay native, Lee says he did "probably 50 public presentations last year" and said people love to talk about "hot calls" or late-breaking local busts. Virtually no question is off-limits in the presentation and he handled the hard-ball, "Do you have to wear a fedora?"

query with aplomb. "No, but I do wear a suit every day," deadpanned Lee. That iconic hat made famous in the "FBI" TV series of the '60s and '70s is basically extinct, but how often do you have a chance to ask a real FBI guy anything you want?

When asked if the FBI gets confused with the National Security Agency (NSA) with the public worried about their phone calls getting tapped, Lee said, "We refer all those questions to our National center in Washington." Whoa. That one deserves a follow-up question. But that's your job, citizen.

COLUMN FROM SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE

New Year thoughts

As a new year begins, it's good to look back on 2013, a year focused on outreach and initiatives aimed at serving residents in our diverse community.

The best way to know your community is by being a part of it, so last year we put an extra emphasis on visiting senior and community centers, giving presentations at schools and attending neighborhood events and meetings. The input we received from you helped to shape our work plan. We also worked hard to produce our own events that brought our diverse community together.

Many of you - 12,000 to be specific - joined us for our annual multicultural festival, Day on the Bay, on October 13 at Alviso Marina County Park in San Jose. The event was a collaboration of my office and the County Parks and Fire Departments, City and County service agencies, nonprofits, local businesses and more than 240 volunteers from high schools, youth organizations and Scout groups. Our focus on health provided important connections between residents and services as well as on-the-spot health screenings and flu shots. The multicultural dances and music were performed against a beautiful backdrop – the Alviso Marina – where hundreds of children tested their skills at kayaking.

As an added feature, the Alviso Marina was officially designated as a site in the San Francisco Bay Water Trail at the 2013 Day on the Bay.

Other successful 2013 events, included:

Unity Day event in March, which helped neighborhood residents get rid of hundreds of unwanted weapons and gang colors, and was followed by a peace march through the Most Holy Trinity neighborhoods.

Bus trip to Sacramento in May, which was co-sponsored by the Silicon Valley Education Foundation, allowed 120 parents, teachers and community members to express school funding concerns to members of the State Legislature.

The Health Fair in October treated more than 300 uninsured, low-income and homeless men and women to flu shots; glucose, dental exams and other health screenings as well as blankets and connections to services.

And most recently, 50 boxes containing food, clothing and other supplies for victims of Typhoon Haiyan were shipped to the Philippines thanks to the generosity of dozens of donors and volunteers who joined me, Supervisor Cindy Chavez and Filipino community groups at a relief drive in November.

Of course, the year was also busy in our office as we successfully proposed policy changes and pushed forward budget items that are helping to stabilize communities and bring equality to disenfranchised communities.

Some of the highlights:

Pay for Success is an innovative model to fund critical services and save taxpayer dollars. The plan, also called Social Innovative Financing, relies on private investment and mandatory performance measures. That's a fancy way of saying we use private investment to fund programs after they have proved to be successful.

During the budget process in May and June, I successfully pushed for funding to support a mentor parent program, fund job training and transportation passes for homeless adults and helped Asian Americans for Community Involvement launch a new project for families to bridge the cultural divide.

Transportation projects made significant progress in 2013. Construction is under way for a new Eastridge Transit Center and the Santa Clara/Alum Rock Bus Rapid Transit Project. And, at last, roadwork to fix the Highway 101 bottleneck, which I have been working on since 2001, is nearly complete.

We were able to pump more money into the Senior Nutrition Program, which provides meals for seniors, and boost transportation services so more participants can get to community centers for lunch. The Low-Income Pass Program offers eligible residents a monthly VTA pass for $25 a month.

I look forward to serving you in 2014 and hope that you will contact my office at (408) 299-5030 or email me at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org.

Newark resident wins “Free Sewer Service For A Year” contest

SUBMITTED BY MICHELLE POWELL

Sometimes a little light reading leads to unexpected benefits. For Newark resident Binh Dao, reading Union Sanitary District's (USD) "Customer Focus" newsletter led to him winning the District's "Win Free Sewer Service For A Year" contest, and a rebate in his holiday mail.

The contest was a feature in the eighth annual issue of USD's "Customer Focus" newsletter, which was delivered to all residents and businesses in the Tri-City area in October 2013. The newsletter is published to inform the District's customers about the utility and the services it provides. It can be read online on USD's "Links and Glossary" page at www.unionsanitary.ca.gov.

The most recent issue explained the journey of treated wastewater after it leaves the District's plant in Union City, and highlighted the thousands of tests performed in its state-certified laboratory to ensure that USD's treated effluent is clean enough to be released to the San Francisco Bay. Additional articles explained the responsibilities of USD's Board of Directors and the District's role as a steward of public assets and protector of public health. Newsletter readers were encouraged to visit USD's website and complete an online survey that entered them into the contest. A computer program randomly chose Dao's entry number as the winner.

Dao, who works as an electronics technician at Themis Computer in Fremont, enjoyed learning about USD's treatment processes. "Wastewater treatment is real science; I didn't know much about it before reading the newsletter," he commented. He was pleased to discover that USD offers tours of its Alvarado Treatment Plant in Union City, and plans to visit soon to learn more about the District.

Dao and his wife, Ngo Kimanh, have lived in Newark for about ten years. They received a check to offset the residential sewer service charge of $337.76 that was billed along with their property tax this year. Dao confessed that he "already had the winnings spent" on holiday shopping and home improvement projects. For more information, visit www.unionsanitary.ca.gov.

Science Bowl competition

SUBMITTED BY DIRK FILLPOT

The 2014 National Science Bowl is set to begin. The Office of Science began this competition to interest today's youth in pursuing careers in science and math. Now in its 24th year, the event, which is sponsored by the Department of Energy (DOE) and managed by DOE's Office of Science, is designed to encourage the development of our nation's future leaders in science and technology and train the next generation of scientists and engineers for DOE. More than 225,000 students have participated in the annual event since it was created in 1991.

On January 25, teams from various local high school students will compete at the regional level. The day-long event will take place on Saturday, January 25 at Las Positas College in Livermore.

Local high schools competing in the regional competition are:

- American High school, Fremont
- Irvington High School, Fremont
- James Logan High School, Union City
- John F Kennedy High School, Fremont
- Leadership Public Schools (LPS), Hayward
- Milpitas High School, Milpitas
- Mission San Jose High School, Fremont
- Mount Eden High School, Hayward

The winner of the regional competition will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C. to compete in the Office of Science's National Science Bowl scheduled for April 24 – 28, and the winner of the national competition will win prizes for the team members and their schools.

During the competitions, teams of four students face off against one another in a fast-paced, question and answer format. They'll be challenged to solve mathematical problems and tested on their knowledge of a wide range of disciplines including astronomy, biology, earth science and physics.

How can a small school you have never heard of be a better choice for your child than a large one that you hear about all of the time?

Alsion is a small school, with a full time faculty of five highly qualified teachers serving a junior high community of only 48 students. As you might expect from a school with student/teacher ratio 10 to 1, students receive more personal attention than at a larger institution. However, among small schools, Alsion stands out in two important respects.

First, Alsion is a Montessori program for adolescent age students. We recognize children between the ages of 11 and 15 have developmental challenges (“Raging hormones”, impulsive behavior, boundless energy, peer group loyalty, etc.) that must be channeled in constructive ways. Each of our teachers completed formal postgraduate study in understanding adolescents and guiding them toward successful maturity. At Alsion each teacher in a five-member team engages with every student in the school every day, all during the three years a student is enrolled here. We have an exceptional insight into each child, who he or she is, and what is likely to unlock his or her potential.

Second, we assume parents want their child to have an edge in college admission. In this respect, Alsion offers a unique advantage. We are located adjacent to Ohlone Community College Mission San Jose campus. Upon completion of 9th grade, Alsion Early College students are co-enrolled at the College, where they can earn up to 72 units of college credit transferable to the University of California. Historically, three out of four Alsion Early College graduates have been accepted for admission to UC. This is an outstanding college placement track record for any school regardless of size or reputation.

Our success in college placement is also due to Alsion's full time college guidance counselor/ Advanced Placement English instructor. His services are spread among only twenty students rather than hundreds, as typical of the larger, better known schools. At Ohlone he is the Alsion student's advocate among the College's professors and administrators.

To answer my initial question, Alsion is a better choice for your child because he or she will be better supported, both as a middle school adolescent and as a college bound high school student, than anywhere else.

LETTER THE THE EDITOR

Allow students to use the restroom when they have the urge

I am a credentialed special education teacher, a mother of a special needs child, and an advocate for other children with special needs. I recently worked for four months as a special education teacher for the New Haven Unified School District at Cesar Chavez Middle School in Union City. I loved my job; I especially enjoyed helping those students with special needs that for some reason were placed in special day classes for the wrong reasons, those who were bullied and those who were trying very hard to be mainstreamed.

At the risk of being disciplined I brought some concerns to the school assistant principals about students' complaints, such as bullying, harassment, sexual harassment, and violations of the safeguard rights. I rebelled against some unfair rules that the school has; one of those rules is denying students the right to use the bathroom during class time. My co-workers told me that this is what I should say when students asked me if they could use the restroom: "Are you willing to pay me back ten minutes of your time during break, lunch, or after school?" On one occasion, while observing my mentor teacher teaching her class, I heard a student ask permission to use the restroom and the teacher responded with the standard line. Obviously the student answered "no" and they held their urge until recess or lunch time.

I am not a doctor but I believe it is not healthy for children to hold their bladder when they are feeling the urge; therefore, on some occasions I would allow some of my students to go to the bathroom. But as a new employee and not wanting to get in trouble for breaking the school rules, I would first make sure that there were no other teachers around, and once the hallway was clear I would let the kids leave the classroom. Let's not forget that these are Special Education children and some have physical and emotional challenges, and they may not have the same ability to control their bladder or bowels as everybody else. At an IEP meeting a parent of one of my students brought out the issue of her son developing a bladder infection, and the assistant principal responded that she needs to bring a doctor's note in order to let him use the restroom.

Please join me to end the denying of using the restrooms during class time. By signing this petition we send a message to Mireya Casares, Cesar Chavez Principal; Arlando Smith, Co-Interim Superintendent at New Haven Unified School District; District Board member Linda Canlas and other school officials to take a look at their bathroom rules and stop telling their students that they can only use the bathrooms if they are willing to pay back ten minutes during their special time. When nature calls, it calls without checking if it is recess time, lunch time, or after school hours. Many of our special education students cannot wait too long, and they should be able to go when they need to.

To sign the petition, go to <http://chn.ge/1cNMY0Y>. Thanks for helping our special needs students, and let's send a message to other schools that may have this nonsense rule.

Tri-City Stargazer JANUARY 22 – JANUARY 28, 2013 BY VIVIAN CAROL

For All Signs: Venus, goddess of love, turns direct next week on Jan. 31. We are presently traveling in the retrograde and have been since early December. Many of us are pressured to encounter ourselves and our personal behavior within the framework of our relationships. Those in shaky attachments may withdraw altogether. Dormant issues may resurface for attention. We have a tendency to "go back" to previous relationships or to re-experience former behavior patterns in the present situation. During Venus' retrograding periods, we are called to wake up to any unconscious saboteurs that interfere with our ability to care for others. It's time to upgrade our relationship performance. The effects of this transit began in mid-November. The aftershadow will not be fully complete until the end of February.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): You are thinking fast and the wheels are rolling forward in your love and personal life. Last week's adjustment may have been just what the doctor ordered. Others like your ideas and want to help you manifest them. This is a good time to study any material because your thoughts are flowing.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Now is a good time to take a creative look at your life. You have a desire to experience that which is beautiful. Perhaps you would like to paint, write, play music, or enjoy another endeavor. Words and prose flow like a stream. Give some time to the muse who is encouraging you to relax and allow the creative juices to flow.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This is not your smoothest week. Details may nag at your mind and your time like pecking ducks. You and significant others are not having the best of communications right now. You may be in the mood to nit-pick others. Probably you will feel generally better if you work alone.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You may be dealing with issues concerning your estate. Something is pressuring you to decide upon what to leave to your children or others. The conflicts are concerned with feelings versus what you believe to be "right". You want to plan distribution with equity, yet you have other, more sentimental, factors that challenge the brew. Take your time.

Leo the Lion (July 22-Aug 22): You may feel out of sorts this week. Your feelings are in conflict with your ideal self and your values. You want to put your best foot forward, but circumstances do not feel quite right. If the conflict is deep, it is usually best to wait and not yield to whatever pressure is around you. You will sort it all out if you give yourself some time.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Your power of concentration is deep at this time. It is important that you use it for the good in your life rather than in self-criticism and obstructive thinking. If you cannot stop the negative self-talk, then focus on something else that is totally neutral. Walk the dog. Wash dishes. Move your body in order to shift away from negative thoughts.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): This is a particularly creative time for you. The muse is at your side. Words or things of beauty flow freely to your consciousness. Children and lovers are also pleasurable. There may be so many free flowing "goodies" around that it is a challenge to know which to pick. Writing or journaling is particularly recommended.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): A creative idea has recently occurred to you. It may have to do with going backward and starting over in some area of your history. If you need resources to help, they may be available, particularly from family members. Children may be a pleasure this week, especially around the 24th.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): You are likely working toward a major project to be unveiled within the next couple of weeks. It is truly important that your objective is good for many and serves a spiritual purpose of some kind that is greater than the mundane materialization of money or expansion of someone's ego. Otherwise it is may be foiled.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): This is a good week to concentrate on a challenging mental project. It will work better for you if you are revising, editing, or itemizing details. If you are producing a creative work, you are likely to be overly critical of the outcome. The Critic may advise, but it should not be allowed to condemn your efforts.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): The sun returned "home" to your sign last week. Now is the time to focus on new plans for this next year of your life. Take a fresh look at where you want to direct your energy. There are green lights around education, philosophy, publishing, and legal matters.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): This is a week to continue with your recently begun creative work. You are bringing a manifestation of the spirit into the world of the material and this requires concentration of much of your energy. Don't let up now.

OPINION

WILLIAM MARSHAK

Gardeners and horticulturists have developed the art of pruning over many years. Although different techniques are employed, the goal is usually the same for all; create a healthy, vibrant and sound plant. When, Staff at the City of Fremont extended this concept to the General Plan, they apparently forgot to examine the overall health of the City when focused on specific acreage. Rhetoric about “pruning” districts and isolated, poorly performing strip centers, to enhance the overall economic health of the City has been heard often, but a plethora of child care and less economically dynamic infrastructure has followed; decidedly not a “holistic” approach to a healthy community. Shopping centers have been decimated by these profitable, yet parasitic businesses that bring nothing except hoards of parents who line up to pick up their kids, morning and night, then leave. There is no synergy to this; therefore, other business, without help from their neighbors, decline. So goes the neighborhood! Likewise, infill, although the darling of the planning set, can be a disruptive influence in commercial settings when done haphazardly.

Pruning, deliverance or destruction

Although Fremont is rife with examples of this myopic view of development, a current instance, fortunately examined with at least a modicum of care by the City Council, is a proposal to level the Connolly property in the historic Irvington District and replace all retail with a massive, 92-unit residential development. Developer representatives were adamant about their lack of interest or ability to create any mixed use of frontage along Fremont Boulevard. Of the council, the most vocal, and in my opinion logical, when confronting this “pruning” effort was Councilmember Bacon. He noted that this project was proposed and approved by Staff without a coherent or contextual plan and was in conflict with the recently approved General Plan. The excuse used by Staff and the developer was that this commercial center is not economically viable and should be approved under the guise of “pruning.”

By allowing something of this nature in the midst of a commercial district, effectively severing connection of commercial enterprises along Fremont Boulevard, the question is whether this is an attempt to prune or kill. There appeared to be little consideration of this important difference and finally, with the council's wake-up call that, by councilmember comments, remains tenuous, there may be attention paid to a branch of the City of Fremont called Irvington. Unfortunately, there are some who would rather the historic districts simply die or recede into obscurity from such pruning efforts while attention and money is diverted to the pet projects of downtown (Central Business District, etc.) and Warm Springs BART developments. As funds have dried up from the former Redevelopment Agency, these districts no longer are piggy banks for Fremont; therefore it seems, of no use. Do these folks consider Fremont's historic districts dead weight without function or economic purpose?

If property use is left exclusively to landowners, what is the purpose of a General Plan? When business management is ineffective and mired in poor business practices with little or no attention to changing public attitudes and modern technology, is it proper to sacrifice neighboring businesses and communities for personal gain from an inappropriate sale? Some property owners claim it is their prerogative to do whatever they like with ownership. Many have inherited these properties and have little connection to the community, rather are much more interested in a fat paycheck. Protestations of poor economic vitality when little is done to improve a business plan are self-serving “crocodile tears.”

It may be that this pruning effort is simply a case of removing an unwanted part of Fremont and will be followed, if successful, by additional pruning in other districts. Are these areas simply dead wood and rotting debris? Is this an example of using a chainsaw instead of pruning shears? Alert citizens and a savvy councilmember or two have slowed the desecration of a district at this time, but, as one of my athletic coaches said years ago, “It's time for an attitude adjustment.”

Wieckowski joins Chief Justice in effort to keep courts open

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

“California's courts need additional funding if they are to adequately meet the demand for access to justice,” Assembly Judiciary Chairman Bob Wieckowski (D-Fremont) said during a press conference on the steps of the Stanley Mosk Library and Courts Building, across from the state Capitol. Wieckowski joined Supreme Court Chief Justice Tani G. Cantil-Sakauye, legislative colleagues, judges and small business owners in calling for restoration of funding after years of budget cuts.

“Californians rely on a fully functioning court system to protect their constitutional rights, secure protective orders, resolve child custody issues, and settle business disputes,”

Wieckowski said. “I share the concerns of the Chief Justice regarding the importance of access to justice and the need to provide fair and adequate funding for the judicial branch.”

The courts have seen a loss of more than $1 billion in funding due to the Great Recession. Governor Jerry Brown's new state budget proposal calls for an increase in funding of $105 million. Wieckowski said that total should be a “down payment” toward the $266 million the courts will need to begin addressing past reductions.

Chief Justice Cantil-Sakauye said 205 courtrooms have been closed, 51 courthouses and people are forced to often drive long distances just to have their day in court.

Organic produce Stand Opens

SUBMITTED BY SYLVIA SOUBLET

Organic produce – once out of reach for many recipients of public assistance due to price and location – may appear at more holiday dinners this year thanks to a new Farm Stand that the Alameda County Social Services Agency (SSA) is offering to its clients, staff and the public.

The County's Board of Supervisors recently approved a service agreement with Dig Deep Farms and Produce, a workforce program of the Alameda County Deputy Sheriffs Activities League (DSAL). The goal of this pilot project is to provide job training and employment to CalWORKs participants, while also making organic fruits and vegetables available to recipients of public assistance.

The Farm Stand began operation on Thursday, Dec. 19, outside of SSA's Hayward office, also known as the Eden Area Multi-Service Center. CalFresh recipients will be able to use their EBT cards to purchase healthy organic fruits vegetables and other offerings. Cash and credit cards will also be accepted.

"We recognize that many of our clients live in food deserts and have little or no access to fresh fruits and vegetables. For the vast majority of the people we serve, organic produce has been priced out of reach," said Lori A. Cox, the Agency's director. "We are thrilled to offer our clients, staff and the public the opportunity to purchase organic produce at reasonable prices right outside our doors."

Water District launches program to help low income users

SUBMITTED BY ACWD

Alameda County Water District (ACWD) has launched a new water conservation program that is geared toward low income single-family homeowners to promote water savings while also helping these homeowners save money on their water bills.

The District's new program, the Water Savings Assistance Program, will provide income-qualified single-family homeowners with a water use efficiency survey to help identify water saving opportunities, a leak check and fix for common toilet leaks and, based on the flow rates of the existing water using fixtures, free water efficient toilets, faucet aerators, and showerheads, installed at no cost to the homeowner. All in-home services will be provided by a licensed plumbing contractor.

"ACWD has numerous water conservation programs available for our customers but we found that many of these programs are not fully utilized by the District's low income homeowners due to cost limitations and other barriers," said ACWD Water Conservation Supervisor Stephanie Nevins. "The Water Savings Assistance Program intends to address these barriers by providing a full service water conservation program to help these customers save water."

As an incentive, low income homeowners who participate in this program will also receive a one-time $50 credit on their water bill. Program participants must meet certain income and household size requirements, as well as comply with the Program's Terms and Conditions.

"Given the ongoing dry conditions we appreciate the conservation efforts of our customers and the District is pleased to offer a new program that makes implementation of water conservation measures more accessible to our low income homeowner customers," said ACWD Board President Paul Sethy.

The Program will run until June 30, 2014 or until funds are depleted. Funding is limited and applications will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Interested customers should visit: www.acwd.org/wsaprogram to learn more and to see if they qualify, or they can call 510-668-4207 or email Stephanie.nevins@acwd.com.

Four Pioneers double up in win over Sunbirds
SUBMITTED BY SCOTT CHISHOLM

Cal State East Bay swimming outlasted Pacific Coast Swim Conference (PCSC) rival Fresno Pacific by a 154-111 margin, Friday, January 17th, at Pioneer Pool. Caitlin DeNise, Madison Hauanio, Brittany Rojo and Rachel Shimizu each won two individual events in the victory.

Fresno Pacific won the 400-yard medley relay to take an 11-6 lead following the meet's opening race. However a 1-2 finish from Hannah Cutts and Mariam Lowe in the 1,000 free gave the host Pioneers a lead they would hold to the end.

Shimizu won the 200 free (1:56.14) by over two full seconds and the 500 free (5:16.32) by more than eight. DeNise was the only swimmer to complete four lengths of backstroke in under one minute (59.93) and doubled up in the 100 free (53.27). Hauanio has won 5-of-6 individual races over the past two meets including today's first place finishes in the 50 free (24.32) and 200 back (2:10.84). Rojo outclassed the field in the 200 fly (2:12.12) and was the only sub-minute finisher in the 100 fly (59.22).

FPU's Kendall Swanson led all swimmers with three individual events win on the day. She won the 100 breast (1:05.03), 200 breast (2:24.76) and 200 individual medley (2:09.88). Swanson holds the fastest times this season in both breaststroke events, and posted a PCSC top-10 time with her 200 IM result on Saturday.

Every bit of Lady Colt power was necessary to retain control of the Mission Valley Athletic League standings as they defeated the Newark Memorial Lady Cougars in a hard fought battle on January 16, 55-52

In what turned out to be their toughest game of the year to remain undefeated at 4-0, the Colts struggled with an unclear outcome until the last few minutes of the game. Both teams brought their "A Game" to the hardwood as they lit up the scoreboard with baskets from everywhere while playing great defense. In the first half, Cougar power seemed to have a slight edge as they were successful with outlet passes to open players and a fast break attack, giving them a five point half time lead.

Both teams were unrelenting in the third quarter but with just three minutes left in the game, control seemed to slip away from the Cougars as the Colts drove the ball into the paint area. With just 1.8 seconds left in the game, Brittney Deadwilder found a way to power the ball into the basket and, drawing a foul, giving the Lady Colts a hard earned three point win. Logan's Mariah Elzy also had a great game and was named Logan's Player of the Game.

This game could have gone either way; everyone put in a great effort!

Cal State East Bay never trailed and scored eight unanswered goals to open the game. The Pioneers pulled out to a 7-0 halftime lead following a strong second quarter. The frame featured five goals from their offense and six saves by Nation.

"Marrina played with a lot of confidence and had some great blocks," praised Cooper about her

Cal State East Bay never trailed on its way to a 64-61 California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) road win over Chico State on Friday, January 17. The Pioneers snapped a four-game losing streak to the Wildcats and earned their first road win over the Wildcats during the tenure of Pioneers Head Coach Suzy Barcomb.

For the second time in as many games the Pioneers watched their double-digit second half lead being erased by a sizeable scoring run from the opposition. Despite two chances over the final eight seconds for Chico State to tie the game, East Bay earned the victory against a squad that it has had limited success against in recent years.

"We executed our game plan in the first half and it got us the lead. Chico made adjustments at halftime and we did not respond very well," Barcomb commented. We did enough 'right' in the end to earn a very important CCAA road win."

Danielle Peacon was a force to be reckoned with finishing the night with 16 points, 16 rebounds, four blocked shots, and three steals. She contributed seven of the Pioneers 16 offensive rebounds which led to 20 second chance points. Peacon's ability to clean up misses and effect shots on the defensive end played a pivotal role in Friday's result.

"Danielle had a solid night. We had some great looks inside and I wish we would have converted at a higher percentage," said Coach Barcomb. "It would have taken some pressure off us in the end."

Cal State East Bay matched its largest lead of the game at 51-37 following two of Tori Breshers' 14 points off the bench. Chico State responded using three 3-pointers to spark a 13-1 scoring run to pull within two points at the 5:31 mark.

The visiting Pioneers clung to a slim 62-59 lead in the final 10 seconds with the host Wildcats in possession. Senior Courtney Hamilton drove to the basket, scored two points and was fouled sending her to the line for the potential game-tying free throw with :07.5 seconds left. The 67 percent free throw shooter who had made both of her previous attempts earlier in the game, missed on the third and Peacon grabbed the loose ball.

On the other end of Acker Gym, Peacon would knock down both free throws as the Pioneers led by three with :05.7 seconds remaining. A final 3-point attempt by Chico State's Annie Ward was off the mark as the Pioneers held on for the win.

"I would like to think we grew as a team tonight because we fought through our mistakes rather than giving in," stated Barcomb.

Both teams featured four double-digit scorers including Peacon, Breshers, Brianna Terrance (13) and Stephanie Lopez (10) for the Pioneers. Ward led the Wildcats with 14 points, followed by Hannah Womack (11), McKenzie Dalthorp (10) and Hamilton (10).

Cal State Stanislaus 68, Cal State East Bay 63

Cal State East Bay was on the short end of a 68-63 result to Cal State Stanislaus in California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) play on Saturday night. It was a back-and-forth game featuring 23 lead changes with the host Warriors overtaking the Pioneers for the final 105 seconds of regulation.

"We fell back into old habits once again and a very good Stanislaus team took advantage of nearly every mistake we made," said East Bay Head Coach Suzy Barcomb. "We must be able to break the cycle of bad habits which lead to poor performances."

Cal State East Bay took its largest lead of the game at 54-47 following a Stephanie Lopez 3-pointer near the midway point of the second half. Cal State Stanislaus immediately responded with six straight points as the back-and-forth battle continued.

The Warriors knocked down eight 3-pointers with arguably the most important coming from Lauren Goode. Stanislaus (10-4, 7-3 CCAA) took the lead courtesy of Goode's triple with 1:45 left and the Warriors never looked back.

Goode was one of two players on the home squad to finish with a double-double as her night ended with 13 points and 13 rebounds. Teammate Riley Holladay tallied 10 points and 10 boards. Briana Cotton did all of her offensive damage from downtown knocking down four 3-point baskets.

East Bay's Lopez finished with game-highs of 15 points and seven assists. Danielle Peacon finished with 12 points, Brianna Terrance scored 11, and Tori Breshers contributed 10.

Peacon earns Player of the Week honors

SUBMITTED BY SCOTT CHISHOLM

Cal State East Bay's Danielle Peacon has been named the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Women's Basketball Player of the Week for the week of Dec. 30, 2013-Jan. 5, 2014.

Peacon played an integral role as Cal State East Bay took down Cal Poly Pomona 83 - 58 on and Humboldt State 61 - 44. She recorded her first pair of double-doubles in a Pioneer uniform averaging 16.5 points, 10.5 rebounds, four assists, and two blocked shots per game.

Against the Broncos the junior center scored 21 points on 9-of-14 shooting from the floor, to go along with 12 boards. On the defensive end she contributed three blocked shots and two steals. Peacon currently ranks second in the CCAA in blocked shots (11) and total rebounds (52) through six league contests this season.

She finished with 12 points, 10 rebounds, and a career-high five assists as the Pioneers handled the Jacks to close out the weekend. Peacon has scored in double figures 10-of-13 games this season and has recorded at least one blocked shot in each of the team's six CCAA games thus far.

Peacon is the second Pioneer player to earn the CCAA Player of the Week honor this season. Teammate Sarah Finlay received the award for the week of Nov. 11 - 17 after being named to the CCAA/PacWest Challenge All-Tournament Team. Cal State East Bay (8-5, 5-1 CCAA) is off to the team's best 13-game start during the Suzy Barcomb coaching era.

verted 3-of-6 power play chances with Zell earning half of the team's opportunities. Fresno Pacific missed out on many second half power plays and went 1-for-9 in the game.

The East Bay defense held the shutout for more than 18 minutes of game time until Alyssa Stevens put Fresno Pacific (0-1) on the scoreboard. She was the catalyst of the Sunbirds offense scoring four goals including three in the fourth quarter.

East Bay freshman goalkeeper Gabriel Isacson appeared in her first collegiate contest and made three second half saves. FPU's Kelsie Harvey recorded six stops in the loss.

Cal State East Bay (1-0) will host its alumni game next Saturday, Jan. 25, before returning to official competition the following week.

Head Coach Lisa Cooper currently stands at 199 career wins and will have an opportunity to pick up the milestone victory when her alma mater comes to Hayward. The Pioneers will face No. 7 Hawaii on Friday, Jan. 31, at 4 p.m.

DR. I. CICLE'S WEATHER SCHOOL

I'm puzzled,
Dr. Cicle.
What are cold fronts and warm fronts?

Good question, Paula! Cold fronts and warm fronts are something meteorologists – scientists who study the weather – watch to make predictions about the weather.

Here's how meteorologists
show a cold front on a map.

This is how they show
a warm
front.

The cold front
looks like icicles
on a string!

Standards Link: Earth Science: Students

Oh no! A cold wind blew my display about weather fronts all apart!
Luckily, I numbered each sentence. Do the math problem on each piece.
Then use the answers to put the sentences in order from the smallest number to the largest.

8+7=

Cold fronts move quickly and can bring storms and even hail. But the storms won't last long.

4+3=

The sun's heat warms the air.
Some parts of the world get warmer than others. These differences in temperature make the air move, causing weather to change.

20-8=

This cools the warm air, and if there is moisture in that air,
it condenses and forms drops that fall as rain or snow.

19-3=

A "warm front" moves slowly. If the air is moist, dark clouds will form and it may rain or snow
for days.

6+3=

A "cold front" happens when a cold air mass
pushes the warm
air up.

17-9=

When cold and warm air masses
meet, they don't
mix. They form a front.

Looking for a Job?

Head over to Fremont, the No. 10 City for Job Seekers in California

By CHRISTINA BRIGGS, ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT MANAGER

If you're on the hunt for a new job, Fremont is the place to start looking. According to a recent study conducted by a consumer advocacy website called NerdWallet, the City of Fremont came in as the no. 10 top city in California for job seekers. So, what exactly makes Fremont an ideal spot for job hunters?

NerdWallet took into account three different factors:

1. Is the city growing? They assessed growth in the working-age population, ages 16 and older, from 2009 to 2012 to ensure that the city was attracting workers and showing population growth. They only included cities with populations of 40,000 or more.
2. Can you afford to live in the city comfortably? They looked at a city's median household income to see if workers made a good living. They also analyzed the monthly homeowner costs, including mortgage payments, to see if the city had a reasonable cost of living.
3. Are most people employed? NerdWallet examined how the city's unemployment rate compared to other cities in California.

There's no doubt that Fremont is on a steady path of growth. The City is home to powerhouse companies like Tesla Motors and Seagate. Plus, the City was recently named the nation's best market for home sellers by Movato Real Estate. After all, Fremont homes only stay on the market an average of 25 days before high bidders scoop them up. Fremont's upward trajectory was echoed by Silicon Valley Business Journal economic development reporter Lauren Hepler, who listed us as one of 5 Silicon Valley Cities to Watch and top 5 Silicon Valley Cities for job seekers in 2014.

Additionally, the City is preparing to open the new Warm Springs/South Fremont BART station in 2015, laying the foundation for a new business hub that is anticipated to bring 20,000 new jobs by 2040. Fremont is definitely redefining the geographic area of Silicon Valley. Talk about a wealth of opportunities!

Fremont also has a high median income in relation to the average monthly homeowner expenses, so residents can afford to spend their money enjoying the city's new downtown, which will include apartments, shops, sidewalk cafes, new landscaping, as well as the Gateway Plaza shopping centers.

Clearly, Fremont is the place to be. If you'd like to take a look at the full results of the study, please visit <http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/2014/best-cities-job-seekers-california/>.

East Bay drops road Dual with Division I Spartans
SUBMITTED BY SCOTT CHISHOLM

Cal State East Bay fell to Division I squad San Jose State by a 147-97 margin on Saturday afternoon. The 400-yard free relay team of Caitlin DeNise, Rachel Shimizu, Noelle Farrar, and Brittany Rojo combined to win the final race of the meet.

“It was a great way to end the day,” said Head Coach Ben Loorz following his team’s relay win to conclude Saturday. “We had several very close races and it was nice to be in the mix with a good Division I program.”

Standout individual performers include Madison Hauanio who secured a pair of runner-up finishes. For the first time this season she finished the 100 back (58.97) in under 59 seconds. Hauanio was out touched in both the 100 back and 100 free (53.44) by less than one-tenth of a second.

Brittany Rojo and Caitlin DeNise finished second and third respectively in the 100 fly. Both finished in under 59 seconds which according to Loorz are solid times.

“This week of practice was very hard including Thursday. We went straight into this weekend’s doubleheader and with that in consideration I am very pleased with today’s effort,” said Loorz. “We continued to have some nice season best times which proves we are shaping up nicely for conference.”

Rachel Shimizu was one of four Pioneers to win a pair of races in Friday’s dual meet with Fresno Pacific. On Saturday she finished runner-up in the 1,000-yard freestyle (10:47.09) improving upon her season best time by over eight seconds.

Newark Memorial Cougars beat the James Logan Colts 60-46 in a bitterly fought battle on January 17. As the Game started, the Cougars found themselves in an unusual situation as the Logan Colts were able to hold them at bay in the first quarter with great defense, closing down the shooting lanes. It was clear that the Colts were going to give the Cougars a real fight.

An impressive battle under the basket ensued as neither team allowed their opponent take control of the game. Finally, with three minutes left in the first half, the Cougars were able to break the gridlock and turn the game around in their favor. Colt mis-

The Cougars finally unleashed their fast break attack and ended the half up by 6 points, 20-26. As the third quarter began, Cougar offense set the tone of the game and opened a 31-37 lead through great outside shooting and penetration of the shooting lanes. SET Detectives conducted a probation search at Motel 6 at 8:41 p.m. The room was registered to Norteno gang member Alex Hernandez, who was on searchable probation. SET conducted a probation search at the room and contacted, Valentino Esparza, Heather Cantu (Newark), Rachael Gibson (Newark) and Hernandez. After an extensive search, we came up empty handed. However, all was not lost. Det. Todd arrested Gibson for being under the influence of drugs and Hernandez for court order violation, as he is restraint from Cantu. Prior to our contact with Hernandez, we learned he was walking around “gang checking” people (asking people what gang they belonged to). I am sure a few people were glad he was arrested.

At 9:49 p.m., Officer Norvell investigated a burglary at 37171 Sycamore St (Sycamore Bay). The victim left her shed door open and several items were taken including her camping gear and her golf clubs.

A male suspect was located hiding inside the van and refused to come out. After several attempts were made to get the suspect to comply, K9 Ares was released and bit the suspect on the left forearm. Once bitten, the suspect surrendered.

YOUTH DIXIELAND JAZZ FEST

SUBMITTED BY JOHN SOULIS

The East Bay Traditional Jazz Society will present the 7th Annual Youth Dixieland Festival at NewPark Mall on Saturday, January 25. This year's festival will feature five Dixieland and Americana Bands from the Bay Area and Northern California. The Festival can be heard on the first floor of the NewPark Mall adjacent to Sears' inside entrance.

The East Bay Scout Band, directed by Joe Ayers, will kick-off our Festival at 11 a.m. The Scout Band performs music from specific eras and geographical areas of the United States. The Scout band has performed in Washington DC and received high marks in all their performances.

Following the Scout Band at 12 noon will be the Jazz Raptors from Creekside Ranch Middle School, Roseville, California. This group of dedicated musicians rehearses before school at 7 a.m. This is the seventh time their director, Polly Edgerton, has brought her band to the NewPark Youth Dixieland Festival.

We will be treated to an ensemble of college students at 1 p.m. The name of this ensemble is the East Bay College All Star Dixieland Band. Taking on the task of bringing this group together is a former Jazzinator, Marc Messier. Messier has created this exceptional ensemble from alumni members of the Dixie Dominus, Green Tie, Boy Scout and the Jazzinators Jazz bands. Each one of these musicians has been exposed to this genre at an early age. They have continued their dedication and passion for this music and the melodies linger on.

At 2 p.m. is the ever popular Dixie Dominus, from Fremont Christian, directed by Thomas Banuelos. The Dixie Dominus performs as a youth band for the Sacramento Jazz Festival, as well as other performances throughout Northern California. Mr. Banuelos draws upon his personal experience performing traditional jazz to help inspire and develop a new generation of Jazz musicians. The signature quality of this band is its eclectic style of performing a repertoire ranging from the standards, traditional Jazz and video game themes.

Jazzinators, the NewPark Mall Youth Dixieland Host Band, will round out this festival starting at 3 pm. The East Bay Traditional Jazz Society (EBTJS) functions to keep Jazz alive with youth programs. The Jazzinators originated in 2004 and is the 'home band' of the Jazz Society, mentored by Mission Gold Jazz Band and directed by John Soulis. The EBTJS has sent well over 65 student/musicians to Jazz Camps on scholarships. The Jazzinators perform on regularly scheduled Tuesdays at Bronco Billy's Pizza Parlor, 41200 Blacow Rd., Fremont.

Last of the Red Hot Lovers

BY JANET GRANT

Broadway West Theatre Company under the clear direction of Mary Galde, launched its 18th season of quality community theatre Friday with Neil Simon's, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." Simon's lighthearted comedy opened on Broadway in 1969 and Broadway West's production brings back that time, its sexual revolution frenzy and cool music with warmth and style.

In 1960s New York, it was relatively easy for most adults to engage in casual sex. But apparently there were some exceptions as hilariously depicted in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Barney Cashman, played by Alan Perez, is a middle-aged, balding, Manhattan fish restaurateur having a mid-life crisis. Growing increasingly aware of his own mortality, he decides to join the sexual revolution. The only problem is he is married and has never been unfaithful. So of course he sets up a series of trysts in his mother's apartment and tries to seduce three women in succession... with comical and rather calamitous results.

Mr. Perez is perfect as Barney. He plays the role with just the right fussiness and guilt. Barney is inexperienced, socially inept, and a bit boring. Never is this more apparent than in his first attempted tryst with Polish fireball, Elaine Navazio, brilliantly portrayed by Ambera DeLash.

Elaine is more experienced and prefers more action and less talk. This is difficult when Barney needs her out of the studio apartment by 5 p.m. That's when his mother finishes her job at Mt. Sinai Hospital. And of course, everything has to look untouched in the apartment - that's why he brings his own glassware!

Ms. Navazio takes control as soon as she enters the apartment. She is larger than life and is all business. Barney keeps forgetting her name and virtually talks her to death. We are never quite sure if he wants to get to know her better or is terrified of touching her! Ms. Navazio's hacking cigarette cough is especially entertaining.

Barney is more prepared with his second tryst as Jenni Gebhardt made her entrance as nervous, mod-hippish, psycho, actress Bobbi Michele. Ms. Gebhardt was hilarious with her non-stop verbal storytelling which became more fanciful and deranged as she continued. The sanest thing she does is to smoke a joint to keep her calm. It made for one of the evening's funniest moments when she persuaded Barney to join her for a drag.

Barney is at his self-assured and most seduction-ready best with tryst number three when in blows the frazzled, depressed, purse-clutching Jeanette Fisher, played hysterically by Elizabeth Lowe. Ms. Lowe was spot on as the mousy and melancholic family friend totally turned off by Barney's physical appearance. She wanted absolutely no romance and what's more, she puts Barney on the moral spot about decency!

Barney's thwarted and clumsy attempts as a red hot lover, makes for a night of great laughs and wonderful entertainment. Though not a play intended for children, Broadway West's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," is an adult comedy definitely worth seeing and well worth the ticket price.

Residents asked to cut back water usage

SUBMITTED BY ACWD

Alameda County Water District (ACWD) has announced that it is requesting Tri-City area residents, businesses, and institutions to voluntarily cut back on their water use by 20% in response to Governor Brown's declaration of a statewide drought emergency.

ACWD relies on local runoff from the Alameda Creek watershed for 40% of its supplies. The State Water Project provides 40% of the ACWD's supplies, with the balance of 20% purchased from the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission's (SFPUC's) Hetch-Hetchy water system.

In light of the continued dry conditions, both locally and in the Sierras, and recent information from California Department of Water Resources officials regarding State Water Project availability, ACWD is currently updating its water supply forecasts. With no significant precipitation in the forecast, the District is concerned and continues to monitor the situation very closely. ACWD staff is closely coordinating with officials from the California Department of Water Resources and the SFPUC regarding water supply conditions of the State Water Project and Hetch-Hetchy system, respectively.

Because of the ongoing dry conditions, and uncertainties with both local and imported water supply availability, ACWD is requesting that customers voluntarily cut back on their water use by 20%. Below, please find guidelines on how customers can help by reducing their water use.

"We are taking this third dry year very seriously," said Board President Paul Sethy. "Our customers' water conservation efforts in the past have really helped lessen the impacts of dry conditions. Continuing these habits and developing new ones will be crucial this year. We will also continue to update the community as new information becomes available."

"ACWD has a comprehensive water conservation program with plenty of incentives, tools and technical information to help our customers save water," noted ACWD Water Conservation Supervisor Stephanie Nevins. "If customers have been thinking about taking advantage of the rebates and incentives ACWD offers, now is the time," Nevins went on to say.

ACWD officials encourage customers to conserve water in the following ways:

- Find and fix leaks. Leaky faucets, showers, toilets and irrigation systems can waste a lot of water.
- Significantly reduce, or if possible, eliminate landscape water use during these shorter days and cooler nights.
- Cover exposed soil with mulch.

- Operate clothes washers and dishwashers with full loads only.
- Take shorter showers.
- Turn off the tap when brushing teeth or shaving.
- Use a broom instead of a hose to clean driveways and walkways.
- Get your car washed at a commercial car wash that recycles water.
- Install high-efficiency clothes washers.
- Replace older, high water use fixtures and devices with water efficient models (toilets, showerheads, faucet aerators).
- Reduce lawn areas and choose native and drought tolerant plants for your landscapes.

For additional information on ACWD's water conservation programs, including rebates on turf replacement and high efficiency clothes washers, please visit the ACWD website at www.acwd.org.

Mount Sakurajima is a big volcano in Japan. It erupted on August 18th 2013. The eruption shot a huge plume of ash over 3 miles into the sky. This was the highest ash plume in its recorded history. The nearby city of Kagoshima grew dark during the day from all the ash in the sky.

Up in the sky above all that ash, a powerful tool on a weather satellite, called VIIRS, saw heat coming from the volcano. VIIRS provides images like a very fancy camera. It can see more than what is visible to the naked eye and can also sense heat.

That's what happened 14 hours before Mount Sakurajima erupted. It saw the land around the volcano get a bit warmer. The warmth came from a plume of melted rock under the volcano. This change in temperature was too small to notice if you were just sitting on the ground. But VIIRS noticed something was different from high up in the sky.

It's hard to predict volcanic eruptions. VIIRS could be a valuable tool when it comes to monitoring volcanic activity. Satellites may one day help give people an early warning of an eruption. Early warnings could help people know when to get out of a volcano's way. One more way weather satellites can save lives!

VIIRS is a new tool. Right now it is only on one satellite. But it will also be on two other satellites scheduled to launch in the future. These satellites are part of a group of weather satellites called the Joint Polar Satellite System. VIIRS's main job is to monitor weather around the globe.

That hasn't stopped it from impressing scientists with its "extra-credit" projects, though.
