Mission ChamberFest

What do ice cream and classical music festivals have in common? They're summer traditions and wonderful family-friendly treats! This summer, you and your family and friends can enjoy works by Mozart, Beethoven, Bizet, Mendelssohn, Gurlitt, Klengel, and Dussek (for harp lovers) at Music at the Mission "ChamberFest LIVE!" Saturday, July 21. ChamberFest LIVE! is a free annual showcase of talented young artists performing together as ensembles at Old Mission San Jose. Rumor has it that the encore, always a showstopper, will be "Landslide" by Fleetwood Mac, arranged by virtuoso Steve Huber for harp, violin, and cello.

Music at the Mission ChamberFest is a music festival designed for gifted young musicians looking to further develop their skills and knowledge through an intensive exploration of chamber music repertoire. Students have the opportunity to collaborate with their peers, coached by a faculty of professionally and critically acclaimed musicians: Adelle-Akiko Kearns, cello; Alison Lee, piano; Steve Huber, violin; and Dr. Katherine Lee, piano. Festival classes and masterclasses are held at Centerville Presbyterian Church.

Among the students performing at Saturday's concert are Angela Sun and Enrica Waugh. "Angela performed Beethoven's Magic Flute Variations for Cello and Piano with Jeston Lu in a pre-concert performance for the March Music at the Mission concert, the Ball, and for Niles Rotary's district conference," Dr. Katherine Lee, Director of ChamberFest, reminded Music at the Mission followers. Sun is a student of Kearns; this is her third year at ChamberFest.

"Enrica Waugh has been a part of ChamberFest as both a pianist and a singer since we started in 2015," said Lee, "and was this year's impassioned speaker at Music at the Mission's Masquerade Ball." Waugh is a piano student of Aileen Chanco, and a member of Young Women's Choral Projects in San Francisco. She performed in the Jr. Bach Festival in 2017 and has just returned from a performance at Carnegie Hall.

Hannah Chen, Kristen Fu, Daniel Huang, Trinity Lee, Tiffany Lim, Peter Rosario, Priyanka Shah, Saanvi Suri, Serena Yang, and Sophia Zhu will also be featured performers at ChamberFest LIVE! Students are selected by faculty members through an audition and are grouped into ensembles according to their level of playing and experience.

When Ordinary Infections Become Deadly

Learn the Signs and Symptoms of Sepsis at Washington Hospital Seminar

Did you know an ordinary infection can kill you? It's actually your body's response to an infection that could be deadly, according to Dr. Rohit Arora, a critical care specialist at Washington Hospital and a member of the Washington Township Medical Foundation.

When you acquire an infection, your body thinks it is being attacked. Your immune system fights the infection and usually it is a tightly controlled process. However, sometimes the immune system goes into overdrive and can cause widespread organ damage. This process is called sepsis, which can be lethal. Similar dysregulation can occur during major trauma or serious burns. He explained, "It's like using a canon to fight a couple of bugs, and it can cause more havoc than controlling the condition. But sepsis can be avoided with early intervention and treatment."

Who is at Risk?

Anyone can get sepsis, but the elderly, children and infants are most vulnerable. People with weakened immune systems, severe burns, physical trauma or chronic illnesses (such as diabetes, cancer or liver disease) are also at increased risk. Other causes of sepsis include the spread of antibiotic-resistant organisms, and broader use of medications that suppress the immune system.

Severe sepsis strikes more than 1 million Americans every year and mortality can be as high as 70-80 percent in certain patient groups. "The cost of managing sepsis is also rising as it becomes more pervasive. Severe sepsis treatment often involves a prolonged stay in the intensive care unit," Dr. Arora explained.

Washington Hospital's multidisciplinary team of critical care physicians and nurses has developed a sepsis protocol to help recognize signs and symptoms of sepsis and immediately implement an aggressive treatment plan.

How to Learn More

"It's important to remember that any infection has the potential to get out of control and cause sepsis," Dr. Arora pointed out. "That's why everyone should know the signs and symptoms of this potentially deadly medical condition."

To help raise awareness about this dangerous condition, Washington Hospital will host, "Learn the Signs and Symptoms of Sepsis" with Dr. Arora and Dr. Shekar Srinivas, who specializes in emergency medicine at Washington Hospital. The free seminar will be held on Wednesday, August 29, from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium, located at 2500 Mowry Ave. (Washington West) in Fremont. You can register online at www.whhs.com/events or call (800) 963-7070 for more information.

Recovering After a Stroke

Free Seminar Offers Guidance for Patients, Families and Caregivers

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, strokes are the fifth leading cause of death in the United States, killing about 140,000 Americans each year. But that's only part of the story. Though most of the approximately 795,000 people who have a stroke each year will not die from the stroke, they often will live with serious and sometimes disabling complications.

"There are approximately 6.4 million stroke survivors in the United States," says Washington Hospital Stroke Program Coordinator Denise Lynch, RN, MHA, CNRN, SCRN, NVRN. "Strokes are the leading cause of serious long-term disability and of preventable disability in adults in the U.S."

Lynch notes that some of the serious problems faced by stroke victims include:

- Pronounced impairment of physical abilities
- Cognitive decline and an inability to think clearly or remember important information
- Dysphasia (difficulty swallowing, resulting in difficulty in eating)
- Inability to communicate well, including expressive, receptive or global aphasia (an inability to use and/or understand words)

- Depression, which affects approximately 40-50 percent of stroke victims and their caregivers
- Detrimental changes in relationships with family and friends

"The journey to recovery for stroke survivors may be short or long, depending on the severity and location in the brain of the stroke," says Lynch, who is a certified neuroscience nurse, a stroke-certified nurse, and a board-certified neurovascular nurse. "Recovery takes dedication, willpower, optimism and quality medical and rehabilitation care. That combination of factors can dramatically improve the recovery process."

To help people learn more about stroke recovery, Washington Hospital is offering a free Health & Wellness seminar on Tuesday, August 7, from 6 to 8 p.m. The seminar will feature Lynch and Washington Hospital's Coordinator of Rehab Clinical Programs, Alisa Curry, PT, DPT, GTC, GCS. Open to anyone interested in stroke recovery – including patients, their families, friends and caregivers – the seminar will take place at the Conrad E. Anderson, MD, Auditorium, located in the Washington West building at 2500 Mowry Ave. in Fremont.

Lynch stresses the importance of recognizing the sudden onset of stroke symptoms, which can be recalled through the reminder, BE FAST:

- Balance: Does the person have a sudden loss of balance?
- Eyes: Is there an abrupt loss of vision in one or both eyes?
- Face: When asked to smile, are both sides of the face symmetrical?
- Arms: With palms up and arms outstretched forward, does one arm drop?
- Speech: Can the person repeat a simple sentence? Is the speech slurred?
- Time: If any of these symptoms occur, call 9-1-1. Time is brain.

"If you or someone who is near you is experiencing any of these symptoms, call 9-1-1 right away," Lynch notes. "Don't try to drive yourself or another person to the hospital. You need to get help immediately, and emergency treatment can begin in an ambulance on the way."

With a doctorate in physical therapy, certification in geriatric training and board certification as a geriatric clinical specialist, Curry brings more than 20 years of experience to her role in coordinating therapy for patients, including those who are post-stroke.

August 7, seminar to help family members and caregivers of stroke survivors

"Stroke recovery is a team effort," Curry says. "Physicians and nurses help determine the cause of the stroke and determine ways to prevent additional strokes. Our physical, occupational and speech therapists give patients the tools to recover from disabling complications. Family and friends provide ongoing support and work daily with the patient to achieve gains over time."

Niles Dog Show

There will be a water park for dogs to romp in and a bounce house for the kids. Food vendors will offer a variety of cuisine including local fare from Niles purveyors.

Live demonstrations provide exciting learning opportunities. Fremont Police Department K9/handler teams will be onsite with dogs that work in Patrol, SWAT operations and Narcotics and Tracking, showing in action how dogs help police fight crime and catch criminals. An expert in teaching dogs sign language will demonstrate how to teach your pet simple signs at home. A trainer will show how a diabetes-alert dog is taught to give owners advance warning of high or low blood sugar events.

Browse merchandise booths selling products ranging from basic dog supplies and food to handmade pet blankets and doggie boutique treasures. Purchase tickets for multiple drawings with prizes that range from a handcrafted leash and collar set to high-tech products such as a GPS tracking device. Memorabilia of the Fremont Police Department K9 team will be on sale at the Ohlone Humane Society booth to help raise money for retired police dogs. Attendees can get educated on temperament, care, health, grooming, history and other aspects of man's best friend at numerous information booths.

Rescue organization booths will showcase rescue dogs and visitors can learn from experts about the issues involved in bringing a special new member into the family, to help insure a well-informed decision and lasting relationship. Adoptions will not be processed at the show, but you may find your next best friend while checking out those up for adoption!

The day is capped with the crowning of Best in Show, selected from first place dogs in each of the five categories. The Bo Dewey trophy will be awarded to the reigning champion. The trophy honors Bo, an Australian shepherd/cattle dog mix, who for 17 years was sidekick and assistant to the show organizer, Niles resident Don Dewey.

The first Niles Dog Show in 1998 was produced by a dedicated band of volunteers led by Dewey. The team lined up one barbecue food vendor, one vendor selling T-shirts, one selling dog accessories and supplies, and a sheep-herding demonstration. From this modest beginning the show has grown to be a major community event every summer. As in 1998, show proceeds are donated to Ohlone Humane Society and the Niles Main Street Association, both nonprofit organizations.

Swing meets cool jazz and blues with a touch of country twang

SUBMITTED BY BRASK CONCERTS

Carolyn Sills Combo will return to Mission Coffee Saturday, July 21 to show why they just won the 2018 Ameripolitan Music Awards Western Swing Group of the Year. Sills has also been nominated twice for the Western Artist Award for Western Swing Female of the Year.

"Sultry 1940's and 50's pop, lively twang, surf, rock n' roll ballads all torched and red hot are part of the mix," said San Jose Mercury News. The band flawlessly fuses classic country, rockabilly, folk, blues and western swing into a timeless Americana sound. "We have had them here before, we couldn't wait to bring them back," said concert organizer Wayne Brask.

The original combo five – Carolyn Sills, her husband Gerard Egan, Sunshine Jackson, Jim Norris and Charlie Joe Wallace – is paired down to a trio for Mission Coffee: Sills, Egan, and Jackson.

Music Connection Magazine said, "...Carolyn Sills Combo brings plenty of vitality and good humor to their vintage retro-country/western setup, all topped off by Sills herself, whose crisp, rangey voice is the ideal icing on a sweet sparkling cake."

"Local powerhouse Carolyn Sills is the real deal of throwback country music. She has enough soul, heart, style and swag to convince audiences and listeners that they may have been transported to an era where country swing rules the waves, juke joints were the place to be, and heartache had a kick like a mule," said Cat Johnson, Good Times Magazine.

According to Michelle Terranova of Go Kat Go Radio, "Swing meets cool jazz and blues with a touch of country twang... Carolyn's voice soothes your tired soul, leaving you aching for more."

When Sills was asked, "Where do you see the Carolyn Sills Combo 10 years from now?" She replied, "Well let's see... 10 years from now Jimmy and Charlie will be in their mid-seventies, so I would guess we'll either be on yet another U.S. tour in a fancy bus that we won't have to drive, or we'll have a residency in a small farming town in California, playing taco Tuesdays and tequila Thursdays. One can dream."

Brask Concerts is glad to have them return to the stage at Mission Coffee for another show. "We have caught a few of their shows since the last time they were here, but we just like it when they are on 'our' stage!" said Brask.

Uber poised to make investment in scooter-rental business

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Uber is getting into the scooter-rental business.

The ride-hailing company said Monday that it is investing in Lime, a startup based in San Mateo, California.

“Our investment and partnership in Lime is another step towards our vision of becoming a one-stop shop for all your transportation needs,” Rachel Holt, an Uber vice president, said in a statement.

Uber will add Lime motorized scooters to the Uber mobile app, giving consumers another option for getting around cities, especially to and from public transit systems, Holt said.

Financial details of the deal were not disclosed.

Lime co-founders Toby Sun and Brad Bao wrote in a blog that Uber’s “sizeable investment” is part of a $335 million fund-raising round led by GV, the venture-capital arm of Google parent Alphabet Inc. They said Alphabet is among several new investors. The money will help Lime expand and develop new products.

According to the company website, customers can rent Lime scooters in more than 70 locations in the U.S. and Europe and leave them parked for the next customer to ride. The company is looking to buy tens of thousands of motorized foot-pedal scooters to expand its reach.

The scooters aren’t without their critics, however, who consider them a nuisance and a hazard to pedestrians. Officials in cities like San Francisco have been torn between promoting cheap and relatively non-polluting transportation and keeping sidewalks safe and clear of clutter.

For Uber, the Lime investment follows its purchase for an undisclosed sum of Jump Bikes, which rents electric bicycles in a half-dozen cities including San Francisco, Chicago and Washington.

San Francisco-based Uber Technologies Inc. CEO Dara Khosrowshahi aims to turn Uber into the Amazon.com of transportation, a single destination where customers can go to hitch a ride in a car and on other modes of transportation — even buy rides on city buses and subway systems. Uber also has a food-delivery service.

Rival Lyft is looking for new rides too. Last week, it bought part of a company called Motivate that operates Citi Bike and other bike-sharing programs in several major U.S. cities including New York and Chicago. It will rename the business Lyft Bikes. Terms of that deal were not disclosed either.

While the often brightly colored rental bikes are becoming a more common sight in the U.S., they have already gained widespread use in China and parts of Europe.

YouTube to crack down on fake news, support journalism

BY BARBARA ORTUTAY
ASSOCIATED PRESS
TECHNOLOGY WRITER

Google’s YouTube said it is taking several steps to ensure the veracity of news on its service by cracking down on misinformation and supporting news organizations.

The company said July 9 it will make “authoritative” news sources more prominent, especially in the wake of breaking news events when misinformation can spread quickly.

At such times, YouTube will begin showing users short text previews of news stories in video search results, as well as warnings that the stories can change. The goal is to counter the fake videos that can proliferate immediately after shootings, natural disasters and other major happenings. For example, YouTube search results prominently showed videos purporting to “prove” that mass shootings like the one that killed at least 59 in Las Vegas were fake, acted out by “crisis actors.”

In these urgent cases, traditional video won’t do since it takes time for news outlets to produce and verify high-quality clips. So, YouTube aims to short-circuit the misinformation loop with text stories that can quickly provide more accurate information. Company executives announced the effort at YouTube’s New York offices.

Those officials, however, offered only vague descriptions of which sources YouTube will consider authoritative. Chief Product Officer Neal Mohan said the company isn’t just compiling a simple list of trusted news outlets, noted that the definition of authoritative is “fluid” and then added the caveat that it won’t simply boil down to sources that are popular on YouTube.

He added that 10,000 human reviewers at Google — so-called search quality raters who monitor search results around the world — are helping determine what will count as authoritative sources and news stories.

Alexios Mantzarlis, a Poynter Institute faculty member who helped Facebook team up with fact-checkers (including The Associated Press), said the text story snippet at the top of search results was “cautiously a good step forward.”

But he worried what would happen to fake news videos that were simply recommended by YouTube’s recommendation engine and would appear in feeds without being searched. He said it would be preferable if Google used people instead of algorithms to vet fake news. “Facebook was reluctant to go down that path two and half years ago and then they did,” Mantzarlis said.

YouTube also said it will commit $25 million over the next several years to improving news on YouTube and tackling “emerging challenges” such as misinformation. That sum includes funding to help news organizations around the world build “sustainable video operations,” such as by training staff and improving production facilities. The money would not fund video creation.

The company is also testing ways to counter conspiracy videos with generally trusted sources such as Wikipedia and Encyclopedia Britannica. For common conspiracy subjects — what YouTube delicately calls “well-established historical and scientific topics that have often been subject to misinformation,” such as the moon landing and the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing — Google will add information from such third parties for users who search on these topics.

Cameras could help detect Northern California fires faster

AP WIRE SERVICE

A wildfire-prone Northern California county is considering installing surveillance cameras that can help detect its next major blaze.

The Press Democrat reported Friday that the eight high-definition cameras would be installed on communication towers and other existing structures.

The goal for the web cameras is to help emergency responders and government officials more quickly understand the severity of a fire, where it is spreading and how quickly it is advancing.

The network would span more than a third of the Lake Sonoma watershed, a water source for 600,000 people across three counties.

County supervisors will consider the eight-camera $475,000 investment in August.

An existing network of 60 cameras across Southern California and Lake Tahoe has already provided critical information about hundreds of past fires.

California meets greenhouse gas reduction goal years early

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Officials say California greenhouse gas emissions have fallen below 1990 levels, putting the state well on its way toward meeting long-term goals to fight climate change.

The state Air Resources Board announced July 11 that pollution levels are down 13 percent since their 2004 peak — as the economy grew 26 percent since that year. The agency says greenhouse gas emissions dropped 2.7 percent in 2016 — the latest year available — to about 430 million metric tons. That’s just below the 431 million metric tons produced in 1990.

California law requires that emissions return to 1990 levels by 2020 and reach 40 percent below that marker by 2030. The Air Resources Board has broad authority to achieve those goals.

New California water plan aimed at boosting fish habitat

By KATHLEEN RONAYNE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

California water officials say a new proposal to increase flows through a major central California river is needed to stave off an ecological crisis that includes the decline of native salmon.

But critics say a draft plan the state Water Resources Control Board announced Friday will hurt farmers and restrict drinking water supply in the agriculturally critical San Joaquin Valley.

It's the latest development in California's long-running feud between environmental and agricultural interests over the state's limited water supply.

The San Joaquin River is one of California's largest rivers and a crucial piece of its water-supply chain.

State water board officials say diverting water from the river has drastically hurt its ecosystem. The board's plan would roughly double the amount of water required to flow without being diverted

CEO Musk: Tesla hits weekly goal of making 5,000 Model 3s

By TOM KRISHER

AP AUTO WRITER

Electric car maker Tesla Inc. has delivered on its CEO's promise to build a lower-priced car at a rate of 5,000 per week by the end of June.

CEO Elon Musk sent an e-mail to company employees Sunday praising them for producing 5,000 Model 3s, a compact car that's designed to shift Tesla from a niche manufacturer to a mainstream automaker. Musk also said the company had cranked out a combined 2,000 of Model S sedans and Model X sport-utility vehicles, bringing overall production to a record 7,000 for the week.

"We did it!" Musk wrote. "What an incredible job by an amazing team."

The e-mail was reported by the website Electrek, and the company confirmed its authenticity.

Last summer, when the first Model 3s began rolling off the assembly line, Musk promised to build 5,000 per week by December and 10,000 per week in 2018. But he also warned at the time that Tesla was entering at least six months of "manufacturing hell" as it tried to hit the targets.

Dave Sullivan, manager of product analysis at the market research firm AutoPacific Inc., wasn't impressed. "Reaching it is one thing," Sullivan said. "Consistently producing 5,000 per week with outstanding quality is another. I don't think producing 5,000 once is anything to get excited about until it's repeatable."

Model 3 sales are critical to Tesla's future. The company has never posted a full-year profit, and it burned through more than $1 billion in cash in the first quarter. Wall Street investors, who have pushed the company's stock beyond $340 per share, are growing impatient with the losses.

Moody's Investor Service downgraded Tesla's debt into junk territory back in March, warning that Tesla won't have cash to cover $3.7 billion for normal operations, capital expenses and debt that comes due early next year. Tesla said cash from Model 3 sales will pay the bills and drive profits.

The company reached 5,000 per week as Musk spent many nights inside the Fremont, California, factory that once belonged to a joint venture between General Motors and Toyota. To quickly put another assembly line in place, Tesla built a large tent at the factory site. Musk told investors on a first-quarter earnings conference call that the company relied too heavily on automation. It had to hire more people to work at the factory.

Tesla said in April that it had about 450,000 orders for the Model 3. But some could be getting antsy, especially those who want a price closer to the base of $35,000. Currently Tesla is selling only Model 3s that cost $49,000 to in excess of $70,000.

Many have been waiting since March of 2016, when Tesla began taking orders with a $1,000 refundable deposit.

The company also may have to deal with some safety issues. Investigators from two federal agencies are looking into five crashes of its vehicles, some involving the semi-autonomous Autopilot system or post-crash battery fires that have been difficult to extinguish.

But regardless of those issues, Musk was in a celebratory mood Sunday.

"I think we just became a real car company," he wrote.

California lawmakers face dozens of key bills in final month

By SOPHIA BOLLAG

ASSOCIATED PRESS

California lawmakers left for summer recess with most of the year's major bills still on their to-do list.

So far in 2018, they have passed first-in-the-nation data privacy regulations and a ban on new local soda taxes. But when they return in August, they'll have less than a month to tackle high-profile measures on criminal justice, energy policy and sexual harassment.

Here's a look at some of the issues waiting for them when they return. They face an Aug. 31 deadline to act.

Criminal Justice

Lawmakers have been pushing to overhaul the state's bail system since last year but have yet to pass legislation to significantly change it. A spokeswoman for Democratic Sen. Bob Hertzberg of Van Nuys says a bill he authored to eliminate bail for most defendants will likely be acted on after the recess. Proponents say the current system discriminates against poor people and that people should be jailed based on their danger to the public, not their ability to pay. Lawmakers also plan to take up bills that would make California the first state to significantly restrict when police use their guns and open law enforcement records on use of force to the public.

Energy

Gov. Jerry Brown is urging lawmakers to create a new board overseeing the electric grid across portions of the U.S. West, doing away with the panel he appoints and the Legislature confirms. Brown and other advocates see an opportunity to deploy renewable energy across a fragmented Western grid, but the idea has met stiff opposition from critics worried it could inadvertently expand coal power or jeopardize California's renewable energy mandates. Lawmakers also will consider a bill bumping up those renewable energy mandates and setting a goal of getting all of California's energy from carbon-free sources by 2045. Those discussions are happening as lawmakers consider making it easier for utilities to reduce liability for wildfire damage as the state braces for more severe blazes in the face of climate change.

Technology

Lawmakers passed a data privacy law last month in a rush but plan to fix problems that have already arisen. The law will compel companies to tell customers upon request what personal data they've collected and why, and which type of third parties received it. Consumers will also be able to ask companies to delete their information and refrain from selling it. The law doesn't take effect until 2020 to give lawmakers time to make changes. Some Democrats are also looking to enshrine in state law net neutrality rules – which require an equal playing field on the internet – after the Federal Communications Commission dumped the regulations. The issue led to a bitter fight among Democrats over how aggressive the state should be.

Sexual Harassment

The Legislature is also poised to take up bills to crack down on sexual harassment. They include measures to ban nondisclosure agreements related to sexual misconduct in settlements; to end forced arbitration; and to make harassers personally liable if they retaliate against the victim.

Marijuana

Although the sale of cannabis to adults is legal under state law, most banks won't accept money from a product that remains illegal under federal law, forcing marijuana businesses to deal in cash. Handling huge amounts of cash can be dangerous, so lawmakers have proposed authorizing a state-backed bank for those businesses to use.

Fill in the missing numbers (1 – 9 inclusive) so each row, column and 3x3 box contains all digits.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: JULY 18 – JULY 24, 2018

For All Signs: We are in the midst of a several-week period in which many of us will feel compelled to revisit the past in some way. Old issues of resentment and anger may resurface for a better cleansing. A helpful ritual in these times is to clean out closets, eliminate useless items, and organize clutter. There is something about these activities that helps us to clear our thoughts. If you are troubled by an old angry demon, be aware that it is looking for a fresh perspective. Work it out with a heavy project or write it out in a journal and consider whether that demon must still be revered by your ego. This same aspect occurred in early June and will repeat in late September. We have the full summer season to wrestle the demon to the ground.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): You may encounter one or more people who are past friends this week. Remain conscious of where you are today and don't entangle yourself in that world again. Maybe it is good for an afternoon's visit, but not for a lifestyle. Current events in your life may be reminders of a painful past. This is old stuff. Make an effort not to wallow in it.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Be aware that you are in a sensitive frame of mind and may misinterpret that which is said to you. You may be the one who hears what you want to hear. Take your impressions with a grain of salt until you clarify what was originally intended. It is also possible that someone may be deliberately misleading. Call on your best judgment.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This is a great week for a getaway. Do something novel, even if you don't leave home. Your mind is open to whatever seems fresh and unique. A surprise may occur related to a roommate, neighbor or a sibling. The Twins always like to move from place to place. Stay aware that this is not the time to buy a car, whether used or new.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): This is a week in which reminders crop up from past losses. Sometimes these hurts have to be worked through again, like peeling an onion until it eventually disappears. We are in the week's lull between two eclipses. Eclipse patterns are difficult for Cancerians. You have the gift of empathy, so be your own best friend at this time and take care of yourself.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This is a very good time to stay out of your significant other's way. He or she is experiencing an old anger from the past and may be projecting it on you. It is possible that you did accidentally trip the other's trigger. Things will work better in the end if you do not respond with equally forceful anger.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): You want to be close and as you reach out, the 'other' just seems to evaporate or evade you. This is truly disappointing. This could be a one-time thing or you may have attracted a vampire, one who takes energy but can't give it back. Don't buy it. You are worth much more than that.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): The last thing in the world you want to do right now is follow routine. Give yourself some slack and take a breather. If you don't, you will resent it and that uses more energy than it is worth. Let your imagination flow and consider adding something beautiful, maybe inspirational, to your everyday surroundings. It will perk up your attitude.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Experiences of this week may be reminiscent of hurts you have felt in the past, perhaps with other people. Try to be honest in your reaction to today's circumstances. Don't let yourself fall into an old pit. One or more items in your home or car may break. It's a nuisance, but these things happen sometimes.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Your optimistic and happy attitude causes others to join your bandwagon and support your projects. You can envision a grand result and are able to express it in a way that others can understand. The reward will be great enough that everyone will benefit.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): This is a period in which you may encounter someone from your past. If not a person, then you may confront a debt or a promise made some time ago. There really is no way around it. You must take responsibility for your part. It will haunt you if you don't.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): This time brings a drama with your significant other that does not even really belong in that department. Your ego may be a bit bruised, but the real wound happened many years ago. Don't ask that your partner compensate for injuries of your childhood. Maintain perspective and focus only on the present time.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): The Sun is in an uncomfortable aspect to Neptune, your ruling planet. You may not be feeling well. If so, lighten up on your exercise routine and get some extra rest. You or someone else may be guilting you. Ignore that voice. You don't have to prove anything to pay for your existence.

Holy Ghost Festa

BY TOSHALI GOEL

Newark's 96th annual "Holy Ghost Festa" will be hosted by the Portuguese Fraternal Society of America (PFSA) Council #16 from Thursday, July 19 to Sunday, July 22. The festival celebrates Portuguese heritage by choosing a young girl to represent the famed Queen Isabel of Portugal, who historians date back to the 13th and 14th centuries. According to legend, Queen Isabel was deeply dedicated to honoring the poor and reminding the citizens to be compassionate and caring. In what has come to be known as the miracle of Saint Isabel, she was taking food to the poor one day when the king caught her. She lied and told him she carried roses, and, miraculously, when she revealed what she had, roses lay in her dress instead of bread.

The Holy Ghost Festa takes place every year to pay homage to Portuguese heritage as well as the miracle of the roses, Saint Isabel, and the Holy Spirit. Celebrations will begin Thursday with the blessing of meat and offerings followed by the praying of the Rosary and will continue on Friday with distribution of the traditional sopas (soup). The day-long festivities on Saturday will feature the Bodo de Leite, or blessing of the cows, along with the traditional Pezinho with servings of sweet bread, cheese, and milk. There will be music and dance in the evening along with the presentation of this year's queen, president, and officers.

The weekend concludes with Sunday's procession to St. Edward Catholic Church for Mass and return to the Newark Pavilion Chapel for religious ceremonies. Sopas will be served and an auction and bazaar will be held throughout the day.

Workshop to focus on caring for aging parents

SUBMITTED BY JONNIE BANKS

Sometimes called the "Sandwich Generation" are those adult children who find themselves caring for their own younger families and their aging parents as well. These added responsibilities may become a challenge when decisions regarding their parent's care and need for independence arise. Finding information and resources that work best for loved ones can sometimes feel like walking in the dark.

To help shed light on the issue Eden Health District is offering a free two-part program, "Caring for Our Aging Parents" on Tuesday, July 31 at the San Leandro Library.

The first part starts at 5 p.m. in the library's Karp Room with a "Let's Get Connected Resource Fair" where various community agencies that serve Alameda County will be on hand to help educate attendees about services for seniors and answer common questions. The resource fair is open to everyone and registration is not required.

Then, from 6:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., a panel discussion focusing on how to help parents remain independent and safe, adult day programs and available community resources in Alameda County, as well as different housing and care options will meet. Because seating for this part of the program is limited, registrations must be made by calling (510) 538-2035.

Eden Health District is a non-profit agency established in 1948 by the residents of Castro Valley, Hayward, San Leandro and San Lorenzo. The district invests its resources in providing grants to local non-profit organizations, enabling them to provide much-needed health care services to those in need, but also provides free community health education programs to the community. To learn more about the Eden Health District, visit their website at www.ethd.org.

3D wall panels

By DAVID R. NEWMAN
WALLDECOR 3D

Looking for a way to spice up your home? Maybe your walls are too boring and need a little pizzazz. One trend that's gaining popularity, especially in California, is 3D wall panels. These textured panels have patterns carved into them, so you can turn any wall into an eye-catching focal point. Create a seamless band of waves. Or maybe polka dots are more your style. Are you a cubist? Whatever your vision, 3D wall panels might be the answer.

3D wall panels are designed to connect together to form a continuous pattern. These patterns vary, from waves to blocks, to jagged lines, to circles, diamonds, etc. They come in a variety of materials: metal, plastic, glass, fabric, stone, and wood. One of the very first materials used was crushed sugarcane fibers. After raw sugar is extracted from the juice of shredded sugarcane, the remaining material (called bagasse) is used to form the base. This type of eco-friendly wall panel is 100 percent biodegradable and super lightweight. It is the most popular type of wall panel today because of its low cost, renewable nature, and ease of installation.

These fibrous panels come in an off-white color, so homeowners can paint them to match the palette of their home (a fire-retardant primer is suggested). Standard size is 20" x 20". Installation is a breeze – just glue them down with a professional grade adhesive like Liquid Nails. They are also easy to cut, so trimming them down to fit around electrical outlets and vents is simple. There are also small frames you can buy to give these openings a more finished look.

Truly, you are only limited by your creativity. Says Carm Costa of WallDecor 3D, an online distributor of WallArt 3D wall panels, "The beauty of this product is its versatility. You can use it on the wall or the ceiling, to frame a mural, or scattered throughout the house. I've even seen people use them on furniture – they applied them to a small table to create a cube, which turned it into this wonderful art piece."

There are a few drawbacks. They are not recommended for bathrooms, as moisture can be an issue. And due to their nature

(they are essentially a paper product), they can dent if struck with enough force. For commercial applications, and for some homeowners who want a more durable material, there are wall panels made from compressed wood, known as Modified Density Fiber (MDF). While the depth of the design on these is not as pronounced as on the plant fiber panels, they will not deform under pressure. They can be painted as well.

There is a new version of the 3D wall panel that is made from real wood. These mosaic wood panels come in walnut, teak, acacia, ash, and oak. Says Costa, "These are more expensive, but they're really beautiful. Each panel is 26" x 12" and covers 2.2 square feet. It's a very popular product, especially the walnut."

There are also a variety of gypsum and ceramic wall panels that can look very nice, though installation is a little more involved. These sell for about $12 per panel.

Plant fiber panels sell for about $5.50 per panel. MDF panels go for about $6 per panel, and real wood retails at $20 per panel. Most companies sell sample kits that you can order so you can handle the product to see what it feels and looks like in person. Installation tutorials can be found on YouTube.

So what are you waiting for? Add accents to your home with 3D wall panels. It's a really low-cost design solution that will make your walls pop, have your guests saying "wow," and leave you feeling groovy.

THE ACWD CONNECTION

July is Smart Irrigation Month

Did you know that close to 50 percent of outdoor water use is wasted because of inefficient watering methods and systems? Just one broken sprinkler head can result in up to 25,000 gallons of wasted water over a six month period! Smart Irrigation Month is an ideal time to check your irrigation systems to ensure you are practicing responsible water use and best practices. Here are some simple tips you can start today:

- ◇ Water your landscape at night or early morning to prevent water loss from evaporation.
- ◇ Adjust irrigation timers based on the season, and in the winter let the rain do all the watering.
- ◇ Water more often, for shorter periods of time, to allow the soil to absorb the water and prevent runoff.
- ◇ Add mulch to your landscape. Mulch helps to reduce evaporation, control weeds, protect soil and retain moisture.

Visit www.acwd.org/conserve for more information on conservation for gardens and landscapes.

Make blues instruments, and discover the wonder of tension and vibration at “Blues in the Schools,”

SUBMITTED BY MUSIC FOR MINORS II

Learn how to teach blues music and its history to grades K – 6, make blues instruments, and discover the wonder of tension and vibration at “Blues in the Schools,” a free workshop organized by Music for Minors II (MFMII) on August 11 and 12.

Did you know that blues music grew out of the church/spiritual music and work songs, and that popular folk songs such as “I’ve Been Working on the Railroad” and “Pick a Bale of Cotton” are really true stories about the arduous lives of laborers, railroad workers and field workers? Adults sang these songs to organize their efforts and make their work go faster and easier. You can do that too!

With over 50 years of performing experience, workshop presenter Michael “Hawkeye” Herman initiated his award-winning “Blues in the Schools” program 40 years ago.

Participants must commit to at least one auditorium presentation in a MFMII affiliated school upon completion of the workshop. Participants must have good speaking skills, be comfortable speaking to large groups, and have a good sense of rhythm. The ability to play a musical instrument is preferred, but not required. Everyone is welcome; attendance is limited to 20 trainees.

The workshop is sponsored by Barry and Holly Walter, partners of the Legendary Rhythm & Blues Cruise.

If you have questions or to reserve your spot, please call (510) 733-1189 or email info@musicforminors2.org.

Follow a plump wheat berry's journey from the farm's field to your table

SUBMITTED BY EAST BAY REGIONAL PARK DISTRICT

Fremont's history as a prolific farming area is well-known. The area was famous for grapes, olives, and potatoes so big they could 'feed a family.' Wheat, often called 'the staff of life,' and other grains were also raised, but how many of us today are familiar with the work it takes to turn a stalk of wheat into bread?

For two weekends, July 21 and 22, and July 28 and 29, you can follow a plump wheat berry's journey from the farm's field to your table. You'll bring in the sheaves of grain and thresh it to separate the wheat from the chaff. Next, we'll mill the grain into wholesome, stone-ground flour.

This is a drop-in program; no registration is required. Ardenwood admission fee applies. For information, call (510) 544-2797.

RECOGNIZING LUMINARY CAREGIVERS

The Masonic Homes Hosts Its Second Annual Caregiver Awards Gala

According to the Alzheimer's Association, Alzheimer's disease is currently the sixth leading cause of death in the United States. About 5.7 million Americans live with Alzheimer's disease; by 2050, that statistic is projected to rise to 14 million. As Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia reach a larger population, a growing number of family members take on the often-demanding responsibility for providing at-home care. It is estimated that about 16.1 Americans today are caring for family members experiencing memory loss – without pay.

"Caregivers make a lot of sacrifices on behalf of their loved ones," says Joseph Pritchard, M.D., health services administrator at the Masonic Homes of California. "We want these devoted family members to understand that their community is here to support them in return."

REWARDING EXTRAORDINARY DEVOTION

Pritchard was instrumental in developing the Masonic Homes' Luminary Caregiver Awards, which celebrate citizens in the Tri-City community who have devoted their time, compassion, and energy to serving a loved one with memory-related challenges. Three caregivers will be recognized in the following categories:

- Millennial Luminary Award: Recognizes a young caregiver who has sacrificed school, work, and other obligations to help care for a loved one coping with dementia.

- John A. Charland Jr. Innovation Luminary Caregiver Award: Recognizes a caregiver who uses technology in an innovative way to help ensure safety and improve quality of life for a loved one coping with dementia.
- Inspirational Luminary Award: Recognizes a caregiver whose extraordinarily compassionate service is a source of inspiration to others.

Entries are being accepted through August 1. To nominate yourself or a loved one for this award, please visit masonichome.org/luminary. All entries will be evaluated by a team of health and emergency care specialists, including Masonic Homes staff, local police and firefighters, health care workers, and other community leaders.

CAREGIVER GALA

The winners of this year's Luminary Caregiver Awards will be recognized on August 25, 2018, during the Masonic Homes second annual Luminary Caregiver Awards Gala. The festivities will include live music, a delicious multicourse meal, and an opportunity to participate in silent auction of donated prizes. All proceeds from the event will be distributed among memory care-supportive organizations that serve Tri-City residents, including the Alzheimer's Association, Alzheimer's Services of the East Bay, Alzheimer's Support Group for Caregivers in the Fremont/Tri-City Area, Union City Alzheimer's Support Group, and others.

All Tri-City residents are invited to attend this elegant, impactful event. Tickets are $80 each. To purchase a ticket, please make checks payable to the Masonic Homes of California. Write "Luminary Caregiver Awards" in the memo line and mail to:

Kim Hegg
Masonic Homes of California
34400 Mission Boulevard
Union City, CA 94587-3604

Checks must be received by August 20, 2018.

Local businesses are invited to provide donations for the silent auction and raffle. For more information about donating goods or services, visit masonichome.org/luminary.

Red Cross issues
urgent call for blood donors

SUBMITTED BY CHRISTINE WELCH

An emergency blood shortage is prompting the American Red Cross to issue an urgent call for eligible donors of all blood types – especially type O – to give now and help save lives.

The Red Cross escalated its call for blood and platelet donors after a difficult Independence Day week for donations. More than 550 fewer blood drives were organized by businesses and other community groups last week than during a typical week as individuals across the country celebrated the holiday and enjoyed summer activities. This could equate to as many as 15,000 fewer donations than needed, causing donations to now be distributed to hospitals faster than they come in.

“Each and every day, individuals across the country depend on blood and platelet donations for lifesaving treatments and emergency care, so it’s critical that people donate now to meet these needs,” said Cliff Numark, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. “Whether you’ve never donated or give a couple of times a year, you’re needed to give as soon as possible to help save patient lives. Yours may be the donation a patient is counting on.”

This need is especially critical for type O blood donors. Type O is the most in-demand blood type and often the first be depleted from hospital shelves during a shortage. Type O negative is the universal blood type and what emergency room personnel reach for when there is no time to determine the blood type of patients in the most serious situations. Type O positive is the most common blood type and can be transfused to Rh-positive patients of any blood type.

Student-Athletes on All-Academic List

SUBMITTED BY STEVE CONNOLLY

34 Cal State East Bay student-athletes representing the sports of baseball, softball, golf, and track and field have been named to the 2018 California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Spring All-Academic Team, the conference office announced July 9, 2018.

The CCAA seasonal academic awards, which are in their fourth year of existence, recognized a total of 348 student-athletes who have reached sophomore athletic standing, maintained at least a 3.30 cumulative grade point average, and competing in a Spring sport. The East Bay baseball team led the way with 10 honorees, followed by the men's and women's track squads with six apiece. Five softball players were recognized, while four members of both the men's and women's golf teams made the list.

Men's Hoops earns Academic Excellence Award

SUBMITTED BY STEVE CONNOLLY

The Cal State East Bay men's basketball team has been recognized with the 2017-18 Team Academic Excellence Award, the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) announced July 11, 2018. The Pioneers are the only team from the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) and the only team from the entire California State University system to claim the prestigious honor.

Just 186 institutions across all three divisions of the NCAA, as well as the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) and the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) captured the award, which was established in 2013 to honor teams that achieve at least a 3.0 cumulative grade point average for the entire academic year. The marks the third time in four years the Pioneers have made the list.

Surprising Facts About Your Credit Score

SUBMITTED BY ANDREA AKER

Most people know their credit score is an important factor in securing a mortgage, auto loan or even an apartment. They also know that missing a credit card or loan payment can damage their score. However, there are other lesser-known facts that could make or break that three-digit number.

"Nothing affects your financial health more than your credit score," said Michael Sullivan, a personal finance consultant with Take Charge America, a national nonprofit credit counseling and debt management agency. "But, there's a lot of mystery surrounding credit scores, including how scores increase or decrease."

Sullivan sheds light on eight surprising facts about credit scores:

• It affects insurance rates: In many states, insurers base your rates on your credit score. If it's 700 or better, you can lock in the best prices. Likewise, a score below 600 means higher insurance rates.

• Employers may review your credit: If you're applying for a job requiring a security check, expect the company to check your credit report and score, too. If you're hoping to work in the financial services industry, you most likely need a good score to secure a job.

• It won't improve if you cancel a credit card: It may seem counterintuitive, but closing an old credit card can actually hurt your credit score because it impacts your credit utilization, which is a factor in determining the score.

• Overdue library fines can affect your score: You might be shocked to learn that libraries often work with debt collectors to collect fines. And, while libraries don't report to credit bureaus, collection agencies do.

• So can outstanding medical bills: Similarly, unpaid medical bills are sent to collection agencies and have the same effect on scores.

• No debt does not equal good credit: Many people assume that having no credit cards or other debt will get them a higher credit score, but this isn't true. Without a history of past debts and repayments, creditors can't predict how you will repay your debt. This makes it difficult to secure a loan. On the other hand, running up a bunch of credit card debt won't help your situation either. Aim to pay off all balances monthly.

• Neither does a hefty savings account. Your account balance has no bearing on your credit score.

• Errors are common: The Federal Trade Commission reports that more than 20 percent of Americans have a "potentially material error in their credit report," meaning their score may be lower than it should be. Not surprisingly, credit reporting is the second biggest source of complaints to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. It's important to review your report at least once a year to check for errors. You can request a free report from each of the three credit bureaus annually at annualcreditreport.com.

For more tips or information about credit counseling, budgeting, debt relief or student loans, visit takechargeamerica.org or call (866) 528-0588. Take Charge America, Inc. is a nonprofit agency offering financial education and counseling services including credit counseling, debt management, student loan counseling, housing counseling and bankruptcy counseling. It has helped more than 1.6 million consumers nationwide manage their personal finances and debts. To learn more, visit takechargeamerica.org or call (888) 822-9193.

Boy gets trapped in toy vending machine

ASSOCIATED PRESS

When a young Florida boy wanted a stuffed toy, he crawled inside a claw-style vending machine in the play area of a restaurant to fetch one. And, he got stuck inside the glass-encased structure.

Thankfully, off-duty firefighter Jeremy House was also having dinner at the Beef O'Brady's restaurant in Titusville, on Florida's Atlantic coast. He yelled for someone to call 911 and his colleagues from a nearby fire station joined him in rescuing the boy named Mason.

"He went in, but obviously he couldn't come back out the same way," Battalion Chief Gregory Sutton told The Associated Press. Mason sat atop the stuffed toys while firefighters took just 5 minutes to get him out.

Sutton says the boy was embarrassed but wasn't in distress. And the machine sustained minimal damage.

Park It

By NED MACKAY

Stargazing in the Regional Parks

Stars of the summer night will be the focus of lots of programs in July and August in the East Bay Regional Parks. The main event is the Perseid meteor shower, which occurs in August. More about that in a future column.

However, there's a great opportunity for stargazing during a program from 8:30 to 10 p.m. on Saturday, July 21 at Del Valle Regional Park south of Livermore, with naturalist Constance Taylor and the Tri-Valley Stargazers. Constellations, star clusters and nebulae will all be on display.

Meet at the staging area at the end of Arroyo Road. The Stargazers will have telescopes. Bring blankets, flashlights and dress in layers. For information, call (510) 544-3249.

There's lots to see and do back down on earth as well. For example, it's story time for kids under an oak tree from 11 a.m. to noon on Saturday, July 21 and again on Sunday, July 29 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont. Parent participation is required.

Meet at the park visitor center. Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle; the program is free. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda will celebrate National Ice Cream Month in a program from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 21 with naturalist Susan Ramos. Go on a beach walk to learn the secret sea ingredient in ice cream, then help with a hand crank to produce the confection.

And poetry in nature is the theme of a shoreline walk from 10:30 a.m. to noon on Sunday, July 22 with poet Emmanuel Williams and naturalist Michael Charnofsky. Inspired by nature, the group will create poetry while exploring the shore.

Crab Cove Visitor Center is at 1252 McKay Ave. off Alameda's Central Avenue. For information, call 510-544-3187.

Not to be outdone by Crab Cove, Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley also plans an ice cream making session from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 21, with interpretive student aide Brianna Contaxis-Tucker. Meet at the Environmental Education Center.

And naturalist Jenna Scimeca will lead a spider hunt around the Little Farm from 3 to 3:30 p.m. the same day. These are little spiders, so bring magnifying glasses. The center and Little Farm are both at the north end of Tilden's Central Park Drive. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

As long as we're hunting spiders, naturalist Trent Pearce plans another of his spider safaris from 3 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 22 at Carquinez Strait Regional Shoreline in Martinez in search of orb weavers, wolf spiders and mygalomorphs.

Meet Trent at the Nejedly Staging Area, which is on Carquinez Scenic Drive about half a mile west of town. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

Out at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley, naturalist Nichole Gange plans a full moon hike from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, July 25 during which the group will explore the park using coyote-like sensory techniques.

Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's Main Street. For information, call (888) 327-2757, extension 3050.

There are lots of other activities scheduled in the regional parks in coming days. Check out the website www.ebparks.org for more information.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Protecting the Bees

In the July 3, 2018 issue of the Tri-City Voice, I found an EarthTalk article (p. 9) on the decline of the bee population and how it affects our everyday life. The article addressed some of the causes of this problem, such as pesticides as well as some solutions. I, too, have some ideas about the causes and solutions.

I think some factors affecting the bee population are rapidly increasing climate change, loss of habitat, and the lack of biodiversity. Since bees are not as biologically diverse across species as other related species, they are more prone to extinction if their inter-species similarities adversely respond to environmental pressures.

As for solutions, first, we must simply stop doing what we are doing wrong. We must not destroy their natural habitats, nor use chemical pesticides harmful to bees. If we can refrain from these destructive practices, I believe we will see the population rise again. Planting flowers and other pollinator-friendly plants will go a long way toward solving this problem, but it needs to be a community effort if we are to put this problem in the past.

Sincerely,
Aniketh Awatiger (Boy Scout)

‘Funny Bones,’ Mr. McFeely, and Laugh Challenge in Niles

SUBMITTED BY NILES ESSANAY SILENT FILM MUSEUM

Charlie Chaplin has been making audiences laugh for over a century now, and you'll find out why in "Funny Bones: The Comedy of Charlie Chaplin." The program is hosted by Dan Kamin, who trained Robert Downey, Jr. for his Oscar-nominated performance in "Chaplin" and created Johnny Depp's comedy moves for "Benny and Joon." This multifaceted artist performs his own comedy shows in theaters and with symphony orchestras worldwide, and he's the author of two acclaimed books on Chaplin: "Charlie Chaplin's One-Man Show" and "The Comedy of Charlie Chaplin: Artistry in Motion."

In this one-of-a-kind multimedia event Kamin takes audiences on a magical excursion into Chaplin's enchanted comic world. Following the screening of a newly restored print of "The Pawnshop," Chaplin's 1916 comic masterpiece, he peels the layers of the film to reveal the secrets that keep it fresh, funny, and surprisingly relevant today. You'll learn all about Chaplin's remarkable body language and brilliant visual comedy, and you'll also see some brilliant visual comedy and sleight-of-hand from Kamin. This program won't just change the way you look at Chaplin's world – it will change the way you look at your own as well.

This is a summer of love for Fred Rogers and his iconic "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" program. The show's 50th anniversary has inspired television and theatrical documentaries and brought its creator back into the national spotlight, with an upcoming film starring Tom Hanks also in the works.

Helping to spread the word is Mr. McFeely, aka David Newell, who always promised a "speedy delivery" on the show, despite the fact that he made his rounds on a tricycle. Fans will hear the hilarious story of why Newell used that particular mode of transport when he makes a stop at the Edison Theater on Saturday, July 21 for a weekend of stories, comedy classics, and laughter. Newell, a master raconteur, will regale the audience with tales about the making of the show, along with stories about the many celebrity guests who appeared on the program, including such luminaries as Julia Child, Tony Bennett, Marcel Marceau, Itzhak Perlman, Yo Yo Ma, and fellow children's TV icons Captain Kangaroo and Big Bird.

For his afternoon presentation Newell will be interviewed by lifelong friend Kamin, who appeared on the show several times. The program will include a Q&A, and Newell will stick around to sign photos and pose for selfies with his fans.

That night Newell will host a screening of "It's the Old Army Game," a silent feature starring W.C. Fields and the legendary Louise Brooks.

On Sunday, July 22 Newell and Kamin will team up again to present their "Laurel and Hardy Laugh Challenge." Anyone who can sit through the films without laughing at least once will get a ticket refund, a tub of popcorn, and some cool movie memorabilia from the museum shop.

Rena Kiehn, Special Programs Director of the Edison, isn't worried about losing either money or memorabilia, because Kamin and Newell chose what Kamin calls "a program of irresistible rib-ticklers. We picked three of Laurel and Hardy's funniest silent films, for three reasons. First, their humor hasn't dated at all. Second, they appeal to all ages. And third, there's no dialogue to drown out, so you can laugh louder and longer." The films will be accompanied by renowned silent film pianist John Mirsalis.

In "You're Darn Tootin'" the boys are fired from their jobs in a band and become street musicians, resulting in one of the funniest scenes of mob mayhem in movie history. In "Big Business" they're selling Christmas trees door-to-door – in July. When a potential customer, the perennial hothead James Finlayson, treats them rudely they retaliate, and before long their trees, their car, and his house have been systematically demolished. In "Liberty" they are escaped convicts who end up stranded on the girders of an unfinished skyscraper, where thrills alternate with the laughs.

There will also be a special bonus film. One of Laurel and Hardy's most celebrated scenes is the uproarious pie fight finale from "Battle of the Century," in which 3,000 pies are thrown. But the rest of the film has been incomplete since the silent era, a great frustration for L&H fans. A print with most of the missing footage was discovered a couple of years ago, so the Laugh Challenge audience will be able to see the film – including the fully restored pie fight – for the first time.

Important information about the upcoming Fremont City Council elections

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT

District Elections

This November, four Fremont City Council seats will be up for election on the General Municipal Ballot. Under Fremont’s new district-based election system, voters may elect candidates only from the district that they live in. Voters residing in District 1 (Northwest Fremont), District 2 (Central North Fremont), District 3 (Central Fremont), and District 4 (Eastern Fremont) will elect a City Councilmember to represent their district in the upcoming election.

Fremont residents can identify the district they live in by visiting the Council District Locator tool (web version of this article, https://fremont.gov/civicalerts.aspx?AID=1385) and plugging in a home address. This tool includes mapping layers of City and public safety facilities, public schools, shopping centers, and Alameda County voter precincts as reference points. In addition, the locator includes a link to designated polling places.

The candidate nomination period opened on Monday, July 16 and ends on Friday, August 10. Information about the preliminary candidates will be available during that nomination period.

To vote in the election, you must be a U.S. citizen, at least 18 years old, a resident of Fremont, and neither in prison nor on parole for a felony conviction. Make sure you are registered at least 15 days before the election. Re-registration is required if you have moved since you last registered, changed your name, or changed your political party affiliation. Polls open at 7:00 am on Tuesday, November 6 and close at 8:00 pm.

Those interested in learning more about how Fremont launched the process to convert elections from the at-large voting system to a district-based process can read more online at https://fremont.gov/DistrictElectionsBackground.

Niles: An historic district still making things

SUBMITTED BY KIM MARSHALL

As you will hear in any retail industry presentation worth its salt, authenticity is crucial for Main Streets to stay relevant. The Niles District of Fremont, a focal point of the area’s rich history, carries today a strong relationship to its authentic past. As spokesperson for our City’s Community Business Appreciation Team, I’d like to shine a light on new attractions in the Niles District that recognize and appreciate the past even as they provide a relevant and vibrant experience for guests.

The historic district of Niles has been a creative place since the early 1900s when silent movies (mostly Westerns) were filmed in the hills where ‘NILES’ lettering now sits Hollywood-style—a visible homage to its cinematic roots. Additionally, the Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum continues to bring silent movie history to life with signature events such as the Broncho Billy Silent Film Festival and Charlie Chaplin Days showcasing movies filmed in Niles.

At the Fremont Art Association (FAA), artists share collaborative spaces to create and showcase their masterpieces. The FAA also offers a wide variety of public classes using media from paint to fiber. Moreover, high tech meets the creative arts in the Electric Greeting Cards workshop, where participants learn how to make a greeting card with paint and electronic circuits!

With the Niles Depot and train museum on one side of Niles Boulevard and historic buildings dotted with antique stores on the other, visitors feel the presence of the district’s rich history. This vintage spirit is mixed with new maker-oriented businesses such as family-owned ventures like Nature’s Microcreamery, which produces its own delicious handcrafted natural ice cream. Quilting, antique restoration, and other hands-on enterprises also embody the spirit of the eclectic Niles community.

Summer is a great time to stop by for an afternoon of shopping, dining, and soaking in some local history. For more information about upcoming events, visit www.niles.org.

Sweet days of summer, the jasmine's in bloom

July is dressed up and playing her tune

Summer breeze makes me feel fine

Blowing through the jasmine in my mind

Seals & Crofts (1971)

Ahh, the warm days of summer are upon us with long days and gentle breezes. We have passed the summer solstice – the longest day of the year – and just a hint of fall will soon begin to intrude on our reveries. But when consulting the political calendar, the sweet jasmine of summer is still in the air but has already begun to fade as election season is underway.

For example, the actions of incumbent councilmembers facing fall elections are transparent as they prepare for campaigns to forge relationships with voters of new Fremont districts. Admittedly, there are hot topics to discuss, but the number of councilmember referrals in response has skyrocketed. Referrals represent an addition to other scheduled topics; an opportunity for discussion and further analysis. Previously, council referrals were sparse and highlighted a topic not addressed by previous, current or anticipated agendas. A swelling number of similar, and essentially co-sponsored referrals is an indication of political maneuvering that will probably increase following the hiatus of city council meetings in August.

In the current climate of anticipation, the intoxicating aroma of elections has induced councilmembers to convince voters that they are hard at work, listening to constituents and struggling with weighty decisions. In some cases, such as protecting neighborhoods from mega-homes and impending development decisions about commercial property in the Irvington District, home to Cloverleaf Bowl, the enticement to appear on the forefront of defensive action is overwhelming. An overflow crowd of hundreds of supporters appeared at the July 10, 2018 Fremont City Council meeting to lobby for continuation of Cloverleaf Bowl; councilmembers were eager to respond. Bowling emerged as the favorite pastime of councilmembers... who knew?

As each councilmember spoke, adding a slightly different argument to make sure they were credited with responding to public pressure, staff responded to requests to add the “Google” Jetsons-style building to the Fremont Historical Register. It was noted that a California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) review, including a historical evaluation, is already underway as part of the development process. In addition, an independent consultant will also analyze the property and report followed by input from Fremont’s Historical and Architectural Review Board (HARB). From staff comments, the referrals appeared to be of primary importance politically but tactically secondary since the development review process includes historical review and is far from complete at this time.

Inclusion of a building on the historic Register does not necessarily protect the business within, it is an indication of the historical value of the structure itself. It may, however, impact future use. From proponent comments, it appeared that most attendees were more interested in preserving the business. Even with added focus on the historical value of the Cloverleaf Bowl building, the outcome may not be what the crowd was advocating. A lone speaker representing owners of the property stated that at the end of the lease, it would not be renewed. Although zoned for a mixed-use development that could include Cloverleaf Bowl, in today’s development climate, extensive retail, including a bowling alley, will be the least financially favorable segment of any future construction.

Unfortunately, it may be that Cloverleaf Bowl will suffer the same fate as past companion bowling alleys... an historical footnote. This is partially the result of previous efforts championed by Fremont’s Planning Department with acquiescent councilmembers to “prune” district businesses in favor of housing. The demolition of prime commercial sites such as the Connolly property in Irvington bears witness to this policy. Comments by the public echoed the concerns of many residents as they see close by shopping and commercial activity dwindle, replaced by distant and less accessible commerce centers such as Pacific Commons.

Transportation throughout the City and broader area has reached catastrophic conditions and, coupled with the strangulation of retail centers, as one speaker at the council meeting lamented, “If I send my child on a bicycle to Pacific Commons, will I say, ‘Good Luck, hope you make it.’”

This summer breeze does not make me feel fine!

BART grounds crews reduce fire season risks

SUBMITTED BY MELISSA JORDAN

With the hot, dry days of fire season upon us, the work of BART’s dedicated grounds-keeping crews becomes more important than ever.

Think about the never-ending nature of pulling weeds in your home’s yard, then imagine keeping up the grounds for 121 miles of trackway (on both sides of the tracks) and for 48 stations.

“Doing the work that keeps the trains running is our priority,” said Roger Havens, a grounds worker and irrigation specialist. He often works with a crew on the overnight shift, when trains are not running, to have trains ready to move first thing for morning service.

Fire Season is Upon Us

In the first official week of summer, Havens and other grounds workers were on a day shift cutting firebreaks alongside trackway between Walnut Creek and Pleasant Hill stations on the Antioch (Yellow) Line. Their work had an urgency, as temperatures rose and the Fourth of July holiday drew near; when fireworks might have started fires in dry brush.

With hand-held weed whackers that weigh some 25-30 pounds apiece, and a powered mower called a Billy Goat, the workers leveled dry, dun-colored weeds that had sprung up since the last trimming about a month ago. It was hot, physical work, walking up and down steep inclines on either side of the tracks.

“We cut back 6 feet from the track line,” Havens said, explaining that train wheels, metal on metal, and electricity mean sooner or later there will be sparks, which can grow into fires, disrupting operations, damaging property or worse.

Reducing Risk

Grounds maintenance reduces fire risk during the dry season and, by trimming back risky tree branches, prevents them from falling onto tracks when it is windy and rainy, thus preventing equipment damage and improving system reliability.

“We use a lot of oleander because it is so durable,” Havens said. “We also have a lot of mature trees on BART property, trees that were probably here long before they put the BART tracks in.” BART has around 40 grounds workers and their schedules cover seven days a week.

Obituary

Loretta Joy Frederick

June 6, 1930 – July 11, 2018

Fremont, CA

Joy Frederick passed away peacefully, surrounded by God's love, to join her husband Ray in Heaven, on July 11. She gave her best effort to recover from emergency surgery, but this was her time, after 88 years of a rich life.

Joy enjoyed her teen years in Orange County, CA, with a great group of girlfriends, time riding on her horse, and hours and hours at the beach. She met Ray, the love of her life, at Fullerton High School. Happily for her three children, Debbie, Lin, and Greg, she chose to forgo college for family life.

All three children share fond childhood memories of days at Balboa Bay, Huntington Beach, and family camping at San Clemente State Beach. Just as Ray mentored Greg in youth baseball and football, Joy mentored Debbie and Lin with many years as their Girl Scout leader. She never left out Greg, with one of his fondest memories of her helping him make a sign for a 1959 Dodgers World Series game in LA. It said: "I need one more ticket, please", and had an arrow pointing down to Greg. Joy and Ray took turns walking around the stadium with seven year old Greg in tow, until they were successful; allowing the entire family to see the LA Dodgers first World Series win.

The family moved to Fremont in 1962, where Joy & Ray soon developed many community connections. They were active in a local dance club and the Elks Club. Through the Elks Club, Joy learned to love golfing, and shared many years golfing with Ray, along with also joining the Spring Valley Golf Club women's group, and becoming members of the Oakdale Golf and Country Club. Joy formed life-long friends within the local Junior Women's Club. When they all "graduated" to membership in the Country Club of Washington Township, Joy eventually became one of their Club presidents. She volunteered, along with friends from the Club, at the GOP SF Convention in 1964. She was also active in a local bridge club, and president too, at one time, of Las Antiquelagas, a local antique study group. She instilled in her daughters a love of musical theater, in Lin her love of the Dodgers, and, for Greg, she was a model of kindness and generosity. Her generosity extended to sharing the McCall ID condo that she and Ray had bought into, not long after Greg made his 1970's permanent move to Boise, ID. Her children and grandchildren all have dear memories of time at Payette Lake, and on the McCall golf course, even including a family Christmas there with Joy after she had become a widow. This was despite Joy taking NO pleasure in the snow & cold!

Joy lovingly cared for Ray through his death on home hospice, in 1988. She like-wise lovingly assisted through the remaining lives & deaths of both her parents & in-laws. In addition to her three children, she is also survived by her brother & sister-in-law, Jerry & Margie Hansen, daughter-in-law Marilyn Frederick, five grandchildren, (Josh Dennis, Tanika Medina, RJ Johnson, & David & Elizabeth Frederick), three granddaughter-in-laws, one grandson-in-law, nine great-grandchildren, three great-great grandchildren, and a dear family friend, Lex Bunten. Joy had much love for all, and shared many great times with her family. We will dearly miss her.

A private family funeral will take place Saturday, July 21, with an Open House/Celebration of Life at the family home that afternoon, from 1-3PM. Please contact Tri-City Cremation & Funeral Service for details. In lieu of flowers, remembrances in Joy's honor may be given to the Salvation Army or a charity of your choice.

three joint development

SUBMITTED BY STACEY HENDLER ROSS

VTA's Joint & Transit Oriented Development (TOD) Program is issuing three new Requests for Proposal (RFP) to the real estate development community in an effort to help alleviate traffic congestion and create a steady source of revenue for the Authority as it continues providing vital transportation services to the area.

VTA's Joint Development Program decides which VTA-owned properties are suitable to build on and provides the necessary groundwork and resources to engage in public/private partnerships to develop those properties.

The main objective of VTA's Joint & TOD Program is to use the Authority's 25 potential Joint Development locations as stable revenue sources for VTA through long term ground leases. Another goal is to assist in the development of transit-oriented projects that enhance neighborhoods, increase affordable housing opportunities, and increase connectivity and ridership at VTA station areas.

The latest RFPs include three joint development sites: the Blossom Hill Light Rail Station, the Curtner Station Light Rail Station and the Milpitas Transit Center. The Milpitas Transit Center, located at the newly constructed multi modal VTA/BART station in Milpitas, is part of the City of Milpitas Transit Area Specific Plan (TASP). Inspired by VTA's transit investment, the city sponsored plan is designed to put housing, office space, a hotel and retail in an area that's currently industrial land near the newly built Milpitas BART station. This planning effort encourages TOD redevelopment throughout the southern portion of the city. VTA asks that any proposals comply with the existing TASP framework.

Earlier this year VTA held public meetings to engage with neighbors surrounding the proposed development sites to gather feedback on what they'd like to see these developments provide in their neighborhoods. Collective concerns included station area safety, access and traffic. Developers are tasked with responding to these concerns in their proposals.

The RFP's are due this fall. To learn more of the specific property details, review each of the RFP's at <http://www.vta.org/realestate/jointtransitdevelopment>. At the same link you can also find a recent webinar held in May that delves into details of the process and the widespread benefits of Joint & Transit Oriented Development.

handling

in the

SUBMITTED BY
COREY EGEL

The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) is reminding Californians about the importance of safe food handling to prevent foodborne illness while enjoying picnics, barbecues and other outdoor activities during the summer season.

Salmonella, E. coli and Campylobacter are bacteria most commonly recognized for causing foodborne illness in the United States each year. Most of these cases are mild and cause symptoms for only a day or two, but some cases are more serious. However, there are some easy and effective steps you can take to help lessen your chance of contracting a foodborne illness.

"You can protect yourself, your family and your friends from foodborne illness by following simple safety tips for properly preparing and handling food," said CDPH Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith.

Following these four "C's" can prevent foodborne illnesses:

Chill

- Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Bacteria can grow in foods kept in the temperature 'danger zone' (41°F-135°F) / (5 °C-58 °C) for an extended period of time.

- Refrigerate leftovers to less than 41°F / 5 °C as soon as possible, but definitely within two hours.

- Use shallow pans and loosely cover while in the refrigerator to allow warm air to escape and facilitate cooling.

- Select cold foods at the grocery store last and put them away first when you get home to keep them cold.

- Refrigerated foods packaged in hermetically sealed or vacuum packaged containers should always be stored in the refrigerator. Storing these types of vacuum packaged products at room temperature could allow the production of Botulism toxin.

- Follow package instructions, especially when it comes to keeping foods refrigerated.

- Thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator or in a microwave immediately prior to cooking. Never thaw frozen foods on the counter.

Clean:

- Wash your hands with warm, soapy water for at least 20 seconds before and after handling food. Humming 'Happy Birthday' twice while washing hands is a good way to ensure you are washing long enough.

- Scrub cutting boards with hot, soapy water after preparing each item and before moving on to the next food. If your cutting board has deep grooves or cut marks, which make it difficult to clean, consider replacing it.

- Wash and thoroughly rinse utensils and cutting boards with soap and water. Thoroughly cleaning them with a bleach solution (made of one tablespoon of unscented liquid bleach diluted in one gallon of water) will provide effective sanitation action.

- Cover any cuts or skin abrasions on your hands to avoid contaminating the food.

- Keep pets and household chemicals away from food preparation areas.

Prevent Cross Contamination:

- Keep raw and cooked foods separate.

- Use separate cutting boards and knives for chopping ready-to-eat produce and raw meats.

- Never rinse raw poultry because it spreads germs around the kitchen sink, which can serve as a source of contamination for other foods.

- Discard used marinades.

- Use clean utensils and plates to remove cooked foods from grills and pans. Never place cooked foods back into the dish that held the raw or un-cooked foods.

- Separate raw and uncooked meats from ready-to-eat items when shopping at the grocery store. Place raw meats in disposable, plastic bags away from other foods.

- If you use reusable shopping bags for groceries, designate specific bags for meats to avoid cross-contamination. Wash and dry bags as they become soiled.

- Store bags used for groceries at home in a manner which protects them from other sources of contamination such as pets, children, and chemicals.

- Thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator in water-tight containers to prevent juices from leaking onto ready-to-eat and cooked foods.

Cook:

- Use an accurate thermometer to measure the final internal temperature of meat and meat products. Color is an inaccurate way to determine if meat is sufficiently cooked.

- Measure the temperature in the thickest part of the food, ensuring the thermometer does not touch bone or the cooking pan which can give you an inaccurate reading.

- Wash thermometers after each use.

- Wait until foods are completely cooked before taste testing.

- When using a microwave to cook or reheat food, be sure to rotate or stir the food to facilitate thorough heating.

- Additionally, some labels recommend a 'resting time' for the food after cooking before it should be served. Those instructions should be followed in order to allow the heat to evenly distribute.

Visit CDPH for more information (<https://www.cdph.ca.gov/Programs/OPA/Pages/NR18-036.aspx>)

in-person by County staff and will have the opportunity to learn more about additional outreach events for vendors in the near future.

Individuals and companies can also register in both Procure-2-Pay and eRFP systems online to receive notifications of upcoming solicitations and search current solicitations. There are no fees to register, search or participate. Procure-2-Pay Registration Site: www.sccprc.org/P2P; eRFP Registration Site: www.sccprc.org/eRFP.

Arrest made in naked prowler incidents

SUBMITTED BY
GENEVA BOSQUES,
FREMONT PD

A 31-year-old transient was identified and arrested by Fremont Police detectives on Thursday, July 12 in connection with a series of indecent exposure prowling incidents in several Bay Area cities.

The suspect, identified by police as Joseph Iron teeth Angelle, was located after Fremont investigators followed leads to San Jose and then spotted a naked man running from an apartment complex on Roberts Avenue. With assistance from the San Jose Police Department, Angelle was taken into custody and taken to the Fremont Police Department for interviewing. During the interview, police reported that Angelle admitted to committing approximately 25 indecent exposure acts including recent prowling incidents in Fremont, Newark and Pleasanton. Through photographic lineups and a distinct tattoo on his right arm, Angelle was positively identified by several victims. Although Angelle, reportedly works as a local car dealership mechanic, he provided police with a mailing address out of Stockton. He told police that he is currently transient and sleeps inside his vehicle, a 1998 Toyota Tacoma. Angelle was booked into Santa Rita Jail on two counts misdemeanor indecent exposure, one felony count of indecent exposure, one felony count of burglary, one misdemeanor count of lewd conduct in public, and one count of misdemeanor resisting arrest. The cases will be reviewed by the Alameda County District Attorney’s Office. The incidents in Pleasanton and Newark are still under investigation and additional charges could be added later.

Motorist arrested with stolen pistol

SUBMITTED BY SAN LEANDRO PD

During a routine patrol in a restaurant parking lot on Tuesday, July 10 a sharp-eyed San Leandro Police officer spotted a sport utility vehicle making a minor driving infraction and decided to make a traffic stop. The officer’s hunch turned out to be right. While speaking with the driver during the 7 p.m. stop near the In-N-Out restaurant on Hesperian Boulevard, the officer smelled the odor of burning marijuana coming from inside the 2017 GMC Yukon. After other officers arrived on the scene a search of the SUV turned up a loaded 9 mm semi-automatic Sig Sauer pistol with 15 rounds of ammunition near the driver’s seat. Officers also found a box of 9 mm ammunition, containing more than 30 rounds inside, a Glock semi-automatic pistol magazine and marijuana concealed inside of a hidden storage compartment. A computer check on the driver, identified by police as Quentin Guyton, 31, of Oakland, revealed that he was a convicted felon and that the Sig Sauer pistol had been reported stolen to police in another state. Guyton was arrested and placed into police custody at Santa Rita jail in Dublin in lieu of $45,000 bail. The Alameda County District Attorney has formally charged Guyton with several firearm-related offenses. “This arrest is example of how a minor traffic infraction can end in the arrest of a dangerous individual armed with a loaded pistol,” said Lt. Robert McManus. “The officer in this case is responsible for taking a stolen gun off of the street that may have been used in a violent crime, somewhere in one of our Bay Area communities.” Guyton’s court date has been set for Tuesday, July 17.

Many property values rise under new assessment roll

SUBMITTED BY GUY ASHLEY

The Alameda County Assessor's Office recently completed the 2018-2019 local property assessment roll of $300.1 billion, reflecting a $19.9 billion or 7.11 percent increase above last year's assessment roll.

The net local roll, after all legal exemptions were applied, totaled $288.2 billion. The primary reason for this year's assessed value growth is attributed to the recovery in the economy and the increase in real estate values. Properties that were afforded temporary reduced assessments in prior years because of market value declines are now receiving increases in their assessed value due to these market values increases.

These properties are not limited to the annual inflation factor increase which is 1.02 percent this year that is imposed on Proposition 13 base year assessments. Many of these property owners therefore will notice their assessed values have increased by more than 1.02 percent but are still either assessed at the lesser of their indexed base year value or the current market value as of January 1, 2018. The newly completed assessment roll has 7,000 properties still assessed at their January 1, 2018 market value because they were less than their indexed base year value.

Four thousand properties that had received temporary reductions in assessed values last year due to market value declines were restored to their Proposition 13 indexed base year value. The total increase in assessed value of these 11,000 parcels from last year totals $758 million.

Other factors leading to this year's total assessed value growth included the 1.02 percent mandatory inflation index being applied to all properties' assessed values that were not affected by assessment declines in prior years. This factor added $5.1 billion. Sales/transfers of real estate also added $10.8 billion, new construction activity added $1.7 billion, and business personal property assessments increased by $1.5 billion.

The 2018-19 assessment roll accurately reflects assessments of more than 515,000 taxable properties. On July 13 notifications of this year's individual assessments started being mailed to all secured roll Alameda County property owners. If property owners have questions regarding their property assessment, they are encouraged to call the Assessor's Office at (510) 272-3787 (real estate assessments) or (510) 272-3836 (business personal property assessments).

As indicated on these notifications, formal appeals of the 2018-2019 assessed values must be made between July 2 and September 17, 2018, with the Clerk, Board of Supervisors, Assessment Appeals Unit, on their Assessment Appeal Application. The application and instruction booklet can be viewed and printed from their Alameda County webpage at www.acgov.org/clerk/assessment.htm.

Of the 14 cities and unincorporated areas within Alameda County, the City of Oakland remained the highest assessment jurisdiction in the county with a total assessed value of $63.3 billion before exemptions. The City of Fremont continues to have the second highest assessed value of $51.8 billion. The City of Dublin received the highest percentage increase in assessed value from the prior year at 9.6 percent.

Property tax bills for fiscal year 2018-19 will be mailed by the Alameda County Tax Collector in October and will be based upon the Assessor's 2018-19 assessed values. The property taxes derived from the assessment roll generate revenue to support the services provided by Alameda County, its public schools, cities, and special districts, with the largest percentage supporting public education.

Summer road paving project celebration set

SUBMITTED BY ALICE KIM

A groundbreaking event to celebrate several important summertime road and paving repair projects in San Leandro is set for Wednesday, July 18, and the public is invited.

The event starts at noon at Chabot Terrace with Mayor Pauline Russo Cutter and members of the City Council in attendance. The event will follow the City Council’s consideration of approving a series of significant road rehabilitation contracts at their July 16 meeting.

“We are excited about the many projects we are seeing in San Leandro, and the city will continue to work with our partnering agencies at both the local and state levels,” said Cutter. “This year’s repair and maintenance work represents one of the largest annual investments into local roads we’ve ever seen.”

San Leandro’s ability to expand and implement so many paving projects and road repairs is made possible through several important funding sources, including California’s SB1, the Road Repair and Accountability Act of 2017 that invests $54 billion over the next decade to fix roads, freeways, and bridges in communities across the state. Governor Brown signed SB1 in November 2017, with receipt of funding beginning this past February.

San Leandro is using its share of the funding to repair roads and to work with regional partners to implement various other transit and safety projects. San Leandro receives approximately $60,000 per month from this funding that is based on gas tax receipts.

In addition to SB1, the City’s annual street sealing and overlay/rehabilitation programs receive funding from the city’s General Fund, CalRecycle grants, Measure B and Measure BB. Both Measure B and Measure BB (an extension and augmentation of Measure B) funds are derived from an Alameda County transportation sales tax that more than two-thirds of county voters approved in 2014 for transportation improvements. Measure HH is a local sales tax that San Leandro voters also affirmed in 2014, which is providing important supplemental funding towards various projects throughout the City.

- Award contract to United Stormwater, Inc. For $93,092 to install 214 Full Trash Capture Devices (FTCD). Goal of 100% trash reduction in all municipal separate storm sewer systems by July 1, 2022.

Ceremonial Items:

- Resolution to support awarding Chinese American World War II Veterans with the Congressional Gold Medal. Chinese Americans have served in all branches of the United States Army Ground Forces and Air

City Reports:

- Prepare revisions to the Affordable Housing Ordinance to build affordable housing units or pay in-lieu fee for construction of affordable housing units. Some public speakers wanted reduced in-lieu fees. First motion: provide an option for large ownership and rental project developers to pay an in-lieu fee of $27 per square foot. PASSED 4-1 (Nay, Ellis). Second motion: small project developers to pay $24,000 a unit and $8 per square foot for units over 1,000 square foot, passed unanimously.

- Report by Deputy city manager Mark Evanoff on alternative uses for the former Pacific States Steel Corporation site west of 11th street. The site has slag and debris, which would be removed and shipped to a disposal site in Utah. The cost of clearing the site is estimated at $120 million for permits and California Environmental Quality Act approval. Proposed uses include office space and family housing.

California hate crimes jumped in 2017, though rare

BY PAUL ELIAS AND DON THOMPSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reported hate crimes jumped more than 17 percent in California last year compared with 2016, though the incidents remain relatively rare, the state’s attorney general said Monday.

California Attorney General Xavier Becerra and the state’s Department of Justice released the crime rate statistics in one of five crime-related reports made public Monday. The state Department of Justice began releasing annual hate crime figures in 2015.

This year’s report is the first since President Donald Trump took office in January 2017. Critics feared his fiery rhetoric, particularly against Muslims and immigrants, might encourage more harassment.

Anti-Muslim hate crimes remained flat over 2016 and 2017, however. Of the 207 religious hate crimes reported last year, 46 cases involved anti-Muslim bias, the state Department of Justice reported. Of the 171 religious hate crimes reported in 2016, 37 involved anti-Muslim bias.

The department defined hate crimes as those targeting victims because of their race or ethnicity, nationality, religion, sexual orientation, gender or a disability. The department said 1,013 hate crimes were reported in 2017 compared with 982 in 2016. The bulk of the hate crimes involved racial bias, with 602 cases reported last year compared with 519 in 2016. Anti-gay hate crimes rose 3.2 percent to 172 in 2017 from 152 in 2016.

The report comes about a month after state auditors said California is underreporting hate crimes to the FBI, state lawmakers and the public because local law enforcement agencies lack adequate policies and training. Advocates said the lack of an accurate count masks the extent of bias crimes at a time of heightened racial, religious and ethnic tensions.

Auditors found dozens of unreported cases among the four local law enforcement agencies it reviewed. The auditors also said nearly a third of the 245 law enforcement agencies they surveyed do nothing to encourage the public to report hate crimes.

They largely blamed the state Department of Justice for not requiring that local agencies do a better job in collecting data. Becerra, who is running to retain his office overseeing the department, responded then that he was providing more guidance for local law enforcement and creating a hate crimes prevention webpage and brochure on identifying and reporting hate crimes.

Nationally, federal authorities estimate that more than half of all hate crimes aren’t reported to police.

An Associated Press investigation two years ago found that more than 2,700 city police and county sheriff’s departments nationwide had not submitted a single hate crime report for the FBI’s annual crime tally during the previous six years, or about 17 percent of all city and county law enforcement agencies.

The California hate crimes report was one of five crime reports the state’s Department of Justice released Monday. The four others report statistics for homicide, law enforcement “use-of-force” incidents, juvenile arrests and overall crime rates in the state.

The department also reported that police killed 172 civilians last year compared with 157 in 2016 during so-called use-of-force incidents. The department’s report cautioned that it limited those incidents to only when officers shot their guns or people died or were either seriously injured during violent encounters with police.

The report also showed two officers died during these encounters last year compared to eight deaths in 2016. In all, the report concluded that use-of-force incidents dropped last year to 707 from 782 in 2016.

A third report showed violent crime increased 1.5 percent last year compared with 2016 while property crime dropped 2 percent over the same year. Rape and arson surged 11 percent and 7 percent last year compared with 2016.

Homicides remained essentially flat year-to-year. The department reported 4.9 homicides reported per 100,000 people in 2017 compared with 4.6 reports per 100,000 in 2016.

The department’s drug arrest statistics reflected that 2017 was the first year of broad legalization of marijuana in the state after voters passed Proposition 64 and wiped many pot laws from the books.

Marijuana arrests plummeted 74 percent in 2017 compared with 2016, driving a 24 percent drop in felony drug arrests over the same period.

The final report showed 56,249 juvenile arrests reported by law enforcement agencies in 2017, a 10 percent decrease from 62,743 juvenile arrests in 2016.

City of San Leandro names Jeff Kay as new city manager

SUBMITTED BY ALICE KIM

Mayor Pauline Russo Cutter and the San Leandro City Council announced that after a special meeting on July 12 it was reported out that the City Council voted 7-0 to select Jeff Kay as the new City Manager. Kay currently serves as Assistant City Manager for the City.

“The City Council and I are thrilled to appoint Jeff to serve as our next City Manager,” stated Mayor Cutter. “Throughout his time in San Leandro, Jeff has earned the trust of the community, our staff, and the City Council. Jeff approaches public service with integrity, a strong work-ethic, and a community-oriented approach. His institutional knowledge, experience with economic development, and financial acumen make him the ideal candidate to help our community successfully navigate the opportunities and challenges we will face in the coming years.”

“The City Council opted to make this appointment quickly after the departure of the previous City Manager because we are highly confident that we have the right candidate to hit the ground running and continue the important work of the City without interruption. After the events of the past several months, we are eager to move forward and focus on continuing to provide the high level of services that our residents expect.”

“I am honored to have this opportunity and I look forward to continuing to work with the City Council, our talented and dedicated staff, and the community,” stated Kay. “I am exceedingly optimistic about what the future holds for San Leandro and I’m excited to be a part of our shared success.”

Kay has been employed by the City of San Leandro since 2009. He has served as Assistant City Manager since 2016 and previously worked as the City’s Business Development Manager. He has played a key role in the development of the City’s fiber optic network, the craft brewing cluster, a robust public art program, the Community Workforce Agreement, and multiple successful revenue measures. Previously, Kay worked as a Project Manager with Willdan Financial Services where he assisted city and county governments with economic analysis and infrastructure financing.

Kay holds a bachelor’s degree from Vassar College and a master’s degree in City and Regional Planning from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The City Council authorized the Mayor to begin negotiating the terms of an employment contract. A state law, AB 1344, requires that the compensation of executive officers of local agencies be discussed at regularly scheduled meetings of the agencies. Accordingly, the Council will consider and vote upon the contract with Mr. Kay at its first regular meeting after the August recess on Tuesday, September 4, 2018.

EARTHTALK: GREEN-FRIENDLY PET BURIALS

My vet tells me my 18-year-old cat is nearing the end of her life and I’m wondering what my options are for a green-friendly burial?

-- Sandy Monroe, New York, NY

There are some 94 million cats and 89 million dogs living with us as our pets in the United States. Given that these animals come part of our families, it’s hard to let them go when their time comes. And beyond that, it’s hard to know what to do with their remains.

More than two-thirds of us leave our pet’s remains at the vet’s office, which usually ends in communal cremation. But the process of cremation leads to the release of vaporized mercury, dioxins and furans—noxious air pollutants that spread for miles around—not to mention greenhouse gases.

One eco-friendly alternative to cremation is aquamation (otherwise known as alkaline hydrolysis) which entails accelerating the decomposition process by applying a combination of gentle water flow, temperature, and alkalinity.

“At the end of the process, the body has been returned to its natural form in water,” reports Colorado-based Guardian Pet Aquamation. “Similar to cremation, the only solid remains are the mineral ash of the bones.” The end result is a sterile, EPA-neutral liquid solution of amino acids, peptides, and sugars that can be released onto the earth guilt-free.

Many of us just bury our deceased pets in our backyards, which is a perfectly good way to go if staying true to your environmental ideals is a factor, given that the body can decompose naturally over time in the soil and at least in theory contribute to soil health and plant growth.

You can help move the process along by burying your pet in one of The Forever Spot’s shrouds or beds which contain a “bio-mix” of mushrooms and other microorganisms that aid in decomposition, neutralize toxins and transfer nutrients to plant life. They come in a range of sizes accommodating anything from a small hamster to a large dog.

If you don’t have a backyard that works, maybe an eco-friendly pet cemetery -- where pets are interred in biodegradable caskets or shrouds and landscaping is done without synthetic chemicals -- is a good option. The non-profit Green Pet-Burial Society lists several around the U.S. on its website, including Deceased Pet Care in Atlanta, Georgia; Ridgeview Memorial Gardens in Grandville, Michigan; Angel’s Rest in Kanab, Utah; La Puerta Natural Burial Pet Cemetery in Albuquerque, New Mexico; Carolina Memorial Sanctuary in Mills River, NC; and Greenhaven Preserve in Eastover, SC. Many of these facilities are starting to offer aquamation as an alternative to cremation as well. Yet another option would be finding an eco-friendly human cemetery that allows pet remains to be buried in family plots.

Meanwhile, if you dream of releasing your pet’s remains into a grand natural setting that you can go visit and commune with nature, Better Place Forests lets families spread human and pet remains under a reserved memorial tree in a 20-acre Redwood forest along California’s stunning Mendocino Coast.

July is Parks and Recreation Month

Last month, the Fremont City Council declared July as Parks and Recreation Month in the City of Fremont, to inform residents about the vital role that parks and recreation services play in establishing and maintaining the quality of life in our community. This designation also encourages citizens to participate in parks and recreation programs during the month of July and all year long.

In Fremont, the responsibilities of a traditional parks and recreation department fall under the Community Services Department and include Landscape Architecture, Park Maintenance, Environmental Services, and Recreation Services.

Fremont's borders contain over 60 parks, translating to 1,215 acres of park land that the Park Maintenance staff preserve for the enjoyment of residents and to improve the overall environmental health of Fremont. These natural recreation areas improve water quality, protect groundwater, prevent flooding, improve air quality, and produce habitats for wildlife.

The Landscape Architecture staff design and manage construction of parks, public plazas, and street medians, and oversee the Citywide Tree Beautification Program, to provide appealing and long-lasting spaces for residents in which to exercise, play, and gather.

While many don't associate waste management and recycling services with parks and recreation, the Environmental Services division provides over 30 critical garbage, recycling, and storm water programs for Fremont's residents and businesses. These public services are fundamental to keep our community healthy and functioning every day.

Finally, Recreation Services operates several facilities and organizes activities for the entertainment and emotional wellbeing of Fremont residents. Managing Aqua Adventure Waterpark, the skate park, a sports complex, Fremont Park Golf Club, Olive Hyde Art Gallery, and more, Recreation Services makes sure there is plenty for families to do in Fremont. These facilities and other programs are important factors that build a healthy, active community that also promotes mental and emotional health.

Make sure you get outdoors this month to enjoy all of the natural landscapes, fun facilities, and community-building events that Fremont has to offer, and don't forget to thank the staff that makes it all possible.

For more information on each of the above divisions, please visit the Fremont Community Services webpage at www.Fremont.gov/CommunityServices.

Fremont Rent Review Ordinance

The recently established Rent Review Ordinance provides a review process for rent increases. The ordinance covers all residential rental units in Fremont, including single family homes and condominiums with a few exceptions. While the rent review process is non-binding, the City believes that the rent review process will contribute to fair and equitable resolutions for both parties by providing a neutral setting for discussion.

It has been six months since the Rent Review Ordinance became effective. City staff provided a midyear report to update the Fremont City Council and the public on the status of the Rent Review Ordinance implementation and operation since its inception in January 2018. The complete midyear report can be found online at www.Fremont.gov/RentReviewMidYearReport.

For information about the Rent Review Ordinance, including information on how to initiate the process and upcoming community outreach events, visit www.Fremont.gov/RentReview, call (510) 733-4945, or send an email to rentreview@fremont.gov.

50-50 Sidewalk Program Funds Repairs

Last year, the Fremont City Council authorized limited funding for its 50-50 Sidewalk Program, which helps local property owners repair sidewalks damaged by street trees. Funds are available on a first-come, first-served basis. If interested, residents can visit www.Fremont.gov/Sidewalks, fill out a Sidewalk Repair Request, and attach an image of their sidewalk in need of repair.

Additionally, if fixing the sidewalk involves pruning or removing a tree, the City of Fremont also has a 50-50 Tree Program for replacing eligible street trees. Those interested can apply for a tree permit at no cost at www.Fremont.gov/TreePermitApplication.

For additional information on the 50-50 Sidewalk Program, visit www.Fremont.gov/5050Sidewalk. For information on the 50-50 Street Tree Program, visit www.Fremont.gov/5050Tree.

Movies under the Stars

The City of Fremont Recreation Services Division presents Summer Movies in the Park: 'Coco' on Friday, July 27, and 'Ferdinand' on Friday, August 17. The movies will be shown after sunset at Central Park's Performance Pavilion. Both events are free. Grab some blankets, low beach chairs, a picnic dinner. Sit back and enjoy two great flicks with family and friends this summer! For more details, visit www.Fremont.gov/MovieNight.

A's Neighborhood Days

SUBMITTED BY
KIM HUGGETT

The Oakland Athletics, the Hayward Chamber of Commerce, and the Hayward

Rotary Club are teaming up to participate in A's Neighborhood Day at the Oakland Coliseum on Aug. 18. On that day there will be a special pre-game tailgate and food truck party and a T-shirt giveaway before the 1:05 p.m. game against last year's World Series champion Houston Astros.

Five dollars from the sale of every ticket will go toward The Dictionary Project of the Hayward Rotary Club, that provides thousands of dictionaries annually to Hayward school children. Studies show that children who have access to printed books in the home at an early age achieve markedly higher literacy rates in later stages of development. The Hayward Rotary Club has given every Hayward third grader a full color illustrated dictionary every year for the past 15 years. That's more than 30,000 dictionaries and over $300,000 invested in Hayward students.

Tickets are priced at $22 per ticket for Plaza Level and $32 for Field Level. Order tickets at athletics.com/hayward. The chamber that sells the most tickets will have its total matched by the A's Community Fund. Both the A's and the Hayward Rotary Club are members of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce.

BY DOUG CORDELL

"My grandfather was an environmentalist," said Frank Imhof. "... he just wouldn't have thought to put it that way."

Like both his grandfathers and his father, Imhof is a rancher, a cattleman. Now he's training his son, Frank Jr.—better known as Frankie—to take over the business. But it's a challenge in the densely populated San Francisco Bay Area, where grazing lands for cattle have been squeezed out by sprawling development. That's why the partnership between the Imhofs and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) is so important. Through a public-private agreement, the ranchers graze their cattle on a 719-acre vernal pool grassland at the Warm Springs unit of the Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge in Fremont, California.

With this pact, they're keeping alive a ranching and land stewardship heritage spanning four generations. The grazing, in turn, offers a host of benefits for endangered species at the seasonal pond. "Keeping the grass short controls non-native grasses and increases germination for native vernal pool plants like the endangered Contra Costa goldfield," said wildlife refuge specialist Ivette Loredo, who manages the Warm Springs unit for the Service.

The refuge maintains several small, ungrazed "exclosures" — areas where cattle are not allowed — as a yardstick for comparison with the grazed area. Loredo often leads tours of the site, using the exclosures as a teaching tool. Inside the small, fenced-off areas, non-native grasses grow in thick clusters as high as three feet, choking out native plants. It's a dramatic contrast to the flourishing Contra Costa goldfields and other colorful flowers on the surrounding land, where, rain allowing, vernal pools form seasonally.

The grazing arrangement between the Imhofs and the Service dates back to 2004, when it started with just 25 cows. Now, ranchers rotate groups from about 100 cattle among 10 fenced fields. Imhof senior raises the cattle to sell for beef. His son does selective breeding to raise certain cattle for shows. The Service determines market rate for grazing fees and uses that figure to calculate the amount of other in-kind work the ranchers have to do to cover it. That work can include construction of exclosure sites and help with restoration—projects that offer a learning experience for the ranchers, as well.

It's clear, watching them on the land, that they take their work to heart. "We try to maintain good cow practices," the younger Imhof said. "The main thing is talking to the cows, not yelling at them. Every time we move them, we want them to have a good experience." The rotation is guided by a spreadsheet with targets for grazing in each field. "We're also looking at the nutritional value for the cows," he added. "If we think they're getting too fat, or not fat enough, we'll move them."

Grazing also benefits other wildlife. For endangered vernal pool tadpole shrimp and threatened California tiger salamanders, it reduces non-native grasses that suck up water and shorten the seasonal lifespan of pool breeding habitats. For burrowing owls, a species of special concern in the state of California, and ground squirrels, which dig burrows used by the owls and salamanders, grazing helps them detect predators like foxes and hawks.

A bonus for the refuge is having the ranchers' eyes and ears at the site every day. "These guys are constantly telling us when they spot owls in the fields, when maintenance needs to be done, or if they see trespassers," Loredo said. That kind of information is crucial for a refuge staff stretched thin in managing more than 30,000 acres. So is the knowledge the ranchers bring from their years of history with the land.

"I was out here irrigating when I was 16, and I'm 57 now," said the elder Imhof. "My grandfather had dairy cows in the hills here in 1929." A connection to the land is a living tradition in the Imhof family. Both of the senior Imhof's sons and his daughter were in Future Farmers of America and the 4-H. "A lot of people in this area now don't even know about the history with ranching here," his son pointed out. "They're amazed when I tell them we do cattle grazing in Fremont." His father added: "Without what the Service is doing here, this would have all been developed. And this will still be here in 50 years."

The Imhofs believe that their grazing partnership with the refuge offers useful lessons for conservationists, school groups and others who tour the site. "It's showing people that what we do out here with grazing cattle doesn't harm the environment," said the elder Imhof. In fact, as his son noted, it's helping. "What better way are you going to have to pick these seeds up, fertilize them and spread them out?" said the younger Imhof.

The benefits cascade to the goldfields, the owls and even the salamanders. They agree that the collaborative effort is working well. "We're very fortunate to be here, and Ivette has worked with us a lot," Frankie said. "She understands how our operation works."

"She taught me a lot," Frank Sr. offered, as Loredo stood alongside, smiling, "and I taught her a lot."
