HARD & soul

By DAVID R. NEWMAN

The Hayward Area Recreation and Park District (HARD) has been around a long time. Just ask the turtles at the Hayward Japanese Gardens, a serene oasis in the middle of the city. Or you could try asking the ducks and geese at San Lorenzo Community Park, a popular spot that sits near crucial wetlands. Or maybe you'd get a better response from the critters at the Sulphur Creek Nature Center, where over 1,000 animals are cared for every year.

Regardless of who or what you ask, a general theme will emerge, one of appreciation and gratitude

World premiere takes Ohlone stage

By JULIE GRABOWSKI

It's a question that has come up in numerous late night discussions and party games, considered with both humor and seriousness: what would you do if the world was ending? The award-winning Theatre and Dance Department at Ohlone College brings that question to the stage with the world premiere of "Spending the End of the World on OkCupid" opening November 4.

In a commissioned play written specifically for Ohlone, playwright Jeffrey Lo has created the tale of a modern day prophet who predicts the disappearance of half the population, warning those who remain that they'll be next once the clock strikes midnight. Many spend their last hours with friends and family, but others spend the end of the world on dating site OkCupid.

A San Jose native, Lo had seen a few of the plays at Evergreen Valley High School where he attended, but had limited experience with theatre before joining the drama class. In his senior year, the drama teacher had the advanced students write and direct a play for the other students to perform. While the assignment challenged his initial assumptions that it shouldn't be too hard, Lo says, "I did feel this incredible sense of energy and power while I was doing it."

Lo went to the University of California, Irvine to study journalism, but couldn't shake the theatre bug. He graduated with a double major in drama and literary journalism. While he didn't think he'd be working in theatre for a living, Lo has six plays on his resume and is currently a company member of San Francisco organizations Ferocious Lotus Theatre Company and Playground where he writes and directs, and is also the

Sunol Hootenanny celebrates East Bay's pioneer spirit

By VICTOR CARVELLAS

Ranching and the pioneer spirit are foundational to the East Bay's history. On Saturday, November 5, come out to Sunol Regional Wilderness and celebrate the region's cowboy culture, have fun learning old-time crafts, watch exciting demonstrations of ranch hand skills and lots more. Pony rides, a petting zoo, and good old-time music bring ranch living to life while stilt walkers and corn husk artists amaze the crowds.

Cattle came to California with the Spanish in the sixteenth century, and by the mid-1700s had become crucial to the economy of the 21 missions established up and down the coast. The cattle provided beef, of course, but equally important were the hides, sold, traded, or used onsite to make clothing and saddles. The rendered fat, or tallow, was turned into soap and candles, the latter being especially important before the days of electric lights.

Spanish grants provided the grazing land for the large ranchos of California, including those of the East Bay. We are used to thinking of cattle ranches surrounded by barbed wire, but on the ranchos of Alta California, cattle were allowed to roam free. Since they were branded, they could be identified, and once a year a "rodeo" was held where all Sports Medicine Education Series: Why Does Your Shoulder Hurt?

Free Seminar on Dec. 7 Answers Your Questions About Preventing, Diagnosing and Treating Shoulder Pain

Throughout 2016, Washington Sports Medicine has offered a free Sports Medicine & Rehabilitation Education Series, helping people in the community learn more about prevention and treatment of injuries incurred while exercising or participating in sports. The series has been offered on the first Wednesday of every other month, from 6:30 to 8 p.m., in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium in the Washington West Building at 2500 Mowry Ave. in Fremont.

The final program for the year on Wednesday, Dec. 7, will be “Why Does My Shoulder Hurt: Shoulder Pain in the Youth Athlete to the Weekend Warrior and Beyond,” featuring Medical Director of Washington Sports Medicine Russell Nord, MD. The free program should be of special interest to athletes, parents of students participating in school sports, coaches, athletic trainers, “weekend warriors” and other people who may suffer from shoulder pain.

At the upcoming program, Dr. Nord will discuss various causes of shoulder pain, focusing mostly on nontraumatic shoulder injuries and describing techniques that can help with injury prevention. There also will be time for a question-and-answer session at the end of the program.

“Shoulder pain is a common complaint among people of all ages, from young athletes to senior citizens,” says Dr. Nord. “There are different causes for shoulder pain at different ages, however. For example, in younger kids, one common injury is called ‘Little League Shoulder,’ which is most common in sports that involve throwing, such as baseball. Young pitchers are especially at risk, but Little League Shoulder can also affect fielders in baseball, as well as football quarterbacks and other athletes who perform repeated throwing motions.”

Dr. Nord notes that another condition called “shoulder instability” is common among athletes in their teens and up to early adulthood.

“Shoulder instability basically means the shoulder joint is too loose, and it can slide around too much in the socket,” he says. “The shoulder is not dislocated, but chronic instability may lead to various problems, including future dislocations. Shoulder instability is often seen in swimmers, and it is more common in females. Seeing certain swimmers twirling their arms around before a swimming race provides a good visual example of loose shoulders.”

While some athletes have shoulders that are too loose, other people, especially in adulthood,

Washington Sports Medicine Medical Director, Russell Nord, MD, examining shoulder injury. At the Dec. 7 free community seminar, he will offer information about preventing, diagnosing and treating shoulder pain. The seminar will take place from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium located at 2500 Mowry Ave. in Fremont. To register for the seminar, call (800) 963-7070.

may suffer from “frozen shoulder,” in which the shoulder stiffens up and makes it difficult to move.

“Frozen shoulder is more common in people who have diabetes, but it can happen to anyone,” Dr. Nord explains. “Patients often will say that their shoulders hurt, but they don’t always mention the stiffness. Frozen shoulder often responds well to rehabilitation, but it does take awhile. In some cases, cortisone injections may be helpful. In rare cases, arthroscopic surgery may be necessary to loosen the shoulder so it can move more freely.”

Another injury to the shoulder, called acromioclavicular (AC) joint injury, doesn’t affect range of motion as much as shoulder instability and frozen shoulder do, but it can be quite painful.

“An AC joint injury is an injury to the top of the shoulder, where the front of the shoulder blade attaches to the collarbone,” says Dr. Nord. “It can be caused by a traumatic event, such as a fall directly on the outside of the shoulder, but it most often is caused by repetitive overuse, such as in weightlifting. In nontraumatic cases, treatment would involve limiting the activity responsible for the injury and using cortisone injections.

If other approaches don’t work, trimming off the end of the collarbone during an arthroscopic surgery might be appropriate.”

One shoulder injury that athletes and non-athletes both dread is a rotator cuff tear. While it can be caused by a traumatic injury such as a fall, a rotator cuff tear is generally a wear-and-tear injury that involves the group of four muscles and tendons that surround the shoulder joint. It often occurs in people who repeatedly perform the same shoulder motions, especially those who often work with their arms over their heads. The rotator cuff also can be subject to strains, tendinitis and bursitis.

“Rotator cuff injuries can occur throughout adulthood, and they become more common with aging,” says Dr. Nord. “Many people with rotator cuff problems can be treated with rehabilitation, pain medication and cortisone shots, but sometimes surgery is necessary. The surgery may entail trimming a bone spur or repairing a torn tendon. Luckily,

Zika virus

Dear Doctor,

What is the Zika virus and should we be concerned about it in the U.S.?

Dear Reader,

The Zika virus is primarily transmitted through bites from an infected mosquito with common symptoms including fever, rash, joint pain, and conjunctivitis. Many people don’t realize they are infected as the illness is usually mild, lasting several days to one week. However, infection during pregnancy can cause serious fetal brain defects like microcephaly. Zika virus can also be transmitted sexually. Once a person has been infected, he or she is likely to be protected from future infections.

As of Sept. 28, it has been confirmed that there have been 59 actual Zika virus infections contracted in Florida while the remaining 3,565 cases in the U.S. were reported in people who contracted the disease while traveling abroad. Using a good mosquito repellant should suffice. Avon’s Skin So Soft body oil works well as it contains, picaridin, which is an insect repellent alternative to DEET.

If traveling, please visit the CDC Travelers’ Health site for the most updated travel information.

surgery to repair rotator cuff injuries – or shoulder instability, frozen shoulder or AC joint injuries, for that matter – is usually arthroscopic, with small incisions, and typically quite effective.”

The experienced staff members at Washington Sports Medicine work with professional and amateur athletes on a one-to-one basis, tailoring treatments to the individual’s needs and goals.

“There are a zillion ways the body can be injured in sports activities, and the treatment depends on the type of injury,” says Dr. Nord. “We believe, though, that it is important to focus on why these injuries are happening and work with our patients to help prevent further injuries. In addition, helping patients recognize shoulder injuries early prevents further damage, and that’s the main goal of this talk.”

Public input needed on special study of Eden Health District

SUBMITTED BY GUY ASHLEY

The Alameda Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCo) will hold the third of three special meetings on Monday, November 7 at San Leandro City Council Chambers, to solicit public input to help in the development of a special study of the Eden Township Healthcare District (ETHD), also known as the Eden Health District. The Commission already held two meetings in October, one in Castro Valley and the other in Hayward.

The special study will review the services the District currently provides, its financial position including any future obligations, and a fiscal analysis of various governance options, including dissolution. LAFCo has called the public meetings to obtain information from the District’s constituents regarding their views about the value of the Eden Township Healthcare District to the public; what, if any, specific needs and priorities the District should address; and whether the District’s functions should continue to be provided by another entity.

ETHD was formed in 1948 to finance, construct and operate Eden Hospital in Castro Valley, but no longer owns and operates the hospital. Currently ETHD provides grant funding to health-related organizations, oversees its investment fund, and owns three office buildings where it leases office space to various healthcare providers. The District covers Eden Township, which includes the unincorporated areas of Ashland, Castro Valley, Cherryland, Fairview, and San Lorenzo, and the cities of Hayward and San Leandro. It collects no tax revenues, and derives its revenue from net income from its office buildings. More information about the district can be found at <http://ethd.org/> More information about Alameda LAFCo and the special study can be found at www.acgov.org/lafco

Rewired to Inspire celebrates Diwali

SUBMITTED BY ISHIL PURI

"When the wisdom of age is mixed with the energy of youth, it creates a powerful combination that benefits everyone."
-Donna Butts, director of Generations United

Help strengthen our community by attending a free inter-generational community service program, Rewired to Inspire, organized by Mission San Jose High and Irvington High students, at the Fremont Main Library on Friday, November 18th from 4:30 - 5:45 pm! We meet every 3rd Friday of the month, each meeting associated with a different theme to embrace our community's cultural diversity. Students 5-18 years old and adults 55+ are welcome!

Rewired to Inspire allows members of our community to explore the possibilities that emerge when we connect people from different generations. In our increasingly technological world, connections with our rich heritage are fading. Our monthly workshops are designed to address this issue through exciting activities that stimulate problem solving, develop wider social networks, create positive attitudes towards aging, and offer community service. Together, let us be the change in our society, inspiring younger and older generations to collaborate towards a more unified community.

November 18th Workshop Overview:
In light of the Indian New Year, this month's theme will be Diwali! We are happy to announce that we will be holding a writing contest for students ages 5-18. The prompt will be "Significance of Diwali" and your entries must be 200-500 words. To participate, please register for the November event on our website and email us your submission by Friday, November 4th. Winners from each age group category will be announced during our session on November 18th.

In addition, below is a preview of November's session:

- Cultural Stories by our special guest, Mrs. Mohan, Ret. Lawyer, Rajasthan High Court and Professor of Political Science
- Dance Workshops - Bhangra, Dandia, Lavani, Rajasthani folk, etc. by our special guest Mrs. Bhatt, Performing Arts Instructor, Bal Bhavan, New Delhi
- Cultural Photo Booth
- Indian arts and crafts
- Henna, and much more!

Please let us know if you have any questions! We are excited to see you all at our next session on November 18th at the Fremont Main Library! Please register online at www.rewiredtoinspire.weebly.com (preferred as seats are limited) or in person at the library on the 18th.

CDPH warns consumers about risks of wearing decorative contact lenses

SUBMITTED BY ALI BAY

California Department of Public Health (CDPH) Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith is warning consumers about the risks associated with wearing decorative contact lenses.

“Wearing any kind of contact lens, including decorative lenses, without proper consultation of an eye care professional can cause serious injury,” Dr. Smith said. “The risks include infection, ulcers, decreased vision, cuts or scratches to the surface of the eye, itchiness or redness. If these conditions are left untreated, the injuries can progress rapidly. In severe cases, blindness and eye loss can occur.”

The sale of contact lenses without a prescription is illegal. Only Board of Optometry licensed optometrists and ophthalmologists are authorized to prescribe and dispense prescription contact lenses. Medical Board of California registered opticians and optical shops are authorized to fill contact lens prescriptions.

Decorative contact lenses are intended to temporarily change the appearance of the eye, but do not correct vision. Advertised as color, cosmetic, fashion and theatrical contact lenses, they are especially popular around Halloween or other holidays. Decorative contact lenses are typically sold at beauty supply and novelty stores.

Consumers who have experienced any injury or illness with decorative contact lenses should contact their health care provider. Consumers can report the illegal sale of decorative contact lenses without a prescription to CDPH’s Food and Drug Branch Hotline at 1-(800) 495-3232 to initiate an investigation.

Standard Time

BY VICTOR CARVELLAS

Daylight Savings Time (DST) is ending Sunday November 6 at 2:00 a.m. You’ll need to “fall back” and move your clocks back one hour. Sunset will come earlier, true, but most early birds will appreciate the lighter mornings. Of course, some people like to grouse about the time change, but as we return to “Standard” time, we actually return to the true time as it would have been, unaffected by daylight savings.

Germany employed daylight savings during WWI in an effort to save fuel, and the US adopted a similar plan in 1918. Under Federal law, states had the option to observe it or not. Then, during World War II daylight savings became mandatory in an effort to conserve resources. When the war ended, the time change went back to being optional, and several states and U.S. territories currently exempt themselves, including Arizona (except for the Navajo tribal lands), Hawaii, Guam, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands.

After WWII, Proponents of DST in California argued it would promote public health, increase industrial efficiency, save water, and help farmers. Proposition 12, accepting DST for California, passed in 1949. Support for DST has never been unanimous, however, and as recently as February 2016, California State Assembly member Kansen Chu introduced bill AB 385 that would end DST in the state. Chu refutes the DST rationale, stating there is little evidence that it saves energy, that it increases health risks, and causes more car and workplace accidents. The bill passed its first committee in June of this year, but was killed in the Legislature in August. For the foreseeable future, DST is with us, and you will have to remember to “spring forward and fall back.”

Community room named in honor of Robert Wasserman

SUBMITTED BY ABODE SERVICES

Robert Wasserman wore many hats well in Fremont, serving his city as mayor, council member, and police chief over a span of 35 years. Wasserman, known to many as “Bob,” also proudly served his country, including a stint in the U.S. Army during the Korean War. Those two aspects of his long career – protecting Fremont and serving as a military veteran – make him the perfect person for recognition at Laguna Commons, a Fremont affordable housing development that will help veterans who need a home.

The Robert Wasserman Community Room will be dedicated Nov. 3, honoring him for the many contributions made to his city and country before he passed away five years ago. Abode Services and MidPen Housing have partnered with the City of Fremont and the County of Alameda to build Laguna Commons, a 64-apartment development where 25 homes have been set aside for military veterans.

“He was very proud of the multicultural aspect of Fremont,” said his wife Linda Wasserman. “Like the East Los Angeles that we both grew up in, Bob appreciated the melting pot of immigrants who came to Fremont; people who only wanted the betterment of their children and their families and were willing to work for it. Naming the community room after Bob is such an honor. He will not soon be forgotten; he definitely left a mark on this city.”

USCIS announces first fee increase in six years

SUBMITTED BY SHARON RUMMERY

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) recently announced a final rule published in the Federal Register, adjusting the fees required for most immigration applications and petitions. The new fees will be effective December 23.

USCIS is almost entirely funded by the fees paid by applicants and petitioners for immigration benefits. The law requires USCIS to conduct fee reviews every two years to determine the funding levels necessary to administer the nation’s immigration laws, process benefit requests and provide the infrastructure needed to support those activities.

Fees will increase for the first time in six years, by a weighted average of 21 percent for most applications and petitions. This increase is necessary to recover the full cost of services provided by USCIS. These include the costs associated with fraud detection and national security, customer service and case processing, and providing services without charge to refugee and asylum applicants and to other customers eligible for fee waivers or exemptions.

The final rule contains a table summarizing current and new fees. The new fees are also listed on the Form G-1055, Fee Schedule, and website. Applications and petitions postmarked or filed on or after December 23 must include the new fees or USCIS will not be able to accept them.

Changes in the new fee schedule can be found at: <https://www.uscis.gov/forms/our-fees>

Cheaper phones are fine—if top-end camera isn't a must

WHAT'S BAD: The 5.5-inch screen is great for watching video

WHAT'S BAD: Its battery is the weakest of the bunch, in part because the phone's smaller than the others. At default settings, the phone's display is so dark that I sometimes had to squint to look at it. It's better once I turned off "adaptive brightness" in the settings. Photos taken in a dimly lit room didn't turn out well. Although one swipe switches the camera from photo to video mode or from selfie to outward-facing shots, it wasn't intuitive and took a few hours to notice. There's also an annoying lag when switching between the modes. The Xperia lacks a fingerprint scanner and isn't water-resistant, unlike Sony's top-end models.

DOWN THE ROAD: The regular G4 and Plus version both start with 16 gigabytes of storage, again stingy these days, but you can pay for more up front or add storage later with a MicroSD card. And hallelujah, it's compatible with all major U.S. cellular networks.

Shape Our Fremont

Where Fremont residents can learn about shaping proposed housing developments

Walnut Residences City Council Hearing

The Planning Commission recommended approval of the Walnut Residences proposal to build 670 luxury apartments at the corner of Walnut Avenue and Guardino Drive on September 22nd. Although the City Council hearing would normally follow three or four weeks later, the City has tentatively set the City Council hearing date out to Tuesday November 15th.

This is after the November 8th election and before the newly elected City Council will be seated in mid-December. Residents are trying to get the hearing date postponed until it could be heard by the mayor and council members that they elect this year.

Too Dense

Carmel Partners plans to build at a density of 53 dwelling units per net acre (du/ac). That will fill the entire 13.7-acre property with high-rise buildings and it is far more dense than the surrounding residential neighborhoods. It is also far more dense than the existing Planned District zoning which has a maximum density of 35 du/ac, which is already above the Urban Residential density minimum.

At the Planning Commission hearings, outside groups promoting high density housing near BART failed to see that these high-end apartments would primarily be leased by those from San Francisco and Silicon Valley looking for cheaper rents. It will most likely not be affordable to those currently driving in from the Central Valley and thus the project would not reduce emissions by eliminating long commutes.

Too Much Traffic

There will be 1,040 bedrooms in this complex and there could easily be 2,000 residents. That is a lot of potential traffic! Carmel Partners was required to submit a full residential Transportation Demand Management (TDM) with its proposal. "The primary purpose of any TDM plan is to reduce the amount of vehicle traffic generated by a development by creating measures, strategies, incentives, and policies to shift residents and employees from driving alone to using other travel modes including transit, carpooling, cycling, and walking."

This TDM's traffic reduction target is 15 percent. At the Planning Commission hearing, it was brought out that merely being near BART would already reduce traffic by 15 percent compared to a development not near mass transit. The proposed TDM lists primarily informational measures - information that already exists on the Internet. There is a measure to allow car sharing companies to use Walnut Residences parking spaces yet there is no word on increasing the number of parking spaces in the garages. The only measure that will add a cost to the project is proving a Clipper Card with up to $40 in the welcome package for new residents.

No shuttles will be provided. They say that there must be a shared destination for shuttles to be effective. Will the target millennial renters take AC Transit buses to Pacific Commons? They say parents can create groups to walk their children to school. Since Parkmont most likely won't be their school, do they think parents will walk their kids to Gomes or Hirsch?

Too Tall

The long, solid mass of four-story buildings proposed for Walnut Residences overpowers the existing neighborhood of two- and three-story buildings. The very ends of the buildings along Litchfield and on the east side would be three stories, but the rest of the buildings will be a full four stories surrounding five- or six-level parking garages.

Too Close to the Street

The General Plan has designated Walnut Avenue between the BART tracks and Mission Boulevard as a Landscape Corridor. That is a special roadway category requiring deep setbacks, wide medians, abundant trees and landscaping, a varied development pattern, and primarily low rise buildings. The existing buildings along this stretch of Walnut have a variation in heights and placement on the lot with large setbacks from the street to comply with these requirements. The proposed Walnut Residences buildings form a long line of tall buildings positioned too close to the street which does not comply.

Not What We Need

The Walnut Residences development is designed to be a luxury apartment complex with all 670 units renting at, or above, the market rate. Fremont already has fulfilled its housing quota of Above Moderate Income housing for the next 10-15 years. At the current zoned density of 35du/ac, a developer could build 440 condominium flats for Low or Moderate Income levels and fill Fremont's true housing needs.

Last Chance to Speak Out

The City Council hearing will be the final chance for the residents of Fremont to stop the Walnut Residences project. This development will impact traffic, parking, schools, and the community character of our entire town. Attend the City Council hearing and speak out!

Tentative Date for City Council Meeting: Tuesday November 15th. Watch for any hearing date changes at www.ShapeOurFremont.com.

Oh say, can you sing?

SUBMITTED BY RAQUEL CRUZADO

Attention young singers! For the second year, the Foster Farms Bowl is hosting the "Oh Say, Can You Sing?" contest to find talented local youth to perform the national anthem in front of thousands of college football fans at the Foster Farms Bowl on December 28 at Levi's Stadium in Santa Clara. The contest is open to soloists and groups aged 18 and under, residing in the San Francisco Bay Area or the Central Valley. Last year, the contest drew entries from singers as young as six years old.

Singers are invited to enter by posting a 30 to 45-second video singing the national anthem on YouTube. Videos must be titled "I Want to Sing at the Foster Farms Bowl." Contestants must also complete the entry form on www.SingatFoster-FarmsBowl.com by November 30 at midnight Pacific Time (PT). Ten finalists will be invited to a live audition where a panel of judges will select the winner.

As part of the bowl's long tradition of fighting hunger, Foster Farms will donate 100 meals to a local food bank for each contest entry received. The winner will also get to choose a local food bank to receive a donation of 1,000 meals in their name.

"The 'Oh Say, Can You Sing?' contest is a great opportunity to highlight local young talent and get people excited for this year's Foster Farms Bowl," said Ira Brill, director of communications at Foster Farms. "Last year's winner, a group of 10 singers from Maria Carrillo High School Jazz Choir of Santa Rosa, impressed the crowd with their rendition of the anthem. We look forward to this year's entries."

The 2016 Foster Farms Bowl will feature teams from the Pac-12 and Big Ten conferences. The game will be televised live on Fox with a 5:30 p.m. PT kickoff. Foster Farms will donate one meal to local hunger relief organizations for every Foster Farms Bowl ticket purchased. For more information about the game and tickets, visit www.FosterFarmsBowl.com the cattle were brought and separated according to their brands. Calves that followed their mothers became the new property of the cattle owners. Any cattle that couldn't be identified became the property of the hosting rancho.

Records indicate that by 1834, the 21 missions of California owned in total about 400,000 head of cattle. The Mexican government, having won independence from Spain in 1821, secularized the missions in 1834, and the herds of cattle were sold off, mostly to the landholding families of California. Cattle of Mission San Jose were believed to have gone to Jesus Vallejo, holder of Rancho Arroyo de Alameda and elder brother of General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, the influential Presidio commander and California statesman (It was the latter Vallejo that John C. Fremont held prisoner during the Bear Flag Revolt of 1846). Eventually, in the latter half of the nineteenth century, enterprising settlers in the East Bay bought out (some say swindled) the families of the ranchos,

Many early vaqueros were local Ohlone who had learned their skills tending the mission cattle. Following the gold rush, demand for beef rose, and so did demand for cowboys. Disillusioned miners returning from gold fields found they could earn several dollars a day, good money for the time, and many became cowboys. They brought with them the cultures, pastimes, and music of their homes, scattered as they were across the United States.

Sunol's Old-timey Hootenanny promises to reconnect visitors with the cowboy culture that first appeared here more than a century ago.

Tri-City Stargazer NOVEMBER 2 - NOVEMBER 8, 2016

For All Signs: This is it—election time is finally here. I, for one, will be relieved to see it come and go. I have already written that I think Hillary’s horoscope is the winner. Trump has nowhere to go in an astrological sense. I hasten to add that I am not promoting anyone, just reading charts. Now we need only to look at the day of the election, Nov. 8. It so happens that the Moon is void of course throughout the day until 4:45 PM EST. That phrase means that the matter has been decided; there is nothing new to happen. The Moon shifts to Pisces in the late afternoon, which suggests there may be a vagueness or shrouding over the evening’s developments. Some question or confusion may disallow a final verdict for a day or two, but nevertheless it is Hillary’s win. Unfortunately, she has aspects during 2017 that suggest ill health and the VP might have to work double-time..

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): There is a lot of chatter all around you. Some of it may be disturbing to your sense of comfort. It is like nibbling ducks at your ankles. Don’t buy into it or worry overmuch. The dust will settle soon and whatever the event, it will be over in a few days’ time. It’s possible you will have a short bout of a health problem.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): A second-tier friend may hurt your feelings this week. It’s old stuff. Try to let it go. You are feeling restless and need to try something new. Commute by a different route or go somewhere you have never visited before. It is important to make note of these restless feelings and do something about them. Otherwise you can become hard to live with, even for yourself.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This week offers a good opportunity to refresh your self-care regimen. Perhaps you will start a new program of diet and exercise. Helping yourself to better health is on your mind so don’t ignore it. We need to take advantage of the moment when it comes.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Your partner may be a source of irritation this week. There’s no point in nagging or engaging in meaningless tiffs. Take some time for yourself and do something enjoyable on your own. If you think about it, you probably need some alone time anyway. Maybe that is why the Other feels irritating.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This week you probably have the pleasure of opening your home to others. You are serving as guide and negotiator to help people become acquainted and share ideas. Your creativity is readily available and you can easily solve any problems that may arise.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): This is an opportune time to clarify your personal feelings and convey them to loved ones without creating a fuss or controversy. It is also a good time to use your creative talent. You probably don’t realize how creative you can be since you don’t paint or write music. But it is there. Your problem solving ability is great.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): You may not feel physically your best this week. Even so, this is a time of pleasure and maybe a little excitement concerning a significant other. Let your mind be open to unusual suggestions. Make it a point to interject new spark into the usual routine. Try something new over the weekend.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): You may feel a sense of tension and irritation as this week begins. Give careful attention to your vehicle, which may be subject to minor breakdown. You may have issues with a friend(s), sibling, or roommate this week. Don’t make a big thing of it. The tension passes by within a few days.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): An ancient issue resurfaces between yourself and a family member. Try not to overreact. This is old stuff. Meanwhile there is a sparkle in the works concerning a lover or a creative project. Your eye for the artistic is working with flair. It is upbeat and contemporary.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You may feel stressed by time. There appears to be a communications project, perhaps concerning the law, publishing, the Internet, or a paper to write that nags at your backside. There is no doubt you will accomplish the goal immediately in front of you, but it will feel like pulling teeth as you do so.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): A career or life direction project is put on hold for reasons beyond your control. This is likely temporary. A casual friend or a group involvement offers something interesting and unusual to do. You need a break from the routine. Try a new restaurant or go for a walk somewhere that you’ve never been.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): This is a relatively quiet period. It may be a good time to organize your estate, or clean out closets and do a give-away that will cheer your soul. Spend some time in the quiet and concentrate on connecting to your deeper self, the side of you who doesn’t often get a word into your thoughts.

Anger still flares after judge OKs Volkswagen emissions deal

By SUDHIN THANAWALA AND TOM KRISHER, ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), A federal judge approved the largest auto-scandal settlement in U.S. history Tuesday, giving nearly a half-million Volkswagen owners and leaseholders the choice between selling their cars back or having them repaired so they don't cheat on emissions tests and spew excess pollution.

U.S. District Judge Charles Breyer said the nearly $15 billion deal "adequately and fairly" compensates consumers and gets the polluting vehicles off the road as soon as possible. The German automaker acknowledged last year that about 475,000 Volkswagens and Audis with 2-liter, four-cylinder diesel engines were programmed to cheat on emissions tests.

Under the agreement, owners can choose to have Volkswagen buy back the vehicle regardless of its condition for the full trade-in price on Sept. 18, 2015, when the scandal broke, or pay for repairs. In either case, Volkswagen also will pay owners $5,100 to $10,000, depending on the age of the car and whether the owner owned it prior to Sept. 18 of last year.

Volkswagen has agreed to spend up to $10 billion compensating consumers and could start buying back the cars as early as next month. Regulators have not approved any fixes. The settlement also includes $2.7 billion for unspecified environmental mitigation and $2 billion to promote zero-emissions vehicles.

"We're going to sell it back as soon as humanly possible and try to put this behind us," said Joe Azam, a 35-year-old attorney in New York who owns a 2014 Jetta wagon. Still, Azam said he thought Volkswagen "got off easy" in terms of how much it was paying vehicle owners.

Blair Stewart, a 2012 Jetta wagon owner in Palo Alto, California, said Volkswagen should have paid owners the full purchase price of their vehicle, given the company's fraud. "This is not enough to deter the kind of behavior they did," he said.

Breyer concluded that affected car owners were not entitled to a full refund because many had "received a great deal of use out of their vehicles." He also raised the specter of bankruptcy for Volkswagen if it had to pay the full purchase price.

The scandal has damaged Volkswagen's reputation and hurt its sales. The company is still facing potentially billions more in fines and penalties and possible criminal charges. It also will pay up to $324 million in attorney fees and $8.5 million in out-of-pocket costs, and has agreed to pay its U.S. dealers up to $1.2 billion.

The settlement's approval "is an important milestone in our journey to making things right in the United States," Hinrich J. Woebecken, president and CEO of Volkswagen Group of America Inc. said in a statement. "Volkswagen is committed to ensuring that the program is now carried out as seamlessly as possible for our affected customers and has devoted significant resources and personnel to making their experience a positive one."

The lead attorney for car owners, Elizabeth Cabraser, said in a statement that the deal "holds Volkswagen accountable for its illegal behavior and breach of consumer trust." More than 330,000 people have signed up for settlement benefits, with about 3,200 opting out, she told the judge last week.

The company said in April that it has set aside $18.2 billion to cover the cost of the global scandal, which erupted in September 2015 when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Volkswagen had fitted many of its cars with software to fool emissions tests. Car owners and the U.S. Department of Justice sued.

The software recognized when the cars were being tested on a treadmill and turned on pollution controls. The controls were turned off when the cars returned to the road. The EPA alleged the scheme let the cars spew more than 40 times the allowable limit of nitrogen oxide, which can cause respiratory problems in humans.

Through September, VW Group's sales in the U.S. are down nearly 7 percent from 2015 figures, to just under 386,000 vehicles. The Volkswagen brand fared worse, with sales down 12.5 percent, to just over 231,000 vehicles, according to Autodata Corp. The VW Group includes the Audi, VW, Bentley and Lamborghini brands.

The settlement releases legal claims from most of the 2-liter engine owners, but it doesn't affect larger 3-liter, six-cylinder diesels, which also cheated on tests. The settlement also doesn't end any claims against parts supplier Robert Bosch, which drew up the cheating software.

Top 3 Priorities:

- 1) Provide More Money and Proper Facilities for the Children. FUSD's 2015-16 Unaudited Actual budget includes a $337.4 million revenue, a $15.8 million one-year surplus, and a $48.9 million ending balance just in its General Fund. The total amount of left-over dollars in other FUSD funds (such as facilities related ones) is more than $300 million. Yet parents are still being asked to help pay for classroom and lab materials. Science, Art and Music programs are particularly underfunded. Not every elementary school has a music teacher. There are teachers without classrooms and many schools do not even have enough bathrooms – American High school, for example. Or sun-shaded areas. The list of student needs goes on and on. However, the budgets as well as the facilities and technology plans are horrible. Construction costs are completely out-of-control – more than $900,000 per classroom. The new and so-called “free” elementary school is currently $24 million over budget. Overall, construction projects are over budget by more than $100 million. The Labor (unions) Project Agreement driven by the majority of the School Board will only make construction costs go even higher.
- 2) Improve Student Achievement and Close the Totally Unacceptable Gap. Common Core test scores for the 2015-16 (last) school year? African American students are at 39% and 28% for “Met/Exceeded” level of English and Math. Latino? 42% and 33%. White (FUSD word...)? 65% and 56%. These numbers would represent one D and five F's from a normal test by a regular teacher. FUSD's district-wide numbers only look good because of the results from Asian students. (These numbers can be found in the 9/14/16 School Board meeting agenda item #14.1 in a document called CAASPP.Results.pdf or directly from CA Department of Education website.) Also, FUSD's currently implemented model of multiple math pathways actually hurt students who are trying to do better with math. Months of parent efforts speaking to the School Board do not end in meaningful improvements of the math pathways.

“Children First”

- 3) Stop the Ugly Politics. The FUSD School Board does not fail to consistently increase compensation for all employees – a one-time 4% payment in 2013 and more than 12.9% annually by 2015. That means about $10 million for the 4%, and another $35 million every year going forward. The 2016 collective bargaining process is on-going and not yet finished. So far, there would be at least another 2% increase. Since FUSD finally reports a previously hidden $7.1 million on 9/14/16, there may well be a second increase in 2016 beyond the 2%. Or simply a bigger increase in 2017 perhaps retroactive to 2016. Why is this happening? Awful financial Management. And the fact that four current School Board members have been endorsed by employee unions, and three of them are candidates this November running with help from the unions. Not to mention the unnecessary, unethical, and illegal Measure I parcel tax increase this June. The Measure I money won't benefit the children.

Endorsements:

In 2014, supported by 14.42% of Fremont voters. I truly appreciate every vote.

There is in fact no “free lunch” in politics, right? Hiu does not seek endorsements from labor unions, other special interest groups and elected government officials. There is only one person in this November School Board election who is a true and honest community candidate. If elected, Hiu would objectively and fairly stand up and fight for the best interest of Fremont children attending public schools.

“Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country.” This should apply to Democrats, Republicans, and Independents. All of us. I am just a regular person trying my best helping Fremont children. Not giving up. Not giving in. Trying and trying. Please help by alerting others and vote for Hiu Ng on 11/08/16.

Home & Garden

Look at the garden through rose-colored grasses

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY
DANIEL O'DONNELL

The word grass conjures an image of a heavy water use and high maintenance flat green space in front of a suburban home. The word meadow evokes a feeling of tranquility and charm. Both mental images involve types of grasses, however the ornamental grasses found in a meadow offer wildlife habitat, texture, movement, color, and significantly less maintenance and water than the compact flat fescue grasses used for ordinary lawns.

Ornamental grasses are often used to replace lawn space, but this is not their only role in urban landscaping. Blue Oat Grass or Orange Sedge Grass can be used to create colorful borders and soften hard edges. Gold Band Pampas Grass is a noninvasive, seven-foot high, drought tolerant grass that can make a majestic gold and green privacy screen. Purple Fountain Grasses or pink flowering Ruby Grasses can be incorporated into an existing mature garden to add accents or ribbons of color.

Ornamental grasses are grasses and grass-like plants that grow in clumps. They can be true grasses from the Poaceae or grass family, or from several other grass-like families that include sedges, rushes, and sweet flags. Ornamental grasses are planted as individual specimens and spaced according to their mature width and height or planted close together to form a meadow.

Ornamental grasses offer a wide variety of design elements. Movement is one of them. Grasses and grass-like plants commonly have narrow, flat bladed, linearly shaped leaves that grow from their roots in addition to long seed stalks. When a warm summer breeze blows through a meadow or garden dotted with ornamental grasses, the narrow leaves and slender seed stalks sway back and forth calming aggravations from the surrounding urban environment.

There are different types of textures that ornamental plants can add to a garden. Visual interest is best achieved by the contrast between thick and fine foliage. Ornamental grasses offer fine foliage contrast; thin grass blades can exaggerate the irregular shapes of other plants' leaves.

Visual contrast is also achieved through color tension. "Little Miss" Dwarf Maiden Grass has deep green leaves in early spring that turn dark burgundy red in May, still in time to contrast with any spring flowers. Golden Variegated Sweet Flag's bright yellow leaves glow amongst greener plant leaves throughout the spring and summer and continue to gleam under the dark grey skies of winter.

Texture adds feeling to a garden. The seed heads of Pink Muhly Grass can appear to float like tiny soft pink clouds above the rest of the foliage in the garden. Brushing past delicate grass plumes will feel like strolling through a field of cashmere, unlike walking past a row of thorny roses.

Many perennial ornamental grasses are deciduous and have predictable life cycles. They sprout in early spring, grow to their mature height during the summer, bloom by the fall, begin to change color in the autumn, and go dormant by early winter. There are evergreen ornamental grasses such as the strikingly lime green Dwarf Matt Rush that will add lively color to a garden all year long. However, even perennial grasses can die back in the winter-time if the temperature gets below ten degrees Fahrenheit.

Annual ornamental grasses die every year. They tend to produce a lot of seeds, making them more invasive than perennial ornamental grasses since they need to further their species on a yearly basis. Some green annual Fountain Grasses produce a lot of seeds. They are perfect for meadows contained in a backyard or in urban side strips, but should not be planted near any open space where an invasive plant species could create a problem.

Color is one of the greatest contributions ornamental grasses offer to a landscape. They have a wide range of different shades of green, blue, pink, red, burgundy, black, yellow, and orange. Their foliage will begin to die in the fall offering a secondary color enhancement to a garden unless they are evergreen plants. Copper, gold, tan, and brown color tones will slowly begin to overtake the plants' normal colors giving a garden a seasonal display of fall colors. Structure, height, and color will add interest in winter to a garden even when the foliage is dead and browning.

Most ornamental grasses are tough and can take light foot or dog traffic. They require very little maintenance; a single pruning down to the ground in early spring is all that is required for most non-evergreen ornamental grasses. They range wildly in height. Dwarf Mondo Grass grows to a few inches, while some Deer Grasses can grow beyond six feet. Many ornamental grass meadows use up to forty percent less water on average than a conventional fescue law. They can also provide seeds and nesting material for a wide range of birds.

Using grasses in a different way than as conventional lawn has benefits to the environment, wildlife, and our sense of nature.

DISCOVER CALIFORNIA GOLD... IN FREMONT!

BY MARGARET THORNBERRY

In the late 1800s the California Nursery, headquartered in Fremont, California, was the largest nursery on the Western coasts of North and South America. It specialized in the development and distribution of new varieties of fruiting trees, flowers, and other plants at a time when the work Gregor Mendel did on genetic inheritance in plants was just beginning to be widely studied, 30 years after his death. At the time, a nursery was not a retail outlet for garden plants but a place of scientific experiment in plant propagation. Common-place techniques, such as grafting and cross-pollination were just being developed. This firm's work in developing varieties of stone fruit, such as peaches, apricots, and plums created a standard that made California agriculture the envy of the world, a reputation the state still enjoys. This agricultural bounty is the true gold of California.

Dr. Joyce Blueford, Founder and Board President of Math Science Nucleus, is working in partnership with the City of Fremont to create a fitting showplace for this history as well as developing educational programs around the work of horticulturists who performed their magic here in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Twenty-one acres of land in public hands along Mission Boulevard in the Niles District of Fremont still remain of these former vast agricultural holdings. Not only are there several buildings of historic significance, but this lovely area also boasts living monuments to the skill of people like John Rock, Luther Burbank, and three generations of the Roeding family. In the late 1880s, the test orchards boasted 55 varieties of figs, 130 of apples, 85 of pears, 41 of apricots, 56 of cherries, 20 of nectarines, 75 of peaches, 115 of plums, 16 of prunes, 22 of almonds, 17 of chestnuts, 24 of walnuts, and many other fruits, in addition to ornamental plants. Trees and seeds were shipped from the nursery to almost every corner of the world, a testament to the skill of shippers at a time when no aircraft were capable of carrying cargo.

Under the ownership of William J. Landers and his son, William H. Landers (1907 – 1917), the California Nursery provided full-grown palm trees that graced the Pan Pacific Exposition of 1915. Many of these same palm trees returned to the nursery after the Exposition, and can be seen in a stroll through the gardens today. The climate and soil of Fremont are perfect for palms, and at last count, there were 13 varieties of palm in the nursery grounds.

The California Nursery Office, situated to the right of Nursery Drive behind a lovely rose garden, displays farm tools, provides highlights of the history of the land since the time of the Ohlone, and houses the nursery archives. Starting November 6th, and every Sunday from then on (except Christmas and New Year's Day), the park will be open to visitors. Maps of the nursery grounds and information on notable plants are available at the office for self-guided tours, or if you prefer, a guided walking tour of the park will leave the nursery office at 2 p.m. These tours are ideal for families with children in the 3rd through 5th grade, but suitable for anyone. A donation of $3 per person is suggested for visits to the park. Special arrangements can be made through Math Science Nucleus for class field trips or groups.

Affordable housing for families and formerly homeless opens in Fremont

On Thursday, November 3, Fremont Mayor Bill Harrison, Alameda County Supervisor Scott Haggerty and California State Senator Bob Wieckowski will join other city and county leaders to celebrate the Grand Opening of Laguna Commons, a transit-oriented, environmentally sustainable, and well-designed affordable rental apartment community that serves as a model for affordable housing development. The event highlights the value of Measure A1 which, if passed, will help create more communities like Laguna Commons for Alameda County's working families, children, veterans, seniors, and people with special needs. The event begins at 11 a.m. at 41152 Fremont Blvd. in Fremont.

Laguna Commons is a response to the tremendous need for workforce housing in the nation's most expensive housing market and, as evidence of that need, received over 4,700 applications for its 64 apartment homes. Beautifully designed and in close proximity to jobs and transportation, Laguna Commons also provides a model for communities that Measure A1, a $580 Million Bond for affordable housing, would help create if passed on November 8.

"The need for affordable housing is clearly one of the most significant issues we face today," said Alameda County Supervisor Scott Haggerty. "Laguna Commons represents a great example of the kind of investment that Measure A1 funds will help provide – where valuable members of our community, including working families and veterans, will have quality housing that they can afford."

The result of a visionary collaboration between the City of Fremont, the County of Alameda, and co-developers Abode Services and MidPen Housing, Laguna Commons is a supportive housing community that provides homes for low and very low-income individuals and families in the heart of Fremont's Irvington District. More than half of the apartments will house those who have been homeless, including 25 homes set aside for U.S. veterans.

"The goal of this partnership has been about creating a sustainable, supportive housing community for our veterans and members of our community who might otherwise struggle to find a place to live," said Louis Chicoine, Executive Director of Abode Services.

"The City of Fremont demonstrated great leadership in making affordable housing a priority," said Matthew O. Franklin, President of MidPen Housing.

"We're proud to have partnered on this community, MidPen's seventh in Fremont."

Laguna Commons provides 20 studios with full kitchens, as well as 21 one-bedroom, 12 two-bedroom, and 11 three-bedroom apartments to individuals and families earning up to 50 percent of Area Median Income (AMI), which is between $34,150 and $48,750 for up to a four-person household. All apartments are designed to exceed the current energy conservation goals set by California's (Title 24) Energy requirements by at least 10 percent.

Thanks to a generous donation from the Fremont Bank Foundation, the community room at Laguna Commons will be dedicated to the late Robert "Bob" Wasserman, Fremont's former mayor and police chief, as well as a Korean War veteran. Wasserman helped get the development off the ground before he died in late 2011.

fore he died in late 2011.

"Bob Wasserman was committed to providing critically needed housing for our city's diverse workforce," said Bill Harrison, Mayor of Fremont. "Bob was a man of service who stood for the safety and protection of all people from all walks of life," said Hattie Hughes, of Fremont Bank.

Robust supportive services will be provided onsite daily by Abode Services and supplemented by Alameda County Behavioral Health Care Services.

Financing was provided through both public and private sources including the City of Fremont, the Housing Authority of the County of Alameda, Alameda County Behavioral Health Care Services, the California Tax Credit Allocation Committee, the US Department of Housing and Urban Development, the US Department of Veterans Affairs, and Bank of America Merrill Lynch.

Give blood and help save lives

SUBMITTED BY
APRIL M. PHILLIPS

The American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to give blood to help stock the shelves before the busy holiday season. Many regular donors delay giving between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day because of holiday activities. This often causes a drop in donated blood available for patients. Therefore, more donations are needed in the weeks leading up to the holidays to help ensure the blood supply is sufficient through the winter months.

To make an appointment to give blood, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-(800) RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Donors are encouraged to make appointments and complete the RapidPass online health history questionnaire at redcrossblood.org/rapidpass to save time when donating.

Tour promotes ‘Imagine a Day Without Water’ campaign

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY
VICTOR CARVELLAS

On December 30, 1913, Washington Township residents voted 883-18 to create the first water district

San Francisco. As a result, the dangerously low water table emptied wells, seriously affecting agricultural production vital to the local economy.

In the twenty-first century, water continues to be an important concern as the ACWD technician Laurie Balcerzak shows the result of squeezing extracted sediments into compressed solids.

Lab technician John Herrick performs an analysis on water samples. Such tests are made every four hours.

under the State’s County Water District Act, the Alameda County Water District (ACWD). The once abundant local water resources in creeks and aquifers were drying up as a result of increased farming and population growth. Making the situation worse, private firms were transporting water away from the area to Oakland and even population continues to grow, especially in light of the tech boom that draws more and more residents daily to the Bay Area. Today, the ACWD Fremont facility processes around 26 million gallons a day and sends it through 900 miles of pipe. A tour on September 24, 2016 acknowledged the nationwide Imagine A Day

Community Affairs Specialist Sharene Gonzales leads tours into the depths of the ACWD facility where tens of millions of gallons of water are processed daily.

Without Water campaign, a project of the Value of Water Coalition designed to raise awareness about the crucial need for investment in water-related infrastructure.

Drought, flooding, pollution and climate change all stress the system, but ACWD is addressing the problems today, while planning for the future, and the tour was an opportunity for the public to find out what just what the ACWD does, what it plans, and what support it needs to continue doing its job.

Visitors to the Imagine a Day without Water tour, led by ACWD Community Affairs Specialist Sharene Gonzales, got to see behind the scenes at the modern low profile facility where technicians monitor filtration and other treatment processes that bring clean safe drinking water to homes and business in the Tri-City area. Tucked behind tall trees on Mission Boulevard and set upon a lower flank of Mission Peak, the unassuming architecture, according to Gonzales, “was designed specifically to blend into the surrounding neighborhood.”

Water received from the Sacramento San Joaquin Delta runs through a series of settling pools and a mineral-based filtration system that pulls organic and inorganic solids from the water and removes microorganisms. It is no overstatement to say that the single largest threat to human health through the centuries has been water-borne bacteria and other microscopic creatures that cause illness and disease. Every four hours, ACWD technicians pull samples and verify that that the physical and chemical processes designed to protect us are working properly. The tour took visitors through areas where they saw chemical holding tanks, pumping equipment, filtration equipment and lab facilities—in short the science and the technology of safe drinking water.

The facility is remarkably “green” as well. A principle component in the process of removing solids from the water is ozone, oxygen that is treated electrically to form oxygen molecules with single extra oxygen atom loosely attached. The extra oxygen is easily pulled from the oxygen gas molecule to form compounds with many of the solid contaminants, which then can be more easily filtered out. Normally, the electricity involved in the ozone-creating process would come at a high energy cost, but the generators powering the devices derive their power from solar panels.

The huge four stage filters use different size grades of minerals, ranging from an anthracite gravel to a fine quartz sand. When the filters begin to reach their capacity, they are back-flushed. The sediment rich effluent is routed into a large press the size of a railcar where water pressure forces the mixture between large waffle-iron like panels. The sediments are trapped and squeezed, turning them into harmless sheets that are broken up and safely disposed of in local landfill. Efficiency is a key element in the design of the system; all water used in the process of back-flushing and hydraulic squeezing is itself reprocessed and sent into the general water supply, almost completely eliminating any water waste.

Understandably, the crew at ACWD is justifiably proud of their facility. They perform an important service with expertise and efficiency. Visitors to the center left with a heightened sense of the importance of the job ACWD does and the need to support its efforts to maintain our community’s life-giving infrastructure.

College honors retired professor with 17 mph speed limit

AP WIRE SERVICE

AMHERST, Mass. (AP), A Massachusetts college has changed all the speed limit signs on campus to honor a retired mathematics professor who spent his career fascinated by the number 17.

The speed limit change from 15 mph to 17 mph at Hampshire College was made at the request of the professor, David Kelly. He didn't want a retirement party when he stepped down after 45 years on the faculty at the college in Amherst.

Kelly knows countless facts about 17, the seventh prime number. He says it has had broad applications in mathematics and other disciplines. There are many fun facts about 17, including that there are 17 columns on the long side of the Parthenon in Greece.

Kelly says the tribute “captures Hampshire's uniqueness.”

Castro Valley veterans donate to rehab center

SUBMITTED BY TONY LINDSEY

Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 9601 and The American Legion Post 649 made a $6,000 donation to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs in Menlo Park to purchase a Recumbent Bike rehab chair for the live-in residents and veterans who have knee replacements or use of this type of equipment. During a presentation ceremony on August 31, 2016 the Post also hosted a BBQ lunch for the resident veterans.

Twice a year you see the veterans of Castro Valley at different storefronts around town with red flowers called "Buddy Poppies." These little flowers carry the hopes of those veterans who make them that the funds raised will support veterans programs and needs. "Many citizens have no idea how their donations are used. The above is one of our many support and outreach programs," said VFW member Jim Uhlik.

Next time you see these veterans and their Buddy Poppies on street corners or storefronts, please give generously because the money you donate is needed to support local veterans.

Helping multifamily residential properties to become more energy efficient

SUBMITTED BY
CITY OF FREMONT

The City of Fremont is pleased to announce that the Bay Area Multifamily Building Enhancements (BAMBE) program is offering technical and financial support to multifamily residential properties to help upgrade inefficient energy systems and water fixtures.

Through the BAMBE program, eligible properties earn $750 per unit for upgrades to any of the following: windows, insulation, furnaces, water heaters, lighting, toilets, and appliances. The program also offers no-cost consulting with an energy and water expert that helps property owners customize their improvement package and allows them to use their own contractors.

BAMBE has already proven successful for property owners in Fremont. At the October 4 Fremont City Council meeting, the Priya Living complex was recognized for utilizing the program to install new energy-efficient windows and insulation. The upgrades have reduced energy use by an estimated 13.4 percent and greenhouse gas emissions by 4.67 metric tons.

HARD & soul

for an organization that has been maintaining special places and providing important services for well over 70 years. Says Paul McCreary, General Manager of HARD... "HARD has always had such a great reputation in the field. When I was interviewing for this position, I toured parks and talked to residents and employees, and I didn't hear one bad thing about the organization."

While most cities have their own recreation departments, HARD is unique in that it operates as an independent Special District, providing park and recreation services to the City of Hayward, as well as the major unincorporated areas of San Lorenzo, Ashland, Cherryland, Castro Valley, and Fairview. Encompassing roughly 100 square miles, HARD is the largest recreation district in California, with about 145 sites that serve over 300,000 residents.

Kerrilyn Ely, Recreation Superintendent at HARD, grew up in Alameda and trained at the Hayward Plunge to become a lifeguard. "HARD has always had an excellent reputation for aquatics programs and training." In addition to swimming classes, HARD offers a host of other activities, including dancing, art, music, gymnastics, and other sports. There are summer camps for kids, preschool programs, afterschool programs, senior classes, and special needs offerings.

Ely attributes much of the success of the organization to quality personnel. "We have a long history of great management, general managers and staff." HARD currently employs 114 full-time employees as well as roughly 500 part-time employees and volunteers. They are governed by a five-member Board of Directors, elected directly by the district's voters. "Some of our board members have been with us for over 30 years," says Ely. "They have a rich knowledge and history of the community and they're very hands on. Our success is their stability."

HARD's effective management becomes even more impressive when taking into account the staggering number of diverse properties owned by the agency. Says Minane Jameson, President of the HARD Board of Directors, "HARD is fortunate to have a quality community theater, rodeo grounds, golf courses, a lighted driving range, several swimming pools, ball fields, skate parks, many community centers, art galleries, and parks of all sizes. There's no doubt the district has much to offer its residents and visitors."

The Hayward Shoreline Interpretive Center is another gem owned by HARD. Set amidst the salt marshes where the bay meets the shore, its goal is to educate the public regarding our tidal wetlands. They offer nature programs and camps, and host hundreds of field trips each year. Or maybe Kennedy Park is more your speed, with its train, carousel, and petting zoo, providing the perfect place for family gatherings.

HARD prides itself on its connection with the community. To help adjust to the ever-changing needs of an increasingly diverse population, a Citizens Advisory Committee was formed in 1963. Drawn from a cross-section of community members, their suggestions help steer the board's decisions. Another important tool is the Master Plan, a set of guidelines and goals that are at the heart of HARD's mission. Says McCreary, "In 10 to 15 years, what will our parkland and facility and recreational needs be?

It's a key document, our bible."

Unfortunately, all the planning in the world could not have prepared HARD for Proposition 13 in 1978, which limited Special District funding. This made it especially difficult for HARD, since most of their income comes from property taxes. Says McCreary, "There was a lot of vision back in the day to build all of these great treasures, and then the carpet got pulled out from underneath all of us." On top of that, in 1992 came the Education Revenue Augmentation Fund (ERAF), which diverts almost half of HARD funding to the state for educational purposes.

Since the majority of HARD's facilities are 30 to 50 years old, maintaining them has been a challenge. Says McCreary, "We have a lot of deferred maintenance issues. With the funding we get, we're able to maintain and repair, but not necessarily replace and modernize, which is really what's needed."

In an effort to raise more money, HARD has created a bond measure, F1, which will be on the November 8 ballot. Despite these financial hardships, HARD has continued to provide affordable, quality services to residents, regardless of age, gender, ethnicity, disability, or economic status. They even offer scholarships through their Foundation, giving out $30,000 every year towards programs to anyone who qualifies. HARD has also created partnerships whenever possible, with non-profits, school districts, faith-based communities, and other Special Districts such as the East Bay Regional Parks.

Says Ely, "We're just fortunate because the money that we have is ours, whereas the money that goes into a city goes towards many, many things, including public safety, etc. and the quality of life services are often left with the short end of the stick. We may not be rich, but at least the money that we have is dedicated to the parks and recreation mission."

casting associate and company manager at TheatreWorks Silicon Valley.

The collaboration with Ohlone came about through an invitation from teacher Michael Navarra, also a professional actor, director, and producer, whom Lo had met at TheatreWorks. “I believe new works are an essential part of any theatrical community, so I started the Ohlone College Playwrights Festival a couple of years ago. I wanted to give our students an opportunity to work on new plays and experience that process. I felt that the next step in developing new works was to commission a playwright to write a full-length play,” says Navarra. “I believed that Jeffrey’s work and collaborative spirit would be a perfect match to develop a play with our students.”

Lo wrote for the Playwrights Festival in 2015 and 2016, and Navarra says, “I love his writing and the students really connect with it.”

His first official commissioned play, Lo says the experience has been fun, allowing himself to go crazy and see what he came up with. Without the restrictions and concerns of professional theatre Lo says he could “get back down to why we started doing it in the first place, which is to tell stories.”

The idea for “Spending the End of the World on OkCupid” struck while Lo was in his car. He kept thinking about this moment where everyone was thinking the world was going to end and what would people do if nothing mattered anymore. “The play follows the journey of people that are in need of acquiring bravery of sorts in their life,” says Lo. Facing the end of the world gives them that impetus, and as a lot of millennials are on dating sites, using OkCupid was a fast way to link people desperate to make a connection.

The play took about a year to write, drafts and notes going back and forth between Lo and Navarra. They did readings of drafts with students who gave their input, and Lo also invited professional actors to read the script to see different interpretations and how it informed him.

One of the difficulties with a commission is the inflexible time-frame. Lo says he usually has an idea and fiddles with it, but can set it aside for a while if there are problems. Not so with this play, which had a date on the calendar before a word was written. “I couldn’t take a break and I couldn’t decide it was a bad idea,” says Lo.

He also had to keep in mind that since people were already committed to the play he couldn’t make choices lightly; a change of setting, a cut scene or character would affect someone. Lo says this knowledge required much more open communication. A good relationship with director Navarra was key to things running smoothly. “I love working with Michael, I think he’s really great,” says Lo. “We both have this balance of being passionate and emotionally invested in the work we’re doing. We both wanted the same thing.”

Since Lo doesn’t typically work with students, Navarra laid out how the process would go, how students might react or how they were feeling, how to get the best out of them. “Our students have been engaged and committed to this process from the beginning,” says Navarra. “Knowing that these roles were written with them in mind has produced a lot of excitement from them. They’ve been working hard knowing that they will be the first actors to portray these roles.”

When opening night arrives, the desired audience response is a simple one. “I hope they all have fun; it’s supposed to be a fun piece of theater,” says Lo. “I hope they all walk away and make the effort to connect with people or improve their connections, and how to find bravery within themselves, how to be a better person.”

INCENDIO BRINGS THE WORLD TO MISSION COFFEE

SUBMITTED BY
BRASK HOUSE CONCERTS

Picture this in your mind’s eye: An exotic melody accompanies a desert caravan beneath a blazing sun. The sound of waves awash against a pristine South American beach. A lone flamenco guitar echoes through the cobbled streets of old Sevilla. And a lilting ? time rhythm conjures images of the rolling green hills of Ireland. This is the music of Incendio.

The band, simply put, is instrumental world music. The primary “voice” is the guitar, but other instruments are present, such as the mandolin, bouzouki, violin, Celtic harp, bass, piano, and various ethnic percussion instruments. Liza Carbe’s richly textured bass playing has a background in classical guitar training. JP Durand’s Peruvian heritage shows up in his South American guitar work. Jim Stubblefield’s European travels show in his Middle Eastern flavorings. Stubblefield and Durand are known for lightening-fingered dazzling twin guitar attacks. From dreamy to exciting from the far east to the west coast, from South America to the pacific Northwest. Their music takes you on a musical world tour.

Although Incendio prides itself on releasing finely crafted studio albums, they are also a true live band. The evidence of the strength of live show can be seen and heard on the “Dia y Noche” CD and DVD releases of 2005 as well as the more recent footage captured at the Ford Amphitheater in Los Angeles and Pasadena’s Ambassador Auditorium. The cinematic approach that Incendio takes in delivering their music has always been part of their sound, and it will come as no surprise that the group’s pieces are often used for music on television and film. Incendio’s music has been used on the History Channel, A&E, Concert organizers Wayne and Sue Brask have seen Incendio perform many times, including at San Jose’s Music in the Night series, the Old Little Fox in Redwood City, and Fremont’s Olive Festival. They have booked them several times at Mission Coffee and other venues. “Speaking as the people who hire them, we have to say that they are very personable, really engage their audience, and are having as good a time as their audience. They are not just amazing musicians, they are a lot of fun,” says Wayne Brask.

Hayward High Students Unveil Community Artwork

SUBMITTED BY ANDREW KONG KNIGHT

On Saturday, October 22, Hayward High School (HHS) art students and their instructor, Andrew Kong Knight, installed a colorful 6 foot diameter mosaic at the new housing development, Highland Villas, located in the hills of Hayward behind Cal State East Bay. Knight is an award-winning artist and the instructor for the Greatest Art Class in the Universe (GACU) at Hayward High. He and his students spent four months designing and building the beautiful and detailed installation. The motivation for the project is to reinvigorate interest in arts curricula. “The arts,” says Knight, “have been cut really badly over the last decade in our public schools, especially here at Hayward High School. We once had a thriving ceramics and 3D art courses; currently there are none. “This project gave my GACU students a chance to create an artwork they wouldn’t have done otherwise. I’m very grateful to the Grupe Company for selecting my GACU students for this unique opportunity to create something meaningful that represents our Hayward community, and will beautify our neighborhood for now and for many generations in the future.” Fritz and Phyllis Grupe have been involved in supporting public education over the past 40 years, hosting their biannual Country Fair at their Shady Oaks ranch and raising millions of dollars for public education. Highland Villas is located at 26528 Hayward Blvd.

Alameda County Food Bank Holiday food and fund drive

SUBMITTED BY ALAMEDA COUNTY COMMUNITY
FOOD BANK

The Alameda county community food bank serves 1 in 5 Alameda County residents. Between October 1 and January 31, 2017, you can help them reach their goal of 11 million meals this holiday season.

One way to help is to start a virtual food drive, the Food Bank’s most impactful, efficient, and popular option for groups and companies. A Virtual Food Drive allows people to “shop” online to help the Bank purchase its most-needed items, especially those that can’t go in barrels like milk, meat and farm-fresh produce.

Another way to help the food bank is to host a traditional food drive. Host collection barrels in your office, restaurant, faith-based organization, etc., and engage your co-workers, customers, friends and family in a meaningful effort towards a common goal of ending hunger in our community.

Remember, for every $1 you donate, the Food Bank provides $6 worth of food! Visit ACCFB.ORG to sign up today.

Facilities support teaching and learning

SUBMITTED BY FREMONT UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

"We have come together today to celebrate the spirit of community and its commitment to public education and high achievement," said FUSD Student Board Member Brendan Wu when he addressed attendees at the Brookvale Elementary School groundbreaking for the new eight-classroom building, which opened its doors to students this fall. The Brookvale groundbreaking was the fourth of five ceremonies conducted in the first two weeks of school.

This flurry of celebrations began on the second day of the academic year, with a ribbon cutting for the new math and science building at Irvington High School on September 1, a second ribbon cutting on September 7 for the new 12-classroom building at Warm Springs Elementary, and three groundbreakings: American High School on September 8, the one at Brookvale on September 15, and a third groundbreaking at Patterson Elementary School on September 16. As mentioned by Board Member Wu, his fellow Trustees, and many others, all of this new construction is made possible by the community's commitment to public education, as evidenced in the 61.8% 'YES' vote on Measure E, the $650 million school facilities bond, passed in June 2014.

The Warm Springs Elementary School Ribbon Cutting took place on Wednesday, September 7. Principal Scott Iwata chose the Beatles' "Here Comes the Sun" as a dedication song for the new 12-classroom building. Although Principal Iwata chose the song because it captured the wait and anticipation for the new building, the song became even more appropriate given the heat of the day—which was noted by Board Trustee Desrie Campbell, "I will keep my comments brief so that we won't melt under the afternoon sun. Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!"

FUSD Board Vice-President Ann Crosbie joined Trustee Campbell in thanking the community for all their hard work and efforts in passing Measure E, as did Superintendent Morris, who acknowledged Warm Springs parents for the high standards of excellence they hold for their students and school.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Measure GG: not a good deal for Newark

Various Newark mailers have promoted Measure GG, which raises the sales tax in Newark by 1/2 percent for the next 25 years. The City claims GG is for the replacement of public facilities and to fund vague improvements to other facilities and services.

One promised purpose for funds is towards our police, whom already have three sources of revenue besides the City’s general fund: the Lake and Rosemont Area Association (LARA); the Utility Users Tax, passed (and extended) several years ago; and the Newark Betterment Corporation, a non-profit run out of city hall by our City Manager. Now, the City is saying GG is needed for the same purpose.

Oddly, the City estimates developers will only put $10 million towards the project, whereas Newark residents will be paying $119 million to $127 million over 25-years. This is an excessive waste of public dollars when building construction is only $64 million.

The City mentions a citizen’s oversight committee will oversee spending. Nonetheless, the City will: select who serves on the Committee, decide how often or how thoroughly members are informed and if they will have any enforcement powers. Additionally, since this proposal is a general tax measure where funds are placed in the general fund, legally, money can go to any governmental purpose.

The City claims placing school district administration at the civic center site is a benefit. However, right now, the School District owns the property where its administrative offices are located. Therefore, the School District does not pay rent; but if GG passes, the District will have to pay the City for leasing.

The City claims their consultants found alternatives to cost more than building anew. But, the consultants only studied an irrational 30-year lease for buildings. More reasonable is studying a 10 or 15-year lease. This allows for phased construction minimizing interest from loans and can provide enough years to build a reserve. Additionally, the consultants failed to get a free estimate from an actual contractor; instead deciding to generalize costs from a renovated library in Palo Alto and a new library in Half Moon Bay, without considering the difference of needs for a library with the three cities.

The City claims its proposal will build the sense of community. Yet, our current Newark library is attached to a community park. It is far away from traffic and provides a safe and convenient location for children and families. GG moves the library along noisy Newark Blvd and forces patrons to cross a street to reach the park.

In 1989, Fremont’s City Hall was severely damaged in the Loma Prieta earthquake. Consequently, they temporarily leased out to commercial buildings and began saving up a reserve fund for rebuilding. They carefully accomplished this without creating additional debt or needing new taxes. After that same quake, extraordinarily, our City Hall was undamaged and remains usable decades later.

Ultimately, this proposal is a senseless and unfair deal for Newark. Vote No and demand a more honest and fiscally responsible plan.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Newark Needs Measure GG

Help keep Newark safe and vibrant by supporting Measure GG on the November ballot

An independent consultant conducted a detailed study of the existing police department, library, and administrative facilities and reviewed options for their potential replacement. Community and stakeholder input was a key part of this process. Community meetings were held as well as extensive stakeholder interviews. There were also numerous City Council work sessions which included significant public comment and discussion.

The current City Hall building erected in 1966, along with its 1982 annex houses the Police Department, City administrative offices, and the City Council Chambers. The study concluded that the facility suffers from serious functional limitations, aging HVAC, plumbing, and electrical systems, and does not meet current seismic safety codes. A major earthquake could render the building unusable. The Newark library building which was constructed in 1983 was found to have serious functional limitations and suffers from numerous infrastructure issues. It is not able to meet the growing demands of the community for more diverse library programs and services. In their final report, the consultants recommended replacement of these facilities.

As part of the study, the consultants evaluated other options including; renovating or expanding of the existing library, police, and City administration buildings; phasing the new building construction over time; and leasing privately owned buildings to meet the City’s needs. The study concluded that renovation or expansion of the current buildings would be more costly, less efficient, and impractical. Phasing the construction of the buildings over time would result in higher overall project costs. Leasing office space was determined not to be a permanent and cost effective solution. In addition, no office space could be identified to meet the police department’s unique essential service needs.

New construction was deemed the most efficient, practical, and cost-effective solution to address the functional limitations, aging infrastructure, and seismic safety issues of the current buildings. As a result, the Newark City Council unanimously approved a plan for replacement of these antiquated and seismically deficient facilities with a modern police operations center, world class library, vibrant public spaces, and efficient accessible City offices.

Although the opponents of Measure GG acknowledge that the buildings need replacement they are spreading misinformation regarding Measure GG and I would like to provide the community with the facts.

Measure GG is a one-half cent increase in the local sales tax that will be used to construct a modern police operations center, a new library, and new administration offices. The new buildings would be located on the existing Civic Center site on Newark Boulevard and construction would be phased to allow operations to continue during construction. The sales tax increase would remain in place for 25 years.

The City’s financial consultant evaluated several funding options for the project and concluded that the lowest annual cost would be the sales tax. For perspective, a typical resident that spends $1,000 a month on taxable goods would pay an additional $5.00 per month or $60.00 per year.

The Newark City Council adopted a “Resolution of Intention” that established a formal Council policy that all of the revenue generated from Measure GG would fund these facilities with any additional funds to be used to improve other City facilities and services. Measure GG funds would be subject to strict financial oversight by an independent citizen’s oversight committee and annual financial audits will be conducted to ensure that all funds are spent as promised. No Measure GG funds could be taken by the State or County.

The total cost of the project is estimated at $64 million dollars. If Measure GG is approved, the City would finance the project through a bond issue. The City’s financial consultant has estimated that the principle and interest costs would total approximately $118 million. $118 million is the estimated amount that will be generated by the increased sales tax over 25 years. This is similar to purchasing a home and assuming a long-term mortgage with interest payments.

Unfortunately, as a result of the “Great Recession”, the City’s capital reserves were almost entirely depleted. The budget priority over the last decade was to continue to provide critical services for our community. With the recovery in the economy, the City’s capital reserves are now being replenished but it will take years to build them to the level necessary to pay for construction of new facilities. The need for new police, library, and administrative facilities is now.

Other revenue sources are currently being used to support a variety of critical services and programs in the City. Diverting this money away to fund the Civic Center Project would require the City to make significant service cuts in order to balance the budget.

The proposed location of the Library, Police Operation Center, and the Administrative Buildings was determined after an extensive analysis and review of alternative sites and with numerous opportunities for community input. The majority consensus was to locate the Library and Administrative Buildings in visible locations off of Newark Boulevard and adjacent to assessable parking. Safe pedestrian access will be incorporated into the final design to allow access to the Civic Center Park and a restroom will be planned for the Park.

Measure GG is good for our community and will ensure that we are able to continue to provide outstanding public safety services into the future. A new modern state-of-the-art library will improve literacy programs for our community and provide space for job training, specialized studies, and community gatherings. It will also support life-long learning for the entire community. A new City Administration building will improve customer service by allowing centralized service areas and improve accessibility for the disabled community.

Please join me on November 8th in supporting Measure GG.

CSUEB's Stone wins Golfer of the Week

Golf

SUBMITTED BY STEVE CONNOLLY

For the third time in the last four weeks, Cal State University East Bay senior Adam Stone was selected as the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Golfer of the Week for October 19-25.

Stone is the first Pioneer golfer to win the award three times in one season since the program joined the CCAA in 2009-10.

Remarkably, he accomplished it in three of the first four tournaments of the season. This was the fifth career CCAA Golfer of the Week award for the Garstang, England native.

Stone captured back-to-back weekly honors followed by his recent stellar performance in difficult, rainy conditions at the Cal State San Marcos Fall Classic at Vista Valley Country Club. He shot 74-70-73 on the par-71 course to finish as the individual runner-up with a total of 217 (+4).

Stone was the top CCAA finisher at the tournament, which included Stanislaus State, Cal State Dominguez Hills, and the host Cougars. He led the entire field with 40 pars for the week, and paced the Pioneers to a fifth-place finish in the 17-team field.

The defending CCAA Individual Medalist closed out the fall season with three straight top-five finishes. He has a 71.50 scoring average, which ranks 29th in the nation and second among CCAA golfers.

A new era in Fremont football history has started as the new format of city vs. city play has lead to very exciting games. On October 29th, the Fremont Panthers evened their record with the Union City Colts 27-25 after losing their first meeting. In another matchup, FFL blanked a Milpitas League team 40-0. The next match will pit the FFL and a tough team from the Hayward League.

The Milpitas Trojans varsity football team of 2016 has been built on speed and it showed up early as they quickly took control of an October 28th game with great plays that used that speed to catch the Mountain View Spartans completely off balance. The Trojans never looked back as they opened a 21 point halftime lead and kept the game out of reach with innovative offensive plays. Their defense also had a great night, holding the Spartans to only 13 points and 100 yards. The end result: Trojans 35, Spartans 13.

Students create learning management platform

SUBMITTED BY HSCANVAS

Albert Zhang from Mountain View High, Abhi Upadhyay from Mission San Jose High, Saagar Godithi from Monta Vista High, and Andrew Hojel from St. Andrew's Episcopal School aren't your typical high school students. They met this past summer on MIT's campus at a summer entrepreneurship program called MIT Launch, and are currently working to revolutionize the education system with Caravel, a learning management platform that enables teachers to track trends in student behavior. Independent project HSCanvas co-founder Justin Duan recently conducted an interview with the four.

Q: Tell us more about Caravel!

A: Right now, the education system primarily focuses on test scores and grades, but many schools, especially elementary

A: We're conducting our beta trial soon at Andrew's school in Austin, specifically its elementary school, and we'll be using it as a proof of concept to conduct research about the features and what teachers like about the system. Afterwards, we plan to share the software with California schools. If we receive positive feedback and see that our product provides value to teachers, we'll start selling subscriptions to schools!

Q: What are each of your roles on the team and the experiences you bring?

A: Abhi: I am in charge of building our beta trial, and I've been programming since I was nine. Right now, I'm also working on a few side projects, including an app for my school to organize clubs. In the past, I've built tools for developers and mostly focus on websites and back-end development.

Saagar: I'm the designer for Caravel, and I've worked on numerous design projects, including T-shirts. Also, I've worked extensively with the city of "Turning the Tide," a report from the Harvard School of Education's Making Caring Common Initiative. Its goal is to promote the idea that parents and schools should educate kids not just to get them into top colleges, but to become contributors to society. Their main proposal focuses on ethical and intellectual engagement with the broader community, so we wanted to make that the main objective of Caravel and help change the direction of education.

Q: What was the experience spending four weeks at MIT Launch like?

A: From 9 a.m. to noon every day, we would learn about entrepreneurship fundamentals and hear from guest speakers. In the afternoon, we would meet with our teams to work on a business idea that we would pitch at the end of the four weeks, and consult our mentors in mock board meetings. At night, we had free time to socialize and relax.

The atmosphere created by Launch was work on, we were willing to commit to it even after the program and through the school year. There's no perfect idea: every idea has flaws, so it didn't come down to how great the idea was. It came down to whether we cared about it and wanted to work on it together as a team.

What really helped was defining an overall plan at the end of Launch. Since then, we've been keeping each other accountable over Facebook and communicating regularly to make sure that we're all finishing up our tasks by our weekly meetings, and we've started meeting with our mentor regularly as well.

Q: Who is the mentor helping you out?

A: At Launch, we reached out to Natalie Abeysena, a recent graduate from the Harvard School of Education. We're still in contact with her and give her regular updates on what we're working on. She gives us feedback on our features, helps us clear up confusion, and generally schools, are trying to concentrate on how their students are holistically developing, which can't be determined from just numbers. Caravel aims to help them do exactly that.

Through our system, teachers can assess each student based on the characteristics they choose on a scale of one to five stars using half star increments, add comments, and review the data in graphs to see trends. For example, teachers can look at a student's ethical behavior and how they are absorbing the information, which would help them better understand their students' performance and write more detailed reports so that parents can learn about how specifically their child is doing in class.

Q: What's your current progress on the project?

Cupertino to decrease litter in public areas.

Albert: My role is head of finance and communications. Over the summer, I was a marketing intern at a local smart wearables startup, and I worked on outreach and search engine optimization. For a school club called BEAM, I've also reached out to local companies to help teach students about business fundamentals.

Andrew is head of operations, and mainly keeps us organized and delegates tasks. He's coordinating the beta trial with his school right now, and he's the visionary of the team, always thinking about how we can grow and what we should do in the future.

Q: What inspired you four to start Caravel?

A: We were inspired after reading both collaborative and competitive, and pushed us to grow the idea and as a team. We often asked our friends and mentors for help, but were also competing with fellow teams to overcome obstacles and beat deadlines.

Launch taught us that the first idea is never going to be final, and without the help of the program, we wouldn't have known how to pivot from old ideas to new ones. But it wasn't just about an idea or business. It was also an individual growth program where we learned so much about ourselves and the different types of people around us.

Q: What is it like working together as a team? What helped you four continue working after the program?

A: Once we had an idea that we were all genuinely passionate about and wanted to guides us in the right direction. We've learned that it's important to have a mentor who has experience in the same field you are working in.

Q: What advice would you give to high schoolers who are also starting a project?

- Don't be afraid to fail!
- Learn how to e-mail—keep it under four sentences, use a lot of spaces, and make sure the last sentence is direct (don't be ambiguous about what you want!).
- Realize that you have the power to do anything. The most valuable thing that Launch gave us was confidence in our abilities. Don't be afraid to leave your bubble, contact others for help, and leverage your resources.

TAKES FROM SILICON VALLEY EAST

The New Capitol Avenue

BY JENNIFER CHEN,
ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT
COORDINATOR

Last Friday, the City of Fremont celebrated the completion of Phase II of the Capitol Avenue sidewalk and streetscape project (between State Street and Mowry Avenue). With a $5.8 million grant from One Bay Area, Capitol Avenue has been transformed from an ordinary sidewalk to a multi-modal street that includes screen walls, festoon lighting, and banners. The new Capitol Avenue enhances the pedestrian, bike, and car experience with street furniture, wider sidewalks, painted bike lanes, and free public parking.

The streetscape project is one more step forward in the implementation of Fremont’s Downtown plan, creating a place for the community to come together, celebrate, hang out, and interact with one another. The celebratory event was attended by many elected city council members (past and present) and residents, who were also able to enjoy gourmet food trucks at Fremont Street Eats afterwards.

Reinforcing how a Downtown fosters a sense of community, the event also coincided with the City’s annual Halloween event — Trick or Treat on Downtown Safety Street. The little ones were dressed up as everything from little monsters to princesses to action heroes. While waiting for the spooky evening to get started, attendees could also visit the Alameda County Library Bookmobile (ACLB). ACLB is a full-service, traveling library filled with materials and resources for all ages.

While this was an important milestone, you’ll have to pardon our progress for a little while longer. Capitol Avenue’s final phase across Paseo Padre Parkway and through the Gateway Plaza connecting to the BART station will continue in 2017.

Waste Management Authority adopts expanded reusable bag ordinance

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BECERRA

On October 26, the Alameda County Waste Management Authority approved an expanded reusable bag ordinance for Alameda County. The expanded ordinance will apply to all stores and restaurants in the county, and will go into effect on May 1, 2017 for retail stores and November 1, 2017 for restaurants.

The reusable bag ordinance for Alameda County originally went into effect in January 2013 and applied to 1,300 stores that sell packaged food such as grocery, drug and liquor stores. Covered stores can only distribute compliant reusable bags or bags made of recycled content paper and only if the store charges a minimum price of 10 cents per bag, itemized on the receipt (the 10 cents goes to the store to offset the purchase cost of bags).

The types of stores will now be expanded to include all retail and restaurants. Retail stores will have the same requirements as currently covered stores. Restaurants would not be required to charge customers if distributing recycled content paper bags, but must charge a minimum of 10 cents for a compliant reusable bag (which may include durable thick plastic bags). Each city will have an opportunity (by December 9, 2016) to opt out of the expanded requirements. However, all cities will continue participating in the current ordinance, which covers stores that sell packaged food and liquor.

The outcomes of either State Propositions 65 or 67 will not affect the Agency’s bag ordinance since it was originally adopted before the state law adoption (SB 270) in 2014. More information on the reusable bag ordinance for Alameda County is available at www.ReusableBagsAC.org political campaigns leading to alienation and divisiveness. Lines are drawn leading to an aftermath of resentment that is not promising when crazy politics end and the business of governing returns.

Partisan politics

We are starting to see such harmful campaign tactics at the local level in Fremont. It is a shame when citizens are asked to vote based on negatives rather than positive accomplishments. Hopefully, candidates will be motivated to review their campaign materials and minimize or remove offensive statements before release to the general public. After all, they are the ones who will have to live with friends and neighbors following the election.

It is also interesting to watch the escalation of costs to underwrite local political campaigns. While reports speak of millions spent on national elections, when local contests climb into six figures, it creates questions of why and who supports such exorbitant costs. If large contracts for products or services are at stake, it is understandable that politicians favorable to certain individuals or industries are supported, but those elected to public office have a responsibility to weigh their decisions against the health and welfare of constituents. This is difficult when large sums are required for campaigns and funds for them may come with strings attached.

A strong tie to community is a profound difference in local elections and can act as a check to balance the lure of lucrative contracts that may offer future benefits. Politicians, who decide to pursue public office for larger constituencies, become farther removed from individual concerns and make decisions based on a macro view of effects rather than significant but singular consequences. These contests are usually partisan and openly controlled by party politics. As such, the internal machinations of each political party are assumed to be part of the mechanism driving choices. Can this effect be avoided at the local level?

Expecting party politics to avoid local elections is probably naive and their intrusion inevitable, but voters should be aware that as cities grow and contracts for construction, services and maintenance become more lucrative, outside pressure to retain or remove elected officials is invasive and detrimental to optimal growth patterns and citizen welfare. In Fremont, outside pressures are mounting to continue rapid growth. Voters need to weigh the advantages and consequences of this pattern to determine whether that is a healthy path for their city without regard to partisan politics. The terms Democrat, Republican or any other party preference has no place in local, nonpartisan contests. Voters need to rely on knowledge of candidates, their statements and accomplishments rather than political labels.

William Marshak
PUBLISHER

As the local election scene heats up, mailboxes are overflowing with candidate and proposition material that is long on hyperbole and, at times, lacking facts. A sure sign that our area has grown to major city status is the influx of professionals who can be found across the nation running campaigns. Confusion is often the greatest ally of such folks and stretching the truth is no stranger in their armamentarium.

At the local level where the electorate and elected are often well known to each other, the nonpartisan nature of office should remove consideration of party politics. A few political party insiders may promote or discourage potential candidates, but voters work and shop side-by-side with those running for office and know their work ethic and substance. Votes can be cast based on at least passing knowledge of the candidates. Civic issues should be in the forefront of such votes and personal attacks rare. It is an unwelcome sign of growth when factual campaigns give way to slick, negative mailers. Large financial contributions can skew the tenor of

Act Now! Open enrollment for Affordable Healthcare

BY MARIAELENA LEMUS, SOCIAL SECURITY PUBLIC AFFAIRS SPECIALIST IN FREMONT

Affordable healthcare is something that all Americans deserve. Before the Affordable Care Act (ACA), millions of people and their families were at risk of financial ruin because they were uninsured. Health insurance companies could also deny health insurance coverage due to a preexisting condition like cancer or diabetes. Fortunately, you are now protected with the ACA.

Open enrollment under the Affordable Care Act begins November 1 and lasts until January 31, 2017. If you want your coverage to begin on the first of the year, you will have to enroll by December 15. Now is the time to compare healthcare plans so that you can find the best one for you. You and your clients can learn more about the Health Insurance Marketplace and how to apply for benefits at www.healthcare.gov.

Signed into law on March 23, 2010, the Affordable Care Act provides Americans with better health security by expanding coverage, lowering healthcare costs, guaranteeing more choice, and enhancing the quality of care for all Americans. As of March 2016, 20 million people have gained health insurance coverage—more than 6 million of them uninsured young adults—because of the Affordable Care Act. We now have the lowest uninsured rate in the country's history.

No matter who you are, you are entitled to affordable healthcare. It's a crucial part of securing today and tomorrow. The Affordable Care Act also ensures that even if you have a preexisting condition you will be covered.

If you are already covered and want to change your plan, this is the time to do it. Factors might have changed over the last year that would make you want to update your coverage. Even if you're just curious about the many plans in the open marketplace, you can compare healthcare plans at www.healthcare.gov.

Having coverage for you and your loved ones is a critical part of a healthy and happy life. Make sure you're covered with the plan that best suits you.

Gardening: Eat fruit at peak flavor

BY LEE REICH, ASSOCIATED PRESS SOURCE

Pick up an apple and hold it to your ear. Can you hear it breathing? Of course you can't. But that apple, like any other harvested fruit or nut, is breathing, taking in oxygen and giving off carbon dioxide just as you or I do.

The harvested apple is breathing because it's still alive. If it stops breathing, it will die and taste bad. Being alive, an apple (or any other fruit) is always changing, and the job for us fruit lovers is to bite into it during the window of peak flavor.

TWO KINDS OF FRUITS

Back to the tree: As harvest time approached, sugars were developing and certain "volatiles," or flavor components, began to form. At this point in a fruit's life, we have to distinguish between two groups of fruits.

The first, called nonclimacteric fruits, and including such delicacies as cherries, grapes, raspberries and strawberries, undergoes a smooth transition from unripe to ripe to overripe. These fruits' breathing slows down as ripening is approached and then passed. You pick them when they are perfectly ripe and then, ideally, eat them on the spot, because they're not going to get any better.

Pears and apples are in the second group, climacteric fruits. As they approach maturity, their breathing also slows down. But then, just as peak flavor is developing, they begin panting heavily. This period of heavy panting and peak flavor is short-lived, and soon after it, everything subsides and the fruit is on its way to becoming overripe.

RIPEN AFTER HARVEST?

Once a climacteric fruit reaches a certain maturity, it can be plucked from the tree to finish ripening off the plant. (Not so for nonclimacteric fruits.) What's more, a mature apple or pear can be plucked from the tree and cooled to slow its reaching that climacteric stage. This is convenient for us: We can store mature apples and pears, so abundant now, in the refrigerator, and then take them out later to finish ripening.

All this assumes, of course, that the fruit was picked when truly mature. An apple or pear picked too early will never ripen.

IT'S A GAS

Any climacteric fruit that is about to ripen is spewing out not only carbon dioxide but also a simple gas called ethylene. The more ethylene to which the fruit is exposed, the more heavily it breathes, speeding ripening. And the more heavily it breathes, the more ethylene it gives off. And so on.

So you can retard or promote ripening by letting ethylene escape or by containing it. Bagging fruit, for example, will contain the ethylene. Damage from bruising and pests, incidentally, also promotes ethylene evolution, speeding ripening and, after that, rotting. That's why an apple is often redder around a point of damage, and why "one rotten apple spoils the barrel."

Another way to manipulate ripening is to add ethylene from another source. Burning releases ethylene. This was first realized when pineapple plants fruited sooner the closer they were to the ends of the fields where sugarcane waste was being burned.

Fruit growers have sprays which produce the same effect. Even picking a fruit speeds up ethylene production by releasing the hold of an ethylene inhibitor present in plant leaves.

Some climacteric fruits, such as pear and avocado, cannot ripen to gustatory perfection on the tree. And ripening a pear to perfection takes almost as much skill as growing it on the tree. You must pick the fruit at the appropriate, pre-ripe stage and then, for some pears at least, chill the fruit for a few weeks. After that, the fruits ripen best in a room that is cool (about 65 degrees) and not too dry. It is some trouble, but plant a Magness or Comice pear tree, pick the fruit at the right moment, ripen them carefully, and your taste buds will thank you.

Plein air painter featured in Mission Coffee exhibit

Fremont painter Robyn Lyee Leimer will be sharing her artwork in a month-long exhibit at Mission Coffee beginning November 1.

Leimer was born at Hill Air Force base outside of Ogden, Utah, and spent many summer vacations with her grandparents at their home there. She has many precious memories of time spent with her grandparents on their front porch, looking out at the mountains in the distance, enjoying the beauty and splendor of nature. Leimer has always been enthralled by nature; its delicate perfect lines and symmetry of shapes, as well as the bold bright variations of colors continually capture her eye.

She received her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from San Jose State University and is pursuing her passion on a daily basis focusing primarily on plein air painting (on location). She is continually promoting plein air in her community and in her life's pursuits. After graduation Leimer joined up with the Peninsula Outdoor Painting group (POPs) when she could, but enjoys plein air painting in the East Bay as well. She was instrumental in creating and organizing plein air paint out events with the Fremont Art Association as well as organizing a weekly plein air group for the East Bay called Fremont Art Association Plein Air /East Bay Outdoor Painters (FAAPA/EBOP), which gets together to paint/sketch on Wednesday mornings. Leimer is also a member of the California Art Club, actively participating in the various exhibits, artist painting events, and painting retreats that the club sponsors.

Leimer enjoys the spontaneity of plein air painting, being in the moment, coming up with a composition while capturing the essence from temperature, atmosphere, and feelings evoked around her while finding the truth in nature that is constantly changing.

In her artist statement Leimer says, "I have lived in Fremont for over 30 years and enjoy the challenge of painting plein air. I can see the hills from my front window and what a wonder to behold year round. It is even better when I hike the various locations enjoying the splendor of nature that surrounds me while I work to capture it on canvas as I have done in my painting titled, 'California Gold.'

"Most of the paintings in this exhibit were created at local East Bay resources such as Coyote Hills, Don Edwards, and Ardenwood, but one of my favorite locations to paint is Point Lobos in Carmel. My painting 'Calm Morning' was created there and I can remember how it felt that day while I was painting. Sometimes I am lucky to capture a moment in time before they plow the fields or build on top of certain places that no longer exist, such as my sunset painting titled "Once Upon A Time," which was painted near my home in Warm Springs that is currently going through a major growth spurt.

"I like to work from life, painting plein air or in the studio, setting up a simple still life using ordinary objects or working with a model. It is exciting to me and a great way to train one to see."

Join Leimer and other art lovers at the exhibit's reception on Sunday, November 6.

Thursday, Oct. 20

At 11:37 a.m. Officer Kerner conducted a pedestrian stop and arrested a 46 year old adult female for possession of a controlled substance and possession of wooden knuckles.

At 8:56 p.m. Fremont Police received a 9-1-1 call from a man who stated as he was walking from BART to Cherry Lane. a solo suspect ran up on foot and pointed a black handgun at him. The victim was robbed of his iPhone and cash. The suspect was last seen fleeing on foot southbound on Cherry Lane. The suspect was described as a black male adult, 5-foot-11-inches tall with a skinny build and wearing a dark hoodie.

Friday, October 21, 2016

Officers responded to the 4100 block of Stevenson Blvd to investigate a vandalism report. The caller reported that several homeless people were in an apartment in his complex. These same people had assaulted him the previous day. He also advised that they broke a window to get into the apartment. Officers arrived at the apartment and made entry, but the people had already left. Officers conducted extra patrol checks in the area during the rest of their shifts.

At 1:04 p.m., officers investigated a late reported chain snatch robbery that occurred at approximately 12:00 p.m., near Stevenson Boulevard and Sundale Drive. The victim was walking on Stevenson when the suspect approached from behind on foot and ripped a chain from the victim's neck and ran toward Sundale. The suspect was described as a white male adult, 20-30 years old, tall with a large build, wearing a grey beanie and grey shirt Investigated by Officer Goepf.

At about 4:15 p.m. officers investigated a residential burglary on Omar Street. Community Service Officer Escamilla investigated and located surveillance video from a neighbor depicting two possible suspects. They appeared to be 14-17-year-old males with one wearing a red shirt, dark pants, white shoes, and a grey backpack. The other suspect was wearing a white shirt, black pants, red shoes and a black backpack with white or yellow trim. Loss was a PlayStation 3 and two razor scooters.

At 2:34 a.m. a business on Enterprise Street called dispatch after seeing live video of four burglary suspects inside their business. As units arrived the males ran out the south side of the building and a perimeter was set. A 59-year-old adult male, Los Angeles resident, was found hiding in a vehicle inside the perimeter.

ter. The other suspects likely escaped along the drainage canal along the freeway. Officer Burch handled the investigation.

Saturday, October 22

At 11:47 a.m. Sgt. Alexander stopped a 46-year-old adult female for a vehicle code violation and subsequently arrested her for possession of a dirk/dagger.

An armed robbery occurred at a business on the 46300 block of Mission Blvd. Two suspects entered the business with white handkerchiefs over their faces and demanded money from the clerk. One was armed with a handgun and upon seeing the suspects the clerk fled into the back room. There appeared to be no loss. Officers got behind the vehicle and it immediately crashed into a curb and light pole causing one of the front tires to blow out. A pursuit is started and continued at low speeds for a little over three minutes until the suspect lost control and hit a tree on Nelson Street. Residential Burglary Suspect Arrested

SUBMITTED BY LT. KEVIN MOSCUZZA, MILPITAS P.D.

On October 20, 2016, at approximately 11:36 a.m., Milpitas Police officers responded to an interrupted home burglary on Strickroth Drive. A resident called 9-1-1 after coming home and finding a stranger in the house. The stranger ran out of the house, but the resident was able to quickly tell the 9-1-1 operator where the suspect went and provided a detailed description of the suspect. Based on the information provided by the resident, a detective was on scene in less than two minutes and saw a man matching the description of the suspect near Strickroth Park along Jacklin Road. When the detective tried to stop him, the man ran to Escuela Parkway where he was detained by additional officers.

The suspect detained by officers was identified as Quang Ho, and he had items stolen from the home on Strickroth Drive, including an iPad and a purse that were later returned to the resident. Ho was on parole from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation. He was booked into the Santa Clara County Main Jail for residential burglary, possession of stolen property, possession of burglary tools, and a parole hold.

New EV Charging Stations Available in Downtown Fremont

In support of the transition to a cleaner transportation economy, the City of Fremont has recently completed the installation of eight new publicly accessible, dual-port, Level 2 electric vehicle (EV) charging stations. Six of these stations are located along Capitol Avenue between Fremont Boulevard and State Street, providing 12 on-street EV charging spaces. The other two stations are located in the parking lots of the City of Fremont’s Development Services Center at 39550 Liberty St. and the Central Park Visitor Center (Boathouse) at 1 Sailway Dr. The charging cost is $1.50 per hour, and the stations can be found on the Department of Energy’s Alternative Fueling Station website at www.afdc.energy.gov/locator/stations and on the PlugShare app or their website at www.plugshare.com.

Electric vehicle adoption is a major greenhouse gas reduction initiative, resulting in a cleaner and more sustainable future for our community. Already, nearly 6 percent of Fremont households own at least one EV, and some neighborhoods boast EV ownership levels above 15 percent (View the map at www.Fremont.gov/EVOwnershipMap). In addition, Fremont’s 94539 zip code is home to more electric vehicle drivers than any other zip code in California! The deployment of these new EV charging stations in Downtown Fremont will help to support existing electric vehicle drivers as well as encourage conventional vehicle drivers to consider an EV as their next purchase.

Home Sharing Offers Creative, Affordable Housing Solutions

In an effort to create more affordable housing options for its residents, the City of Fremont is working with Human Investment Project (Hip Housing), a San Mateo based nonprofit that runs one of the nation’s largest Home Sharing programs and has been around for more than 40 years. HIP Housing serves those who are seeking housing who live or work in the City of Fremont and persons with a room to rent who live in Fremont, Newark, and Union City.

The Home Sharing Program creates affordable housing from the existing housing stock by matching people who have spare bedrooms with those looking for a place to live. It is a mutually beneficial solution – those renting out a room in their home (Home Providers) can supplement their income, while those who need a place to live (Home Seekers) can find stability and security at an affordable rate.

HIP Housing has a screening and interview process as well. Each time a home provider rents out space in their home through the program, they receive a number of referrals from HIP. They’re also prepared for the occasional conflicts that may occur when sharing a home. When matches are made, both parties sit down with one of the organization’s experienced counselors to perform a “Living Together Agreement”, wherein they outline the rules, details, musts, and deal-breakers for co-habiting. From there, every participant has long-term counseling available to them for as long as they remain in the program, with the staff serving as an unbiased, professional support system for the clients.

With today’s economic challenges, HIP Housing has seen a sizeable increase in calls about Home Sharing from those hoping to boost their income, those trying to recover from homelessness, and everyone in between.

For more information about HIP Housing’s Home Sharing Program, please contact HIP Housing Coordinator Laura Moya at 510-574-2173; visit Fremont’s Human Services Department at 3300 Capitol Ave., Building B in Fremont, or go to www.Fremont.gov/HomeSharing.

PG&E Tells customers to beware: Don’t be spooked by energy savings urban legends

SUBMITTED BY PACIFIC GAS & ELECTRIC

Urban legends, myths, folklore: call them what you want. This Halloween, Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) is debunking energy savings urban legends by separating fact from fiction around five popular myths that just don’t add up.

Urban Legend: Shifting energy use to the off peak hours during the evening will automatically save you money.

Fact: Shifting your energy usage to the evening will not immediately save you money, unless you’re on a Time-of-Use rate plan. Conserving energy within high-usage hours during the afternoon and early evening benefits everyone by reducing stress on the energy grid.

Urban Legend: Turning off electronics and appliances will eliminate energy use.

Fact: Many electronics and appliances continue to draw energy even when they are turned off. If you want to save more energy, unplug electronics and appliances when they are not in use.

Urban Legend: Vampire appliances draw electricity from outlets when equipment is turned off, but still plugged in. Household electronics such as televisions, computers, and entertainment systems act as energy vampires, typically sucking up to 20 percent of the average home’s energy use.

Fact: With the flip of a switch, customers can easily cut power to multiple devices plugged into a power strip all at once, saving up to $75 each year.

Urban Legend: Leaving a light on uses less energy than turning it off and on again.

Fact: Leaving the light on when leaving a room for a few minutes won’t save energy as opposed to turning it off and on in a short timeframe. In an average home, lighting accounts for nearly 15 percent of electricity costs. Turning lights off when not in the room is a simple way for customers to save approximately $45 a year.

Customers can explore Advanced LED lighting options on PG&E Marketplace, a one stop shop for all energy saving appliances and consumer electronics – including those that offer customers money back via a rebate. LED lighting uses 75 percent less energy than incandescent lightbulbs. By replacing one traditional lightbulb with an LED lightbulb, customers can save $10 each year.

Urban Legend: Electric space heaters save money.

Fact: Running just two electric space heaters can cost the equivalent of heating an entire home with a gas-powered system. Make sure you’re thinking safety first. Try to avoid using space heaters. If a space heater is needed, try not to use your central heating system at the same time.

Urban Legend: Water usage doesn’t impact energy usage.

Fact: Water heating accounts for 20 percent of a typical home’s total energy use. Every 10°F a customer lowers the temperature of their water heater can result in a 5 percent savings in water heating costs, or $20 each year for an average household. PG&E offers customers a rebate for installing solar water heating, which allows them to save energy and money. With solar water heating, customers can reduce their water heating bill by up to 80 percent.

Apple adds keyboard touch functions to Mac in major refresh

BY BRANDON BAILEY
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Apple unveiled long-awaited updates to its Mac computers Oct. 27, aiming to spark consumer interest in a product line often overshadowed by newer gadgets like the iPad and iPhone.

The breakout feature is, as widely speculated, a new touch-sensitive panel on the MacBook Pro, Apple’s top-of-the-line laptop. The touch bar will offer functionality that’s familiar to many iPhone users. It shows word suggestions as you type and lets you scroll through libraries of emojis. When watching movies, the touch bar can offer playback controls. When editing photos, the touch bar changes to offer options to lighten or rotate. It adapts and offers different controls for whatever app or website you’re using.

The Pro will also come with a fingerprint sensor, similar to one in the iPhone, to unlock the device. It can recognize different users and offer quick switching based on the fingerprint. The new Macs will also offer a dedicated key for the Siri voice assistant, a feature added with the MacOS Sierra update last month.

In keeping with recent updates to other Apple products, the company will replace some computer ports with a new USB-C outlet. Connectors using USB-C technology can transmit data faster than older USB jacks. They’re also smaller and have a uniform shape, which means the USB-C jack can be inserted with either side facing up.

Apple unveiled the new Macs at an event at its headquarters in Cupertino, California. During the event, Apple also said it wants to unify television viewing on its streaming TV device with a new app simply called “TV.”

Laptops vs. tablets

The changes to the Mac are the first significant ones in years. Sales of the Mac have been in a slump this year, after a streak of growth in 2014 and 2015 that seemed to defy global trends. Consumers generally are buying fewer PCs and using smartphones or tablets instead.

Apple itself has promoted its latest iPad tablet, the iPad Pro, as a device capable of replacing the laptop for many users. And in contrast with the Mac’s earlier years — when Apple marketed its computers to people who saw themselves as creative professionals or just independent thinkers — Apple has begun promoting the Mac as a computer for business users, too.

Microsoft, traditionally a software company, has begun selling its own line of high-end Surface laptops and this week introduced its first Surface desktop PC. Like the iMac in years past, analysts say the new Surface machine has a premium price and features that will most likely appeal to visual designers and other creative professionals.

For Apple, the Mac line has been eclipsed financially by other products — first the iPod and now the iPhone — that have made far more money in recent years.

Apple sold $22.8 billion worth of Macs in its past fiscal year, although that was just 11 percent of the company’s total revenue. It sold $136 billion worth of iPhones. In the most recent quarter, Apple sold 9.3 million iPads and 4.9 million Macs, although the iPads accounted for just $4.3 billion in sales while the Macs contributed $5.7 billion.

But the Mac has remained a significant product for Apple, and one that’s important to intensely loyal fans. Apple co-founder Steve Jobs introduced the first Macintosh in 1984 with the famous commercial of a woman hurling a hammer at a dystopian overlord, setting the tone for Apple’s corporate marketing strategy in the years to come.

Baby steps in TV

Apple TV is a newer endeavor, and the new TV app could make it easier for viewers to find shows to watch, as it means they don’t have to check individual apps. Amazon’s Fire TV is taking a similar approach with a software update, though the unified experience will be part of the home screen, not an app.

The app, though, is short of a full-fledged streaming-TV service, which reports say Apple has been pursuing. Rather, it brings together TV shows and movies viewers already get through individual subscriptions. The TV app will be synced with iPhones and iPads, so viewers can catch the next episode regardless of device. Apple said its Siri voice assistant will also direct viewers to live events, such as streaming sports.

Apple said Apple TV already has 8,000 apps, including more than 2,000 games. The addictive building game “Minecraft” will come later this year.

Separately, Apple said it is delaying shipment of its wireless AirPods earphones, which had been scheduled for late October. In a statement, the company said, “We don’t believe in shipping a product before it’s ready, and we need a little more time before AirPods are ready for our customers.” Apple didn’t elaborate. A Nike edition of Apple Watch for runners will still go on sale on Friday as planned.

Pack 112 collects food for community

SUBMITTED BY
HEATHER ZENG AND CRYSTAL JONES

The Cub Scouts from Niles Pack 112 will start their annual food drive campaign called "Scouting for Food" on Tuesday, November 1. Scouts will post flyers door-to-door in Niles and the surrounding community in an effort to rally support for canned food donations which will be picked up by the scouts on Saturday, November 19. Pack 112 will join forces in the efforts of roughly 40,000 volunteers in Bay Area Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Venturers and Explorers, to collect cans of food for the annual food drive.

In addition, Boy Scouts has partnered with Lions Clubs to collect used eye glasses to donate to the needy in developing countries. Donations of eye glasses may be placed on top of your food donations on November 19; so, please be sure to set out your items!

"Scouting for Food" was established as a service project by the Boy Scouts of America in 1988 and the annual effort is one of the largest collections of non-perishable food. Food banks have come to rely upon the huge influx of food right before the holidays. Pack 112 hopes to collect 3,000 cans of food this year to help feed the hungry right here in our own communities. Thanks to the Scouts and thousands of parents and volunteers, many people who would otherwise go hungry have food for the holidays.

As a part of the Mission Peak District of the San Francisco Bay Area Council, which encompasses the City of San Francisco and the County of Alameda, Pack 112 is sponsored by Niles Discovery Church and has been serving the Niles community for over 18 years. The collection dropoff will be at the Niles Discovery Church parking lot.

Look for a Scouting for Food flyer on your door beginning November 12. It will have information about the types of food we are collecting. Please place food donations in a recycled bag or box and put it outside in view of the street by 9 a.m. on Saturday, November 19. Your support will be much appreciated!

For more information, please contact Pack 112 through our website at: <http://pack112fremont.scout-lander.com>

THE ROBOT REPORT

BY FRANK TOBE

"When the greater public thinks about exoskeletons, they generally think of the robotic suits you might find in a Marvel comic," said Samantha, COO of Open Bionics. "The reality is that with exoskeletons, we are just scratching the surface of this technology!"

Ideally, a robotic suit would be light, strong, flexible, agile, affordable, and have hours worth of power. However, this isn't realistic at the moment. If you want a strong robotic device, you need decent motors which are heavy and expensive. If you have strong motors, you need decent power, but batteries are also heavy, take up room, and they won't last for hours. So, your suit can't be light. For the exoskeleton in the Iron Man movies to exist in reality a number of technologies will need to advance and improve. The ultimate exoskeleton is dependent upon the progression of these other technologies.

"My two cents about the exoskeleton/prostheses market is less on rehab and enabling the disabled, but instead on augmenting either in full (skeletons) or in part (gloves, fingers, feet, legs)," said Frank Tobe, Editor for The Robot Report. "The disabled market is difficult whereas worker augmentation represents big money – the gloves alone could be a multi-billion dollar business very soon."

"For example, General Motors, which has been trying to adapt their NASA Robonaut hand to factory worker assistance, has partnered with BioServo Technologies, who developed a therapeutic glove, to make a factory-worker glove for workers who regularly grasp things. There are many other glove makers doing the same thing. Another example is Japan's health ministry through Cyberdyne and other agencies attempting to empower seniors with exoskeletons to help them garden (squatting, reaching, kneeling and lifting) and be mobile with non-medical partial skeletons. Many university labs are working on variations on this," said Frank.

Are these technologies about human augmentation (read super-human powers), or really about empowering those that are disabled, weakened?

"I don't see how it makes sense to give people super-human powers, aside from improving endurance (when carrying loads – HULC is an example)," said Maciej Pietrusinski, President and Founder for AndrosRobotics. "We already have examples of exoskeletons (non-antropomorphic) which give people the ability to traverse the landscape and cover 150 km in 2 hours (bicycle), and it does so without exposing our bodies to harm (except when we fall off the bike).

"An exoskeleton that is meant to give us faster-running abilities would also subject our body to injury. Our bones get stronger with time as they are subject to higher stresses, partially as a response to our muscles growing stronger as we mature, and donning an exoskeleton to give us super-human speed or strength could result in an injury. So empowering the disabled is a much better use of exoskeletons," said Maciej.

"These technologies are about restoring functionality to the human body," said Samantha. "They are robotic tools designed to offer a greater degree of independence and a higher quality of life to people who are differently able. However, some of these devices enhance or go beyond the abilities of the human body. For example, some of the new bionic wrists will be able to turn 360 degrees. This is an interesting area of augmentation and indicative of future artificial limbs that will go beyond merely offering to restore functionality."

Restoring functionality and living "as a normal two-armed person" is what amputee Melissa Loomis states in an interview on Motherboard. The technology being looked at called Modular Prosthetic Limb (MPL) interprets and converts signals from the body's nervous system to motion. When the MPL interacts with an object, signals from over 100 sensors send info back to the brain, creating a sense of touch. The pay-off is that Melissa will be able to access sensory information in her prosthetic. The arm learns how to understand what you want to do, as opposed to you learning how to control the arm.

The Robohub Roundtable thinks that areas in Industrial; Healthcare 1) rehabilitation 2) disabilities; Military; Entertainment (sports); and Services (renting exoskeletons to help at home) are all areas that could be considered applicable for advancements in prosthetics, especially exoskeletons.

Tri-City and LOV Thanksgiving Dinner

SUBMITTED BY SHIRLEY SISK

Joining hands and hearts again this year, The League of Volunteers (LOV), is working with local Tri-City service organizations to ensure that their clients as well as others have a wonderful Thanksgiving complete with good food and fellowship. The feast and festivities are for all those who would spend the day alone or who do not have the resources, either money or shelter to enjoy the traditional Thanksgiving Day meal.

The freezers are empty and ready - and LOV is waiting for 300 turkeys and 70 hams. Last year, 4,690 meals were served either at the Newark Pavilion or to the homebound in Fremont, Newark, Union City, Hayward, San Leandro, San Lorenzo and Castro Valley. Besides turkeys and hams there is need for: 400 pies (all kinds – not just pumpkin), 600 oval aluminum roasting pans, 200 loaves of sandwich bread and all the other ingredients to make for a memorable Thanksgiving holiday.

Those who come to the Newark Pavilion for the meal will enjoy an afternoon of good food, entertainment, and children's crafts. In addition we will try to give a free box of food to every family - depending on donations received. In order to make it easier for guests without transportation, volunteers will personally pick up those who need rides in Fremont, Newark and Union City. All guests have to do is call LOV's Program/Development Director, Sharon Slayton at (510) 793-5683, by November 18, to schedule a "Turkey Taxi" for a ride.

For those who are homebound, meals will be delivered to Fremont, Newark, Union City, Hayward, San Leandro, San Lorenzo and Castro Valley. Many of these are Meals on Wheels clients who really appreciate a hot Thanksgiving Day meal and a little companionship. For homebound meals call Assistant Executive Director Harold Colon at (510) 793-5683.
