Wind & Wave

high adventure
in your own backyard

BY VICTOR CARVELLAS

Sailing. The word alone conjures images of the America's Cup, whaling ships of Old New England, even pirates on the Spanish Main. Romance and adventure are certainly part of sailing's lore, but the lure of wind and sail need not drag you off to foreign ports and exotic shores, as a worthy alternative can be found in our own backyard. This summer, discover sailing at Fremont's Lake Elizabeth.

In the summer of 1968, avid sailor Charles Coffey looked at the sailing clubs centered in San Jose and Lake Merritt and

WHEELS OF ALAMEDA COUNTY

Meals on Wheels of Alameda County is rolling out its biggest fundraiser of the year: "Taste 2017," scheduled for Saturday, June 17 at the Paramount Theatre in Oakland.

This year's event is a little more special than usual. "It's our 30th anniversary of the organization," said Marisa Melo, executive director of Meals on Wheels of Alameda County, explaining that in recent years the event has morphed from a sit-down, formal dinner into a modern walking dinner. The event will also be indoors this year, within the Art Deco walls of one of Oakland's most beautiful venues.

As always, Taste 2017 will feature delicious food and beverages from all over the Bay Area. "We've got some new and hot restaurants supporting us this year. We're really excited about the energy this year," Melo said. In all, 18 Bay Area restaurants will be onsite, such as San Francisco-based Mestiza Taqueria and Oakland-based restaurants Eve's Waterfront and Old Kan Beer. Ten wineries will also be on hand, such as Healdsburg's Chalk Hill, Oakville's B Cellars, and Oakland's Urban Legend. Delicious desserts will be provided by Sweet Wonders Candy Buffet and Design.

The night will feature guest speakers as well as live and silent auctions, offering an array of items, all donated to Meals on Wheels. "We try to provide some great

Worrying or Anxious?

Know the Difference

What should you do if your worries—those problems that occasionally keep you awake at night — have evolved into anxiety which is affecting your health and well-being? Is there a significant difference between the two? Will your anxiety disappear once the problems you are worrying about are resolved?

According to Dr. Seema Sehgal, a psychiatrist at Washington Hospital's Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Science, worrying and feeling anxious are normal and necessary in humans for survival and adaptation—and can actually enhance performance.

"Most of us worry at one time or another about a specific problem or set of problems," says Dr. Sehgal. "Worry is triggered by some specific event, problem, or issue and usually disappears when the situation changes," she explains. "Anxiety is a continuum, with one end being normal anxiety and the other end a full-blown anxiety disorder."

Worry is specific, while anxiety is more diffuse, Dr. Sehgal adds. Anxiety occurs when the worry isn't resolved and it leads to significant distress and impairment.

“Anxiety is like being on a yellow alert,” Dr. Sehgal explains. “It’s harder to control thoughts and emotions and the anxiety begins to directly affect work and daily life. Panic is like being on ‘red alert.’ The body’s ‘fight or flight’ response is engaged and physical symptoms occur including a racing heartbeat, rapid breathing, lightheadedness or a feeling of passing out. We experience worry in our heads and anxiety in our bodies,” Dr. Sehgal adds.

“Worry is that thought process that creates the feelings and emotions which are experienced as anxiety. Subtle changes begin to occur in the body including feeling fatigued, irritable, having muscle tension or restless sleep,” Dr. Sehgal says. “There are many manifestations of anxiety disorders including generalized anxiety disorder, panic disorder or specific phobias.”

Untreated, the problem can progress to the point where the person fears having a panic attack.

in public and stops going out, begins to isolate his or herself. Severe anxiety can affect a person's ability to function in society, Dr. Sehgal explains.

Dr. Sehgal says individuals often seek help when they realize their anxiety is affecting their ability to function in the family, at work or in society generally. Family members may notice the individual's suffering and urge them to see a doctor. She recommends talking with your family physician if you think you might have a problem dealing with worries or anxiety. "If you think you might have a problem or are in doubt about how you feel, see someone and talk about it," she says. "Often it may take only one appointment to begin to deal with the situation.”

“Your primary care physician is the person you see regularly and the one who knows your history and situation,” she explains. “The physician also may be the person you feel most comfortable talking with about your anxiety.” If the family physician believes the patient needs additional treatment, he/she can refer the patient to a specialist trained to deal with anxiety disorders.

Treatment differs depending on the particular root of anxiety, Dr. Sehgal says. "Medication often helps with symptoms but won't cure the underlying problem," she explains.

Anxiety triggers vary from person to person but common ones including losses such as death, divorce or loss of a job; moving away from a familiar environment such as for a new job; or children leaving for college or other transitions in the home.

In children, anxiety can develop when the child feels peer pressure or parental pressure. According to Dr. Sehgal, the fact the child perceives the pressure, even if it doesn't really exist, can be enough to trigger anxiety and its physical manifestations.

If seeing a psychiatrist is indicated, treatment often consists of helping the patient develop skills

Physician Assistant Offers Basic Health Tips for Men

June Is National Men's Health Month

Since 1994, the month of June has been recognized as a special period for increasing the awareness of men's health and encouraging men to take an active role in maintaining their own health. According to the National Institutes of Health, men are more likely than women to put off regular checkups with their health care providers. In addition, men are more likely to make unhealthy or risky lifestyle choices, including smoking and drinking alcohol.

"Sometimes men don't pay much attention to health issues, but we really need to be aware of significant factors that affect our health," says Marc Lanuza, PA-C, a certified physician assistant who has practiced family medicine for more than 15 years, including more than seven years with Washington Township Medical Foundation. "High blood pressure, for example, often does not produce noticeable symptoms. Men who don't have regular blood pressure screenings may not be aware that they have the condition until they experience symptoms such as dizziness and headaches. Sadly, we also tend to procrastinate in seeking medical care when symptoms do arise."

A physician assistant treats patients under the supervision of a physician to provide optimal care, conducting exams, making diagnoses and prescribing medications as needed. As a specialist in family medicine, Lanuza emphasizes preventive care.

"I encourage my patients to have an annual exam, even if they don't have any symptoms of a medical condition," he explains. "The exam should include screenings for blood pressure, cholesterol, body mass index, (BMI) which is calculated based on weight and height, and an A1C test to measure blood sugar (glucose) levels."

Blood pressure is generally recorded as two numbers. The top number (systolic) measuring the pressure in the arteries when the heart contracts. The lower number (diastolic) measures the pressure in the arteries when the heart is at rest. The general recommendation for healthy blood pressure is 120/80 or lower, and high blood pressure (hypertension) generally is defined as 140/90 or higher.

Cholesterol is measured in levels of milligrams per deciliter of blood (mg/dL). In general, total cholesterol, which includes LDL ("bad cholesterol"), HDL ("good cholesterol") and 20 percent of triglycerides (another type of fat in the blood), should be less than 200 mg/dL.

The optimal level of LDL cholesterol is less than 100 mg/dL. For HDL, the recommendation is a level greater than 45 mg/dL; the higher the better. In some cases, a high HDL level may help counter the effects of high LDL.

The normal range for BMI is between 18.5 and 24.9. A person is considered overweight with a BMI between 25 and 29. A person is considered obese with a BMI of 30 or above.

A normal A1C level is below 5.7 percent. Many health care providers consider the A1C test a better indicator of diabetes than a test for blood sugar levels after fasting for at least 8 hours because the A1C test measures average blood glucose over the past two to three months.

"Typical blood tests during an annual exam will also screen for anemia, infections, kidney and liver function, and various other indicators," Lanuza notes. "It's also important to review the patient's alcohol intake and smoking status. Conditions such as high blood pressure, heart disease and diabetes can be complicated by obesity, alcohol use and smoking. There has been a decline in the number of people who smoke, but we still have some patients who do."

Men should also consult their health care provider about the pros and cons of screenings for prostate cancer, according to Lanuza. Such screenings generally include a digital rectal exam and a blood test to measure the level of prostate specific antigen (PSA) – a protein made by prostate cells.

"The decision to have PSA screenings is one that a man should make with his health care provider after a careful discussion of the benefits and risks of screening," Lanuza says. "After age 50, men also should be screened for colon cancer. A colonoscopy is the preferred method of screening."

The American Cancer Society and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)

both recommend colonoscopy screenings at least every 10 years for people over age 50. It is considered a preventive exam that is covered by most insurance providers.

"Men and women who are at a higher risk for colorectal cancer should be screened at an earlier age and be screened more often," Lanuza says. "The timing for repeat colonoscopies will depend on the patient's family history of colon cancer and whether the initial screening discovered the presence of any precancerous intestinal polyps."

In keeping with his emphasis on preventive medicine, Lanuza

Experience the spirit and warmth of Mexico on stage at the San Leandro Performing Arts Center Saturday, June 10 and Sunday, June 11.

The second Sunday in June is known as National Children's Day in the United States. A day to honor the children in our lives, National Children's Day is a time to slow down from our fast-paced lives, turn off the tech, and refocus on important things. One day may not be enough, but using it as an opportunity to redirect our family's lives may be an important step. In recognition of National Children's Day, Ballet Folklórico Costa de Oro recognized the importance and value of this day to honor all children.

"Fiesta de Los Ninos" debuted in 2010 with youth ensembles of the Ballet Folklórico Costa de Oro. The following year, invitations were extended to other Bay Area youth companies and has since then grown to become a two-day celebration. This year's special guest youth ensembles include Compania Mexico Danza (Hayward), Los Lupenos de San Jose (San Jose), and Grupo Folklórico Tlapalli (Hayward/Livermore) with the host company Ballet Folklórico Costa de Oro (San Lorenzo) youth groups. This event is a delight to see: over 100 children in costumes from Mexico celebrating and sharing the culture of Mexico. "Fiesta de Los Ninos" is truly a unique and wonderful experience for the whole family.

Worrying or Anxious?

Know the Difference

to cope with their issues both through psychotherapy and through cognitive behavioral therapy. Exposure therapy is particularly helpful in patients with panic disorders or specific phobias, Dr. Sehgal notes. “We take a patient through a series of anxiety-provoking situations.” She explains: “If a person is fearful of riding in an elevator, for example, we may have the patient first just look at a picture of an elevator, then later look at an actual elevator. Eventually, the patient may be asked just to step in and then out again of an elevator. In the end, the patient may find the fear has dissipated and be able to again ride in an elevator.” While worrying about a specific problem or circumstance is common and natural, when that worry reaches a level of anxiety that impacts your work or daily life, it may be time to take action. Don’t hesitate to talk to the person who is most familiar with your health history, your primary care physician.

also encourages patients—both male and female—to keep current with their immunizations. “Adults should have a booster vaccine against tetanus every 10 years,” he says. “The Tdap shot is a combination vaccine that protects against three potentially life-threatening diseases: tetanus, diphtheria, and pertussis (whooping cough). A Td vaccine protects only against tetanus and diphtheria. Because of an increase in the number of cases of whooping cough in the past several years, the CDC recommends at least one Tdap vaccine for all adults ages 19 and older who have never received the vaccine.”

Some adults also might want to consult their health care provider about getting an MMR booster vaccine against measles, mumps and rubella (German measles). In 1989, the CDC determined that the one-dose childhood vaccine was not eliminating measles in the U.S. The recommendation for the measles vaccine was doubled to two doses for young children. The CDC also recommended that adults double-check their immunity status if they planned to travel abroad where measles still is present.

“People over age 28 might not be fully immune to measles,” Lanuza explains. “If you only had one vaccination shot and never experienced measles, you can ask about getting an MMR titer blood test that checks your immunity to measles, mumps and rubella. That can help determine whether you may need a booster shot.”

Lanuza also recommends that adults check their vaccination status for hepatitis B and that they get a flu vaccine every year. He adds, “People over age 60 should ask about the shingles vaccine, and people over age 65 should receive the two different vaccines for pneumonia.”

“Men might also experience high levels of stress because of our attitudes about wanting to be in control and believing it is ‘unmanly’ to complain,” Lanuza says. “Signs of stress might include an inability to focus, loss of energy, irritability or a decreased sexual drive.” Lanuza adds, “Stress can also contribute to other conditions, including cardiovascular disease. Men assume that we are not supposed to get sick, and when we do, we try to tough it out. It’s important for us to learn to relax,” he advises. “Spend time with your family. Take a walk. Watch a movie. Read a book. Ride a bike. Work out at the gym. And then schedule that annual checkup exam.”

The office of Marc Lanuza, whose clinical practice is under the supervision of family medicine specialists Michael Parmley, MD, and Ranjana Sharma, MD, is located at 6236 Thornton Avenue in Newark. Foundation's Days of Service benefit emergency shelter

SUBMITTED BY TINA FERNANDEZ

Over two days – June 23 and 24, 2017 — members of a Fremont-based 501(c)3 nonprofit, My Manna Link Foundation, will donate time, skills, and materials to complete much-needed improvements at SAVE's Emergency Shelter. The Foundation's Days of Service will concentrate on flooring repair, painting, installing new kitchen counter tops, and deep cleaning.

Javier Alvarado, Fremont resident and Founder and Chairman of the Foundation, states that their volunteerism is rooted in their mission to enhance Bay Area communities and to teach members, especially youth members, how to give back. Many of their volunteers are young women and men who formerly experienced serious life struggles, including homelessness. My Manna Link's leadership provides them with opportunities to give back to the community through service, including the Days of Service to benefit SAVE. One of the Foundation's core beliefs is that benevolent acts are transformative and empowering, leading to the development of future community leaders.

My Manna Link performs community service in the Bay Area and members have also volunteered in Paraguay, Venezuela, Mexico, and El Salvador. The Foundation is committed to helping anyone needing assistance, regardless of race, ethnicity, gender identity, and other factors. Alvarado recently shared that “respecting women is everything (as is) supporting victims of domestic violence.” In addition, the Foundation's members are primarily Hispanic small business owners, “hardworking immigrants (who) work and pay their taxes.” Volunteerism is key to their members' values and demonstrates their commitment to making the communities safer and stronger.

Interested in helping? Contact Javier Alvarado at My Manna Link Foundation for more information. Email mymannalink@gmail.com or visit their website: www.mymannalink.org. Volunteers and donations are welcome. And if you wish to support SAVE's services and programs, please visit <https://goo.gl/kS7Az1>.

If you or someone you know is experiencing domestic violence, you are not alone. Call SAVE's 24-hour Hotline at (510) 794-6055. And for more information about SAVE, visit www.save-dv.org.

Walters may be gaining STEAM

SUBMITTED BY ROBIN MICHEL

At the May 24 meeting of the Fremont Unified School Board, the Instructional Services Department provided the Board of Education an update on a proposed STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math) Magnet at Walters Middle School. “STEAM is an educational approach to learning that integrates science, technology, engineering, the arts, and mathematics for an interdisciplinary, hands-on student learning across the curriculum,” said Susan Lemke, FUSD Program Manager, Math and Science.

The exploration of creating a STEAM magnet at Walters is an outgrowth of a discussion the Middle School Instructional Task Force had in the fall of 2016. STEAM programs typically raise achievement overall, help improve English for English Learning, increase student engagement, and result in greater parent and teacher satisfaction. “Multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary STEAM instruction increases relevance and rigor,” said Ms. Lemke.

Goals of the proposed STEAM magnet are:

- Improve student attitudes toward STEAM by providing students a challenging learning environment focused on math, science, art, and technology and fostering a culture of innovation.
- Improve student performance and engagement in math and science by applying math and science concepts to real world problems.

- Increase the number of students who enroll in STEAM related electives and fields of study in high school.
- Increase STEAM literacy for all students, including those who do not pursue additional study in the STEAM disciplines.
- Increase STEAM participation of underrepresented groups, especially African Americans, Hispanics, and low-income students.

Walters Junior High School demographics make it an ideal school for a STEAM magnet, as it would reach the students who would most benefit from the program. It is the most ethnically diverse junior high school in Fremont, with subgroups vastly underrepresented in STEAM college programs and workforce. The school currently has the greatest percentage (51.7%) of socio-economically disadvantaged; and 16% English Language Learners. Fifty-five percent of seventh graders and 56% of 8th graders at Walters did not meet the 2015-16 SBAC math standards.

With a STEAM magnet middle school, the district would create a consistent STEAM program from Mattos, the district’s science magnet elementary school. Mattos parents are excited about the possibility of having their students matriculate to a STEAM middle school, and are much more likely to have their students attend Walters if it offers this program. “We have a leaky STEM pipeline,” said Ms. Lemke, “It is a moral imperative [to create the STEAM magnet].”

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: JUNE 7 - JUNE 13

For All Signs: Jupiter, the largest planet in our solar system, turns direct on June 9, 2017 after a four-month period of retrogradation. He is known as Zeus to the ancients, father figure to the others, and his better side symbolizes human expansiveness and spiritual wisdom. His negative qualities are ostentation, pomposity and expansion without discipline or roots. During his retrograde periods, promises and expectations are often too optimistic and fall short of the mark. When he is direct, as he will be through next February, projected hopes are more likely to come to fruition. He continues in the sign of Libra now and will shift into Scorpio on October 10, 2016. Those of whatever sign he is in are given a boost of faith and usually better fortune.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): This is a time in which your partner is on your side and things are flowing well between you. It is a good period for coming to agreement on circumstances that have been issues in the past. You may be especially enjoying music or the arts together. Intimacy brings you closer together now.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Venus entered your sign yesterday and will travel "with you" through July 4, 2017. The subject of relationship will be very important as you move forward through this time. If you have issues with a partner, this is the time to lay them out on the table so the two of you can look at how better to deal with them. Negotiate but do not accuse or bring in secondary issues.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Mercury, your planetary ruler, entered your sign today (June 6). Mercury travels rapidly through Gemini between June 6 and June 21, 2017. During this time, there likely will be greater emphasis on communications, errands, and other short distance travels. Your mind will be quick and your attitude persuasive.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Mars, the warrior, entered your sign on June 3, 2017 and will be traveling with you for seven weeks. This energy is especially helpful in defining our boundaries. Periodically we need to examine who we are as well as who we are not. Often something is eliminated. In general, it increases your courage and physical strength.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This is a time of focus on your health and the routine maintenance of life's routines. (Yawn) Fire signs rarely want to handle details in any form. However, the message is clearly there. You must attend to these areas or eventually pay a price for not doing so.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Your attention turns toward your life direction now. For many this is reflected by the career path. You may be researching needed information or talking with others about where you are headed. Your work is noticed and you may be the recipient of compliments and support by the end of this week.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Venus, your ruling planet, enters the eighth sector and will remain there until July 4, 2017. This suggests favorable influences and opportunities related to debt payments, gifts, or other financial resources that come through other people. It includes investments, debts owed to you, and insurance payoffs. Relationships take on a more intense role.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Mars, one of your ruling planets, enters your ninth house for 7 weeks. You will notice a shift into a new direction. It will likely be related to contacting people at a distance, preparing to travel, seeking professional advice, or focused on education. This position of Mars leans us toward a heavy accelerator foot. Attend to driving within the speed limit.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Give special attention to the lead paragraph because Jupiter is your planetary ruler. Now that it is turning direct in your partnership house, making decisions concerning relationships will be much easier. The next few months may bring a beneficial business partnership, more clientele, or a marriage.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You occasionally confuse what you think with who you are. There are those who will disagree with you this week. Just don't let it become a battle to the death. Your identity is not at stake in this situation. You may not like what is happening, but you can choose a better time later to argue the point.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): This is a week in which you will tend to be thinking obsessively. It is an opportunity to learn how to better control your mind. Shift your attention to something less dramatic, such as whatever is happening this moment, rather than worrying over what might happen in the future.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): You may feel as though you came from another planet this week. Communications may be misunderstood, snarled, or lost altogether. Compensate for this problem by concentrating on speaking the truth as you know it, and listening very carefully to what the other tells you. Then reflect what you heard, just to be sure.

Rewire, not retire

BY ANNE CHAN, PhD, MFT

Ahhh...the heavenly joys of retirement: you don't have to wake up at an ungodly hour to work for the Man, you have endless time to perfect your golf or bingo game, and you have the ability to go for a vacation whenever you like. You envision your post-work life as one glorious vacation!

But is an endless vacation as satisfying as it might first appear?

Research on aging tells us that those who age well and are happiest in their retirement have the following characteristics: they challenge themselves, have a sense of purpose, and take care of their physical and mental well-being. In contrast to the retiree dozing on the couch, a healthy retiree is active in all aspects of her life. An example of a healthy retiree is someone who volunteers several days a week at his church, exercises most days a week, eats a healthy diet, and does a difficult

Sudoku puzzle every day. The healthy retiree feels fulfillment and satisfaction in contributing to his community. Even though he is not working, he continues to feel he has something to offer to the people around him. He might even report that he is busier than ever! If you could peek into his brain, you'd likely see that he is keeping his neurons in great shape by learning new skills, exercising, and challenging himself with his difficult Sudoku puzzles. Instead of putting his brain into a permanent state of stagnation, he is constantly learning and growing.

I wanted to offer a new and improved version of life after work: instead of retirement, let's think about 'reirement.' The following question is worth considering, whether you are close to retirement or not: What would you like to do in your reirement?

Don't fall for short-term thinking when answering this question. Many people think of retirement in the short-term—perhaps a home project they want to finish, vacations to far-off places, or a few rounds of golf. But the period of reirement can stretch for 10, 20, or even 30 years.

Lots can be done in a decade of reirement. Remember that question you dreaded answering when you were a kid? The one about what you wanted to be when you grew up? The good and bad news is you get to answer this question all over again. If you are fresh out of ideas, consider working with a counselor or checking out websites that help with retirement planning. <https://lifereimagined.aarp.org/> offers great tools for envisioning and planning your life, work, and relationships in your second act. Other useful websites include Retiredbrains.com, encore.org, and workforce50.com

Continuing your education and learning new skills are two key practices to consider in your reirement. Luckily, there are a plethora of low-cost and free resources for people wanting to learn or re-train. Websites like Coursera and Lynda offer inexpensive but quality ways to learn from America's top teachers and professors. If you are a low-income, unemployed older worker, you may qualify for retraining at the Department of Labor's Senior Community Services Employment Program (<https://www.doleta.gov/seniors/>).

Look for free or discounted tuition arrangements at state or community colleges. Those who are 50 or older can take advantage of The American Association of Community Colleges' Plus 50 Initiative, a program which allows seniors to take community college courses for a nominal fee. California's 23 state universities also offer free tuition in their Over 60 Program.

Sherry Lansing is my pick for an exemplar of reirement. As the first woman to head a Hollywood movie company, Sherry Lansing enjoyed a stunning career. Under her direction, Paramount released an unprecedented number of blockbuster hits like Titanic, Forrest Gump, and Braveheart. In 2004, Lansing retired after three decades in the movie industry. She was 60 years old at the time, an age where some might assume that she would embrace a life of eating bon-bons while relaxing in her easy chair.

Far from putting her feet up to rest, Lansing has been busy and active in her post-retirement. Just a few of her current responsibilities include raising money for cancer research, and serving as a board member for organizations as diverse as Teach

Counseling Corner

Anne Chan is a career counselor and licensed psychotherapist in Union City. She helps people find happiness and meaning in their work and lives. She can be reached at annechantcv@gmail.com for America, The Carter Center, and The American Association for Cancer Research. In her life as head of Paramount, she had worked zealously to make people's movie dreams come alive. But in her retirement, she has seized the opportunity to work for her personal dreams—cancer research, education, and helping retirees get back to work. She has gone in an entirely different direction from Tinseltown, but feels deeply fulfilled in her post-movie life. I nominate her as a successful reirement story with a happily-ever-after ending!

UC Berkeley probe into chancellor misspending cost $57,000

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) An investigation into the misuse of funds by the outgoing chancellor of the University of California's Berkeley campus cost 10 times more than the misspending officials were investigating. Last year's investigation found Berkeley Chancellor Nicholas Dirks used university resources for part of a $5,000 gym membership and 48 personal training sessions. He also had an elliptical exercise machine worth at least $3,500 installed at home, the Los Angeles Times previously reported.

UC spokesman Ricardo Vazquez confirmed Wednesday that UC spent $57,671 on the probe.

He said the aim was to conduct a "fair and thorough investigation." The cost of the probe was first reported by the Daily Californian newspaper.

UC ethics rules bar employees from the unauthorized use of campus resources or facilities. Dirks is stepping down on June 30.

prizes,” Melo said, adding, “We have support from businesses and individuals motivated to close the hunger gap.”

The honoree for Taste 2017 is Fremont resident Arminta King. King is a recipient of meals from Fremont-based LIFE ElderCare, a Meals on Wheels affiliate organization. At 96 years, she is still going strong and has a unique kinship with the Meals on Wheels program: after moving to the East Bay in the late ‘80s, she served for more than 20 years as the director for the Centerville Free Dining Room, which provided meals for the homeless and those in need.

“We’re hoping to make Taste 2017 extra special. It’s our main event of the year,” Melo said, adding that their hope is for no less than 450 guests and to raise $300,000 this year. Given that each meal provided costs $9 to produce, this goal could provide tens of thousands of desperately needed nutrition to our seniors. Thankfully, a number of local individuals, businesses, and foundations have become supporters of the event, such as Garden of Eden, Sutter Health, and Kaiser Permanente. “These businesses are putting their money where their mouth is,” Melo noted. With their support, Meals on Wheels is able to stage an evening full of food, wine, and fun.

Meals on Wheels’ mission is to help seniors take care of mind, body, and soul. Caring for our community’s seniors is a monumental act of compassion and kindness. Meals on Wheels of Alameda County and its affiliate organizations provide 2,200 meals to seniors every single day, a feat that could not happen without the public’s support, which is largely received by fundraising events like Taste 2017. Without these donations, vital services to our community’s seniors could not be provided.

Care provided by Meals on Wheels is much more than just a meal: it’s meal delivery, wellness checks, and socializing. “The human connection on a daily basis... almost means more than the meal. It’s really a special bond created through our volunteers and our clients,” Melo said. Sometimes, these visits can often prevent a tragedy. “About weekly, one to two seniors aren’t doing so well. A lot of times, our seniors are at high risk for strokes or heart conditions,” Melo explained. Last year, an alert volunteer noticed that one of her seniors was exhibiting stroke symptoms. The volunteer evaluated the senior and called 911 for care, and the senior ultimately made a full recovery.

Meals on Wheels only hosts two fundraisers a year: Taste in June and the Meals on Wheels Ride in October. Taste is the bigger of the two and takes a colossal effort to pull off. “We rely heavily on volunteers for Taste,” Melo said. More than 40 volunteers will be needed at the event, which is a great opportunity for a school clubs or similar groups. Though Taste 2017 hasn’t happened yet, next year’s event planning is already well underway. “I want a date for next year’s Taste now! I’ve created a bit of work for myself, but it’s all worth it,” Melo said.

SPICE UP OUTDOOR LIVING AREA WITH A FIRE PIT

BY DAVID R. NEWMAN

People have been sitting around campfires for warmth and companionship since the dawn of time. And while we no longer need fire to survive, we are still drawn to it. More and more Bay Area homeowners are taking advantage of our mild weather by simplest type of fire pit, in terms of design and function, is a wood burning fire pit. These can be bought online or at stores like Home Depot. Hundreds of designs exist, most made of metal (steel, copper, iron) or stone/concrete. They are, in essence, a small, portable grill, and can even be used to cook on. Or you can easily build your own by laying down bricks or stones in a pattern of your choice.

featuring fire pits as focal points, where family and friends can gather under the stars to warm their feet, roast marshmallows, or enjoy a late night cocktail.

While these types of fire pits are the most economical and the most traditional (who doesn't love the smell and crackle of burning wood?), they are becoming less popular with homeowners. Spare

"Fire pits are definitely on the rise," says Kenny Freeberg, Manager of Patioworld in Pleasanton. "They provide ambient lighting, they're a heat source, and they draw people towards them, so they're very popular. In the five years I've been here, the number of fire pits that we keep in stock has probably increased by about 300 percent."

Outdoor fire pits come in all shapes and sizes, from small, portable bowls to large, permanent outcroppings. The the Air days can limit usage, not to mention the hassle of buying and storing wood. And, depending on the direction of the wind, flying embers may pose a dangerous fire hazard. You may also end up with a face full of smoke.

Small fire pits fueled by liquid gel are an affordable option for many looking to spice up their yard. However, the heat that emanates from them is minimal and makes cooking or keeping warm a challenge. These types of fire pits are best used for decoration (or for keeping the bugs away!).

Most of today's modern fire pits are fueled by liquid propane (LP) or natural gas. The flame is easy to control, they're clean burning so you can run them year round, and once you turn on a sofa or chair, it's a lot more convenient to eat at that height."

Many manufacturers of tabletop fire pits offer customizable options, including porcelain-tiled tops in different shades, colored glass pebbles or ceramic logs for the bowl (this helps radiate the heat), wind guards, and a cover for the flame area (turning it into a regular table). Some covers also double as a Lazy Susan.

LP comes in a small tank that is highly portable and is easily stowed inside most fire pits. Many people prefer the convenience of having a fire pit that they can move to different areas of the yard depending on the occasion. Some people even take them along on camping trips. Natural gas, on the other hand, is a cheaper alternative, but is a major renovation project. Fire pits fueled by natural gas become a permanent feature of the landscape, with a gas line running underground from the house. Whichever way you go, it's important to understand that many LP fire pits can be converted to natural gas, and vice versa.

There are many online tutorials that show how to make a simple wood or liquid gel fire pit, a relatively simple DIY project. And fire pit kits for LP or natural gas are also popular amongst advanced DIYers. Most of them come with a burner, pan, and some kind of ignition system: match light (while turning on the gas, hold a match or lighter close to ignite), spark ignition (while turning on the gas, push a button that will create a spark), or electronic ignition (fire turns on with the flip of a switch). Some fire pits come with a remote control.

Prices range anywhere from $50 for a simple, decorative liquid gel fire pit urn or bowl to over $3,000 for a top of the line, permanent fire pit, complete with colored glass and ornate metalwork. Indeed, many of the higher end fire pits are truly works of art, often hand crafted by artisans. Of course, as with anything, you get what you pay for. Be mindful of warranty information, as some materials can fade or crack over time. Maintenance is minimal.

Adding a fire pit to your backyard can really energize the space, creating a warm and inviting area where family and friends will want to spend many hours together, eating, drinking, and sharing stories. Just like our ancestors did, all those years ago.

Shootout!

By JOHN CHRISTIAN,
HAYWARD AREA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY

On September 16, 1929, Hayward Police Officer George Vierra responded to a domestic violence call that would change Hayward and its police department forever. The police were called because a man named Vincent Cataldo fired a gun into the air in attempt to scare his wife during a heated argument. By most accounts Cataldo was said to be drunk which would have been illegal because of prohibition.

Officer Vierra soon arrived onto the scene at 1261 B Street, just east of downtown Hayward. When Cataldo was confronted by Vierra and two other men, he threatened to shoot them. The officers quickly retreated to their patrol car and took cover, waiting for backup to arrive. After a moment, Vierra got up and pointed the police car's spotlight at the house. Just as Vierra exposed himself, Cataldo appeared in the window and opened fire with a rifle. Vierra was hit twice, once right above the heart and the second time through the arm. Alameda County Constable A.J. La Cunha returned fire and was also shot twice, but recovered shortly after. Meanwhile Vierra was rushed to the Hayward Central Hospital on A Street where he bled to death about an hour later. Vierra officially became the first Hayward Police officer to be killed in the line of duty. He was a three-year veteran of the department.

Back at the scene, Cataldo's home was surrounded. Unbeknownst to Catalado, there had been a law enforcement convention in Oakland about the time of the shooting. As news of the shootout traveled, officers and sheriffs from all over Alameda County responded and surrounded the building. It's hard to say exactly how many came, but reports suggest more than a dozen armed officers were on the scene. The men were armed with pistols, revolvers, shot guns and even a machine gun! Two Hayward fire fighters were also on the scene using water cannons to flood out Catalado.

At some point during the melee, Cataldo's wife escaped the house and Cataldo's son, Vincent Cataldo Jr. was arrested for interfering with the officers.

Upstairs, Cataldo held out for three hours, most of which he spent crouched in a cast iron bathtub protecting him from bullets shot through of the two-story building. Finally, a tear gas bomb drove Cataldo to the back porch where a Constable from Niles shot him with bird shot. Cataldo was quickly taken into custody and the siege was finally over. Any celebration was short lived however as word spread that before it had even ended, Officer George Vierra had died.

When the smoke cleared officials examined the building. It was estimated that 1261 B Street was shot hundreds of times. At his murder trial, Cataldo pleaded insanity due to his drunken state. A jury took only six minutes to convict Cataldo of Vierra's murder. He was given a life sentence but paroled in 1946 at the age of 70.

Back in Hayward, local officials honored George Vierra with a City Council Resolution commending his bravery. It was reported that Vierra's funeral was the largest in Hayward's history at that point with over 1000 in attendance at All Saints Church. The funeral cortege was then escorted by San Leandro and Hayward Police as well as state patrolmen to Holy Sculpture Cemetery for burial. Vierra's No. 2 star police badge was retired by the police department. George Vierra left behind a wife and an 11-year-old son.

THE ROBOT REPORT

By FRANK TOBE

Andy Rubin, who developed the Android operating system at Google and then went on to lead Google through multiple acquisitions into robotics, has launched a new consumer products company. Meanwhile, Anthony Levandowski, who, after many years with Google and their autonomous driving project, launched Otto which Uber acquired, was sued by Google, and just got fired by Uber.

People involved in robotics — from the multi-disciplined scientists turned entrepreneurs to all the specialists and other engineers involved in any aspect of the industry of making things robotic — are a relatively small community. Most people know (or know of) most of the others and get-togethers like ICRA, the IEEE International Conference on Robotics and Automation, held recently in Singapore, are an opportunity to meet new up-and-coming talent as they present their papers and product ideas and mingle with older, more established players. Two of those players made headline news this week: Rubin launching Essential and Levandowski getting fired.

Andy Rubin

Rubin came to Google in 2005 when they acquired Android and left in 2014 to found an incubator for hardware startups, Playground Global. While at Google Rubin became a SVP of Mobile and Digital content including the open-source smartphone operating system Android and then started Google's robotics group through a series of acquisitions. Android can be found in more than 2 billion phones, TVs, cars and watches.

In 2007, Rubin was developing his own version of a smartphone at Google, also named Android, when Apple launched their iPhone, a much more capable and stylish device. Google's product was scrapped but their software was marketed to HTC and their phone became Google's first Android-based phone. The software was similar enough to Apple's that Steve Jobs was furious and, as reported in Fred Vogelstein's "Dogfight: How Apple and Google Went to War and Started a Revolution," called Rubin a "big, arrogant f—k" and "everything [he's doing] is a f—king rip-off of what we're doing."

Jobs had trusted Google's cofounders, Larry Page and Sergey Brin and Google's CEO Eric Schmidt who was on Apple's board. All three had been telling Jobs about Android, but they kept telling him it would be different from the iPhone. He believed them until he actually saw the phone and its software and how similar it was to the iPhone's, whereupon he insisted Google make a lot of changes and removed Schmidt from Apple's board. Rubin was miffed and had a sign on his office white board that read "STEVE JOBS STOLE MY LUNCH MONEY."

Quietly, stealthily, Rubin went about creating "a new kind of company using 21st century methods to build products for the way people want to live in the 21st century." That company is Essential. And Essential just launched and is taking orders for its new $699 phone and a still-stealthy home assistant to compete with Amazon's Echo and Google's Home devices. Wired magazine calls the new Essential Phone "the anti-iPhone." The first Phones will ship in June.

Anthony Levandowski

In 2004, Levandowski and a team from UC Berkeley built and entered an autonomous motorcycle into the DARPA Grand Challenge. In 2007, he joined Google to work with Sebastian Thrun on Google Street View. Outside of Google he started a mobile mapping company that experimented with LiDAR technology and another to build a self-driving LiDAR-using a Prius. Google acquired both companies including their IP.

In 2016 Levandowski left Google to found Otto, a company making self-driving kits to retrofit semi-trailer trucks.

Just as the kit was launched, Uber acquired Otto and Levandowski became the head of Uber's driverless car operation in addition to continuing his work at Otto.

A Wikipedia report about Levandowski details recent legal troubles:

According to a February 2017 lawsuit filed by Waymo, the autonomous vehicle research subsidiary of Alphabet Inc, Levandowski allegedly "downloaded 9.7 GB of Waymo's highly confidential files and trade secrets, including blueprints, design files and testing documentation" before resigning to found Otto.

In March 2017, United States District Judge William Haskell Alsup, referred the case to federal prosecutors after Levandowski exercised his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. In May 2017, Judge Alsup ordered Levandowski to refrain from working on Otto's LiDAR and required Uber to disclose its discussions on the technology. Levandowski was later fired by Uber for failing to cooperate in an internal investigation.

receive high ratings

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN KILLGORE

The State Preschool program operated by Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) was recently given a “Tier-5” rating by the Alameda County Quality Rating and Improvement System. The rating is like a “5-Star” recognition, the highest quality rating. Eight state preschool classes, housed at six different sites throughout the city, earned the top ranking.

FUSD State Preschools designated are at Blacow, Cabrillo, Durham and Grimmer Elementary Schools, Glankler Early Learning Center and the Hyman Learning Center located at Fremont Adult School. The FUSD Board of Education will recognize State Preschool classes at its June 7 board meeting.

“Congratulations to our State Preschool teachers and staff for achieving this designation and striving to provide children with a quality head start on their education,” said FUSD Superintendent, Dr. Jim Morris. “We are proud to see this top rating extend to all classes in the District and thank the County for its assessment and feedback.”

The Quality Rating and Improvement System, or QRIS, is a systemic approach to assess, improve, and communicate the level of quality in early childhood care and education programs. QRIS administrators award quality ratings to early care and education programs that meet a set of defined program standards on a scale of 1 to 5, 5 being the highest standard.

The Alameda County QRIS is part of the collaboration of the California Department of Education Early Care and Education Support Division and California First 5 which now operates some level of QRIS in every county in California.

SUZIE THE CAT

This beautiful cat is Suzie. Suzie is a stray that was found in Fremont two days after Christmas. Suzie was thin and had several medical problems that have since been taken care of. We love this sweet girl and estimate her age to be approximately ten years old.

Senior animals are often overlooked by people and it is a shame. With a senior pet, you get love and appreciation. Senior pets are quiet and usually love to snuggle with their family members.

Sally has been at the shelter for five months. We are not giving up on her! Perhaps seeing her lovely face and hearing her story will touch someone looking for an older pet and adopt her. In the meantime, she has a home with us.

Student’s service dog gets own headshot in class yearbook

ASSOCIATED PRESS

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP) A Virginia high school student who attends school with a service dog found himself side-by-side with his canine in the school’s yearbook photos.

Andrew Schalk has Type 1 diabetes and uses his dog, Alpha, to alert him when his blood sugar levels are off. The black Labrador Retriever gives the 16-year-old his paw when his levels are too high or too low.

Alpha was there when Schalk had his picture taken for the Stafford High School yearbook and the dog ended up getting his own headshot. The yearbook staff came across the picture and decided to include Alpha in the photos of the junior class. Staffer Grace Fuller told a local media outlet that Alpha “is a part of this school now.” Schalk says Alpha has turned his diabetes “into a positive experience.”

Milpitas police officers try to fill a void

SUBMITTED BY MILPITAS
POLICE DEPARTMENT

In mid-May, the Milpitas Police Department received a 911 call from 9-year-old year old Annie reporting her father had unexpectedly died during the night. Sadly, when officers arrived they confirmed the passing of Annie’s father. Annie’s mother was out of the country at the time. The officers at the residence quickly developed a bond with Annie, as many of them are fathers themselves and have children around the same age.

The officers learned that Annie enjoyed her daily walks to school with her father and having him read books to her at bedtime. Officers also learned she was quite an artist.

On Thursday, June 1, officers had the honor of walking Annie to school. They also presented her with gift cards for Barnes and Noble and Michael’s craft store so she could purchase books and art supplies.

This simple gesture of walking a little girl to school so that she would not feel alone was organized by the officers with the help of Annie’s mother.

We truly appreciate the compassion and caring shown by our officers during this difficult time.

Safety First!

During the summer months and on weekends kids are playing outside, riding bikes, and taking walks. Republic Services collection drivers have a sterling safety record and are trained to be conscious of more people out and about this time of year. At the same time we need you and your family to be aware of our drivers. Keeping residents safe is everyone’s responsibility, especially on our roadways, driveways and parking lots.

Follow these helpful tips to make sure we all get where we’re going safely.

1. Always Cross at the Crosswalk. It’s never safe to cross in the middle of the street or between parked cars. Drivers will have a difficult time seeing you and may not have enough time to react. When there isn’t a marked crosswalk, everyone should cross at the corner. Make sure you always look both ways before crossing any street.
2. Trucks Take Time. Garbage and recycling trucks take much longer to stop than cars. Play it safe and let a truck go past before crossing the street.
3. Watch for Right Turns. Before stepping off the curb look over your shoulder to make sure there isn’t a vehicle behind you about to make a right turn directly in your path.
4. Always Stay on the Sidewalk! Where there isn’t a sidewalk available, walk facing traffic and stay alert.
5. Pay Attention in parking lots, driveways, and other non-traffic areas. Garbage and recycling trucks that are backing up or servicing dumpsters, or any vehicle looking for a parking spot may not see you walking around them. Remember, never play in a parking lot.

A Trip Through Our Solar System!

You don't have to leave town to explore space this summer. You can blast off for fun all summer long as Kid Scoop takes readers on a trip through the Solar-System with our mascot, Woodward!

Spacey Names

Our Solar System formed in the Milky Way galaxy about 4.6 billion years ago.

The sun is at the center of the solar system. Eight planets and their natural satellites which include Earth's moon, dwarf planets, asteroids, comets and meteoroids orbit or revolve around the sun because of its gravitational pull.

There are billions of other solar systems in our galaxy and there are billions of galaxies in the Universe.

Planet Memory Trick

One way to remember the order of the planets in our solar system is to make up a sentence with each word starting with the first letter of a planet, starting with the one closest to the sun. This example worked when Pluto was still considered a planet:

My Very Educated Mother Just Served Us Nine Pizzas

Can you make up a new sentence without a word starting with P?

AVOID THE SPACE JUNK!

Space junk is a major problem. Some of it is very large, such as burnt-out rocket stages, dead spacecraft, and a few tools lost during spacewalks. Working satellites can crash into the space junk, creating more space junk. Sometimes space junk falls back to the Earth.

Our Distant Neighbors

Our solar system has 8 planets. (Pluto is now considered a dwarf planet.) Scientists continue to study our fellow planets, even though they are far, far away. Do the math to find out how long it would take to get from Earth to each planet in our solar system.

NOTE: This is not an easy question to answer. The length of time depends upon many different factors, including the spacecraft used and the location of each planet in its orbit. The time periods here are approximated and refer to the previous spacecraft that flew to or near each planet.

MERCURY:	3 + 4 =	YEARS
VENUS:	10 + 5 =	MONTHS
MARS:	3 + 3 + 1 =	MONTHS
JUPITER:	2 + 2 + 2 =	YEARS
SATURN:	10 - 3 =	YEARS
URANUS:	6 + 3 =	YEARS
NEPTUNE:	15 - 3 =	YEARS

Number Game

Each player needs a page from the sports section. In one minute, each player circles as many numbers as they can. Who can circle the most? Who can circle the most over 50? Whose numbers add up to the largest sum? Whose numbers add up to the lowest sum?

Make a Scale Model of the Solar System

This activity from NASA explains how to use beads and string to make a model that shows the relative distances between the sun and planets in our solar system. For the full directions go to: jpl.nasa.gov/edu/teach/activity/solar-system-bead-activity/

Start your scale model by cutting a 5.0 meter piece of string and tying the largest “sun” bead to one end using a double knot.

Using the distances in centimeters, measure the distance from the sun on the string to each planet.

Tie a colored bead in place for each planet using a double knot.
Note: The bead colors are rough approximations of the colors of the planets and the sun. However, you can use whatever color of beads you have handy.

Some Rose History

By PAT KITE

The extremely popular pink pom-pom ‘Cecile Brunner’ rose is so much a part of our landscape folks tend to take it for granted. Its world introduction goes go back to 1881, when Frenchwoman Marie Ducher developed a cross from Madame de Tartas and Mignonette. Madame de Tartas is an antique pink shrub rose developed by Bernede in 1859. Jean-Baptiste Guillot bred mignonette, a light pink polyantha, in 1875. I always pronounce Cecile like Cecily, but my daughter keeps correcting me. It is like “sesseel,” and it is ‘Mademoiselle’ Cecile Brunner. The Cecile name honors the daughter of famous Swiss rose grower Ulrich Brunner. The earliest form was a shrub, but in 1894, Franz P. Hosp of Riverside, CA discovered a climbing form. This now festoons pergolas and terraces all over our neighborhoods, eventually reaching over ten feet high. If you are looking for an easy-peasy rose, blooming spring through fall, this might be a good choice. An alternate name is “Sweetheart Rose.”

Ask people, and the ‘Peace’ rose is almost always mentioned. This is a shortened history. For a longer version, order “For Love of a Rose” by Antonia Ridge. In 1935, the commercial rose growing Meilland family was testing out many different rose seedlings. The Peace rose was only a number: 3-35-40. Several years later, after international trials, 3-35-40 was considered a definite winner. Then came World War II and the German occupation of France. The Meilland farm in Lyons, France was restructured for food growing, not roses. Panicking, the Meillands sent 3-35-40 rose samples to Turkey, Italy, Germany and the United States. All shipments, except the American, became war casualties. It was smuggled out of France in a diplomatic satchel. It wasn’t until 1944 that the Meillands knew this rose had survived. The big promotion date by the California Rose Society April 29, 1945 turned out to also be the date Berlin fell to the Allied forces. The name changed from 3-35-40 to Peace Rose. It is a phenomenon. Variants now include Climbing Peace, Chicago

Blooms and anniversary celebration at Old Mission

SUBMITTED BY NANCY DORIGHI

A visit to Old Mission San Jose in Fremont is exceptional this time of year. Not only will you see the museum artifacts and the beautiful Old Mission church, but its rose garden is in full bloom. Historic red roses dominate the garden, which circle a central fountain. Pink and white shrub roses surround one of the many olive trees that have graced the lands around the mission since the 19th century. These hundreds of olive trees, planted by the Spanish missionaries, still thrive today.

The Jardín (pleasure garden) was a luxury in early Alta California due to the scarcity of water. Ornamental plants consisting of flowering and scented vines, shrubs, and seasonal-color plants became common only after each of the 21 missions’ water systems were completed in later years. In the garden, you can see examples of some of the plants that graced Spanish Alta California landscapes.

The hearty mission grape, listan negro, brought to Alta California in the 18th century and used for wine making, is also a feature of the patio garden. A Damask rose and plaque, dedicated to a beloved mission historian and docent Regena Dennie, are in the garden. Overseeing it all is a life-sized statue of Father Junipero Serra, the “father of the California missions.”

Also, this June marks the 220th anniversary of the founding of Old Mission San Jose. A special Mass will be celebrated in the Old Mission on June 10th followed by light refreshments on the patio. And on Sunday, June 11th, you may enjoy a docent-led tour of the entire grounds, including a musical interlude from the church’s rare and historic Rosales Spanish organ. Please call the

East Bay water polo players honored

Women's Water Polo

Two women's water polo players from Cal State East Bay (CSEB) snagged 2017 All-American honors during a recent awards program hosted by the Association of Collegiate Water Polo Coaches. Freshman player Auriel Bill was named to the First Team and senior Nikki Vaughn earned a Second Team nod.

Also honored during the annual awards program held May 30 was CSEB head water polo coach Lisa Cooper who was selected as the Women's Division II Coach of the Year.

For Cooper, this is her second career Coach of the Year award and her first since 2010. She led the Pioneers to an overall record of 13-13 during the Spring 2017 season posting at least a .500 record for the 14th time in 15 seasons at CSEB. The Pioneers appeared in the ACWPC national top-25 rankings several times over the course of the season, which they completed with a third-place finish at 2017 Western Water Polo Association (WWPA) Championships.

Bill is one of seven Division II student-athletes recognized on the First Team after an outstanding rookie campaign. She was named WWPA Newcomer of the Year and First Team All-WWPA after leading the Pioneers in goals (49), assists (29), and steals (43) during the season. She was twice selected as the WWPA Player of the Week, and she finished the season ranked third among all WWPA players with 79 total points.

Vaughn also notches her first career All-America nod after another impressive season as CSUEB's starting goalkeeper. She led the WWPA in save percentage, ranked second in saves per games, and ranked third in goal against average, earning All-WWPA Second Team honors. She was also a First Team All-Tournament selection after two outstanding performance in the cage at WWPA Championships. Vaughn racked up 459 saves for the Pioneers in two seasons after transferring from Fullerton College, which ranks fifth in program history.

Cal State East Bay joins UC San Diego (three), California Baptist (two), and Azusa Pacific (two) as the only four institutions to place multiple athletes on the All-America teams.

Lady Colts come up short in championship game

Softball

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The James Logan Lady Colts (Union City) came up short in the Division 1 softball championship game on June 3, 2017, losing 6-2 to the Foothill Falcons. An early first inning 2-0 lead looked good but then the game started to slip away as the Falcons' offense exploded for six runs in the first, third and sixth innings to put the out of reach. But the Colts would not go quietly as they put runners on base and in scoring position. However, a tenacious Falcon defense closed the door each time and without a key hit to close the gap, a comeback was not to be.

comes to Milpitas

SUBMITTED BY
OFFICER MARK DOYLE, MILPITAS PD

The Milpitas Police Activities League (PAL) announces the birth of organized rugby in Milpitas. Milpitas PAL is currently working with USA Rugby and NorCal Rugby to create a Rugby Club for middle school and high school boys and girls. The plan is to field four teams this fall, a boys' and girls' team at each level. The teams will play other Bay Area, Sacramento Valley, and Tri-Valley clubs. The Milpitas PAL girls' teams are the first and only girls' teams available in the South Bay since USA Rugby and NorCal Youth Rugby prohibited any coed play at or above the middle school level in 2016. With the increased popularity of rugby nationwide, coupled with an increased number of rugby college scholarships, Milpitas PAL hopes to bridge the gap, allowing young people in our area to play the sport. We also hope to create opportunities for players to further themselves physically, in character, and in the pursuit of higher education.

Summer Girls Flag Rugby Academy

Milpitas PAL will start its rugby program with a Girls' Flag Rugby Summer Academy starting on June 24, 2017.

The academy will consist of six two-hour Saturday morning sessions between June 24 and July 29, 2017. Middle school and high school girls will learn the basic skills and laws of the game in a non-competitive setting leading up to flag rugby scrimmages. Participants will also explore USA Rugby's A Girl's Guide To Life curriculum addressing confidence and self-esteem, body image, diversity and respect, bullying, leadership, and understanding identities. Registration for the academy is open through June 3, 2017. Nine members from the San Jose Seahawks Rugby Club men's and women's teams will assist Milpitas PAL with coaching at the academy. A registration pamphlet is available on the Milpitas Police Department website or may be requested from Officer Mark Doyle at mdoyle@ci.milpitas.ca.gov.

The Future

The tackle rugby teams for boys and girls will be formed in the fall and play a season extending until March 2018. Milpitas business anchors, including Milpitas Materials, Piercy Toyota, Preston Pipelines, Devcon Construction, Service King Collision Repair Center, Stuart Event Rentals, Snap-On Tools, and US Bank have already pledged their support and granted donations for the club. Rugby fans and businesses who would like to make a tax deductible donation to Milpitas PAL or become an official sponsor of our league may do so by contacting Officer Mark Doyle at mdoyle@ci.milpitas.ca.gov.

Lady Colts advance to championship

Softball

MIKE PELLAND

The James Logan Lady Colts (Union City) won their third straight North Coast Section (NCS) game with a 1-0 shutout over the Freedom Falcons on May 30th. The two teams played to a scoreless tie through five innings. On the second pitch in the top of the sixth inning, Lady Colts' Cassie Wenn lined a pitch over the left field fence for the game's only run. Pitcher Camille Rodriguez then gave up a lead-off double to the Falcons in the bottom of the sixth inning but, after pitching around the Falcon's No. 3 hitter, retired the next three batters to end Freedom's best scoring opportunity.

The victory for the eighth-seed Logan Colts opened the door to face the second-seeded Foothill Falcons in the NCS Division 1 Championship on June 3 at Diablo Valley College.

Foreign adoptions by Americans decline sharply

BY DAVID CRARY
AP NATIONAL WRITER

NEW YORK (AP), The number of foreign children adopted by U.S. parents plunged by 18 percent last year, to the lowest level since 1992, due in part to Russia's ban on adoptions by Americans.

Figures released Friday by the State Department for the 2013 fiscal year showed 7,094 adoptions from abroad, down from 8,668 in 2012 and down 69 percent from the peak of 22,884 in 2004.

As usual, China accounted for the most children adopted in the U.S, with 2,306.

Ethiopia was second at 993, down from 1,568 in 2012. Ethiopian authorities have been trying to place more abandoned children with relatives or foster families.

Russia, which had been No. 3 on the list in 2012, with 748 children adopted by Americans, dropped to 7th for 2013, with 250 children.

Touring Historic Milpitas

SUBMITTED BY
JOSEPH EHARDT

The Milpitas Historical Society is conducting its annual community tour on Saturday, June 17, which is free and open well-marked Entrance 4 (Food Court), on the east side of the Mall. The tour begins at 9:30 a.m. with a docent-led explanation of the Society's exhibit of Milpitas historical items. After that, the group will board a bus and proceed to western Sinnott Lane, the general location of the early 1900s St. John the Baptist

Park, we will unload from the bus to pose for a group photo in front of the historic 1835 residence on

BEFORE: Campbell's Corner as it appeared in the 1950s followed what was earlier known as Smith's Corner, dating to 1915-1917. to the public. A bus tour is designed to acquaint the community with historic sites in Milpitas. We will visit various locations by chartered coach bus with reserved seating. Docents will provide knowledgeable commentary to tour participants and everyone will receive a multi-page color brochure documenting this year's sites.

Pre-registered participants will meet at the Great Mall of the Bay Area at 9 a.m. for check in at Hammond Way and eastern Sinnott Lane for a brief discussion of the critical role of railroads in Milpitas history (as well as reveal former locations of the bygone Southern Pacific Milpitas station from its eastern side and the farmhouse of Milpitas pioneer John Sinnott, also gone).

The bus will travel to South Main Street, passing the entrance to the bygone John O'Toole Mansion and pausing near Church, old Milpitas Lumber, and 1950-1960s Jolly Kone, and Kinney Shoes.

At the historic intersection of today's Serra Way and Main Street (formerly Alviso Road and Mission Road), participants will unload from the tour bus and hear an extensive discussion of the historic significance of that central location and various businesses that prospered there over the decades, going back to the 1850s in some cases. Following this, participants will return to their seats on the bus.

The tour will continue north on Main Street and pause near the location of the 1922 Winsor Blacksmith shop; the shop itself is gone, but its water tower remains; one of its wooden walls burned with test brands of local cattle ranches is on display at the library. In plain view is the 1916 Neoclassical design Milpitas Grammar School, which in the 1950s served as City Hall. Now it is surrounded by the current library. Across the street is a 1915 Prairie-style architecture home, now a designated City Cultural Resource. Both buildings were designed by the celebrated architect Frank Delos Wolfe.

The tour will travel over the Calaveras Overpass for a panoramic view of the current Union Pacific switching yard on the way to José Alviso Adobe Park. Along the way, we will pass the old Samuel Ayer High School (1956-1980), named after pioneer Samuel Ayer on whose land it was built. At Alviso Adobe what was the 4,458-acre Mexican land grant Rancho Milpitas. Then the group will walk around the property to examine various outbuildings.

The tour will continue south on Piedmont Rd to the 1902 St. John the Baptist cemetery where another docent will talk about many of our early Portuguese settlers who are buried there. After which, the group will walk across Piedmont Road to the Silva Apricot Ranch. This is the last working apricot ranch in Milpitas; Kelly Silva and his family have cared for this vintage farm for almost 60 years. Hand processing of fresh apricots will be explained and demonstrated by the Silva crew.

With the tour concluded, the group will re-board the bus and return to the Great Mall.

To reserve a guaranteed seat on the tour bus or to obtain additional information, please call (408) 945-9848. Anyone without a reservation wanting to join the tour on June 17 is welcome if seating is still available.

Some cities, states help minorities enter marijuana industry

BY JANIE HAR AND BOB SALSBERT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP), Andre Shavers was sentenced to five years on felony probation after authorities burst into the house where he was living in one of Oakland’s most heavily policed neighborhoods and found a quarter ounce of marijuana.

After the 2007 raid, Shavers couldn’t leave the state without permission. He was subject to police searches at any time. He walked to the corner store one night for maple syrup and came back in a police car. Officers wanted to search his home again. All the while, cannabis storefronts flourished elsewhere in a state where medical marijuana was authorized in 1996.

Now Oakland and other cities and states with legal pot are trying to make up for the toll marijuana enforcement took on minorities by giving them a better shot at joining the growing marijuana industry. African-Americans made up 83 percent of cannabis arrests in Oakland in the year Shavers was arrested.

“I was kind of robbed of a lot for five years,” Shavers said. “It’s almost like, what do they call that? Reparations. That’s how I look at it. If this is what they’re offering, I’m going to go ahead and use the services.”

The efforts’ supporters say legalization is enriching white people but not brown and black people who have been arrested for cannabis crimes at far greater rates than whites.

Recreational pot is legal in eight states and the nation’s capital. California, Maine, Massachusetts and Nevada approved ballot questions in November. They join Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Alaska and the District of Columbia, which acted earlier. Twenty-nine states permit medical marijuana.

Massachusetts’ ballot initiative was the first to insert specific language encouraging participation in the industry by those “disproportionately harmed by marijuana prohibition and enforcement.” The law does not specify how that would be accomplished.

In Ohio, a 2016 medical pot law included setting aside 15 percent of marijuana-related licenses for minority businesses.

In Pennsylvania, applicants for cultivation and dispensing permits must spell out how they will achieve racial equity. Florida lawmakers agreed last year to reserve one of three future cultivation licenses for a member of the Florida Black Farmers and Agriculturists Association.

There have been setbacks as well. The Maryland General Assembly adjourned last month without acting on a bill to guarantee a place for minority-owned businesses after the Legislative Black Caucus complained that no black-owned companies were awarded any of the state’s initial 15 medical marijuana cultivation licenses.

There’s no solid data on how many minorities own U.S. cannabis businesses or how many seek a foothold in the industry. But diversity advocates say the industry is overwhelmingly white.

The lack of diversity, they say, can be traced to multiple factors: rules that disqualify people with prior convictions from operating legal cannabis businesses; lack of access to banking services and capital to finance startup costs; and state licensing systems that tend to favor established or politically connected applicants.

In 2010, blacks constituted 14 percent of the U.S. population but made up more than 36 percent of all arrests for pot possession, according to an American Civil Liberties Union study released in 2013. The report found African-Americans were nearly four times more likely than whites to be arrested for cannabis possession.

That study did not report Latino arrests because the FBI data on which it was based did not track Hispanics. But a 2016 study by the ACLU of California and the Drug Policy Alliance found Latinos were cited at 1.4 times the rate of white people for marijuana infractions in Los Angeles and 1.7 percent the rate in Fresno.

The Minority Cannabis Business Association has drafted model legislation for states considering new or revised marijuana laws, including language to expunge pot-related convictions and to encourage racial and gender diversity among cannabis businesses.

The Oakland City Council in April voted to set aside half of medical cannabis licenses for people who have been convicted of a marijuana crime or who lived in

Games aren’t just for kids! Technology accelerating learning

BY JENNIFER CHEN

I recently attended a panel discussion on the exciting trend of game-based learning at DeVry University’s Fremont campus. Dr. Rod Berger, President and CEO of MindRocket Media Group, kicked off the discussion by asking panelists to define game-based learning, its role in higher education, and challenges that it faces.

Gamification Analyst Karl Kapp acknowledged that, “game-based learning has a lot of misunderstandings. There is a perception that play and work should never mix. Yet the reality is that work is play, and play is a type of game. Games can teach work, strategic thinking, and creativity.”

Jim Kiggins, Director of Engaged Learning Technology at DeVry, added that “a well-designed game is an elegant learning system with multiple smaller systems and enterprises.”

Andre Thomas, CEO of Triseum and creator of the LIVE Lab at Texas A&M University, debunked the idea that “just because it is a game, doesn’t mean it is easy. In games, you have to fully master a level before you can move forward to the next level. This is a solid metric for testing an understanding of a subject matter.”

The panelists agreed that gaming provides a lot of metrics and big data information on how students learn. For example, information on the number of attempts/clicks/lives it takes a student to master a level allows teachers to determine how to best support a student in person. While lectures are a passive and didactic form of learning, games demand interaction, creativity, and concentration.

The panelists also agreed that the best form of learning (the apprenticeship and master model) is not scalable. Thus, businesses can use game-based learning to teach employees skills in sales, customer service, and business operations. Game-based learning provides individualized attention, teaches teamwork, and allows for struggle and the freedom to fail. The ability to fail quickly allows people to learn from mistakes.

Additionally, game-based learning flips the traditional lecture model and encourages students to learn outside of the classroom by playing games and coming together to make sense of the topic in class as a group.

When asked how engaging, interesting, and informative learning games can be created, Kiggins replied, “a good game is all about the storytelling. The compelling nature of games is not about the technology.” When a game works as a low-tech board game, it will translate digitally. The reverse, however, is not always true.

My most important takeaway from this panel is that playing is a crucial part of learning. I’m going to make it my daily mission to play more.

one of 21 police districts with disproportionately high marijuana arrests. Candidates must meet income restrictions.

Complicating matters is that marijuana remains illegal under federal law — a fact seen as unlikely to change under President Donald Trump. That makes most banks reluctant to lend money to startup cannabis businesses, which often must rely instead on personal wealth. An Oakland-based nonprofit known as The Hood Incubator provides training and mentoring to minority cannabis entrepreneurs.

“Maybe they lack the money to get into the industry or they might have, you know, gotten arrested in the past for oh, what do you know? Selling weed. And now they can’t get into the legal industry,” said Ebele Ifedigbo, one of the group’s three co-founders.

Under Oakland’s program, applicants who don’t qualify for a so-called equity license can still get preference if they “incubate” a minority-owned business with free rent or other help.

Dan Grace, president of Dark Heart Nursery, is nervous about finding a partner but ready to make the program work. Debby Goldsberry, Magnolia Wellness dispensary’s executive director, said the industry is primed to change and expand.

“Why? Because there’s a prohibition that’s been out there targeting people in our communities in Oakland, and it’s very unfair,” she said.

Oakland hosted a business mixer in May that attracted several hundred people, including retirees who have never smoked a joint and people who served time for marijuana offenses and established cannabis businesses.

That group included Shavers, who hopes his drug-related record helps him get office space and investors to grow his delivery service, The Medical Strain. ‘It’s a blessing in disguise,” he said, “but not the blessing I would recommend.”

California bill would punish firms that bid on border wall

BY SOPHIA BOLLAG AND JONATHAN J. COOPER,
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP), The California state Senate has approved a measure that would prohibit the state from contracting with companies that bid to build President Donald Trump’s proposed border wall.

Senators voted 23-16 Thursday to send the bill to the Assembly.

Democratic Sen. Ricardo Lara of Bell Gardens says the state shouldn’t do business with companies that work on a project he says is harmful to immigrant families and the environment.

Republican Sen. Jeff Stone of Temecula says the bill would “promote political discrimination.” He says the state shouldn’t blacklist companies bidding on a lucrative contract.

Trump’s pledge to build a border wall energized his base and was a centerpiece of his campaign for the presidency. Congress has not approved funding for the project.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

And then there was one

Since future Fremont elections will be balanced between districts wherein three districts of the six will be decided every two years (the at-large mayoral seat will be added to the ballot every four years beginning in 2020), representation of every district by someone who resides within the district is not feasible immediately. Current and 2018-2020 councilmembers may not all live in separate districts depending on which map is selected. The transitional years 2018-2020 will therefore contain a mix of “at-large” representatives and district elected councilmembers. Sorting out districts and representation will be a process, but by the 2020 election cycle, all will be in synch.

With continued residential development – planned and in progress – in Centerville, Irvington, Mission San Jose and Warm Springs, the effect on district boundaries is unclear. It takes years of planning and construction to realize these plans and therefore the impact on districts may not be substantial at the 2020 census. If this is the case, it will be another 10 years until another census dictates population effects on boundaries.

District boundaries are not just about sensible representation; they also will affect candidacy too. For instance, current councilmembers Bacon and Jones share a district in Map C-1a but are split apart in Map C-2b. It will be interesting to see if this becomes a deciding factor. If they decide to run for office in 2018, it would be beneficial for them to be the sole incumbent in a district rather than face each other at the polls. Councilmember Bacon will be termed out in 2020 and Councilmember Salwan, if he decides to continue residence at his current address, will not be affected. From an online “Open City Hall” forum, it appears that most respondents favor Map C-1a, but representative government does not always follow the wishes of a majority opinion.

Whatever happens, Fremont is about to embark on an interesting journey and while not universally popular, this change is one indication of Fremont’s growth in population and regional character.

The Fremont City Council is finally going to have to choose. From conceptual district maps that balanced population, transit oriented development, neighborhoods, schools, ethnic groups and a host of added factors, a choice between two maps will be finalized tonight. One map attempts to recognize traditional districts and developments while the other splits the Centerville area in favor of consolidating the Afghan community. Although the next census in 2020 may alter district boundaries due to natural movement of businesses and individuals, whatever the outcome, it will be an historic beginning of a new political process.

Along with district boundaries, the thorny issue of representation during the transition is also to be decided tonight.

EARTHTALK

FROM THE EDITORS OF E - THE ENVIRONMENTAL MAGAZINE

Dear EarthTalk: Did anyone ever figure out what has been killing all the bees, and is there anything we can do about it? —Gerry Sanders, Wichita, KS

By now, we’ve all heard about bees dying across the U.S. and around the world. This isn’t just bad news for beekeepers: these amazing insects pollinate upwards of two-thirds of our food crops -- all at no cost to farmers or consumers. All we need to do is keep them around, which is proving to be more and more difficult.

A third of all beehives in the U.S. have disappeared in the last decade alone, a situation that has been dubbed Colony Collapse Disorder. Experts say several factors are at play. First, global warming has changed weather patterns so profoundly that bees have been unable to adapt fast enough. Flowers now bloom so early or late that they don’t coincide with the active season of pollinators, so when bees emerge from hibernation the flowers they need for food have already bloomed. Another threat is habitat loss: development, urbanization and monoculture farming are decimating natural areas bees need to thrive. And a new generation of parasites is infiltrating hives and impeding chemical communication between bees.

But perhaps the biggest threats to bees are some of the pesticides routinely used in agriculture, particularly neonicotinoids. Commonly referred to as neonics, this increasingly popular class of insecticides is meant to eliminate pests, but has been proven to have an equally devastating impact on bees. Today, seeds are engineered with neonics from the start, so this harmful chemical is present in the plant, pollen and nectar. Some 6,000 times more toxic to bees than DDT, neonics devastate bee central nervous systems and makes it impossible for them to relocate their hives. Those bees that survive a first encounter aren’t off the hook. They remain dazed and inefficient. Neonics have an addictive quality similar to that of nicotine for humans, so surviving bees inevitably return to treated flowers until their death.

Policy changes must address this issue by rewarding farmers for sustainable practices and banning neonicotinoids for use as pesticides. Unfortunately, big agri-chemical companies like Dow Chemical and Syngenta make huge profits selling neonics and as such are reluctant to withdraw them. The European Union took steps to ban the use of neonics in member countries in 2013, although that ruling is currently under review. Meanwhile, in the U.S., a few cities and states have taken at least symbolic action to reduce neonics, but without a federal ban on the books such piecemeal efforts can’t do much to help.

In Spring 2016, Jeff Merkley (D-OR) introduced a bill in the U.S. Senate calling for new policy initiatives and interagency coordination to restore and enhance pollinator habitat across the U.S. Key provisions of Merkley’s Pollinator Recovery Act include setting aside three million acres of public land as expanded acreage for “forage and habitat” for pollinators, grant funding for R&D to develop crops to resist pests without neonics, financial incentives and technical assistance for farmers that adopt pollinator-friendly practices, and expanded health monitoring and population tracking for bees and other key pollinators.

Concerned Americans should urge their Senators to co-sponsor or support the Pollinator Recovery Act. After all, protecting bees isn’t just important to environmentalists but to anyone who enjoys avocados, almonds or any of the countless fruits, vegetables or nuts pollinated by our little black and yellow friends.

105-year-old woman receives honorary high school diploma

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKDALE, Pa. (AP), May 18 -- A Pennsylvania woman who said her only regret in life was not finishing high school has received an honorary diploma -- at age 105.

Theresa Brandl donned a cap and gown May 17 at her Oakdale nursing home to celebrate, surrounded by four grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren. Brandl attended Stowe High School until she had to drop out to care for her ailing mother. The school was later merged with a nearby school, forming Sto-Rox High School, which awarded her the honorary diploma.

The diploma was arranged by the Twilight Wish Foundation, which helps fulfill wishes for people over 65, after Brandl was nominated by an administrator at the nursing home.

Travel Easier, Faster, and Safer

The Alameda County Transportation Commission (Alameda CTC) is delivering on the promises of Measure BB to fund critical transportation projects in Alameda County that include public transit, pedestrian/bicycle pathways, and highway and local road improvements—and many of these will be taking place in Fremont!

In April, the Comprehensive Investment Plan was approved, meaning that the five-year plan that will program over $400 million in funding to support important transportation improvement projects in Alameda County is now in full effect. This financial support is in addition to annual funding the City of Fremont receives from Alameda CTC to support pavement maintenance and citywide improvements to bicycle and pedestrian facilities such as new curb ramps, crosswalk enhancements, and bike lanes. $261 million of the Comprehensive Investment Plan's funding will be allocated over the next two years to address priority countywide transportation infrastructure needs. This investment also leverages against $2.8 billion of additional funding, resulting in a total investment of $3.2 billion that will support necessary infrastructure improvements and contribute to local jobs.

Funded projects in Fremont will include:

- Expanding and modernizing Fremont Boulevard's existing adaptive traffic signal system from nine signals to all 34 traffic signals in the corridor to change, or adapt, based on actual traffic demand.
- Transforming portions of Thornton Avenue, Fremont Boulevard and Peralta Boulevard in the Centerville District into a multi-modal street complete with improved sidewalks, pedestrian crossing facilities, and bike lanes.
- Signal timing optimization on Paseo Padre Parkway, Fremont Boulevard, Decoto Road, and Auto Mall Parkway.

- Tri-City Travel Training to support seniors and people with disabilities.
 - Bike improvements along Walnut Avenue and East Bay Greenway segment between the Innovation District and Bay Trail.

Chalk Festival

For centuries artists have painted beautiful images on the boulevards and squares of great cities, using the pavements and art, the event will also include family activities, a Kids Chalk-land, where children are invited to create their own chalk masterpieces, a spin-to-win prize wheel, and free goody bags for the first 100 people who attend.

“The Pacific Commons Chalk Festival will feature artists street surfaces as their canvas. After World War II, scores of itinerant artists made their living from the unique art of street painting. Currently, prestigious cultural festivals in Europe and North and South America celebrate this traditional art form, and have become popular attractions for artists, art lovers, and people from all walks of life.

Pacific Commons invites the community to their free 2nd annual “Chalk Festival” on Saturday, June 10, which will feature 20 artists creating life-size chalk murals on the pavement of a city block at Pacific Commons. This year chalk mural themes will be roosters, animals, flowers, cartoon characters, Pirates of the Caribbean, and much, much more. In addition to the chalk showcasing some of the most eclectic, mesmerizing, and breathtaking chalk murals using hundreds of sticks of pastel chalk to create spectacular murals,” said Heath McCue, Director of Marketing for Pacific Commons. “In every style imaginable – from classical and contemporary to whimsical and socially relevant – the murals will be created by truly talented artists.”

Genna Panzarella is a Mill Valley artist and teacher who has worked in street painting for nearly 30 years. She has taught art on all levels in public and private schools as well as private lessons for individuals. Sidewalk chalk drawing has intrigued Panzarella since she first observed it in Europe. California in the early 1990s and has won recognition and been featured in festivals around the country. In only four years of competing at an annual street painting festival in Grazie di Curtatone, Italy, Panzarella advanced to the highest level of competition. She obtained the top level of Maestro in only two years, and in 2002 was awarded the greatest prize of the festival as number one Maestro.

California artist and teacher Lisa Jones has participated in street painting events since 2001 in several locations in California, as well as Utah, Arizona, and Italy. In addition to her passion for chalk art, her primary focus is her business: a hands-on fine art studio for children in Marin County. A lifetime student of the art masters, Jones founded MASTERWORKS Kids' Art Studio in 1996 to encourage children and their parents to explore the universal experience of communicating ideas through visual media. A professional illustrator and fine art painter for over 20 years, Jones has recently signed on to the executive team promoting the Italian Street Painting Marin event.

Born and raised in Connecticut, Bill Archambault came to California in 1990 and has been living in Napa for the past 23 years. While his day job is working as a software engineer in San Francisco, Archambault says, “I’ve always had an interest in fine art, working in pen and ink, oil painting, silk screening and alternative photography. I became interested in chalk art when a friend asked me to collaborate with her for a local high school fundraiser, and have been participating in events for the past 11 years.”

Additional participants at the Pacific Commons Chalk Festival include Steve Turner, professional street painter and photographer;

Chris Pasadis, professional graphic designer, fine artist, and street painter; Vicki Richtman, owner of Time Crunch Health & Fitness and professional street painter; Erin Tajime Castelan, mural artist; and Gary Kell, computer graphic artist/illustrator/cartoonist.

Fremont Police open public exchange zone in parking lot

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES

People who buy, sell or trade items in private party transactions with people they don't know have a new option for making exchanges in a safe environment thanks to the Fremont Police Department.

Police officials recently opened an Exchange Zone, a designated space in the police department's parking lot for community members to conduct private party transactions from internet barter sites and safe custody exchanges.

The Fremont Police Department is one of several law enforcement agencies now offering an Exchange Zone as a safer alternative to other meeting locations, such as a private residence or retail center parking lot.

The Exchange Zone occupies two well-lit parking spaces in front of the Fremont Police Department building at 2000 Stevenson Blvd. The area is recorded by video 24-hours a day, but police say the optimal time for transactions is weekdays between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Although police officers will not be present during transactions and the video will not always be monitored in real time, police believe that arranging to meet in this designated area will potentially deter individuals wanting to engage in criminal activity. The Exchange Zone will also allow community members to maintain a level of privacy by not disclosing the location of their residence. If someone is not willing to come to the Fremont Police Department to complete an exchange, it could be a scam and possibly not worth pursuing.

While the police department parking lot has been used informally by individuals for private party transactions for years, police are now publicly inviting and encouraging community members to utilize the new safe Exchange Zone.

Police Department employees will not get involved or actively monitor transactions and employees of the City of Fremont will not be able to act as official witness, provide legal advice, or settle civil disputes. The exchange of drugs, weapons, alcohol, and other illegal items is not permitted.

The newly installed video system will also include a second camera that is capable of capturing license plates. This camera is being installed to capture vehicles traveling in the eastbound traffic lanes on Stevenson Boulevard in front of the Police Department. The video for both cameras will be used, maintained, and stored in accordance with State law and/or the Police Department's Community Camera Systems policy.

All exchanges must be person-to-person. In the case of custody transfers, the new Exchange Zone is not a drop-off area where parents can leave children for a later pick-up time.

Police offer these safety tips for conducting private transactions:

- Only conduct transactions with local buyers/sellers
- Insist on meeting in a public place
- Do not invite strangers into your home, and do not go to theirs
- Take your cell phone with you
- If you are selling a large piece of furniture, move the piece to an open garage or front porch
- Tell a friend or family member about your intentions and when and where and with whom you are meeting
- Complete transactions during daylight hours
- Be extra cautious in buying/selling valuable items
- Only use cash or money orders
- Trust your instincts and be cautious of scams

The Exchange Zone parking spaces are available free on a first-come, first-served basis. No reservations will be taken.

Police issue gift card scam alert

SUBMITTED BY
SGT. TIM CAMPBELL,
MILPITAS PD

Police in Milpitas are warning the public about a possible gift scam operation in the region. The warning stems from an incident on May 6 when a woman reported getting a call on her cellphone from a man identifying himself as an agent of the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS).

The caller asked for the woman's personal information, including her Alien Registration Number. The woman was told she would receive a call back. Eventually she received a call from a second suspect identifying himself as another agent of USCIS and providing a supposed badge number. The woman was told she needed to send a payment or be arrested, and she was directed to drive to a retail store and purchase iTunes gift cards. She was instructed to remain on the phone or she could face legal action.

The woman complied with the suspect's demands and purchased 40 gift cards valued at $100 each for a total value of $4,000. The suspect told the woman to read the gift card numbers over the phone to him, and she complied. Once the woman provided the card numbers, the suspect told her not to tell anyone about their conversation or she would be arrested. The woman later realized it was a scam.

The Milpitas Police Department is reminding everyone to be suspicious of any telephone calls where the caller imposes a problem or crisis and the only solution is to immediately send money. The fictitious problem or crisis can include an arrest warrant, an immigration issue, delinquent taxes, a relative in jail, or a kidnapped relative.

Money demanded can be in the form of prepaid gift cards or money wire transfers through private money transfer companies. Scammers often have victims remain on the phone to minimize the potential for the victims to "take a step back" and assess the situation objectively or to prevent victims from consulting with a friend or relative about what to do.

As reminder, genuine governmental agencies never accept payments by prepaid gift cards or through private money transfer companies.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF LEONARD J. KELLY

CASE NO. RP17-861051

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Leonard J. Kelly; Leonard Joseph Kelly

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Shawn S. Kelly in the Superior Court of California, County of Alameda. The Petition for Probate requests that Shawn S. Kelly be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The Petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court on 6/26/17 at 9:31 AM in Dept. 201 located at 2120 Martin Luther King, Jr. Way, Berkeley, CA 94704.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. Is 'Blue' for you?

Help our 3-legged friend find a new home!

SUBMITTED BY SAN LEANDRO PD

My name is "Blue". I am six months old and have been told that I'm a mix of Pitbull and Great Dane, but I think I'm a lap dog!

I was rescued by my friends at SLPD after breaking my leg in an accident. My doctor told me that I would do better with three legs so with the help of Bay Area Veterinary Specialists, the Ohlone Humane Society and SLPD, I had my leg removed and here I am!

As you will see, having three legs hasn't slowed me down and I can do anything my four-legged friends can do!

I am going to the Tri City Shelter today to meet new friends. I would REALLY love a family and I am hoping to adopt one very soon!

Please come to see me at the Shelter. I can teach you how to play and maybe you can even take me home!

A man was pestering employees at a Denny’s restaurant while they were closing the business for the day. The man said he was hungry. At 1:28 p.m. Officer Collins noticed shrubbery on fire on the northwest intersection of Fremont Boulevard and Walnut Avenue. Collins stopped to investigate and approached a woman. While he was talking with the woman three more officers arrived and attempted to extinguish the flames with fire extinguishers but were unsuccessful. Fremont Fire arrived on scene a few minutes later and put out the vegetation fire. A 41-year-old Fremont woman was arrested on suspicion of arson.

At 7:09 a.m. a customer called to report a suspicious man entering the Walgreens store on the 2600 block of Mowry Avenue. Another called said the man was armed with a gun. Several police units arrived and determined a robbery had just taken place. The suspect was described as a man with a dark complexion wearing a black hoodie that was pulled tight over his head. The loss was medication. No vehicle was seen.

At 3:11 p.m. Officer J. Kennedy responded to the 4900 block of Stevenson Boulevard to investigate a report of an assault with a deadly weapon. A 29-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of striking a man in the head with a beer bottle.

Monday, May 29

At 3:35 p.m. a citizen flagged down a patrol officer in a shopping center parking lot on the 5000 block of Mowry Avenue, near the Lucky supermarket. The citizen said a man was in the area brandishing and waving a metal pipe at people. The officer found the man and called for backup. Moments later the officer broadcast over the police radio that the man was running; he pursued him on foot. When they arrived at the south end of the shopping center, a confrontation between the two began and the officer fired his duty weapon, striking the man. The man was taken to a trauma center for treatment. The officer was unharmed and the suspect’s metal pipe was recovered at the scene. The case is under investigation.

Update:

At 3:55 p.m. Fremont Police Patrol Officer William Gourley was in the 5000 block of Mowry Ave in the parking lot of a grocery store. He was flagged down regarding a male, later identified as Rolonte Simril (27-year-old Oakland resident), brandishing and waiving a metal pipe at people. The reporting party told Officer Gourley that Simril was swinging the pipe threatening people and was going to hurt someone.

Surveillance video, later recovered from a business, showed Simril swinging an object at customers and the reporting party. Customers appeared frightened and visibly shaken by Simril’s behavior. The video included the reporting party seeing Officer Gourley in the parking lot and driving over to tell him what was taking place.

After receiving a description of Simril, Officer Gourley transmitted the information over the radio and asked for cover units. Officer Gourley drove east through the parking lot and quickly located Simril holding the metal object. Simril walked towards the patrol car. Officer Gourley got out of his vehicle with his weapon drawn and ordered Simril to, “drop it.” Simril immediately took off running with the metal object in his right hand, in a westbound direction through the crowded parking lot. Officer Gourley holstered his firearm, took out his TASER and yelled multiple times, “stop, police, drop it.” Simril ran around a vehicle and back the opposite way towards the south parking lot of the grocery store.

Officer Gourley continued to assess the situation and realized the TASER would not be effective due to the suspect wearing a large backpack and overcoat. He re-holstered his TASER and drew his firearm. Recognizing the shopping center was crowded and it was dangerous to run with a weapon, he again re-holstered his firearm during the approximate 200-250 yard chase. Officer Gourley’s plan as he closed-in was to overtake the suspect from behind and dislodge the weapon. His plan was interrupted when a driver in the parking lot, who had seen what was taking place, tried to assist by driving into Simril’s flight path.

Simril fell slightly onto the hood of the intervening vehicle. He spun around landing directly facing Officer Gourley, still armed with the metal object, in what was described as a fighting stance. Out of concern for safety, Officer Gourley yelled at the driver to move his vehicle and get out of the way. The driver quickly reversed the vehicle leaving skid-marks on the pavement. Witnesses at the scene reported Officer Gourley gave Simril several verbal commands to drop the metal object, while pointing his gun at him. Officer Gourley described Simril making a movement towards him in close proximity while holding the metal object. Feeling he was in imminent danger, Officer Gourley fired his weapon three times, striking Simril.

Officer Gourley immediately called for an ambulance and held Simril at gunpoint until additional officers arrived. The officers approached Simril, removed the weapon from his right hand and placed him in handcuffs. The same officers then immediately began rendering field trauma care. During a search of his person a glass pipe, commonly used for smoking illegal drugs, was located.

Fremont Fire Paramedics arrived and Simril was subsequently transported to a trauma center. Simril underwent surgery and is currently recovering in the hospital.

On Wednesday, May 31, 2017, Fremont Detectives attempted to interview Simril, but it was unproductive. Simril was arrested on charges of brandishing a weapon and obstructing/resisting arrest. Due to being hospitalized, he was released from custody and will be arraigned on these charges at a later date. Simril has history of drug and weapon use, as well as exhibiting violence towards others.

During the investigation, several independent witnesses gave accounts and interpretations based on their perspective and vantage point. The Fremont Fire staff who responded to provide medical aid had witnessed Simril behaving in a similar manner approximately 30 minutes prior to the incident, in the area of Mowry Ave and Argonaut Way. Officer Gourley’s patrol car was equipped with in-car video that captured a portion of the foot pursuit. No video has been made available to our department depicting the incident in its entirety. The metal pole recovered at the scene was measured to be 16.5 inches long.

Officer Gourley has been a Fremont Police Officer for more than 7 years. Officer Gourley is a member of the Fremont Police Department’s SWAT Team, an Arrest and Control Tactics instructor and has recently attended a 38-hour Crisis Intervention Training (CIT) course, designed to teach de-escalation during crisis situations.

The incident is being investigated by the Fremont Police Department’s Investigative Unit. A separate investigation is being conducted by the Alameda County District Attorney’s Office.

If anyone has information about this incident, you are asked to please contact Fremont Police Investigators at 510-790-6900 or email Detective Gebhardt at MGebhardt@fremont.gov.

Rattlesnake Season

SUBMITTED BY TRI-CITY ANIMAL SHELTER

We know that the recent nice weather brings out the flowers and lawn chairs, but most people do not think about the wildlife that also worships the sun. The warm weather brings out snakes and lizards, of which we have many native species. Luckily, we only have one species that is venomous. The Northern Pacific Rattlesnake is native to the East Bay and other regions around the Bay Area.

We encourage residents to learn how to recognize a rattlesnake. Rattlesnakes have a triangular head, much wider than the neck, a thick body with dull skin (not shiny), black and white bands on the tail and a blunt rattle at the tip of the tail. The gopher snake is commonly mistaken for a rattlesnake; it is not venomous. The gopher snake’s head is narrow and only slightly larger than the neck. Their body is slender and usually shiny and the tail is pointed.

Most snake encounters we hear about are not with rattlesnakes, but to keep your children and pets safe, use caution and respect when a snake is sighted. If you see a snake, leave it alone. Do not try to capture or harm it. Give it space to get away and do not follow it.

Rattlesnakes provide a danger to pets as well as humans. Keep your pets leashed and under control in parks and other wilderness areas. If you think your pet has been bitten by a rattlesnake, seek immediate veterinary care.

Snakes are an important part of our ecosystem. They help control rodent, insect and other reptile populations. You can make your property less attractive to snakes, by clearing out debris, keeping bushes and plants trimmed back, filling in any gaps under concrete or rocks and sealing any holes in your house or gaps under your doors by which snakes can enter. Keep the grass in your lawn cut as short as possible. Snakes like to hide and dislike open areas. Keep your tree limbs, bushes, shrubs and hedges neatly trimmed and off the ground.

To familiarize yourself with the common snakes we see here in the Tri-City area, visit californiaherps.com for pictures and more information about reptiles of the San Francisco Bay Area. Animal Control does not respond to snake sightings. If a resident has a snake in their house or garage we ask that you try to determine if it is a rattlesnake or not. If you are unsure, you can call field services and describe what you see. If we determine that it might be a rattlesnake we will come and attempt removal. There are for profit snake removal services listed in the area as well that you can find on the internet.

Florida student accused of changing grade from F to B

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP), A 22-year-old student is accused of sneaking into a building and illegally logging into a Florida university’s grading system to change his failing grade to a B.

Sami Ammar turned himself in at the Orange County Jail in Orlando on Wednesday and now faces a felony charge of accessing a computer without authorization.

His father declined to talk to the Orlando Sentinel (<http://bit.ly/2qn4fqj>), saying only that the charge is “an allegation.”

University of Central Florida professor Chung Young Chan became suspicious when he got a confirmation from a program he uses to log grades on May 4. He checked the grades and saw Ammar suddenly had a B instead of an F in the Electronics I class.

University police later identified Ammar on surveillance video at the Mathematical Sciences Building.

The Douglas Morrisson Theatre (DMT) in Hayward will be the site of some sizzling hot dancing on Friday, June 16. Entitled “It Takes Two To Tango,” the event will feature the 2014 World Tango Champions Sebastian Acosta and Laura D’Anna, who are from Argentina. This will be their first U.S. appearance.

This unique fundraiser is a collaborative venture between the Hayward Area Recreation and Park District (HARD) Foundation and the San Francisco Bay Area Tango Festival. All proceeds will go towards DMT and Mia’s Dream Come True, an all-inclusive playground at Tennyson Park designed for children and adults with disabilities. Slated for completion in 2018, the specialized play area will include a quiet zone for children with autism, special swings for those in wheelchairs, Braille and music zones, a climbing wall, and slides.

The evening will kick off with wine tasting in the nearby Japanese Gardens, weather permitting. There will also be a raffle, with art pieces donated by HARD’s PhotoCentral and assorted gift baskets. At 8 p.m. the dancing will begin! A performance by the World Tango Champions is sure to impress, followed by a free dancing session open to all. Says Pam Russo, Executive Director of the HARD Foundation, “We’re really excited because we haven’t seen anything like this in our community before, and we believe it will appeal to all audiences.”

There are many variations of the tango, but Argentine tango is considered to be the original form of the dance. What started on the tough, mean streets and brothels of Buenos Aires in the late 19th century has evolved into a socially acceptable worldwide phenomenon. Today there are tango festivals in every major city of the world. In the U.S., the dance gained greater popularity in the 1990s when the show “Forever Tango” ran for several months, eventually making its way to Broadway.

Unlike most dances, in the tango the man leads the entire time. Partners embrace and dance chest-to-chest, never breaking the connection. There are certain techniques, but no choreography, so the dancers improvise as they go. Says Mark Thomas Gerry, producer of the San Francisco Bay Area Tango Festival and HARD Board Member, “It’s all about listening to this beautiful love song and trying to feel that music as you dance.”

Mark Gerry and Audrey Tai

It takes many, many years of study to become an accomplished tango dancer. Audrey Tai, Gerry’s partner, has been dancing the tango for five years now. Says Tai, “It’s hard, it takes a long time, and you have to practice every day. I’m actually considered a beginner in the tango world.” Gerry agrees, “It’s a very intimate and beautiful dance, but since you’re so close it makes it very difficult.”

The evening’s festivities will be hosted by Jeff Applebaum, a local comedian and entertainer who has appeared on late night talk shows. He also played the principal role of Joey Bishop in the long-running musical tribute “The Rat Pack Is Back” in San Francisco, Chicago, and Las Vegas. As an added bonus, each guest will receive a complimentary dance lesson from the Mark Ballas Performing Arts and Dance Studio in Pleasanton.

New features include the Passeo do Vinho Wine Garden and the Cyclepath BMX Jam. The event kicks off the series of traditional Thursday night street parties including celebrations July 20 and August 17.

On June 15 the Bank of the West Stage will feature the West Coast Blues Society Caravan of All Stars, celebrating the upcoming Hayward/Russell City Blues Festival. Mitch Polzak and the Royal Deuces will perform on the Bistro Patio Stage, and Justin Brown will perform in Newman Park. An additional band, to be announced, will perform on the Buffalo Bill’s Stage, and DJ Robert Louis will entertain at the chamber of commerce Main Street Stage.

Street entertainers, face-painters, and rides for kids will provide additional fun. Adults will enjoy more than 100 hot rods and classics at the car show on Main Street.

Great brews and wines will be available for purchase adjacent to the Bank of the West Stage. A new addition will be the option for wine tasting at Newman Park at B Street and Mission Boulevard. Tastings at Newman Park will be at no charge with the purchase there of an advanced-sale ticket for the July 29 downtown Hayward Wine Walk – Passeo do Vinho. There will be wine selections for tastings that represent some of the wines to be poured during the wine walk in July, plus there will be more information on the Passeo do Vinho event including a list of participating wineries and businesses.

“It says a lot about Hayward that our participants look at the street parties as a family reunion,” said Kim Huggett, president of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce. “These are events that not only are family-friendly, but the coolness factor is there, too.”

The Street Party series is made possible through a partnership of the Downtown Business Improvement Area, the City of Hayward and the Hayward Chamber of Commerce. Corporate sponsors include Buffalo Bills Brewery, Kaiser Permanente, Wells Fargo Bank, Anheuser Busch, the East Bay Times, and Calpine’s Russell City Energy Center.

The chamber office is still accepting reservations from vendors. Applications are still available by contacting Susan at the Hayward Chamber of Commerce: (510) 537-2424 or susanoc@hayward.org.

decided that Fremont could use its own. Coffey was certainly a visionary, because the lake hadn't been built yet. Nonetheless, the idea of a club was popular and the Fremont Sailing Club (FSC) proved a formidable force of more than a hundred members, even convincing the City to build not a series of small canals in imitation of wetland, but a large navigable 83-acre lake. Ever since, FSC has provided thousands of volunteer hours maintaining race markers, providing weed control, and offering educational programs.

can be pretty competitive." In 2016, at Pinecrest Lake, FSC member Arthur Lange won the National Championship in the El Toro class.

The Lido 14 is a very popular boat introduced in the late 1950s, designed with comfort and safety in mind. At 14 feet, it holds two people and uses two sails: a mainsail and jib. Boaters looking to race around California and the Northwest will find many events for this class. Boaters in FSC's Lido 14 fleet have an active social and sailing schedule.

The FJ class is a two-masted

Two Byte C2s cross paths while racing upwind at Lake Elizabeth.

From the beginning, FSC has staffed the summer boating programs at Lake Elizabeth, teaching three sets of classes every year, plus hosting week-long youth sailing camps. For summer 2017 the lead instructors are Vern Tucker, Roy Jordan, and FSC Commodore Bruce Prickett.

For many, day cruising the lake is a relaxing and rewarding experience, but once boaters have acquired some skill and experience, they might find the excitement of racing more attractive. FSC is home to three fleets based on boat types, with races appropriate to each type.

The smallest of the boats is the eight-foot El Toro, easily handled by a single person, and even though a serious vessel for adults, it is typically the first boat mastered by young sailors. America's Cup skippers Paul Cayard and Tom Blackaller, both Bay Area natives, learned to sail in El Toros. "You can have kids racing against adults in these boats," says Pickett, "and they dinghy of about 14 feet that holds two to four people. On these versatile boats, a crew member may hang from a "trapeze," a cable attached to the top of the mast, and act as leverage against high winds, preventing the boat from keeling over. The FJ also takes on a spinnaker, the large, billowing, often colorful sail at the bow. Once popular with experienced racers, the FJ is giving way to lighter and faster replacements. Today, the FJ fleet races in the Open Class, which pits boats of different designs against one another.

Sailing can get pricey, to be sure, but it need not be expensive to get started. Prickett still sails a Lido 14 (with trailer) he bought in 2010 at a bargain. "That's one of the great things about sailing," says Prickett, "for about a thousand dollars, you can buy a good used boat and go sailing." One major expense is sails, as they should be replaced regularly, but they need not be brand new. There are a surprising number of deals to be had in the used market as many competitive boat racers replace their sails yearly and sell the used ones that are still good.

For novice boaters, completing FSC courses through the intermediate level will prepare them to race safely. Still, Prickett recommends "sitting in on one of the races as part of a crew to get out there and see what it's like." Crew members might simply act as ballast, or they could be assigned to handle sails, depending on their experience and the captain's judgment.

The Fremont Sailing Club is always open to new members; annual membership is only $36. There are awards banquets throughout the year, including the Bailer's Banquet and Crew Appreciation Brunch. FSC also participates in the community, donating toys at Christmas time. Find out more about the FSC and see the full racing schedule (races run through October) at www.fremontsailingclub.org.
