Feeling Breathless?
You're Not Alone!

Wildfire Smoke
Exacerbates
Poor Air Quality

Persistent hacking cough, tightness in the chest, or a runny nose; do these symptoms sound familiar? If you've been experiencing any of these, you're not alone. This past summer, air quality in the Bay Area was exceptionally poor due to the many wildfires that swept through Northern California, causing widespread respiratory problems. That's in addition to the usual poor air quality culprits that thrive or increase in high temperatures, such as dust mites, vehicle emissions and other environmental pollutants.

Jason Chu, MD, a board-certified pulmonologist and internal medicine physician with the Washington Township Medical Foundation explains that poor air quality can have short-term and long-term effects on a person's ability to breathe, such as accelerated aging of the lungs, loss of lung capacity and decreased lung function, which can lead to a shortened lifespan. "Air pollution has been linked to increased morbidity and mortality, in particular from respiratory and cardiovascular illnesses," he observes.

The destructive combination of heat, wildfire smoke and pollutants has exacerbated conditions for those most at risk, including individuals who suffer from asthma, allergies, emphysema, bronchitis, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD)—even cardiopulmonary disease and congestive heart failure. Also at risk are older adults, children under 14, pregnant women, outdoor workers, firefighters, outdoor athletes and those living close to freeways.

Dr. Jason Chu assesses lung sounds in the Washington Hospital Pulmonary Rehab Department.

Prolonged exposure to pollutants and bronchial irritants may occur not only in the outdoor environment at large, but also within certain working environments—even within the home. "The warming of the climate is definite. On a world-wide level, pollution is linked to the buildup of carbon dioxide, leading to climate changes and a multitude of human adverse outcomes," says Dr. Chu. "Rising global temperatures could lengthen pollen seasons, thus increasing incidences of allergies, as well as worsening asthma and COPD."

Within the home, gases from stoves and heaters, dust mites, cleaning solvents and mold all contribute to an increase in the incidence of asthma in adults and children. And, particles from dust and other elements due to home remodeling, contaminated work clothing and living near industrial plants can also cause respiratory problems. Externally, air pollutants such as sulphur dioxide, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide are associated with adverse effects on lung development in children.

The length and amount of exposure to any adverse environmental factors often correlates to the severity of the problem. "Studies have shown bronchial reactivity (trouble breathing) is three times higher among those with the greatest amount and duration of exposure to environmental hazards," says Dr. Chu.

Increases in adverse respiratory events often lead to an uptick in visits to emergency rooms, primary care doctors, pediatricians and other medical specialists. "It's imperative for physicians to recognize patterns associated with environmental exposures, as well as to complete a thorough assessment of a patient's environmental exposures and history in order to effectively treat respiratory problems and help prevent future repercussions," says Dr. Chu. "We (in the medical community) must be champions of promoting environmental health."

How can you reduce your risk of adverse respiratory events? First, you can find a daily quality forecast by calling 1-800-HELP-AIR or use a smartphone app called "State of the Air." Other helpful websites are www.airnow.gov and www.cdc.gov/climateandhealth.

When air quality is unhealthy, you should limit outdoor activity during commute hours, exercise in the early morning or late evening, and if you have air conditioning, run it on particularly hot days. If you must be outdoors, Dr. Chu notes, consider using an N95 mask, which protects you from breathing in small particles in the air such as dust and mold.

If you have trouble breathing, contact your doctor immediately Dr. Chu advises. Those with asthma can also be proactive by using a peak flow meter (a hand-held instrument used to measure how well air moves out of your lungs) to monitor their condition.

Be especially vigilant when the Bay Area Air Quality Management District issues a Spare the Air Day alert. In addition to staying inside whenever possible during an alert, you also can help reduce air pollution—and aid your respiratory health—by taking steps such as rethinking your commute and avoiding driving alone, choosing electric lawn and garden equipment over gas-powered equipment, and not using lighter fluid on barbecues.

Fremont Symphony Orchestra's (FSO) 2018-19 season will open with "Bravo Broadway" October 21 under the baton of FSO's new Artistic Advisor and Conductor Jung-Ho Pak. No need to fly to Manhattan, two of Broadway's favorite stars are saving you the trouble and coming to you. Hugh Panaro, known for his long running title role in "The Phantom of the Opera," and California native Alli Mauzey, fresh from her role as Glenda the Good Witch in "Wicked," are flying to Fremont to perform in the season opener for FSO. At the Sunday, October 21 concert, expect to hear many of your Broadway favorites from "Les Misérables," "Cats," "The Phantom of the Opera" and the music of Rogers and Hammerstein.

This season marks the start of something new as the symphony moves to a new home at the James Logan Center for the Performing Arts and takes on the vision of its new Artistic Advisor. Pak has teamed up with Fremont Symphony Executive Director Paul Iannacone to recreate the symphonic experience for Bay Area residents. "My mission is to present an orchestra that dares the impossible. I want them to play with a sense of humanity. Every conductor hungers for that," said Pak. These men are bent on sweeping away the dozy image of the age-old symphony. Instead, this season has been created around artistic experiences. "It's time to revolutionize the symphonic experience. I want to go for the brass ring; to create something that has never existed before!" said Pak.

Season tickets are on sale for the entire four-concert season. After the October opening of "Bravo Broadway," get ready for "Holiday Pops!" on December 16. This Fremont holiday event will feature guest conductor Jason Klein, leading choir and orchestra together in festive song. The March 31 concert, "Love Notes," will be a return to the traditional, full symphonic experience, with three beautiful love story-themed pieces. Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" will be paired with Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story," followed by the love theme from "Somewhere in Time." The season will finish on July 14 with "Symphonic Sinatra." Sinatra impersonator Bryan Duprey will appear with the Fremont Symphony, performing all of Sinatra's greatest hits.

New exhibition explores our dynamic and expanding place in the universe

SUBMITTED BY CHABOT

SPACE & SCIENCE CENTER

Chabot Space & Science Center presents a new exhibition, "Going the Distance: Our Reach into Space," opening Saturday, October 6, in the Clorox Exhibit Hall on center's 2nd level. Curated by Chabot staff with inspiration and expertise from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), NASA Ames Research Center, SpaceX and SatNOGS (satellite ground station and network) from Libre Space Foundation, the exhibition explores how humans are expanding our boundaries by moving farther into the Universe than ever before. The exhibition will frame large questions: why we go, how we get there, what we do there, and why this impacts us as humans. Highlights of the exhibition include an interactive mission control area, Mars rover driving challenge, a hands-on engineering/building area and more.

"Space is a lot closer than you think," says Chabot Executive Director Adam Tobin. "We are in the midst of an extraordinary renaissance of space exploration. Each and every day, our rapidly expanding reach into space brings exciting discoveries that deepen our understanding, inspire us with endless possibilities, and push the boundaries of our imagination. We are forever changing our understanding of our place in the cosmos.

"Our mission at Chabot is to inspire our youth about the wonders of our universe. This brand-new exhibition is a big step forward as we hopefully demonstrate the promise and opportunity for all of us – and I do mean all of us, from every background – to take part in this great adventure. My hope is that any kid who visits this exhibition will dare to dream of one day going to the stars. Because it's entirely possible, no matter where that kid comes from, that he or she will do just that."

Founded as an observatory in 1883, today Chabot offers visitors the very latest in hands-on, interactive exhibits, displays and Planetarium shows. Combined with a full program of activity-filled classes, workshops, outreach programs and special events, Chabot Space & Science Center is the Bay Area's go-to destination for visitors of all ages who want to discover and learn about science. Chabot is also home to three magnificent telescopes, including the largest on the West Coast, open weekly to the public. Here visitors of all ages can experience for themselves the wonders of the cosmos as they gaze through the telescopes at distant stars and planets.

The "Going the Distance" exhibit is included in regular admission to the center. For more information, visit Chabot's new website at www.chabotspace.org.

Go behind the scenes at Manufacturing Day

BY FRANK ADDIEGO

Factories and other manufacturing concerns will open their doors to the public for the annual “Manufacturing Day” on Friday, October 5. Numerous businesses throughout Alameda County will be participating in the event, allowing students and community members to observe what goes on at factories dotting our landscape.

Random House Dictionary describes manufacturing as “the making of goods or wares by manual labor or by machinery, especially on a large scale.” The United States currently has the world’s second largest manufacturing output behind China, making the manufacturing industry a vital component in our economy; the field employs approximately 12.56 million Americans. For years, the threat of outsourcing manufacturing jobs to foreign countries has been an issue of concern for many Americans as many nations abroad have lower minimum wages and fewer regulations, lessening the financial burden for manufacturers and their clients.

According to the event website, “Manufacturing Day is a celebration of modern manufacturing meant to inspire the next generation of manufacturers.” Since the first Manufacturing Day in 2011, thousands of factories have held tours throughout the country for members of the public. Last year, the nation’s industries held more than 2,900 events. Participants have included General Motors, Boeing, Yamaha, and Kawasaki.

Several businesses within Alameda County will open their doors on October 5, many with locations in Fremont, San Leandro and Union City, including ALOM; AnaSpec; Bay Area Circuits; ElringKlinger Silicon Valley; Evolve Manufacturing Technologies, Inc.; General Foundry Service; Halus Power Systems; Littlefuse, Inc.; Mizuho OSI; Rapid Displays; Scandic Springs, Inc.; South Bay Solutions of Fremont; and United Mechanical and Metal Fabricators, Inc.

Events will include tours of various facilities and more. “We will have a short presentation about our company and how we contribute to the local and global economy and environment and an introduction to what and how we produce in this plant, followed by a full tour of our facility and a little something to take away as a remembrance,” said Diane Bryan of ElringKlinger, an auto parts manufacturer, based in Dettingen an der Erms, Germany, with a facility in Fremont. “Though we are a global company that has been in business since 1879,” she said, “we are a fairly new start-up in this area. We have been in the building preparing for our contribution to bringing back manufacturing to the area since the beginning of 2017 but have been producing for just over a year in this location.”

ALOM, a company with a facility in the Warm Springs section of Fremont specializing in what it describes as “supply chain management,” will offer five 30-minute tours between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. ALOM spokesman Paul Hendrycks described his company as a “manufacturer combined with a mini-Amazon combined with a mini-UPS.” Hendrycks hopes that Manufacturing Day will open the public’s eyes about what a supply chain company does, which involves filling the needs of businesses who outsource operations to them. As their website says, “we are our customers’ best kept supply chain secret—and that’s totally okay with us.”

Some events are being held exclusively for smaller student groups. Bay Area Circuits, another recent addition to Fremont’s landscape, will be holding a tour for students of Ohlone College professor Rose-Margaret Itua’s course on engineering in order to raise awareness of their industry. “Our tour consists of an overview of the printed circuit board industry before we tour the facility and demonstrate some of our most advanced, critical processes,” said spokesman Bryan Paper. “We’ve found this event to be a great opportunity to expose a younger generation to manufacturing as a viable and prosperous career path.”

SEC seeks to oust Tesla CEO Elon Musk over go-private tweet

By TOM KRISHER AND ALEXANDRA OLSON
AP BUSINESS WRITERS

U.S. securities regulators are asking a federal court to oust Tesla Inc.'s Elon Musk as chairman and CEO, alleging in a complaint that he committed securities fraud with false statements about plans to take the company private.

The Securities and Exchange Commission says in the complaint filed Thursday that Musk falsely claimed in an Aug. 7 statement on Twitter that funding was secured to go private at $420 per share, a substantial premium over the price at the time.

The complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan says that Musk had not discussed or confirmed key deal terms including price with any funding source. It also asks for an order enjoining Musk from making false and misleading statements along with repayment of any gains as well as civil penalties.

"Corporate officers hold positions of trust in our markets and have important responsibilities to shareholders," Steven Peikin, co-director of the SEC's Enforcement Division, said in a statement. "An officer's celebrity status or reputation as a technological innovator does not give license to take those responsibilities lightly."

An SEC press release says the agency asked the court for a "bar prohibiting Musk from serving as an officer or director of a public company."

Musk, in a statement issued by Tesla, called the SEC action unjustified. "I have always taken action in the best interests of truth, transparency and investors. Integrity is the most important value in my life and the facts will show I never compromised this in any way," the statement said.

The complaint alleges that Musk's tweet harmed investors who bought Tesla stock after the tweet but before accurate information about the funding was made public.

Ousting Musk, who has a huge celebrity status with more than 22 million Twitter followers, would be difficult and could damage the company. He's viewed by many shareholders as the leader and brains behind Tesla's electric car and solar panel operations.

Peter Henning, a law professor at Wayne State University and a former SEC lawyer, said Musk is among the highest-profile CEOs in recent memory that the commission has gone after with this stiff of a penalty threat.

"You've got one of the iconic CEOs of the day who is being threatened with removal from office. They can't strip of him of his shares but they can keep him out of the C-suite," Henning said.

Joseph Grundfest, a professor at Stanford Law School and former SEC commissioner, said Musk will likely want to settle before trial so that he could conceivably stay on as CEO, with some constraints such as prohibiting him from making public statements without supervision. But Musk also could agree to step down as CEO and instead take another title, such as chief production officer.

"One possibility could be to appoint someone as a monitor over all of his communications. He wouldn't be able to tweet or post anything directly without the approval of a chaperone," Grundfest said. "He is not going to be able to remain as CEO with no conditions. That is not on the table."

Grundfest also said that the challenge for the SEC is to "appropriately discipline Musk while not harming Tesla's shareholders."

According to the complaint, Musk met with representatives of a sovereign investment fund for 30 to 45 minutes on July 31 at Tesla's Fremont, Calif., factory. Tesla has identified the fund as Saudi Arabia's Public Investment Fund, which owns almost 5 percent of the company.

Fund representatives expressed interest in taking Tesla private and asked about building a factory in the Middle East, Musk told the SEC. But at the meeting, there was no discussion of a dollar amount or ownership stake for the fund, nor was there discussion of a premium to be paid to Tesla shareholders, the complaint said. Musk told the SEC that the lead representative of the fund told him he would be fine with reasonable terms for a go-private deal.

"Musk acknowledged that no specific deal terms had been established at the meeting and there was no discussion of what would or would not be considered reasonable. Nothing was exchanged in writing," the complaint stated.

The SEC alleged in the 23-page complaint that Musk made the statements using his mobile phone in the middle of a trading day. That day, Tesla shares closed up 11 percent from the previous day. Musk has said that he posted the go-private tweet while driving to the airport and that no one reviewed it.

The statements, the complaint said "were premised on a long series of baseless assumptions and were contrary to facts that Musk knew." Later in the month, Tesla announced that the go-private plan had been scrapped.

Shares of Tesla plunged nearly 13 percent to $267.99 in after-hours trading after falling just under 1 percent during regular trading hours Thursday.

In its complaint, the SEC said that Musk's statements hurt short sellers, investors who borrow a company's stock betting that it will fall. Then they buy the shares back at a lower price and return them to the lenders, pocketing the profit.

In August, more than $13 billion worth of Tesla shares were being "shorted" by investors, the complaint said, as the stock was under pressure due to questions about Tesla's finances and Musk's erratic behavior.

Mark Spiegel, a short-seller and constant Musk critic, applauded the SEC for pursuing what he predicted would be easy for the government to prove.

"Musk has a long history of easily proven lies," Spiegel said. "This is just the first one that he is being held accountable for."

Spiegel also echoed the concerns of corporate governance experts who have lambasted Tesla's board for being too beholden to a CEO that they are supposed to oversee.

"They should have fired him a long time ago. Will they now? I don't know," Spiegel said.

A message was left Thursday evening for lead director Antonio Gracias.

Musk also failed to notify the Nasdaq stock exchange, on which Tesla shares are traded, before releasing the go-private tweet. Nasdaq rules require notification of plans to release "material information" at least 10 minutes before the release, according to the SEC complaint. The tweet forced Nasdaq to suspend trading of Tesla shares Aug. 7 for about 90 minutes.

China reaches out to US over demand for media registration

By CHRISTOPHER BODEEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

China has reached out to the U.S. over reports that the Department of Justice has ordered two top Chinese state-run news outlets to register as foreign agents, a spokesman said Wednesday, adding that Beijing opposed "politicizing" the role of the media.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Geng Shuang said that Beijing had "contacted and communicated" with the U.S. side over the issue, but gave no details.

"Media serve as an important bridge and link to help the people from different countries to better understand and communicate with each other," Geng told reporters at a daily briefing. "We should provide convenience for media's normal works instead of posing obstacles, still less politicizing their role."

The Wall Street Journal said Tuesday that the Xinhua News Agency and CGTN, the international arm of state broadcaster CCTV, had been told in recent weeks to register as foreign agents amid growing scrutiny of efforts by overseas media organizations to influence U.S. public opinion. The demand was also reported by Bloomberg News.

Registering with the Foreign Agents Registration Act, or FARA, would put Xinhua and CGTN in the same legal category as lobbyists working for overseas entities and could cause them to lose their congressional press credentials, as happened to the U.S. affiliate of Russia's state-run RT television network, the Journal reported.

The U.S. broadcaster for Russia's government-controlled Sputnik Radio also registered under FARA. Both Russian outlets had been accused by U.S. intelligence of being part of a Moscow-led effort to interfere in the 2016 presidential election.

Following that, in January a letter from a bipartisan group of senators including Marco Rubio and Patrick Leahy called on the Justice Department to provide information on state-run Chinese media operating in the U.S., including Xinhua, which is directly under the control of the State Council, China's Cabinet, and exists to produce news reports, distribute propaganda and collect intelligence.

The letter cited a report from the National Endowment for Democracy, saying both China and Russia exploit a "glaring asymmetry" by raising "barriers to external political and cultural influence at home while simultaneously taking advantage of the openness of democratic systems abroad."

"A sensible step for the United States government to take is appropriately enforcing existing laws, such as FARA, designed to protect against just such concerns," the letter said.

Chinese media is almost entirely state-run and heavily censored, while the country maintains strict limits on the presence and ability of foreign outlets to report and travel in the country.

Another state outlet, China Daily, has registered under FARA through its U.S. distribution company. The newspaper has been aggressively seeking to boost its presence in the U.S. through newsstand sales and inserts in the Washington Post and other American newspapers. CGTN and other Chinese news organizations have also been rapidly expanding their foreign presences.

Spokesmen for Xinhua and CGTN could not immediately be contacted for comment.

Feds investigate allegations of discrimination at Yale

By COLLIN BINKLEY, ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Trump administration is opening an investigation into Yale University's admissions practices following accusations that it discriminates against Asian-American applicants, officials said Wednesday.

It's the latest in a series of federal inquiries taking aim at admissions practices used by the nation's most selective colleges, and it comes less than a month after the Justice Department sided with an Asian American group that's suing Harvard University over similar accusations.

The Yale investigation responds to a 2016 complaint from the New Jersey-based Asian American Coalition for Education. In it, the group accuses Yale, Brown University and Dartmouth College of unfairly denying Asian Americans admission based on their race.

Education Department officials dismissed the complaints against Brown and Dartmouth but said they had enough information to investigate at Yale. In a letter to the coalition Wednesday, they showed special interest in "a particular Asian American applicant's experience applying to Yale."

The coalition's complaint notes that the percentage of Asian Americans at Yale and other Ivy League schools has declined even as they make up a growing share of the U.S. population. It says the decline has been fueled by negative stereotypes and that schools apply tougher admissions standards for Asian Americans.

The Education Department said it doesn't comment on ongoing investigations. The Justice Department declined to comment on the Yale case but said it "takes extremely seriously any potential violation of an individual's constitutional rights."

Yale President Peter Salovey strongly denied the accusations, saying the school's admission process considers "the whole person" and has created "a vibrant and varied academic community."

"This investigation takes place in the context of legal challenges at other universities aimed at overturning Supreme Court precedent permitting the consideration of race in college admissions," Salovey said, adding that he will affirm Yale's "unwavering commitment to diversity."

The investigation at Yale was reported first by The Wall Street Journal.

Yukong Zhao, president of the coalition, said he's glad the Trump administration is taking "concrete action" to provide equal treatment for Asian American students.

The group was formed in 2014 to take action against Ivy League admission practices that the group says work against Asian Americans. It also filed a 2015 federal complaint against Harvard that the Justice Department took up last year and is still investigating.

A separate group, Students for Fair Admissions, sued Harvard in 2014 over claims that it is tougher on Asian American applicants and consistently gives them lower scores in categories that rate their personal characteristics. The case is scheduled to go to trial in October.

On Aug. 30, the Justice Department issued a "statement of interest" in the Harvard case, supporting the group behind the suit and accusing Harvard of "engaging in outright racial balancing."

In a response filed Wednesday, Harvard said the department's analysis was "flawed" and called it a "thinly veiled attack" on past Supreme Court decisions allowing schools to consider race in applications.

Many universities defend approaches that consider an applicant's race among other factors as a way to bring a diverse mix of perspectives to campus, and the Supreme Court narrowly upheld the practice in a 2016 ruling.

But the Trump administration's interest in the topic has revived the debate over race in admissions. Responding to news of the Yale investigation, some conservative groups renewed their calls to remove race from admissions.

"It is time for Harvard and other top schools that consider race and ethnicity in the name of 'diversity' to stop what they are doing," said Mike Gonzalez, a senior fellow at the conservative Heritage Foundation in Washington. "This is 2018 and the government should follow a color-blind approach."

But others say courts have long given schools the freedom to assemble their student bodies as they choose. Peter McDonough, general counsel for the American Council on Education, which represents 1,800 college and university presidents, said the debate goes beyond admissions practices.

"This is really about institutional autonomy," he said. "One of the things that has made our higher education system in America the envy of the world is that it's so diverse. And concepts of freedoms and academic freedoms aren't to be taken lightly."

Business ‘meet and greet’ draws a crowd

SUBMITTED BY
VALERIE BOYLE, NEWARK
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Business Mixers are a popular and effective way to bring clients and prospective customers into host facilities of businesses and organizations to share their mission, goals, services, and products. Close to 100 business guests were welcomed to a Newark Chamber Meet and Greet Mixer on September 25, hosted by the Salvation Army Tri-Cities Corps and co-hosted by Jack’s Restaurant & Bar, Aloft Silicon Valley, and Mumbai Chowk Indian Restaurant. The Salvation Army was able to tell their story and kick off their Holiday Giving campaign, with strong support from local businesses who donated prizes to raise funds that evening. Co-hosts were able to show off their catering expertise. The Chamber was able to highlight upcoming events including the annual business awards luncheon, “Celebration of Business” on November 8 and National Manufacturing Day on October 5. The City and Chamber are part of a 25-city campaign to build awareness of the economic impact of modern manufacturing in the Bay Area. It may be surprising to learn that there are 88 manufacturers in Newark. Good career opportunities in modern manufacturing are available, showcased by career stories of individual employees. For example, Elaina ten Bosch of Newark’s biotech manufacturer ATUM is one of the career success stories representing Newark manufacturing. You can read about Elaina at <http://bayareamfg.org/mfg-day/>. CCO Claes Gufstafsson noted that ATUM is participating in Manufacturing Day. Thanks go to event hosts, Chamber volunteers, guests from a cross-section of industries and local dignitaries including Newark Mayor Al Nagy, Newark Councilmembers Mike Hannon and Luis Freitas and Fremont Mayor Lily Mei.

California doctors to reveal probation status under new law

BY SOPHIA BOLLAG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

California doctors will soon have to tell patients if they are on probation for sexual misconduct or other wrongdoing under a new law. Gov. Jerry Brown announced he signed the first-in-the-nation legislation Wednesday. Patients can already find information online about which doctors are on probation if they know where to look. But the new law will force doctors to tell patients their probation status and basic details of the terms of their probation. It will apply to doctors placed on probation after July 1, 2019, for wrongdoing causing patient harm, including sexual misconduct, drug abuse, criminal convictions and inappropriate prescribing. “It’s never made sense that doctors have had to tell their insurance companies, hospitals and clinics when they are put on probation, but not the people who are most at risk – their patients,” Consumer Attorneys of California President Lee Harris said in a statement. “Californians have a right to know if their doctor is on probation for serious misconduct.” Olympians including gymnast Jordyn Wieber campaigned for the bill in the wake of the sentencing of former USA Gymnastics team doctor Larry Nassar. Nassar has admitted to sexually abusing women and girls under the guise of medical treatment. The former sports doctor – who worked for Michigan State University and USA Gymnastics, the organization responsible for training Olympians – has been sentenced to decades in prison. Previous versions of the bill failed in the Legislature the past two years. The measure’s author, Democratic state Sen. Jerry Hill of San Mateo, credited the (hash)MeToo movement against sexual harassment with helping his bill gain traction this year. Hill and other supporters say the law will help protect women from being abused by doctors. Some doctors groups opposed the bill, arguing it would be unfair and overly burdensome on doctors’ time.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: OCTOBER 3 - OCTOBER 9, 2018

For All Signs: Venus, goddess of love, turns retrograde on October 5, 2018. This event occurs approximately every 18 or 19 months. She remains retrograde until November 17, 2018. During her ebb periods we reflect on our personal needs with respect to partnerships. Meanwhile it is common for ongoing relationships to shift into neutral or even a temporary reversal. The universal message is to think carefully about who you are before making a promise of commitment. For those already pledged, it is a time to go within oneself and discover the qualities needed to improve upon the existing relationship. From the global point of view, these periods often mark times when treaties or agreements between nations are violated or negotiations break down between countries. To understand how Venus retrograding may affect you, see the following paragraphs for both your sun sign and ascendant.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): Whatever is occurring in your life at this time is clearly intense and emotion-laden. You may feel as though your very life depends upon making your point of view heard and acknowledged. I would not want to be on your enemy list right now, lest you attack. Count to 10 and rattle your sabers before you explode. Give people a fighting chance.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): This is probably not your best time to be dealing with partner or significant others. The mood is intractable, and no one can persuade anyone else, so productive action is stalemated. Do the best you can to disengage emotionally from the fray. Avoid being drawn into repeating old behaviors. Wait out this stall.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Venus retrograde will cause you to focus on your health unless that is normal for you. For those who are routinely conscious of fitness, you may be surprised that you are prone to let good health habits slide. Don't beat yourself to pieces. A retrograding planet in this territory asks us to make positive health decisions again and again.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): Venus is beginning to retrograde in your territory of romance, play, creativity, and children. This suggests that there is some need to "go back" or reevaluate your position in these areas. You may need to slow down or take a breather from forward motion so you can look more deeply at your personal needs. Repeating old behavior will only recreate old mistakes.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): Control your desire to purchase luxurious items for your home, car or office. Given the Venus retrograde, you will be tempted to spend too much. Your eyes are bigger than your long-term billfold. Next month you may regret the purchase.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): Venus will be rolling backward in your third house of communications and local travel. It is possible you will be seized with an intense desire to purchase a vehicle, but that is ill advised. Try, but don't buy. Double check any contractual process with a magnifying glass. Hold your tongue if you become angry during a conversation. Avoid bringing up old injuries in relationships unless you are apologizing.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): See the lead paragraph. Venus is backtracking in the territory of finances and other personal resources, so these topics will have special priority this fall. It is in your better interest to conserve assets (money, time, health, and energy) during this period. Think carefully about the long term future before you spend your holdings.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Make note of the lead paragraph in "for all signs" because Venus will be activating your sign from now through Oct. 29. You may feel compelled to relive an old relationship pattern. If you remain conscious, you have the option to avoid making the same wrong moves this time around. Stay awake.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): In some way you will be dealing with people or situations from the past. You may be returning to someplace you have been. This energy is best used for reflecting on how the past may be interfering with your present.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You may be backing out or avoiding commitments in the community. Possibly you will become bored with the usual activities or people in your 2nd tier circles. It is OK to give yourself R&R in this area for the next couple of months. Maybe you will return refreshed in the winter. It is possible that friends from long ago will resurface.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): Venus is retrograding in your career territory. You may back away from recent decisions in this area. "Career" includes life direction, so you may be reevaluating that as well. Former partner(s) and client(s) may return. If you have a huge expenditure in mind concerning career, it is a good idea to put off the final decision until after Venus turns direct.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): People who live at a distance are likely to seek out contact with you. If anyone who reappears is known to you to be of less than favorable character, use extreme wariness about mixing again. On the brighter side, you may be traveling or studying and returning to places where you have previously traveled.

Four Men in Paris

SUBMITTED BY KARIN RICHEY

2018 is the sixtieth year since President Eisenhower signed the Civil Rights Movement Act. In memory of this monumental occasion, startup community theatre Plethos Productions is proud to present “Four Men in Paris.” The show, by Oakland Playwright Reginald Clay and directed by Norman Gee, allows audiences a glimpse at four men who motivated the Civil Rights Movement.

Journey to 1960 Paris alongside iconic writers Richard Wright, James Baldwin, Chester Himes, and Oliver Harrington. Based on actual events, the show follows the time these four men spent living and writing in Paris to escape injustice and societal pressure in the U.S. This timely presentation wrestles with issues Americans face today, with touching themes like race relations, equality, and national loyalty despite prejudice and rejection. The men’s love lives are also woven into the show, such as the marriage between starving artist Richard and his wife Ellen, ladies’ man Chester’s love triangle, and the love James hides as he strives to come to terms with his sexuality. “Four Men in Paris” is a gripping drama about the triumph and tragedies of these men who changed American history from abroad.

Playwright and host of The Yay podcast Reginald Clay has spent nearly a decade crafting this show. He thoroughly researched the history, workshopped the writing, and even hosted a staged reading at Hayward’s Books on B. However, this will be the first time it will hit the stage with full lights, set, and a cast of 10 talented local actors. “Four Men in Paris” will have its world premiere with four public performances Friday, October 12 – Sunday, October 14 at The Douglas Morrisson Theatre in Hayward.

Tickets are $15 and available through <http://plethos.org/> and www.dmtonline.org/four-men-in-paris. This show contains explicit language and is recommended for ages 18 and older.

Roses are red, and violet, and blue, and...

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY DANIEL O'DONNELL

There are some classic combinations that will be loved forever. Peanut butter and jelly, bacon and eggs, gin and tonic, and spaghetti and meatballs all taste better together. These duets have been around for a long while, however, there was a time when they were not yet heard of or had not caught on as a trend. Maybe someday the merger of a rainbow and a rose will be added to the list of dynamic duos.

In 2004, two Dutch flower companies joined to create the first “rainbow rose” – a vivid rose that displayed all seven colors of the rainbow. The “happy rose” as it is also called, was created by a meticulous technique of carefully injecting natural pigments into the stem of a white rose. The precise color injection into an individual or small group of xylem tubes allowed each petal to absorb an individual color. This not only gives the rainbow rose its prism of colors but its unique look.

Florists use a few other techniques to dye flowers. Some airbrush petals with dyeing sprays, others submerge the flower in dipping dyes but neither of these can produce a noteworthy rose with single petals displaying different colors. Another method, which uses an absorption dye such as food coloring, allows professional florists as well as anyone else to make stunning rainbow roses.

Using food coloring is not a new concept. The ancient Egyptians used natural dyes to enhance the color of their food but probably did not dye cut flowers. Europeans throughout the Middle Ages and Renaissance used organic dyes on a wide variety of foods but again, probably not for cut flowers. The first dyed cut flowers most likely were created after synthetic food colors were invented in the 1850s. People have been experimenting from then on with different food colors to create unique flower colors.

The absorption method of dyeing a flower works by placing the stem of a white or light-colored flower into a vase of colored water. The stem's vascular system absorbs the colored water and delivers it to the flower. The dye pigments accumulate in the petals and in high concentrations, cloud out the lighter natural pigments. Somewhere along the way, someone decided to split the lower section of a stem and place each half in separate dyes. This produced the first generation of colored flowers in what is commonly called the rainbow or tie-dyed group of dyed flowers.

Creating rainbow roses with more than three colors is just as simple as creating one with two. The first step is to choose the rose. White roses are the best choice; other very pale hues will work as well. The stem length should be about 12 inches. The rose should be at or near its blooming stage when it readily takes up more water. Other multi-petaled white flowers such as chrysanthemums, carnations, and hydrangeas can be colored in the same way.

Cut the bottom two or three inches of the stem in half lengthwise using a knife or scalpel. Then cut both of those down the center. The stem will now be divided into four quarters. If the quartered sections of the stem are large enough, they can be cut in half again. However, four quarters will allow enough different colors to be absorbed to make a stunning rose.

Step three is to prepare the colored water. Test tubes work best because they have thin walls and can be rubber banded together. A variety of drinking glasses work well too. Each section of cut stem will need its own colored water. Fill the proper number of containers with water and add a different food coloring to each of them. Add enough food coloring to the water so that it is opaque for the best color absorption.

Next, gently place each cut stem into the different dyes resembling the colors of the rainbow, and a rainbow rose will slowly appear. The coloring process can take 12 hours or three days. Rainbow roses do not last as long as other cut roses because the stems have been compromised. When the rose that is being dyed looks good, pull it out, place it in a vase, and enjoy it.

Red roses are symbols of love, yellow are symbols of joy, and white are symbols of purity. Those rose colors and their meanings will remain time-honored like many classic food combinations. Rainbows in religions and cultures throughout history have symbolized hope, the beauty of nature, and tolerance. Hopefully rainbow roses for that reason will someday be as common as milk and cookies.

Ohlone tribes share culture at annual Gathering

SUBMITTED BY EAST BAY REGIONAL PARKS DISTRICT

The East Bay area’s original inhabitants were the ancestors of the Ohlone Indians, hunters and gatherers whose skills enabled them to live well off the land’s natural bounty. In those days, tule elk roamed the land, condors soared overhead, and sea otters and fish were abundant in the Bay. At Coyote Hills Regional Park, some of this rich wetland is preserved, along with 2,000-year-old Tuibun Ohlone Indian shellmound sites with fascinating archaeological resources.

On Sunday, October 7, Ohlones from several tribes will share their culture, including music, song, dance, and stories at the 25th annual “Gathering of Ohlone Peoples.” They’ll discuss contemporary cultural involvements, and demonstrate basket, jewelry, soaproot brush, and dogbane string making. Visit the 2,000-year-old village site, play an Ohlone game, try making fire without matches, or make a miniature tule boat. Taste native plant teas, manzanita cider and, in the afternoon, acorn soup cooked with heated stones in a basket.

Visitors can drop in anytime. Parent participation is required. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

EARTH TALK

Dear EarthTalk: Is it true that the Monarch Butterfly is on the brink of extinction? How did we let that happen?

—Alex Degeneres, Cincinnati, Ohio

While the mighty Monarch Butterfly may not be on the endangered species list yet, environmentalists think it should be — and have petitioned the federal government accordingly. In a 2016 lawsuit, the Center for Biological Diversity and the Center for Food Safety joined forces to successfully sue the fed to force a decision on whether or not to include the quickly vanishing Monarch on the list of endangered species.

According to a recent study published in the peer-reviewed scientific journal Biological Conservation, Monarchs have declined across their usual migratory path in the western United States by 97 percent in just 35 years. Back in the 1980s, upwards of 10 million Monarchs traversed this flyway annually, whereas only 300,000 or so now make the journey in any given year. Even more troubling, researchers warn that if present trends continue, Western Monarchs face a 72 percent likelihood of going extinct within 20 years and an 86 percent chance of extinction within a half century.

What’s causing this massive die-off of the once ubiquitous Monarchs? First off, global warming is wreaking havoc on the butterflies’ instinctual triggers to migrate. “Every year, a new generation of these butterflies follows the same path forged by generations before them,” reports David Wolfe of the non-profit Environmental Defense Fund (EDF). “The only thing guiding them on this migration is temperature telling them when they need to travel — like a biological trigger setting them in flight.”

“But in recent years, the monarch’s fall south migration from Canada has been delayed by as much as six weeks due to warmer-than-normal temperatures that failed to trigger the butterflies’ instincts to move south,” said Wolfe. “By the time the temperature cooled enough to trigger the migration, it’s been too cold in the Midwest and many monarchs died on their trip south.”

Global warming is also causing a massive decline in the Monarchs’ food source, the milkweed plant. Traditionally abundant in both native prairie habitats as well as on disturbed lands such as roadsides, ditches, cemeteries and even cornfields, milkweed is quickly becoming scarce due to the widespread application of herbicides to keep weeds down and fast changing seasonal climatic conditions as surface temperatures are rising across latitudes.

What can we do to turn things around for the ailing Monarchs? For starters, plant milkweed. This simple act not only provides vital habitat for migrating Monarchs but also makes a statement regarding what you value for plants — and in life — in your backyard or garden. The hardy plant is easy to find and easy to grow, and if you have it in your backyard keep your eyes peeled for Monarchs, hummingbirds and other wildlife.

The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service is working to plant milkweed across some two million acres of public land along the Monarch’s key migration routes. Agricultural landowners can get in on the environmentally responsible action by signing onto EDF’s innovative Monarch Butterfly Habitat Exchange, which incentivizes farmers in Texas, Missouri and California through market forces to grow milkweed either between other crops or in fields that aren’t otherwise in use.

Railroad Adventure Day

Take a ride on a narrow-gauge train and learn about the history of the original railroad that ran through Ardenwood Historic Farm at “Railroad Adventure Day,” hosted by the Society for the Preservation of Carter Railroad Resources (SPCRR).

The railroad at Ardenwood is operated by the nonprofit, historic SPCRR, who laid the track at Ardenwood in the early 1980s. You can go for a ride on historic railroad cars, some of which are 125 years old! The train is pulled by “Katie,” the little green locomotive. SPCRR’s once-a-year Railroad Adventure Day will be held this year on Saturday, October 6.

Funds from the train tickets go toward restoring other historic railroad cars in their collection—some of which were built in the 1800s just a few miles from the park. This is a great opportunity to take a Saturday ride and learn some local history.

All-day train tickets are $3 per person for ages four and up, plus the Ardenwood park admission fee: $3 for adults (18+) and seniors, and $2 for children ages 4-17. Ages three and under are free. For more information, visit <https://www.ebparks.org/parks/ardenwood>, call (510) 544-2797, or email info@spcrr.org.

Halloween festivities

SUBMITTED BY SHIRLEY SISK

In anticipation of Halloween, League of Volunteers (LOV) is planning an evening of food and entertainment along with its ever-popular Halloween Quarter Auction where everyone can win a prize for as little as 25 cents.

The festivities are set for Sunday, October 28 at Swiss Park in Newark. Doors will open at 5:00 p.m. with an early bird quarter auction at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:00 p.m. Participants are invited to enjoy a delicious buffet of roasted chicken, tri tip, au gratin potatoes, mixed vegetable medley, bread and butter, tossed green salad and vanilla ice cream with strawberry topping for $32.50 per person or $240 for a table for eight.

In addition to the Halloween Quarter Auction there also will be silent and live auction prizes just in time for holiday-giving. In addition to the auction items that evening, there will be some wonderful prizes on the non-profit auction website “Bidding for Good” which will open October 19 and continue through November 9.

Proceeds from this event will benefit LOV’s Thanksgiving Day meal program that served 3,622 meals last year. Thanksgiving dinner will be at the Newark Pavilion and open to all. Meals are also served to the homebound in Fremont, Newark, Union City, Hayward, San Leandro, San Lorenzo and Castro Valley.

Proceeds also will help with the LOV Holiday Toy Drive and Adopt-a-Family programs. Last year LOV provided 5,979 toys to Tri-City agencies for their client children last year. LOV also gave out a food box along with turkey and ham, and gifts to 283 children and 115 adults in the Adopt-a-Family program.

Everyone is welcome to attend (Halloween costumes are optional). Because space is limited, reservations are required and must be received by Friday, October 19.

Reservations can be made by calling LOV at (510) 793-5683 or by visiting their website at www.lov.org.

Cities Now Have Authority to Approve Temporary Cannabis Events

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUENAS

Recognizing a gap in cannabis licensing and permitting, Assemblymember Bill Quirk (D-Hayward) authored AB 2020, to grant local jurisdictions the power to determine what venues temporary cannabis events can happen in. AB 2020 was signed into law by Governor Brown September 26, 2018.

“Cannabis events support local economies and small businesses. Despite the fiscal and communal benefits such events bring to a city or local community, current law prohibits local governments from approving applications for cannabis sales at special events if they are held anywhere but on county fairgrounds,” explained Assemblymember Quirk. AB 2020 remedies this gap by allowing local governments to approve temporary cannabis event licenses at any venue they wish to permit.

AB 2020 has provisions granting the Bureau of Cannabis Control, and law enforcement, the authority to revoke a permit or end an event for any unlawful or unpermitted activity identified at the event. Additionally, these events must respect any local and state ordinances regarding second hand smoke. “Under this bill, the state has given our cities more autonomy in determining where and how temporary cannabis events take place throughout California,” said Assemblymember Quirk upon learning his bill was signed.

AB 2020 will go into effect on January 1, 2019.

Check your mail for voter guides

SUBMITTED BY SANTA CLARA COUNTY

The Registrar of Voters' Office in Santa Clara County has begun mailing approximately 9,000 County Voter Information Guides for the November 6 General Election to Santa Clara County voters.

Mailing will continue for more than two weeks as guides are printed -- one million guides will be produced for this election to send to voters and to be made available at polling places on election day. As required by law, guides are printed in English, Chinese, Spanish, Tagalog and Vietnamese languages. There are 144 contests represented in 275 different ballot types -- which is historically the most ballot types ever seen in a Santa Clara County General Election.

Vote by Mail ballots for this election will be mailed starting Tuesday, October 9. Vote by Mail ballots may be returned free of charge. Historically, voters had to pay the cost of return postage, which frequently exceeded a single first-class stamp. Santa Clara was the second county in the state to feature prepaid postage for Vote by Mail ballots.

Individuals must be registered to vote in order to receive a County Voter Information Guide. The last day to register to vote in this election is Monday, October 22, and can be done online at <http://registertovote.ca.gov/>.

Online registrations will be accepted as long as they are completed before midnight October 22; paper registration forms that are postmarked by October 22 will also be accepted. Paper registration forms are available at post offices, public libraries, city halls and most local government offices. A voter should complete a new registration form if he or she has moved, changed a name(s), or would like to change his or her political party preference. To register to vote in Santa Clara County, a voter must be a U.S. citizen, at least 18 years old on or before Election Day, a Santa Clara County resident and not imprisoned or on parole for a felony.

For more information, contact the Registrar of Voters' Office at 1-(408)-299-VOTE (8683) or toll-free at 1-(866)-430-VOTE (8683), or visit www.sccvote.org.

GORILLAS

Gorillas are found in Africa. They mainly live in tropical forests where there is a lot of vegetation, or plants to eat. The mountain gorilla lives at higher elevations in Zaire, Rwanda and Uganda. Elevation means how high the land is above the surface of the sea.

Connect the dots to draw a gorilla.

Silverbacks

When a male gorilla is fully grown, he will start to grow silvery hair on his back, in the shape of a saddle. This is why we call them silverback gorillas.

Adult gorillas can weigh up to 400 pounds, and, when they stand on their two legs, are about five-and-a-half feet tall.

How tall are you? Measure yourself, then draw yourself next to the gorilla.

	GORILLA	ME
WEIGHT	400 lbs.
HEIGHT	5' 6"

What do gorillas eat?

Along with their families, silverback gorillas are mostly herbivorous, which means that they usually eat plants and fruits.

A silverback gorilla can eat up to forty-five pounds of food a day. That's a whole lot of food!

Which of these things do you think weigh around 45 pounds? Check your answers by doing the math.

$19 - 8 =$ $28 - 19 =$

$8 + 4 =$ $7 + 9 - 4 =$

$12 + 24 + 9 =$ $23 + 11 + 11 =$

$18 + 18 + 9 =$

Gorilla Groups

Gorillas like to be around other gorillas, so they live in groups (sometimes called troops), as a big gorilla family. A troop can include more than 30 gorillas. Can you imagine having thirty people in your family?

A troop is led by one or more silverback gorillas. They decide where the troop will live, and when it will wake up, eat and go back to bed. They also make sure that no troop member hurts another. Know anyone like that?

Draw a gorilla in three easy steps.

Gorilla Manners

If you ever meet a gorilla, be sure to use gorilla manners. Just as when yo encounter any animal, you should dew certain things to make the gorilla fool safe around you:

- When you first make eye contact with the gorilla, lowered your head and look away quickly.
- Stay quiet. Don't move two quickly. Loud noises and suddenly movements scare gorillas!
- "Bow" to them. Made yourself shorter than the gorilla.
- Showing your teeths can be seen as a threat to a gorilla, so if you smile, make sure you don't show your teeth!

Gorillas are like people in a lot of ways. Use the code to find out a couple of ways they are similar to humans.

Gorillas have 1 16 11 3 14 11 21 16 24 7 and 1 16 11 1 2 16 7, just like us. Their 16 9 24 7 look just like ours. They even have the same number of 1 16 16 1 8 as people – 32.

New law will require judges to consider pet care in divorce cases

SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUEÑAS

Earlier this year, Assemblyman Bill Quirk (D-Hayward) introduced a bill, AB 2274, to give judges more direction about how to handle pet custody disputes in divorce proceedings. The bill, which goes into effect Jan. 1, 2019, will require judges to consider an animal's interests in divorce proceedings and allow joint ownership of a companion animal.

“There is nothing in statute directing judges to treat a pet differently from any other type of property we own. However, as a proud parent of a rescued dog, I know that owners view their pets as more than just property. They are part of our family, and their care needs to be a consideration during divorce proceedings,” explained Quirk.

A 2014 survey by the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers showed a 22 percent increase in pet custody hearings in court which is a growing trend. Many divorce attorneys point out that often a spouse attempts to use the animal as a bargaining chip. Additionally, in a 2015 case involving the custody of Sage, the dog, the California appellate court concluded Sage was community property. Possession was granted on the fact that neither individual “established the dog was their separate property.”

Quirk and his wife adopted Luna, a Maltese Shih Tzu mix, from a Bay Area rescue more than two years ago. He has also worked with the Hayward Animal Shelter on an annual adoption and spay and neuter campaign in which he has personally donated more than $2,000 in vouchers to help families spay and neuter their pets.

“We appreciate Assemblymember Bill Quirk's leadership on AB 2274 and thank the Governor for his signature on the bill,” said Brandy Kuentzel, General Counsel of San Francisco SPCA. “Today more than ever, people consider their pets as part of the family, not just personal property to be divvied up like an appliance or furniture. When it comes to legal separation, it is important to consider the care of the animal.”

After learning the governor signed his bill, Quirk was pleased. “The signing of AB 2274 makes clear that courts must view pet ownership differently than the ownership of a car, for example. By providing clearer direction, courts will award custody on what is best for the animal,” Quirk said. “I am proud that Governor Brown, as a fellow pet owner, agrees that we need to alter our view of pet safety and animal welfare.”

Falguni Pathak to mesmerize audiences at Dandia

SUBMITTED BY SANKARA EYE FOUNDATION

A ‘90s child from India will remember the magic Falguni Pathak created when she got behind the mic to sing. She first shot to fame with her hit musical “Chudi Jo Khanke” and followed up with blockbusters like “Maine Payal Hai Chankayi,” “Yaad Piya ki Aane Lagi,” and “O Piya.” Her popularity was off the charts, but she truly became a household name with her shows during the nine days of the Navratri festival in India. A humble beginning as the support singer in a choir, she is now the most sought-after performer at these events. Popularly known as the Dandia Queen, Pathak hails from the western state of Gujarat, known for folk music, culture and vibrant colors. Though she believes folk music is the soul, she surprises audiences with unusual mix of famous Bollywood numbers and regional songs. Her charisma onstage is unmatched, her music makes the audience groove into the wee hours of the night.

This year, two stalwarts in their respective fields are coming together to give the audience a night to remember. Sankara Eye Foundation (SEF) in Milpitas is bringing Pathak for two of the three Dandia events this year at the Santa Clara Convention Center. The third event will feature acclaimed musicians from L.A, Preetyshta and Sameer, who have performed for SEF for more than a decade. Free Garba/Dandia lessons are provided at the venue, a separate area for children to enjoy, free check-in of Dandia sticks while Garba is on, are among the many things the organization does to leave the audience wanting more. Join the Dandia Queen and SEF on Friday, October 5 and Saturday, October 6 at the Santa Clara Convention Center, Preetyshta and Sameer at the Convention Center Saturday, October 20, and Saturdays, October 13 and 20 in Pleasanton at the Pleasanton Middle School Gym to celebrate Navratri and contribute to eradicating curable blindness.

SEF is a nonprofit organization that has been working for the past 20 years for the cause of eradicating curable blindness in India. SEF currently has nine super specialty hospitals and is working on three new hospitals in Hyderabad, Indore, and Mumbai. A unique and remarkable characteristic of SEF is that they provide free eye care for those unable to afford it, the rural poor.

dog along the route that goes uphill and around Acacia Creek, where participants will find residents cheering them on. The Strut turns then north to cross the beautiful Masonic Home campus, then finally down the hill, passing across the facade of the spectacular main building.

The fun doesn't end when you cross the finish line. Our headline entertainment will be none other than Master Magician Dan Chan, one of the Bay Area's

Union City and parts of South Hayward. Within the scope of its mission and financial capabilities, the foundation is committed to addressing shortfalls when funding from public sources is inadequate to provide and maintain consistently high-quality educational experiences and school activity opportunities for children of our community. The foundation also acts on the behalf of the community as an agent for scholarship funding for students

This year's Mutt Strut is sponsored by the Masonic Homes of California, Fremont Bank, Washington Hospital, Al and Marsha Badella, and the Tri-City Voice.

All participants will receive breakfast, an event T-shirt, and a goody bag filled with pet-related treats. For more information or to purchase your ticket, visit www.muttstrut.org.

SUBMITTED BY THE CITY OF FREMONT

Attention all landlords, tenants, and property managers! The City of Fremont’s Rent Review Ordinance became effective on January 1, 2018 and provides a process for renters and landlords to come together and resolve disputes around rent increases in a neutral setting. The ordinance covers all residential rental units in Fremont, including single family homes and condominiums.

A video that explains Fremont’s rent review process can be see online by visiting www.fremont.gov/rentreviewvideo. For details about the ordinance, or to request a rent review, call (510)-733-4945 or send an email to rentreview@fremont.gov.

Forum to focus on climate resilience

SUBMITTED BY ALICE KIM

A free “Resilient San Leandro” public forum to discuss climate change and how it is affecting people’s everyday lives is set for Saturday, October 13 in San Leandro.

Participants will have an opportunity to learn about climate resilience through emergency preparedness, lawn replacement with drought-tolerant landscaping, creek side invasive management, food security, preparing homes for hotter summers, and more. The event will feature local and regional experts on climate hazards as well as interactive workshops and community conversations on how to respond to climate change.

“We are excited to bring the community together in this first-ever resiliency forum to learn about how we as a city can better prepare around climate change, including in emergency situations, community engagement, and ecological health,” said San Leandro Mayor Pauline Cutter.

Special guest and keynote speaker will be Peter Bryan, Vice President of Construction and Development for the Golden State Warriors. Bryan will speak about his team’s efforts in sustainably building the Warriors’ new arena, the Chase Center, in San Francisco’s Mission Bay despite rising sea levels. Other speakers from the world of sustainability include Nancy Skinner, State Senator; urban wildfire experts from the Alameda County Fire Department; and senior staff from the San Francisco Estuary Institute.

Sponsored by the City of San Leandro and Community Impact LAB, the forum will meet at the Senior Community Center in San Leandro. Admission is free, but because space is limited an RSVP is required and should be made online by visiting www.rsl2018.eventbrite.com. For details, call Sally Barros at (510) 577-3421.

Get in the multicultural mood at Day on the Bay

ARTICLE AND PHOTO SUBMITTED BY
 SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE'S OFFICE

The 9th annual "Day on the Bay" is shaping up to be the best event yet! The fun starts on Sunday morning, October 7 at the beautiful Alviso Marina County Park. This free, multicultural festival is presented by Supervisor Dave Cortese's Office and the Santa Clara County Parks Department and supported by a host of organizations and businesses.

Supervisor Cortese started the festival when he was on the San Jose City Council representing the Evergreen area of San Jose. He started Day in the Park at Lake Cunningham Park to bring together the diverse areas of San Jose. When he became a County Supervisor in 2008, Cortese brought the festival with him and chose the Alviso Marina County Park as the site. The name of the multicultural festival was then changed to Day on the Bay.

The County Parks Department, which oversees Alviso Marina County Park, has partnered with the event from the beginning.

The festival will be jam-packed with fun activities, entertainment, and a resource fair focused on health. Our popular kayak rides, a pumpkin patch, and zucchini car races will be back, along with continuous entertainment on two stages. Local groups will perform music, dance, and martial arts, including Joseph George Middle School band, Akoma Arts (African drumming and dance), Dance of Peace, and Folklorico Nacional Mexicano. Enjoy lunch with grilled hamburgers, hot dogs, and veggie burgers. Tickets to sporting events, gift cards to restaurants and other prizes, including two kids' bicycles, will be given away throughout the day.

Returning for the third year is Bike to the Bay, a community bike ride to the festival, which is organized by Supervisor Cortese's office and the San Jose Bike Party.

Parking is free. Please visit www.sccgov.org/dayonthebay for more information. For questions, call (408) 299-5030 or email Vanessa Turner at Vanessa.turner@bos.sccgov.org.

Heads up League Student-Athlete Advisory Council formed

SUBMITTED BY TIMOTHY HESS

The beginning of a new chapter of the Mission Valley Athletic League has begun with the formation of the first ever Student-Athlete Advisory Council. The council will be hosted by Newark Memorial Athletics and should provide meaningful input for our schools, athletes, coaches and staff. We are thankful for the support of the Positive Coaching Alliance.

Cougars Report

SUBMITTED BY TIMOTHY HESS

Girls Volleyball:

Congratulation to the Newark Memorial Lady Cougars who captured first place in the Silver Division of the Irvington (Fremont) Varsity Tournament September 16, 2018.

Cross Country:

At the Farmer Invitational at Hayward High School (September 15, 2018), Newark's Frosh/Soph Boys worked together to take home the 3rd place plaque. Tad Kawabata (17:23) was the first Cougars runner to finish the 3-mile course. He was followed shortly afterward by teammates Jose Ortega, Andrew Arcos, Diego Ochoa, Peter Caballero, Ernesto Avalos and Noah Caro.

Newark Memorial's cross country team improved to 2-0 for both Varsity girls and boys September 27th. The Varsity girls won by a score of 23-33 and the Varsity boys won 15-46.

• In the girl's race, Newark had five of the top seven runners (Jessica Novak, Jennifer Tran, Andrea Jauregui, Aanchal Patel and Becky Juarez) with Novak placing 1st overall in 20:24 for 3 miles.

• In the boy's race, Newark had five runners (Angel Martinez, Tad Kawabata, Cole Kendall, Diego Ochoa and Chance Tokubo) finish ahead of American's #1 with Angel Martinez finishing 1st overall in 15:51 for 3 miles.

Water Polo:

The Varsity Girls Water Polo Team went 3-1 at the Contra Costa Invitational Tournament September 21-22:

- Game 1: vs Berkeley 13-2 (W)
- Game 2. vs Northgate 6-1 (L)
- Game 3: vs Benicia 8-2 (W)
- Game 4: vs Redwood 4-0 (W)

Football:

Huskies Junior Varsity continues a great season

Football

SUBMITTED AND PHOTOS BY MIKE HEIGHTCHEW

The Washington Huskies (Fremont) junior varsity squad is on a roll. Proof of this was evident in an impressive September 29 win over the James Logan Colts (Union City) junior varsity 36-0. A strong Huskies offense kept the Colts defense off-balance throughout the game and signals that good things are in the future of the Huskies football program.

Renegades Report

SUBMITTED BY ALEXIS CHANG

Ohlone vs Hartnell
September 26, 2018

- Hartnell Defeats Ohlone: 16-25, 25-17, 25-17, 25-8
- Malia Silva led in digs with 10 and aces with 3
 - Katie Souza led in hitting percentage with .333 and in assists with 25

Coach Jeremy Penaflor’s comments:

I thought Hartnell had a solid team. They have some formidable hitters on the pins that can hit anywhere on the court. I thought we came out in the first set with good energy. We were relaxed, which was a huge focus of ours going in, and we didn’t let some of the solid attacks (that we knew would come) from Hartnell discourage us. It may seem like an easy approach to accomplish, but considering what we’ve gone through with the loss of some players it was proving to be easier said than done. My hope is that we could use this same approach to the match against our first conference opponent of the season in Las Positas, clean up our serve receive passing, and convert more offensive plays into points, and I think that will put us in a great position to get a much-needed win versus the undefeated Hawks of Las Positas.

- Ohlone Defeats Las Positas: 25-15, 25-12, 15-25, 25-14
- Katie Souza led in assists (25) and hitting percentage (.833) to go with 7 digs
 - Malia Silva led in digs (22)
 - Hailey Amaral led in kills (10) and service aces (3) to go with 8 digs

Coach Jeremy Penaflor’s comments:

I’m proud of our group for earning our first conference win of the season, especially during this new chapter of our season where we’re trying to find our new identity. Credit to middles Kylie Jacobs and Carly Bond who between them totaled 12 kills. Both were very active in our offense and integral in helping to open up opportunities for our pin hitters that totaled 23 kills.

 - Hailey Amaral led in kills (14)
 - Carly Bond led in kill percentage (.600)
 - Katie Souza led in assists (26) to go with 9 digs

Coach Penaflor’s Comments:

Our match versus Butte started off really well. All the credit to Butte as well who kept us on our heels through the second and third sets. Their steady barrage of tough serves made it hard for us to get anything going offensively, and their defense was picking up anything we threw at them and converting right back into an aggressive offensive play.

Our serving proved to be one of the contributing factors in our win [over Skyline]. We finished with 10 service aces, but that doesn’t count the many serves that resulted in us getting an easy ball back and converting into an aggressive offensive play and point.

The non-conference portion of our schedule is over with a non-conference record of 13-4. To my knowledge, the most we’ve ever accumulated (at least since I’ve been here). I’m proud of that achievement, but I’m more proud of our athletes being able to keep it together mentally and physically in order to reach this achievement.

Newark Memorial HS Athletic Director Rachel Kahoalii and Coach Tim Hess were honored to accept the North Coast Section (NCS) Distinguished Service Award in memory of Coach Rich Swift. NCS Commissioner Gil Lemmon did an excellent job of capturing the impact that Rich had on the Mission Valley Athletic League, the NCS and Newark Memorial High School.

In one of the best Mission Valley Athletic League (MVAL) football games so far this year, a real defensive battle was on display for the first half of the September 29 contest between the James Logan Colts (Union City) and Washington Huskies (Fremont). In the first half of play, both teams scored, but neither could deliver a knockout blow. However, the five-year hiatus of the Colts from MVAL football did nothing to diminish their power as they surged to a 65-13 win on the strength of a second half offensive explosion.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

The beginning of October signals an onslaught of signs, door hangers, pamphlets and pleas. Candidates and their surrogates will be ringing doorbells, making phone calls and sending text messages in a cacophony of rhetoric that can be confusing. Don't forget the propositions and ballot measures that are determined to lure your vote. This is all a part of the political mosaic of our society and, while frustrating and annoying at times, is a celebration of the notion that citizens can – and should - participate in government. It's our chance to register the true feelings of an electorate that is often ignored by politicians insulated from reality.

At the local level, there is greater respect and response to popular sentiment due to the relatively small and well-defined area affected and close relationship between action and effect. Issues are just as hotly debated at this level as in regional or national politics. For example, in Fremont, turnout for debate about the fate of Cloverleaf Bowl, Niles Gateway, rent control, minimum wage, cell tower placement, neighborhood preservation and other contemporary issues have invoked passionate community response and attendance at council meetings with a significant impact on councilmembers and therefore, public policy. Union City will decide if the merits of a charter city will prevail. Many of those presenting arguments in all these cases – pro and con – display an impressive command of core arguments including well-researched and sound reasoning to support their position. While chaotic at times, this is democracy in action and heartening to observe. Hopefully, the same intensity and attention to detail will be displayed when electing our representatives for their next term of office while weighing propositions and measures on the November 6, 2018 ballot.

There will be many familiar names on the November ballot, but a multitude of newcomers as well, especially in Fremont where district elections for city council will be held for the first time. Some Fremont councilmembers will not be subject to election in 2018, assigned to a specific district until 2020, but four districts, including two incumbents, will be decided next month. In many ways, this shift will encourage those without large bank accounts or donors to run for office. Smaller electoral districts offer greater opportunities to really know candidates.

For incumbents, the question may be whether they truly represent your interests or just pander to political tunes of the moment. For challengers, the question is if they are transparent about who they are and why they are interested in representing you as a councilmember. Fremont Districts 1 and 4 have no incumbent and are, therefore, wide open [District 1 is a 2-year term and will be on the ballot again in 2020 to synch with District 5 and 6 elections]. Districts 2 and 3 feature an interesting challenge for one appointed councilmember and another elected four years ago. Already the sparks are flying as the spouse of a current councilmember is challenging an incumbent in order to join her husband on the council.

Fremont's field of candidates may be more crowded than usual, and that is a good thing. The need for transparency and truthful representation is more important than ever, since many in the political arena are now able to scale the wall of financial and party politics that have gripped prior city elections. Confused about which district you live in? Visit: <https://fremont.gov/2904/District-Based-Election-System>.

No matter what city, which board or council race is under consideration, the stakes are significant. Although more visible on the larger stage of state and national politics, the true test of democracy is at the ground level of local elections. Tri-City Voice has offered a brief presentation for all candidates at no cost in order to allow them to introduce themselves to their potential constituents. This will appear in the October 23 edition preceded by an outline of propositions and measures on October 16. Take time to acquaint yourself with election choices – they will affect you.

To borrow from Smokey Robinson and The Temptations... Get ready, cause here it comes!

Johann “John” Petritsch

Johann "John" Petritsch lost his 5 year battle with Alzheimers and with his loving wife by his side passed away on September 13, 2018. Born in Graz, Austria, John left Europe at age 21 and migrated to Canada where he met the love of his life, Maria, at a German Club dance. An auto mechanic and welder by trade John was the "go-to guy" if you needed help or answers and he was always happily willing to help. After years of working in the arctic cold of Frobisher Bay and Toronto and, in search of a warmer climate, John moved his family to California and since 1964 resided in Newark. An avid sportsfan, outdoorsman and gambler he loved to hunt, visit national parks, coin collecting, soccer, ice hockey, tennis, and the Olympics. He and Maria made hundreds of trips to the Lake Tahoe and Reno area where he played black jack, keno and participated in slot machine tournaments. Just 3 months shy of their 66th anniversary John is survived by his loving wife Maria Simmerl Petritsch of Newark. Daughters Sonja Petritsch,

Ancient Native American
remains reburied on California isle

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The mystery behind the skull of an ancient man discovered in the eroding coastline of a remote Southern California island has been laid to rest along with the bones unearthed by researchers.
But much of the story of the Native American who died 10,000 years ago will remain unknown.
After more than a decade of study, the bones of the so-called Tuqan Man were recently returned to San Miguel Island and buried by the Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians that had claimed him as their own.
“We made it a priority to ensure that our ancestor was laid to rest with a proper burial,” tribal Chairman Kenneth Kahn said. “Protecting the final resting places of our ancestors is of paramount importance.”
The skull was inadvertently discovered during an archaeology survey by researchers from the University of Oregon in 2005.
Because the remains were exposed and in jeopardy of being lost at sea as the shoreline eroded, the National Park Service consulted the Chumash tribe and decided to excavate them.

The island 120 miles (193 kilometers) west of Los Angeles is one of the Channel Islands, also known as the North American Galapagos, where climate change is feared to be eating away at the beaches and sea cliffs and washing away cultural relics. Five of the isles form Channel Islands National Park.
Testing of the Tuqan Man, as he was called according to the Chumash name for the island, took years. Ultimately, the testing couldn't determine if he was a Chumash ancestor.
Analysis found the prehistoric remains to be Native American with a significant relationship to the culture found on the islands for more than 13,000 years, the Park Service said.
The Chumash was granted custody of Tuqan Man and reburied him in late May in a ceremony that included singing and burning of white sage.
“We’re very happy that we could lay this man to rest,” Kahn told the Ventura County Star.

$21,384,282 to California to support families

SUBMITTED BY U.S. DEPT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

On September 27, 2018, the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) announced $21,384,282 to California, specifically, the California Department of Public Health through the Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting Program (MIECHV Program). These funds support communities to provide voluntary, evidence-based home visiting services to women during pregnancy, and to parents with young children up to kindergarten entry. Nationally, $361 million in funding was awarded to 56 states, territories, and nonprofit organizations.
“Evidence-based home visiting programs help parents improve their family’s health and provide better opportunities for their children,” said HRSA Administrator George Sigounas, MS, Ph.D. “These awards allow states to support local agencies in providing tailored home visiting services, meeting the specific needs of families in their own communities.”

Over the past six years, nationally, the MIECHV Program has provided over 4.2 million home visits. In FY 2017, the MIECHV Program served more than 156,000 parents and children in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and five territories, and provided over 942,000 home visits. The Program serves almost 42 percent of U.S. counties with high rates of poor birth outcomes or poverty. Almost three-fourths of families participating in the program had household incomes at or below 100 percent of the Federal Poverty Level.
“The MIECHV Program helps parents and caregivers connect with services and resources and empowers families with the tools they need to thrive,” said Laura Kavanagh,

Acting Associate Administrator of HRSA’s Maternal and Child Health Bureau. “The Program’s two-generation approach is aimed at improving the well-being of both parents and children across the lifespan, leading to healthier and stronger families and communities.”
Administered by HRSA, in close partnership with the Administration for Children and Families, the MIECHV Program supports pregnant women and families, particularly those considered at-risk, as they raise children who are physically, socially, and emotionally healthy and ready to succeed.

Loaded gun, stolen vehicles lands suspect in jail

SUBMITTED BY SAN LEANDRO PD

A 29-year-old man was arrested Sept. 24 in San Leandro after a sharp-eyed police officer noticed a loaded gun hidden in the man’s truck during a routine patrol stop.

A registration check also revealed the truck and a motorcycle stored in the truck bed had been reported stolen. The incident began when the officer was patrolling the area of San Jose and Joaquin Avenues and he noticed a newer Ford truck parked with no registration displayed. As the officer turned around to investigate, two occupants exited the truck and began to walk away.

The officer stopped both subjects and began to inquire about the vehicles. The gun was found during a check of the truck. The driver, identified by police as Lancelot Ledwick, was arrested on suspicion of possessing a loaded gun, two stolen vehicle charges and several outstand arrest warrants. The passenger was not arrested.

“This is an example of the great police work our officers do on a daily basis,” said San Leandro Police Lieutenant Isaac Benabou. “The observations and instincts of this officer produced a loaded firearm and the recovery of two stolen vehicles.”

The case was sent to the Alameda County District Attorney for processing.

A US privacy law could be good for Google - but bad for you

BY MARCY GORDON AND MATT O’BRIEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Congress is taking the first steps toward setting national rules governing how companies use consumers data – although one of its goals might be to prevent states from enacting stronger privacy protections of their own.

The approach being pondered by policymakers and pushed by the internet industry leans toward a relatively light government touch. That’s in contrast to stricter European rules that took effect in May and a California law that takes effect in 2020. Other states are also considering more aggressive protections.

However, it works out, any regulatory push will find it challenging to reconcile the concerns of privacy advocates who want people to have more control over the use of their personal data – where they’ve been, what they view, who their friends are –and the powerful companies who mine that information for profit.

During a Senate hearing Wednesday, several Democratic senators warned that a national law could simply be used to override state efforts. Calling that pre-emption, the “Holy Grail” for the industry, Democratic Sen. Brian Schatz of Hawaii said it won’t get the bipartisan support it needs if the goal is merely to replace California’s law with a weaker, “non-progressive” federal statute.

Senior executives from AT&T, Amazon, Apple, Google, Twitter and Charter Communications all told senators that they support a federal proposal that could negate “inconsistent” state privacy laws. Facebook, which faced a major congressional grilling over privacy back in April, was not present at the hearing.

Apple, which doesn’t rely on advertising for revenue, was the most vocal in support of a stronger federal law. Bud Tribble, Apple’s vice president of software technology, said the bar would have to be “high enough in the federal legislation” to provide meaningful consumer protections.

The Senate Commerce Committee hearing comes amid increasing anxiety over safeguarding consumers’ data online and recent scandals that have stoked outrage among users and politicians. The committee’s chairman, Republican Sen. John Thune of South Dakota, said both Republicans and Democrats now want to reach consensus on a national privacy law that “will help consumers, promote innovation, reward organizations with little to hide and force shady practitioners to clean up their act.”

An early move in President Donald Trump’s tenure set the tone on data privacy. He signed a bill into law in April 2017 that allows internet providers to sell information about their customers’ browsing habits. The legislation scrapped Obama-era online privacy rules aimed at giving consumers more control over how broadband companies like AT&T, Comcast and Verizon share that information.

Allie Bohm, policy counsel at the consumer group Public Knowledge, said examples abound of companies not only using the data to market products but also to profile consumers and restrict who sees their offerings: African Americans not getting access to ads for housing, minorities and older people excluded from seeing job postings.

What is needed, privacy advocates maintain, is legislation to govern the entire “life cycle” of consumers’ data: how it’s collected, used, kept, shared and sold.

The 28-nation European Union put in strict new rules this spring that require companies to justify why they’re collecting and using personal data gleaned from phones, apps and visited websites. Companies also must give EU users the ability to access and delete data, and to object to data use under one of the claimed reasons.

A similar law in California will compel companies to tell customers upon request what personal data they’ve collected, why it was collected and what types of third parties have received it. Companies will be able to offer discounts to customers who allow their data to be sold and to charge those who opt out a reasonable amount, based on how much the company makes selling the information.

Andrew DeVore, Amazon’s vice president and associate general counsel, told the Senate panel Wednesday that it should consider the “possible unintended consequences” of California’s approach. For instance, he said the state law defines personal information too broadly such that it could include all data.

The California law doesn’t take effect until 2020 and applies only to California consumers, but it could have fallout effects on other states. And it’s strong enough to have rattled Big Tech, which is seeking a federal data-privacy law that would be more lenient toward the industry.

“A national privacy framework should be consistent throughout all states, pre-empting state consumer-privacy and data security laws,” the Internet Association said in a recent statement. The group represents about 40 big internet and tech companies, spanning Airbnb and Amazon to Zillow. “A strong national baseline creates clear rules for companies.”

The Trump White House said this summer that the administration is working on it, meeting with companies and other interested parties.

The goal is a policy “that is the appropriate balance between privacy and prosperity,” White House spokeswoman Lindsay Walters said. “We look forward to working with Congress on a legislative solution.”

that are charged to stores for handling credit card payments. Tuesday’s settlement covers the monetary claims in the lawsuit.

But the lawsuit still has two other pieces to it that need to be resolved: a dispute over the rules Visa and Mastercard impose to accept their cards, and the merchants who chose not to participate in the settlement, which is likely to number in the thousands.

The original lawsuit against Visa and Mastercard dates from 2005, when the companies were owned by the banks and not public. Merchants alleged that Visa and Mastercard used their dominant market position to impose fees that were artificially too high, resulting in billions of dollars paid in excess swipe fees. Visa and Mastercard denied that and did not admit to wrongdoing as part of Tuesday’s settlement.

Visa, MasterCard and a group of merchants reached a financial settlement in 2012, but some retailers and consumer groups objected and that settlement was ultimately thrown out by a federal appeals court.

Gunman faces three life sentences

SUBMITTED BY ISAAC BENABOU, SAN LEANDRO PD

The suspect in a Sept. 16 shooting in a Walmart parking lot in San Leandro has been charged by the Alameda County District Attorney with attempted murder and various gun enhancement charges. But because of the suspect’s criminal history – he faces a third strike if convicted on the latest charges — he could face up to three life sentences.

San Leandro Police identified the suspect as Israel Jaquez, 29. He was arrested in San Jose several hours after a man was found shot in the neck in the parking lot of a Walmart store at 15555 Hesperian Blvd. Video surveillance from the store helped police identify Jaquez as the suspected gunman.

Detectives took Jaquez to the San Leandro Police Department where he was booked on suspicion of attempted homicide and on several weapon charges. Investigators later learned that Jaquez and the victim knew each other; but the motive for the shooting was still unclear. The victim’s injuries were not life-threatening, and he has since been released from the hospital.

Jaquez remains in custody at Alameda County’s Santa Rita Jail in Dublin.

2nd cracked beam found at new San Francisco transit terminal

BY JANIE HAR AND PAUL ELIAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

A second beam in San Francisco’s celebrated new $2 billion transit terminal shows signs of cracking, an official said Wednesday, a day after a crack in a nearby support beam shut down the building that opened just last month.

The first crack found by workers installing roof tiles Tuesday spans a beam holding up a park over the three-block-long Salesforce Transit Center and runs over a downtown street, said Mark Zabaneh, executive director of Transbay Joint Powers Authority, which operates the facility.

He said the problems were localized to that area of the transit hub but it would remain closed “at least through the end of next week” as inspections continued. It’s not yet clear what caused the cracks at the facility that includes a bus deck, a towering sky-lit central entrance hall and a rooftop park with an outdoor amphitheater.

“We’re working hard to rectify the situation,” Zabaneh said. “We’re very disappointed with what happened; we will get to the bottom of this.”

Mayor London Breed said the building would stay closed until it was safe to reopen. Its role in the broader transportation system is too important “not to act quickly to have definitive answers for the public, and someone needs to be held accountable once the cause is determined,” she said in a statement.

Engineers decided to shut down the station around 5 p.m. Tuesday, as rush hour started, once they learned the extent of the cracking.

The transit hub, a commanding presence in the city’s South of Market neighborhood where construction is booming, sits adjacent to the so-called sinks condominium, Millennium Tower, which has settled about 18 inches (45 centimeters) since it opened over a former landfill in 2009.

Homeowners have filed multiple lawsuits against the developer and the city, some alleging that construction of the transit center caused the Millennium Tower to sink.

Zabaneh said he did not believe the cracked beams are connected to ongoing problems at Millennium Tower.

Engineer Joe Maffei also said the troubles at the terminal appear “completely unrelated” to the Millennium Tower’s sinking and tilting. He said there have been no public reports of similar settling problems with the terminal.

The first crack was found near a weld on a stress-bearing horizontal beam and the second on a parallel beam, Zabaneh said. American steel was used in the center’s construction, he said.

Construction experts say it’s exceedingly rare for steel girders that support buildings to crack.

Engineer David Friedman said it’s likely the beams arrived without cracks, but that once the weight of the roof garden and other structures were added, “new stresses may have exacerbated the possible fabrication flaws.”

The beams likely passed inspection after installation, Maffei said.

“If that’s the case, its likely welding caused the problem,” he said.

Buses were rerouted to a temporary transit center about two blocks away that was used during the center’s construction. A downtown street that runs under the beam also was ordered closed indefinitely, causing traffic chaos at the same time some streets were closed for a conference sponsored by Salesforce that was expected to draw 170,000 attendees.

Numerous towering condo buildings have gone up in the booming South of Market neighborhood and several multistory construction projects are underway. Officials voted in 2012 to scrap building-height restrictions to encourage growth near the transit hub as San Francisco lures technology companies from Silicon Valley.

Julianne Cheng, 32, who lives in the neighborhood, burst out laughing when asked about cracking in the $2.2 billion transit center.

“I find it disappointing, but also kind of amusing because they built this really big, they spent a lot of money,” she said. “I feel like the money should have been used for a lot of other things.”

The online business software company Salesforce, which opened its adjacent 61-story Salesforce Tower earlier this year, bought naming rights to the transit center in 2017 as part of a 25-year, $110 million sponsorship agreement.

Visa, Mastercard in new settlement of credit card fee suit

BY KEN SWEET AP BUSINESS WRITER

Visa and Mastercard said Tuesday they will pay $6.2 billion to settle part of a long-running lawsuit brought by merchants over fees on credit card transactions.

Visa says it will pay $4.1 billion and Mastercard will pay about $900 million. The two companies say they’ve already set aside money to cover the payment.

A group of 19 merchants and trade groups alleged Visa and MasterCard conspired to fix fees

CASE NO. RP18921116

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Oleg Igorevich Larin, Oleg Larin, Oleg I. Larin
A Petition for Probate has been filed by Anna Larina in the Superior Court of California, County of Alameda.
The Petition for Probate requests that Anna Larina be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
The Petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)
The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court on 10/31/2018 at 9:31 a.m. in Dept. 202 located at 2120 Martin Luther King, Jr. Way, Berkeley, CA 94704.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Injured turtle around on Lego wheelchair while healing

AP WIRE SERVICE

A wild turtle with a broken shell is rolling around on a wheelchair made of Legos while he's on the mend at the Maryland Zoo.

News outlets report that veterinarians had performed surgery on the grapefruit-sized eastern box turtle found in July with fractures to the underside of his shell.

Zoo veterinary extern Garrett Fraess says keeping the shell bottom off the ground is important so it can heal. Fraess says no one makes turtle-sized wheelchairs, so he sent sketches to a friend who's a Lego enthusiast.

A few weeks after the surgery, the turtle had the wheelchair, which gets the shell off the ground and allows his legs to move.

Dr. Ellen Bronson says the turtle likely will use the wheelchair into the spring.

Q&A with Startup Grind Fremont Chapter Director Gaytri Khandelwal

BY GAYTRI KHNDELWAL,
STARTUP GRIND
FREMONT CHAPTER DIRECTOR

Fremont's Startup Grind chapter has a new leader at the helm. Meet Gaytri Khandelwal, investor/advisor to early-stage startups and a Salesforce sales leader for cloud, Internet of Things (IoT), and artificial intelligence (AI) solutions. Gaytri has spent 15+ years leading large-scale business transformations and driving customer success at companies like Cisco, General Electric, and Unilever. She is passionate about the latest technologies and how they are generating new revenue opportunities and business models. Gaytri is also a firm believer of giving back to the community and promoting technology startups. As we partner with Gaytri and welcome her to Startup Grind, we'd like to share her vision and goals for the Fremont Chapter.

Q: As the new Chapter Director for Startup Grind Fremont, what excites you most about the entrepreneurial community here?

I have been a Fremont resident for the last 12+ years and have been able to meet some very inspiring people, from local leaders to business owners. Fremont is a diverse demographic, and the community has always been welcoming and supportive of one another. That's what makes Fremont so unique and exciting. I often connect with tech industry employees who are early on in their careers. They are risk takers and go-getters, fascinated about startup success and always thinking about how emerging technologies like cloud computing, AI, IoT, and blockchain are opening up new market opportunities. They want to take part in this industrial revolution and make a long-lasting impact.

I also often meet seasoned employees who are in the middle of their careers. They bring a tremendous amount of corporate experience and are more grounded in reality. They are willing to take calculated risks and want to be involved in startups, but may not drop everything to start a venture of their own. Both of these demographics bring complementary skills and experience to bear, and when they work together, amazing work transpires. As they say, it takes a village to run a successful startup, and because Fremont's village includes a diversified pool of talent, it's the ideal place for startup cultivation.

Q: What is your vision for Startup Grind Fremont moving forward, and how will you make it happen?

Startup Grind is a global startup community designed to educate, connect, inspire, and support entrepreneurs. Whether you're an existing entrepreneur or thinking of starting or joining a startup, it's a great platform for everyone to participate in and benefit from.

At Startup Grind, we want to remain relevant. Our research has shown that we have a varied audience with different expectations. At the Fremont Chapter, we strive to exceed the expectations of our audience through thoughtful event planning, unique speakers, and relevant discussion topics. Moving forward, we will encourage attendees to provide feedback. We want to ensure that they see the value in our sessions and become our champions to help us grow the Chapter. We will also perform extensive outreach campaigns to increase membership.

Q: What can local entrepreneurs gain by attending an event hosted by Startup Grind Fremont?

At Startup Grind Fremont, we host fireside chats every month. At every event, we present influential speakers who share their startup journey, including lessons learned and advice they have for fellow entrepreneurs. In addition, our events are structured to allow attendees ample opportunities to connect with speakers and seek advice on their specific situations. We encourage attendees to bring their tough questions, whether they are related to marketing strategy, raising funds, driving sales, or planning an exit strategy. The Startup Grind Fremont team is here to support, inspire, and help make introductions.

Startup Grind events are proven places to meet local like-minded professionals (perhaps find your next co-founder/team member!), brainstorm ideas, and generate early validation and recommendations. Anyone just curious about the industry can attend to learn the latest trends, build their professional network, and find ways to plan their next career move. Students who dream about starting their own startup but have more questions than answers are also welcome to attend (student discounts are available). There is no better way to advance your ideas and avoid mistakes than by learning from other people's experiences.

Q: What advice do you have for up-and-coming startups and anyone interested in starting their own business?

It is a long and winding journey, so make sure you're ready to make the needed personal sacrifices and time investment. Find your funding source upfront. Many companies fold because funds are depleted. The idea is the commodity, but the execution is the key. You need to have patience and know when/whom to ask for help. I'm a huge believer of the lean startup methodology and highly recommend early validation. Surround yourself with inspiring mentors, and avoid people who drain your energy.

Q: Any final thoughts?

I'm very excited for the opportunity to build this community of connected local entrepreneurs. I'm looking forward to our next event on Thursday, October 11, at 6:30 p.m. at the Peerbuds Innovation Lab in Fremont. Miten Mehta, a developer evangelist at Google, will talk all about blockchain and AI. Tickets are available now at <https://www.startupgrind.com/events/details/startup-grind-fremont-presents-blockchain-and-ai-for-startups-demystified#>. Finally, we appreciate our sponsors for their generous support — the City of Fremont and Peerbuds. We will continue to evolve to stay relevant to our audience. Email your ideas to gaytri@startupgrind.com

Cowboys overpower Steelers

Fremont Football League

Fremont Football's Steelers are in a building year as a traveling team, so facing the Livermore Cowboys on September 15th was a herculean task. The muscular Cowboys took the field with a powerful offensive attack and quickly jumped to a first quarter lead. Showing grit and determination, the Steelers answered in the second quarter to keep the game competitive but as the game entered the second half, Cowboys power was too much to overcome. Fremont Football will host the last home games of the regular season at Irvington Community Park on Saturday, September 22nd. Come out and cheer for the home teams.

Arts Leadership Awards

SUBMITTED BY RACHEL OSAJIMA

The Alameda County Arts Commission is pleased to recognize seven individuals for their achievements and contributions impacting the arts community and residents of Alameda County. The recipients of the 2018 Alameda County Arts Leadership Award are: Paula Chenoweth and Mary Galde (team), Jonathan “Bionic” Bayani, Janet Koike, Gerald Thompson and Winifred Thompson (team), and Deborah Vaughan.

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors will commend these seven individuals during the Board’s public meeting on Tuesday, October 2, 2018 in Oakland. This event is presented in conjunction with the County’s celebration of National Arts and Humanities Month of October.

Supervisorial District One (Scott Haggerty):

Paula Chenoweth and Mary Galde, of Fremont, are the award recipients for the First District of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Paula Chenoweth and Mary Galde are the co-founders and co-directors of Broadway West Theatre in Fremont. For 21 years, they produced shows enjoyed by the local community. Each annual season included six full productions, as well as shorts plays and stage readings in the summers.

The shows were wide-ranging and included dramas, comedies, murder mysteries, and musicals. Paula and Mary were involved in every aspect of the organization— acting in and directing shows, designing and painting sets, and managing all elements of the productions and the organization. Along with established actors, local young talent and students were in many productions. The organization won many local awards. Paula and Mary’s Broadway West Theatre was a welcoming and vibrant arts organization for the community. In June 2018, Paula and Mary closed Broadway West Theatre to retire and begin a new phase of their lives.

Supervisorial District Two (Richard Valle):

Jonathan “Bionic” Bayani, of Fremont, is the award recipient for the Second District of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Jonathan “Bionic” Bayani is a dancer, performing artist, arts educator, and event organizer with Mighty4 Arts Foundation in Union City and All The Way Live in Hayward. He works and performs throughout the Bay Area and beyond. Jonathan’s work advances the artistry of dance and empowers youth. Jonathan has provided free dance workshops and lectures focused on youth and Hip-Hop dance arts with the goal of mentoring young dancers and sharing their passion for dance. Jonathan’s dance work spans over two decades. He is an international touring artist and a world-class champion competitor at international dance competitions since 1998. His talent and experience enabled him to have a very successful career in the entertainment industry. One of his biggest accomplishments was as a premier character in Cirque Du Soleil’s Michael Jackson Immortal World Tour. Jonathan traveled the globe for four years in this role. Jonathan currently works as

Supervisorial District Three (Wilma Chan):

Janet Koike, of the City of Alameda, is the award recipient for the Third District of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Janet Koike is the founder and artistic director of Rhythmix Cultural Works in the City of Alameda.

Supervisorial District Four (Nate Miley):

Gerald Thompson and Winifred Thompson, of Castro Valley, are the award recipients for the Fourth District of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Gerald (Gerry) Thompson and Winifred (Winnie) Thompson are arts community leaders who have worked with A.R.T., Inc. in Castro Valley, the Hayward Arts Council, and many other arts and cultural organizations throughout the area. Gerry and Winnie encourage and support local artists and arts organizations to help enrich the whole community. They are also both visual artists and exhibit their paintings at many local venues. In 2015, Gerry and Winnie became board members of A.R.T., Inc. where they work closely with the Adobe Art Center in Castro Valley to help coordinate the annual Members’ Show and the annual Area Artists’ Juried Exhibition. Since 2015, Winnie has served as the A.R.T., Inc. vice-president of events. Together, Gerry and Winnie plan and coordinate free artist demonstrations at the Adobe Art Center. For many years, Winnie has empowered community members to write their own life stories which she shares through her self-published series titled “My Name is America.” From 2014-2016, Gerry was A.R.T., Inc.’s gallery curator of the Baywood Court Community Center. Gerry and Winnie are also long-time board members of Hayward Arts Council and in 2016, they served as the Council’s co-presidents. They were an instrumental part of Hayward Arts Council’s move to its new home at the Hayward Adult School. In 2017, Gerry and Winnie were recipients of the Ruby Hearts of Hayward Award for their service to arts and the community.

Supervisorial District Five (Keith Carson):

Deborah Vaughan, of Oakland, is the award recipient for the Fifth District of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Deborah Vaughan is the co-founder and artistic director of the Dimensions Dance Theater in Oakland.

The Members of the Alameda County Arts Commission selected these individuals from a group of nominees submitted by the public. This annual program recognizes individuals or teams from each of the five Districts of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. For more information about the program or the award recipients, please contact the Alameda County Arts Commission at (510) 208-9646 or by email at artscommission@acgov.org.

GiveTeen20’s mission is to encourage and equip teens to find their career fit by providing no-cost, easy-to-use tools and resources.

We ask adults succeeding in their careers to give teens 20 minutes and answer three questions to provide career insights. We film the responses, edit to four minutes, and feature them on the GT20 website so teens have an opportunity to research career fields of interest. THE ROBOT REPORT

BY MIKE SANTORA

If asked to name an oceanic apex predator, sharks are usually the first to come to people’s minds. But ask a fisherman or conservationist in the Caribbean or coastal U.S. and you might get a different answer. There, a much smaller creature is terrorizing the underwater ecosystem.

Lionfish, a colorful aquarium fish native to the South Pacific and Indian oceans, have become a serious problem in the Caribbean and western Atlantic. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) calls them the “poster child for invasive species.” With no predators outside of their native waters, the population is expanding at an astonishing rate, putting additional stress on coral reefs already struggling from the effects of climate change, pollution, and overfishing.

That’s why undergraduate students at Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) are building an autonomous underwater robot that could help reduce the threat posed by an invasive species. The lionfish, if unchecked by natural predators, threatens the well-being of coral reefs and other marine ecosystems in Coastal U.S. and Caribbean waters, including commercially and recreationally crucial native fish the region depends on.

In a multi-year effort launched last fall, WPI student teams are developing a robot designed to autonomously hunt and harvest lionfish. The project’s goal is to reduce the impact of the invasive species on marine ecosystems from the Caribbean up to the coasts of Florida and Georgia. Since the fish is a pricey delicacy, the robot also could provide a new source of income for local fishers.

The first student project team, completing its MQP (Major Qualifying Project), worked this past academic year to develop several systems that will enable the submersible robot to distinguish lionfish from other species and spear them. The robot could offer local fishers, who frequently scuba dive to spear their catch, a more efficient and safe way to harvest the fish, which have poisonous spines.

“There are economic and environmental benefits to this, and the fish are delicious,” said Brandon Kelly, a robotics engineering student who focused on the robot’s computer vision system. “I’ve seen the massive devastation caused by these fish, and it made me want to work on this project. We felt like we could create some change in the world.”

Lionfish also are disrupting native fish populations that are commercially, recreationally, and ecologically important to the region. According to the Ocean Support Foundation, the fish, which have stomachs that can expand up to 30 times its normal volume as they eat, can reduce juvenile fish populations on a reef by nearly 90 percent in as little as five weeks. Lionfish have been found with more 50 species of juvenile fish in their stomachs.

WPI students aren’t the only ones trying to curb the lionfish’s destructive appetite either. iRobot CEO Colin Angle and Science from Scientists founder Erika Angle created the non-profit Robots in Service of the Environment (RSE) in the Spring of 2017. RSE’s first device was its Guardian LF1 Robot. Essentially a submersible lionfish vacuum, the Kickstarter-funded Guardian robot stuns lionfish before sucking them into a chamber for extraction.

While the Guardian can be used to harvest lionfish, it needs to be directed by an operator connected to the robot by a tether, which could damage fragile reefs. WPI’s robot would be untethered and would hunt for fish on its own, without human direction. Once it recognizes a lionfish, it would change course to intercept it and spear it. The buoyant spear tip would detach and float the fish to the surface to be collected. A fisher could use multiple robots to maximize his catch.

WPI states the goal is to toss the robot out of the boat, have it descend to the reef, plot out a course, and begin its search. Ideally, the robot will set up a search pattern and fly along the reef without collision. The idea is that the robots could be part of the environmental solution.

The past year’s MQP team members used machine learning, advanced computer vision libraries, neural network software, and computer vision models to develop the robot’s computer vision system, which is the key to distinguishing lionfish from the other fish and aquatic species in the area. They showed the system thousands of images of lionfish of different colors, taken from different angles and under different lighting conditions, to train it to recognize a lionfish with greater than 95 percent accuracy.

The team also developed a spearing and buoyancy compensation system. The robot has a revolving carousel, not unlike the cylinder of a revolver, that holds eight detachable spear tips. A motorized mechanism connects to a metal shaft that thrusts the spear tips into the fish. As the shaft retracts, leaving the buoyant spear tip embedded in the fish, the carousel turns to move the next spear tip into position.

As the spear tips are used, the robot loses buoyancy. To compensate, the researchers built a watertight, air-filled chamber that enlarges slightly after each spearing to displace more water and equalize the robot’s buoyancy.

The team also designed a water-tight chamber to protect the robot’s motherboard and electronics from the salt water, which is highly corrosive. “In many ways, this was the hardest part of the project,” said William Godsey, who worked on the system’s buoyancy and electronics chambers, along with its shooting mechanism. “Just because something is waterproof doesn’t mean it will work in salt water, which is an incredibly corrosive substance.”

The robot is being designed to attach to a commercially available, autonomous submersible robot. During the 2018-19 academic year, a second MQP team will focus on the robot’s global navigation system, which will enable it to autonomously establish and navigate a three-dimensional search grid as it seeks lionfish.

Park It

BY NED MACKAY

Morgan Territory Regional Preserve east of Mt. Diablo is one of the more remote and beautiful regional parklands, with grasslands, oak groves, and panoramic views of the mountain and Central Valley. Naturalist Kevin Dixon will explore the park on a hike from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, October 6. It's a strenuous trek, for ages 12 and older. Meet Kevin at the staging area on Morgan Territory Road, about nine miles south of the junction with Marsh Creek Road in Clayton. Drive with caution; Morgan Territory Road is narrow and winding. For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 2750.

There are lots of other activities planned in the regional parks as summer gives way to autumn. Over at Big Break Regional Shoreline, it's scat track time from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, October 6. Learn what kinds of animals have wandered past by examining the droppings they left behind. Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's Main Street. For information, call 888-327-2757, ext. 3050.

Las Trampas Regional Widerness in San Ramon is another rugged and beautiful regional parkland with abundant wildlife. Naturalist Ashley Adams will lead a hike there from 10 a.m. to noon on Sunday, October 7 in search of hawks, falcons and other birds of prey. Be advised, the hike probably will involve some hill climbing; it's all up and down at Las Trampas.

And naturalist Ashley Grenier plans a family photography walk at Las Trampas from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. the same day. It's a stroll along the Bollinger Creek Trail. The idea is to hand over your camera to your children and see how they view the world from their unique perspective closer to the ground.

For either hike, meet in the staging area at the north end of Bollinger Canyon Road off Crow Canyon Road. And for information on either program, call 510-544-3249.

Or you can awaken your spider senses on a walk with naturalist Anthony Fisher from 1:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, October 7 at the Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley. First Anthony will introduce the group to a very large spider (I'm guessing a tarantula), then everyone will walk into the woods in search of other eight-leggers. Meet Anthony at Tilden's Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Central Park Drive. Call 510-544-2233.

Anthony also plans a series of sunset photography hikes in the regional parks. The first is from 5 to 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, October 7 at Pt. Pinole Regional Shoreline in Richmond. Bring a camera and tripod, or your smart phone, to capture the parkland under autumn's skies. Meet Anthony in the parking lot past the bridge at the bay end of Atlas Road. Call 510-544-2233.

As mentioned last week, the 25th annual Gathering of Ohlone Peoples will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 7 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont. Ohlones from several tribes will share their culture with music, song, dance, stories and demonstration of ancient skills such as basketry and jewelry making.

Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle; the gathering is free of charge. Call 510-544-3220.

And for more information on all kinds of programs and attractions in the regional parks, visit the web site, www.ebparks.org.

Life after death: donating your body for medical research

BY SHIELA TRIAS
NARINDER SANDHU

Balbir K. Sandhu, mother of three children, six grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren, passed away on July 4, 2018 at the age of 90. It was also on that very same day that her final wish was to be fulfilled. Balbir's body was arranged to be picked up by Stanford Medical and donated to their educational department for the purpose of research upon her passing. It was a choice made long before the time of her death; perhaps one that was conceived by her deeply rooted respect for the medical field.

According to her son Narinder, Balbir had become ill with tuberculosis (TB) as a young child and was housed in a sanatorium in Shanghai, China, for approximately one year to receive treatment. "She was very impressed with the dedication and tireless work of the physicians and nurses who'd treated her," says Narinder. This was the event that initiated her fascination with medicine. One of her hopes was to study and eventually earn a career as a doctor, but fate intervened and instead she married a physician, Dr. Ram Charan Singh Sandhu who worked in public health.

Balbir's dedication for helping others never strayed too far. In the 1960s, she became actively involved with the Red Cross and worked alongside her husband toward eradicating local cases of small pox. It was through many years of witnessing the advancements in medicine that inspired her choice to donate her body to a local medical school through what's known as a Willd Body Program. This particular practice is not one that's traditionally exercised by the south Asian community, but it was an important choice for her – one that was truly personal and heavily supported by her beloved family.

The process began with the assistance of her son through online research; together they had discovered numerous universities within California that involved the use of donated bodies for anatomical study. They eventually decided that Stanford Medical School in Palo Alto was the best fit.

According to Stanford's website, the donor's body may be used to "teach students about the structure of the human body and for furthering medical and scientific knowledge." The program's study periods are known to range from one month up to as much as two years. The donor's body may also be used for surgical skills training, research and development, and lab skills practice among many other educational purposes. The use of an actual human body, rather than a simulation, provides students with an invaluable resource. Balbir knew it would serve as an enormous contribution to educating aspiring surgeons and hundreds of other future medical professionals.

Another factor that solidified their decision to choose Stanford was the amount of care they extended to the donors and their families. Stanford offers the choice to return the donor's cremated remains or arrange for an internment. Most schools take it a step further as UC Irvine did this year when they hosted a memorial to honor those individuals who had contributed. The event was attended by approximately 900 family members of the deceased. UC Davis, one of five other University of California campuses which also offers the program, shares in the tradition as they organize an annual event in memory of the donors. According to their website the school receives approximately 150 gifted bodies per year and currently has 8,000 registered donors.

The amount of interest alone not only shows that this is a rewarding conclusion for those who choose this route after death, but it also provides the gift of knowledge to those who receive it.

Fremont youth wins national award

SUBMITTED BY LIZ AMMIRATO

Shreya Ramachandran, age 14, of Fremont, California, has been named a winner of the 2018 Gloria Barron Prize for Young Heroes. Each year, the Barron Prize celebrates 25 inspiring, public-spirited young people from across the U.S. and Canada who have made a significant positive difference to people and the environment. Fifteen top winners each receive $10,000 to support their service work or higher education.

Shreya founded The Grey Water Project (www.thegreywaterproject.org), a non-profit that promotes the safe reuse of grey water and water conservation as a way to address drought. She works tirelessly to educate others about grey water – the gently used water from household sinks, showers, and laundry – and to remove the stigma that it is unclean and unusable. She has learned the California Plumbing Code and conducts seminars to show others how easy it is to build "laundry to lawn" grey water systems using organic detergents such as soap nuts. Soap nuts are a natural berry shell that release soap when placed in water. They are cost effective as a laundry detergent and are readily available around the world.

Shreya began her work with painstaking research on the environmental safety of soap nut grey water, concluding after three years that it doesn't harm soil, plants, or aquatic life. She is now collaborating with several California water agencies to promote grey water reuse. She has earned numerous awards for her work, including the President's Environmental Youth Award, and was invited to partner with the United Nations' Global Wastewater Initiative. She is currently developing a grey water curriculum for elementary students to teach water conservation and the idea that small actions can make a huge difference. "I've learned that even though I am young, I can make a positive impact in my community," says Shreya. "If I want to change something, I have to go out and make that difference instead of waiting for someone to do it for me."

The Barron Prize was founded in 2001 by author T. A. Barron and was named for his mother, Gloria Barron. "Nothing is more inspiring than stories about heroic people who have truly made a difference to the world," says Barron. "And we need our heroes today more than ever. Not celebrities, but heroes – people whose character can inspire us all. That is the purpose of the Gloria Barron Prize: to shine the spotlight on these amazing young people so that their stories will inspire others."
