Older Adults Need Immunizations, Too

Immunizations, other than the annual flu vaccine, are just for kids, right? Wrong.

“A substantial proportion of vaccine-preventable diseases in this country occur in adults,” says Dr. Harman Chawla, a physician specializing in infectious diseases and geriatrics at Washington Township Medical Foundation. “Older adults are particularly vulnerable to complications from infectious diseases because their immune systems are often weaker. Vaccines offer safe and effective protection from a variety of infectious diseases, so it’s important for adults – especially older adults – to make sure their immunizations are up to date.”

After finishing a residency in internal medicine at Jamaica Hospital Medical Centre in Jamaica, New York, Dr. Chawla completed a fellowship in geriatrics (the medical field that specializes in older adults) in June 2012 at New Jersey Medical School. He then spent a year as an assistant professor in the Department of Medicine there before completing an additional two-year fellowship in infectious diseases in June 2015 before joining Washington Township Medical Foundation in September.

“My decision to work in geriatrics stemmed from an interest in providing preventive care to older adults,” he says. “Infectious disease medicine goes hand-in-hand with geriatrics because older people, especially those who live in close quarters in skilled nursing facilities or assisted-living centers, generally get sicker from infections than younger adults.”

Dr. Chawla notes that annual flu vaccines are very important for older adults. Flu vaccines must be administered on a yearly basis because flu viruses change from year to year.

This season’s flu vaccine protects against the influenza viruses that research indicated will be the most common viruses this year. The “trivalent” vaccine with a combination of three viruses includes an A (H1N1) virus, an A (H3N2) virus and an influenza B virus. A “quadrivalent” vaccine includes those same three viruses, plus an additional influenza B virus.

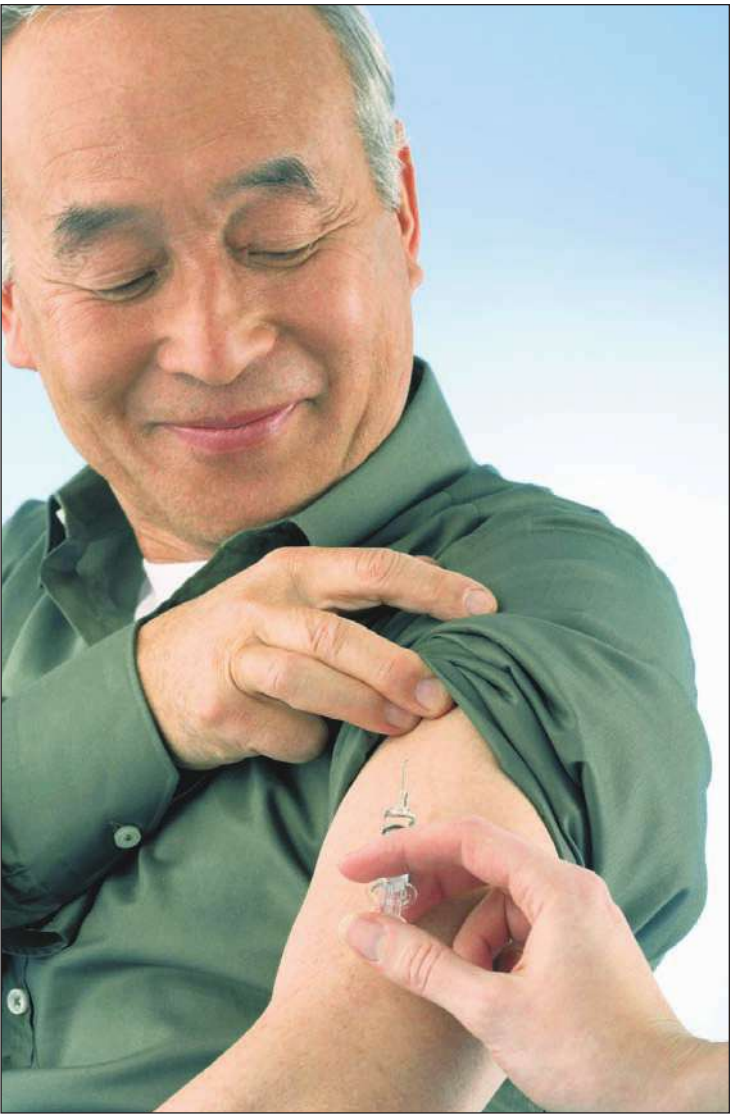

“There is a higher-dose flu shot for people over age 65 because their immune systems often aren’t as strong,” Dr. Chawla says. “The higher-dose flu vaccine and the quadrivalent vaccine are both better for older adults. Both of these vaccines use killed viruses, and they do not cause the flu. Generally, the only side effects are mild soreness and perhaps a slight rash at the site of the injection. There also is a vaccine for people who are allergic to raw eggs. The egg-free vaccine should be used by anyone who has ever had an allergic reaction to the regular flu vaccine such as hives or anaphylaxis.”

According to Dr. Chawla, there has been a dramatic improvement in flu vaccination rates among adults over the past three decades.

“In 1985, only about 35 to 40 percent of adults were vaccinated against the flu,” he explains. “Thanks, in part, to increased awareness of the importance of vaccines, today we are seeing 65 to 70 percent of adults receiving flu vaccines. That is still not as good as we’d like it to be, however.”

While flu shots are one important means of protecting your health, there are other vaccine-preventable diseases that can cause serious illness or even death, including pneumococcal disease.

Vaccinations are important for people of all ages, including older adults. Vaccines are a safe and effective option to protect people from a variety of infectious diseases that can cause serious illness or even death. Adults should talk to their physicians about the recommended vaccines. To find a physician, go to www.whhs.com.

“An infection caused by the pneumococcus bacteria can lead to serious health problems such as pneumonia,” Dr. Chawla says. “Besides pneumonia, pneumococcus can cause other types of infections, such as ear and sinus infections or a blood stream in-

Holidays Can Take a Toll on Your Health

Washington Hospital Doctor Offers Tips for Staying Healthy

With all the shopping, parties, late nights, and eating and drinking, the holidays can take a toll on your health. But there are ways to enjoy the festivities while staying healthy.

“Staying healthy is the goal year round, but it can be more difficult during the holidays with all the temptations,” said Dr. Lincy Mathew, a local physician who specializes in internal medicine and is a member of the Washington Township Medical Foundation and Washington Hospital medical staff. “You can still have a good time, but make sure you also focus on taking good care of yourself.”

She said exercise is the mainstay of a healthy life. You should do some type of physical activity at least 30 minutes every day.

“That doesn’t mean you have to go to the gym every day,” Dr. Mathew said. “Find some type of activity you enjoy like brisk walking or bicycling.”

Exercising can be difficult during the holidays with so many distractions, she acknowledged. She suggested finding ways to incorporate exercise into other activities you are doing.

“When you go shopping, park far away from the mall or grocery store so you have to walk,” she suggested. “Take the stairs instead of the elevator. Maybe when you have family gathered together for a meal, take a nice walk afterward.”

Exercise can help to reduce stress and improve your overall sense of well-being, which is important during the holidays, she added. It can also help avoid some of the weight gain that often occurs this time of year.

“The holidays can be a stressful time,” Dr. Mathew said. “But if you take time out to exercise, you will feel much better.”

Eat Right

Healthy eating is also critical for maintaining a healthy life, Dr. Mathew said. A healthy diet includes plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, nuts, whole grains, lean meats and fish, and low-fat dairy products.

“You need to avoid processed foods that are high in salt and fat,” she added. “When you do buy packaged foods, you need to read the ingredient list on the labels so you know what you are eating. You can’t always tell. Sometimes products will say they are low-fat, for instance, but when you read the label, you see they are full of sugar.”

Mathew said it can be hard to eat healthy during the holidays with all the high-fat, high calorie treats that are available this time of year.

Staying active and eating right over the holiday season can be done by everyone. Consider parking far away from store entrances to get extra walking done when shopping or eat a healthy meal before going to holiday gatherings. The goal is to enjoy the holidays without forgetting about your health.

“You can still eat the foods you enjoy, but do it in moderation,” she said. “Treat yourself to the foods you really like, but try to avoid overdoing it.”

When you are going to a party or social gathering where you know there will be food, Mathew suggested eating something healthy beforehand.

“Sometimes when people are going to a party, they don’t eat all day,” she said. “Then when they get there, they eat everything in sight because they are so hungry. Try to pick some of the more healthy options that are available.”

Eating late at night can also be a problem for some people, Mathew added, particularly for people who suffer from acid reflux or heartburn.

“Eating a big meal and then lying down afterward can make acid reflux worse,” she explained. “Sitting upright for a couple hours after you eat helps to reduce acid reflux.”

Caffeine can also contribute to acid reflux. You may be tempted to drink more caffeine to keep up with your busy schedule, but she said try not to overdo it because it can raise your blood pressure and heart rate.

Finally, she cautioned against drinking alcohol and driving. It’s important to know when you should stop drinking. If you have had too much, don’t get behind the wheel, she said.

“The holidays can be a fun time to get together with friends and family, but don’t forget about your health,” Mathew added. “Exercising and eating right can help you stay healthy.”

Tonsillectomy Options and Outie Belly Button Surgery

Dear Doctor,
My 9-year-old daughter has very large tonsils that I feel are interfering with her ability to sleep. Is tonsillectomy a possibility for sleep issues, even in the face of no infections?

Dear Reader,

The most common reason for removal of the tonsils is for recurrent infections. However, if the tonsils are large enough to cause sleep disturbance or difficulty breathing, then tonsillectomy is recommended for some patients. I would suggest a visit with an ENT (Ear, Nose, and Throat) specialist who sees children as a regular part of their practice.

Dear Doctor,
When my son was born he had an outie belly button. Nothing was ever mentioned about it being a hernia until recently. Is this something I should get fixed?

Dear Reader,

Most outie belly buttons are due to small hernias of the umbilicus. Over time these small hernias often close on their own and do not need surgical repair. Most pediatric surgeons will recommend surgical closure by the age of 5. At 8 years old it is certainly reasonable to consider the surgery.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

One-half parking

Why on earth would anyone come up with the idea of one-half a parking space if not to circumvent existing parking requirements on behalf of a commercial developer?

Why would our elected representatives, on behalf of their citizens, let our Fremont City Manager (at a salary of over $5,000/wk) allow a department under his supervision to even submit such a pea-brained scheme for Council approval? Where does our City Attorney (also in the salary range of $5,000/wk) weigh in on this?

BART Fremont and BART Warm Springs are just two pieces in an unfinished transportation vision. Until Fremont comes up with a viable plan to easily and dependably get children to and from school, transport people to and from BART, and from BART to and from train stations and airports without driving their automobiles—providing parking spaces is an absolutely necessary public service.

A solution would require multiple elected representatives to work together for the good of their electorates. I, personally, have no idea how this can be accomplished at the moment without automobiles and parking spaces. Do you?

Federal, state, county, and city regulations give residents the right to enjoy their homes—and the assurance that others cannot impose themselves upon that enjoyment.

If our elected fiduciaries choose to stick their heads in the sand since they cannot come up with a viable plan, perhaps voters should just enter “Fido” as a write in for candidates in Fremont City Council elections. If Sunol can have a dog for Mayor, why can’t Fremont? At least, a dog does not usually bite the hand that feeds it.

Local Student achieves top ACT score

SUBMITTED BY RAJALAKSHMI NAGARAJAN AND NAGARAJAN RAGUNATHAN

Pranav Nagarajan, son of Nagarajan and Rajalakshmi and a sophomore at American High School in Fremont earned the highest possible ACT (American College Test) Composite score of 36. Nationally, while the actual number of students earning the top score varies from year to year, on average, less than one-tenth of one percent of students who take the ACT earns the top score. Among test takers in the high school graduating class of 2015, only 1,598 of more than 1.92 million students earned an ACT Composite score of 36.

The ACT consists of tests in English, mathematics, reading and science. Each test is scored on a scale of 1–36, and a student's composite score is the average of the four test scores. Some students also take the optional ACT writing test, but the score for that test is reported separately and is not included within the ACT Composite score.

ACT test scores are accepted by all major US colleges. Exceptional scores of 36 provide colleges with evidence of student readiness for the academic rigors that lie ahead.

Ending homelessness through the

Holiday Spirit of Giving

SUBMITTED BY CHRIS DE BENEDETTI

'Tis the season for giving, but even the most generous donors often face a nagging question each holiday season: Where can I give to help those most in need?

Abode Services, which has moved more than 4,400 adults and children from homelessness into homes since 2010, can provide an answer by helping donors brighten the holiday season for people without housing.

Your donation will create a joyful holiday for a child or adult in our programs who would otherwise not be able to celebrate the season. Here are a few ideas for small gifts that will have a big impact:

Gift Cards – A donation of gift cards helps families purchase the items they need most. New shoes, clothes, and food for a holiday dinner – even a new hair cut can help bolster the holiday spirit of the people we serve. Gift cards to stores such as Target, Safeway or Payless Shoe Source are very needed and appreciated.

Donations – Help end homelessness by making an easy and secure donation online at abodeservices.org or by check mailed to Abode Services, 40849 Fremont Blvd., Fremont CA 94538. Some donations will even be doubled, giving your gift twice the impact: Abode Services recently received a Sobrato Family Foundation challenge match grant, through which the Foundation will match new or increased monetary gifts from donors.

Winter Weather Clothing – The cold rainy season is the hardest time of year for many of our participants. Donations of new socks, rain coats, umbrellas, gloves and scarves can make a tremendous difference in their lives.

If you're interested in seeing our Wish List for donations of holiday food, such as turkey, ham, and canned cranberry sauce, and other items needed in our programs, please visit our website at www.abodeservices.org. For more than a decade, Abode Services has earned a four-star rating, the top rating possible, from Charity Navigator, the country's preeminent nonprofit evaluator. This rating recognizes our consistent good governance and commitment to our mission to end homelessness.

For more information about how you can help or to schedule a time to drop off your donation, please contact Community Outreach Director Jean Morgan at (510) 252-0910 ext. 804 or jmorgan@abodeservices.org. To make an online donation, visit our website at www.abodeservices.org

Thank you for your generosity. Happy holidays!

Older Adults Need Immunizations, Too

Immunizations, other than the annual flu vaccine, are just for kids, right? Wrong.

fection called bacteremia. The bacteria also can cause meningitis, a potentially life-threatening infection of the tissues and fluids surrounding the brain and spinal cord.”

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that about 900,000 Americans get pneumococcal pneumonia each year and about 5 to 7 percent die from it. In the United States, about 90 percent of invasive pneumococcal disease cases are in adults.

“The best way to prevent pneumococcal disease is to be vaccinated,” Dr. Chawla emphasizes.

There are currently two types of pneumococcal vaccines:

- Pneumovax 23 – currently recommended for all adults 65 years or older and for persons who are 2 years and older and at high risk for pneumococcal disease, including those with sickle cell disease, HIV infection or other conditions that weaken the immune system. This vaccine also is recommended for adults age 19 through 64 who smoke cigarettes or who have asthma or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD).

“Both of these vaccines are intended to prevent bacterial pneumococcal infections,” Dr. Chawla explains. “The CDC’s general recommendation is for adults age 65 or older to get one dose of the Prevnar 13 vaccine, and then wait at least eight weeks before getting one dose of the Pneumovax 23 vaccine. The CDC does not recommend Prevnar 13 vaccination for people between ages 6 and 64 who are not considered high-risk for complications of pneumococcal infection. People younger than 65 who have high risk factors such as COPD can get the Pneumovax 23 vaccine every five years and again at age 65.

“People over 65 who have received the Pneumovax 23 vaccine, but not the Prevnar 13 vaccine, should wait at least one year after getting the Pneumovax 23 vaccine before getting the Prevnar 13 vaccine,” he adds. “You should consult your doctor about the proper pneumococcal vaccines for you.”

In addition to annual flu vaccines and the pneumococcal vaccines, the CDC recommends several other immunizations for adults:

- Meningococcal – Meningococcal disease is a leading cause of bacterial meningitis. Meningococcal infections can be treated with antibiotics, but about 10 percent of people who get the disease die from it, which is why prevention through vaccination is so important. The vaccine is now recommended beginning in preadolescence, as well as for other people who have never received the vaccine. It is especially encouraged for people living in close quarters, such as students in dormitories, people in military barracks or seniors in communal housing.
- Measles, Mumps, Rubella (MMR) – Most Americans are vaccinated against these diseases as children, but the vaccine is recommended for adults born in 1957 or later – especially those born outside the U.S. – if there is no documentation of immunization or proof of immunity via a blood test.
- Polio – The polio vaccine is not usually recommended for adults over age 18, but those who never received the vaccine in childhood may wish to be vaccinated if they intend to travel to countries where exposure to the virus is possible, such as Russia, South Africa, Nigeria, Pakistan and Afghanistan.

- Hepatitis A – This vaccine protects against a viral disease that often results in chronic liver failure. Immunization is especially important for people who travel or work outside the U.S., particularly in developing countries, and those with liver disease.
- Hepatitis B – This vaccine protects against a virus spread through contact with blood or other bodily fluids. The vaccine is recommended for all adolescents and adults, but especially for people who have intimate contact with hepatitis B-positive persons.

The common childhood disease of chickenpox also can be a very serious disease in adults. Adults who did not have chickenpox as a child should receive the varicella vaccine, which is very effective in preventing the disease.

“There also is a herpes zoster vaccine to prevent shingles, which is caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox,” says Dr. Chawla. “Anyone who has had chickenpox can develop shingles. The herpes zoster vaccine is recommended to reduce the risk of shingles and its associated pain in people 60 years old or older. Even if you have received the varicella vaccine, you still need the vaccine for shingles. However, the shingles vaccine is not suitable for people who have compromised immune systems or who have had severe allergic reactions to gelatin or neomycin because the vaccine contains those ingredients.”

Dr. Chawla notes some vaccines, such as the chickenpox vaccine, can provide lifetime immunity. Other vaccines require “booster” shots to remain effective.

“There are still cases of tetanus in the United States, and it is easy to prevent,” he says. “Adults should receive a tetanus booster shot every 10 years, and perhaps as early as five years after receiving a previous dose if they incur a puncture wound. Most often, the vaccine used is a tetanus-diphtheria (Td) booster, but because pertussis – also called whooping cough – has become more prevalent in recent years, adults who have not received a tetanus-diphtheria-pertussis (Tdap) booster vaccine should get one. Tdap also is recommended for parents-to-be and the grandparents or other infant caregivers to prevent infection in newborns.”

All of the above vaccines provide “active” immunity to various infections by prompting the body’s immune system to produce antibodies that identify and neutralize specific viruses and bacteria.

“Active immunity is a more potent and durable way to prevent infectious diseases,” Dr. Chawla notes. “For people with compromised immune systems – due to factors such as HIV, chemotherapy or other medications that suppress the immune system – ‘live’ vaccinations to stimulate active immunity may not be an option. In those cases, it might be necessary to stimulate ‘passive’ immunity with injections of antibodies called immunoglobulins to fight specific diseases. Once the patient’s immune system is healthy, it may be possible to vaccinate again.”

Gift Guide: Kiddie tech beyond video games, tablets

BY BREE FOWLER
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

NEW YORK (AP), What to get a tech-savvy kid who's tired of the same old tablets and video games? New toys this year range from easy-to-use sets for building circuits to a talking dinosaur powered by IBM's Watson artificial-intelligence system.

Most of these come from startup companies, yet they can be found at major retailers or ordered online. All are designed to foster learning and creativity.

LITTLEBITS ($200 for Gadgets & Gizmos set, ages 8 and up)

Although circuit-building sets have long been around, LittleBits takes inventing and building electrical-powered devices to a new level. The brightly colored components connect together easily with magnets, then attach to mounting boards like Legos.

It took me about 45 minutes to build a remote-controlled car. The instructions include color pictures of everything I needed to see. I found them easy to follow, and older children should, too. Although I didn't get everything right the first time, I had fun checking my circuits and solving problems. Kids will as well.

Other projects in my set include a wireless doorbell, motorized fan and rotating lamp.

One drawback: There aren't enough parts to make multiple projects. The kit has two mounting boards, and I needed both to build my car and remote control. Because the boards are needed for most of the projects, you have to take apart what you built to make something else.

To get around that, you'd need to buy expansion packs with extra boards and parts.

STIKBOT ($10 for a starter kit, technically for ages 13 and up because of social-media restrictions)

What makes this toy fun is its marriage of apps and social media with old-school stop-motion animation, which stitches together still pictures into a video. It harkens back to the "Gumby" cartoons of days gone by.

The starter kit comes with two StikBots — small, flexible plastic figures with suction cups for hands and feet — along with a basic tripod for your smartphone.

You download a free app and use the StikBots and whatever else you have around the house to create your own stop-motion movie. The movies can then be shared through social media such as Facebook, Twitter and YouTube.

Zing Global Ltd., the company behind StikBot, posts its favorites on YouTube through "The StikBot Show" and gives out cash prizes for the most creative. You can see some of the best at <http://www.stikbot.toys/videos/>.

The creativity of StikBot fans is truly amazing. My 6-year-old daughter can't stop watching and has been begging to make her own movie.

COGNITOYS DINO ($120, ages 5 and up)

This small, plastic dinosaur from New York-based startup Elemental Path has a voice reminiscent of Yoda from "Star Wars." The toy uses Watson's speech-recognition and cognitive abilities to create an interactive experience.

The Dino will engage in conversations with your child and remember personal details such as his or her name and favorite color. With Watson's help, the toy will also answer complicated questions such as "Why is the sky blue?" and "Where do babies come from?" in a kid-appropriate way. It's not meant for sharing with siblings, though, as Dino will keep track of just one child's favorites.

The toy connects directly to your Wi-Fi home network, so no phone or tablet is needed.

The Dino, which comes in three colors, is sold only online and should ship by the holidays.

THE INCREDIBLE INTERGALACTIC JOURNEY HOME ($30, all ages)

Lost My Name, a London-based startup, uses satellite maps and other data to create customized books that go well beyond similar products on the market.

The beautifully illustrated book tells the story of your child's journey home from outer space. As your child gets closer to home, the book's pages display nearby landmarks and eventually a satellite map showing your child's neighborhood and home.

Although my daughter already has books personalized with her name and friends, she got a kick out of seeing our home and neighborhood from space.

The books, available in seven languages, are sold only online.

TIGGLY ($30 per set, ages vary)

Tiggly aims to make learning fun by combining toy shapes and letters with apps for iPads or Android tablets.

For example, little sea creatures in the Submarine app ask kids to complete words by placing the required vowel letter on the tablet. Use the wrong letter, and a little crab character gives a disapproving look, while the tablet makes a "boing!" sound. Words completed correctly are sucked up by a little submarine.

The shapes and letters are soft and easy for little hands to pick up and manipulate.

The set for the youngest kids, ages 2 to 5, focuses on shapes, while another teaches basic math to kids ages 3 to 7. The most advanced teaches early reading skills to 4 to 8-year-olds.

Apps for the tablet feature a variety of games. Most are free, while a few cost $2 to $3.

Woman makes fake Mickey Mouse cards in Disney ticket scam

AP WIRE SERVICE

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP), Prosecutors say a woman has been charged with identity theft after manufacturing Mickey Mouse business cards and selling fake Disneyland tickets.

KNTV reports (<http://bit.ly/1Sq0dWC>) Friday that Santa Clara County Deputy District Attorney Jennifer Deng says 22-year-old Jennifer Anne Cardema sold the tickets to at least 14 people and now also faces grand theft and aggravated crime enhancements in connection with defrauding people of more than $100,000.

It was not known Friday if Cardema has an attorney.

Over two years, Cardema pretended that she was an employee of Disney who could sell discounted annual passes and hotel rooms. She tricked her customers by creating a false LinkedIn page, fake Disneyland emails and even printed fake Mickey Mouse business cards.

In several cases, families traveled to Disney properties and found their passes were not valid and their hotel rooms were not booked.

Governor extends California water-saving measures in drought

AP WIRE SERVICE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), Gov. Jerry Brown is extending his executive order requiring Californians to conserve water as the state prepares for a fifth year of drought.

The governor announced Friday that he is continuing a 2014 order declaring a drought emergency to give state officials more flexibility to address the ongoing effects of the drought.

Brown ordered communities throughout the state to reduce water use by a quarter this year, but those cuts will expire in February.

Felicia Marcus, chairwoman of the State Water Resources Control Board, says officials won't know by then whether an expected El Nino weather pattern will bring enough water to ease drought conditions.

The order also suspends some environmental rules, expedites permits for power plants damaged by wildfires, and allows some Californians to capture more water.

Sugar, corn industries settle sweetener spat; terms secret

BY BRIAN MELLEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES (AP), The sugar and corn industries ended their bitter billion-dollar dispute over sweeteners Friday in a secret out-of-court settlement.

The deal midway through a trial in Los Angeles federal court put an end to dueling lawsuits that pitted sugar processors against the makers of high fructose corn syrup over losses each side blamed on efforts by their rival to win over consumers.

Sugar processors were seeking $1.5 billion in a false-advertising claim against corn refiners and agribusinesses giants Archer Daniels Midland and Cargill and other companies after they tried to rebrand their publicity-plagued product as “corn sugar.”

Western Sugar Cooperative and other sugar processors said they lost money when corn refiners launched a “sugar is sugar” ad campaign that stated, “Your body can’t tell the difference.”

Corn refiners and the companies countersued for $530 million, saying they lost that much after the sugar industry made false and misleading statements that included a comment that high fructose corn syrup was as addictive as crack cocaine.

They blamed the sugar industry for being behind the “junk science” that associated the product with diabetes and obesity.

The arch-rivals sugar-coated their rancor in a settlement statement that announced their commitments to “practices that encourage safe and healthful use of their products, including moderation in the consumption of table sugar, high fructose corn syrup and other sweeteners.”

Attorneys on both sides refused to discuss terms of the settlement or whether any money would be exchanged.

Eric Rose, a spokesman for the sugar processors, said they “achieved a satisfactory settlement of the disputes in the lawsuit.”

Big Sugar and Big Corn have battled in the marketplace since the 1970s when high fructose corn syrup was introduced as a cheaper alternative to sugar.

The fortunes for corn began slipping when studies in the mid-2000s began connecting the product to health problems such as obesity.

Corn refiners launched the ad campaign to support its bid before the Food and Drug Administration to change the name to “corn sugar.”

The FDA rejected the request in 2012, finding that sugar was a solid, dried and crystallized food, not syrup.

Although some consumers passionately favor one product over the other, science has determined they are nearly identical and are metabolized the same way, said Roger A. Clemens, a University of Southern California research professor of pharmacology and pharmaceutical science.

Sugar is sucrose, which is half fructose, half glucose. High fructose corn syrup is typically 55 percent fructose and 45 percent glucose.

The trial had presented a chance for jurors to weigh in on the vexing debate and side with one sweetener after years of dispute in the court of public opinion over the evils of both.

A big win by one side over the other could have had a broader impact on the food industry, the law and advertising.

Attorney Dan Herling, who was not involved in the case but has handled suits alleging false or misleading labeling or advertising of foods, said a jury verdict could have provided a model for lawyers looking to take on foods with genetically modified or non-organic ingredients.

“I would also imagine that people who come up with marketing campaigns would have to take a step back and say if we do this not only how is the market going to react, but is it going to lead to a lawsuit,” Herling said.

Attorney Mark Lanier, who represented sugar processors, predicted before the trial that if he prevailed, other companies would follow the likes of Hunt’s ketchup and Capri Sun juices and switch to sugar from high fructose corn syrup.

“I think both sides will get massive PR out of the win or the loss,” he said. “Good PR or bad PR. Both sides have a lot hanging on it.”

The settlement essentially brings the case to a draw in the public eye.

The outcome was similar to one between the sugar industry and the makers of Splenda seven years ago.

Sugar processors alleged that McNeil Nutritionals engaged in misleading advertising for promoting the sweetener as a natural food product with the slogan “tastes like sugar because it’s made from sugar.”

Terms of that deal have never been disclosed.

dangerous levels of domoic acid in the bivalves. Those closures have cost an estimated $22 million in tourism-related spending, said Dan Ayres, coastal shellfish manager for the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife.

Crabbing was also closed along parts of the Washington coast over the summer, though crabbing continued in the Puget Sound.

Matt Hunter, shellfish project leader with the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, said crabbing is huge fishery in the state and any closure will have “trickle-down effect on the economy, not only on the coastal communities.”

Crab can still be found in many restaurants and stores, including San Francisco’s Fisherman’s Wharf, and health officials say crabs sold in stores are safe to eat. Some crab on the market now may have been harvested months ago and frozen for later; commercial crab fishing is currently open in some parts of Alaska, Oregon and Puget Sound.

In California, crab fisherman are bracing for a tough season.

“Needless to say, this is devastating,” said Steve Fitz, who owns Mr. Morgan Fisheries in Half Moon Bay. Crab represents the bulk of annual income for many in the fishing community, he said. Still, he’s optimistic that toxin levels will go down and the season will open soon.

Restaurants and customers say they’ll adjust their habits.

“It’s a disappointment because we really look forward to it every November,” said Matt Watson, manager of Woodhouse Fish Co. in San Francisco, which will do its best to get whole crab at a reasonable price from other states.

Kris Ducker, who grew up in California, looks forward to her family’s holiday tradition: eating crab served ice cold, cracked, with a side of sourdough bread. Even though she now lives in Texas, she still tries to find fresh Dungeness crab.

“We’re looking forward to having Dungeness crab for Christmas Eve. We could move on to something else. It wouldn’t kill us, but we would be sad,” she said.

Scientists say the warm waters that fostered the massive toxic algae bloom off the West Coast this year is more likely a short-term climate event than one attributed to climate change.

“Whether this warming itself is a direct function of climate change or not, we can’t say,” said Mark Wells, an oceanography professor in the School of Marine Sciences at the University of Maine. However, the climate change models project warming along the coastlines over the next several decades, so “this type of event probably is going to become much more frequent in the future.”

On the Northeast coast, scientists have documented shifts in species as the result of warmer waters and that’s meant some changes in what is caught and where.

“We see lots of shifting going on,” said Richard Merrick, NOAA Fisheries chief science adviser. Significant fish stocks have been shifting northward and deeper into cooler waters along the Northwest Atlantic Ocean, he noted. The New England cod fishery collapsed but haddock fishing has gone up as fishermen switched, he said.

Another study found that warming seas will likely send West Coast fish species northward by about 20 miles a decade, and some species probably will disappear from southern ranges off California and Oregon.

Associated Press photojournalist Eric Risberg contributed to this report from San Francisco.

Boats sit idle as algae threatens Dungeness crab season

BY PHUONG LE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco’s Fisherman’s Wharf typically bustles this time of year as workers prepare to haul millions of pounds of Dungeness crab that are a tradition at Thanksgiving and other holiday meals.

But crab pots are sitting empty on docks, boats are idled and fishermen are anxiously waiting for California authorities to open the lucrative Dungeness crab season.

California has delayed the Nov. 15 start of its commercial crab season after finding dangerous levels of a toxin in crabs. Officials in Oregon and Washington are testing crab samples and will decide soon whether to open its coastal season by Dec. 1 as planned.

A massive bloom of microscopic algae – which produced a natural toxin called domoic acid that is harmful to wildlife and fish – in the Pacific Ocean is threatening the crab industry during a time when many fishing outfits make their most money. It’s also roiling coastal tourism and marine ecosystems.

A closure along the entire West Coast would be a blow to the industry, which harvested nearly $170 million worth of Dungeness crab in 2014.

“Everybody is counting on crab to make it, so this is pretty disappointing,” said Larry Collins, president of the San Francisco Crab Boat Owners Association. “Whenever they test clean, we’ll go get them. I’m very hopeful that it’s sooner than later.”

Experts say the warm conditions that set up the toxic algae bloom – while not attributed to climate change – does offer a picture of what’s to come as ocean temperatures are projected to warm. Already, warmer ocean temperatures off New England have shaken up fisheries there, contributing to the collapse of the region’s cod fishery and the shift northward in the lobster population, studies have found.

“I don’t have a crystal ball, but I think we’re being given a warning here,” said Vera Trainer, who manages the marine biotoxin program at the Northwest Fisheries Science Center in Seattle. “We’re being shown what the future is going to look like. This is more of what we can expect.”

Razor clams, for now, have been taken off menus in Oregon and Washington. Shellfish managers have closed recreational digs after finding

Newark Artists Open Studios

You will see decorative ceramic tile bird baths, art for your garden, oil paintings, and tile murals of Tuscany and the Napa wine country by Simone Archer, who also has gorgeous glass jewelry pendants and earrings. Often seen painting in the hills and parks around Newark and Fremont, Archer is known as a plein air painter of scenes that may not be here tomorrow. She is attracted to unique shapes and backlit vistas that make our Tri-City area unique.

Eric Calande works predominantly in acrylic and oil pastel. At the age of 17, Calande was the youngest to be admitted into the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the nation's first and oldest art school. He worked for many years as both an artist and art director, but has now returned to his fine art roots. His painting and photography capture the simplistic beauty of everyday objects such as a bowl of bright orange persimmons. A popular art teacher, Calande offers both adult and children's classes.

Professional artist Adriane Dedic is inspired by Japanese wood block prints, but uses a unique technique that blends traditional printing with contemporary computer art. Her series of colorful Geisha has musical motifs, fans, and umbrellas. Her newest fabric collages feature whimsical birds with poetry printed on tea bags. She has created small tile holiday ornaments with her favorite art designs.

Inspired by both culture and nature, glass artist Emelie Rogers will display stunning stained glass and fused art pieces including unique glass serving pieces infused with copper and silver, as well as small glass dish gift sets and unique glass jewelry. Always impressed by studying the world around her and always seeking a challenge, Rogers has worked the past year on powder screen printing on glass. Come and enjoy the fruits of her year's exploration. A variety of pieces will be displayed including large accessory pieces, functional mid-size items, and small gift sets.

Be inspired by the creative imaginations of these award-winning local artists!

The American Red Cross encourages individuals and organizations to give something that means something this winter by making a life-saving blood donation or hosting a blood drive.

Blood donations often decline from now to New Year’s Day when holiday festivities pull people away from their donation appointments. Seasonal illnesses, such as colds and the flu, can also have a serious impact on blood donations.

In addition, there are fewer blood drives during the winter months when many hosting organizations postpone drives while people are traveling for the holidays. Severe winter weather may also cause scheduled blood drives to be canceled.

Despite the busy holiday season and threat of extreme freezing weather, the need for blood remains steady. Organizations can help by hosting a blood drive during the winter months, and eligible donors are encouraged to make an appointment to give blood. Donors with all blood types are needed, especially those with types O negative, B negative, A negative and AB blood.

Visit redcrossblood.org to learn more about hosting a blood drive. To make an appointment to donate blood, download the free Red Cross Blood Donor App from app stores, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Donors can now use the Blood Donor App to access their donor card and view vital signs from previous donations.

Turkey and Eagles join forces

Mother Nature cooperated this year as California School for the Deaf (CSD) students prepared for their annual Turkey Trot. On the scheduled day, Wednesday, November 18th, skies were blue and temperature moderate. The Eagles, true to their school mascot, soared through it all, collecting canned goods for the Alameda County Food Bank.

Each participant received a token as they completed a circuit of the track. The total tokens earned gave runners eligibility for different prize drawings. Lucky participants were selected through drawings by grade level. Separate drawings were held for grand prizes and staff participants.

From CSD to the entire community, we wish you a Happy Thanksgiving!

Decorating with White Color of the Year for 2016

Interestingly, Benjamin Moore named "Simply White" their color of the year for 2016. Other paint companies like Sherwin Williams, Behr and Glidden have also listed versions of white in their forecasts for 2016 and going forward. Why white? It's part of a larger societal trend favoring simplicity and timelessness. White is recognized as a fantastic backdrop color—one that sets the stage for everything else that will be happening in the room.

Some advice to clients who are afraid of color: if you're defaulting to white for your walls because you are afraid to take a leap and try color, please get over that fear! Most people love colorful interiors when they see them, and just need a nudge to try something new. That said, if you are intentionally choosing white for your interior design, then go with it wholeheartedly and don't let anyone make you feel bad about it. If white is the color of the year for 2016, then you know you're in great company.

White and all of its many iterations can be terrific wall colors—white with a hint of yellow, pink or peach can add so much subtle warmth to a space, while white with slight undertones of blue or green can cool off a room. White also sets off other colors beautifully—think of crisp white crown molding or a fireplace mantel contrasting with the deeper wall color behind it. But white is not just for trim and moldings—furniture, walls, window treatments, tile, and cabinetry all look terrific in tints, tones and shades of white.

Using white in your interior design allows you to be more adventurous with the other colors in the space. In one recent project, the client loved bold colors like purple, red and cobalt, so we used crisp white on most of the walls, then used those bold colors strategically on accent walls and even some ceilings to create a modern, "art gallery" type of look.

If you want a mix of colors, but don't tend to like bold, bright hues, use white and creams, paired with light grays and tans to create a very elegant and restful interior. In another project, we used a variety of whites, creams and other soft neutrals for the fireplace mantel and tile, the finish on the chairs, the upholstery fabric, window treatments and area rug. The result is a beautiful, inviting living room that will stand the test of time.

White kitchen cabinets are hugely popular right now, as they coordinate with almost any other color and work in almost all design styles from contemporary to traditional. In this kitchen, the crisp white cabinets coordinate beautifully with the aqua blues in the backsplash tile and the quartz counters, while the wood floor and island add warmth and contrast to the space.

And there's no way to go wrong with a white bathroom. White tile always looks clean and fresh, and you can add a lot of personality with wall color, window treatments, art and accessories.

Celebrate the season with Trees of Angels

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON HOSPITAL
HEALTHCARE FOUNDATION

Washington Hospital Healthcare Foundation and Bernardin Family McDonald's present the 20th anniversary season of "Trees of Angels" with tree lightings beginning Monday, November 30.

For 20 years the Trees of Angels tree lightings have supported hospice care in the Tri-City area, providing comfort and dignity to those in their last days. Funds raised this year will be used to refurbish the current hospice room at Washington Hospital and to add a second room.

The original tree, located at McDonald's Restaurant at Highway 680 and Mission Boulevard in Fremont, is adorned each year with thousands of lights forming angels, doves, and stars. Entertainment, refreshments, and a raffle will be available at each event, and Santa and Mrs. Clause will be making an appearance at the Newark and Union City tree lightings. All tree lightings are complimentary.

Please consider making a contribution to this crucial health-care program. Your donation will ensure that all our neighbors have access to high-quality, local hospice care for their loved ones, regardless of their ability to pay. All donations are fully tax deductible.

To learn more about events or how to make a charitable donation, call (510) 791-3428 or e-mail foundation@whhs.com.

Local Museum Celebrates Twenty Years

BY LILA BRINGHURST

Recently the Museum of Local History Guild celebrated twenty years of providing a museum with local artifacts, access to the Dr. Robert B. Fisher collection, other archival collections and docents trained in the history of Washington Township (now called the Tri-City Area).

At a birthday party in the St. Joseph Parish Hall in Mission San Jose, former Fremont mayor, Gus Morrison, was master of ceremonies and introduced local elected officials who spoke briefly: Newark Mayor Al Nagy, Union City Mayor Carol Dutra-Vernaci, and Councilmember, Lily Mei, who represented Fremont Mayor Bill Harrison.

Morrison told the crowd that he was mayor when the fire

Regina Dennie Memorial Fund, Kelsey Camello has continued Schaffarczyk's work of cataloging and processing of collections. Recently the museum received a grant to help archive the Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum's 9000-reel collection of silent films. Matching donations are needed to continue that project.

Under the leadership of Dianne Holmes and Margery Begley, student tours have become popular at the museum and at the Rancho Higuera Historical Park in Warm Springs. Timothy Swenson and Caroline Harris have led tours of historic districts in the Tri-Cities. The museum receives a continuous stream of historic items, documents and photographs donated by current and past residents of the area. In fighters moved from the old firehouse on the corner of Anza and Ellsworth Streets to new a new fire station on Paseo Padre Parkway and Pine Street. Kent McClain, Fremont's city manager at the time suggested that the old firehouse could be used as a museum. Two local historic groups, Washington Township Historical Society and Mission Peak Heritage Foundation, came together to launch the project.

Origins of the Museum

The Country Club of Washington Township, organized in 1897, published the "History of Washington Township" in 1904. There have been two subsequent editions, briefly recounting the history of the original towns in Southern Alameda County located in Washington Township: Mission San Jose, Irvington, Union City, Alvarado, Decoto, Centerville, Niles, Warm Springs and Newark.

In 1949 the Country Club's Historical Research Committee morphed into the Washington Township Historical Society. And, in 1965, Mission Peak Heritage Foundation grew out of the Fremont Historical Resources Committee, which had been created by the City of Fremont.

had worked with local historian, Dr. Robert Fisher, and taught a class about local history at Ohlone College. Holmes took time recently to write about the 1995 board of directors:

"The board of the newly-formed Museum of Local History Guild was composed of members of the two historical societies.

"Cecilia Weed, vice president, was a long-time president of Washington Township Historical Society. Her friend, Betty Ann Dunseath, joined the board as treasurer. She was a member of

Gus Morrison and Phil Holmes

Members from both organizations met with Fremont city staff to create a plan for the museum. On May 21, 1990 the Fremont city council voted to remodel the former fire station at 190 Anza Street as a museum. Both groups signed the lease. After much hard work they celebrated with a grand opening on October 14, 1995.

fact the museum is now bursting at the seams and is looking for additional space.

Recently the board changed the name of the museum to the Washington Township Museum of Local History in order to identify the museum's geographic focus. The public is invited to visit the museum at 190 Anza Street on Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and also the second Saturday and Sunday of each month, same hours. <http://museumoflocalhistory.org/>

"Mollie Sinclair, secretary, had written and published the "Heritage Cookbook of Washington Township" which featured the recipes and histories of many local families. Her husband, John Stevenson, descended from a local pioneer family and was the first mayor of Fremont.

"Ann Power, display coordinator, taught at Gomes School and was very interested in local history. She worked with museum experts to develop the first museum design. She and her husband, Randy, volunteered many hours at the museum.

"Regina Dennie, docent coordinator, was a native of Mission San Jose, a member of both historical groups and an avid history buff."

Looking Forward

During the celebration Gil Garza, current president of the museum board, recognized the work of volunteers at the museum and mentioned a number of projects that are currently underway. Patricia Schaffarczyk, volunteer curator, recently facilitated updating the museum's website and Facebook page. Kimbookai gives final gift to library

In a "bitter/sweet" dedication, members of Kimbookai gathered on November 19th in an alcove of the Children's Area of the Fremont Main Library to gift funds to its refurbishment. As a legacy of the organization that worked toward improved learning and play experiences in the Tri-Cities, a check for over $10,000 was given to the library to improve the décor and furnishings for children. A letter to friends of Kimbookai follows:

It is with bitter/sweet feelings that we report to you that, after 13 years, the Board of Directors of Kimbookai Children's Edutainment Museum has decided to dissolve our non-profit and end our quest of establishing a children's museum for the Tri-City area.

As you know, Kimbookai was created as a non-profit 501(c) 3 organization in 2002 by young mothers who saw a need for a museum for young children with fun, educational exhibits designed to stimulate young minds. We also saw it as a place of support for parents of youngsters allowing them to learn from one another and experts in the field. We hope that, in future, a new group of citizens will take up the challenge and help preserve our legacy by forming a non-profit to bring museum joy and learning to many Tri-City youngsters.

During our years of existence, our Board, donors and volunteers like you have brought many museum-like experiences to children in the Tri-City area. For example, we created a Children's Museum Experience Event at Fremont's Centerville Presbyterian Church on April 25, 2009. We have also participated in many city-sponsored children's events like Fremont's Trick or Treat on Safety Street and the City's "Shake, Rattle and Roll" Earthquake Tour for Children in conjunction with the Math and Science Nucleus.

You have fervently shared this dream with us and have enthusiastically donated your time and money to help make this dream a reality. However, we can all feel good and hopeful about the fact that our remaining assets will go to a worthy cause and one that goes hand in hand with Kimbookai's vision and mission.

The sweet part has to do with our decision to make a generous donation of our remaining assets — $10,000.98 — to the Alameda County Library Foundation. The Board unanimously has approved that the money go for the creation of a special Parent/Toddler Area in the children's section of the Fremont Main Library on Stevenson Boulevard. This area will be called the Kimbookai Corner. It will feature a magical place for youngsters from newborns to five-year-olds in an updated, entertaining setting that will allow the youngsters to play and learn along with their parents. What is especially exciting about this donation for us is that it fits perfectly with the mission of Kimbookai of educating and entertaining young children and allowing their parents to learn from one another, thus enriching the quality of their family life.

We plan to present the donation to the library on Thursday, November 19 at 2:00 p.m. at the Fremont Main Library's Children's Area. We really encourage you to join us at this time to officially present the check to officials of the library. It is an auspicious moment in our history.

Finally, we would like to thank you for your support and many contributions through the years. You have warmed our hearts, allowed us to bring museum-like experiences to children in our Tri-City communities with great joy and love. And we are forever grateful.

Best Regards

Tri-City Stargazer NOVEMBER 25 - DECEMBER 1, 2015 BY VIVIAN CAROL

For All Signs: For the last three weeks I wrote about the critically important arrangement of Saturn and Neptune. This is a theme that lasts through 2016, so I will be referring to it often. Saturn rules hardcore reality, the rules and limits of our lives. Neptune rules the spiritual and the ethereal that which is illusive or having no boundaries. Saturn's practicality exposes the lie behind the curtain. Neptune represents that which we believe is perfect and whole, yet our belief may not be exactly true. It gives us dreams and hopes for something better in the future. The message of these planets in combination is that of the Wizard of Oz. We must cultivate hope and optimism, lest we fall into despair and cease to try. Yet our dreams need to be based upon something realistically possible or we might never accomplish anything. Any structure or institution that has been riddled with debt and deceit will meet its end before 2017.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): You are thinking fast and the wheels are rolling forward in your life. Others like your ideas and want to help you manifest them. This is a good time to study any material because your thoughts are flowing. You and your partner(s) can work together to create harmonious solutions to one or more nagging problems.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Circumstances at work or in your daily life are far from easy at this time. Co-workers or employees are unable to help due to their own problems, so you are the one who shoulders the load. Rest as much as you can and take your vitamins. This kind of situation can interfere with your personal health.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): The full moon on the 25th brings illumination on your closest relationships. Somehow you can see the shadow side of these beings. And this bright light may bring a fuller awareness about your relationship. Depending upon the past, this may be considered good or bad.

You will now operate with eyes more open.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You are asking spiritual questions that for the moment offer no good answers. Table those concerns for now and focus your energy on some kind of project, such as preparation of a Thanksgiving dinner. Keeping your hands busy and helping others will help you get beyond rough spots in this spiritual dilemma.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This is not the time to display your work or your goals. You may not be feeling your best and that makes it hard to present things in the finest possible light. You need some extra rest during this period. Beware the temptation to step into a grand savior role now. People will not be impressed by the effort.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): You have been concerned with the welfare of family members, particularly those who are older than you are. Your significant other may be evaporating from the scene. Perhaps the reality is more than he/she can absorb, or he doesn't know how to support you in this time of need. Ask what the problem is. Don't assume she doesn't want to help until you are told.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Your mind has been truly busy in recent weeks. If you have not yet resolved an issue, set it aside while you take a break. Even a short time away can help your mental nerve endings synapse more easily. Clear the cobwebs from old, non-working solutions so that a fresh perspective can emerge.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): An opportunity for a job crosses your path. It would be favorable for you to inquire about it. Watch your attitude for signs of self-importance, which will not be well accepted. An earthy humility along with believable assurance that you can accomplish the work may do wonders for your chances.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): This is a week of intense feelings, whether up or down. For many, prevention of depressed feelings can be handled by gently bringing ourselves back from a super-high. When we allow the highs, it is inevitable that a fall must happen. None of us can remain up, so a down must balance it. Concentrate on an even keel.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You are in a somber frame of mind this week. Decisions in front of you have long-term consequences, so you do not want to make mistakes. Yet the present path does not seem at all clear. Don't thrash yourself because you do not have the decision finalized already. Be still and leave it with your unconscious to sort out the solution.

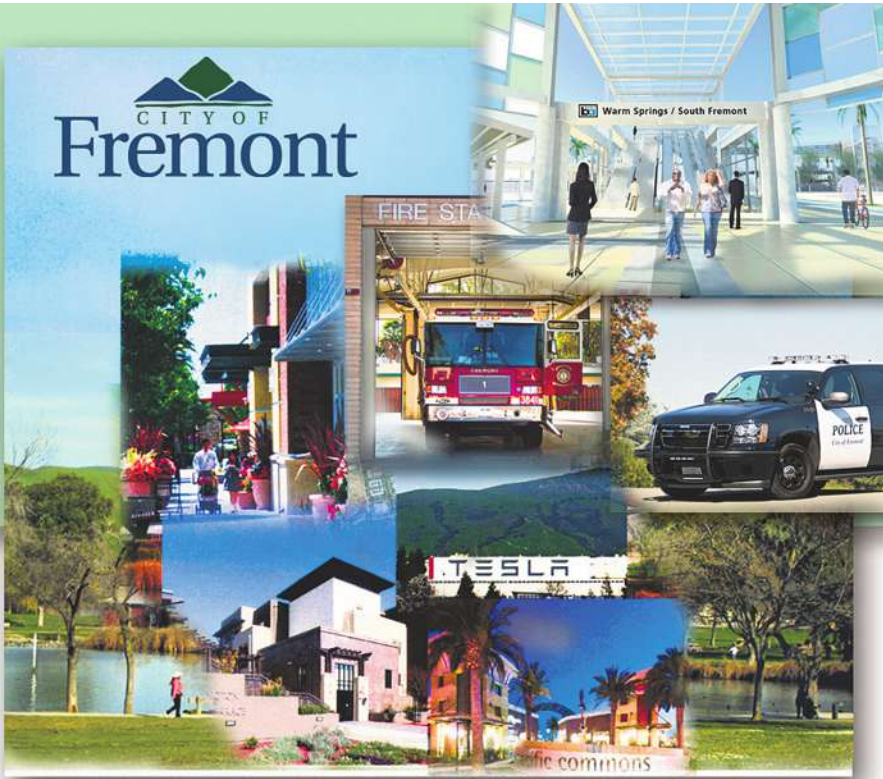

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): This season you may have discovered that somehow your material security has slipped a notch or two without your notice. This will pressure you to pay more attention to your financial matters in order to prevent further erosion. The water bearers are very intelligent but not necessarily practical.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Developments in your career or life direction may cause you to feel ineffective during this season. Don't allow this one experience to alter your sense of self. That creates paralysis. You are an intuitive person who can repackage what you have learned about the psyche so the world will see you from fresh eyes.

Private Video Surveillance Camera Registration

Do you currently utilize private video surveillance at your home or business? If you do, the Fremont Police Department would like to hear from you.

Video surveillance is one of the best methods for apprehending criminals and convicting suspects who are caught in the act of committing a crime. Installing private video surveillance is a great example of community-police partnerships and is something the City highly values as the Fremont Police Department serves a very large community.

If you would like to let the Fremont Police Department know that you have video surveillance and allow police officers to contact you should a crime occur in or near where your cameras are installed, please register your camera online. Registration is voluntary.

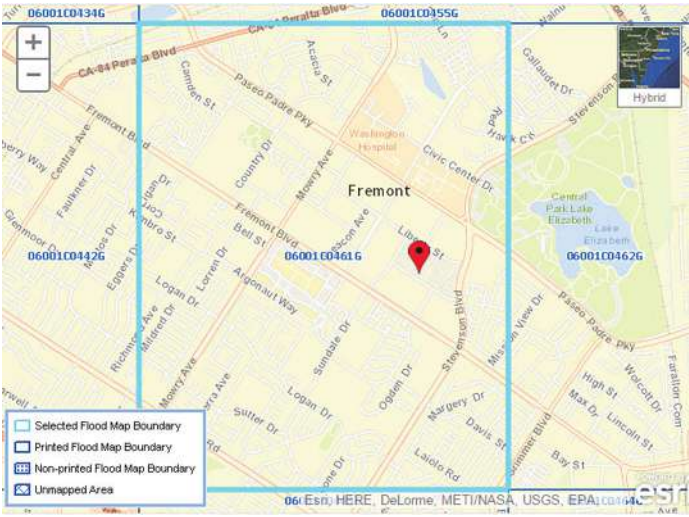

For more information please visit www.FremontPolice.org/CameraRegistration.

FEMA's Flood Map Service Center

The City of Fremont has been a member of the National Flood Insurance Program since 1983 and has adopted a floodplain management ordinance to reduce flood risks for properties within Special Flood Hazard Areas. To help communities, FEMA offers user-friendly tools that support the needs of the public in viewing, analyzing, and printing flood hazard maps in an online website called FEMA's Flood Map Service Center at www.msc.fema.gov. The Flood Map Service Center provides the ability to download maps and Letters of Map Change. It also provides a link to view flood hazard information as Geographic Information Systems data through a free interactive mapping application called the FEMA GeoPlatform. As the official public source for flood hazard information, the Flood Map Service Center is a great resource for novice and advance users alike.

For those who cannot access the online system, the City of Fremont Development Services Center located at 39550 Liberty St., will continue to maintain copies of Letters of Map Change and Elevation Certificates.

For more information visit www.Fremont.gov/FloodInfo.

Join the Sabercat Creek Restoration Project

The City of Fremont was awarded $1.2 million in Proposition 50 grant funds in 2008 from the Resource Agency California River Parkway Program for creek restoration and additional improvements to Sabercat Creek and its surrounding area. This includes five restoration sites that have an ongoing need for volunteers.

Join the City of Fremont's Environmental Services on the first Saturday of every month from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. (Please note in January 2016 the work party is scheduled on the second Saturday, which is January 9, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.) Help plant native trees and shrubs, remove non-native vegetation and weeds, restore plant basins and mulch mats, and learn the importance of plants for our environment.

Please visit www.Fremont.gov/SignupHabitatRestoration to sign up. No special training is required.

What Independent Retail and Restaurants Would You Like To See in Downtown Fremont?

Downtown Fremont's first mixed use development, the State Street Project, will be breaking ground in 2016. It will include 157 multi-family residential units and approximately 21,000 square feet of ground floor retail and restaurant space directly along Capitol Avenue.

Plans are underway to identify independent retailers and restaurants that would be a good fit with the community. We want to hear from you! What independent retail and restaurants would you like to see in Downtown Fremont? Using Fremont Open City Hall, the City's online forum for civic engagement, the City is asking its residents what independent retail and restaurants they would like to see in the State Street Project.

The feedback on Fremont Open City Hall will be shared with a brokerage team directly working with TMG Partners and Sares Regis, the project development team. An interest list for potential restaurants and retail uses for these spaces is being formed. The goal is to ultimately create a unique and vibrant Downtown experience.

Etegami for the Holidays

SUBMITTED BY HELENE ROYLANCE

Fremont Art Association is delighted to have Ema Kubo return for a workshop on Saturday, December 12. Kubo will introduce students to the beautiful, personal art of Etegami (Japanese folk art that combines simple hand-painted images with words). Workshops cost $40 per class and all materials are provided.

Kubo has spent the last five years working with Japanese inks and pigments. After studying Japanese folk art history, she began to focus on a contemporary form called etegami, or "picture-letter." Etegami has spread in popularity in Japan due to its accessibility for anyone with or without art training, and its practical use of making a personalized note. Etegami reflects many facets of Japanese culture, including hundreds of years of letter-making history, an affinity for seasons, and the wabi-sabi aesthetic of finding beauty in imperfections.

Kubo will lead students through the steps of picking a subject, starting with an ink outline, and filling it in with color, creating a message that celebrates a cherished memory. Each attendee to the workshop will get to experience the step by step process and create his/her own customized Etegami! Students can then create their own custom holiday messages for friends and family.

To participate in this workshop, contact the Fremont Art Association to sign up and reserve your spot. All paints, inks, brushes, and paper are provided, although attendees are welcome to bring their own watercolors and watercolor brushes if they prefer to use their own. Attendees will be making their own "painted letter" on watercolor postcard paper that can then be mailed. If you would like to see more of Kubo's work, you can visit her website at <http://emakubo.com>.

A First Thanksgiving

Fremont Adult School was the site of a first Thanksgiving meal for an English Second Language (ESL) class of adults who gather to perfect their language skills while having a good time. As part of their introduction to the wide variety of cultures and customs in the Greater Tri-City area, the group, under the guidance of teachers and aides, organized, shopped and prepared a Thanksgiving dinner at the school on November 18th. For many classmates from all parts of the globe – China, Taiwan, India, Cameroon, Mexico, Russia, Korea, Burma, etc - this was their first Thanksgiving dinner. All joined in eggnog toasts for happiness, peace and good fortune and then distributed plates of turkey, stuffing, cranberry sauce and traditional fixings.

Moreau Catholic rallies for a dramatic win

Football

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

In postseason play on November 21st, the Moreau Catholic Mariners found themselves behind at half 34-28 after the Saint Mary Panthers scored 28 points in the second quarter to take the lead. But the Mariners were undeterred and moved on to dominate the second half, spearheaded by Julien Ison with help from his front four. He put together an incredible night as he ran for 396 yards on 30 carries, and four touchdowns.

Mariner defensive linemen just seemed to be in the right place in the fourth quarter as they completely shut down the Panthers offense denying any points and only 130 yards.

Mariner Alex Johnson made the defensive play of the night in the fourth quarter with a 99-yard interception return. Hadari Daren led the receiving corps with four catches for 60 yards.

Final Score: Moreau Catholic Mariners 70, St. Mary Panthers 35

Running for IndoRelief

Quarry Turkey 2015

By ROBBIE FINLEY

East Bay nonprofit IndoRelief hopes to turn some turkey trotting fun at Fremont's upcoming "Quarry Turkey" race into support for underprivileged people in Northern India. The relatively new organization, formed by East Bay native Sant Kumar, is seeking to raise $5,000 through its involvement in the event, which is entering its fifth year and will feature a number of different races and fun activities on Saturday, November 28.

Kumar traveled to Faridabad, India, in 2013 as part of a medical outreach mission. "I worked really closely with a few doctors in the slums. I was really taken aback by the medical issues (that have) simple solutions," he said. Kumar noticed that a number of medical problems plaguing the local people could be helped by providing nutrition and common vitamins to improve health. He immediately began formulating a way that he could help. "Coming from the Bay Area, with all its resources, I thought I could help people," he said.

Initially, Kumar simply wanted to raise some funds. He started a campaign page online, which he shared with friends and family, with the intent to gather donations to sponsor a medical procedure for one patient in India. Almost immediately his campaign was a success, eventually garnering double its goal in donations. The campaign was able to fund the medical procedure for the patient, and its success motivated Kumar to roll over the remainder of the donations to help other patients in need.

He made the transition into the nonprofit world after seeking out and making connections with people who have been successful in starting up other local nonprofits. IndoRelief was born in January 2014, and has brought in donations from all over the world. "When I first started, my goal was to help 10 people in one year," Kumar said. In almost two years, IndoRelief has been able to help more than 500 people in Northern India, a remarkable feat.

"With IndoRelief, the big thing in the beginning was to find and sponsor care that the people want," Kumar said. The organization's goal was to meet the people they help on their terms, being cognizant of cultural sensitivities. "People really wanted prenatal vitamins for women," Kumar explained, adding, "We made sure to only have women providers for those who can't be seen by a male."

IndoRelief's crowning achievement so far has been the establishment of its New Beginnings Clinic. The clinic operates as an orphanage in the Faridabad area, currently providing a safe environment for seven children rescued from harrowing forced labor conditions. Led by a woman known as Amma Ji (an affectionate term for mother), the seven boys live in IndoRelief's clinic, where they are provided with food, shelter, healthcare, and an education.

Through the clinic, Kumar hopes that the boys will have a future that would not have been possible without IndoRelief. "Most importantly, they have a group of people always following up with them," he said. All indications point to great improvements already in the lives of the boys. "They really are like brothers," Kumar said. "One boy suffers from a bone disease. The other boys will carry him when they go to the park. It's really heartwarming to see them bond so quickly, I never actually thought we'd be able to get as far as we have."

IndoRelief hopes to continue growing its donor base by participating in local fundraising events like the Quarry Turkey run. They are seeking runners to help fundraise and run in the race at Fremont's Quarry Lakes. The festive event, organized by Brazen Racing, will feature half marathon, 10K, 5K, and "Little Turkey" (a race for kids under 10 of about 100 yards) races, with an appearance from the Quarry Turkey. "People can join the team, get sponsors and set up a campaign page online. One hundred percent goes to the New Beginnings Clinic," Kumar said.

For those who want to join IndoRelief's Quarry Turkey fundraising group, please visit www.indorelief.org for more information. Those who cannot participate can contact Kumar for more information on a number of other ways they can assist in IndoRelief's efforts. Registration fees are $54 for 5K, $61 for 10K, $77 for half marathon, and $45 for remote running. Online or mail-in registration is available. If not sold out on race day, registration will be available at the event. For more information on the Quarry Turkey, visit <http://brazenracing.com/quarryturkey.html>.

Cal State University East Bay (CSUEB) senior Tori Breshers has been selected as the first California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Women's Basketball Player of the Week for the 2015-16 season.

Breshers led the Pioneers to a 2-0 record in the season's opening weekend with victories at home over Western Oregon and Dominican. She was the leading scorer in both games, averaging 18.5 points, 8.0 rebounds, 3.0 steals and 1.0 block for East Bay. This is the first career CCAA Player of the Week award for the four-year senior.

SUBMITTED BY STEVE CONNOLLY

Cal State University East Bay senior Angie Maina has been selected to the 2015 All-California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Volleyball Second Team, as announced November 18 at the conference's annual postseason banquet.

It's the first career All-CCAA honor for Maina, a four-year senior from Fontana. She was one of three liberos (defensive players) named to the First or Second Team, joining Sonoma State's Kaitlyn Connolly and Cal Poly Pomona's Zoe Herrera. The awards are voted on by the CCAA's 13 head coaches.

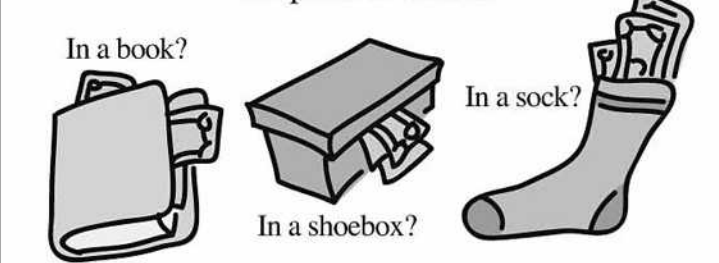

This season, Maina became just the fourth Pioneer ever to reach 1,000 career digs. She will graduate with a total of 1,090, which ranks fourth in school history.

It pays to save!

It's important to save at least some of your money instead of spending it all. But where's the best place to save it?

If you save your money in a savings account, the bank or credit union pays you for letting them hold your money. That payment is called interest. Over time, interest adds up and your money starts to grow!

Penny's Savings

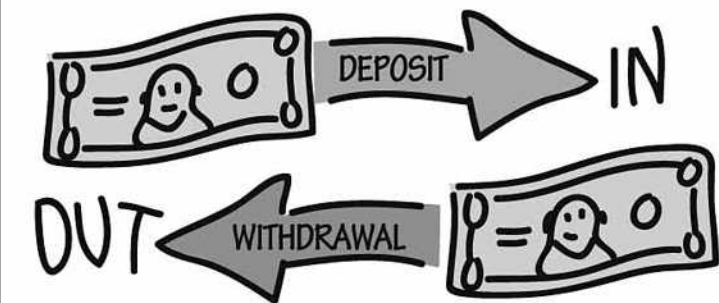

Penny McThrifty has been saving her money for a couple of years. Between birthday gifts and earning money on her own, she's doing pretty good. She's made a lot of deposits, and some withdrawals. The money that is in her account is called a balance.

Mysterious, magnificent Monarchs

BY LINDA-ROBIN CRAIG

In 1997, during a three-week period around Thanksgiving, volunteers coordinated by the Xerces Society began to count the monarchs throughout California at their overwintering sites; they’ve continued every year since. The monarch population at Ardenwood Farm had dropped from a high of 25,000 at the first count to an average of a few hundred in 2010. In recent years, aggressive efforts made throughout California have resulted in a small rebound to numbers in the 1,000 to 2,000 range. Homes in the area have become “migration way-stations” for monarchs by simply planting some milkweed in the yard.

“Occasionally, the monarchs will disappear from a roosting site earlier than expected; especially if there is a cold snap in December,” says Ardenwood Naturalist Christina Garcia. “Because of this possibility, I urge visitors to come early to view the butterflies.”

What’s so mysterious about monarchs? Many animal species migrate on land, in the air, and in the water. Some, like salmon, even leave their fresh-water spawning place and adapt to life in the salty sea, only to return once again to the fresh-water stream where they were born. Their migrations, while arduous, begin and end in one lifetime, one generation. Not so with monarchs. Visitors to Ardenwood can gaze upon magnificent monarchs that have completed migrations begun by their great, great, great grandparents.

Monarch butterflies (Danaus plexippus), native to North America, are beautiful insects with striking orange, black, and white coloring. Without careful monitoring and environmental protection this spectacular beauty could fall prey to what has been called the “extinction of a biological phenomenon,” due to direct conflict with humans over habitat. It is the mysterious overwintering relay of migrating monarchs that fuels the butterfly versus human conflict – we build and develop land in the areas where monarchs roost in the winter.

The multi-generational relay race begins with a spring migration and ends with overwintering clusters involving as many as five generations of butterflies. Luckily, retired East Bay Regional Park District naturalist Jan Southworth has shared information about this mysterious migration relay: “There is an original, winter roosting generation, spring and summer generations, and a fall generation all participating in the race.” First, male and female monarchs mate repeatedly along the spring route. Females will only lay eggs on milkweed plants, each one leaving 100 to 300 eggs behind as the first generation, both male and female, finish their leg of the relay and die at about six or seven months old. Their young, the spring and summer monarchs, unlike their overwintering parents, live only a few weeks. They continue the spring migration sipping nectar from flowers, mating, laying eggs on milkweed and dying, passing the baton to the next generation.

Spring and summer monarchs, the teen-agers, live fast, die young and leave a beautiful memory, breeding, multiplying and dispersing throughout their range. In August as days grow shorter and nights cooler, hormonal changes occur. The senior citizens are specialized monarchs that have no interest in mating and egg-laying. Instead, they drink nectar from summer blossoms and build body fat reserves. By month’s end, they begin the fall leg of the race. These are the longer-lived overwintering monarchs. Traveling in a southwesterly direction, swarms of monarchs race to the finish, reaching speeds up to 20 mph and covering up to 100 miles a day.

The overwintering coastal California butterflies are four or five generations removed from their ancestors who roosted at the same sites the previous year. Each fragile insect has traveled up to 2,000 miles or more to a site it has never seen before. This incredible behavior is unlearned and will eventually lead it to the ancestral overwintering site occupied by its great, great, great grandparents the previous winter.

Garcia noted that, “Monarchs have been known to roost at Ardenwood only for the last 20 years, or so. We began leading school tours of the monarch site in the early 1990s, and presenting public programs in 1997, which are well-attended. Many people come back yearly to view the monarchs.” Garcia added, “It’s an opportunity to bring a picnic (no food available on site) and enjoy a naturalist-led walk through the park, visit the greenhouse to see milkweed, look for monarch eggs, caterpillars and chrysalides, and then visit the special place where our monarchs gather on the eucalyptus trees.”

Walks are less than a mile long and suitable for all ages. Viewing is best on sunny days. It is possible the monarch site may be closed due to heavy rains and winds as these conditions can lead to falling limbs and trees.

It’s Turkey Time

BY NED MACKAY

Traditionally Thanksgiving is a time for family feasting and vicarious exercise (watching football games). But if you would like to burn off some accumulated calories, the East Bay Regional Park District stands ready to assist. Post-Thanksgiving activities, some strenuous and some not, are planned at several regional parks.

For instance, Naturalist Francis Mendoza will lead an “America’s got talons” hike from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Nov. 28 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont. The idea is to look for all kinds of taloned birds, including raptors, owls and vultures. The activity is designed for ages 15 and older. Bring water, sunscreen and binoculars or scopes. All levels of bird expertise are welcome.

And Francis plans a “turkeys and turkey vultures” hike from 2 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 28 at Coyote Hills. Francis will talk about the differences between the two birds, then lead a short hike to look for them in the park. I already know one difference. You wouldn’t want to see turkey vulture on your Thanksgiving dinner table.

Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. Francis’ 2 p.m. program is for ages six and older. Meet at the visitor center. For information, call 510-544-3220.

Up the road at Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda, “Things that Fly” is the theme of Family Nature Fun Hour from 2 to 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 28 and 29. The program’s not specifically about turkeys, but they are among the things that can fly – up to 55 miles per hour for short distances.

Crab Cove Visitor Center is at 1252 McKay Ave. off Central Avenue.

“Burn the turkey” is the theme of a 21/2-mile walk from 10 a.m. to noon on Friday, Nov. 27 at Redwood Regional Park in Oakland. The group will traverse the park’s redwood forested slopes along the West Ridge, Tres Sendas and Stream trails. Meet the naturalist at the park’s Skyline Gate staging area, which is on Skyline Boulevard a short distance south of Pinehurst Road in Oakland. Rain cancels. For more information on the Crab Cove program or Redwood Park hike, call 510-544-3187.

At Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley, naturalist “Trail Gail” Broesder will lead a Vollmer Peak hike from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 28. The peak is named for August Vollmer, whose history Trail Gail will discuss during the hike. It’s an eight-miler, so bring water and snacks and be prepared for a workout. Meet Gail at Tilden’s Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Central Park Drive. Or you can get your feet wet during a puddle plunge from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the center on Sunday, Nov. 29. Bring your boots to explore some seasonal pools in the Nature Area.

For information on Gail’s hike or the puddle plunge, call 510-544-2233.

There’s a calorie burning “After Turkey Hike” scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon on Sunday, Nov. 29 at Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch, led by naturalist Eddie Willis. It’s a rugged, hilly 4-to-5-mile hike for ages eight and older. Be prepared for mud, though Eddie will try to avoid it. Meet at Black Diamond Mines’ uppermost parking lot at the end of Somersville Road, 31/2 miles south of Highway 4 in Antioch. For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 2750.

From feathers to fur — Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley has scheduled a “Mammals of the Marsh” program from 2 to 3 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 29, highlighting river otters, minks, beavers and other aquatic mammals that live in the Delta.

Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Main Street in Oakley. For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 3050.

These programs are all free. But if you decide to go out on your own for a post-Thanksgiving hike or ride in the regional parks or other open space, here are some suggestions:

- Especially if you’re alone, inform a responsible person where you are going and when you expect to return. Then check in when you get back.
 - Take along enough clothing to be prepared for changeable weather. This time of year, a sunny day can turn suddenly cold.
 - Water and a snack are good to have, too.
 - Pick up a map. There are information panels with free brochures at almost every regional park trailhead.
 - If it’s been raining, take a change of footwear and a cardboard box in which to store your muddy boots.
- And however you spend your Thanksgiving, here’s wishing you a happy one.*

Bringing the Fremont Vision to Life

BY FRED DIAZ,
CITY MANAGER

As you travel throughout Fremont to get to work or school, go shopping, dine out, or take in one of our beautiful parks, you have probably noticed some changes happening in our city. In particular, new development is planned and, in some cases, is currently underway in several key areas.

What you’re seeing throughout our city actually reflects the community’s vision as adopted in the General Plan to meet the need of our current and future population. The concentration of new development in certain strategic areas means that most existing neighborhoods won’t see significant changes. It is true, however, that as the city grows, impacts will occur. Some impacts are beneficial and even support specific uses the community has repeatedly asked for, including a growing variety of restaurants, shops, and services.

The City is changing, maturing, and becoming a more dynamic place, and this is being recognized not only regionally, but globally as well. Fremont continues to prove itself as a hub of innovation in the areas of advanced manufacturing and clean and green technology, among many other employment sectors. The City has outstanding schools and healthcare facilities, low crime rates, an excellent fire protection infrastructure, robust human services, as well as superb park and recreation amenities.

During the update of the General Plan and in subsequent community surveys, the City heard loud and clear that Fremont residents want a downtown and more opportunities for employment. The City’s major initiatives within the Downtown/City Center and Warm Springs Innovation District address these requests. Activity in both Centerville and Irvington has also been in the forefront, with several new projects on the horizon. I hope you enjoy learning about the City’s progress on these major initiatives, and we look forward to continued engagement.

Staff and Council discussed design, height and maintenance standards; however, property owners would not be required to put up fences under the proposed ordinance. Councilmember Francisco Zermeño moved the motion with the recommendation to require property owners to put up fences to vacant lots in downtown Hayward. However, after much discussion, some Councilmembers requested that Councilmember Zermeño withdraw his motion. Councilmember Zermeño then moved the staff recommendation with a review in six months from staff.

OPINION

WILLIAM MARSHAK

Developers and planners have fallen in love with linear parks. With the addition of the word “park,” an added dimension has been included for strips of green space, longer than wide to be consolidated into substantial acreage and given the moniker.

Does this mean they are all of practical use for the public? While the ideal image proposed of green walkways and edges around developments is enticing, use of the word parks is indicative of areas for recreation and leisure. In some cases, rail right-of-ways are transformed to become trails, use in an urban setting to promote some distance between developments and streets may actually be unusable for public activity. Use of linear space for connections rather than recreation belies the term “park.” The primary question is if used as a development tool, to what do these “parks” connect?

In some cases, linear parks create pedestrian and bicycle pathways that allow an urban to suburban interface; a safe, clean and inviting corridor to shopping, recreation and open spaces. However, it appears that this new category is also used to give an illusion of open space that leads nowhere except to a circle of confusion. Is it a park when, in consolidation, space used becomes acreage and equates to a rectangular or similar outline of room to play, picnic or relax?

Linear Parks, what are they?

In some parts of the country, unused rail corridors and disconnected trails can be effectively converted to walkways and bicycle paths, stimulating outdoor activity and creating green space in urban settings. However, they need to provide a practical and natural function rather than a useless amenity that simply fulfills a General Plan directive.

Planning a narrow strip of land that borders or intersects property development is not a park unless it has function. In the case of some property development, linear parks are simply a sham to designate part of the project as park land. These “parks” do not lead to anything practical for those purchasing, renting or living in the neighborhood. Emergence of linear parks as an amenity is, in many cases, a small price to pay by developers and planners who are focused on each proposal as a singular entity rather than part of the economic and environmental patchwork of a city.

Spurred on by a chorus of Silicon Valley businesses who view Fremont and its environs as a bedroom community suitable for housing for their gigantic enterprises, development is in danger of overriding common sense. The web of Silicon Valley mega-corporations even now sends hoards of unmarked buses to and from outlying cities to “campus” enclaves that provide a myriad of services for their employees. As these companies hungrily grasp for more roofs for their people, their tentacles eviscerate our cities. As an expanding business environment within our own boundaries, listening to the siren song of money is antithetical to our local growth and economy. Developments should be valued for what they will add to the Greater Tri-City area, not as simply a conduit for large companies in other areas that transport and retain their workers on distant campuses.

It pays to be careful of what is given away; real estate agents are fond of the often misused phrase attributed to Mark Twain, “Buy land, they’re not making it anymore.” However, our leaders need to pay attention to what is given away as they bend rules and rename land use categories to accommodate developers and Silicon Valley promoters.

USDA food safety resources for Thanksgiving troubles

SUBMITTED BY KRISTINA BEAUGH

Thanksgiving is the largest meal many cooks prepare every year. Its centerpiece—the turkey—is the largest dish most cooks ever encounter, and many are not experienced at roasting one. USDA wants consumers to know that a range of resources, from smartphone apps to its 30-year Meat and Poultry Hotline, exist to help consumers through any food preparation conundrums this holiday season, wherever and whenever they may arise.

“Unsafe handling and undercooking of your turkey can lead to serious foodborne illness,” said Al Almanza, USDA Deputy Under Secretary for Food Safety. “USDA’s Food Safety and Inspection Service has a variety of food safety resources to help with any questions related to preparing Thanksgiving dinner, including our Meat and Poultry Hotline that will be staffed with helpful experts on Thanksgiving Day.”

This Thanksgiving more than 46 million turkeys will be eaten. Cooking the Thanksgiving turkey can be tricky, and trying to figure out when the turkey is done is often the hardest task. But, it doesn’t have to be! Impress your family by using a food thermometer to cook like a professional.

Place the thermometer in the innermost part of the thigh, the innermost part of the wing, and the thickest part of the breast.

Read the temperature to make sure that the bird has reached a minimum internal temperature of 165 degrees F.

Take the turkey out of the oven, and serve it to your family without worry!

For big Thanksgiving dinners, planning ahead is very important. You can assess your pantry, refrigerator, and freezer to plan out your meals and your shopping list. When you are trying to figure out if you can use something you already have at home, keep the FoodKeeper application handy.

The FoodKeeper is a mobile application created by FSIS in partnership with The Food Marketing Institute and Cornell University. The FoodKeeper offers storage advice on more than 400 different food and beverage items and can help you decide what you can keep and what you should throw out. It also offers handy guidance on leftovers, which you’ll probably have a lot of after the big meal. Download the FoodKeeper on your Android or iOS device.

If you have questions about your Thanksgiving dinner, you can call the USDA Meat & Poultry Hotline at 1-888-MPHotline (1-888-674-6854) to talk to a food safety expert.

Obituary

Nicholas John Silvestri

Resident of Fremont, California

Jan. 3, 1924 – Nov. 16, 2015

Nick Silvestri was born in Morgan, PA, a small mining town near Pittsburgh. An only child, he spent many hours with his cousins, Walt, Eddie, and Al Flory. He grew up during the Great Depression, but he never felt deprived, although he remained frugal his entire life. He felt that life was more carefree then, learning to swim in sulphur-polluted creeks and water-filled strip-mining pits with his cousins without thought of health concerns, picking berries in the fields for his mom to make jam, enjoying a full day’s worth of entertainment at the movies for 25¢, tending bar as a teenager in his parents’ bar and speakeasy.

Nick had just begun college when he was drafted into the Army Air Forces in 1942 at the age of 19. After his honorable discharge in 1946, he returned to Indiana Teachers College (now I.U.P.) in Indiana, PA, for his BA, then onto the University of Pittsburgh for his MA, and San Jose State University for his Administrator’s Degree.

Nick married Ann Maynard in 1951 and moved with Ann and their two girls, Connie and Jackie, to California in 1956. After some odd-jobs, he taught in Fremont for 26 years, first at Mission San Jose Elementary School (1958-1961) and then at Walters Jr. High School (1961-1984). When he retired in 1984, he felt so proud because it was the first retirement party that every single member of the Walters faculty and staff attended.

Nick was also one of three men who organized youth soccer in Fremont, starting with three teams; there are now hundreds of Fremont soccer teams. Nick also coached soccer for many years and worked with the San Jose Earthquakes.

Nick loved to travel: frequent trips with the family into Mexico and Canada, many summer camping trips in the Sierras or around the United States, and two lengthy summer trips camping throughout Europe with Ann.

The joy of life for Nick and Ann was having grandchildren, whom they loved and often cared for as their own. Nick was also blessed to see the birth of a great-granddaughter, now two years old.

Predeceased by Ann in 2010, Nick leaves behind his daughters Constance Silvestri (Lisa Williams) and Jacquelyn Silvestri Capurro (Joseph); three grandsons Patrick (Joey Yokubaitus), Thomas (Melissa), and Matthew; and great-granddaughter Claire.

No services; in lieu of flowers, please donate to UNICEF or your local Youth Soccer Organization.

Fremont Police Log

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

Friday, November 13

At 9:01 a.m., Ofc. Higgins and Field Training Officer (FTO) Settle investigated a strong-arm robbery that occurred near the area of Fremont Boulevard and Country Drive. The female victim was out for a walk at about 8:50 a.m., when an unknown suspect snatched a gold chain from her neck. The suspect was described as a white male adult, 25-30 years old, 5'10", 190 lbs., and wearing a black hoodie. He was last seen in a full size white car.

Monday, November 16

At approximately 5:00 a.m., Ofc. Collins was detailed to 7-Eleven, located on the 100 block of Washington Boulevard to investigate a robbery. Two male suspects entered the store and confronted the store clerk. Suspect 1 pointed a handgun at the victim and demanded money. The two suspects took cash from the drawer and fled on foot. The suspects are described as follows:

Suspect 1: white male adult, approximately 20 years old, approximately 5'6", wearing a red/white plaid jacket, jeans and was armed with a handgun Suspect 2: white male adult in his 20s, approximately 5'6", wearing a grey hooded sweatshirt and jeans.

Tuesday, November 17

At 3:52 p.m. patrol officers responded to investigate a robbery on the 3900 block of Southampton Terrace. A female victim was walking through a parking lot with her two juvenile children when a male suspect pulled her gold chain from her neck. The male suspect fled the area on foot toward Milton Park and was not located by responding officers. The suspect was described as a white male adult, 5'6" - 5'8", early 20s, medium build, wearing a black jacket with a hood over his head. Case was investigated by Ofc. Sun and FTO Ferrara.

At 7:53 p.m., officers responded to a robbery report on the 44000 block of Osgood Road. The reporting party told dispatchers that a male suspect consumed alcohol and ate food he did not pay for inside of a retail store. After finishing his meal, the male suspect put on shoes that he did not pay for and ran out through the fire exit. Loss prevention staff confronted the suspect, who brandished a pocketknife and continued to flee. The suspect was spotted at a nearby business by responding officers and failed to obey commands to stop running. A K9 was deployed to assist with the apprehension of the fleeing suspect, and he was taken into custody. Officers located a 4" pocketknife, razor blades and a brand new smart phone on his person. The 33-year-old adult male, Fremont resident, was arrested for robbery and resisting arrest. Case was investigated by Ofc. K. Samayoa.

At 9:24 p.m., officers responded to the 1200 block of Oasis Court to investigate a residential burglary that occurred during the day. The unknown suspect(s) entered the residence by shattering the rear sliding glass door. The residence was ransacked.

At 10:15 p.m., multiple Fremont officers were dispatched to the 44000 block of Cougar Circle on the report of a home invasion robbery. Three suspects, all armed with pistols, approached a male resident as he pulled into the garage of his residence. The male was then ordered into the house at gunpoint. The suspects entered the home where they encountered additional family members. The victims were all ordered to the ground and held at gunpoint while the suspects ransacked the residence for approximately 30 minutes. The suspects took several items of value from the family and fled the scene. The scene was processed by a crime scene investigator, and a neighborhood canvass was conducted looking for witnesses and evidence. The suspects were described as three black male adults, all of whom were wearing gloves, hooded sweatshirts, beanies and ski masks to conceal their identity. The victims were not injured. Fremont detectives have taken over the investigation, which remains ongoing.

Wednesday, November 18

At approximately 6:15 p.m., officers responded to vandalism call on Wall Co. The victim told officers that a verbal altercation had occurred in the neighborhood and his window had been broken. The suspects were gone before police could arrive. A short time later at 7:45 p.m., patrol officers again responded to the area on the report of a suspicious vehicle that was driving in the area. At 8:25 p.m., several 911 calls came in regarding a large fight involving multiple males with baseball bats. Patrol units and detectives found three males injured in a parking lot. Several additional people are detained. The three injured males were all transported to regional trauma centers, and all other involved parties were interviewed at the police station. Two of the injured males were treated and released. One male remains hospitalized with major injuries. The Southern Alameda County Major Crimes Task Force is investigating. No arrests have been made and the investigation is ongoing.

Thursday, November 19

Between 3:45 p.m. on 11/18 - 6:45 a.m. on 11/19, unknown suspect(s) entered and removed items from a construction site on the 1500 block of Mento Tr. without permission. CSO Oliveira investigated.

At 12:16 p.m., Officer Chinn arrested a 47 year old adult male for petty theft from a retail store located on the 43500 block of Boscell Rd.

At 6:22 p.m. Officers were dispatched to a residential alarm in the 34000 block of Eucalyptus Terrace. Officers find the rear window shattered, but the glass was still in place. The suspects were likely scared off by the alarm.

Not long after the above case, a resident arrives in the 34000 block of Webfoot Loop (very close to Eucalyptus) and finds their home possibly burglarized. Officers respond at 7:40 p.m. and find the rear slider broken. The alarm was still armed and sounding. It's not believed that the suspects made entry. There is only one way in and out of Webfoot Loop and officers are following up to see if anyone has video or if there were any witnesses.

At 1:40 a.m., Officer L. Kennedy responded to an auto burglary in the area of Piper and Besco. The suspects were two Hispanic male adults in their 20's driving an older boxy SUV.

Park District plans Bay Trail extension

SUBMITTED BY CAROLYN JONES

The East Bay Regional Park District board on November 17 unanimously approved a $740,200 contract to a Richmond consulting firm for the design and planning of a Bay Trail segment along 2.5 miles of spectacular North Bay waterfront.

Nichols Consulting Engineers will design, oversee permits and support construction of a new stretch of the San Francisco Bay Trail from the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge to Pt. Molate Beach Park. The trail will connect the proposed Richmond-San Rafael Bridge bike path to Pt. Molate, and will ultimately be part of a continuous path from Pt. San Pablo to Eastshore State Park.

The path will be built along easements the Park District acquired from Chevron and along the City of Richmond's Point Molate Depot property. About half the segment will be overseen by the Park District and the other half will be managed by the City of Richmond. The Nichols design plan will cover both portions.

Pt. Molate has a storied history and is among the most beautiful stretches of the Bay waterfront, with views of Mt. Tamalpais, the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and San Pablo Bay. It's been the site of a whaling station, a Navy fuel depot and a winery so large it constituted a small town (Winehaven). More recently, it was the site of a proposed casino resort.

The Park District estimates that the construction cost for the 2.5 miles of Bay Trail will be $5 million, to be paid by the Park District and City. The estimated completion date is 2017.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Harassment incident

I am a young Muslim American woman. I wear a hijab. I come from a very well educated family and was raised with great values. I grew up in the Seattle area and have been in the Bay Area for the past six months. I want to share my first experience of blatant discrimination and harassment since my arrival to the United States more than 20 years ago. The unfortunate truth is, this mistreatment is likely a backlash at the Muslim community as a result of terrorist attacks in Paris on Nov, 13, 2015.

On the afternoon of November, 18, 2015 I decided to take my husband and two daughters shopping. We headed to a discount store in Hayward. While at the shop, my 4-year-old daughter opened a toy box. The store manager came over to us and became hostile. She demanded an explanation of why I allowed my daughter to open the box. She then accused us of attempted theft and mumbled “you thief, you thief” multiple times while I was standing with my family, shocked and horrified. She threatened us and demanded that we buy the item.

We apologized for our daughter and made it clear that we had no intention of buying the item. The manager’s aggressive attitude continued to escalate; she appeared outraged, clenching her fists, continuing to mumble, calling us a thief. When we were leaving, she uttered her final words, saying “you are not welcome back in this store”, and told the security guard to remember our faces. We had absolutely no intention of stealing, and left in shock. Never in my 20 years of living in America have I encountered such harassment, and abuse from a sales associate at a retail store. I felt humiliated, disrespected, traumatized and heartbroken.

As a Muslim American woman, I want to share my story with the world and shed light on how much hate I encountered in this incident. And, by sharing my story, I hope to create more awareness of such behavior and promote tolerance of each other and our differences. Only then can we hope for a better world for ourselves and our kids.

Thursday, November 12
At 9:07 p.m., Ofc. Parks investigated an auto burglary that occurred in the Burlington Coat Factory parking lot at NewPark Mall.

Friday, November 13
At 7:10 a.m., Ofc. Fredstrom conducted a traffic stop and contacted a 36-year-old male of Redwood City who was unlicensed and found to be a wanted felon from the U.S. Marshal’s Office for a drug trafficking case. During processing at the Newark Police Department police station, the male was found to be concealing approximately 130 grams of marijuana on his person. He was booked at Fremont Jail.

At 1:22 a.m., officers were dispatched to a vehicle collision near the intersection of Jarvis Avenue and Lake Boulevard. A Ford Mustang traveling too fast on Jarvis Avenue was unable to negotiate the right turn onto Lake Boulevard. In doing so, the Mustang hit the center median and rolled over several times. The Mustang’s driver was treated at the scene and refused to go to the hospital. The collision was investigated by Ofc. Rodgers.

Saturday, November 14
While conducting a security check at O’Sullivan’s Bar, officers observed a fight in front of the bar entrance and requested emergency assistance from other officers. Three subjects were eventually detained for fighting with security. A 23-year-old male of Hayward, a 30-year-old male of Livermore, and a 29-year-old male of Newark were all arrested for battery, fighting in public and being drunk in public.

At 3:34 a.m., officers were dispatched to investigate a possible burglary at NewPark Mall. Security called to report that unknown suspects forced entry through an exterior mall entrance door. A subsequent search of the interior revealed that the suspects burglarized Sam’s Jewelers, located inside the mall. A review of video footage showed that around 3:15 a.m., two subjects dressed in black used a hammer to break the glass to the mall entry doors. Once inside they ran to Sam’s Jewelers where they used the hammer to break a window, enter the store, force entry into the display cabinets, take property, and then flee.

Monday, November 16
At 12:48 p.m., Ofc. Musantry and Ofc. Mapes responded to a residence on Anjou Place and arrested a 56-year-old male for violation of a domestic violence restraining order. He was booked at Santa Rita Jail.

On November 14, 2015, at 6:42 p.m., a vehicle burglary was reported at the Great Mall of the Bay Area. At 7:15 p.m., Great Mall Security advised the Milpitas Police Department of a suspicious person looking into vehicles at the Great Mall. Officers located Manu Majo Pomele, who matched the description Great Mall Security had provided. Pomele was in possession of a device used for breaking vehicle windows and pieces of broken glass were found on his person. While officers were speaking with Pomele, a second vehicle burglary was reported. Pomele allowed officers to search his vehicle and they located property taken from both burglaries. Pomele was placed under arrest without incident.

SUBMITTED BY TERESA MEYER

Mayor Pauline Russo Cutter and the San Leandro City Council announced that the City's Information Technology Division has been honored with a national award from the Center for Digital Government through its 2015 Digital Cities Survey. The Pre-College Bridge Program is currently recruiting for its next group of adult students to begin Math and English classes starting January 4 – May 24, 2016, at the Fremont Adult School. Classes will be Monday – Thursday: 9 a.m. – 12 p.m. There are no fees to students, including tuition, materials and support services. The application deadline is Wednesday, December 9, 2015.

This program is for individuals of all ages who:

Have chosen to work after HS and now want to go college,

Want a professional certificate or degree to advance their careers,

Need to strengthen essential math and English skills.

The program of accelerated math and English classes provides a strong academic foundation for individuals who want to pursue a community college degree or certificate but feel their math and English skills are rusty. Students gain confidence to pass the Ohlone College placement test at higher levels, and not be required to take remedial level classes upon college entrance.

Bridge also exposes students to the many STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Math) certificates and degrees at Ohlone that lead to high-wage, high-growth employment in the region. A Student Support Specialist will sit in on classes, meet individually with students, provide study skill workshops to help students transition to Ohlone College in Fall 2016.

This program is supported by the Growth Sector Organization, Fremont Adult School, Ohlone College, and the Fremont Resource Center/Spark Point program.

The Sisters are ready for Olive Harvest

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY
TERESA SCHMIDT

Come join the fun and festivities at Dominican Sisters of Mission San Jose's annual "Olive Harvest" on Saturday, November 28. Help the Sisters harvest from their olive grove, which has about 180 olive-producing trees. About 75 to 100 men, women, and children help with our harvesting each year. Attendees will meet at the auditorium where S. Rose Marie Hennessy will give a brief historical and educational presentation followed by a blessing. The Men's Club of St. Joseph's Parish will provide barbeque for all the harvesters at noon.

When the Dominican Sisters arrived at Mission San Jose in 1891, they were welcomed by silvery olive trees. Planted on this sacred ground by Franciscan friars, the sisters began processing the olives for their rich oil in 1894. It was the sacramental oil used by the Catholic parishes throughout the Bay Area. Olive harvests, discontinued in 1965, were reinstated in 2000. The renewal of harvesting has engendered a spirit of gratitude for Earth's bounty. The extra-virgin olive oil produced by the Dominican Sisters' mission-era trees is sought by connoisseurs, shared with friends, and sold at the Sisters' annual Holiday Boutique. It is also used again to celebrate the sacraments in the Diocese of Oakland.

There is no fee to participate. Please wear your "grubbies" and warm clothes. Bring work gloves and a short ladder (if possible).
