Tri-City Craft Breweries on the rise

By David R. Newman

The Bay Area is well known for its restaurant scene, providing foodies with a staggering number of delicious options. But what's not as well known is the great variety of high quality drinking establishments in the area – namely, craft breweries. More and more home brewers are becoming professional brewers, opening up small, local taprooms, enriching communities with their specialty beers, tasty food, games, and live music.

The Brewers Association (BA) defines a craft brewery as any independent brewery that uses innovative ingredients with an annual production of six million barrels of beer or less. In 2008, there were about 1,500 of these craft breweries nationwide. This number has grown to over 4,000 in 2016. And the California Craft Beer Association estimates that there are more than 710 breweries in operation across the state as of September 2016, up from 600 at the end of 2015.

This is evident throughout the East Bay, where new craft breweries are popping up left and right. Nico Freccia and his business partner, Shaun O'Sullivan, run the 21st Amendment brewpub in San Francisco. When the time came to expand, they chose a former Kellogg factory in San Leandro as the site of their new 150,000 square foot production brewery and tasting room, which opened last year. Says Freccia, "The City of San Leandro is really high on revitalizing, using these old industrial spaces for higher uses. They have been really welcoming and helped streamline the process."

The six-time Grammy-nominated folk singer John McCutcheon will again sing to Fremont on Monday, January 16 at Saint James' Episcopal Church. In his 14th appearance on that concert stage he will draw from his 38 recordings, including his just issued "Trolling for Dreams." According to the CD liner notes McCutcheon "demonstrates once again why he is one of the most distinctive voices in modern folk music, as well as one of its most versatile, powerful, and prolific writers."

Indeed, powerful portrays one of McCutcheon's attributes on stage. And energetic describes his stage presence as he moves from one instrument to another for the right accompaniment to a song. Audiences marvel at his musicianship – guitar, banjo, hammer dulcimer, fiddle, piano and more – he's a master. The "Dreams" liner notes should mention McCutcheon's storytelling, which is just as entertaining as the songs he sings.

The legendary Pete Seeger wrote that John McCutcheon "is committed to helping hard-working people everywhere to organize and push this world in a better direction." In July 2015, on the St. James' concert stage, McCutcheon portrayed the last night on earth of the labor organizer Joe Hill. On Labor Day 2013 he helped dedicate the new

"deportee" memorial in Fresno. McCutcheon's activism incorporates song and real action.

Prepare for a rousing evening concert on Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, and practice to sing along with McCutcheon as well. For tickets, call (510) 797-1492, ext. 4, or e-mail events@saintj.com. For more about the artist, go to www.folkmusic.com. A portion of the proceeds from this concert will be donated to Abode Services.

What is Mental Illness Learn the Facts

We talk about "mental illness" and "mental health" but what do those terms really mean?

Dr. Seema Sehgal, a psychiatrist at Washington Hospital's Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Science, will discuss "Understanding Mental Illness" at a free community seminar on Thursday, Feb. 2.

The educational seminar, open to all those interested in learning more about mental illness and mental health, will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium at Washington West, 2500 Mowry Ave., in Fremont.

"How we define mental health is different for each person," Dr. Sehgal says. "Mental illness is a spectrum and is too broad to be defined in general terms as 'one size fits all.' In addition, it carries a stigma which prevents patients from talking about their illness as freely as they would a physical ailment."

Over time, mental illness has been marginalized and separated from mainstream medical conditions. This has led to mental illness being considered taboo in many communities. "We talk about having diabetes, ulcers and gluten intolerance, but we never talk about our 'mental' illness," Dr. Sehgal adds.

"When you say you have a mental illness, what exactly are you talking about?" she asks. "Break down what you are feeling: 'I feel anxious' or 'I feel depressed.' Specific descriptions make it easier to talk about what you are experiencing."

Washington Hospital website, www.whhs.com

Dr. Sehgal will discuss the various environmental and genetic factors that may cause mental illness. These include trauma, biochemical changes, genetic predisposition and lifestyle choices.

Dr. Sehgal notes that many myths surround the term "mental illness." Quite often people believe that patients with mental illness are violent, or doomed to living an unproductive life. That is inaccurate, she argues.

She will explain some of the more common manifestations of mental illness: for example, major depression, anxiety disorders, bipolar illness, and psychotic disorders such as schizophrenia.

Dr. Sehgal also will discuss ways to foster mental health. "We need to know ourselves and learn to recognize early warning signs of mental stress. Left unaddressed, these may trigger symptoms of mental illness over time."

Using stress management techniques such as yoga and meditation as well as making healthy lifestyle choices can go a long way in fostering mental health.

The most important thing is to know when to seek professional help, Dr. Sehgal emphasizes.

Investing in the Health of Our Community Through the Washington Wellness Center

New for 2017: Balance Matters and Pilates

You've made your 2017 New Year's resolutions. If you are like most Americans, those resolutions include things like exercise, eating right and other important ways to affect your health in a positive way.

Yet, have you thought about the importance of wellness programs and how they can guide you on a journey to the best health possible?

We're here to help. Washington Wellness Center offers a full series of popular and inexpensive services that take wellness – and helping you stay well – to a whole new level. And, they have some exciting new offerings for 2017.

"This year, we're launching two new programs," said Wellness Center concierge Jessica Neely. "I think they are a good addition to our Wellness Programs and will be well received."

Pilates premiers Wednesdays, beginning January 11.

"We're really excited to offer this proven method for teaching all of us how to build our core and achieve body symmetry," Neely explained. For those who have not heard of Pilates, it's a series of resistance-training exercises that condition the whole body, and are suitable for all ages and all types of people. "Building your core through Pilates can reduce your risk for injury, as well as improve your ability to recover from injuries."

Balance Matters is a weekly class and begins January 17. This class is an evidence-based program to improve strength, balance and flexibility.

"This is a program that can help all adults," added Neely. "But, the primary focus is on empowering those who may limit themselves and their activities due to a fear of falling."

The new offerings build on a large and successful series of programs and services that the Washington Hospital community has come to depend on.

"We have something for everyone," said Neely, "from Heartfulness Meditation to Tai Chi and Candlelit Yoga. Also, our massage programs are really popular, and they offer everything from Swedish massage to prenatal massage." (PS: Want a great gift for that special person? "We have massage specials for Valentine's Day," Neely hinted.)

Hindus seek Diwali holiday in California

SUBMITTED BY RAJAN ZED

Hindus are urging all 1,025 public school districts of California to declare an official holiday on Diwali, the most popular of their festivals. They are also urging California's 1,222 charter schools, about 3,170 private schools and all independent schools also to adopt Diwali as an official holiday on their 2017-2018 school year calendars.

Hindu statesman Rajan Zed, in a recent statement, pointed out that it would be a step in the positive direction in view of the presence of a substantial number of Hindu students at schools around the state, and importantly to meet the religious and spiritual needs of these pupils. Some school districts in New York, New Jersey and Maryland have reportedly already declared Diwali as a holiday.

Zed, who is President of Universal Society of Hinduism, indicated that schools should make efforts to accommodate the religious requirements of Hindu students and show respect to their faith by not conducting regular business and scheduling classes on Diwali. Parents do not want these students to be put at an unnecessary disadvantage for missing tests/examinations/papers, assignments, class work, etc.; by taking a day-off to observe Diwali.

Rajan Zed asked, "If California schools close on other religious holidays, why not Diwali? Holidays of all major religions should be honored and no one should be penalized for practicing their religion," he added.

Zed further says that Hinduism is rich in festivals and religious festivals are very dear and sacred to Hindus. Diwali, the festival of lights, aims at dispelling the darkness and lighting up the lives and symbolizes the victory of good over evil. Besides Hindus; Sikhs and Jains and some Buddhists also celebrate Diwali, which falls on October 19 in 2017.

Hinduism is the oldest and third largest religion of the world with about one billion adherents and moksh (liberation) is its ultimate goal. There are about three million Hindus in the U.S.

Are you 'shoulding' on yourself?

By Anne Chan, PhD, MFT

Have you ever said any of the following to yourself?

- I should exercise more.
- I should watch what I eat.
- I should go the gym.
- I should spend more time with my kids.
- I should be more patient with my kids.
- I shouldn't be so angry.
- I should post less on Facebook.
- I should be more organized.
- I should pay my bills on time. I should get started on my taxes.

When we make these "should" statements, we have lofty aims to become better people. All of us want to be in better shape, be more organized, and be better parents and partners.

But how well does it work when you make these "should" statements? How many times have you said, "I should exercise more" and then actually head happily and regularly to the gym?

My guess is you haven't gotten more organized or become fitter as a result of "shoulding" on yourself (me neither!)

Why is this so?

I invite you to try a simple experiment to find out: Pay careful attention to how you feel internally when you use the word "should." For most of us, statements like "I should spend more time with my kids" or "I should eat fewer potato chips" create tension, discomfort, guilt and anxiety. This is because the word "should" is like a double-edged sword: it describes what you hope to be, but at the same time, reminds you (in a critical way) that you are not your ideal self. In this state of negative emotions, you feel disempowered to do the very thing you said you "should" do. In fact, using the word "should" can even decrease the likelihood that you will do whatever you're supposed to be doing.

The same is true if you make statements using the word "should" for other people, e.g. "He should help out around the house more," or "She should be more appreciative," or "He should pick up after himself." When you make these "should" statements with others in mind, you are hoping for positive change; you want your kids to be more responsible and your partner to be a better contributor to the relationship and the household. However, you're not likely to get very far if you start on a "should" offensive. Few will respond to a "should" criticism with a "Boy, you're so right. I am a lazy and messy slob. I will change my ways. Thank you for pointing out my defects." Chances are, instead of being grateful and receptive to change, your partner and children will be resistant and defensive when you tell them what they should or should not be doing.

I have a New Year special challenge that won't cost you anything except the potential benefit of feeling better about yourself and the world. Let's all try to replace our "shoulds" with "coulds." Here's how you can do this: first, notice when you say the word "should" either verbally or internally. Just note what you are doing without judgment or harshness. Then tell yourself, in a compassionate way, that you are going to reformulate the statement. Reword the statement with the word "could" or even with the words "would like to." Pay close attention to how this makes you feel. This gentle shift might pleasantly surprise you by creating room for growth and change. It's like enjoying a kindly invitation as opposed to a harsh command. After shifting from "should" to "could," you "could" also mull over the benefits of the desired action. So instead of the punishing "I should exercise," try saying "I could exercise and it will help me feel stronger and more relaxed."

I hope this article will help you keep your New Year's (and old year) resolutions. Have a happy and should-free New Year and Lunar New Year, everyone!

Faith traditions come together to forge deeper understanding

SUBMITTED BY TRI-CITIES INTERFAITH COUNCIL

Tri-Cities Interfaith Council is thrilled to announce that on Saturday, February 4, they will host the Tri-Cities third annual World Interfaith Harmony Celebration. World Interfaith Harmony Week was proclaimed by the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) in 2010, in a resolution that states, "Mutual understanding and interreligious dialogue constitute important dimensions of a culture of peace and so UNGA establishes World Interfaith Harmony Week as a way to promote harmony between all people regardless of their faith."

The local lead organizer of the event, Moina Shaiq, is a member of the Alameda County Human Relations Commission and founder of the Muslim Support Network. She said she wanted this event to happen in Fremont, "to build bridges of understanding, respect and support among diverse people of faith through education, dialogue and socialization and to strengthen family and community in solidarity with others across lines of race, class and religion."

The afternoon event will give space for many different faith traditions to be represented by their local communities. Participants from local communities of Athiest, Baha'i, Buddhist, Christian, Hindu, Jewish, Muslim, Sikh, Unitarian Universalist and more, will have booths showcasing their beliefs, traditions and sacred objects. There will also be space for intentional small group conversations wherein people will be encouraged to respectfully explore the beliefs of others as well as to share their own. The event will take place at Niles Discovery Church in Fremont.

"A core value of my faith tradition is that we get stronger through our differences, which means hearing the stories of people from different cultures, ethnicities, and backgrounds is essential to our progress as humans," said Rev. Jeremy D. Nickel, the local Unitarian Universalist minister at Mission Peak UU in Fremont. He added, "With events like these, the Tri-City Interfaith Council is trying to create opportunities where exactly this kind of sharing can take place. It is a lot harder to stereotype people once you meet them and hear who they are."

Anyone is welcome to attend, from any or no faith at all!

The big thing in TV sets this year is ... big TV sets

By MAE ANDERSON AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

What's new in television sets this year? Incrementally better pictures, larger screens and cheaper prices — and that's about it.

True, set manufacturers are bombarding consumers with a whole series of buzzwords — OLED, 4K, 8K, HDR, QLED, wide color gamut — intended to spur excitement and generate sales. Flashy new sets with these supposedly "must have" features got the spotlight at the annual CES gadget show held Jan. 5-8 in Las Vegas.

But when it comes down to it, none of these amount to revolutionary improvements for your living room. Set manufacturers may not have run out of technological tricks yet, but for this year, at least, they're reduced to improving what's already out there.

"That's a good thing," said Gartner analyst Brian Blau, looking for the bright side. "Products need to be improved."

Trapped in the box

Set manufacturers are in a bind. Gadgets like virtual-reality headsets and smartphones have snagged much of the buzz that flashy new TVs once had.

And while all sorts of other gadgets are getting more intelligent, so-called smart TVs that manage streaming-video services and let you play games have largely left consumers cold. Instead, the brains behind such features have largely migrated to set-top boxes offered by the likes of Roku, Apple and Amazon or by cable companies themselves.

So TV makers like Samsung and LG have doubled down on what they know best: screen technology.

These days, you're seeing a lot more marketing buzz about "4K" sets, which offer twice the screen resolution of today's high definition, or HD, sets. 4K technology is making a push into the mainstream this year, as prices come down and video providers offer more 4K streaming and channels.

The next step in picture clarity is on its way with so-called 8K sets, which offer four times the resolution of HD, although the technology remains out of reach for most people. During the Summer Olympics last year, for instance, experimental 8K broadcasts were limited to public viewing areas in Japan.

Seeing in color

Some TV makers are pushing curved-screen models, which aim to provide more immersive viewing by giving viewers a wider image via their peripheral vision. They're also touting improvements in color.

OLED screen technology produces better colors in part because it doesn't have to be backlit the way standard TVs do. But it's more expensive. LG, which has sold the majority of OLED sets, announced a high-end, ultra-slim model that's less than 4 millimeters (0.15 inch) thick; its price won't be revealed until February. Sony also announced OLED sets at CES.

Samsung, meanwhile, has been touting "quantum dot" technology, including a refined version called "QLED." Quantum dot is essentially a layer of materials for purer colors and brighter displays. LG, Samsung and others also have "high-dynamic range," or HDR, for brighter whites, darker blacks, and a wider range of colors. TCL has an HDR variant called Dolby

Does it matter?

Whether the average human eye can really appreciate all this particularly on smaller screens — is another matter. The 4K sets, for instance, offer sharper pictures than older HD screens, but the difference is nowhere as dramatic as the change from older standard definition to HD.

And some of these technologies improve video only for the few movies and shows that support them. For now, technologies like HDR are high-end features for high-end sets, just as 4K was a few years ago.

Ed Morrissey, a writer in Minneapolis, recently bought a 55-inch Samsung 4K TV with a curved screen and HDR, in part to future-proof a purchase he could be living with for almost a decade. "If I'm going to do something new, I want to make sure I have the emerging technology," he said.

It's far from clear, however, which of the color technologies will become standard. Buyers like Morrissey could end up stranded if, for instance, HDR fails to take off — just as buyers of 3-D sets were after the technology flopped.

TV manufacturers are taking some other steps to make their sets more useful. Gagnon said he expects announcements from TV makers about how their sets will work with new home hubs such as the Amazon Echo and Google Home. And Samsung, Philips and others are allowing people to use smartphones and tablets and voice control to better navigate through channels and streaming

Running for 4K

About 19 percent of TVs sold in the U.S. in the past year were 4K, up from just 7 percent a year earlier, according to NPD. That's expected to increase to about one-third of TV sales in 2017, as TV makers unveil more models at a wider range of prices, including budget options.

But HDTVs still suffice for many, especially those uninterested in large screens. 4K makes a difference only when the screen is large enough and the couch close

"4K is kind of too much for the amount of time I use it," said John Murphy, a Barnstable, Massachusetts, retiree who bought a 50-inch Samsung HD TV recently to replace his 10-year-old Sony 42-incher.

A buying opportunity

High-end screens and other technologies that were out of reach for most TV shoppers are becoming much more affordable. Consumers are snapping up bargains. NPD says there were 37.4 million TV units sold in the U.S. in the 12 months ending in September, up 4 percent from a year ago. Over that time, the average TV selling price dropped 3 percent to $432.

For some buyers, lower prices means a chance to upgrade to bigger sets. Jon Abt, co-president of Abt Electronics retail store near Chicago, said the 55-inch "sweet spot" TV size for the family room seems to have jumped to 65-inch and larger.

NPD said that 23 percent of all TVs sold were 55 inches or bigger, up from 20 percent a year earlier. "We've seen strength across all categories, small screen, large screen, older technology and newer tech," NPD analyst Stephen Baker said. He said the combination of lower prices, picture quality and screen size has "brought a lot of customers back into the market."

Shape Our Fremont

Where Fremont residents can learn about shaping proposed housing developments

New Year Brings New Developments

The new year in Fremont will bring new members to the City Council, new members to the Planning Commission, and lots of new development proposals for them to consider. It will also bring new opportunities for residents to voice their comments and concerns about the shape Fremont is taking as it grows. Here are a few new developments on the horizon.

City Center Apartments

A development partnership is proposing to build a four-story affordable housing apartment building on Fremont Boulevard across from Washington High School. The property is currently occupied by Auto 4 Less.

The project is designed to provide housing for people with extremely-low incomes and will include a total of 60 units: 30 studios, 29 one-bedroom units, and a single two-bedroom unit for the manager. Vehicle parking for the residents will consist of 30 uncovered spaces at the rear of the site. The property is designated Urban density in the Fremont General Plan, and is within walking distance of several stores, schools, and the Centerville Community Park.

Direct your questions and comments to the assigned City Staff Project Planner James Willis at jwillis@fremont.gov

Thornton Avenue Mixed-Use

A preliminary proposal to build a five-story building at the corner of Thornton Avenue and Post Street, directly north of the Artists' Walk project, has been revised to reduce the number of units and lower the overall height in response to comments from residents and city staff.

The new proposal is for a four-story, mixed-use building with commercial space and parking on the ground floor and 54 condominiums on the upper three floors. The condos will include 21 one-bedroom units and 33 two-bedroom units. All parking for the residential units will be on the site, with additional parking for guests and the commercial customers along Post Street. This property is zoned for Urban density and is located in the Centerville ACE/AMTRAK Transit Oriented Development Overlay, as well as the Centerville Town Center. Direct your questions and comments to the assigned City Staff Project Planner Steve Kowalski at skowalski@fremont.gov

501 Crystalline Drive

The original request to build 36 three-story houses on a site near the South Mission Boulevard I-680 interchange in Warm Springs was changed as a result of comments from city staff. The current request is to build 28 two-story houses on the upper portion of the sloping hillside property and leave the remaining portion of the property as open space. Access will be off Crystalline Drive.

Because the land is designated as Open Space-General in the Fremont General Plan, the request to build any houses must first go though the city's General Plan Amendment (GPA) Prioritization Process in order to convert the upper portion of the site to a designation of Residential Hillside. If approval and priority for the GPA is obtained, the developer can then submit a formal application for a full development review.

The developer recognizes that a GPA is a serious request and has offered to provide affordable housing funds in an amount 30 percent greater than the city's requirements, as well as make a school district contribution in the amount of $1.2 million over the required fees.

Direct your questions and comments to the assigned City Staff Project Planner Wayland Li at wli@fremont.gov

Hobbs Residential

Plans for this project on Mission Boulevard underwent a last-minute revision. As a result, the Planning Commission hearing date was moved to Thursday, January 26.

The new plans reduced the number of new houses from 56 to 55, increased the size of several lots, and lengthened a few of the driveways. Otherwise there were no significant changes.

Direct your questions and comments to the assigned City Staff Project Planner Bill Roth at broth@fremont.gov

Washington Place

The Planning Commission hearing for a proposal to replace two vacant one-story houses on Washington Boulevard with 14 three-story houses—grouped in pairs, called duets—has also been moved to Thursday, January 26.

The development site is a steeply sloping piece of land next to the southbound I-680 off ramp. It is currently designated as Low Density Residential in the General Plan with a zoning for R-1 single-family houses. The developer is asking for numerous exceptions to the R-1 standards by proposing to change the zoning to a Planned District.

Lawsuit seeks to ban Google from US government contracts

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), The U.S. Labor Department is trying to bar Google from doing business with the federal government unless the internet company turns over confidential information about thousands of its employees.

The potential banishment is being sought in a Labor Department lawsuit filed Wednesday with the Office of Administrative Law Judges.

The complaint alleges that Google has repeatedly refused to provide the Labor Department with employee compensation records and other information as part of an audit designed to ensure the Mountain View, California, company isn't discriminating against workers based on gender or race.

Google says it provided hundreds of thousands of records in an attempt to comply with the Labor Department's requests, but has rebuffed some of the agency's demands as an invasion of employee

Tri-City Stargazer For Week: January 11 – January 17, 2017

For All Signs: Last week there was a dramatic grouping of planets in the cardinal signs, Aries, Cancer, Libra, and Capricorn. The Full Moon on Jan. 12 probably triggered dramas both personal and global. At the same time, Mercury, planetary ruler of travel, routine business and communications, turned direct at 4:43 am on Jan. 8. From that point there is a three-week period of revisions and reorganizing. The general functions of life will move along more smoothly after Jan. 27. You can anticipate a small flurry of changes in schedules and appointments near Jan. 27 as people become clear about their plans for the next few weeks. Decisions, temporarily shelved, can now be settled and contracts are more likely to be viable. At that point it will be time to put property up for sale or apply for a loan with the expectation of more favorable results.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): Your charisma is powerful and you can be at your most persuasive now. Manipulation in order to get what you want is not necessary. Step aside from such temptations. Activities requiring physical energy are accented and favored now. You have a need to refresh your spirit. Give it attention and do that which speaks to your soul.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Your need to serve humanity in some way is strongly activated at this time. You may be tending a sick friend or serving in a soup kitchen. Your senses are wide open to the energies around you. You may have psychic flashes or unusual dreams. Don't shoulder all the problems you see or you will burn out quickly.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Your attention shifts to matters of shared resources for the next three weeks. "Resources" include time, things of material value, energy and sexuality. The territory is wide, ranging from the mundane study of the budget all the way to important discussions with partners over the need for greater intimacy.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You are in a reasonably good place with yourself at this time. Your heart and mind are flowing together. You have no conflict between your feelings and your thoughts about those feelings. This is a time for reflection on important subjects. You can make good decisions now. It is a good time to communicate with partners freely.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): Your work or daily routine takes on a quality of intensity this week. Family and home matters may play a part in the situation. Concentrate on breathing deeply and moving with deliberation. It is possible that you feel more emotional than the situation deserves. Take a step back and look at it from a larger perspective. This is likely to be something that affects you, but is not about you.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Mercury, your ruling planet, moves into the sector of life related to children, recreation, personal creativity, and romance. Your attention will be focused in these areas for the next three to four weeks. You will enjoy everything more if you can put your Inner Critic in a box and lock it down while you play.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Events of this week trigger your sense of compassion and draw you into the need to assist in the healing of another. As you live into this experience, you will discover that having compassion also heals you. Your spirit is lifted. Don't ignore the call.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): This is a good time to take an active part in the healing of your child or a lover. Activities requiring physical energy are accented and favored now. You have a need to get out and about to refresh your spirit.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): You are in an especially cordial frame of mind at this time, and likely to invite people to your home, or to share whatever you have to offer. Your spirits are high and you have a need to be social. You are interested in whatever feels luxurious, looks beautiful, or tickles the senses. Going overboard could be all too easy!

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): Mercury travels rapidly through your sign between Mar. 12 and Feb. 7 this year. During this period, there likely will be greater emphasis on communications, errands, and other short distance travels. Your mind will be quick and your attitude persuasive. This is a good period to attend to scholastic and/or written and oral projects.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Either you or others in your life are behaving erratically. It is difficult to make firm plans or sustain a solid conversation. This sometimes generates a rift between you and another because one of you needs to be alone.

Don't fight it. Just let it be. It is temporary. Take it with two spoons of generosity and humor.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Your attitude about yourself is not altogether accurate right now. You may think way too much of your ideas, or alternately, you may see yourself as lower than scum. Neither is accurate and you should probably not make decisions of any importance this week. Spiritual pursuits are given a "go" signal.

Mission Peak Wind Symphony

SUBMITTED BY MISSION PEAK WIND SYMPHONY

Come and experience "Dawn" as Mission Peak Wind Symphony (MPWS) ushers in a new season on the evening of Saturday, January 21, at Chabot College, Hayward.

Following the opening fanfare, "Prelude to the Shining Day"by YoGoto, the audience will get to appreciate Gustav Holst's "The First Suite in E-flat," one of the cornerstone masterworks in concert band repertoire. Premiered in 1920, the Suite was the British composer's first piece of music written for military band; yet, it managed to convince many other prominent composers at that time that serious music for large ensembles could be written beyond the orchestral format and, specifically, for the combination of woodwinds, brass, and percussion.

Each of the three movements of the Suite is carefully crafted such that the full dynamic and stylistic range of the group is showcased by the time that the final March reaches its conclusion. The value of Holst's composition is demonstrated in John Mackey's "Aurora Awakes" when the final chord of Holst's first movement is borrowed for Mackey's own final chord. Given that the wind ensemble genre is fairly new in the grand scheme, this type of "vertical programming," where one piece of music being played is directly influenced by another, is rare. Be sure to look for this subtle relationship as the goddess of dawn rises to break the day!

While "Dawn" suggests a new beginning, it also holds new challenges. Inspired by the true story of a Japanese fishing boat that was contaminated at sea by a nuclear weapons test in 1954, Hirokazu Fukushima composed "Eternal Memoir: The Saga of the Lucky Dragon." Through his work, he seeks to bring about empathy to the tragedy, and greater awareness to the nuclear challenges that we all face. Fukushima has traced and expressed the truth of the event. Then in the brighter half of the piece, the boat's spirit is portrayed as a dragon breathing life and rising to heaven.

MPWS's season-opener, with the guest appearance of Castro Valley High School music students, carries a special personal meaning to Music Director Travis Nasatir. He grew up in the Castro Valley school system and performed in the band, orchestra, and jazz program of Castro Valley High School in his freshman year. He then transferred to the San Francisco School of the Arts (SOTA) and studied under Steven Hendee. "My time at SOTA was highly influential in my musical development and understanding of wind band as an art form. Steve [Hendee] was the primary source of my education there," recalled Nasatir. "It is my pleasure to share the stage with my former teacher as he directs the Castro Valley High School Wind Ensemble."

Pat Kite's Garden

Morning Glories

nce again, with my usual gardener's winter masochism, I am ordering morning glory seeds. This is the fault of seed companies that send me catalogues. I want to grow everything pictured, despite the fact that I have no more garden room. Plus, I have never succeeded in growing morning glories from scratch. The only ones I have, came already sprouted in a garage-sale pot.

Undeterred, this time I ordered "Morning Glory Cardinal Climber," proclaimed as giving "small bright red flowers" all summer long. Since I have no more ground space, I am determined to grow vines up my ancient birch trees. There are 400-plus morning glories (Ipomoea) varieties. These include Sunrise Serenade, Kniola's purple-black, Yama Pink, Yama blue white blush, Sora deep purple, Scarlet O'Hara, Chocolate, Red Picotee, La Vie en Rose, Flying Saucers, Kikyozaki Milky Way, White Snowman, and Royal Robe, etc.

There are also morning glories for the night garden. If you plant them in the same area, you can have flowers morning and evening. All one has to do is soak the seeds, which have a hard, protective cover, in water for about 24 hours. Keep this potion in a sheltered place away from dogs, cats and kids, as the seeds can make them quite sick. After soaking, plant in early spring in ordinary garden soil. It should be a sunny spot near something they can climb on.

Morning glory vines can get to about 10 feet high. Depending on which reference, morning glories may have come to us from Mexico, the seeds wandering via the Spanish monasteries. However, morning glories were extensively used in China long before that, coming from China to Japan in the 9th century.

Since I like stories, here is a pretty romantic one from

Making it count: children contribute to science

By Toshali Goel

Although the holiday season has come to a close and routine life is falling back into place, a fun reminder of Christmastime is coming to Fremont. Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge is hosting its 2nd "Christmas Bird Count for Kids" event on Saturday, January 21. Attendees will go out to various trails at the refuge and Coyote Hills Regional Park with experienced birders and record all the species they see over a period of 90 minutes, then return to headquarters to present their findings. The data from the Bird Count will later be entered into eBird, an online tool for birders to discover and share their own birding discoveries.

The event is an offshoot of the original Christmas Bird Count, hosted by the National Audubon Society. Frank M. Chapman, a member of Audubon, first launched Audubon's Bird Count program in 1900, based entirely on volunteers to gather a census of early-winter bird populations. It was created as a conservationist alternative to the traditional Christmas "Side Hunt," in which hunters competed to kill as many birds and mammals as possible. The Audubon Bird Counts are conducted between December 14 and January 5 each year. They soon caught the attention of local areas within California. Don Edwards Outdoor Recreation Planner Carmen Minch discovered it through local participants. "Sonoma Birding had started this event a few years ago and encouraged the refuge to hold an event in January. We agreed that it would be a fun and exciting way to introduce kids to bird watching, wildlife, and citizen science."

The Don Edwards event turns the focus onto education and children, while maintaining the original intent of furthering scientific research. "Kids will look at and identify birds with the help of experienced bird leaders from Coyote Hills Regional Park, San Francisco Bay Bird Observatory, San Francisco Bay Wildlife Society, and Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge," said Minch. "Kids will learn how to look for birds, identify birds, how to conduct surveys, and how this data can help with conservation." Children and adults alike will experience firsthand what it is like to contribute to society and citizen science, which is the collection and analysis of data by members of the general public, typically in collaboration with professional scientists.

The refuge is home to various species of an array of animals, including birds. "One of the reasons the Don Edwards

San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge was created was to protect migratory birds and their habitats," said Minch. "Nearly 300 species of birds have been sighted in the 30,000-acre refuge. Peak numbers are during the migrations in spring and fall when birds are migrating through. Winter is also a good time to see birds, as many birds spend the winter in the San Francisco Bay Area." The rich background and diversity in species at Don Edwards makes it the ideal location to host the Bird Count. "Last year, 34 species and 798 birds were counted. The likely suspects snowy egrets, turkey vulture, golden-crowned sparrows, American avocets, black-necked stilts, mallards, and yellowlegs. But, you never know what you'll see!"

The Bird Count is free and recommended for ages 8–16.

Creating a Home Gym

hether you're a soccer mom (or dad) shuttling the kids around, a retiree needing to stay in shape, or a worker stuck all day behind a desk, most of us could probably benefit from more exercise. The challenge, especially in the Bay Area, is finding the time and motivation. Creating a home gym may be just the solution, and may allow you to keep that freshly minted New Year's Resolution.

Setting up a home gym starts by dedicating some space in your home or garage. Maybe it's a StairMaster next to the living room couch, or maybe it's a converted spare room. Richard Brooks, owner of All American and customized media (TV shows, music, etc.) can all help to create a truly motivating space. Some companies even offer computer-aided design (CAD) programs that customers can access online to help them create a floor plan.

Of course, knowing your fitness goals is key when designing a workout space, especially when choosing equipment. Do you need body type, most people just get bored with them after awhile, and replacement parts may not be available a few years down the line. Says Glafkides, "Stick with brand names that have been around a long time."

Choosing exercise equipment can be a very personal experience, and both Brooks and Glafkides suggest going to a showroom where you can try out different machines. Just like buying clothes, a car, or a piano, each exercise machine is designed and engineered differently. Says Brooks, "You want to find something that fits your body type."

Buying equipment online or from sporting goods stores is not advised because the homeowner is often left trying to assemble it themselves. Says Glafkides, "Fitness equipment is not something you want to buy and build yourself. Some of it takes a long time to put together. It pays to have someone with experience do it." Companies like All American Fitness and Balance Fitness also offer periodical maintenance service.

The cost of setting up a home gym can vary greatly, anywhere from $1,000 to $50,000, depending on quantity and quality of equipment and decor. Brooks offers this for those just starting out: "You can get a great little room put together for around $1,200 - $2,500. But it can also be a work in progress. Say someone wants to lose 40 pounds. When they lose the first 15, they can come back and reward themselves with the next piece of equipment, maybe a bench and a couple of dumbbells. And then when they lose another five pounds they come in and get a pull-up bar. And so on. So you don't necessarily have to have the means right out of the gate. You can have a plan with rewards when you reach certain goals."

Having a home gym can be a fun way for families to bond. It can give purpose to young athletes and motivation to middle-aged parents. And when young children see their mom or dad working out it can inspire them to make better choices. In the long run, creating a home gym is about more than simply making the space or picking the right equipment or even developing a fitness plan. It's really about a choosing a healthy way of life.

For more information, contact All American Fitness at (408) 293-9966 or visit www.allamericanfitness.com, and Balance Fitness, Inc. at (650) 348-1259 or (408) 244-3010 or visit www.balancefitness.com.

Fitness in San Jose, has been selling exercise equipment for over 30 years. He stresses comfort and ease of use. "The whole idea is not to throw something under a cover in the backyard so that when it's 43 degrees out you're not going to go out there and exercise.'

A typical starter gym has one resistance (strength) component and one or two cardio components. Adding features like rubberized flooring, mirrors, fresh air, quality lighting, resistance training or cardio? Dead weights or a cross fit trainer? Maybe some of each? Says Jim Glafkides of Balance Fitness (San Mateo and Santa Clara), "A lot of people put their equipment in and then never use it. Well, they don't use it because they don't have a plan."

And while many people worry about having enough space for a home gym, Brooks and Glafkides warn people not to be fooled by infomercials that offer all-in-one trainers. Besides the fact that they are not tailored to your particular

Another recent addition to the East Bay is Cleophus Quealy, run by two former Google employees. They opened their cozy little taproom in 2014 in the same neighborhood as 21st Amendment and Drake's Brewing Company. Says co-owner Dan Watson, "San Leandro was good common ground for us. And it's a community that was thirsty for more breweries. The city is friendly and easy to work with, plus they had reasonably-priced real estate available. That area of San Leandro is definitely growing, and the city really likes businesses like ours being there to drive more people in."

Craft breweries are often on the smaller side, which is certainly true of Cleophus Quealy. Says Watson, "We have the proud distinction of being by far San Leandro's smallest brewery." In fact, they produce about 400 barrels per year (one barrel = 31 gallons). Compare that to 21st Amendment's annual production of 100,000 barrels and the difference is obvious.

But to fans of craft beer, it's the quality that matters, not quantity. In fact, over 95 percent of the nation's 4,600 craft breweries make less than 15,000 barrels of beer a year. This allows craft brewers to experiment with different batches, creating rich, unique flavors that are constantly changing. Says Watson, "We're not doing this to make a fortune. We're doing it because we love it."

Like master chefs, master brewers strive for excellence and are always seeking ways to refine their craft. Fresh, locally sourced ingredients are highly sought. Beer infused with fruit and spices is a popular trend now, as are coffee flavors and IPAs. And storing beer in barrels that have previously been used to store spirits or wine (barrel aging) gives their product yet another level of complexity. Most craft breweries offer seasonal beers that are only available during a certain time of year, as well as year-round standards.

Most craft breweries distribute their beer to local markets and bars while offering special beer that is not available anywhere else to customers of their taproom.

Food, live music, and games are also provided, creating a familyfriendly gathering place that locals really appreciate. Says Freccia, "People come and get something they can't get anywhere else in terms of experience and flavors."

Geoff Harries owns Buffalo Bills Brewery in Hayward, which opened in 1983 and is the 3rd oldest brewpub in the country. He credits the recent rise in popularity of craft breweries to the social changes that are sweeping the nation. As more people become concerned about the flavor and origin of their food, there has been a shift towards locally grown products, including beer.

Indeed, the young drinkers of today are not as brand loyal as our forefathers, preferring variety and new discoveries over the honor of being a Schlitz Man (or Woman). And while domestics and imports continue to dominate the American market, the influence of craft breweries continues to grow, now up to a record 12 percent of total sales volume as of 2015 (35 percent in the Bay Area). Giant breweries like SABMiller and Anheuser-Busch are taking notice, buying up smaller craft breweries in an effort to keep their customers.

Like any family, craft breweries have always stuck together. John Martin opened Triple Rock Brewery in Berkeley in 1986, considered to be the 5th oldest brewpub in the United States. In 1989 Drake's Brewing Company was opened in San Leandro by Roger Lind, Triple Rock's first assistant brewer. Says Martin, "Back in those days there weren't any brewing schools so you just learned on the job." In fact, Martin has mentored several brewers at Triple Rock who have gone on to open their own breweries, including 21st Amendment's Nicco Freccia. Says Martin, "It's a pretty tight community. Everyone knows each other." Harries agrees. "I've never met a brewer who wouldn't help. It's one of the real rewarding parts of this community. It's a very selfless type of person who becomes a brewer. They're artisans."

Ballet dancer says she's losing job because she's too tall

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA (AP), A dancer who stands 5-feet-11-inches tall and performed as the Sugar Plum Fairy in the Pennsylvania Ballet's Nutcracker this season says she's being dropped from the company because she's too tall.

Sara Michelle Murawski says her one-year contract won't be renewed in May. The Philadelphia Inquirer says the 25-year-old is a few inches taller when dancing on pointe. Many of her female peers are about 5-feet-6.

Ballet officials say artistic director Angel Corella needs to put together a cohesive group for next season just as a sports team mixes up its roster each year.

Executive Director David Gray says the decisions are being announced early to give dancers time to audition for other companies for jobs next season.

Murawski is a Norfolk, Virginia, native who trained in Philadelphia and Slovakia.

Fortune Shines on Freckled Faces

SPOTTVILLE, USA – The Spottville school board passed a new rule last night giving Spottville children with freckles more privileges than children without freckles.

Student Myron Fleming feethe new rule is "long over

Freckled children will always sit at the front of the classroom and be first in line. They will get to use new pencils and the finest white paper. Children without freckles will have to sit at the back of the room or on the floor. Grocery bags will be used as paper for their assignments.

Many non-freckled children find the Freckle Rule unfair. "This rule stinks!" cried Alison Smythe, age 11. "I can't help it that I don't have freckles. Why can't I eat in the same cafeteria as my friends with freckles?"

Many children with freckles also disagree with the new Freckle Rule. "I plan to fight against this dumb idea," said Dottie Darling, a student at Spottville Elementary School. "Dr. Martin Luther King's message is that discrimination is always wrong, and this new rule is discrimination."

"Disgruntled nonsense," said school board president Spotz McDotter. "The rule is fair to the people that really matter most – people with freekles" his story may seem a bit silly. Sadly, there is some truth to it. For many years, groups of people in the United States were treated differently just because of the way they looked.

Dr. King's Dream of Equality

Dr. Martin Luther King knew what it was like to be discriminated against. He had been called names and told he could not do all of things other people could do. It wasn't because of freckles that Dr. King had these problems. It was because his skin was black.

In the 1950s and 60s, many Americans, black and white, spoke out and even fought against unfair laws that discriminated against black people. Dr. King was one of the leaders of this struggle called the Civil Rights movement.

Act made discrimination against the law. However, Dr. King knew it would take more than a law to change people's hearts and minds. He continued to teach people that discrimination was unfair.

Each year on his birthday, Americans remember this man who believed the dream of equality and freedom should ring true for all.

Fremont's Vision Zero 2020 Begins 20 Projects in 20 Months

The City of Fremont has begun implementation of its Vision Zero 2020 Action Plan with "20 Projects in 20 Months." The "20 Projects in 20 Months" campaign began this past spring and will continue rolling out projects that will improve the safety of Fremont's streets. Several projects that have been completed or are nearing completion include replacing pedestrian signals with countdown pedestrian signals at all intersections throughout the city, building better bikeways, installing speed lumps in neighborhoods to calm traffic, and retrofitting Fremont's streetlights to LED technology for improved nighttime visibility. Starting on January 4, 2017, PG&E will begin construction on the corner of Marrieta Dr. and Stevenson Blvd. There will be a road closure in effect on Marietta Dr. as you turn onto Stevenson Blvd. For motorists attempting to turn onto Stevenson Blvd., they will be redirected to a detour route via Omar St.

PG&E will be installing a SCADA

(Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition) system. This system monitors and allows operators to control the City's gas system remotely, enabling PG&E to move more quickly to assess and resolve problems in our community.

The project is not expected to exceed two months, and night work is not permitted on this project. The City of Fremont apologizes for any inconvenience.

Fremont's Rotational Public Art Program to Launch in Spring 2017

The City of Fremont will officially launch its Rotational Public Art Program in spring 2017.

TRAFFIC ADVISORY

PG&E Construction

Marrieta Dr. & Stevenson Blvd.

Beginning January 4, 2017

This program was made possible by an Art Fund that was established in the Downtown, Warm Springs, and City Center (area surrounding the Downtown) community plans. The Art Fund is financed through development fees and will focus on showcasing exciting, interesting pieces of artwork to support the arts and create a sense of identity for these initiative areas. The Art Review Board is responsible for administering the fund and making art selection recommendations to the Fremont City Council. The selected pieces will rotate approximately every two years. The program began in Downtown Fremont and will expand to Warm Springs and the City Center as funds become available in those districts.

The first installation occurred in Downtown with 'Heartfullness,' a sculpture by artist Katy Boynton. The artwork is on display through January 31, 2017. A new piece is anticipated to replace 'Heartfullness' in spring 2017.

City of Fremont Initiatives Underway

Projects in Fremont are starting to come to life in our initiative areas of Downtown and the Innovation District in Warm Springs/South Fremont. Capitol Avenue is now a new multimodal street that is transforming Downtown into a walkable and bike-friendly district.

Locale @ State Street is under construction and will change Downtown's skyline with a mix of housing and retail opportunities available in 2018. Downtown will serve as a hub for many popular events, parades, and festivals including Burgers and Brew Fest, Fremont Street Eats, and the largest free street festival west of the Mississippi, Fremont Festival of the Arts.

Fremont's new Warm Springs/South Fremont BART station will serve as an economic catalyst in creating a transit-oriented, job-focused, and mixed-use innovation district. The iconic cable-stayed West Access Bridge and Plaza project, with additional pedestrian and bicycle access west of the station, is scheduled for construction in spring 2017.

Lennar and Toll Brothers are also building major public infrastructures. This includes multimodal streets, a new public elementary school, community parks and plazas, and affordable rental housing scheduled to go vertical in winter 2016/17.

For more information and to check out Fremont's upcoming events, visit www.Fremont.gov/Downtown and www.Fremont.gov/WarmSprings.

LED Streetlight Upgrades Nearing Completion

The LED upgrade of our neighborhood streetlights is complete for standard "cobrahead" streetlight fixtures. For neighborhoods with non-standard "decorative" streetlight fixtures (top hat, globe, mission bell, teardrop, lantern, or box-shaped), crews will begin upgrades in late January 2017, with an expected completion of March 2017. For private streets, the City does not maintain the streetlights in those areas, but residents are encouraged to discuss an LED upgrade with their homeowner's associations (HOAs). For arterial or main streets (e.g., Decoto, Thornton, Mowry, Central, Grimmer, Osgood), upgrades to standard "cobrahead" streetlights have started and are scheduled to be completed by mid-January 2017. For more information, please visit www.Fremont.gov/LEDStreetlights.

Make a lifesaving resolution to give blood with the Red Cross

SUBMITTED BY NATIVIDAD LEWIS

The American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to resolve to give blood and help ensure a sufficient blood supply for patients in the New Year, beginning in January with National Blood Donor Month.

National Blood Donor Month has been observed in January since 1970 with the goal of increasing blood and platelet donations during winter - one of the most difficult times of year to collect enough blood products to meet patient needs. Severe winter weather may result in canceled blood drives, and seasonal illnesses, like the flu, can cause donors to be temporarily unable Blood donors of all types are needed. Those with type O, B negative and A negative blood are encouraged to make a Power Red donation, where available. During a Power Red donation, a concentrated dose of red blood cells is collected during a single donation, while most of the plasma and platelets are safely and comfortably returned to the donor.

Also, blood donors can now save time at their next donation by using RapidPass to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, prior to arriving at the blood drive. To get started and learn more, visit redcrossblood.org/RapidPass and follow the instructions on the site.

To make an appointment to donate blood, download the free Red Cross Blood Donor App from app stores, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

Gadget makers offer voice controls through Amazon's Alexa

Amazon doesn't have an official presence at the Consumer Electronics Show (CES) gadget show in Las Vegas but its Alexa voice control software seems to be everywhere.

Whirlpool is adding Alexa voice control to its suite of smart-home appliances, including a stove and refrigerator. With that capability, someone can instruct the oven to pre-heat to 400 degrees by speaking a command to an Alexa-enabled device, such as Amazon's Echo speaker.

Jason Mathew, senior director of global connected strategy for Whirlpool, says voice is "the most natural way to interact with a product."

Other gadgets that include Alexa: Sensory and OnVocal are both launching headphones that incorporate Alexa. Simplehuman is announcing a voice-activated trash can. And GE Lighting is launching a table lamp that includes Alexa software.

Amazon has an edge on the market for now because its software has been out longer, but Google's and Apple's systems are catching up. Mathew says "Amazon is the most mature, but we expect to offer other options in the future."

The New Year in the Regional Parks

By Dennis Waespi

If getting more exercise was one of your New Year's resolutions, or even if it wasn't, the East Bay Regional Park District is ready to help.

Every year, in partnership with the Regional Parks Foundation and Kaiser Permanente, the park district sponsors Trails Challenge. It's a free, self-guided, honor system program in which you can earn a reward by hiking, cycling or riding any five of 20 regional park trails listed in a guidebook.

The 2017 version is now under way. No registration is needed to participate. Just visit the park district website, www.ebparks.org, and look for the Trails Challenge logo on the right side of the home page. Click on that and download the guidebook.

It contains detailed information on the 20 trails, which range in difficulty from easy to challenging. Many are wheelchair accessible. There's lots of other useful information, too.

Hike five of the trails, or 26.2 miles of trails by next Dec. 1, and submit a trail log to receive a commemorative pin while supplies last. You can also obtain a free Trails Challenge t-shirt and/or a printed copy of the guidebook at park district visitor centers while supplies last.

Speaking of hiking opportunities, the park district board has approved a two-hour extension at Mission Peak Regional Preserve in Fremont. The park is now open from 6:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. through March 29. Starting March 30 the park will close at 9 p.m. through Sept. 8. After that it will revert to an 8 p.m. closing time.

The ascent of Mission Peak is steep and challenging. If you start at Stanford Avenue trailhead, there's an elevation gain of about 2,100 feet to the summit, during a trail distance of just over three miles. There's no water along the way, and you should dress for changeable weather this time of year

Remember also that there are parking permit requirements and restrictions at the Stanford Avenue trailhead. For a full description, visit www.ebparks.org and go to Mission Peak Regional Preserve, or visit www.fremontpolice.org.

For a non-hiking but still potentially strenuous workout, check out the exercise machines at Lake Chabot Regional Park. They are located right next to the marina building, and they are the only ones in all the regional parks. Lake Chabot's entrance is on Lake Chabot Road just north of Castro Valley. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle.

Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont has an ongoing program called "Discovery Days."

Every Saturday and Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. the naturalist staff conducts family-friendly activities including crafts and hands-on nature exploration. You can come at 10:30 for an introduction to the topic of the week, or drop in later to participate at your Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway.

The park has trails with beautiful views of the south bay. For information, call 510-544-3220.

Three new members will join the regional park board this year. Dee Rosario of Oakland has been elected to replace John Sutter, who has retired after 20 years on the board. Dee is a retired park district employee; he was Redwood Regional Park supervisor for many years.

And Ellen Corbett, a former state legislator, has been elected to replace Doug Siden, who retired after 24 years on the board.

The third new board member will replace Diane Burgis, who has left the park district board to join the Contra Costa County supervisors. The park district board will appoint someone at a special board meeting on Jan. 31 to serve out Diane's remaining two years. Then that seat will be up for election in November of 2018 for a new four-year term.

Newark history on display at Mr. Pickles

By Kelsey Camello

Last year, the Washington Township Museum of Local History and sandwich shop chain Mr. Pickles teamed up to present slices of Newark history in a brand new store, located at 5849 Jarvis Avenue in Newark.

The store now prominently displays ten images of historic Newark, ranging from the 1860s through 1911. These images represent an era in Newark that is all but gone from today's landscape. Stop into the shop sometime soon, eat a sandwich, and learn some Newark history all at once! Sadna Naicker, owner of the store, has a list of captions which tell much more about each photograph than can be gleaned from a simple viewing. Feel free to ask her for a copy.

The Washington Township Museum of Local History is always open to new collaborations and working with community-minded individuals who want to incorporate Tri-City History into their personal and professional lives. Are you interested in purchasing high resolution scans from the museum archives? Contact us via phone at 510-623-7907, stop in at 190 Anza Street, Fremont, CA 94539, or visit online at www.museumoflocalhistory.org.

Hayward Area Historical Society (HAHS) presents "Celebrating Community: Black Families of Fairview and Kelly Hill," guest curated by Karen McHenry-Smith on Saturday, January 14 - Sunday, March 5 at the Museum for History and Culture in Hayward.

It has been said that understanding Black history and culture is essential to understanding American history and culture. This local history exhibit depicts the diverse experiences of past and present residents of Fairview and Kelly Hill in unincorporated Hayward, with emphasis on Black families that purchased homes and moved to this East Bay suburban community in the 1950s and 1960s. During this time, what is now known as Fairview was one of the few communities open to non-white home owners in the Hayward area.

"Growing up on Kelly Street in the 1960s - 70s, was a wonderful experience. It was place with rows of cookie cutter houses, carefully manicured lawns, tree-lined streets, and open space. Later deemed "The Hill" it was a place where kinship and a sense of familyloped among neighbors. We didn't just share physical space. We shared an experience," says Karen McHenry-Smith, Guest Curator.

HAHS invites you to join us explore and discover community through the lens of your African American neighbors. The exhibit features: neighborhood/area maps, oral histories, news articles, family photographs, artifacts, memorabilia and much more.

A free reception for the exhibition will be held on Friday, January 20 from 5:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m. In conjunction with the exhibition, there will be two free museum admission days on Sunday, February 5 and Sunday February 19. Free Days are sponsored by a generous donation from Paradise Road Ranch.

Community members are invited to visit the exhibition at the Museum for History and Culture at 22380 Foothill Boulevard in Hayward. For more

The Newark Memorial Cougars, known for their speed on the court, quickly established dominance over the John F. Kennedy Titans in their meeting on January 6th. Cougars speed caught Titans defense unable to set up and led to great open shots and a big lead going into the second half. The Titans were able to regroup in the second half to battle for control under the basket, but the Cougars came away with a 92-39 January 6th victory.

Support for independent commission to probe foreign interference in election

SUBMITTED BY JOSH RICHMAN

Rep. Eric Swalwell (CA-15), Ranking Member of the CIA Subcommittee of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, recently praised a statement issued by 15 bipartisan, prominent intelligence and foreign policy experts - including former U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, former U.S. Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta, and former 9/11 Commission Vice Chair and Congressman Lee Hamilton – in support of creating an independent, bipartisan commission to investigate foreign inter-

Takes From Silicon Valley East

$100 Million in Tax Credits Available to California Businesses

By Kim Marshall

Happy New Year! A new round of funding from the California Governor's Office of Business and Economic Development (GO-Biz) is kicking off 2017. California Competes Tax Credit is a five-year income tax credit available to businesses of all sizes who want to grow, stay, or locate in California. $243 million in tax credits is available for fiscal year 2016/2017. This period, $100 million is available to California businesses. One quarter of these funds have been set aside specifically for small businesses, defined as businesses making less than $2 million in revenue per year, which allows them to compete on a level playing field.

The first phase of evaluation consists of an online application. Online applications will be accepted starting January 2, 2017 through January 23, 2017 on the GO-Biz website at www.calcompetes.ca.gov, and will be evaluated based on the cost-benefit ratio. These factors include the amount of credit requested versus how many jobs will be created, retained, or the amount of private investment involved. Businesses can determine the amount of credit that makes the most sense for them.

Applicants with the most advantageous cost-benefit ratio will be moved to the second phase of the evaluation process. GO-Biz staff will work with applicants on the second phase of the process, which requires more detailed information. The California Competes Tax Credit Committee ultimately approves the agreements with the businesses. Applications are confidential, but the awardees will be listed on the GO-Biz website.

All businesses looking to grow are encouraged to apply for this tax credit. For additional information on the tax credits or application process, please contact the Governor's Office of Business and Economic Development at (916) 322-4051 or calcompetes@gov.ca.gov.

ference in this year's U.S. presidential election.

Swalwell, along with Rep. Elijah Cummings (MD-07) – the Ranking Member of the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform – introduced in December, legislation to accomplish this: H.R. 6447, the Protecting Our Democracy Act. The bill would create a 12-member, bipartisan, independent commission empowered to interview witnesses, obtain documents, issue subpoenas, and receive public testimony to examine attempts by the Russian government and others to use electronic means to influence, interfere with, or sow distrust in this year's U.S. elections. The commission — which also would examine similar efforts by any other foreign governments or entities — would issue a final report with recommendations for future security protections to Congress and the President within 18 months of the bill's enactment. "Experts agree: The specter of meddling in our elections by Russia or any other foreign entity requires immediate, full investigation in an independent and bipartisan manner," Swalwell said. "The underpinnings of our democratic process are under electronic attack. Congressional committees can investigate too, but only an independent commission can rise above the perception of political bias in rendering a complete report on what happened and making recommendations on how to ensure it never happens again..."

The intelligence and foreignpolicy experts' statement says that while this meddling is the most significant the Unite States has ever seen in a national election, it has been occurring against our allies for decades. "That it was perpetuated against us demonstrates a bold escalation of interference that must be understood and stymied," they wrote.

The statement's initial signers include: former U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright; Leon E. Panetta, former U.S. Secretary of Defense; Ambassador Jeffrey L. Bleich, former U.S. Ambassador to Australia; Dr. Eliot A. Cohen, former Counselor of the Department of State; Lee H. Hamilton, former Member of Congress and Vice Chair of the 9/11 Commission; General James L. Jones, former National Security Advisor; David J. Kramer, former Assistant Secretary of State for Democracy, Human Rights and Labor; Ambassador Michael McFaul, former U.S. Ambassador to Russia; Michael Morell, former Acting Director and Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Paul Rosenzweig, former Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy at the Department of Homeland Security; Mary Ruppert, former federal national security prosecutor at the Department of Justice; Dr. Edward Schatz, Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Toronto; E. John Sebes, Chief Technology Officer of the TrustTheVote Project and Co-Director of the OSET Institute; Ellen Tauscher, former Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and former Member of Congress; and Michael Vickers, former Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence.

"All hands to battle stations. This is not a drill!"

It's almost impossible to watch a naval war movie without hearing the sound of a klaxon and this warning piped through a ship's communication system. The same sense of urgency and impending conflict can be seen at the next Fremont City Council meeting this evening, January 10, 2017, when eight surviving candidates vying for a vacant seat are ce a list of 27 eager applicants to a manageable number of interviews, each councilmember was asked to select five. Anyone who received at least two votes moved on to the next round. The list of candidates has now been reduced to eight. Estimated at 35-40 minutes per interview and five minute intervals to begin a new interview, the next meeting will begin at 5 p.m. and, conservatively, end a marathon session six hours later (Approximately 11 p.m.).

Only one candidate – David Bonaccorsi - received a single crossover vote, all others were either selected by the Jones/Salwan or Mei/Bacon duos. An impressive and telling matrix of votes (www.fremont.org) indicates just how divided the council will be when facing future development strategy. Evenly divided, the question will be which twosome is in total lockstep and will outvote the other to fill the vacant seat. At stake could be a 3-2 majority when thorny development issues arise.

A common misconception is that Mayor Mei and Councilmember Bacon are anti-development. This is much too simplistic and far from the reality of what has transpired in past deliberations. While many developers are in favor of careful review process, any delays or changes can be costly and eat into their bottom line. Therefore, when questions arise and city staff assurances to builders are thwarted, pro forma calculations are jeopardized. A pliant council that doesn't question staff recommendations is preferred. In the past, Mei and Bacon have opposed some of these recommendations. Housing is a critical issue throughout the Bay Area but so is quality of life. It is at this intersection that friction has produced hard feelings. This is not so much a choice between building additional housing and no housing, rather how and where it should be built.

The next two years hang in the balance. These are critical as Fremont represents a large portion of Bay Area residential development and is highly sought after for housing solutions by mega-corporations to the south and north of us. Of course there is a housing need for those working in close proximity to planned projects as well, but support for Fremont residential development by Silicon Valley groups and San Francisco entities are telling. Housing will be built and high density proposals are inevitable, but so is smart use of land and the quality of life for current and new residents too. A balance between these two important aspects of all our cities is not only important, but critical for the well-being of everyone. As with all political campaigns, the rhetoric and assurances given during competition for an election-free pass to a council seat should be taken with some skepticism; once selected, that candidate will have the same voting power as others who were elected to office.

Just as in the movies, a cry for battle stations is just the beginning of the struggle; the real effort lies ahead.

Unattended food cooking on stove blamed for commercial kitchen fire

SUBMITTED BY
DIANE HENDRY, FREMONT
FIRE DEPARTMENT

Reports of smoke near a business on Fremont Boulevard in the Irvington district drew a quick response from the Fremont Fire Department on Thursday, January 5.

At 4:56 p.m. Engine 53 arrived at the scene to find a locked and unoccupied restaurant with a large amount of smoke coming from inside. More assistance was requested which brought three more fire engines a truck and two battalion chiefs to the scene at 40827 Fremont Blvd.

Firefighters made a forcible entry through the front door and deployed a fire attack hose line inside. Adjacent businesses in the commercial center, along with a nearby daycare center, were evacuated as a precaution. The fire was quickly found in the kitchen area and extinguished. Investigators determined that unattended food cooking on the stove overheated and caught fire.

The owner of the business arrived and took responsibility. There was minimal structural and internal damage estimated at less than $5,000. There were no injuries.

The Fremont Fire Department's Fire Prevention Bureau also responded to investigate. The Alameda County Health Department was also notified and will be conducting its own investigation.

Obituary

As a boy he had big dreams, and wished to explore the world beyond his immediate surroundings. Proximity to other countries, war, and his interest in learning foreign languages had him multilingual by age 12. He was fluent in 9 languages, with dialects he mastered 16, and later he worked for a publishing company in California in 34 different languages.

He used his gifts to translate material (including to help spread the Word of God) and to teach others foreign languages, thus encouraging them to broaden their horizons. In Fremont, California he taught German, French, Spanish, and Russian at Mission San Jose High School, and thereafter continued teaching languages at Irvington High School besides being Dept. Chair of Foreign Languages. At adult school he helped newcomers to our country by teaching them Citizenship courses. His students remember him for his animated telling of life's stories and sharing the home movies he made from his many travels.

In 1959 Johann married his beloved wife, Konstantina, in Greece. Both emigrated to the U.S. in 1960 highly educated and in search for a better life. Sadly, his wife died prematurely (age 33), and left him with 2 young children: 3-year-old Helen and 4-month-old Demetra. Loving his wife and all he had left of her, he chose to take on the challenge to raise his own children. Strong faith in God kept the family united and gave it strength through the storms of life.

Johann is survived by his daughter, Helen Stornig of Fremont; his daughter, Demetra Hamakiotes of New York City and her two children, Michael and Alexandra; his sister Pina in England; his brother Arnold of Austria; and their families.

At Chapel of the Roses (1940 Peralta Blvd, Fremont, CA) there will be a viewing on Wednesday, January 11, 2017 from 4 P.M. - 8 P.M., and a funeral service on Thursday, January 12, 2017 at 10 A.M. After the funeral service in Fremont, a procession will drive to Alta Mesa Memorial Park (695 Arastradero Road, Palo Alto, CA), where Johann will be laid to rest next to his wife. Thereafter, people are invited for a reception at the Mountain View Seventh-Day Adventist Church (1425 Springer Road, Mountain View, CA).

Ackerman. The family moved to Algoma, Wisconsin where was an usher at the U.W. Stadium and worked for his aunt and uncle at their sauerkraut factory.

George met the love of his life, Minnie Elizabeth Steele, on December 17, 1948 in Toronto, Canada at the Royal York Hotel. Study: Ad-tech use shines light on fringe, fake news sites

By Barbara Ortutay, Associated Press

What distinguishes mainstream news sites from those devoted to fake news or other hyper-partisan takes on events? It's not just the stories they run, but also the way they use online technology that tracks readers and shows them ads, according to a new study by a web analytics firm.

In particular, the study—from the New York-based startup Mezzobit—showed that such fringe news sites are relatively unsophisticated in the way they make money from online ads, perhaps because many are shoestring operations that can easily Stories shown on fake or fringe news sites are anything but mainstream. They run from made-up articles to pieces that start with a grain of truth but exaggerate it to fit highly opinionated perspectives. But they use the same underlying ad technology, which serves up ads intended to appeal to every individual who visits, as their mainstream counterparts—just in different, and sometimes revealing, ways.

For starters, fringe sites typically aren't as focused on using tools that maximize ad revenue by auctioning slots to the highest bidder, according to the Mezzobit study. Instead, they generally tap run-of-the-mill services from ad networks like those run by Google and Facebook.

One reason? Mainstream sites need to make a lot of money. After all, it's more expensive to fund actual journalism than to make things up from thin air. Fringe sites "can make money with just a small footprint," said David Carroll, professor of media design at the Parsons School of Design in New York. Carroll, who is not affiliated with Mezzobit, was given an overview of the report.

"This is how propaganda operates," Carroll said. "Propaganda is not a direct economic business—it's politically motivated media

Mezzobit compared the underlying ad technology used at fringe and mainstream news sites the week of Dec. 5. It started with a list of fringe sites created by Jonathan Albright, a professor who studies data journalism at Elon University in North Carolina. Albright calls the fringe sites "hyper-biased" propaganda.

For a mainstream comparison, Mezzobit used a list from Amazon's Alexa that tracks the top news sites on the web. The list is comparable with other ranking systems such as comScore's.

To be sure, some of the differences in the ad-tech footprints of mainstream and fringe news sites are similar to what you'd expect to find from comparing any large companies to smaller rivals, said Joseph Galarneau, Mezzobit's CEO and co-founder.

"A lot of the fringe sites looked a lot more sparse," he said. They had fewer tracking cookies and fewer links to outside sites and content. As a result, they were also 8 percent faster to load than the main-stream sites.

Carroll said he was more troubled by the similarities between mainstream and fringe sites.

The study revealed that advertisers aren't shunning fringe news sites the way they avoid placing ads on sites that feature porn or gambling. And major ad networks appear to be letting advertisers place ads on fringe sites.

Although Google says it will prohibit its ads from being placed on "misrepresentative content," it doesn't explicitly single out "fake news" as part of this. Google also licenses its ad technology to advertisers it might not normally accept, indirectly profiting from such sites. Facebook has said that it bans fake news articles it knows about from its advertising network, but it doesn't do so for entire sites.

"This presents a really challenging problem to the industry and to advertisers," Carroll said. "The report shows plenty of exposure from Facebook and Google and the rest of the industry to this stuff."

Charley's Aunt '66

SUBMITTED BY BOB MILLER
AND SUSAN E. EVANS

TERRY SULLIVAN

Douglas Morrisson Theatre (DMT) 37th Season continues with the world premiere of a wonderfully silly farce: "Charley's Aunt '66", freely adapted by Scott Munson from Brandon Thomas' classic Charley's Aunt. The play will have 15 performances, including one preview, February 9 through March 5, 2017, at the Douglas Morrisson Theatre in Hayward.

DMT's production of Charley's Aunt '66 is directed by Craig Souza and features an outstanding ensemble of Bay Area performers: Kyle Goldman Jack Benny. I loved finding a new way to look at the play from a uniquely American perspective and to reveal something about us, as Americans, while remaining true to the spirit of the original."

Charley's Aunt '66 is fresh, fast-paced and audiences will especially relish how Munson has re-fashioned and re-imagined the timeless farce, completely revamping the characters and jokes, as well as the dialogue — with the exception of one famously recognizable, recurring joke!

Playwright, Scott Munson, was born and raised in Hollywood into a family of actors and torch-song singers. His work has been performed in Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, Dallas-Fort as Charley Wykeham, Michael Birr as Jack Chesney, Alan Coyne as Buddy Fancourt, Samantha Rasler as Amy Spettigue, Brooke Silva as Kitty Verdun, John Baldwin as Frank Chesney, Ron Talbot as Stephen Spettigue, Dana Lewenthal as Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez and Adrian Deane as Ela Delahay.

Following the success of Scott Munson's captivatingly clever new take on An Ideal Husband, which premiered at Douglas Morrisson Theatre in 2013, Munson was approached to take a fresh look at the classic 1892 farce by Brandon Thomas. In this world premiere, he transports the original play from the hallowed halls of Oxford to Stanford University in the psychedelic '60s, but the bones of the plot remain the same: two college guys scheme to get their gals (but this time Amy is Mills pre-law) - with a little help from a cross-dressing buddy.

Munson says, "It was great fun to take on the challenge of adapting a play that is so well-known in the English-speaking theater world, a mainstay of the stage since its inception and also a hit film with the immortal

Worth, Spokane and Chicago. He has been a two-time finalist for the National Play Award of the National Repertory Theater Foundation.

Director, Craig Souza, has been involved in Bay Area theatre for 25 years, performing with companies such as Theatre Rhinoceros (where he also serves as a Board Member), Eastenders Repertory Company, Shakespeare Santa Cruz, The Dark Room Theater and the Douglas Morrisson Theatre.

CITY OF FREMONT SUMMARY OF ADOPTED ORDINANCE NO. 01-2017

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF FREMONT, AMENDING FREMONT MUNICIPAL CODE ITILE 18 (PLANNING AND ZONING) REGARDING ACCESSORY DWELLING UNITS

On December 13, 2016, the Fremont City Council introduced the above ordinance. It would update Fremont Municipal Code (FMC) Title 18 (Planning and Zoning) relating to accessory dwelling units (ADUs) in order to implement new State mandates and create additional affordable housing opportunities.

The changes remove FMC Section 18.190.480 regulating "secondary dwelling units" and replace this with FMC Section 18.190.005 regulating "accessory dwelling units." New definitions are proposed for "Standard Accessory Dwelling Unit" (SADU) and "Junior Accessory Dwelling

Unit* (JADU). SADUs result in a net increase in habitable floor area (such as a detached structure) and JADUs are created through the conversion of an existing bedroom in a single family home.

Certain existing regulations would remain, such as where ADUs are allowed, that they must be approved ministerially, and that only one ADU is allowed per parcel. Under the proposed ordinance, ADUs cannot be rented for less than 30 days, and fire sprinklers are required under some circumstances. A sliding scale would allow SADUs between 500 and 1,200 square feet depending on the lot size. JADUs could not exceed 500 square feet. Off-street parking would not be required for SADUs within ½ mile of public transit and other specified circumstances.

The foregoing ordinance was introduced before the City Council of the City of Fremont at the regular meeting of the City Council, held on the 13th day of December, 2016 and finally adopted at a regular meeting of the City Council held on the 3th day of January, 2017 by the following vote:

AYES: Mayor Mei, Vice Mayor Jones Councilmembers: Bacon and Salwan

Through two weekends beginning January 14, StarStruck Theatre brings to musical life the uplifting and thought-provoking tale of a good-hearted dreamer whose journey into adulthood takes him through trials and triumphs. All eight performances, including four matinees, will be presented at the Smith Center at Ohlone College in Fremont.

A retelling, in song and dance, of the story found in the religious books of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" follows the adventures of one of the 12 sons of Jacob who is sold by his brothers into slavery in Egypt.

"Joseph's coat of many colors gets top billing in this show, so we had to make it special," said Lori Stokes, founder and artistic director of the Fremont-based non-profit youth performing arts organization.

'Construction began immediately after the role of Joseph was cast and we could take measurements for a custom fit," said Stokes. Working with Costume Designer Diane Scherbarth, StarStruck Webmaster Lisa Stambaugh who also served as seamstress came up with an original design incorporating three different patterns including Neo's coat from the movie "The Matrix" and a cowboy duster coat. All told, Stambaugh estimates more than 70 hours of labor went into stitching together over 15 square yards of 72 individual fabrics, covering about two king-sized sheets.

"Written by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice in 1968 before their first blockbuster success 'Jesus Christ Superstar,' Joseph was originally conceived as a 15-minute choral piece for a boys' school in London," said StarStruck Music Director Nancy Godfrey, who directs a live, 18-piece orchestra for this production. "Since then it has been expanded to its current 1.5 hours, run and revived several times on Broadway and in London since the 1980s, filmed with Donny Osmond in the title role, and performed all over the world and in countless schools.

"The innocence of the children's voices pairs well with the powerful simplicity of the story, which is made colorful, fun, and appealing by the intentional variety of musical styles used by Webber," said Godfrey. "These include American western and French ballads, Calypso, jazz, and 1920's styles, and rock and roll from the 1950s and '70s, accompanied by an orchestration featuring a full string section, reeds and brass, electric and acoustic guitars and bass, and drums and percussion."

In his seventh StarStruck mainstage production, Jacob Woll, 20, plays the title role of Joseph. Other principle actors include narrators Angela Abonador, 17; Sierra Rose Albright, 16; and Gianna Tarquini, 15. StarStruck alum Mario Rappa, 23, makes a special guest appearance as Pharaoh.
