Young Eagles takes kids to new heights

By JULIE GRABOWSKI

In a world of endless options and entertainments, the next big thing and the best new gadget, it's hard to say what will grab a kid's imagination and take root. It could be a sport, something artistic, or a mental challenge. But how about moving into another realm altogether? One where their feet don't even touch the ground?

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) Vintage Aircraft Chapter 29 has sponsored the Young Eagles program since 1992, providing free airplane rides for kids ages eight through 17 at Hayward Executive Airport. Rallies are held one Saturday per month where rides are given in private planes by experienced EAA volunteer pilots. "The program introduces children to avia-

Art thrives in San Leandro

By M.J. LAIRD

For more than half a century, the San Leandro Art Association has celebrated summer with "Festival of Fine Art." A family-oriented event featuring art exhibits by adult and youth artists, the 55th annual juried show highlights more than 140 original adult entries in varied media including oil and acrylics, watercolor, photography, and graphics/mixed media, which include colored pencils as well as three-dimensional works. About 50 student works in the youth category represent age groups from kindergarten through 12th grade.

Beyond browsing the artwork, festival goers can listen to music by local James Brothers Band, watch art demonstrations, visit craft tables, take part in hands-on activities for kids, and participate in a raffle to benefit the Dorothy Cunningham Art Award providing grants to district art teachers. The award program began in memory of San Leandro art teacher Cunningham when a friend made a monetary donation to the San Leandro Art Asso-

Woofstock West Niles Dog Show

SUBMITTED BY GEORGE E. SPINDLER

Niles is going to the dogs... with or without pedigree. Niles Main Street Association (NMSA) will present its annual Niles "Dog Show/Pooch Pow-Wow and Canine Convention" at Niles Community Park Saturday, July 19. The show offers canines a chance to show off their best talents, assets, and good looks in the various classes offered. It will also feature demonstrations, a prize drawing, canine water park, an obstacle course, adoption parade, and gourmet food vendors offering dog-related goodies.

Presentations are scheduled for the benefit of our beloved pets such as police K-9 demonstration by the Fremont Police Department, exhibition of dogs who read sign-language commands, and a dog Frisbee exhibition by Disc Dogs of the Golden Gate. Dogs on Deployment will be in attendance, which provides an online network for deployed soldiers overseas who are looking for dog sitters.

Participants may register their dog in the following classes: Handsomest Male, Prettiest Female, Owner Look-alike, Best Costume, Best Performer, Most Unusual Mix, and Best Veteran. Best in Show winner will be chosen from among the first place winners in each category. The event started sixteen years ago with 60 dogs in attendance and has grown over the years to the point where the event now draws about 150 dogs.

Those who wish to enter their dog in any of the classes must register and pay $20 for each dog ($25 on event day) for the first class, and $5 for each additional class. Registration begins at 9 a.m.; event admission is free to all. The show benefits the Ohlone Humane Society, an animal rescue organization, and NMSA, which is dedicated to promoting downtown Niles and its history.

Washington Township Health Care District

Director elected as Vice President of Alameda County Special Districts

Washington Township Health Care District Board of Directors member Patricia Danielson, RHIT, was elected as vice president of the Alameda County Special Districts Association (ACSDA) at its meeting held on Wednesday, July 9. She will serve a two-year term.

“I’m looking forward to beginning my service to all of the special districts located within Alameda County as vice president,” said Ms. Danielson, who has been affiliated with the ACSDA for more than 10 years. “The Alameda County Special Districts Association is a vital resource for the diverse number of special districts it serves because, while each district was formed to serve very different needs, we are stronger together through the association.”

In her role of vice president, Ms. Danielson will serve in a backup role as necessary when the president cannot fulfill his duties. The vice president also serves in the dual role of treasurer and will oversee the association’s finances. Prior to her election as vice president, Ms. Danielson served as ACSDA’s at-large officer.

ACSDA includes 17 member districts and five associate member districts. Member districts include: Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District; Alameda

Patricia Danielson, RHIT

County Mosquito Abatement District; Alameda County Resource Conservation District; Alameda County Water District; Castro Valley Sanitary District; City of Alameda Health Care District; Dublin San Ramon Services District; East Bay Municipal Utility District; East Bay Regional Park District; Eden Township Healthcare District; Fairview Fire Protection District; Hayward Area Recreation and Park District; Livermore Area Recreation and Park District; Oro Loma Sanitary District; Union Sanitary District; Washington Township Health Care District; and Zone 7 Water Agency. Associate members include: Alameda LAFCo; Alameda County Public Works Department; Alameda County Vector Control Services District; and StopWaste.org.

Special districts are a form of local government created by a local community to meet a specific need. Inadequate tax bases and competing demands for existing taxes make it hard for cities and counties to provide all the services citizens desire. When residents or landowners want new services or higher levels of existing services, they can form a district to pay for and administer them.

Top Hat XXVIII A Great Gatsby Gala

Proceeds will help provide Washington Special Care Nursery with the latest in medical equipment and will support patients and their families

You won't want to miss the 28th Annual Top Hat Dinner Dance, taking place on Saturday, October 11. You will enjoy a Gatsby themed gala, while helping the tiniest patients of Washington Hospital. Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation's annual gala supports programs that improve patient care right here in our community. The evening will feature a hosted cocktail reception followed by an elegant four-course dinner prepared by McCalls Catering of San Francisco. After dinner, guests will dance the night away in the Gatsby Nightclub or enjoy conversation and a nightcap in the Jazz Lounge.

This year, funds raised through the Top Hat Dinner Dance will support the Washington Special Care Nursery. Thanks to a new affiliation with UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital, babies born at Washington Hospital now have access to some of the nation's finest pediatric care through a team of highly trained neonatologists who staff the Washington Special Care Nursery.

"We're pleased that babies who require a higher level of care can be treated locally by specialists from UCSF, an institution with a reputation for providing some of the best neonatal care in the country," said Nancy Farber, Chief Executive Officer of Washington Hospital Healthcare System. "The affiliation with our special care nursery is another important step toward creating an integrated regional health care network that provides the communities we serve with local access to the wide range of resources of an internationally renowned academic medical center."

Top Hat honorary co-chairs Rod Silveira and Skip Turner, co-owners of Professional Home Care Associates, and Jan Eric Henstorf, MD, Chief Medical Information Officer, Washington Hospital Health System, hope to raise more than $175,000 for the Washington Special Care Nursery. Their goal is to set a Top Hat record with over 700 people attending the gala to show their support for the babies being cared for at Washington Hospital. Rod Silveira, President-Elect of the Foundation, said "we are planning a spectacular evening with fabulous food and top-notch entertainment. Speaking for my co-chairs, we are thrilled at the opportunity to raise funds for the kids in our community. It's going to be a great evening, I promise. Join us!"

Now in its 28th year, Top Hat has a long history of bringing people together in support of a good cause. First held at the Top of the Mark in San Francisco, it has grown to be an elegant annual celebration in Fremont, raising funds for clinical services in the Tri-City area. Over the years, generous donors and sponsors have contributed more than $1.9 million through Top Hat for health care services at Washington Hospital.

Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation plays a key role in ensuring Tri-City residents have access to the most advanced medical care available today. It was established in 1983 as a separately incorporated nonprofit organization to enhance the Washington Hospital Healthcare System by raising public awareness and securing financial support. The Foundation helps Washington Hospital meet the community's health care needs and obtain state-of-the-art medical equipment.

Save the Date

"The Top Hat Committee is planning an exciting evening for attendees," said Carol Dutra-Vernaci, President of the Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation. "Please consider joining us for a fabulous evening and you will feel great having supported the tiniest patients and their families at Washington Hospital."

The gala will be held on Saturday, October 11. The hosted reception begins at 6 p.m. followed by dinner, entertainment and dancing from 7:30 p.m. to midnight. Sponsorships and individual tickets are now available. Please join us by calling (510) 791-3428, emailing foundation@whhs.com or visiting www.whhs.com/foundation. Find us on Facebook!

Enjoy a glamorous Gatsby themed evening of fine food and incredible entertainment at Washington Hospital healthcare Foundation's 28th Annual Top Hat Dinner Dance. The black-tie-optional event will be held on Saturday, October 11, in the Grand Tent at Washington West. To purchase tickets or become a sponsor, please call the Washington Healthcare Foundation at (510) 791-3428 or email foundation@whhs.com.

Bruschetta with Braised Kale

Bruschetta with Braised Kale, Pine Nuts and Olives

- Ingredients:
- 2 bunches of kale
 - 2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
 - 1 shallot minced
 - Pinch of salt
 - 2 garlic cloves large, each minced
 - Pinch red chili flakes
 - 2 teaspoons balsamic vinegar
 - 1/2 cup Kalamata olives chopped
 - 1/4 cup golden raisins
 - 1 teaspoon brown sugar
 - Chicken broth or water as needed
 - Freshly ground black pepper to taste
 - 1/4 cup toasted pine nuts
 - Parmigiano Reggiano, shaved for garnish
 - More extra virgin olive oil to drizzle over the top
 - 6 slices of artisan bread
 - Olive oil as needed

Directions:

Strip the kale leaves away from the thick stem. Discard the stems. Wash leaves well to remove all grit. Shake water from them but don't worry about drying them well. Slice into long thin (about 1/2 inch) strips. Heat oil over medium high heat and sauté shallot until soft. Add a pinch of salt and then the garlic and red chili flakes. Mix well and cook for another minute. Raise heat to high. Add greens with the water still clinging to them. Add vinegar, olives, raisins, brown sugar and a few tablespoons of chicken broth or water. Stir, cover, and let greens cook down for five minutes. Stir, add more liquid if greens are dry, cover and cook for five to ten more minutes. Taste. Greens should be tender and should be a little bit sweet and sour. Add salt and pepper to taste, toss in the pine nuts and garnish with parmesan and a drizzle of extra virgin olive oil. Toast the bread and rub with a half of a piece of raw garlic and then drizzle with olive oil. Serves four. Enjoy!

THE MASONIC HOME

Living Well

IN UNION CITY

A NEW WAY TO AGE

From homebodies to jetsetters, most people agree that “home” is a state of mind. And as such, our idea of home tends to shift over time, along with our changing lifestyle and priorities.

Not too long ago, housing options for older Americans were limited. We could choose to age at home, or, if we needed assistance with everyday care, we could move into a “nursing home.” The problem with this model was that it juxtaposed two extremes – autonomy or dependence.

In recent years, a more adaptable retirement model has emerged: continuing care retirement communities (CCRCs). Rather than subscribing to a particular level of care, CCRC homeowners choose services for their current needs – from complete independence or basic services to skilled nursing or intensive memory care, with varying levels of assistance in between. If residents’ needs change, supportive resources are available onsite.

This flexible approach allows residents to maintain independence, with the security of additional available assistance. And, CCRC residents benefit from opportunities for socialization, recreation, and physical activity – all which have been shown to promote longevity and overall wellness.

The bottom line: If you’re considering a new lifestyle, CCRCs may offer the flexibility you need for a secure, vivacious future. Looking for a CCRC in the Tri-City community? Visit Acacia Creek online at acaciacreek.org ♦

CHAMPIONING COMMUNITY SPIRIT

On June 14, two Masonic Home staff members were recognized with a remarkable honor: Gary Charland, executive vice president, and Carlene Voss, volunteer and community resource program manager, were each honored with a Community Spirit Award from the Union City Chamber of Commerce. This annual award honors “unsung heroes” in the Union City community who “have made an impact in their community and the lives of others.” The Masonic Home also received a certificate of appreciation for hosting and catering the awards luncheon.

“Carlene and I are grateful to the Chamber of Commerce for this esteemed recognition,” Charland says. “We also thank the Masonic Home for providing us with the opportunity to serve those in need, as well as our staff and volunteers for the inspiration they provide through their ongoing compassion, support, and commitment.”

“We are blessed to have the amazing volunteer family that we have,” Voss adds. “We are grateful beyond words for their time, talent, and dedication.” ♦

A HOME FOR EVERY SEASON

The Masonic Home was established in 1898 to care for those in extreme need – people who were challenged physically and financially. The Home provided a lifeline and a sanctuary. Today, it follows a new ethos: person-centered care.

“Person-centered care is the process of interaction between the people who live and work in our community,” explains Franco Diamond, administrator of health services. “Our Masonic values focus on dignity and respect in our interaction with others.”

Care is targeted to residents’ individual needs and residents are challenged to maintain independence – from learning to balance without a walker to taking university-level classes, and even volunteering at local organizations and schools. “Our residents are a very active and resourceful group of individuals who are extremely proud of their community,” Diamond says.

The Home is a community that continues to grow and evolve. Its next goal is to add even more on-campus services to meet the changing needs of both residents and the local community. Amenities would include a skilled nursing facility to provide specialized care for the most vulnerable seniors. These vital services seek to be the next chapter in a legacy of care that has already endured more than 100 years. ♦

ciation after her death. This year, the association will raffle five works by artist Mary Green to help fund the awards.

Ana Marie Rodriguez, president of the San Leandro Art Association, joined about eight years ago after retiring as an education professor from California State University East Bay. A self-taught artist, Rodriguez was impressed by how well members worked together to create an art presence in the community. Throughout the year, the association provides exhibits in public venues in San Leandro and surrounding cities to create community enjoyment of art. Exhibit locations include San Leandro Library for the spring non-juried show, the Senior Community Center and local businesses, with an exhibit currently at Ploughman's Restaurant. Community outreach this past year also included exhibits at two senior citizen residential centers.

Jane Tsushimi, who has served as president several times and is currently vice president, joined in 1975. She says the festival has changed very little over the past 55 years although a computer graphics category has been added and porcelain painting is now bundled with sculpture in "three-dimensional." She has developed a zest for pastels. "I'm 93 and I'm still taking lessons. I'm having a ball," she says. Her work shows it since she claimed an honorable mention with her watercolor painting "Patriotic Bouquet" and a second place for her pastel "Beautiful Sunset" at this year's festival.

Tsushimi and Rodriguez agree that the association's longevity stems from the people it attracts. "There is a lot of talent," explains Rodriguez of the group's 59 members. "People come to the organization from professions and with leadership skills that keep the organization going. It's all volunteer and it is hours and hours and hours of work. Work on the festival began in March, but I love it. It's easy for all of us to get caught up in."

Rodriguez says about 200 people attended the two-day show last year, and she expects equally as many this year.

Alameda County Fair wraps up

SUBMITTED BY
ANGEL MOORE

As with all good things, the Fair, too, must come to an end. Following an action-packed 17-day run, the 102nd Alameda County Fair befittingly went out with a bang on July 6. As expected, Night Ranger drew huge crowds and rocked the Safeway Amphitheater one last time as the final installment of the Big O Tires Concert Series. Thousands of fairgoers stayed to enjoy one last warm summer night amid the music, food and neon-lit fun, right up until closing time.

The 4th of July Fireworks Spectacular, big name concerts and "best seats" wristbands and the inaugural season of Oak Tree horseracing, in addition to many other aesthetic and operational improvements, all contributed to the fairgoers' experience this year and resulted in increased attendance and sales throughout.

2014 Alameda County Fair by the numbers:

Free summer lunch to kids and teens

SUBMITTED BY GUY ASHLEY

The Alameda County Social Services Agency is adding something new to its menu of services for the summer - free lunch for kids and teens age 18 and under.

Drawing inspiration from the nationwide “No Kid Hungry” campaign, which seeks to end childhood hunger in America, the Social Services Agency is ramping up efforts to connect children with nutritious food. For one out of three children in Alameda County who face the threat of hunger, the stability and nutrition offered through school-sponsored food programs end when school lets out for summer vacation.

As a sponsor of the California Department of Education’s Summer Food Service Program (SFSP), the Social Services Agency will be offering free lunch to children age 18 and under on a first-come, first-served basis. The meals will be served at the Eden Area Multi-Service Center (24100 Amador St, Hayward) daily from Tuesday, July 8 through Tuesday, August 19 (except for Wednesday, August 6) from 11:30 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

To tempt taste buds, the menu will change daily and include hot offerings like chicken teriyaki, spaghetti marinara, meatball subs, and cheesy quesadillas while meeting nutritional standards set by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). Lunches will be prepared by Revolution Foods, launched in 2006 in Oakland and now serving more than 1 million healthy and kid-inspired meals weekly in schools across the nation.

In Alameda County, residents of low-income neighborhoods that are classified as “food deserts” have more access to liquor and fast foods than to fruits and vegetables. Studies by the County Health Department and food advocacy groups show that the lack of nutritious meals during those summer months can contribute to hunger, illness, and other health issues, such as obesity.

“We are delighted to open another front in our war on ‘food deserts’ in Alameda County,” said Lori A. Cox, Agency Director. “Food stability has become a key public health concern, and research shows that people make food choices based not only on personal preference but on access, availability, and affordability. This program will make a difference for many of our local families.”

Say Aloha to a FUN evening

BY LINDA-ROBIN CRAIG

What better way to mark a 10th anniversary than with a festive luau? “They don’t call us the FUN Club for nothing,” said Fremont, Union City, Newark (FUN) Sunset Rotary Club 2013/14 president Helen Kennedy. “Rather than giving a lot of speeches, we decided to host a luau and invite people to join the party to mark the occasion.” She added, “We are one of the most diverse Rotary Clubs in the area, from age range to ethnic makeup. Our members are people who really enjoy the multicultural experience.”

In 1905, Paul P. Harris, a Chicago attorney, envisioned a service to community club that began with discussion over dinner with a few friends. That small beginning where professionals with diverse backgrounds could exchange ideas and form meaningful, lifelong friendships led to what is now a 1.2 million-member international service organization; America’s oldest, chartered organization of its kind. Rotary’s name came from the group’s early practice of rotating meetings among the offices of each member.

As do most Rotary Clubs, FUN Sunset activities benefit both local communities and beyond. One of the core tenets of Rotary is to make a difference at home and out in the world. “Rotary’s most powerful international program,” states Kennedy, “is very close to eradicating polio from the face of the planet.” (www.endpolio.org)

Funds raised by the anniversary luau will benefit a number of projects both locally and internationally. FUN Sunset sponsors the James Logan High School scholarship fund for the Interact Club (IAC), which teaches young people how important it is to give back to the community. “Dedicating some of the proceeds of this event to IAC will enable us to give a larger scholarship, or to assist more than one student,” says Kennedy.

She added, “We are involved in disaster relief, as well. Our sister city, in Baybay, Leyte, was hard hit by Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines last year. Rotarians are always called upon to help when disaster hits various parts of the world. We were able to channel almost $9,000 for relief efforts at that time. We want to be better prepared so we can respond quickly when needed.”

“The home town of one of our members, Dr. Vijay Tiwari, who practices at Kaiser Hospital, is in Ballia, Uttar Pradesh, India, and the site of our major international project right now,” states Kennedy. “The DSET Public School is in a very poor, rural farming community. Dr. Tiwari is spearheading this project. Together with the other Fremont and Newark Rotary Clubs we have raised about $20,000, which provided a new well for drinking water. Other projects are underway to help deliver literacy to the children of Ballia.” (www.dse-educationalociety.com)

The July 19 luau will have a very high energy, exciting and beautiful hula dancing performance by Kawailehua Hula Ohana; fresh orchid leis will be offered for $20, flown in especially from Tahiti. One activity is designed for a lot of fun and laughs – the Hot Legs Contest. “We’re not sure what our chairperson has in store for us,” says Kennedy, “but there are several categories, like best legs, hairiest legs, shapeliest legs, you get the idea. Audience votes will be judged by applause.”

Majestic Catering is providing the Hawaiian-style buffet, including delicious Lomi Lomi Salmon, Coconut Shrimp with Sweet chili sauce, Lumpia, Vegetable Long Rice, Grilled Teriyaki Chicken Skewers, and Mahi Mahi with ponzu sauce and mango salsa. Pineapple Upside down Cake and Haupia (coconut pudding) will be offered for dessert. Vegetarians are accommodated, so tickets should be purchased as soon as possible in order to best plan meals for the occasion.

Tickets are available online through www.FUNrotary.com. Contact Linda Stewart at (510) 535-1344 for further enquires

FASTEN...ATING DISCUSSION

A mong the most important and overlooked components on any vehicle are the threaded fasteners that secure the wheels to the hubs. It probably doesn't help their status that these wheel fasteners are most often referred to as "lug nuts." Whatever name they go by, wheel fasteners must be properly sized and installed to ensure sufficient engagement of the threads and proper seating. Conventional wisdom dictates that the minimum engagement length of a wheel bolt should be equal to the diameter of the fastener's threads; however, deeper thread engagement is preferred for added safety. In addition, the seating style (conical, radius, or flat-seat) should match the base of the fastener head to the wheel's fastener pocket. Also, avoid over- or under-tightening.

Your car and your family's safety is riding on your tires. If you have any questions about your tires, including questions about your lug nuts, then you need to talk to the friendly folks at BAY STAR AUTO CARE. Our experienced ASE-certified technicians can explain the technicalities of engagement length and seating style for your car, to ensure you are safe on the road. If you have any questions, or would like to schedule an appointment, please call today.

HINT: If wheel fasteners are tightening while a vehicle is on the ground (not on a lift), even a slight lateral load in the wheels will throw off the precise centering of the wheel fastener seats.

History The Niles Jail

Niles has a number of famous buildings. One of them, the jail, also has some interesting stories connected with it. According to accounts, the present jail is the third one in town. The first jail was a barn in back of the constable's house. It burned down one aged to get a broom that had been locked in the corridor and succeeded in brushing the keys to the cells. They unlocked the cells, broke open the desk and loaded the pistol. In the dispute over who should be the gunman, the gun discharged. The bullet grazed one boy's ear and struck another fight. One drunk refused to have his handcuffs removed when he was locked up. He changed his mind when he sobered up.

The local paper reported that a committee of members of the Niles Woman's Club was working for changes in the location of the Jail and the Justice Court in night, taking a prisoner with it. This unfortunate incident prompted authorities to establish a second jail on Main Street. The local paper reported that two inmates, confined there for stealing chickens, escaped by using part of an old wagon spring to dig through the board floor and then out underneath the building. No boy in the back. It hit a rib but missed vital organs.

One of the town boys heard the shot and reported to Constable Roderick. Dr. McKown was called to examine the wound. The boy was taken to the county hospital where the bullet was removed. The other four boys were turned over to a probation officer. The boys said 1914. It is not clear what this was all about, but the Niles jail continued to function as a holding cell for the courthouse next door until it was replaced by the new county building and jail on Peralta Street in 1951.

After serving as the township holding cell for 40 years the jail continued to be useful for storage trace of the "escapees" was found. Later a prisoner forced open a water faucet, flooded the cell and nearly drowned. This jail apparently had a water tank as the second floor.

A contract to construct the third Niles jail was awarded to Frank Rose and Sons for $1,450 in September 1911. It was built of concrete, reinforced with railroad rails. The concrete flooring, covered with asphalt, was slanted toward the door so it could be flushed out with a hose. The room, 25 by 35 feet, contained four cells; the only sunlight came through the steel front door and one tiny high window. Some observers said it looked like a bomb shelter.

After the contractor finished the job, he apparently went out and got drunk, was arrested for disorderly conduct, and became the first occupant of the new jail.

The old jail had some interesting occupants. Niles attracted a number of violators because of the railroad, hideouts in Niles Canyon and a homeless camp under the bridge. It had more than its share of runaways. One time, five Oakland boys who called themselves "the Roughneck Gang," got locked in the Niles jail. They had broken into a Decoto home and stole a loaded pistol.

Constable Roderick found them down by the railroad bridge. He took away the pistol, unloaded and locked it in the jail desk. The boys were placed in two separate cells. The boys manthey had intended to go to San Jose. There they would steal an automobile and "complete their good time." Their plans fell apart at the Niles Jail.

One old drunken sailor was arrested after he seized a row boat and cruised up to Alvarado where he tried to wreck an automobile. He was placed in the township jail at Niles. Later, when Constable Rose went to get him, the jail was flooded with water and things were generally in a nautical state because he had tried to "sink the ship" by opening all of the plumbing stopcocks. The prisoner had evidently tried to make a hammock out of one of the beds. He made the jail an interesting place to sober up. The authorities were unable to determine if the sailor was "off mentally" or just suffering from the last stages of a sailor's spree. Later in the day, he was "towed along the highway to Oakland with Constable Rose as pilot and placed in Sheriff Barner's receiving ship."

The jail was here when the Esanay Movie Company was making movies. It made a handy picture for any films that required a jail. Some of the actors may have "acted their way from the street right into the jail.

Many of the men locked in the Niles jail were arrested for "disorderly conduct." They were judged too unfit or dangerous to be roaming the streets. Some had smashed windows or started and office space. It was obviously built to last. Don and Sheeta Geger owned the building when a reporter came by in 1978. They painted the walls a cream color and leveled up the floor with three inches of cement covered with Kraft tile. Don used the renovated building for his real estate office for several years before he retired. Later Real estate agents Mike Bough and Brian C. Moss had their offices here. A photo dated 1984 shows the armored door and steel bars on the windows.

Sara Lamnin: Hayward's Rookie Leader

By MARIA MANIEGO

At a special Hayward City Council meeting, held Tuesday, July 8, 2014, mixed emotions filled the air of the Council Chambers as attendees bid farewell to two beloved political figures of the City – former Mayor Michael Sweeney and former Council Member Mark Salinas. After heartfelt speeches, Mayor Barbara Halliday took her place as mayor along with new Councilmember Sara Lamnin, elected with 22 percent of the votes on June 3rd.

As a first-time public official, Lamnin says, “It’s amazing. I’ve served the city as an appointed [Planning Commissioner] for eight years and [I] loved that work. I am still looking forward to being able to lead the kind of changes that people want to see, continue the things that are working on really well and bring people together for really sustainable solutions for our city.”

Lamnin recognizes the city’s improvement on sustainability, environmental work, and streamlining processes, as well as its initiative to include residents in the decision-making process. However, there is much work to do in terms of traffic flow throughout the city and fiscal sustainability. “We don’t have to solve these by ourselves,” she adds.

Throughout her campaign, Lamnin used the motto: “Committed to Moving Hayward Forward.” To keep that promise Lamnin says, “For me, that’s all about jobs and creating opportunities, having that streamlined development process so that employers and businesses can open up in Hayward and stay in Hayward.

She continues, “...that students graduating or schools have good job opportunities, that there are hands-on learning opportunities for students. We could have coordinated internships throughout our city so that the next fire chief, newspaper writer, every industry has an internship program.”

Residing in Hayward for 20 years, Lamnin decided to run for a council position because she became “frustrated.” Lamnin recalls, “I was watching at the federal level a health care legislation that had all the votes it needed to pass, and the [House Speaker] wouldn’t let it to the floor.” She wants to be part of the solution and ask: “What’s the next step? How do we move that forward?”

Club Z! Tutoring ‘Annual Achievement Award’

SUBMITTED BY LISA BRUNER

The results are in and the local Club Z! In-Home Tutoring Annual Achievement Award turned out to be a huge success! Students from all backgrounds and with all levels of skills and abilities had an opportunity to showcase their individual talents in an attempt to win over $25,000 in scholarship prizes. A fantastic effort was made by all applicants and six national winners were ultimately chosen.

We are proud to announce several local Fremont student winners this year. Caitlin Pon of Fremont Christian School and Aishwarya Aravind of Irvington High School were selected as Honorable Mention winners and have been presented with cash prizes at school ceremonies awarding their winning endeavors.

Open to students with all levels of talents and abilities, the Club Z! Annual Achievement Award has something to offer for all students in grades 5 through 12. So whether your student is a steadfast scholar, or has shown steady improvement, is a helper in the classroom or a leader on the field, can write a thoughtful essay or even a math whiz, the Club Z! Annual Achievement Award has something for all!

Stay posted for more information about the next award period during the fall of 2014. Teachers, nominate your students or encourage them to apply online. Visit our website for applications and further information: www.clubztutoring.com/fremont.

Mariachi Festival

SUBMITTED BY THE CITY OF NEWARK

The City of Newark will host its first annual Mariachi Festival on Sunday, July 20 at Shirley Sisk Grove near NewPark Mall. This event will be an addition to the many planned activities that the City has in hopes of promoting cultural diversity. “Given the demographics of the area, I think it’s going to be a good thing. Everyone that I talk to seems excited about it,” said David Zehnder, director of Recreation and Community Services.

The idea was conceived by City Council Member Sucky Col-lazo when she saw that Hayward and San Jose have successfully run Mariachi festivals of their own. The event was made possible with help from Recreation and Community Services department, the community, and sponsors including Arteaga’s Food Center, Atlas Construction and Plumbing, Inc., Cargill Salt, and Mexico Tortilla Factory.

This free event will feature Mariachi Mexicanisimo, a group that was formed in Hayward in 1996. Mariachi Halcones de Oakland, Ballet Folklórico Compañía México Danza de Hayward, and Musick Elementary School Children’s Ballet Folklórico will also grace the event. Guests are encouraged to bring their own food to the venue.

BUSINESS

WellPoint
CEO: Insurer
readies for technology
wave

BY TOM MURPHY
AP BUSINESS WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) — WellPoint CEO Joseph Swedish says that when people ask what a doctor's appointment will be like in the future, they assume that patients will physically have to visit an office.

They're wrong, the insurance executive told The Associated Press during an interview at its New York headquarters.

"I would argue that will no longer be necessary in the not too distant future," Swedish said after pulling out a smartphone to show how it can be used to help remotely diagnose problems like ear infections.

Swedish says adapting to technology is a top priority for him as he leads the nation's second largest health insurer. The U.S. health care overhaul also is a big focus for WellPoint Inc., which is one of the biggest players in the overhaul's public insurance exchanges. The largely online exchanges debuted last fall and helped roughly 8 million people find coverage.

Swedish has gotten a good reception from Wall Street since taking the top job at WellPoint last year after a long career running large hospital networks. The Blue Cross Blue Shield insurer's stock has climbed about 76 percent since WellPoint named him CEO — more than twice the growth of the Standard & Poor's 500 index over the same period.

During the AP interview, Swedish talked about a variety of topics, including how WellPoint is adapting its coverage to keep up with rapidly changing technology and about getting customers prepared for health care decisions they may not be ready to make.

Below are four takeaways from the interview:
RIDING TECHNOLOGY WAVES

WellPoint is adapting to technology by doing things like covering visits to workplace health kiosks, where a company's employees can speak live with a doctor and get diagnosed without leaving the office. It's also testing a program that allows a mom to attach an otoscope to her smartphone and let a doctor remotely peer inside her child's ears. That doctor can then electronically file a prescription, and the mom doesn't have to miss work for the doctor's appointment.

These advances can make care access easier, and they cater to younger generations that have grown up with smartphones.

"We really have to pivot and adapt to the demands of the consumer," Swedish said.

DATA MINING

Marketers have used so-called big data for years to figure out where consumers spend their money. Swedish calls the 581 million medical claims that WellPoint processes every year an "incredible data mine" that can offer valuable insights. Data mining can help WellPoint determine whether patients are filling prescriptions and if they need reminders about follow-up care.

Insurers see what some may call a form of cyber nagging as ways to improve care and cut costs in the long run. That happens when the diabetic who is prodded to keep up with his care doesn't develop heart disease and wind up in the emergency room with a heart attack.

A TOUGH TRANSITION

The days of people simply using whatever health plan their employer offered are starting to fade. They now face choices, so they have to figure out which plan offers the best doctors for their needs or which coverage has manageable out-of-pocket costs.

Insurance also isn't covering as much of the bill as it used to, which exposes patients more to health care costs. That means they have to figure out how to shop around for both the best deal and good quality.

Swedish said consumers aren't yet ready for this industry-wide shift toward health care shopping, and it will be a difficult transition.

"We now have a responsibility to give people information that they can understand," he said.

THE OVERHAUL PART II

Technology glitches and crashes marred last year's debut of the health care overhaul's public insurance exchanges. The federal government labored feverishly to improve the exchanges, but Swedish still expects some problems when a new enrollment period starts this fall for insurance that begins in 2015. Millions will seek coverage and those who signed up last year also will have to re-enroll.

"My concern is (the exchanges) may not be as fluid and flexible and accommodating as is necessary," he said.

LG Display
unveils 18-inch
flexible display

BY YOUKYUNG LEE
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — LG Display Co. has developed an 18-inch flexible display that can be rolled into the shape of a thin cylinder, a step toward making a large display for flexible TVs.

The South Korean display panel maker said Friday the flexible display has a resolution of 1200 pixels by 810 pixels and maintains its function when it is rolled up.

While that resolution would fall within the range of high-definition, images on the display would not look as sharp as the latest flat displays that boast ultra-high definition.

LG touted its technology as a significant advance, saying the cylinder's diameter would be just 6 centimeters (2.4 inches). It means LG Display could produce TVs that are larger than 50 inches diagonally and can be rolled up.

It is based on OLED technology, an advanced display that can show images in richer colors.

South Korean display makers are striving to gain an edge in flexible display technology as they see it as a way to set their products apart from their rivals in China, Taiwan and Japan. They also hope that the novel form would give consumers a reason to buy a new gadget.

Last year, Samsung Electronics Co. and LG Electronics Inc. each released a smartphone with a curved display to show off their technological prowess.

But it is unclear how the nascent technology would make handsets or televisions more useful. LG said its technology would make large TVs portable and it is up to the TV makers how they expand the use of the technology.

The South Korean company also unveiled a semi-opaque display. Though it is not as transparent as glass, that's the direction that the company is heading. LG named it the transparent display saying its transparency has improved from existing technology.

In the picture provided by LG, it is possible to see hands through the display. LG Display spokesman said it is possible to view images on the transparent display from the front and from the back.

By 2017, LG aims to develop a flexible and transparent display that measures more than 60 inches diagonally, Kang In-byung, head of LG Display's R&D Center, said in a statement.

A look at the Dow's
1,000-point
milestones

AP WIRE SERVICE

The Dow Jones industrial average punched through 17,000 for the first time on Friday following good news on the U.S. job market. The index has soared past some big, round-number milestones in recent years. Here's when the Dow has crossed 1,000-point milestones.

Nov. 21, 2013 - 16,000: The Dow crossed its third and final 1,000-point milestone for 2013 on this day. The index was propelled by a combination of rising corporate profits and low interest-rate policies from the Federal Reserve that made stocks a more compelling place to invest than bonds.

May 10, 2013 - 15,000: The average broke through 15,000 only three months after passing 14,000. It was up nearly 15 percent for the year, and would climb another 15 percent by the end of 2013.

Feb. 1, 2013 - 14,000: The Dow crossing 14,000 was an especially big milestone. The Dow hadn't traded above 14,000 since October 2007, when the financial crisis began to drag down the stock market. It took the Dow more than five years to recover from the housing market bust, and subsequent financial crisis and recession.

March 13, 2012 - 13,000: The Dow touched the 13,000-point mark several times in early 2012, but finally closed above it in mid-March. The stock market rallied that week after the Fed announced the results of its annual bank "stress tests." Those tests showed the U.S. banking system continuing to recover from the 2008-2009 financial crisis.

Ex-chief of huge pension fund guilty of bribery

By PAUL ELIAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), The former head of the California Public Employees' Retirement System, the nation's largest public pension fund, pleaded guilty Friday to bribery and fraud. Federico Buenrostro Jr., the former chief executive of CalPERS, entered his plea in San Francisco federal court, and acknowledged receiving paper bags and a shoe box stuffed with $200,000 in cash along with casino chips and other benefits from Alfred Villalobos, a Lake Tahoe, California, investment manager who also served on the CalPERS board in the mid-90s.

Buenrostro, CEO of CalPERS from 2002 through 2008, said he went to work for Villalobos the day after his state pension took effect and that he accepted an additional $50,000 after lying to federal investigators in 2010 about the pair's relationship.

Buenrostro, 64, said he used his influence to make investment decisions beneficial to Villalobos' clients. Buenrostro also said he gave Villalobos access to the pension system's confidential investment information.

Further, Buenrostro said he forged letters that allowed Villalobos' firms to earn millions in commissions for investing $3 billion in the pension fund's money. Buenrostro said he began forging the so-called investor disclosure letters after CalPERS legal and investment offices declined to authorize them.

Villalobos wouldn't have received commissions from the Wall Street equity fund Apollo Global Management without those letters.

Villalobos has pleaded not guilty to fraud charges and other related counts. His attorney, Bruce Funk, said his client denies the allegations contained in Buenrostro's plea agreement. "If he's truthful, there is nothing he can say that will hurt Mr. Villalobos," Funk said.

Buenrostro faces five years in prison and a $250,000 fine when he is sentenced in January. In exchange for a lesser sentence, Buenrostro has agreed to cooperate with the continuing investigation of Villalobos, said Buenrostro lawyer William Portonova.

"He got tired of lying," Portonova said. "He's ready to tell the truth."

Aside from the cash and chips, Villalobos paid for Buenrostro's wedding and hosted it at his home in 2004, Buenrostro said. Buenrostro also said that Villalobos paid for first-class airfare, hotels, meals and entertainment for a business trips to Dubai, Hong Kong and Macau.

The guilty plea is the product of an investigation into the role of placement agents such as Villalobos, middlemen hired by money-management firms to help them win business with investors.

The state attorney general filed a lawsuit in 2010 alleging that Buenrostro and Villalobos along with other former pension board and staff members participated in kickback scheme. At that time, the attorney general obtained a court order freezing the assets of Villalobos and his company in an attempt to recover more than $40 million in commissions. The assets of Villalobos, who filed for bankruptcy later in 2010, included 20 bank accounts, two Bentleys, two BMWs, a Hummer, art worth more than $2.7 million and 14 properties in California, Nevada and Hawaii.

State attorney general spokesman Nick Pacilio said a trial is scheduled for Sept. 8 in San Francisco Superior Court.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has also filed a lawsuit in 2012, which is still pending.

In a related sanction, the state's campaign watchdog, the Fair Political Practices Commission, fined other executives and investment managers in 2011 for failing to report gifts that included food, wine and baseball and Rose Bowl tickets.

CalPERS issued an unsigned statement saying the bribery scandal prompted it to take "aggressive steps to implement policies and reforms that strengthen accountability and ensure full transparency."

Use reusables campaign kicks off

SUBMITTED BY STOPWASTE

The "Use Reusables" campaign, led by public agency StopWaste, is offering grant funding for organizations planning to incorporate reusable packaging into their manufacturing, transport and/or distribution systems. Up to $30,000 is available per project, with $90,000 total funding available for all grants.

Projects must prevent waste and incorporate reusable transport packaging that will be reused multiple times. Examples of reusable transport packaging include durable pallets, totes or bins, reusable pallet wrap or other reusable transport packaging solutions.

Deadline for applications is August 15.

Join a free 30-minute webinar presentation to learn more about the types and benefits of reusables, grant eligibility and the application process. Attendance of this informational webinar is recommended but not required for grant eligibility.

Recount begins in California controller's race

AP WIRE SERVICE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), Election officials in two counties have begun counting ballots in the contested race for state controller.

Assemblyman John Perez, a Los Angeles Democrat, requested the recount in Imperial and Kern counties after finishing third in the June 3 primary. Perez was 481 votes behind fellow Democrat Betty Yee, a member of the state Board of Equalization. Fresno Mayor Ashley Swearingin, a Republican, finished first.

It is the first recount in a statewide candidate election in modern California history.

Perez is seeking recounts in 15 counties, a process that could drag on for weeks. There is no deadline for clerks to finish. Perez's campaign must pay the cost.

Friday also is the deadline for Secretary of State Debra Bowen to certify the election results and release the official voter turnout statistics.

THEATRE REVIEW

Dark Tale in Fine Voice and Fabulous View

By JULIE GRABOWSKI

Meat pie anyone?

The Tony Award-winning musical “Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street” makes an irresistible offer, wielding its swift blade and fantastic music under the stars at the Smith Center Amphitheatre at Ohlone College.

Returning to London from an unjust exile which lost him his family, Sweeney Todd is driven by one purpose - to exact vengeance upon the man who framed him and took advantage of his wife. In Fleet Street he meets Mrs. Lovett, the proprietress of a faltering pie shop, and resumes his barbering trade in the vacant room upstairs, waiting for the moment he can cut down Judge Turpin. Todd's increasing blood thirst and Mrs. Lovett's lack of good meat for her pies forms a gruesome partnership that puts a dent in London's population and produces a spectacularly popular pie.

Director Ryan Weible has assembled strong vocalists and fantastic visuals for an impressive and entertaining show. And let's get it out of the way for the squeamish - this is a blood-free production. Instead, the unlucky meet their end with an effective burst of red light and a sharp whistle.

The women of the cast make the most impact, led by Sarah Bylsma who is fun and likable as the resourceful Mrs. Lovett. Bylsma's excellent voice is a steady pillar throughout the show and she is winning in “The Worst Pies in London” and the hilariously macabre “A Little Priest.”

Cara Wodka is an ideal Johanna, her fair, small frame packed with a great big voice. While beautifully sung, “Green Finch and Linnet Bird” is delivered from a balcony behind the audience, requiring everyone to crane their necks around to see her. With her love interest Anthony (Robert Barlow) responding from the stage, the distance is too great to feel a connection. Wodka is underserved by this location, as the audience chooses to keep their eyes forward instead of being tennis spectators. The number would have been better placed on stage in the upstairs room utilized in “Kiss Me,” a great duet from Wodka and Barlow.

Though she doesn't have much stage time, Kaylyn Dowd makes the most of what she has as the Beggar Woman, managing to be creepy, sad, endearing, and frightening all at once. Paired with a fantastic voice, her performance is absolutely spot on.

A big surprise is finding that the characters of Pirelli the barber and the Beadle have been changed into women. The choice rankles. Women would not have held these positions in 1846, which is when the story is set, so disbelief is immediately afoot. Sabrina Strand has presence and humor as Pirelli, but neither of the women carry the weight, tension, and threatening air that is expected.

While his voice can clearly handle the role, Robert Sholty's Sweeney comes off as uneven, his dark desire wandering in and out on a surface level instead of being a deep and constant bubbling that governs his every move. Sholty travels around from shouting to mildness to downright jolly on occasion; this may be to foster a bit of levity or suggest an everyman quality, but it diminishes his impact and renders him less scary. “Epiphany” is where Sholty is at his best.

Andrew Apy is vibrant and lovable as Tobias, ably drawing you in and selling “Pirelli's Sequence” and is sweet and touching in “Not While I'm Around.” The members of the ensemble do a great job filling out the show.

Set designer Fred Alim has created a gorgeously impressive stage that has you in the story before the first note sounds. A map of the River Thames frames the dark and bricked Fleet Street containing the stacked pie shop and barbershop, Johanna's rooms, and an actual flaming and smokey bakehouse. The hinged barber chair is a great element, effectively and delightfully slipping bodies out of sight.

And where would we be without the music? From scrambling and fevered to romantic and sweeping, the live orchestra handles Stephen Sondheim's versatile score with wonderful punch and vigor under the direction of Tony Clements.

While a little shy of the mark in overall intensity and chill, “Sweeney Todd” is nevertheless a great show that is absolutely worth seeing. So step right up deary, it won't hurt none.

Olympian addresses graduates at DeVry University

SUBMITTED BY JULIA WATTS

Elana Meyers-Taylor, two-time U.S. Olympic medalist, delivered the keynote address at DeVry University's commencement ceremony on June 27. More than 250 graduates from the Bay Area were conferred at Chabot College's Reed L. Buffington Visual and Performing Arts Center in Hayward where Meyers-Taylor spoke to the importance of perseverance and determination.

Meyers-Taylor earned a silver medal in the two-woman bobsled at the 2014 Olympic Winter Games in Sochi, Russia, and a bronze in the same event at the 2010 Winter Games in Vancouver, British Columbia. Aside from being an Olympic athlete, Meyers-Taylor is also a dedicated student. She holds a master's degree in sports management and a bachelor's degree in exercise science, both from George Washington University, and is currently pursuing her MBA in finance at DeVry University's Keller Graduate School of Management.

Designer tips to create inspired dream spaces with color

Ready to transform your home this year? The key to creating your dream interior space could be as simple as updating with color. Seven in-10 homeowners plan a house-related project in the next six months, according to the Sherwin-Williams National Home Design and Color Survey. Of those homeowners planning house projects, painting tops the list with 42 percent wanting to liven up their space with color, followed by landscaping (39 %) and home redecorating (30 %).

Adding color with paint makes sense to internationally celebrated interior designer Jeff Andrews, who has decorated the homes of celebrities from Ryan Seacrest, to Michael C. Hall to the Kardashians family.

"Paint can incorporate distinctive touches that will liven any living space.

Everyone has the potential to live in his or her dream space, and a touch of color can easily make it a reality," Andrews says.

Andrews offers the following tips on how to create the ultimate dream space:

- * Upgrade living areas with creative color choices: Changing the color of your walls can transform a room from ordinary to extraordinary. For stunning color for years to come, Sherwin-Williams Emerald Interior paint offers paint and primer in one, with advanced stain-blocking technology, ensuring a statement color that's easy to maintain and perfect for any room in your home.

- * Highlight accent pieces with vivid color to bring a room alive: A distinctive color adds a layer of visual elegance to any room. Painting an accent wall, trim, crown moldings or a ceiling in a color that complements the walls can give a room a customized look.
- * Channel your inner designer: From stripes to any simple geometric designs, infuse vibrant energy to a room with an on-trend painted pattern.
- * Create curb appeal with a bold use of color: To help your home make its best first impression, make over the exterior of your home with a bold color. Among homeowners surveyed, almost two-thirds (64 percent) are confident handling outdoor painting projects. Consider coordinating your palettes from the inside out by painting your front door a few shades darker than the entryway.

- * Transform the ordinary: A fresh coat of paint can elevate a simple piece of furniture and provide a distinctive look. According to the survey, nearly two-in-three homeowners (64 percent) want to add more color into their home. Pick a favorite desk or nightstand and use color to create a signature focal point in a room. For more tips and color inspiration, visit sherwin-williams.com/color.

A traditional style faucet (Opulence Collection by Danze) in Stainless Steel adds a bit of craftsmanship to this contemporary white kitchen. (BPT)

A Blend of Old and New

It can be hard to keep up with the latest changes in decorating styles for the home. But the latest trend might actually make it easy for you to have a stylish house, especially if you've kept some family treasures around.

Mixing traditional and contemporary decor within a home can give your spaces a warm, yet up-to-date, feel. Keeping those traditional accents, furniture pieces or even wallpaper in your home and blending them with contemporary elements that have clean lines or bright colors can create a relaxed and attention-grabbing look. You can incorporate this style in any room of the home, and it allows you to display that mirror your grandma had in her bathroom, or to bring new life and energy to the aged marble countertops in your kitchen.

Try these tips to help get the most out of the old, bringing a new look to your home:

* Accent with white - One great way to give a room a contemporary balance is to accent with white. The trim, molding, doors and even decorative linens you use can bring new energy to a furniture item or heirloom piece you've had in your family for years. Blending the soft wood tones of older furniture or dark wood floors with cool and fresh white accents will make the room vibrant. If it's your kitchen that's sporting the contemporary white color, add Danze faucets in stainless steel finishes that showcase a more traditional dV©cor to balance the overall feel.

* Choose your finishes with intention - The finish you choose for your fixtures and faucets will have a significant impact on the look and feel of the room. For example, a white sink or toilet fits well when adding contemporary elements versus biscuit, which will bring a more subdued, traditional flavor. Selecting faucets with a bronze finish could add a noticeable and beautiful deviation to an otherwise white bathroom decor. The Eastham Collection by Danze has a very architectural look that works well in either traditional or contemporary environments. But changing its finish can greatly alter the impact it brings the room.

* Add little touches - An old six-paned window with cracked and worn wood can become a frame for family photos. Wood from an old barn can be used for a coffee table or fireplace mantel. Mix up the chairs around your dining room table by blending both modern and contemporary styles. These little changes in a room's decor might not be immediately obvious, but as visitors look around the room, they'll notice the special touches you've made by mixing two distinctive styles.

* Incorporate a couple focal pieces - If the shell of your room has a contemporary look, adding a few traditional elements and conversation pieces into the room can create a stunning look. An antique lamp, an old trunk that becomes a side table or a church pew in an entryway can all be attention-getting additions. On the flipside, if your home features traditional wooden floors that have aged beautifully, let the floor take center stage with simple, modern decorations.

Mixing old and new is a decorating trend in today's home decor, and there are benefits galore to exploring its flavor. You'll have a beautiful home today, with flexibility to alter it in the years to come. If, in five years, you decide going contemporary is the path for you, simply switch out that bronze faucet with chrome or replace the antique accent pieces in the living room. Regardless of the way you mix traditional and contemporary elements, you can be assured that it won't overwhelm your guests. Instead, they'll enjoy experiencing your creativity and the breath of fresh air you brought to your home.

White trim and fixtures bring in a contemporary aspect, while the bronze faucet and lighting coupled with the table-like vanity add in a more traditional flair.

We're All in this Together... Save Water!

Alameda County Water District customers have reduced their water use by nearly 20% since a water shortage emergency was declared in March. Now that the driest, hottest time of the year is upon us, we'd like to encourage you to keep up the good work. As local 6th grade student Mary Zhu reminds us in her grand prize winning poster, it's not the actions of a few that make a difference, but the actions of everyone, taken together, that help to ensure a reliable water supply during a drought.

Remember...

- Water your landscaping no more than two days per week from June – September.
- Avoid hosing off sidewalks and driveways.
- Equip all hoses with quick-acting shutoff nozzles.
- Report water waste by calling (510) 668-4299 or by visiting www.acwd.org/reportwaste.

IN SEARCH OF NATURAL HUES?

A garden ‘to dye for’

BY SARAH WOLFE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Homegrown botanical dyes are in, part of today’s shift toward more natural and organic living. And you don’t need a degree in chemistry to create your own hues for scarves, sweaters or even Easter eggs. All it takes is a garden plot or a few pots and a kitchen. “If you’re already gardening or already even have a landscape, you can look out your window and you can use the things that are there, that you’re already growing, for a dyer’s garden,” says Chris McLaughlin, a gardener in Placerville, California, and author of the new book “A Garden to Dye For: How to Use Plants from the Garden to Create Natural Colors for Fabrics and Fibers” (St. Lynn’s Press).

WHERE TO START? If you’re planting a new dye garden, McLaughlin’s book contains several different garden plans. An edible dye garden, for example, might be best if you have limited space and can’t justify giving up square footage for anything other than fruits and veggies. Suggested plants include carrots, bee balm, rosemary, purple basil, red onions, chamomile, beets, blueberries, red cabbage and marjoram. A cutting dye garden features flowers that can be cut for indoor display or tossed in the dye pot. McLaughlin recommends roses, hollyhocks, dahlias, rudbeckia, purple coneflowers, zinnias and cosmos.

Of course, you can always mix veggies and flowers, or plant a few items in containers. And if you’re already gardening, chances are you have some of these plants and flowers in your backyard. “Even a typical suburban landscape that was planted by the housing developer might have birch, juniper, roses, Japanese maple or eucalyptus,” McLaughlin says. For beginners, French marigolds and onions (red or yellow) are easy to grow and produce vivid colors for dyes, according to Julie Jensen, farmer and founder of Echoview Farm and Fiber Mill near Asheville, North Carolina.

- WHICH PLANTS FOR WHICH COLORS?
- Appearance isn’t everything. The vibrant pink flowers of the peony, for example, result in a pale lime green when used for dye, according to Howard Freilich, founder of the New York-based landscaping service Blondie’s Treehouse.
- Here’s a list of his favorite sources for various hues:
- Beets (roots) - deep red
 - Rose (hips) - red
 - Lilac (twigs) - yellow/orange
 - Golden Rod (flowers) - yellow
 - Coneflower (flowers) - brownish green; (leaves and stems) - gold
 - Ivy (twigs) - yellow/brown
 - Onion (skin) - orange
 - Carrot (roots) - orange
 - Foxglove (flowers) - apple green
 - Peppermint (leaves) - dark khaki green
 - Peony (flowers) - pale lime green
 - Hyacinth (flowers) - blue
 - Purple Iris (flowers) - blue
 - Hibiscus (flowers, dark red or purple) - red-purple
 - Oregano (dried stalk) - deep brown/black
 - Iris (roots) - black

GROWING TIPS

A dye garden doesn’t require any more work than a typical garden. But Freilich notes that dye content in plants is significantly influenced by temperature, humidity and sun exposure. “So you want to make sure that the plant is growing in its ideal condition,” he says. McLaughlin recommends leaving at least 4 feet of space around the beds to make it easier to harvest and tend to the plants and flowers. That leaves room for wheelbarrows and other equipment.

HARVESTING TIPS

Blossoms should be in full bloom, and berries and nuts ripe when harvesting plants for dyes, according to Freilich. As for roots, the dye content increases as the plant ages. However, most of the plants that contain dyes in their roots are perennials, and will take two to three years to develop enough dye for harvesting, he says. If picking an entire plant or leaves, do so at the end of their growing season so the dye content is at its peak.

- A SIMPLE DYE RECIPE FOR FUN
- Naturally dyed play dough
 - 2 cups flour
 - 1 cup salt
 - 1 tablespoon cream of tartar
 - 1 1/2 cups water
 - 1/2 cup natural dye (can be created from blueberry, beetroot, onion skins, red cabbage, spinach leaves, cranberries, hibiscus tea, grape juice, turmeric, etc.)
 - 1/4 cup oil

Heat all ingredients in a pot on the stove on low to medium heat. Using a wooden spoon, stir continuously until the mixture pulls away from the sides of the pot. Continue stirring until it really pulls away from the sides, gets deeper in color and becomes a big ball. Let cool. To make smaller batches in a variety of colors, divide the dough into equal parts and punch into the center of each one. Add a different dye to each one, kneading it into the dough. Online:

Moving? How to choose the right school from afar

BY MELISSA RAYWORTH
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Janine Boldrin Gwinn has become an experienced house-hunter and an expert packer of boxes. Seven times, this Army wife has managed to move her family from one place in the U.S. to another, improving the process a little more each time. But the search for schools for her children is never easy.

How can a parent choose the right school when it’s not possible to visit the potential choices? As we’ve become a more mobile and global society, many families now face this challenge as they move cross-country or even internationally.

The decision is ultimately a personal one, but several strategies can make the process go more smoothly:

ONLINE DETECTIVE WORK

Boldrin Gwinn’s search usually starts online at GreatSchools.com, where she compares rankings for schools in her destination city. She has noticed that the rankings can fluctuate frequently, however, so she doesn’t eliminate schools solely on the basis of that assessment.

Her next step is to explore the schools’ websites. A school with a well-organized, informative website will likely be a place that communicates effectively with parents. Is the site kept up-to-date? Do teachers have pages or sections that might give you a sense of their methodology or approach to students?

Just keep in mind that a school’s website may have been designed with marketing in mind. Some of the positive buzz-words you see may be the work of a good publicist more than an accurate reflection of the school’s approach to teaching.

WORD OF MOUTH

Babette Maxwell, who has moved her family frequently during her husband’s Navy career, also does extensive on-line research about new schools. And she asks people living in the community where she’s heading.

If you are moving for a job, ask your employer to connect you with families who have children in the same age group as yours. Use Facebook to explore community groups or other family organizations in your new area; you can post a query on that page about schools.

The Facebook pages of schools can also be a great resource for learning about the community of parents there, the issues parents are discussing and how the school’s administration interacts with them.

SCHOOL BEFORE HOME

Maxwell finds it practical to choose schools for her sons before selecting the location of her new home. Finding the right school, she says, can much be tougher than finding a suitable home.

Terri Bridgwater agrees: When she moved cross-country with her children, she selected a school that was a fairly long commute from her new home. The school turned out to be a great choice, but the commute was difficult.

If you don’t find a good school in your initial search, Bridgwater suggests widening the search area. You may find something perfect just Fitness Fun!

THREE REASONS TO GET UP AND MOVE!

1. Exercise makes your muscles stronger, helps keep you at the right weight and makes you feel happy.
2. Your heart is a muscle and exercise makes it stronger. A strong heart keeps the oxygen flowing to all your body parts. Your body parts need oxygen to stay healthy!
3. When you exercise, your body makes chemicals called endorphins (en-DOOR-fins). These chemicals make you feel happy.

Fun for One!

Playing team sports is one way to exercise. But, you can also get fit all by yourself.

Amy, Lisa and Trini each like to exercise alone. But their reflections are really weird. Can you find the differences?

Standards Link: Physical Education: Students understand the benefits of physical activity.

Hoop Heroes

Hank and Hugo are playing some one-on-one basketball. Add up the numbers on the basketballs to find out which player will win.

Standards Link: Number Sense: Calculate sums.

HANK	HUGO

9	18
TOTAL:

Rollin' and Racin'

Who will win the race? Add up the numbers along each skater's path. The one with the highest total wins!

Work Out Plot

Hoeing, bending and digging keeps a garden growing and makes your body strong and healthy.

Gerry's garden is 6 feet by 6 feet. How many pepper plants can he plant if the plants need to be 12 inches from one another as well as 12 inches from the fence surrounding the plot?

Resist! Resist!

When you use a muscle to push against something, that is a resistance exercise. Resistance exercises tone muscles and keep them strong. They also strengthen your bones.

You can get great resistance exercise by helping around the house! Here's how: push a vacuum, rake leaves, move furniture, scrub the floor or even knead bread.

Circle the kids doing a resistance exercise.

Standards Link: Physical Education: Students know how to modify activities to be more health-enhancing.

Extra! Extra! Fitness Find

Look through the newspaper to find:

- A picture of someone playing a sport
- Someone who looks healthy
- A place to exercise

Standards Link: Physical Education: Recognize opportunities for physical exercise outside of school.

GO FOR IT Challenge

Complete the circle charts below, one for each day of the week. Each wedge in the charts equals 10 minutes. If you dance for 20 minutes, color in two wedges. If you play basketball for one hour, fill in an entire circle.

Standards Link: Physical Education: Understand how to monitor and maintain a health-enhancing level of physical fitness.

Tri-City Stargazer JULY 16 – JULY 22, 2014 BY VIVIAN CAROL

For All Signs: Our largest planet, Jupiter, moves into the sign of Leo on July 16 and will remain in that sign for a full year. Jupiter is the planet of expansion, optimism, philosophy, travel and education. It generally represents improvements and growth in whatever department of life it touches. The dark side of Jupiter can expand growth into grandiosity. Its last sojourn through Leo occurred during 2002 - 2003, so review that era for comparison. Jupiter's change of signs affects everyone, but is perceived in a different way, depending upon the sun and ascendant signs at birth. They both apply, so if you know your ascendant (or rising sign), you can read two zodiac signs below.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): The time has come to relax and remember how to play. All types of creative work will be enhanced and those with children will find greater satisfaction and a more rewarding relationship in the next year. Those who want children or a new love affair will likely be granted their wish. Give yourself permission to explore new possibilities in creative self-expression.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Jupiter will bring improvements to your domestic life. This may manifest in a new home or other property such as a car. It especially favors home decorating or expansion projects. Domestic problems of the past may be improved or resolved during this period. Opportunities to improve and augment relationships to the family of origin will be presented.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): During the next year opportunities for travel will probably increase. Relationships with siblings, roommates and/or neighbors will be more rewarding, and your overall daily attitude becomes more optimistic. Focus of attention on communication (written or oral) will be highlighted. Educational opportunities are attractive and expansive. You may become a teacher in your field.

Cancer the Crab: (June 21 – July 21): You will likely have improvements in financial income or other personal resources. This may develop either as the result of general good luck or increased effort. Optimistic attitudes concerning money could lead you to overextend resources. Your sense of self-esteem is increased by several notches as you demonstrate the skills you have learned in recent years.

Leo the Lion (July 22-Aug 22): Jupiter in your sign will lighten any load, renew your sense of optimism and reinforce your self-esteem. Help and cooperation of others will be more available to you, especially if you make your requests in person. The spiritual dimension of your life will improve and travel or education becomes more prominent. The only difficulty with this transit is the tendency for weight gain.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Any effort toward becoming more acquainted with the deeper parts of your self will be well rewarded. Positive results can be achieved through psychotherapy, dream work, meditation, hypnosis and/or prayer. Assistance will come to you through unexpected (and possibly mysterious) sources. Your desire to contribute to the greater social good will increase and yield good "karma."

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Effort invested in organizational or group social causes will be returned in bounty. Networking with friends and acquaintances may play an active role toward helping you attain personal goals in life. Relationships with stepchildren (and more generally to other people's children) will improve and become a source of pleasure. Corporate financial resources may increase.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Any reasonable effort in the area of profession, career or social status should meet with favorable results during the next few months. There may be additional travel, or educational/teaching opportunities associated with career endeavors. Relationships to superiors will be more supportive. Opportunities develop to improve relationships with the family of origin.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Jupiter augurs improvements and good fortune through any or all of the following: legal or ethical issues, contacts with foreign lands or people who live at a distance, the Internet, higher education, teaching, publishing and long distance travel. Events of the next year will broaden your perspective on all of life and expand your sense of connection to a larger circle of others.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): Gain comes to you through areas of shared financial resources. These may include: compensation from insurance or other group holdings, increases in partner's income, sale of property, gains through inheritance or gifts, increase in the value of stocks, bonds or other mutually held property, or tax benefits. Debts owed to you will be paid, whether financial or favors. Intimate life is on the upswing.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): The year brings improvements in all your most intimate relationships. This may be the year to get married or develop a beneficial business partnership. Those with client bases will note considerable expansion. The period is favorable for attracting positive assistance through professional consultants (e.g.: doctors, counselors, etc.). Travel and/or education are on the increase.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Jupiter will increase the physical vitality, heal anomalies, and offer improvements in work conditions. Relationships to coworkers will be enhanced and equipment may be updated. This is the time to look for a better job (or it may find you). Any type of self-improvement program, but especially those relating to the physical body, will have highly beneficial results. Many will adopt pets.

Renovating?

Laying a good foundation for home improvement success

You've probably heard the saying: "Your home is your castle." But if your current home - or the home you're thinking of buying - feels more like the servant's quarters than the royal palace, you may need to plan a renovation. At times like these it's easy to give in to your excitement and get the project moving forward, but take a moment to plan your overall strategy. You'll find that, much like your future castle, your renovation project will benefit from a solid foundation.

You can build your foundation by accomplishing these important tasks.

Talk to a renovation specialist. Acquiring a renovation loan allows you to finance your new home mortgage and your renovation plans into a single loan. And an important aspect of the renovation loan to remember is that it's a product in which the loan is based on the value of the home after it's been improved. If you are renovating your existing home,

Shop around for the right contractor. If you plan to use a contractor for your project, it's important to select the right one. But how do you decide on a contractor? Research is important. Many contractors will provide you with a couple of references but this isn't always a fool-proof solution. These references could be relatives or friends of the contractor.

References can be helpful but don't rely on it exclusively. Dig deeper by traveling to the site of the contractor's current job. Are the clients happy? Has the contractor's work met expectations and budget? Has the contractor finished benchmarks on time? These are all important questions to ask. You can also inquire about the contractor's work on social media and professional referral websites.

Finalize your vision. Selecting the proper renovation specialist and contractor are key to your project, but both of these professionals will be able to provide you better service if you have a vision for you can use the loan to refinance your existing mortgage and make the renovation updates.

"Many consumers are not aware of the opportunities with renovation financing because not every lender offers this option, said Bill Trees, national renovation program manager, Wells Fargo. "Wells Fargo is the nation's leader in renovation financing. We serve all customers from first time homebuyers to repeat buyers, and have a team of specially trained home mortgage consultants across the country that only focus on renovation lending."

Speaking with a renovation lender can help you a lot in building your financial foundation for your renovation project.

what the project entails. You may not know exactly how much the project will cost, but you should have a budget in mind. If your contractor asks questions about layout or wall preferences, be ready to make the decisions and guide him or her toward your goals. Approaching the project with a plan will eliminate miscommunication and regrets later.

Renovating a new or existing property can be an exciting time, and establishing the proper foundation for the project can help you pass inspections and build the home you've always wanted. You can learn more about how renovation financing can make your dream project a reality by visiting the Wells Fargo Home Improvement Lending Center.

Broadway West's Production of LEND ME A TENOR

July 11 – August 9

World famous tenor, Tito Morelli, II Stupendo, is to perform Otello for one night only. He arrives late, and through a hilarious series of mishaps, is given a double dose of tranquilizers and passes out. His pulse is so low that Saunders, the general manager of the opera company and his assistant, Max, believe he is dead. What to do? Saunders persuades Max to get into Morelli's Otello costume and try to fool the audience into thinking he's II Stupendo. This sets off a series of hilarious events guaranteed to leave the audiences crying with laughter.

THEATRE REVIEW

Fiddler of the Roof

BY SARA GIUSTI
PHOTOS BY JAMES KOPONEN AND
BELINDA MALONEY

Stage 1's production of Fiddler on the Roof is a contagiously energetic occasion. If it is not the cast's stellar singing chops or the orchestra's perfect performance, it is the ensemble's own readily apparent excitement and passion that will sweep you away.

Award-winning Director Sue Ellen Nelson and Vocal and Musiing political landscape of Russia begins to seep into the lives of its residents. Fiddler on the Roof follows Tevye as he confronts these changes against his reliance on tradition, and the conflict arises notably in his daughters. His eldest daughter Tzeitel wants to marry the poor tailor, Motel, out of love instead of an arranged marriage with the older and wealthier butcher, Lazar Wolf. Hodel takes a liking to the university student with revolutionary ideas, Perchik. And Chava begins a relationship with a young non-with dashes of humor; keep an ear out for the laugh out loud first lesson he gives Tevye's daughters. Riki Jester hits the nail on the head with Yente's incredible gossipiness as the matchmaker. Jennifer Weiner's Fruma-Sarah is a special ghostly highlight. Lazar Wolf (Jon Rosen), the Rabbi (Bob Weisman), innkeeper Mordcha (Mark Helton), Fyedka (Robert Stadler), and the rest of the large ensemble give great performances. The cast as a whole is simply spectacular.

Dallis Wright-Morsah's chore-cal Director Joshua Milbourne bring out the humor, feeling, and universal themes of Fiddler on the Roof with effortless ease. This is saying a lot, as there is much to look up to: Fiddler on the Roof is a beloved musical, winning nine Tony's (including Best Musical) in 1965 and winning a special Tony in 1972 for longest running musical in Broadway history at the time. Not to mention its iconic film adaptation in 1971 that garnered three Academy Awards.

Set in the small village of Anatevka, Russia, on the eve of the Russian Revolution in 1905, the play focuses on the family of Tevye, a poor Jewish dairyman. Tevye and his wife, Golde, have five daughters — Tzeitel, Hodel, Chava, Shprintze, and Bielke — and despite being poor, they live a rich life of family and friends. Everyone knows everybody in this small town, and Jewish tradition plays a major role in their lives. Whether it's always covering your head with a hat or cloth, celebrating the Sabbath every week, or awaiting marriage proposal news from Yente, the village's matchmaker, Anatevka is heavily steeped in tradition. There has been no other way for as long as anyone can remember; after all, these traditions are in "the good book."

Despite Anatevka being a small, remote village, the chang-

Jewish man. How far will Tevye change as his daughters grow up in a quickly evolving world?

Dan Kapler steals the show as Tevye, giving an outstanding and truly excellent performance as the likable and humorous dairyman. His renditions of Fiddler's famous songs, such as "Tradition," "If I Were a Rich Man," and "Sunrise, Sunset," are gems. Eve McElheny Tieck captures Golde's sharp tongue and strong motherhood, and her duet with Kapler during "Do You Love Me?" is tender and sweet, yet still holds on to Golde's pessimistic humor. Tieck and Kapler's pairing as husband and wife could not be a better fit.

Tzeitel's Lauren D'Ambrosio, Hodel's Elizabeth Corson, and Chava's Mary Troxell are all a joy to watch with incredibly superb voices to boot; their performance of "Matchmaker" is spot on. They all play off each other, Kapler, and Tieck perfectly, and are a very believable family alongside the youngest daughters Shprintze and Bielke, played by Zoë Hall and Alaynah Gonzalez, respectively.

James Leonard Koponen is an affable Motel, getting his shyness and affable awkwardness just right. Steven Brown captures Perchik's university-bred revolutionary ideas and progressive passion ography is lively and infectious; you just want to dance alongside the cast as their colorful costumes sway with each step. The set itself is simple yet well-done, allowing for the ensemble to fully own the stage and center the audience's attention to the play's clever dialogue and lyrics. Indeed, Fiddler on the Roof's themes of tradition, value, and reconciliation of change are still relevant today as our own world develops into new ideas and meaning.

Applause is still reverberating from Newark Memorial High School, where Stage 1's productions take place. Grab your tickets now and catch the performance to see this July!

Relay For Life fights for a cure

Communities all across the country are gearing up once more for Relay For Life. The signature fundraising event for the American Cancer Society, Relay For Life unites people to celebrate those who have battled cancer, remember those lost to the disease, and fight to find a cure.

Teams of friends, families, and coworkers gather at local schools, parks, or fairgrounds to walk around a track overnight, with one team member on the track at all times, representing the fact that cancer never sleeps. Events include an inspiring Opening Ceremony; Survivors Lap; Luminaria Ceremony where brightly lit, decorated bags are placed to honor those lost and currently fighting cancer; Fight Back Ceremony symbolizing the commitment to family and community to fight cancer; and the Closing Ceremony to remember, celebrate, and recommit for another year. Games, food, and various activities are also available throughout the event to raise funds and have a great time throughout the day and night.

Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the U.S., and contributions are essential to the fight, ensuring ongoing research and support programs. The American Cancer Society has played an important role in nearly every major cancer research breakthrough of the past century, including mammography screening, bone marrow transplants, combination chemotherapy for childhood cancers, and the development of drugs to treat leukemia and breast cancer. In addition to raising much-needed funds, Relay For Life also raises awareness of the importance of cancer prevention, early detection, treatment, and patient support.

Join the movement in your community and help the American Cancer Society create a world with less cancer and more birthdays.

To learn more about Relay For Life and find details for an event in your city, visit www.relayforlife.org. To learn about the programs and services of the American Cancer Society, visit cancer.org or call 1-800-227-2345.

Splashdown 45 welcomes famed astronaut Buzz Aldrin

SUBMITTED BY
USS HORNET MUSEUM

In celebration of the 45th anniversary of the historic Apollo 11 mission in 1969 when humans first walked on the moon, the USS Hornet Museum will host “Splashdown 45.” This popular festival, which also commemorates the daring safe recovery of the astronauts and their command module by the aircraft carrier USS Hornet CVS-12, will take place Saturday, July 26.

Special guest speakers include Apollo 11 astronaut and best-selling author Buzz Aldrin, one of the first two men to walk on the moon. Aldrin will be available to sign copies of his acclaimed book “Mission to Mars: My Vision for Space Exploration.” Festival guests will also have an opportunity to meet Aldrin and other significant guests during the USS Hornet Museum’s VIP cocktail reception and dinner in the evening.

The aircraft carrier USS Hornet CVS-12 recovered the first two NASA missions that landed humans on the moon, Apollo 11 and Apollo 12. The ship is the largest surviving artifact from these events, which are acknowledged to be among the most important in human history. The USS Hornet Museum is now a registered state and national historic landmark and home of the largest collection of Apollo space mission artifacts on the West Coast.

While this year’s one-day event will again celebrate the various sciences and technologies connected with past space exploration programs – particularly Mercury, Gemini, and Apollo in the “space race to the moon” during the 1960s – representatives from NASA and 2other private companies will also join Aldrin in discussing upcoming U.S. space exploration plans for missions to the moon, Mars, and beyond. In addition, numerous other Bay Area organizations will showcase important space-related artifacts and youth activities.

“Our Splashdown events have become nationally recognized for our special guests, expert panels, and onboard activities. The USS Hornet Museum hosted over 3,500 guests for the 40th anniversary of Apollo 11 and we anticipate capacity crowds again this year,” said Bob Fish, Hornet trustee, Apollo curator of the USS Hornet Museum, and author of “Hornet Plus Three: The Story of the Apollo 11 Recovery.”

Other “Splashdown 45” activities include hands-on science activities, a portable planetarium, moon rock displays, specialized Apollo-themed tours, and interactive exhibits. Proceeds from the event will help fund further development of the USS Hornet Museum’s community outreach activities, such as its youth education program, merit badges for Scout programs, and more.

Daytime admission tickets will be available at the door, but it is highly recommended that tickets and books for the book signings be ordered in advance. Aldrin will only be signing books purchased through the Museum’s Ship Store.

Business or cocktail attire is requested for evening activities. Advance ticket purchase is required by Monday, July 21 to ensure reservations.

Pioneer Water Polo lands trio

SUBMITTED BY SCOTT CHISHOLM

Cal State East Bay head women's water polo coach Lisa Cooper announced July 11, the signing of L.A. Valley College teammates Sabrina Hatzler, Nayiri Kechichian, and Savannah Simmons, to national letters of intent for the 2015 season. The trio was part of a Monarchs squad that finished 16-4 and finished fourth at the SoCal Regionals this past fall.

Hatzler and Kechichian were named California Community College Athletic Association (CCCCAA) First Team All-America and All-Region selections. Hatzler led the Monarchs in goals (104), assists (61), and steals (105). Kechichian completed the 1-2 scoring threat with 94 scores, to go along with 60 steals and 30 assists.

"Sabrina and Nayiri are two of the top scorers in junior college combining for more than 200 goals last season. They also have great chemistry having played together at (Crescenta Valley High School) as well as junior college," said Coach Cooper.

Simmons, a driver from Burroughs High School, rounds out the LAVC incoming group. She finished her sophomore season with 27 goals, 27 assists, and 72 steals. "Savannah has good speed and a nice outside shot," praised Cooper of Simmons' talent.

Los Angeles Valley College won the 2013 Western State Conference Championship after defeating Pierce College 9-5 in the title game. Hatzler scored four goals in the victory which gave the Monarchs their first tournament title since 2003.

Mission San Jose claims Major All Star crown

The Mission San Jose Little League (MSJLL) All Stars became champions of the 2014 CA District 14 Major All Star Tournament, going undefeated as they beat the Warm Springs Little League All Stars 11-1 in an action-packed game. With the victory, MSJLL will play in the 2014 California Section 3 Major All Star Tournament at Marshall Park, home to Fremont American Little League.

The Section Tournament will begin July 12th with District 14 (MSJLL) facing CA District 57. WSLI dropped their opening game of the tournament and then put on a display of courage, winning four elimination games in a row earning the trip to the Championship Game. WSLI should feel very proud of their team.

Congratulations to Mission San Jose Little League on winning the 2014 CA District 14 Little League All Star Tournament and Good Luck in the 2014 Section 3 Tournament!

The Major All Stars representing CA District 14 won their opening Section 3 All Star Game in the bottom of the 8th inning on July 12 with a walk-on double, slipping by CA District 57's Danville Little League. The game started off with Danville in command, taking an 4-1 lead after 4 innings, but MSJLL kept chipping away and at the end of six innings the game was tied at six all. No one scored in the seventh inning; Danville couldn't score in the top of the eighth, setting the stage for the dramatic ending.

In the second game of the tournament, Pacifica American Little League (PALL), District 52 Champs, put on a long ball display, hitting four home runs in an 11-3 victory over District 45's San Lorenzo Little League (SLZLL). MSJLL will now face PALL in the winner's semi-final game on July 13 with a trip to the Championship on July 15 awaiting the winner.

Danville and SLZLL will face off in an elimination game, also on July 13. The team that survives will face the loser between MSJLL & PALL on July 14th in the Elimination Semi-Final game. Both games on July 13th will be played at Marshall Park, home to Fremont American LL.

Good luck Mission San Jose Little league!

Public hearing on drought surcharges

SUBMITTED BY FRANK JAHN

The Alameda County Water District (ACWD) will host a public hearing on Thursday, July 17 at 6 p.m., during which the Board of Directors will consider the adoption of drought surcharges to combat the financial impacts of the drought. These impacts include decreased revenue due to reduced demand, additional and more expansive conservation efforts, and increased water supply costs.

The surcharges are intended to stabilize revenues and promote conservation while maintaining affordable water service.

“ACWD has taken a number of steps to mitigate the loss in revenue we have seen as a result of the drought,” said ACWD General Manager Walt Wadlow. “We have cut our budget, eliminated or are holding vacant a number of positions, deferred $20 million in planned capital projects, utilized a $10 million rate stabilization fund, and will issue a revenue bond,” added Wadlow.

When it became evident that these measures would not close the financial gap, staff proposed, as a last resort, the implementation of drought surcharges.

For single-family residential customers, the drought surcharges would be in the form of three inclining tiers. For all other customers, a uniform drought surcharge of $0.46 would be applied to each unit of water used.

Fremont to Double its Publically Accessible EV Charging Infrastructure

SUBMITTED BY CHERYL GOLDEN

Fremont ranked high in a recent funding opportunity issued by the California Energy Commission, with both the City of Fremont (under the Bay Area Charge Ahead Project) and the Fremont Chamber of Commerce on the proposed notice of award list for the installation of publicly accessible electric vehicle (EV) infrastructure. With only one Level 1, 25 Level 2, and 12 DC fast charging ports currently available to the public in Fremont, these two funding awards will more than double the number of Level 2 stations and increase the total number of publically accessible EV chargers in Fremont to 72 ports.

Under the Bay Area Charge Ahead Project (BayCAP)—a consortium led by the Bay Area Climate Collaborative in collaboration with ChargePoint, ABM, the EV Communities Alliance—the City of Fremont will receive a total of eight publically accessible, dual-port Level 2 electric vehicle chargers. Six of these chargers will be installed at angled parking spaces along three separate blocks of Capitol Avenue as part of the Capitol Avenue Extension project in Downtown Fremont. Another charger will be placed at the City’s Development Services Center, whose Permitting Department attracts many daily visitors. The last charger will be placed at the Boathouse in Fremont’s Central Park, which is the most heavily used park in the city. These eight publically accessible EV chargers with 16 ports coming to the City of Fremont are only a small portion of the total 66 EV charging stations with 152 ports to be deployed across 19 agencies in the Bay Area under BayCAP. Over the next 10 years, the infrastructure supported by BayCAP is projected to result in net reductions of 10 million kilograms of CO2 compared to the global warming pollution of regular gas vehicles.

In addition to the funding coming to the City of Fremont under BayCAP, the Fremont Chamber of Commerce is negotiating its own CEC award that would fund the installation of six dual-port Level 2 and two dual-port DC fast chargers at Fremont’s Bayside Business Park along the I-880 corridor. To showcase their plans for these publically accessible workplace chargers and demonstrate the benefits of EVs to the community-at-large, the Fremont Chamber of Commerce plans to set up an EV display at this year’s Fremont Festival of the Arts on August 2 and 3. They will display several different EVs (including a Tesla) as well as demo EV charging stations.

On August 9 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Fremont residents will have another opportunity to view and even get behind the wheel of electric vehicles at “Experience Electric – The Better Ride,” a free public event at the Pacific Commons shopping center at the corner of Christy and Curie streets. Event participants can test-drive the newest EVs on the market in a hassle-free, no sales environment. This event is offered by the City of Fremont in partnership with the California Center for Sustainable Energy (CCSE), Charge Across Town, and Plug In America with funding from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC). Interested individuals can visit www.Facebook.com/TheBetterRide for more information.

The Bay Area currently has nearly 40 percent of the plug-in electric vehicles in California at around 25,000 vehicles. With nearly 1,600 of those vehicles owned by Fremont residents, Fremont is responsible for 30 percent of all of the electric vehicles in Alameda County. In fact, Fremont’s 94539 zip code has been issued more EV rebates than any other single zip code in California! Supporting electric vehicle infrastructure is one key way that Fremont is facilitating the adoption of cleaner methods of transportation, helping to achieve the stringent community-wide GHG emissions reduction goal of 25 percent by the year 2020.

County Transportation Expenditure Plan on November ballot

SUBMITTED BY TESS LENGYEL

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously on July 8, to place the Alameda County Transportation Commission’s 2014 Transportation Expenditure Plan - and its authorizing measure – on the November 2014 ballot for voter approval.

The Plan will generate nearly $8 billion for essential transportation improvements within every city throughout Alameda County over the next 30 years. According to an independent economic analysis this $8 billion investment will stimulate a total of $20 billion in economic activity in the region and create nearly 150,000 local jobs.

“The Transportation Expenditure Plan is the culmination of significant collaboration between our agency, numerous civic organizations, and the general public to develop a plan that improves all forms of transportation throughout Alameda County,” said Scott Haggerty, Alameda County Supervisor and Chair of the Alameda County Transportation Commission.

Upon approval of the transportation measure in November 2014, transportation funding will:

- Create good jobs within Alameda County by requiring local contracting that supports residents and businesses in Alameda County.
- Provide traffic relief, including funds to every city in the County to repave streets, fill potholes and upgrade local transportation infrastructure. It also invests in aging highway corridors to upgrade on and off ramps, using modern technology to manage traffic and improve safety.
- Expand BART, bus and commuter rail for reliable, safe and fast services, including BART expansion and improvements within Alameda County, bus service expansion and commuter rail service improvements.
- Keep fares affordable for seniors, youth and people with disabilities, including affordable senior shuttles, vans and services that help keep seniors independent, and critical funding for student transit passes to ensure youth can affordably get to school. It also funds reliable and inexpensive transportation for people with disabilities.
- Expand bike and pedestrian paths for greater safety and convenience throughout the county.

County Health Improvement Plan meeting

SUBMITTED BY SUPERVISOR RICHARD VALLE, DISTRICT 2

Please join us and share what you think Alameda County’s top priorities for improving health should be and the conditions that impact health in your neighborhood. Your input will help us better understand community concerns, strengths, and health issues and finalize a vision for a healthy community and the focus of a five-year County Health Improvement Plan (CHIP). This five-year plan will be implemented and regularly reviewed in partnership with the community, stakeholders and organizations that have a role to play in improving the health of our communities.

The Alameda County Public Health Department has been holding community discussions throughout the county with various racial/ethnic groups, such as African Americans, Latinos, Asians and Pacific Islanders, and Native Americans, including various age groups and with the LGBTQ community as well. Now, they are coming to District 2 on Thursday, July 24 and would like to hear from you. Food and refreshments will be served.

Be Prepared When Disaster Strikes

The regular pattern of earthquakes every 140 years on the Hayward Fault, with the last one in 1868 and the next one past due since 2008, makes it necessary and prudent to prepare for earthquakes in the Bay Area. This leaves us with the question: How prepared are we for disasters in the Bay Area?

Join the discussion on Tuesday, July 22 at Fremont Main Library meeting room Fukaya “A” to learn more about the phenomenon and how you and your family can be prepared. Chuck Guaraglia, Fremont Fire-Support Services, will give the keynote talk on “Fremont Fire Department Public Education on Preparation for Disasters.” He will discuss earthquakes and what we need to be prepared. He will also introduce three programs by the Fremont Fire Department: Map Your Neighborhood, Personal Emergency Preparedness, and Community Emergency Response Teams with scheduled classes for Fremont neighborhoods and communities.

Bella Loo will talk on “Self-Empowerment with Healing Blessings in Times of Disasters.” She will guide you on the use of Four Power Technique from The Power of Soul by Master Sha to give yourself healing blessing. The experience of healing blessings can suggest possible supplemental tools to the traditional first aid and CPR/AED while waiting for First Responders (Fire Fighter, Ambulance) to arrive, especially when there is unavoidable delay in response time in major disasters. Warren Hsing, a frequent volunteer in meditation workshops, will talk on “Staying Calm and Well in times of Disasters.” Hsing will explain our body-mind connection and how you can prepare yourself to calmly handle stressful situations and crisis and overcome panic and fear in disasters.

From Manufacturing to “Mom and Pops”: Business Visits Provide Broad Industry Insights

BY JENNIFER CHEN,
ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT
COORDINATOR

Economic Development is focused on creating a vibrant community with sustainable, long-term, healthy, economic growth. The City of Fremont's Economic Development team accomplishes this with a robust business retention and expansion work plan. We've mentioned before that 43% of new jobs come from the expansion of existing companies. That's why we make it a priority to routinely visit Fremont-based companies to get a good feel for their immediate, near-term and long-term needs.

This year we expanded our business appreciation visits to include neighborhood businesses districts, allowing us to triple the number of total visits from 40+ to 150 - the vast majority being first-time visits. Along the way we've collected stories and personal anecdotes that will help us refine our ongoing strategy and understanding of the local business climate, supply chain relationships and industry trends. Here are four observations from this year's crop.

1. Fremont's manufacturing supply chain is robust, and is becoming more so thanks to anchor companies such as Tesla. For example, a mile from Tesla's manufacturing floor, Asteelflash, a global EMS, had the depth of experience and interest to co-produce circuit boards with Tesla. The proximity made it easy for Tesla and Asteelflash's engineering teams to collaborate and develop the circuit boards. The end result was reduction in production time and a stronger local supply chain. In May 2013, Asteelflash celebrated a major milestone, the delivery of 1 million printed circuit boards to Tesla.

2. 2014 is the year of “energy storage” and Fremont cleantech companies are leading the way. In the age of smart grids and increased renewable energy generation is a primary focus of the energy discussion. Local cleantech companies like Enovix, Imergy, Tenergy and Leyden are exploring new paradigms for lithium-ion batteries, mirco-grid energy storage, energy R&D, and alkaline battery storage. What we love is that this cluster has the potential to provide Fremont's advanced manufacturers with access to reliable and local clean energy solutions.

3. Fremont's Lifesciences companies are changing drug delivery systems, producing new innovative medical devices, and going public! For example, Zyomyx is manufacturing an HIV testing device to help the treatment and spread of AIDS in Africa. Last month, Ardelyx and Zosano filed initial public offerings to raise a combined $126 million dollars. The two companies are manufacturing drugs to treat metabolic diseases and a needless patch for the delivery of insulin for diabetics respectively.

4. Fremont is changing from a suburb to strategically urban. Our business districts and downtown want more pedestrian traffic. After a few difficult years, Fremont's small business districts have turned the corner from the recession and are seeking growth and adapting to new shopping patterns and service delivery models. Our business district visits revealed that our small businesses and larger companies want the amenities within walking distance. That is why small technology company Schmart-Board located their office in Centerville. They want to be in the heart of it all.

While these visits help us get a pulse read of the local economy, the ultimate goal is to continue dialogue and engage with businesses. During the meetings, we share information on Employment Training Panel Funds, Industrial Development Bond Funds, and other incentive programs. Additionally, we provide linkages to various technical assistance organizations such as Manex, and the Alameda County Workforce Investment Board. Collectively, these programs can help companies reduce costs and gain efficiencies.

Our 2014-15 business appreciation efforts are already underway. To schedule your visit, contact Kim Marshall at Kmarshall@fremont.gov mont. In this large organism, called Fremont (and beyond to the Greater Tri-City area), it is imperative that rapid and efficient transportation and communication is available to the entire area allowing citizens to move quickly and easily from one part of the city to another.

OPINION

WILLIAM MARSHAK

A spine for Fremont

In past decades, the automobile was seen as the answer to this challenge; new and expanded roadways were built. In light of global markets and environmental changes, this millennium is focused on new ways to use and store energy including travel for work or play. Regions are beginning to respond, noting that the effect is not only local, but extends to contiguous cities.

Inherent in use of the planner's phrase "last mile," is an understanding that simply moving people from region to region isn't enough. Commuting within the city is of extreme importance too. Fremont encompasses a large geographic area (92 square miles) and in order to connect all segments of its population including the "innovation district, downtown, historic districts, technical incubators, etc. it is imperative that an easy and efficient system be instituted throughout the city and its environs.

Other large cities have found this to be critical to their success and in some cases such as Los Angeles, had to reinstitute fixed rail systems that were scrapped decades ago in favor of automotive autonomy. Now the pendulum has swung in another direction and city planners are devising methods to get people out of their cars and into public transportation. What are we doing to encourage such transportation in this area? With the advent of additional BART traffic, how are those passengers going to move from BART station to shopping, homes and work sites?

The Transportation Expenditure Plan slated for the November ballot provides funds for projects that involve intercity connections, road enhancements and pathways for bicycles but what about fixed rail transportation, besides BART, within cities?

City planners should include the creation of a fixed spine within Fremont and its neighbors to transport people meaningfully to shopping, dining, workplace and recreation. A "spine" already exists along Fremont Boulevard; branches can service additional districts and neighborhoods. Why not plan and institute a fixed rail system that stretches from Warm Springs to Ardenwood, branching through the Central Business District and to Niles? Redevelopment of Capitol Avenue should include a fixed rail shuttle. How about using Transportation Expenditure Plan funds (on the November 2014 ballot) as a preliminary source of funding? Can we divert at least some of the funds earmarked for the Irvington BART station for this purpose? Let's explore the benefits of intra-city connections.

In the Fremont Economic Development blog "Business Visits Provide Broad Industry Insights" on page 28, it is stated, "Our business district visits revealed that our small businesses and larger companies want the amenities within walking distance. That is why small technology company Schmart-Board located their office in Centerville. They want to be in the heart of it all." Instead of using the term "within walking distance," it might be suitable to substitute the phrase, "within an easy, efficient and rapid commute by foot, bicycle or public transportation."

Fremont, get a spine!

Hayward Council to fill vacancy

SUBMITTED BY MIRIAM LENS

The City of Hayward welcomed its new mayor, former Council Member Barbara Halliday, on Tuesday, July 8, 2014. Festivities ensued after a special City Council meeting took place. Mayor Halliday, re-elected Council Member Marvin Peixoto and new member Sara Lamnin took oath in front of a packed City Council Chambers. A seat is currently vacant at the dais, and the Council voted to appoint a new member to serve for the remaining two years that Mayor Halliday had as former council member.
The City Clerk's Office began accepting applications soon after adoption; deadline for submission is Wednesday, July 16, 2014 at noon. Applicants must be residents of incorporated Hayward and qualified electors of the City. Those interested must complete an application form, which is available at the City Clerk's office at 777 B St. or online via www.hayward-ca.gov. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; no late or incomplete applications will be accepted.
Applications received will be screened by members of the City Council. Those candidates selected from the screening process will be scheduled for an interview at a Council meeting on July 22, 2014. The City Council may appoint the new Council Member at the end of this meeting. For further information, call City Clerk Miriam Lens at (510) 583 - 4400.

Obituary

Navy WWII Veteran and
Pearl Harbor Survivor
Owen R. Smith of Castro Valley

Owen Royle Smith, Jr. gave up the good fight on July 7, 2014 at age 92. Born in 1922 to Ethel and Owen Smith, Sr., Owen's early years were spent in his hometown of Milford, UT, where he found a notable variety of odd jobs to help get through tough economic times. Upon graduation from Milford High School he enlisted in the US Navy, quickly entering the thick of WW II. During his years of service he rose to the rank of Chief Warrant Officer, seeing some of Europe but mostly serving in the Pacific Theater. It was there in 1941 that Owen survived the attack on Pearl Harbor aboard the USS Phoenix, and later participated in the Occupation of Japan.

After the war Owen attended the University of Utah on the GI Bill, majoring in Banking and Economics. It was there he met Erma Smith, his future wife of 62 years. They made a life together in California, where he eventually started Cascade Pool and Ski Center in Castro Valley, providing employment and mentorship for many young people. He was a committed member of the Castro Valley Rotary Club, serving as President in 1961. His business experiences fueled a lifelong interest in free enterprise and limited role of government. After retirement he couldn't help buying another business, remaining Chairman of the Board of Nutek Corporation until the last year of his life.

Owen and Erma traveled the world, and engaged in many civic and philanthropic ventures. He was an emeritus board member of the Eden Medical Foundation, where he served for many years. Together Owen and Erma founded the Smith Center for Private Enterprise at Cal State East Bay. They strongly supported the Castro Valley Center for the Performing Arts, as well as many other local and international charities. In his spare time Owen liked reading market reports and murder mysteries, along with drinking very hot coffee and martinis.

Owen Smith is survived by Erma and his three children, each of whom was his favorite: Chere Smith Villines (Lex), Tracy Smith, and Kelly Smith Cole (Mark). All six grandchildren, Nicole Shaw (Darrick), Trevor Ohlson, Amy Johnstad (Chris), Emily Villines, Rebecca Cole, and Jonathan Cole, as well as great-grandchildren Livia Shaw and Jax Shaw, enjoyed many years with Grandpa Owen. He is also survived by brother Al Smith and many nieces and nephews who will miss his humor, stories, and amazing resilience.

Rest in peace, Owen Smith, our honored husband, father, grandfather, great grandfather, brother, friend, and patriot, one of the greatest generation.

Friends and family are invited to attend a celebratory memorial service at 2:00 pm on Wednesday, July 16, at First Presbyterian Church of Hayward. Interment will take place before the service at 12:30 pm, at Lone Tree Cemetery in Hayward. In lieu of flowers, family suggests donations be made to Castro Valley Rotary Club, Eden Medical Center Foundation or the Castro Valley Arts Foundation.

Tops in tags: Noah, Sophia are favorite baby names

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP), When it comes to baby names, blending in is out, and standing out is in.

Noah and Sophia top the Social Security Administration's list of most popular American baby names for 2013, but they don't begin to approach the popularity of past generation favorites like John and Mary.

Noah sailed past Jacob to claim the top spot for boys, ending Jacob's 14-year reign. Sophia was No. 1 for the third straight year in the list released Friday.

Noah was followed by Liam, Jacob, Mason and William. Sophia was followed by Emma, Olivia, Isabella and Ava.

But none of these names is nearly as popular as the top names were a generation ago. Why? Because more and more parents are looking to give their children names that will set them apart, instead of worrying about whether they will fit in.

"Names have more widely become seen as a personal brand, a statement of individual style and personality, and so people are looking for a name that's different from what other people have," said Pamela Redmond Satran, co-founder of Nameberry.com. "In the 1950s, everybody was looking to blend in."

Last year, a little more than 18,000 newborns were named Noah. Twenty years ago, almost 50,000 newborns were named Michael, the top name that year. In 1950, when James was No. 1, there were more than 86,000 newborns with that name.

It's the same story for the girls.

About 21,000 newborns were named Sophia last year. Twenty years ago, 35,000 babies were named Jessica. In 1950, more than 80,000 were named Linda, the top name for girls that year.

"In the past, most parents were picking from a pretty well-defined set of names," said Laura Wattenberg, creator of Babynamewizard.com. "Literally for hundreds of years, the English royal names dominated. You had John and Mary and James and Elizabeth."

"Today," she said, "we get names everywhere."

Jacob first rose to No. 1 in 1999. In the 45 years before that, Michael was king for all but one.

There has been more variety among the girls. Mary dominated the first half of the 20th century. But in the past two decades, Emily, Emma, Isabella and Jessica have all spent time at the top.

"People are not as creative with boys' names," said Jennifer Moss, founder of Baby-names.com. "I find that when I'm working with parents, the father tends to be more conservative about boys names. His No. 1 concern is always, 'Oh, I don't want it to be too crazy or he'll be teased on the playground.'"

The Social Security Administration's website provides lists of the top 1,000 baby names for each year, dating to 1880. The top baby names that year were John and Mary. John is now No. 27 and Mary has fallen to No. 121.

Social Security also charts the fastest-rising names each year. These names may not be in the top 10 or even the top 100, but they moved up more spots than any other.

For girls, the runaway winner was Daleyza, which jumped a whopping 3,130 spots, to No. 585. Daleyza is the name of the young daughter of Larry Hernandez, a singer who stars in a Spanish-language reality TV show called "Larrymania."

"Reality TV is one of the biggest style makers today because it gives us a constant new stream of names from all over the place," Wattenberg said.

Among the other top risers for girls: Marjorie, Lennon and Jurnee. Jurnee Smollett-Bell is an actress who starred in the TV show "Friday Night Lights."

For boys, the fastest rising name was Jayceon, which jumped 845 spots, to No. 206. Two hip hop artists are named Jayceon. One simply goes by the name Jayceon. The other, Jayceon Terrell Taylor, is a rapper who goes by the stage name The Game.

Among the other top risers for boys: Milan, Atlas, Jayse and Duke.

Fraudulent callers target medical information

SUBMITTED BY ANITA GORE

The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) is warning the public today about fraudulent phone callers seeking to deceive people into revealing sensitive personal health and financial information. The callers, who claim to be representatives of CDPH, contact people to inquire about a surgery or medical procedure in hopes of obtaining personal information such as bank accounts and medical history. CDPH does not make such calls.

Dr. Ron Chapman, director of the CDPH and state health officer, said the public needs to be careful about sharing their personal information.

"People should be cautious about unsolicited phone calls regarding their personal health," said Dr. Chapman. "These callers can be very convincing but no one should ever give out their financial or medical information during an initial telephone call. If you receive one of these calls, you should hang up immediately and report it."

Based on complaints received by CDPH, the callers are often male with heavy foreign accents and primarily target women, some of whom may have had surgical mesh or bladder sling surgery. The callers may hint at offers of compensation and attempt to lure consumers into giving out private information.

If you receive such a call, do not provide the caller with any personal information such as your address, date of birth, social security number, any banking or credit card information, or any health-related information. Instead, hang up and contact the Attorney General's Office at (800) 952-5225 or online at http://oag.ca.gov/contact/consumer-complaint-against-business-or-company to report the call. Consumers can also file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission at https://www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov/.

Airmanship skills tested at Hayward Air Rally

SUBMITTED BY GIL TAKEMORI

Take-off checklist complete, check. The radio crackles as we hear our race number called to line up and wait for our start. Tension builds and then finally, the radio breaks its unbearable silence and we hear the air boss finally count down "3-2-1, Go!" The throttle gets pushed to redline and we're off, just as the flagman briskly swings the bright orange and white checkered start flag earthward. I look over at my navigator who has already started our race timer and our Hayward Air Rally competition has officially begun.

What began as a friendly bet between two fellow aviators in 1963 has now become one of the longest continuously-held aviation competitions in North America. The Hayward Air Rally is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and will be commemorating this historic event with an unprecedented, three-day competition route to AirVenture 2014 in Oshkosh. Past Air Rally events have been conducted to Las Vegas; Laughlin, NV; Palm Springs, CA; and Bend, OR, but none have ever spanned over more than a one-day flight.

With mandatory fuel and lunch stops during each leg, as well as overnight accommodations for each team of competitors, and a route spanning California, Nevada, Wyoming, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, logistical challenges of planning this event have been monumental. But current event chair and committee member for over 18 years, Chris Verbil is undaunted and exudes the excitement of this year's extra special event. After all, Verbil has not only run this event for the past six years, he's actually won it as a solo competitor.

Among his various duties, Verbil is responsible for the tremendous philanthropy that results from this event, namely the 15 full Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) Air Academy youth scholarships sponsored by Air Rally, totaling more than $25,000 over the years. Lucky young aviation enthusiasts from each Air Rally leg location are sent to Oshkosh each year - airfare included - to enjoy a week-long aviation summer program run by EAA. Some attendees have gone on to careers in the Air Force or become private pilots with aviation-related careers.

"It is a tremendously satisfying and rewarding experience to provide both a challenging competition for flight teams, as well as such a great benefit for the youth in our participating areas," explains Verbil, who would one day like to return to the Air Rally as a competitor.

So what does it take to win the Hayward Air Rally? It requires a keen understanding of your plane's performance first, combined with your team's ability to plan, predict and fly a precise course over specified checkpoints within seconds of estimated times. Not hard enough? Then let's make predicting fuel consumption twice as important as time in scoring and factor in unpredictable winds aloft, getting lost, not locating the checkpoints at first pass, and the ability to precisely refuel your plane at each stop as added challenges. To add to the excitement, an arrival timing line is used just before landing at the final destination; planes get the rare opportunity to zoom along at 100' Above Ground Level so Air Rally ground officials can log their official race time as they zip by.

The Hayward Air Rally is designed to test basic airmanship skills using compass, charts, and timer along with careful flight and fuel planning. The results may surprise participants and help polish primary piloting skills.

Those looking for a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and experience planning a cross-country flight, the Hayward Air Rally is an opportunity to give it a try. With full ground support, established logistics and confidence of knowing that all flights will be made in Visual Flight Rules (VFR) conditions, the rally could be a fun and exciting way to experience flying to Oshkosh. The Air Rally is guaranteed to test the most seasoned veterans as well as freshly-minted pilots ready for their first long cross-country adventure.

The Hayward Air Rally begins with the pilots gathering and briefing on July 23. The Mayor and City Council have been invited and are expected to make brief remarks. For more information visit www.hwdairrally.org, or e-mail info@hwdairrally.org

Volunteers needed for Urban Shield

SUBMITTED BY THE HAYWARD
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Alameda County Sheriff's Office will host the Urban Shield 2014, a planned training exercise involving local, national, and international first responder agencies. This event begins Friday, September 5 and ends on Monday, September 8. This 48-hour exercise will be managed utilizing the National Incident Management Systems and the Standardized Emergency Management System. The event incorporates the guiding principles from the National Response Framework to assist tactical teams as well as all first responders, to prepare for and provide a unified response to disasters and major emergencies.

We are recruiting volunteers to participate in Urban Shield scenarios. The following volunteer criteria are required:

-Must pass background check.

-Must be 18 or older to volunteer for the night shift.

-Must participate the whole 12 hours required shift.

-Must be able to climb, crawl, walk or stand all day.

-Must be able to work in cold, wet, or hot weather.

If you are interested in being a volunteer, please submit your application at www.urbanshield.org. Please sign up as soon as possible because of the background check; we don't want to delay your process.

If you have any questions, please contact Joany Callahan, Personnel Chief at (510) 225-5965 or e-mail jcallahan@acgov.org.

Monday, July 7

A 1996 green Acura (CA Plate #7COB862) was taken without permission from the Southlake Mobile Home Park, located off of Automall Pkwy. Report was taken by CSO Oliveira.

A residential burglary was reported on Banyan Tree Rd. Entry was made via an unlocked rear window. Loss included a laptop computer and jewelry. Documented by Officer Valdes.

Two suspects stole $300 worth of laundry detergent from the Walmart on Albrae St. and fled in a late '90s BMW. Officer Perry is investigating.

Officer T. Bobbitt led officers on a probation search at the Extended Stay Motel. Her efforts led to the arrest of a 36-year-old adult female and a 34-year-old adult female, both Fremont residents, for possession for sales of narcotics as well as additional narcotics violations.

Officer Nordseth was dispatched to Fremont Hub regarding a trespasser, who had been previously warned. A 38-year-old adult female Hayward resident was arrested for trespassing.

Tuesday, July 8

Officers responded to the Walmart store on Albrae St. on the report of a woman who crashed her vehicle into a car in the parking lot after being in a heated argument with a male subject. The woman refused to stop and made comments referencing wanting to hurt or harm herself. With the help of dispatch, Officers Zargham, Huiskens and Stinson worked on locating a possible destination for the woman. The woman's vehicle was eventually located near a hair salon in Newark, and Officer Stinson located the woman walking near the intersection of Thornton and Mulberry. She was ultimately transported for a mental health evaluation.

Wednesday, July 9

A 1995 red Honda Accord (CA Plate #: 6PUN170) was stolen from Wainright Common.

A 1996 black Honda Accord (CA Plate #: 6UIL047) was recovered from Wisteria Dr.

Officers responded to Food Maxx to investigate a theft. The suspects, both adult men, were seen exiting the store after concealing numerous items in their backpacks. The suspects fled in a gold colored Infiniti and witnesses provided dispatch with a license plate. Sergeant Epps located the Infiniti near Mowry and northbound I-880. The Infiniti was occupied by two males who matched the description of the suspects. Sergeant Epps conducted an enforcement stop on the car with Officer Sasser, and the two men were positively identified as the suspects from Food Maxx.

At 11:27 p.m., a reporting party who lives at the Countrywood Apts. on Thornton Blvd. called to say that she heard screams in front of her apartment. She found an adult female bleeding heavily from the back of her head. The victim had been thrown into a pole during a robbery attempt. The suspect tried to take the victim's purse, but she held on to it so there was no loss. The suspect was described as a Hispanic male adult, late 20's, 220 - 230 lbs., 5'10", with dark clothing, and bushy hair. The suspect was last seen running towards Cabrillo Dr. The victim went to the hospital with non-life threatening injuries. Officers Torrico and Oliveira investigated the case.

A victim reported that she arrived home on Plymouth Ave. and a suspect grabbed her purse. The suspect got into a light colored Sedan, which took off on Chiltern Dr. Suspect was described as being an unknown race male, late teens/early 20's, with a gray windbreaker, black pants, and white baseball cap.

Thursday, July 10

Officers investigated a commercial burglary in the 48400 block of Millmont Drive. A male entered a telecommunications company claiming to be inspecting their fire extinguishers. Given free roam of the facility, the male fled after taking an unattended wallet from a cubicle. Officer Hanrahan investigating.

The manager of Toys R Us called to report that they had been robbed three hours prior. One of their employees had confronted four males who were stealing baby formula. One of the suspects then sprayed the employee with pepper spray.

Officers were dispatched for an in-progress report of subjects tagging a business in the 37000 block of Fremont Blvd. It's reported that the suspects leave in a vehicle, which is spotted by Officer T. Bobbitt. She stops the vehicle inside Gateway Plaza. She searches the vehicle and finds a large plastic jug containing an unknown liquid, with an M-1000 taped to the jug. The Alameda County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) Bomb Unit responded. ACSO took the jug and destroyed it on scene. Officer T. Bobbitt arrested a 20 year old adult male out of Hayward, a 20 year old adult male out of Fremont, a 21 year old adult male out of Fremont and a 19 year old out of Citrus Heights for possession of an explosive device and vandalism.

Officer involved shooting

SUBMITTED BY LT. BOBBIE KOLLER,
HAYWARD PD

On Sunday, July 6, 2014, about 4:06 a.m., Hayward PD officers were called to the Phoenix Inn (500 W. A St.), regarding James McKinney who forced his way into a tenant's room. When the officers arrived, they learned McKinney was still in the room, refusing to leave and acting erratically. Officers were unsuccessful at gaining McKinney's cooperation in leaving the room.

When officers entered to contact him, McKinney lunged at the officers, attempting to disarm them of their firearms. In order to protect their own safety, two officers were required to discharge their firearms, to stop his aggression. Officers rendered immediate first aid, as they waited for the arrival of emergency medical personnel. McKinney was declared deceased a short time later at the scene. The Hayward Police Department, in conjunction with the Alameda County District Attorney's Office is conducting a criminal investigation of the incident and the involved officers have been placed on routine administrative leave.

Sales of tobacco products to minors

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA
BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

In an effort to alleviate the devastating effects of smoking and comply with the law, the Fremont Police Department implemented a comprehensive program enforcing tobacco control laws in the city with help from an enforcement grant from the Department of Health Services, Tobacco Control Section.

On June 20, officers from the Fremont Police Department conducted additional Youth Decoy Operations. A total of 99 purchase attempts were made on these dates. There were 11 incidents in which merchants illegally sold cigarettes to minors, ages 15 to 17. The officers witnessing these transactions issued citations in all 11 cases. The overall sales rate of selling tobacco products to a minor was 11.1 percent. The sale of tobacco products to a minor (under 18) is a misdemeanor, which carries a penalty up to a $1,000 fine, depending on prior offenses.

Officers of the Fremont Police Department will continue to conduct these activities. For more information or to report a violation, please contact Sergeant Michelle Griese at (510) 790-6800.

iff's Office. Carr, his son Brandon, and long-time friend and fellow Vietnam pilot Peter Olesko completely stripped the Huey, and guided by photos repaired the craft in under a year to recreate EMU 309 as it appeared in winter 1970/71. 309 was a significant choice, as Olesko crewed that helicopter for over nine months during the war and Carr also crewed her on several occasions. She was also the longest surviving aircraft that served with the 135th, lasting an incredible 28 months.

Initially not much thought was given to the personal emotional impact their undertaking would make, but they discovered again for the first time in 30 years. "I'm back with my crew in a comfortable situation, with my mates encouraging me," said Perry. "It was an amazing experience, changed my life. It's like coming home."

Randy Parent has flown Young Eagles kids in his Piper Cub for over 20 years and has been with HueyVets for 10. Parent was a crew chief on a Huey during the war, and at the rally shared piloting duties with Olesko. Kids and adults alike got a thrill they're not soon to forget thanks to the outreach of HueyVets.

tion and we hope to spark their interest in it," says Young Eagles coordinator Pat Polehla.

Over 3,000 kids have flown with the program, but the experience goes far beyond just an exhilarating flight. Those interested in learning more about the world of aviation can sign up for an EAA Student Membership, which includes an online magazine, e-newsletters, and free admission to over 300 science and technology museums. Kids can then take a free interactive online course that teaches the basics of flying. Those 13 and over who have completed the first three volumes of the public and preserving the history of the Huey and 135th Assault Helicopter Company (AHC) that served in Vietnam. The 135th AHC was unique in that it was comprised of U.S. Army and Royal Australian Navy members, garnering it the title Experimental Military Unit (EMU), which ironically is also the name of a flightless Australian bird.

But previous scholarship winners Kenny Shen and Shani Williams along with three other frequent Young Eagles participants and a few adults were treated to a special flight aboard a piece of living history. course can step out from behind the virtual and into the actual for a free hands-on flight lesson.

EAA also awards a $3,000 scholarship once a year for kids who want to pursue flight training. The opportunity to attend the EAA Air Academy in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, is also available for teens 16 through 18. In recent years, six kids have received the $3,000 scholarship and three have attended Air Academy.

HueyVets began to take shape when Vietnam veteran Geoff Carr purchased a Huey in 2003 from the Sacramento Sher-there was benefit all around. "There was a lot of reward to it," says Carr. "There's something about a Huey and vets getting together from all wars that is cathartic."

This was the experience of Andy Perry who served as part of the Australian contingent in the 135th and had Carr as his crew chief for six months. Having quit flying and undergone years of rehab for Post-traumatic Stress Disorder, on Perry's annual trip to the States last year he flew almost every weekend by Carr and other HueyVets members. It mostly flies in a 300 nautical mile radius from Hayward, but Perry hopes to transport it to Australia in 2015 to share its history with his countrymen and increase awareness of the aviation partnership between the U.S. and Australia in Vietnam. 2015 is a big milestone for the country as it marks the 100th anniversary of Anzac Day (Australian and New Zealand Army Corps), which commemorates the first major military action by Australian and New Zealand troops in World War I.

Whether looking to obtain a private pilot certificate and start down the path to an exciting career or kickstart the beginning of a lifelong hobby, Young Eagles offers the first step to getting kids off the ground and into the beautiful blue beyond. And who knows what kind of history they might meet along the way?

Reservations are required to attend Young Eagles Rallies; e-mail program coordinator Pat Polehla at YoungEagles29@aol.com. Meeting dates for the remainder of the year are July 26, August 23, September 27, October 25, and December 13. Felsen set to Rock Niles Home Concert Series Declared by Impose Magazine to be "Truly one of the best kept secrets of the Bay that deserves to be parroted, played as loud as possible, and shouted out to all corners of the world," Oakland-based indie rockers Felsen is the next to take the stage at the Niles Home Concert Series on July 26.

The intimate performance space under the stars is the perfect venue for die-hard music fans to get to know the band, allowing them to really listen to the lyrics and hear the stories behind the songs. It's way more fun than the usual bar gig! Opening the show will be all-acoustic act Misner & Smith, featuring Fremont resident and local rock and roll legend Bruce Kaphan – pedal steel player to the stars (REM, Sheryl Crow, Jewel, Cracker, Camper Van Beethoven...).

Frontman Andrew Griffin started Felsen after his 2006 cancer diagnosis, which led to the release of the band's first album, "Accidental Drowning," in 2009. "Felsen Loves You" – an EP on the Ninth Street Opus label – followed in 2010, and in 2011 another full-length album, "Breaking up with Loneliness," was self-released.

Felsen's fourth album, "I Don't Know How to Talk Anymore," was released by San Francisco's boutique record label Sign Shop Records on September 4, 2013. The band has toured throughout the west and has just completed their largest national club tour to date. The album's songs fit together like a novel telling a story about the need to re-humanize ourselves in the wake of soul-crushing technological advancements; art wins, humanity prevails. Felsen's influences include The Beatles, The Beach Boys, U2, The Shins, Radiohead, and Flaming Lips among several others.

Felsen will be included in KFOG's "Local Scene Volume 11," available for download on kfog.com on or around August 1. The project benefits Music in Schools Today (<http://www.mustcreate.org/>).

The Niles Home Concert Series is sponsored by Paul Welschmeyer Architects and Energy Consultants and Matt Hayden. Attendance is by advance RSVP only. Visit <https://www.facebook.com/Niles>

HomeConcert, select a concert, and pay for seats through Pay Pal. For those without Facebook access, a seat can still be reserved by calling (510) 825-0783. Veteran of the Year recognized

MARY L. GREENLEE

Michael L. Emerson, Commander and founder of AMVETS (American Veterans) Hayward Post 911, is the recipient of the 20th District's 2014 Veteran of the Year award chosen by Assemblymember Bill Quirk. The award ceremony was held at the California State Capitol in Sacramento on June 25, 2014. This is the second time Emerson has been selected for this award; Assemblymember Bob Wieckowski chose him for the same award in 2011.

Emerson is a Life Member of Castro Valley Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9601 and American Legion Post 649. He is a charter/founding member and past President of the Student Veterans Organization at California State University East Bay in Hayward. In addition, he is a Life Member of the Disabled American Veterans and the Marine Corps League. Emerson is the founder, creator, designer and project manager for the Flight 93 Memorial in Union City and the Castro Valley Veterans Memorial. He also helped build the Flight 93 National Memorial at the 9/11 crash site in Shanksville, PA and the American Veterans Disabled for Life Memorial in Washington, DC. He is currently working on the Hayward 9/11 Memorial to honor all of the heroes of the tragic event.

In April 1982, Emerson joined the U.S. Marine Corps on active duty. During his 10 years of military service, he served in the second, third, and fourth Marine Divisions. He volunteered as an infantry heavy weapons operator, specializing in mortars, and 50 and 60 caliber machine guns. He volunteered for and was deployed on many overseas missions, conducting operations in 26 different countries during his military service. On one mission in Africa, Michael was seriously injured; thus, he is now a service-connected disabled veteran. After he left active duty and settled in the San Francisco Bay Area, he chose to join the Marine Corps active reserves in Alameda. He was retrained as a French interrogator and translator. In February 1991, he was officially recalled to active duty to participate in Operation Desert Storm during the first Persian Gulf War; he left the Marine Corps in October 1992.

New county budget reflects our commitment to public health and safety

SUBMITTED BY SANTA CLARA COUNTY
SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE

There's nothing more important to our quality of life in Santa Clara County than a safe and healthy environment. With the County's $4.9 billion budget in effect as of July 1, I'd like to highlight some of the investments in public health and safety that the board approved last month.

My recommendations, approved by the rest of the board, represent our commitment to the health and safety of our County's 1.8 million residents:

Human Trafficking: Add three staff positions to the Sheriff's Office and two to the District Attorney's Office to step up efforts to end human trafficking in the County.

Vulnerable Workers: The Office of Women's Policy can now work with the Katharine and George Alexander Community Law Center's Vulnerable Workers Rights Program. This program prevents our neediest residents from being taken advantage of unfairly by employers.

Senior Nutrition: We funded the Senior Nutrition Program for staff to operate kitchens at 11 community or senior centers so that food will be fresher and more nutritious.

AACI Health Center: The Asian Americans for Community Involvement (AACI) can expand its Health Center and double the number of patient visits. Supervisor Joe Simitian co-authored this request.

Sweetwater Station: Work with adjacent counties to keep the Sweetwater Fire Station open year-round. Currently, it's only open during fire season, leaving residents in the eastern portion of Mt. Hamilton without CalFire service for months.

I also supported other proposals from administrators and other supervisors that will strengthen our law enforcement efforts and help out some of our neediest residents. Some of them include:

Vietnamese American Service Center: A one-stop center for services to the Vietnamese community will serve as a model for other groups of our diverse population. This project emerged from the Vietnamese Health Assessment that I initiated as board president in 2011.

Sheriff's Patrols: We will add a deputy sheriff to protect rural areas and another to strengthen law enforcement in unincorporated pockets of San Jose, including Burbank and Alum Rock.

Financial Crimes: The County is adding four positions to prosecute real estate fraud and other financial crimes that impact the in the community.

Jail Investigations: Three deputy positions will be added to investigate drug and gang crimes in jail.

To review the budget document, visit www.sccgov.org, and click on Hot Items in the middle of the page. The budget is listed as FY 2015 Recommended budget. If you have any questions, please call my office at (408) 299-5030 or email me at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org

PUBLIC NOTICE
REVIEW AND PUBLIC COMMENT
ON THE ALAMEDA COUNTY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Public Comment Period: July 15, 2014 through August 15, 2014

WHAT IS BEING PROPOSED?

The Alameda County Fire Department (ACFD) announces a 30-day public comment period for the Draft Initial Study and proposed Negative Declaration pertaining to the Sunol Fire Station, Sunol, California. The Site is located within on land currently owned by San Francisco Public Utilities Commission. The Draft Initial Study addressed the 16 resources as required in the CEQA document.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA) – MITIGATED NEGATIVE DECLARATION

Based on an Initial Study, the ACFD has determined that no significant environmental impacts would result from the Sunol Fire Station Project, therefore, in compliance with the CEQA, a Mitigated Negative Declaration is proposed. The Mitigated Negative Declaration, Initial Study, and all related documents are available for review and comment.

WHY THIS NOTICE?

The purpose of this notice is to provide you with the opportunity to learn more about the project and to provide the ACFD with your comments on the Draft Initial Study and the proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration.

HOW DO I PARTICIPATE?

You may participate by providing your written comments on the Draft Initial Study and proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration. All comments will be carefully considered before a final decision is made on the Initial Study and proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration. Comments may be mailed, hand delivered, faxed, or emailed. All written comments must be delivered to:

Pete Pegadiotes, Manager

Alameda County Fire Department, 835 East 14th Street #200E-mail: ppegadiotes@acfd.gov, Phone: (510) 670-5880, FAX: (925) 875-9387

All comments must be in writing and must be postmarked no later than August 15, 2014. Faxed, hand-delivered, or emailed comments must be received no later than 5:00 p.m. on August 15, 2014.

Notice of the final decision and a copy of The ACFD response to comments will be provided to anyone requesting it. Please be sure to include your name, mailing address, and/or email address.

WHERE DO I GET MORE INFORMATION?

A copy of the Draft Initial Study and proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration and all attachments are available for review in the information repositories located at:

Department of Toxic Substances Control

July 2014

Public Notice

The mission of DTSC is to protect California's people and environment from harmful effects of toxic substances through the restoration of contaminated resources, enforcement, regulation and pollution prevention

EMERGENCY PERMIT
Cordis Corporation, Fremont
Effective: July 14, 2014 through July 18, 2014

On June 19, 2014, the Cordis Corporation (Cordis) requested an Emergency Permit from the California Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC). Cordis proposes to treat hazardous waste by chemical stabilization at their facility located at 6422 Commercial Drive, Fremont, California, 94555. DTSC requires an Emergency Permit to be issued for the requested treatment since Cordis does not hold a facility hazardous waste treatment permit.

The permit application is for treatment of an expired liquid chemical (approximately 49 liters) in 16 containers, which is potentially unstable. Cordis has located the containers in a secured laboratory. Cordis has determined that the containers cannot be transported and no alternative on-site treatment is available. The treatment will take place on site within an exclusion zone close to where Cordis stores the material and will be carried out by Clean Harbor Environmental Services reactive materials technicians.

DTSC finds there is a potential imminent and substantial endangerment to human health and the environment. As such, DTSC issues this emergency permit to Cordis effective from July 14, 2014 to July 18, 2014. The emergency permit includes measures to minimize any adverse impact to the community or the environment during the treatment.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA) - DTSC has determined that this Emergency Permit is exempt from the requirements of CEQA as an action necessary to prevent or mitigate an emergency. A Notice of Exemption (NOE) was filed on July 7, 2014, which starts a 35-day time period for any legal challenges to DTSC's CEQA determination for this Emergency Permit. This activity is necessary to prevent an emergency because the expired chemical cannot be shipped off-site without posing a threat to the environment, property or human health.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION - For further information regarding the Emergency Permit for Cordis, please contact Yujie Jin, Hazardous Substances Engineer, at (916) 255-3644 or Yujie_Jin@dtsc.ca.gov, or Nathan Schumacher, Public Participation Specialist, at (916) 255-3650, or toll free at (866) 495-5651 or Nathan.Schumacher@dtsc.ca.gov. For news media inquiries only, please contact Sandy Nax, DTSC Public Information Officer, at (916) 327-6114 or Sandy.Nax@dtsc.ca.gov. A copy of the Emergency Permit, NOE, and the Emergency Permit request as well as the full Administrative Record for this project are available for your review at Department of Toxic Substances Control, 8800 Cal Center Drive, Sacramento, CA 95826. To make arrangements, please contact Amy Ly at (916) 255-4159. NOTICE TO THE HEARING IMPAIRED - You can obtain additional information by using the California State Relay Service at 711 (TTY). Fugitive arrested by Fremont PD

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

On July 1, 2014 the Fremont Police Department's Street Crimes Unit (SCU) contacted a residence in the 4500 block of Alhambra Dr. to determine the status of a vehicle that was registered to the residents. During the contact, one of the residents provided a name and a birth date that did not match records that were on file. When the officers attempted to clarify the name and birth date, the resident provided the incorrect birth date once again. The officers became suspicious of the resident and further researched his identity.

After further investigation, the resident was identified as William Marcelo Torres of Fremont. A records check of Torres revealed a 2008 warrant out of Green Bay, Wisconsin for "Continued Sexual Abuse of a Child." FPD Sex Crimes Detectives contacted Green Bay PD and learned that the suspect had been arrested in 2008 but posted bail and fled Wisconsin. Investigators believe that Torres has been hiding in Fremont for several years under the false identity of William Murillo. SCU Officers booked Torres at the Fremont Police Department Detention Facility. Torres is currently awaiting extradition to Wisconsin.

Alternative therapies add to pain management tools

AP WIRE SERVICE
BY ERIC MUNGENAST
EAST VALLEY TRIBUNE

MESA, Ariz. (AP), Aria Anderson risked years of misfortune when she opened her sock monkey umbrella inside her hospital room during a late morning in January. She did so to hide from the group of strangers who came to see her, and the strategy proved effective; her unfurled shield more than covered the slight 6-year-old’s frame.

The Chandler first-grader exhibited a hint of playfulness behind her umbrella – she poked her pig-tailed head out every so often – but her shyness shined far brighter. Her age alone wasn’t the only factor for her reservations, as this was her fifth visit to Banner Children’s Cardon Children’s Medical Center in a six-month span. Complications from brain surgery led to the stays in the hospital, and her mom Tina said Aria started to hide in her shell due to the weeks spent away from home coupled with prodding tests.

Yet there were bright spots amid the treatments and tedium for Aria, including an untraditional therapy program the hospital uses to help children cope with pain that adds a little levity to the experience. For Aria, the treatment she received provided a vital reprieve during her repeated stays in the hospital.

The treatment Aria received during her many stays at Cardon encompassed the different forms of integrative therapy, which are used by Cardon staff and staff at other hospitals like Phoenix Children’s Hospital. They use different types of therapy – massage, pet, aromatherapy, acupuncture and other options – to aid in the healing process.

“All of these things teach kids coping skills they can use for the rest of their lives,” said Cardon Pain Management Team Manager Teri Reyburn-Orne.

It’s a pretty valuable skill to learn early in life given how much pain people will endure throughout their lives. According to the National Institutes of Health, pain affects more people than diabetes, heart disease and cancer combined, and treatment for pain is the most common reason why people seek medical treatment. It’s also a major contributor to the country’s health-care costs, and approximately 76 million people had suffered through pain that lasted for more than 24 hours in 2006.

A key way to cope with constant pain is to find distractions that pull a person’s focus away from it. In Aria’s case, the pain treatment featured massage therapy and music therapy, with the two intersecting with each other.

After putting away her umbrella, the monkey enthusiast – the rain shield was accompanied by monkey jammies, dolls and other simian-related items – got right into her music therapy with Angela Wibben. The experience was kind of a jam session, with Aria playing around with maracas and a kazoo and Wibben playing a couple of Aria’s favorite tunes. She strummed her guitar alongside a rendition of the “Gummy Bear Song” on YouTube, as well as a parody of Ylvis’ “The Fox” (aka “What Does the Fox Say?”) called “What Does the Kid Say?” They even took a few minutes to sing a song Aria wrote herself, a ditty she created with heavy simian influence.

As Wibben got into her routine with Aria, massage and Reiki therapist Cynthia Zimmerman gave Aria a rubdown around her neck and upper back that provided a strong complement to the musical therapy.

“It’s a normalization of the hospital environment, that kids can be kids,” Wibben said of the experience.

Everything Aria underwent during that treatment and others not only created a feeling of normality in a troublesome environment, but it relaxed her. The combination, Orne said, can decrease anxiety and discomfort, which can decrease the amount of pain a patient feels. The therapies can also complement prescribed medication or even replace it depending on a child’s respective situation.

“When they relax, the medication actually works better,” Zimmerman said.

Zimmerman said her methods, which she described as a gentle touch that can relax muscles, is akin to a mild hypnosis and can reduce pain, nausea, muscle aches and even stomach problems among patients. Wibben’s methods, conversely, focus on the psychological effects related to pain by engaging a child with a song that’s uplifting and happy in nature.

The end result is a complex way of dealing with what Orne described as a complex feeling, and she said the science behind the treatment is indicating treatments that encompass traditional and therapeutic methods lead to the best outcome for patients.

“The research is getting so much more specific into what is causing pain and what can help pain,” she said.

Blake’s Miracle

One of the major proponents for Cardon’s integrative therapy program is Kelle Whitehead, whose son, Blake, received music therapy during his time in the hospital. There wasn’t an indication of what would happen to Blake when he was born in 2004 - he was about as healthy as a kid could be - but his health took the proverbial turn for the worse right before his 20th month.

Doctors diagnosed Blake with leukemia, and Kelle said her son fought for three months before succumbing to the disease.

It was a painful time for the family - Kelle said they made it home maybe once or twice during that three-month span - but one thing that made the experience a little easier to bear were the music therapy sessions. Those sessions helped solidify the family’s faith - many of the songs performed by the therapist were the same as those performed in the family’s church - and the sessions were one of Blake’s favorite things to do.

“The one time he acted like a child was during music therapy,” she said. “All the other times it was stressful and painful.”

The music therapy had such a profound effect, the Whitehead family created a foundation to support it. Called Blake’s Miracle Foundation, the organization has sponsored a room in the hospital and raises money to donate to Cardon’s integrative therapy program through the annual SWIM-Kid-a-thon, hosted by SWIMkids USA, and features raffles, train rides, a cake walk and lots of swimming and floating among participants. This year’s event is scheduled for March 1, and more information is available at www.blakesmiracle.org.

In the eight years since Blake’s death, the foundation has donated approximately $220,000 to the medical center in honor of the Whiteheads’ departed son.

“In a short 23 months he touched more people than I could in a lifetime,” Kelle said.

As the therapy session advanced the care Aria felt for the interlopers diminished and she became more and more involved with the music coming from Wibben’s guitar and Aria’s iPad. There was a song to say goodbye still to come – “See you later, alligator ... after a while, crocodile” – as well as the conclusion of Zimmerman’s massage session for Aria and even Tina.

The treatment Aria received that January morning came shortly before she returned to her own room, her own bed, to her 8- and 10-year-old siblings, and her complete collection monkey paraphernalia. Tina’s hope was for this to be the last time the family would book an extended stay at Cardon.

What made the experience somewhat tolerable for the family, Tina said, were those therapy treatments that offered a reprieve from the quotidian routines a hospital offered. What Wibben and Zimmerman offered was, in essence, a way for Aria to have fun during her recovery and let go of any fears that come from an extended hospital stay, at least for a little while.

“This is the stuff she tells her siblings when she gets to talk to them about making up songs and having fun,” Tina said.

Oregon high school student has total recall

AP WIRE SERVICE
BY JOSEPHINE WOOLING-
TON
THE REGISTER-GUARD

EUGENE, Ore. (AP), – All South Eugene High School junior Kyle Morrison needs is 30 seconds to memorize a 12-digit number.

“OK, I’ve got it,” the 17-year-old said while rubbing his face before reciting the number both forward and backward.

Kyle has been training off and on for the last two years to compete in a national memory championship. He is the only person from Oregon who will compete against 74 other “mental athletes” in the 17th annual memory competition to be held Saturday in New York City.

“My mom thinks I’m peanuts for liking to memorize,” Kyle said, laughing. “But she supports it. My dad thinks it’s really cool.

“It’s kind of weird when someone asks what my hobbies are, and I say I like to sit around memorizing things,” he said.

Kyle learned about the competition two years ago after reading “Moonwalking with Einstein,” a book that details journalist Joshua Foer’s journey to becoming the 2006 national memory champion.

Kyle started researching memorization techniques on the Internet after reading the book, began practicing daily since July and registered for the competition.

He’ll compete against a range of participants, including an eighth-grader from New Jersey, a neurologist from Maine and last year’s memory champion, Ram Kolli, a 20-something business consultant from Virginia.

The key to memorizing is to associate numbers, words or faces with images, Kyle said.

He remembered the 12-digit number by imagining an image that represents every number from 00 to 99.

For example, Kyle associates the number 9 with lipstick. The number 39 represents his friend Mack, and the number 12 represents the action of sipping something.

So, the number 39129 would translate to “Mac sipping lipstick,” which sticks in his mind more than just numbers, he said.

To memorize faces and names, Kyle said he picks a defining feature of a person’s face and associates that with a memorable image. For example, he said if someone had a large nose, he would remember them by associating their face with a truck running over a nose.

“That’s what memorizing is,” Kyle said. “It’s just creating focus and visualization. There’s no photographic memory. It’s all training.”

Memorizing also requires creativity and quick thinking, he said, similar to improvising on a musical instrument.

Before his training, Kyle said he had an average memory. He said it would take him hours to memorize a list of vocabulary terms for his French class. Now, it takes him minutes.

“I have a lot more free time,” Kyle said of cutting the time it takes to do homework thanks to his beefed-up memory.

His goal is to place in the competition’s top 15. That would require him to memorize a 500-number sequence in five minutes; 117 names and faces in 15 minutes; a 50-line unpublished poem (including punctuation) in 15 minutes; and two decks of shuffled playing cards in five minutes.

His father, Larry Morrison, said his son has always been curious about science and the brain.

“He loves to learn and goes through phases where he takes a deep interest in something,” Morrison said. “The memory has been his latest interest.”

Kyle claims anyone can learn to memorize long numbers or names.

Every weekday at 6:45 a.m., Kyle wakes up and practices memory games for 30 minutes. On the weekends, he practices for an hour.

He can now memorize phone numbers immediately, he said.

However, Kyle still adds numbers to a contact list in his cell-phone, just in case.

“I haven’t gotten to the point where I’m super cocky and strutting around,” he said.

His memory, however, isn’t perfect. His dad said he has a “terrible memory” for mundane things, like where he last put his cellphone.

“How many times have you lost your phone?” his dad asked him.

“I just misplace it,” Kyle said before admitting he’s probably lost his phone hundreds of times. “I always find it.”

Player hits lights, halts Division II game in tie

BY STEVE REED
AP SPORTS WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP), Talk about shooting the lights out.

The Division II game between Johnson C. Smith and Winston Salem State was halted for safety reasons after a player heaved a full-court shot and knocked out lights – leaving the game tied with 0.3 seconds left on Wednesday night. The Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association announced Thursday the game will be completed Friday afternoon at Johnson C. Smith, starting with a 5-minute overtime.

For Johnson C. Smith’s longtime assistant coach Mark Sherill, the bizarre night was a first. He has seen a lot in 21 years as an assistant at Johnson C. Smith – where he also played – but nothing like this.

A tip-in by Javan Wells of the Rams tied the game at 76-76 with 0.3 seconds left, and Joshua Linson grabbed the ball and heaved a full-court shot. The ball hit two lights and knocked them out, leaving one fixture hanging precariously from a chain.

Coach Stephen Joyner Sr., also the Johnson C. Smith athletic director, spoke with the game officials to assess the situation and it was deemed a safety concern.

“We didn’t know how long the chains would last,” Sherill said. “The Winston-Salem coach (Bobby Collins) agreed it didn’t look safe. I’ve been in basketball a long time; this is the first time I’ve ever had a draw.”

The CIAA released a statement early Thursday saying, “We were made aware of the damaged light fixture, which made continuation of play in an overtime period impossible in the judgment of administrators and officials on site. In such circumstances, safety is our top priority.”

The release from the CIAA also stated the situation is covered under Rule 5, Section 4 for Interrupted Game:

“When a game is interrupted because of events beyond the control of the responsible administrative authorities, it shall be continued from the point of interruption unless the teams agree otherwise or there are applicable conference, league or association rules.”

“It was a great call and the right call for safety,” Sherill said of schools, which are 78 miles apart. “If it would have come down on one of the student-athletes (in overtime), you would have been calling us for something else.”

Linson scored a career-high 25 points for Johnson C. Smith, with Emilio Parks adding 18. Antwan Wilkerson had 13 points and 10 rebounds. Marquez Jones scored 21 points, Preston Ross 20 and Wykevin Bazemore 16 for the Rams.

The CIAA tournament begins next week in Charlotte at Time Warner Cable Arena, where only a large scoreboard hangs from the ceiling.

Lend Me a Tenor – delivers con bravura!

BY JANET GRANT

When does a night at the opera entail mistaken identities, amorous adventures, Italian accents, a madcap [JG1]scheme, the police, and a lot of tranquilizers? When that opera is under the guise of Ken Ludwig's Tony award-winning "Lend Me a Tenor."

Under the able direction of R. Michael gins with Henry Saunders, the opera general manager, and his assistant Max, awaiting the arrival of the famous opera singer Tito Merelli. Tito has come for one night to perform Vivaldi's "Otello." Through a series of mishaps, Tito is given a double dose of tranquilizers that leaves him comatose. Believing him to be dead, Saunders and Max contrive an insane plot to impersonate the star so that the opera can still go on. Confusion and mayhem ensue.

Joel A.S. Butler was extraordinary as Max, Saunders's meek assistant. Persuaded to impersonate the Italian star, he blossoms into a rather remarkable and confident singer. I only wish he got to sing a little more opera on stage!

Louis Schilling filled his role as Henry Saunders, the opera impresario, with fitful and exasperated aplomb. He was quite effective with his sputtering and loud bel-lows complete with colorful expletives. We can never quite determine if his desperate scheme is genius or insanity!

Michele Jenkins smoothly handled her role as Maggie, the daughter of the apoplectic Saunders and almost fiancée of Max. She idolizes Tito and just hopes that he may provide the one fling that she dreams of before committing to Max.

Dawn Cates was hilarious as Maria, Tito's long-suffering wife. Her over-the-top fights with her husband were full of passion and explicit hand gestures, garnering a large share of the evening's laughs.

Pat Cross was delightful as Julia, the chairwoman of the opera guild. While imperiously keeping Saunders's on his toes, she too signals interest in Tito.

Laura Rappa was quite effective as Diana, the buxom Cleveland soprano with the aspiring New York dreams. She comically slithers on stage as the seductress with her eyes focused and claws out for Tito.

Adam William Schaaf was very funny as the intrusive hotel bellhop. Annoying as a fly you just couldn't swat away, here was an aspiring singer who just wanted an audition or an autograph from the famed Italian star.

R. Michael Price and his talented cast and crew provided an entertaining night full of hoots and giggles. Though definitely not a play suitable for children, Broadway West's "Lend me a Tenor," is an adult comedy guaranteed to have audiences laughing with gusto! Grazie Broadway West!

Price, Broadway West Theatre Company's adaptation of the fast-paced comedy left the audience in stitches. Indeed, when I counted no less than six doors in a hotel suite replicated on stage, I knew we were primed for a night of farce and shtick. And we weren't disappointed as door after door was opened and slammed and locked and beaten by a zany cast of characters whipping through a dizzying plot about an ailing Italian tenor, his jealous wife, a sexy soprano, a scheming impresario, his mousy assistant, his wild-eyed daughter, an imperious opera chairwoman, and an opera aspiring bellhop. Whew!

Set in a Cleveland hotel suite in the course of a single day in 1934, the play be-

The cast was in total synch – a true ensemble working together like a well-oiled machine delivering rapid pacing, energy, and the just the right amount of confusion. A rousing recap of the play's scenes, performed at lightning speed during the curtain call, was especially brilliant and had the audience clapping with glee.

Len Shaffer was charming and likable as the larger than life Italian opera star, Tito Merelli. Mr. Shaffer seemed equally at ease playing a philandering lothario, famous singer, a passionate Italian husband, and all around nice guy. His "battle" scenes opposite Dawn Cates were hilarious and his duets with Joel A.S. Butler were brilliant and left the audience wanting more.
