In a world consumed by electronics and digital media, Woodside's Chaparral Ranch is doing its part to bring people closer to nature. The ranch focuses on horseback riding, offering various lessons and activities for people of all age groups and experience levels.

Chaparral Ranch, originally located in Milpitas, was opened in 2009 by Susan Pennell and Shawn Mott. Mott helped found Sunol Pack station, also known as the Sunol Regional Wilderness Equestrian Riding Concession, and helped create several other Alameda County ranches. Mott and Pennell began working out of the Ed Levin park and offering trail rides and lessons, with the ranch eventually blooming into the business it is today. "It was a joint idea for both of us, just [based on] a passion for horses and working with people – children and adults," said Pennell. "Teaching them how to have a relationship with the horses, and getting them away from the computers and phones and out into nature."

Kids Need Strong Bones to Grow Up Healthy

Fremont Pediatrician Offers Bone-Building Tips

We all want our kids to grow up strong and healthy, but sometimes parents overlook the importance of bone health. According to the National Institutes of Health, up to 90 percent of peak bone mass is acquired by age 18 for girls and age 20 for boys, so investing in your child's bone health is critical.

"Childhood is the most important time for building bone mass," said Dr. Bhaskari Peela, a Fremont pediatrician and member of the Washington Township Medical Foundation." Bones provide the framework for your child's body, so they have to be strong."

But bones are much more than just the scaffolding our bodies need to stand upright, she explained. They also protect our internal organs, produce red and white blood cells, and enable mobility. Calcium and phosphorus constitute the important components of the bone, she added.

According to Dr. Peela, diet and exercise are the keys to building strong bones. That means drinking plenty of milk and eating foods that are high in calcium and vitamin D, which helps bones absorb calcium. Making sure your kids stay active is also important.

Got Milk?

The calcium requirement for kids depends on how old they are. Dr. Peela recommends the following:

- 1 to 3 years old – 500 milligrams per day
- 4 to 8 years old – 800 milligrams per day
- 9 to 18 years old – 1300 milligrams per day

Milk, cheese and yogurt are excellent sources of calcium. An 8-ounce glass of milk has 300 milligrams of calcium. Leafy green vegetables like kale, spinach and collard greens are also good sources.

Children play and sometimes get hurt. Local physician provides tips on pediatric bone health.

"Sometimes it's hard to get kids to eat their green vegetables," she added. "Other good sources are almonds and beans, as well as breads and cereals that have been fortified with calcium and vitamin D. Salmon, canned tuna, mushrooms and eggs are also good sources of vitamin D."

Kids should avoid carbonated beverages and caffeine because they have been associated with low bone density. Dr. Peela notes, "The only beverages your kids should drink are milk, water and fresh-squeezed juices. I don't even recommend bottled juices because many contain too much sugar and not enough nutrients." Children should drink two glasses of milk every day until about age 16. That could include soy milk or almond milk because those are fortified with calcium and vitamin D.

"Sunlight is also a good source of vitamin D," she added. "We have an epidemic of vitamin D deficiency in this country because we don't spend enough time outside. You need to get your kids away from their video games and screen time, and out into the sunlight. But they should wear sunscreen of at least 15 SPF when they are outdoors."

Get Moving

Physical activity can also help your kids build strong bones. Any activity is good, but weight-bearing activities like walking, running, hiking, dancing, tennis and basketball are preferred.

"Summer is almost here and it's time to get your kids moving," Dr. Peela said. "Do some activities as a family. Go hiking or bike riding. The important thing is for your kids to spend less time sitting inside and more time moving outside."

Future Health Care Providers Earn Scholarships

Washington Hospital Service League Encourages Local High School Students to Pursue Their Dreams

Sidharth Barathi

The Washington Hospital Service League is well known for its many dedicated volunteers, both adults and students, who work with the Hospital's staff to provide care and support to patients, families, and visitors.

What may not be as well known is that the Service League also supports our community by providing scholarships to residents 22 years of age or younger who wish to pursue a career in health care and also live in the Washington Hospital Township District. The Service League's scholarship program, which has contributed to the training and education of many young people in the community, was established in 1961. The first nursing scholarship of $150 was awarded to a nursing student training at Highland Hospital.

During the last 60 years, the Service League has awarded a total of $346,335 in scholarships to deserving students. Now, the Service League grants two $1,000 scholarships annually that are renewable for three additional years, based on the student's academic performance and continued focus on the health care field. A one-time scholarship of $1,000 is also awarded.

"We appreciate our volunteers, who love working in the Hospital, helping patients and families. We also find it meaningful to give assistance and support to budding doctors, nurses and other health care professionals who, in the future, may be serving our community," explained the Service League scholarship chair, Dian Zarzycki. "Meeting these impressive young people and learning about their past accomplishments and future hopes and dreams is inspirational." The 2019 winners are Sidharth Barathi, Kunal Kapoor and Katherine Miao.

Sidharth Barathi is the winner of the four-year Josephine Walton Health Career Scholarship. He plans to major in biopsychology at UC Santa Barbara with the goal of becoming a physician. The committee found him to be a bright, motivated, enthusiastic, and empathetic young man.

Katherine Miao

Kunal Kapoor is the winner of the four-year Katherine Fusco Health Career Scholarship. His career goal is to become a physician and he would like to focus on emergency medicine and infectious diseases. He is currently attending UC Berkeley.

Katherine Miao is the winner of the one-time $1,000 Anna Elola Health Career Scholarship. She will be attending the University of Chicago this fall with the goal of becoming a pediatrician. Katherine is an accomplished musician and also a volunteer in the Washington Hospital front lobby.

Music at the Mission: Visions of Spain

MISSION AND RAGAZZI BOYS CHORUS

The Music at the Mission season finale on Friday, June 14 at Old Mission San Jose promises to be an extraordinary experience, musically, visually, and emotionally. “Visiones de España (Visions of Spain)” features the world premiere of El Greco triptych, by Music at the Mission composer in residence Mark Fish, inspired by the dynamic visual and performing arts of Spain where the cultures of north Africa and Europe historically embrace. Additional highlights of this dynamic classical concert are Stravinsky’s Suite Italienne, Lara’s Granada for solo harp with guest artist Dan Levitan, Granados’ “Los Requeiebros” from Goyescas (The gallants in love), and short works by Braga, Bruna and Duron performed on Old Mission San Jose’s historically correct Spanish organ “Rosales op.14” by guest artist Ron McKean. Kennedy Center Opera House violist Uri Wassertzug joins Music at the Mission chamber players Eugenie Wie (violin), Adelle Akiko Kearns (cello), Bill Everett (bass) Rhonda Braderich (flute), and Aileen Chanco (piano).

“From Moorish roots of art and religion followed by the Spanish renaissance, Spain was enriched by other cultures and, in turn, influenced the world beyond its borders with 20th century artists such as the great modernists Picasso and Miro. Paintings by El Greco, Moro, Goya and others, along with Picasso’s innovative set designs and costumes from the Diaghilev Ballets Russes ballet Pulcinella, will serve as a visual framework for the Visiones de Espana concert program, enhancing the audience experience and providing historic perspective,” noted Bill Everett, Music at the Mission co-artistic director with Aileen Chanco. The performance of Suite Italienne will be accompanied by drawings and paintings from Picasso’s set and costume design from Pulcinella.

It was natural to look to history, art and design when considering the new composition commission. This is not Fish’s first time delving into music inspired by painting. In fact, while considering Pictures of Miro for the concert program, Everett and Fish began discussing sources of Spanish art as inspiration and both quickly came to El Greco for the new work. Images of the artwork relating to each piece will be projected on the big screen behind the Music at the Mission chamber players during the performance.

“For me, the creative process differs from piece to piece. But what comes at the beginning of that process is most important,” explained Fish, describing how during his honeymoon in Barcelona he discovered, several eras of Miro’s self-portraits that contrasted greatly in style and mood. “I tried to capture both the mood and some characteristics of each painting. Each movement is very short, no longer than two and a half minutes at the most, and in one case only 40 seconds, but certain characters stick out. Dog barking at the moon, one of Miro’s most famous paintings, has the viola making an actual barking sound by scratching the strings, while the flute is holding long high notes to represent the moon hanging in the sky. Girl practicing gymnastics requires a bit of acting from the flutist, who keeps trying to play a high e, but has to stop and check to see that the flute is working properly.”

In El Greco triptych, the composer delves deep into the visual art of El Greco’s Fable, view of Toledo, and Holy trinity. “View of Toledo,” says Fish, “the second movement, is a painting with which I’ve been familiar since I was a child; a copy hung in our family hallway for years, and the end of the first, but it is longer and harmonized by one other ‘voice.’ The last movement, ‘Holy trinity,’ is the only sacred painting of the three. What stands out to me the most is the light above and the dove of the Holy Ghost. This is why the piece ends with the flame theme again, but fully harmonized, eventually sung a cappella by a boys chorus.”

Music at the Mission welcomes the Avanti chorus of the Grammy award-winning Ragazzi Boys Chorus, conducted by Kent L. Jue, as guest artists for El Greco triptych. The Avanti chorus, an upper level treble group that performs its own repertoire and tours domestically every year, will also perform Riu riu Chiu (a 16th century Spanish villancico) to open the concert.

The El Greco triptych commission is made possible by East Bay Fund for Artists at East Bay Community Foundation and Union Bank. Tickets to Visiones de España are available through the Music at the Mission website or at the door.

Department of Toxic Substances Control

June 2019

Public Notice

The mission of DTSC is to protect California's people and environment from harmful effects of toxic substances by restoring contaminated resources, enforcing hazardous waste laws, reducing hazardous waste generation, and encouraging the manufacture of chemically safer products.

LAND USE COVENANT FOR PERALTA CROSSING 4133 AND 4167 PERALTA BOULEVARD

FREMONT, CALIFORNIA

The Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) announces a proposed Land Use Covenant (LUC) for a portion of Peralta Crossing (Site) located at 4133 and 4167 Peralta Boulevard in Fremont, California 94536. This Site is also known as the Renato Redevelopment. The Site is being redeveloped as multi-family residential units. Investigations conducted between 2015 and 2018 determined soil vapor at the Site is contaminated from the release of the volatile organic compound (VOC) tetrachloroethylene (PCE) along a portion of the north-western property line where two former dry cleaners operated between 1965 and 1990. PCE is a solvent commonly used as a cleaning agent in dry cleaning operations and the former dry-cleaning businesses are the likely source of the PCE. To reduce the risk of potential PCE vapors intruding from under the floor into buildings; vapor mitigation systems (VMS) will be installed beneath the four newly constructed residences overlying the area of soil vapor impacted by PCE. The VMS installation and performance monitoring will be conducted under DTSC oversight and approval.

The Site Owner will enter into a Land Use Covenant (LUC) and Operations and Maintenance (O&M) Agreement with DTSC to ensure the ongoing effectiveness of the VMS. The LUC is a legal document that sets forth the land use restrictions and requirements for annual inspections for the Site. The LUC restrictions and requirements are binding on current and subsequent Owners, and will remain in effect until formally removed or modified by DTSC.

HOW CAN I GET MORE INFORMATION? Site documents are available at the DTSC File Room, 700 Heinz Avenue, Berkeley, California 94710, please call (510) 540-3800 for an appointment. ## Teachers and District reach a deal

SUBMITTED BY JOHN MATTOS, NEW HAVEN UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

After fourteen days of teachers on the picket line, the New Haven Teachers Association (NHTA) and New Haven Unified management bargaining teams reached a tentative agreement that will bring to a close the strike that began Monday, May 20.

The agreement will give NHTA members a 3% on-the-schedule pay increase effective January 1, 2019. This is an effective 1.5% increase for this 18/19 school year and a 3% increase moving forward in 19/20. Teachers will also receive a one-time, off-the-schedule pay increase of 2.5% for 18/19. For 2019/20, members will receive an additional 1% on-the-schedule pay increase effective July 1, 2019.

Contingency language was also included that could add up to an additional 1% on-the-schedule salary increase should district revenues come in higher than projected in 19/20.

Finally, language was added that would allow teachers who were set to retire at the end of this school year to perform additional duties during the summer in order to earn a full year of service credit towards retirement.

Both teams put in almost 200 hours at the bargaining table during the strike to reach an agreement. We are thrilled that our teachers will be back with their students where they, the community, and the District want them to be.

Teachers will be back in their classrooms Monday, June 10, in time for the last week of school, pending ratification.

Education Corner: call for submissions

Dear Fellow Educators:

The Tri-City Voice is offering to publish human interest stories of the classroom in its Education Corner. We want to show what teaching and administrating and staffing are truly like, for public school education is generally not well understood by the public. Many seem to think educators have it easy with our vacations and breaks. Most have no idea what it takes to manage and teach 150 to 200 teenagers a day, or to attempt to educate in multiple subjects one set of students for a year, the pain as well as the pleasure.

We want well written vignettes or stories based on the classroom, of approximately 800 words, preferably less. We all have our favorite stories: the humorous ones, the failures, the successes, the drama, the issues. Please, no political harangues, no personal vendettas, and no information that might leave you vulnerable to legal action.

Submit via email to jameslecuyer@yahoo.com along with your name, present city, present or former position, phone number, and email address. We will not include email addresses in our published work, and will contact you beforehand if we print your story.

TAKES FROM SILICON VALLEY EAST

Advancing Silicon Valley Innovation

Silicon Valley companies now have a powerful resource in their backyard to help them navigate local, national, and global regulatory policies, as well as risk management and safety issues. Global safety science company UL recently opened its newly expanded Silicon Valley Laboratory for electromagnetic compatibility (EMC) and wireless testing in Fremont. This facility is the largest of its type in North America and a significant addition to the region’s innovation ecosystem. We spoke with Ghislain Devouge, global vice president and general manager, consumer technology at UL, about critical challenges entrepreneurs and engineers face and what UL’s new facility brings to the table.

Q: What are some of the challenges that manufacturers face in terms of product safety testing and certification?

A: Technology regulations change frequently, meaning that manufacturers may have to conduct new testing even if their products are already on the market. Additionally, manufacturers who add wireless capability to existing products for (Internet of Things) IoT and medical applications must meet the complex and varied wireless regulatory requirements in their intended markets.

Q: How does UL help Silicon Valley companies tackle those challenges?

A: In a nutshell, UL addresses safety testing and certification for our clients in the automotive, medical device, lighting, appliance, information technology equipment, and IoT device sectors. We apply state-of-the-art testing technology and objective authority to help engineers and entrepreneurs determine that their products comply with safety requirements established in the applicable standards.

Q: How does the new facility fit into the Silicon Valley innovation ecosystem?

A: The innovation happening in Silicon Valley is unlike any other place in the world. Companies are continually inventing world-changing products and solutions. They want to make sure these innovations are safe and can fulfill their market promise. That’s where we come in – the expanded facility equips us to better support Silicon Valley companies, fast-track their project fulfillment, and allows us to service a more diverse range of products.

For example, the multi-million dollar expansion adds a 39,000-square-foot building to the existing campus. The facility now spans a total of 178,900 square feet, representing one of the largest EMC testing footprints in North America, and featuring 16 specific absorption rate (SAR) systems, 10 3-meter chambers, two 5-meter chambers, and an advanced 10-meter chamber that allows the lab to test very large equipment, including automotive technologies, medical devices, such as a CT scanner and big gaming components.

Q: UL is a global company serving a diverse customer base in more than 100 countries with offices in 46 countries. What made Fremont the city of choice for this new facility?

A: UL’s Fremont campus specializes in helping manufacturers prepare their product for testing and understanding and meeting the necessary regulatory requirements for EMC and wireless, radio performance, radio frequency (RF) exposure and safety, including 5G. As demand increases for testing and certification services, we want to provide customers with advanced testing technology and capabilities, automated data collection and immediate access to knowledgeable experts. Fremont’s highly skilled talent pool with roles ranging from electrical engineering and lab technicians to security offers exactly that. Now, employing more than 300 UL team members, we’re thrilled to help Silicon Valley clients go to market in compliance, on time, and in a cost-effective manner.

“The Complete Works of Shakespeare [ABRIDGED] (Revised)” is a hysterical and zany show that was the longest-running comedy in London’s history. Plethos Productions is bringing this wild ride to the beautiful TwiningVine Winery in Castro Valley beginning on Friday, June 14.

The show, written by Adam Long, Daniel Singer, and Jess Winfield, takes the audience on a journey alongside three Shakespearean quasi-experts—Nick, Amanda, and Brian. The three audacious actors attempt to perform all 37 of Shakespeare’s plays in just 90 minutes. And of course, hilarity ensues. From “Romeo and Juliet” to “Hamlet,” and even all of the sonnets in between, each and every work of Shakespeare gets a nod. The show has been described as “Drunk History presents all of Shakespeare.” This laugh-out-loud farce is great for audiences of all ages as it features sword fights, ridiculous props, crazy wigs and all the hijinks of an improv comedy show.

Shakespeare Abridged is directed by Riley Hyde, who has performed on stages throughout the Bay Area, including several at Castro Valley’s own Chanticleers Theatre and the Douglas Morrisson Theatre. The cast members are all seasoned performers who have also been seen in plays and musicals throughout the Bay Area.

Each performance will take place amongst the vines of TwiningVine Winery on Cull Canyon road. Audiences are welcome to enjoy local wine, food and desserts from their seats or from the picnic lawn area throughout the performance. The show runs Friday through Sunday, June 14-16 and 21-23. Tickets purchased before June 8 are just $15; after that general admission is $20. Tickets are available now at plethos.org.

Apple previews new software as it diversifies beyond iPhones

By MICHAEL LIEDTKE
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

Apple, beset by falling iPhone sales, announced upcoming changes to its phone and computer software intended to highlight its new digital services and to further position it as a defender of personal privacy.

The revisions previewed Monday during a conference in San Jose, California, included a new feature that will let people log into apps and other services with an Apple ID instead of relying on similar sign-in options from Facebook and Google – two companies that mine data to sell advertising. Apple said it won't collect tracking information about users from that service.

As part of that feature, Apple will also let users mask their true email addresses when signing into apps and services. That will involve faux email addresses that automatically forward to the user's personal email. When the next free version of the iPhone software comes out this fall, Apple is also promising to give people the option of limiting the time apps can follow their locations and prevent tracking through Bluetooth and Wi-Fi signals.

The revisions are part of Apple's ongoing attempts to separate itself from other technology giants, many of whom offer free services in exchange for personal data such as whereabouts and personal interests, which in turn fuels the advertising that generates most of their revenue. Apple, by contrast, makes virtually all its money selling devices and services, making it easier for CEO Tim Cook to embrace privacy as "a fundamental human right."

Monday's software showcase is an annual rite that Apple holds for thousands of programmers at the end of spring. This year, however, Apple is grappling with its biggest challenge since its visionary co-founder, Steve Jobs, died nearly eight years ago.

Although still popular, the iPhone is no longer reliably driving Apple's profits the way it has for the past decade. Sales have fallen sharply for the past two quarters and could suffer another blow if China's government targets the iPhone in retaliation for the trade war being waged. Another potential problem looms for Apple. Regulatory complaints and a consumer lawsuit both question whether Apple has been abusing the power of its iPhone app store to thwart competition and gouge smaller technology companies that rely on it to attract users and sell their services.

Apple is trying to adapt by squeezing money from digital services tailored for the more than 900 million iPhones currently in use.

And the iPhone remains its marquee product. The latest version of its iPhone operating software, iOS 13, manages to offer both privacy features and a "dark mode" for the screen – a feature already available on Macs.

Apple executives also claimed that iOS 13 will open apps faster and features a new version of the Face ID system will unlock your phone 30 percent faster.

Apple Maps will get the biggest makeover of any of the company's built-in apps. Beginning with iOS 13 the maps will include granular street and place data that Apple says it collected with street and aerial footage – tactics its largest mobile app rival Google has been using for years.

Apple also unveiled several new apps for its smartwatch, including independent apps that don't rely on the iPhone in another sign of the company's determination to lessen its dependence on that product. The App Store will be available on the watch, making it possible for people to find and download apps right on their watch – expanding the availability of purchases that generate commissions for Apple.

The iPad will also get its own operating system instead of piggybacking on the iPhone software as Apple tries to cater to consumers who would like the tablet to be able to do more of the things a laptop computer can do.

In its laptop and desktop businesses, Apple is breaking up its iTunes software for computers into three apps: Apple Music, Apple Podcasts and Apple TV. Apple debuted iTunes 16 years ago to sell and manage digital music for the iPod, which paved the way for the iPhone.

Apple has already de-emphasized iTunes on the iPhone and iPad, but now it will do the same on the Mac as well later this year. iTunes will still be available on Macs using older versions of the operating system, as well on all machines running on Microsoft's Windows.

YouTube updates hate speech guidelines to prohibit videos

By RACHEL LERMAN
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

YouTube updated its hate speech policies Wednesday to prohibit videos with white supremacy and neo-Nazi viewpoints.

The video streaming company says it has already made it more difficult to find and promote such videos, but it's now removing them outright. YouTube will also prohibit videos that deny certain proven events have taken place, such as the Holocaust.

The changes come as YouTube, Facebook, Twitter and other online services face mounting concern that the services allow, and in some cases foster, extremism.

YouTube's new policies will take effect immediately. Specifically, the service is banning videos "alleging that a group is superior in order to justify discrimination, segregation or exclusion." The ban applies to a range of characteristics, including race, sexual orientation and veteran status.

YouTube, which is owned by Google, said it's removing thousands of channels that violate the new policies.

YouTube's changes follow moves from Facebook to prohibit not only white supremacy, but also white nationalism and white separatism.

The two services, which allow people to create and upload their own materials, have faced considerable backlash about offensive videos on their services – and for how long they allowed live video feeds to stay online, such as during the mosque shooting in Christchurch, New Zealand.

The companies have said they are walking the balance between creating safe spaces while also protecting freedom of expression.

With little government oversight on online material, internet companies have become the arbiters for what is and isn't allowed.

And the policies don't always fall into clean, delineated lines.

YouTube is facing controversy over its refusal to remove videos from conservative commentator Steven Crowder, in which he uses homophobic slurs to describe Vox reporter Carlos Maza. YouTube said Crowder hasn't told people to harass Maza, and the primary point of his video is to offer opinion, and thus it didn't violate YouTube's anti-harassment policies.

Criticism of the decision has poured out online. YouTube later said it had removed Crowder's ability to make money on YouTube.

Crowder did not immediately respond to a request for comment but posted a video on Twitter saying his channel is not going anywhere.

Swalwell package takes aim at student debt

SUBMITTED BY
NATALIE EDELSTEIN

In an effort to alleviate many of the challenges borrowers encounter while participating in the student loan system, Rep. Eric Swalwell recently introduced a robust package of education bills to update the system.

The five-bill legislative package, introduced June 4, offers federal student loan relief to public servants and teachers, increases access to the Public Service Loan Forgiveness program, doubles the student loan interest deduction for individuals and provides yearly updated information to student borrowers on their loan repayment options so they can pick plans that work for them.

"This package of bills addresses some of the fundamental flaws in our borrowing system," Swalwell said. "For too many Americans, college is not working the way it is supposed to. Getting an education should not cost you your livelihood, and these bills will help address the growing student debt crisis, affecting more than 42 million borrowers in the United States."

Specifically, these bills address the following issues:

- Strengthening Loan Forgiveness for Public Servants: Enhances the Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program, which offers student loan forgiveness to teachers, police officers, public health workers and others who dedicate their careers to public service. Borrowers would receive loan forgiveness in proportion to their years of public service.

- STEM K to Career Act: Offers federal student loan relief to STEM teachers and provides tax credits to certain employers who work to provide internships or apprenticeships in the STEM field. It also amends the Federal Work Study program to offer more STEM opportunities.
- Fairness in Forgiveness Act: Allows current and former long-time workers at all 16 privately-operated Department of Energy National Laboratories to seek forgiveness of their federal student loans under the Public Service Loan Forgiveness program.
- Student Loan Interest Deduction Act: Doubles tax deductions for student loan interest (from $2,500 to $5,000) and eliminates income phase-outs that prevent people who live in high-cost areas from reaping the benefits.
- Know Your Repayment Options Act: Directs the Department of Education to inform all federal student loan borrowers of all their repayment options on a yearly basis, with specific information for each individual.

As students around the country graduate from high school and college, many are encountering the realities of student loan debt for the first time. According to Swalwell's office student loan debt consistently ranks as one of the highest concerns for millennials. The goal of these five bills is to get one step closer to a barrier and debt free future for students across the country.

For more information, or to view the full text of each bill, visit Swalwell's website at <https://swalwell.house.gov/issues/education-and-student-loans>.

Swalwell, a Democrat, represents California's 15th congressional district which includes most of eastern Alameda County and part of central Contra Costa County, including Castro Valley, Hayward, Fremont, Sunol, Union City, Pleasanton, San Ramon and Dublin.

Founder Branding – A Critical Success Factor for Entrepreneurs

BY ASOK CHATTERJEE

In the business world we are all familiar with the concept of branding as related to companies, organizations. It captures what an outsider thinks of them in the first blush. In other words, branding tells what a company stands for. However, how does an entrepreneur, who perhaps is only at the starting gate with nothing but a great idea, or perhaps only a concept of a product, brand her idea, or his concept? For him and her, it is critical to impress a potential investor to attract funding. It is critical to impress suitable talented individuals to come and work for this startup and not to be lured away to some other.

The answer to the above challenge is a suitably developed personal branding of the founder. Simply stated, how does the audience view, perceive the qualities, capabilities, track record of the person who is at the starting gate. This branding concept is distinctly different from organizational branding, and clearly needs to be understood by all entrepreneurs in order to have a chance to be successful.

The Fremont Chapter of the global platform for entrepreneurs, called Startup Grind, invited Ms. Irene Koehler on June 6th to share her thoughts on the aptly named topic ‘Common Founder Branding Mistakes and How to Fix Them Today.’ Irene is a well-known social media marketing and personal branding expert. She also is an Adjunct Professor of Social Media Marketing at San Francisco State University.

Personal branding addresses the important issue of how one wants others to see in herself, what others say when she leaves the room. A potential investor typically takes the first step of finding ‘what’s out there’ about an aspiring entrepreneur by Googling him or her. And so, the social media information needs to show linkage between one’s past, one’s capabilities and one’s vision for the future.

Information that helps create a positive branding typically includes attributes such as honesty, transparency, and ability to work as a team. In the social media, an entrepreneur needs to emphasize past results and accomplishments that added value, rather than a simple listing of impressive sounding corporate positions held in the past. Willingness to share the spotlight with others is always a sure way to brand one as a generous individual.

Personal branding makes sense only when it is believable. Even past failures may be a useful tool if the information emphasizes on the learnings from those experiences.

Koehler’s concluding advice to the aspiring entrepreneurs was to distinguish between generally shared non-targeted information such as those on a Facebook page, and the information given out only to a more narrowly targeted audience. It is also helpful to understand the difference between individual’s skills (such as sales, public service, leadership) and that person’s characteristics (such as fearless, innovative).

As always, the well attended Startup Grind session moderated by Gaytri Khandelwal generated spirited discussions. Irene Koehler’s interactive style of engagement helped create a virtuous learning environment.

Local Arts
Organization to Operate
Chabot Theater

SUBMITTED BY PAUL KEIM

Local arts organization, Smalltown Society, in partnership with First Presbyterian Church of Hayward, has purchased the historic Chabot Theater at 2853 Castro Valley Blvd, in an effort to preserve and build upon its historic legacy, continuing to make it a community asset for years to come.

In an effort to save the theater from being destroyed or utilized for alternate purposes, a team of local residents was formed to purchase the theater and launch a new business that will begin operation on June 4, 2019. One hundred percent of all profits from the business will be reinvested into local art and advocacy projects.

Smalltown Society will continue to operate The Chabot as a community “first-run” cinema house, while implementing some exciting new ideas and plans for the future (including enhancing both the property and schedule), establishing the theater as a cultural hub in Castro Valley.

The Chabot will continue to run as normal through the summer, with an official grand opening scheduled for late 2019.

The Alameda County Water District (ACWD) took another step forward this spring in keeping water supplies environmentally sustainable when construction started on the final of two fish ladders along Alameda Creek. The final fish ladder, fish screens and control building modifications cost $36.7 million with $11.1 secured in grants. The project will mark the completion of a larger-scale venture to restore threatened steelhead trout to the creek and secure water supplies throughout the region.

“The finish line is in sight,” said ACWD Board President James Gunther. “Collectively, these projects mark the greatest investment the district has made in Alameda Creek. But what’s more vital, and can’t be measured in dollars and cents, is the security our customers can have knowing the work done now will pay off – future generations will benefit,” said Gunther.

A total $78 million investment in fish passage initiatives includes installation of several fish screens and re-diversion pipelines, control building modifications, two rubber dam replacements, and construction of two fish ladders. The collection spans decades of planning and construction with multi-agency partnerships and coordination including extensive work with local, state, and federal agencies.

With nearly 40 percent of ACWD’s water supply being sourced from Alameda Creek, the projects improve long-term water supply reliability while enhancing fish passage through Lower Alameda Creek. Alameda Creek and Quarry Lakes trails are expected to remain open during construction; however, temporary closures may be necessary to protect public safety. Advanced signage will be posted. To learn more current and past fish passage projects, visit www.acwd.org/fishway.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: JUNE 12 – JUNE 18, 2019

For All Signs: Mars represents the warrior within us, and Saturn symbolizes the inner teacher. A common association is that Mars, as accelerator, is being held by the brakes of Saturn. This is a time to evaluate the results of new starts generated during the late spring of 2018, hesitating, and making corrections or needed changes now.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): A difficult situation that began in the spring or 2018 concerning property and/or family arrives at a significant turning point during this period. You have poured heart and soul into it for many months, but this time you know you must step aside for the sake of sanity and other life requirements, such as career and personal life goals. You are not a bad person. You simply need a break from responsibilities.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): Intensity in relationships is the theme of the week. If you are not conscious, you could be pulled into schemes of manipulation or compulsive behaviors. Existing relationships could re-experience the pain of old wounds. You have a choice of whether to work it through or act it out in the same ways as the first time. If things feel “icky,” someone is manipulating.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): An intense experience within a relationship has a purpose. You are asked to search deep inside yourself for your contribution to the difficulty, own it, and confess it. Healing will be the result for you and probably the other. It is a good time to adjust issues of power.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): It may be difficult to find common ground with partners, authorities, or significant others in your life. You have a desire to express yourself and the "other" seems to be recalcitrant. Don't turn this into a power play or a long-term resentment. That will not be good for your health. Tone down your anger a notch or two and say your piece. Then let it go.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): You have enough energy to spare. Apply heavy muscle to exercise or a chore that needs to be done. Otherwise you may become snappy and are liable to pick a fight. Work with those who share your rhythm this week, or you may say things that you'll wish you had not. We each have our own drumbeat and yours is as important as that of others.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): The more you attempt to hurry, the more rocks in your path. You might just as well take your time and allow things to develop as they will. Rushing along will not get you there any faster. If a traffic jam gets in your way, try to take it in stride. These things happen with regularity. The cosmos is not pointing at you.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): A legal issue or a paperwork snafu may surface and waste a lot of time and energy. Authorities are recalcitrant and demanding. Do not attempt to confront challenging people during this period. Even though you are reasonable, it is likely the opposing forces will not match your attitude.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): A challenging situation that began in the spring of 2018 comes to a head at this time. The issue seems to be related to law, travel, your vehicle, education, siblings and roommates. It is possible that the original problem went underground and is now returning in the form of resentment. Try to negotiate until you reach a win-win resolution.

The spirit is meant to help us make improvements and fine tune previous work. The potential trap is one of nagging and nit-picking. Use it for evaluation and avoid falling into a snare of criticism. Mars opposite Saturn is a time in which accidents are more likely with vehicles and other machinery. Drive and handle tools carefully.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Forward motion may be hard to accomplish this week. It appears there is a blockade in all directions. Do what you can and take a few naps while you wait for the dust to settle. Your unconscious mind is preventing you from acting prematurely.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): You may experience some physical discomfort due to environmental stressors at home or work. Those who suffer allergies need to use special caution in avoidance this week. Your physical cycle is on a mild dip. Rest plenty and take your vitamins. You may need to take a temporary break in your workout regimen.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): You may be taking a sober look at one or more relationships. Even the very closest friends cannot know each other from the inside. Sometimes we forget this fact and need to become aware that we are separate beings, helping when we can. Sometimes our energy is too low to be there for one another.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Beware of any offer that looks “too good to be true.” Yes, it is. Don't bite, lest you lose. Love, romance, and relationship(s) to children are favorable. Social and business relationship activities are rewarding. Concentrate on remaining centered and grounded. This will lead to solid decisions.

Volunteers help students sharpen tech skills

ARTICLE AND PHOTO SUBMITTED BY JIM HSIA

Students at Milpitas Christian School (MCS) recently used their science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) skills to understand the concepts for designing, constructing and packaging bandages in a challenge sponsored by Johnson & Johnson Vision on Wednesday, May 15. Ninety years after the company first began treating household cuts, Johnson & Johnson Vision employees challenged the MCS fourth and fifth grade classes to build a better bandage. Each group needed to address a common injury to a hand or leg based on a specific project scenario.

Volunteers from the company worked with the students in exploratory sessions to help them complete the challenge while thinking critically and using problem-solving skills to achieve success. In teams of four to five, students worked together to create a bandage within a limited time using the materials provided by Johnson & Johnson. Teams applied STEM skills and presented their unique ideas to the class. Each solution was evaluated against these criteria:

- Absorbent: able to soak up a liquid easily
- Adhesive: able to stick fast to a surface or object
- Sterile: free from germs
- Occlusive: air and water-tight
- Flexible: capable of bending easily but not breaking
- Camouflage: unobtrusive against skin
- Branded: including the product name given by the maker

"We're thankful for the employees of Johnson & Johnson Vision who volunteered their time and resources at Milpitas Christian School," said Robert (Bob) Murray, Head of School for Milpitas Christian School. "Their project-based learning sessions helped our students translate science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) concepts into creative problem-solving and data-driven decisions. Our hope is that these exercises will inspire our kids to dream bigger and aim higher for their future goals."

In 1929, Johnson & Johnson's Earle Dickson invented the first bandage (BAND-AID®) using adhesive surgical tape and gauze, two of his company's products. His invention allowed his wife to dress her own kitchen wounds. Now the company supports STEM education, an increasingly important sector of studies and careers. In 2015, Johnson & Johnson launched a fully funded Women in Science, Technology, Engineering, Math, Manufacturing and Design (WiSTEM2D) program. The company later added "2D" to its STEM initiative to recognize and elevate the manufacturing and design disciplines. The recent challenge at MCS continues their dedication to fostering STEM education in youth and finding better solutions to common injuries.

Turmeric: Traditional Medicine to Modern Benefits

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY LALITHA VISVESWARAN

Turmeric, the golden spice. Indian saffron, some people call it, but it is nothing like saffron – the most expensive spice in the world, obtained from the stigma of Crocus sativus. Turmeric is more accessible, affordable and for over a billion Indians, a daily supplement. It is a tropical perennial plant in the same family as ginger, native to India, and cultivated throughout the tropics. We import a lot of turmeric from Peru, which now has a robust industry thanks to the current valorized super food image in the West.

Turmeric is a rhizome, which means it grows underground and needs food-rich soil and medium sunlight. It cannot abide frost or cold. Still, it is easy to grow turmeric in pots, in bags in your garden or even on the balcony. Moistness is the most important factor. Growing to about 3 feet tall, Turmeric bears pairs of lance-shaped leaves on alternate sides of the stem. At the base of the stem, there is a knobby rhizome, somewhat resembling ginger.

How to grow turmeric? Soak turmeric in water and lay it flat in a shallow tray. Cover it with soil and moisten often. Do not let it go dry. Once leaves appear, transfer it to a pot with rich soil. It takes a long time to grow, but it's a pretty trouble-free plant. To make a powder, soak fresh turmeric, clean it, chop it roughly, and dry it thoroughly. Pulverize into a fine powder and sift; store in an airtight container. Turmeric is often used to keep away bugs and insects, so don't worry about it going bad.

Turmeric contains curcumin, a group of antioxidants. These days, it's isolated and can be found in supplement form. Only very small amounts of curcumin are absorbed into the bloodstream, so it helps to consume it along with black pepper that contains piperine, a natural substance enhancing the absorption of curcumin by 2,000 percent. Turmeric as a whole herb stays in the digestive for a long time, releasing antioxidant curcumin along with other beneficial substances. The whole plant has many more trace compounds that are very useful.

Benefits of Turmeric

Turmeric has anti-inflammatory and antioxidant properties, working from the inside out, and acting on every system of the human body. Curcumin in turmeric boosts brain-derived neurotrophic factors, improving brain functions. Regular intake of turmeric can reduce risk factors of heart disease. Amongst other stories and scientific studies, we have heard that Cancer risk, Arthritis, Alzheimer's, depression and aging can be staved off by a daily dose of turmeric. While scientists are still studying and pursuing the validity of those claims, this farmer and lifelong gardener can attest to the benefits of turmeric on the skin.

Ever since I was a little girl, I have always used turmeric in my bath powder and body scrub. It is vivid yellow and can leave a stain on clothes and skin. This can be mitigated by using only a pinch of turmeric and adding it to other powdered herbs with rice powder. It acts as an exfoliant and cleaning scrub without the nastiness of harsh lye and chemicals found in soaps. When moistened with yogurt or aloe, it can also be moisturizing. I am sure its protective properties act against the sun's harsh UV rays and treat blemishes and skin infections too. Turmeric poultices work well on cuts and scrapes.

Uses of Turmeric

Turmeric can be used in teas as tinctures. But it's most prevalent use is in food preparation. Often used in savory dishes in not just Indian but many South Asian cuisines, it adds a vivid hue and a distinct flavor to food. The fragrance it imparts is mild but when observant, one can detect gingery notes with suggestions that it might add a little acrid heat to the food.

While South Asian foods add turmeric just as one might add salt to season, it can be incorporated in creative ways in the West as well. My favorite addition is by sprinkling a salt tinged with that brilliant turmeric orange over popcorn. Yogurt is also a great neutral canvas to sneak in turmeric daily. Sprinkle a bit in milk for cereal. It is important to realize that the magic of turmeric is in its daily ingestion and in micro quantities.

Turmeric milk for cough

Bring milk to a boil and add a pinch of turmeric. Grind fresh black pepper and sweeten to taste. This is best before going to bed. Those suffering from mucous and scratchy coughs will find enormous relief.

Turmeric face mask

This is a good weekly treatment for tired skin. To a base of rice powder (2 tbsp), add a smidgen of turmeric. Make a paste with aloe or yogurt/milk, if you have dry skin. Apply it to your face and keep it on for 20 minutes. Rinse well. Keep away from fabric, and do not go overboard with the quantity of turmeric as it can leave a stain.

Golden turmeric broth

One cup each of onions, carrots and celery sautéed in olive oil. Smash 3-4 cloves of garlic and let it become mushy. Add a generous tbsp of turmeric and 8 cups of water. Bring to a boil and then allow it to simmer. You may also add a tsp of nutritional yeast. Finally, add a tbsp of fresh ground pepper. Bring it to a final boil. Strain and store in a refrigerator for a handy healthy broth (this also makes a great soup base). I also like to add fennel seeds and dried red chili pods while simmering to add another flavor dimension. Experiment.

Swallow Scene

By PAT KITE

My baby swallows are learning to fly. The duo perch on an overhead ledge, staring intently. Mother swallow is sitting there too. She is supervising swallow flight lessons. I am, apparently, tromping too loudly while seeking my morning newspaper. I try to walk very quietly. Mother swallow flies over my head. Klutz! I tiptoe quickly and scoop up the paper, dashing back to the door. Mother swallow is circling the area, obviously upset. Safe inside, it makes me laugh. It is very hard to be morning grumpity when you have two, cuter than cute, young fluffy swallows perched on an overhead ledge.

In Germany, the swallows are called the birds of the Madonna. In an old Austrian text, swallows helped the Lord God in building the sky. According to a historical Greek writer, a swallow chirping over the head of sleeping warrior

Alexander the Great woke him, warning of a family plot against him. Swallows are birds of the best augury or future prediction. If a swallow enters your house, it brings all kinds of happiness with it. In Japanese folklore, swallows are a symbol of good luck, fidelity in marriage, and fertility. In many countries, it is a serious sin to kill them or destroy their nests. There are swallows all over the world, except for Antarctica. Here are just a few types: Chilean, blue-and-white, golden, cliff, white-rumped, tree, violet-green, wire-tailed, Ethiopian, red-chested, and mangrove.

You may have heard about the annual swallow return to Mission San Juan Capistrano. How did it start? In the 1920s, Father St. John O’Sullivan, pastor of the Mission, saw a local shopkeeper knocking down mud swallow nests under his store overhang. The chirping birds were very upset. The shopkeeper said he was getting rid of the “dirty birds.” Father O’Sullivan worried, Where would the birds go? The shopkeeper didn’t care, as long as they were gone. Father O’Sullivan cared. He said, “Come on swallows, I’ll give you shelter. Come to the Mission. There’s room enough there for all.” The next day, swallows began building their nests outside the Mission Church. They began coming each year about the same time, and in the early 1930s the annual festival began. You can visit too; check the church’s website <https://www.missionsjc.com/> for information.

The original Milpitas property was sold over a year ago in the fall of 2017, and the organization currently runs many of its programs in conjunction with county parks. “We do a lot of city and county contracts,” said Pennell. “We’re contracted with both San Mateo county and Santa Clara county, so now we work out of the parks for the county to service the public.” Apart from the trail rides that initially began their business, the ranch also features an expansive list of activity options for customers, including pony and beach rides, summer camps, event hosting, and scout programs.

participate in, as well as lengthy five- to six-hour rides for more experienced riders. “Most of the riders that we have have never ridden a horse before. They want to come and experience the trails, or they want to take lessons and build up their riding. They don’t have to have any experience – you can be a beginner and have never been on a horse before, [the] horses are really good.” Many of the children’s programs feature several groundwork classes before the riding begins, teaching skills such as saddling horses, grooming, and safety to ensure customers feel as comfortable with the horses as possible.

Pennell was inspired by her own passion for horses, which began at an extremely young age. “I started riding when I was 5. My dad was a cowboy from South Dakota, and I’m part American-Indian, so it kind of came naturally for me. Horses have been my passion my whole life. I was in the restaurant business for a long time and

I retired from that, and started coming out and riding and it [transformed] into a business.”

“It gets people out into nature,” remarked Pennell on the crucial value that outdoor activities provide to the greater community. “[People] are lucky enough to get on a horse and understand the relationship between a horse and a rider, and that it’s a partnership – it’s not just sitting on top of the horse and being there.”

Chevrolet Cruze: compact sedan's swan song

Auto Review

BY STEVE SCHAEFER

The Chevrolet Cruze is a compact sedan and hatchback with an interesting history. Now, it's at the end of its American presence, with the closing of the Lordstown, Ohio plant where it's been made for U.S. consumption. The model's impact is larger, as it's been built and sold in other parts of the world – and still is.

I wasn't planning to test a Cruze – and had never had the opportunity – but I got a chance recently when my Chevrolet Bolt EV was at the dealer for battery replacement surgery. The dealership handed me a key to a Summit White Cruze sedan rental. Although the Cruze doesn't look much like a Bolt, it was comforting to carry an identical key in my pocket.

The Cruze started life as a Daewoo – the Korean company acquired by General Motors (GM) and that's now known as GM Korea. The 2019 model is the second-generation design in the U.S. Interestingly, GM used GM Korea for much of the design of the Chevrolet Bolt, and the LG battery from the Bolt is Korea-sourced as well. So, Cruze and Bolt siblings both have Korean origins but are built here. The Bolt is assembled exclusively in Orion County, Michigan.

The 2019 Cruze has some visual and content updates that made it look more like its American siblings, including the larger Malibu and Impala sedans. The front fascia, grille, and headlamps are fresh; as are the taillamps and wheels. There are also new interior colors and an updated entertainment center.

Offered in four levels – L, LS, LT, and Premier – the Cruze has served in the role of compact sedan that Chevy has offered for a long time. Think of the lineage – Corvair to Chevy II to Vega to Monza to Citation to Cavalier to Cobalt. It's also related in mission and size to GM's grand experiment of the 1990s – defunct Saturn brand.

GM's mainstream brand has offered economical transportation in the U.S. for half a century, but none of those names remain, and now the Cruze is joining them in the automotive history books. Today, the hot property is SUV – especially compact to midsize crossovers – and Chevrolet has a bunch of them – from the tiny Trax up to the huge Suburban. It's not hard to connect the dots. Instead of opting for the Cruze, a young family today might just go for an Equinox crossover instead.

So, how was my time with the Cruze? The interior looks well turned out, but materials are not fancy. The plastic panels are hard, but there was some cloth across part of the dash that felt nice. There is chrome sprinkled around the cabin, and plenty of styling and motion.

Mechanically, the car uses a 1.4-liter turbo four-cylinder engine matched with a six-speed automatic transmission. With 153 horsepower and 177 lb.-ft. of torque, and at just under a ton and a half, it'll take you from 0 to 60 mph in 7.7 seconds. That's not sports car territory, but you won't feel bogged down either. You can hear the engine working, and the road is not completely insulated from the steering wheel, but overall, it's easy to imagine driving a Cruze for years without great enthusiasm but with no complaints either.

Official EPA fuel economy ratings are 28 City, 38 Highway, 32 Combined. My three-day mostly freeway test period earned me 26.2 mpg. The EPA Green numbers are 6 for Smog and 7 for Greenhouse Gas – good for SmartWay designation. Emitting 277 grams of CO2 per mile, this is a cleaner car than many other gasoline vehicles, and not much worse than a good hybrid.

My Cruze test period included a weekend trip to Monterey – around 200 miles round trip. While the driving experience was neither silent nor luxurious, the Cruze proved capable for freeway travel and was maneuverable in town as well. There are more exciting cars around, but the overall competence explains why it has sold well for years in places such as China and Australia.

You can pick up the base Cruze L sedan for less than $20,000, including shipping, which makes it kind of a bargain. My LT test car was better equipped, and came with the $1,200 Convenience Package, which includes keyless opening front doors, power dual outside mirrors (heated), power seats,

Over the past 25 years, Steve Schaefer has tested more than 1,200 cars and published a weekly story on every one. As a teenager, he visited car dealers' back lots to catch a glimpse of the new models as they first rolled off the transporter. He is a founding member of the Western Automotive Journalists.

keyless start, heated front seats, rear park assist, and two safety features – Rear Cross Traffic Alert and Lane Change Alert with Side Blind Zone Alert. Its price was a reasonable $23,795.

The Cruze has served its time and delivered what customers needed. But today, as utility vehicles rise and sedans fall in the marketplace, its time is over. If you can find one left on a Chevy lot now, it should be a fine deal.

Hello! Anyone Out There?

Astronomers are trying to talk to beings who live on other planets, sometimes called aliens. So far, it has been a one way conversation. Scientists on earth sent out messages starting in 1974. However, technology has changed a lot since then. The Arecibo Observatory is now working on a new message and they are asking kids around the world for help!

First Message to Aliens

The first Arecibo message was sent into outer space with the belief that if there were beings out there who had a level of intelligence similar to ours, or better, they would be able to detect the radio signal and figure out how to translate it.

The message was aimed at an area in space called the Great Cluster of Hercules. It is 25,000 light years away. (That means that if you could travel at the speed of light, it would take 25,000 years to get there!)

Scientists know they won't get a response in their lifetimes, but if and when an answer comes, it would be very interesting!

Send a Message to Aliens!

2019 is the 45th anniversary of the Arecibo Message. It will be the year astronomers send another message into space. This time they want teams of students from around the world to come up with messages. If you were writing a message to aliens, what would you say?

Amelia opens a present – a present that's not a present at all. No, it's a friendly-looking alien called Uglesnoo from Pluto. Uglesnoo needs to leave right away for the Moon. Uglesnoo also desperately needs Amelia's help. His sister is very sick. Should Amelia venture into outer space?

Zott or Not?

Circle all the aliens from the planet Zott using these clues: Aliens from Zott each have at least three eyes, but no more than six. They have antennas, but never curly or wavy ones. Their clothes have stripes, but only vertical ones.

Extra! Extra! Invent an Alien

Challenge your imagination by using the newspaper to create a "picture" of an alien. Go through the newspaper and select and cut out parts of different animal and human bodies. Put these together to create a new creature. Could this be what an alien looks like? Why or why not?

How to Avoid the Summer Slide!

Kids who don't read over the summer vacation months can experience what teachers call "the summer slide."

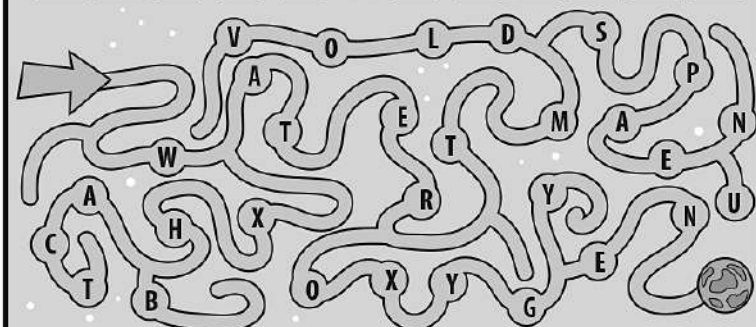

It's not a fun water slide. The summer slide is actually a slip in your reading and other school skills. That means you'll start the new school year behind where you left off last year!

Reading Kid Scoop, books, magazines, comic books and more over the summer will keep your reading skills sharp and your mind active. And regular visits to your library are a great way to start!

Kid Scoop Puzzler

The universe is a vast place, and many scientists believe that somewhere out there, there is life. To help locate where this life might be, they look for planets in the Goldilocks Zone. This is a part of the solar system that has "just right" conditions for life – conditions that are like ours.

What two things do scientists think planets need to support life? Write down the letters on the correct path.

SUN GALLERY

Sun Gallery's latest show offers up an eclectic assortment of mixed media, sculpture and art in its Annual "Sun Gallery Members Show 'As We See It.'" The event is open to the public, and its call for art encouraged local artists to display their favorite artwork, using their creativity to show how they view the world around them.

Featuring 19 artists, "As We See It" has something for everyone, from the delightful and whimsical sculptures by Peter Langenbach to the large engaging environmental sculpture "The Ring" by Jon Kerpel. In its first showing by James O'Donnell, the large, incredibly round detailed acrylic piece "Ecology 101: Orwell's Pigs Devour the World" is prominently featured as you enter the gallery. Other participating artists and photographers include Nick Reno, Jeanne Bertolina, Sethu and Curator Dorsi Diaz, plus amazing artistry by gallery teachers Linda Lens, Brandy Tompkins, Linda Nygard and Sarah Sammis. Christine Bender, former Gallery Manager and now a consultant for the gallery, will also have work on display. For all three events, food and drink will be provided and entrance is free. There will also be live music in the courtyard by Andrew Kong Knight's band.

The Sun Gallery is a non-profit organization (501c3) and welcomes donations from the community to fund programs such as the Gallery's Free Art Saturday Classes for Families and Children, plus scholarships for children to attend Summer Art Camp. The Gallery is located at 1015 E St. in Hayward and can be reached at (510) 581-4050. For a full list of programs check out the website at www.sungallery.org. To become a member and help support the gallery, visit the member's page at the website. Sun Gallery was founded in 1975.

Sethuraman, Alik Lee, Hollie Adamic, Renea Turner, Lisa McElroy, Tino Banuelos, Claudia Schwalm, John Edwards, Maureen Langenbach, Joanie Miller, Richard Rodda, Anna Fisher, Lady Vii and Christa Schanda.

Guests will have a special treat on Saturday, June 22 between 1 p.m. – 4 p.m. when a "Triple Header" will involve three events running in tandem. The first is the artists reception for "As We See It," and the second is an "Adios Retirement Party" for local renowned artist, muralist and Hayward High teacher Mr. Andrew Kong Knight.

Finally, an Artists Reception will be held on the same day for Sun Gallery's first annual "Staff Show," which will be held in the Ken Cook Room. Work displayed includes art by Gallery Manager Greg Duggan, Executive Director

"As We See It," in the main gallery, opens on Friday, June 21 and continues till Saturday, July 27. Sun Gallery's Staff Show starts on June 8 and ends June 30.

Mr. Hirsch’s Tie Collection

BY STEPHANIE GERTSCH
MARCUS DANA MONTAGUE

They came by truck. Or by cookie jar. One of the ties that Ohlone College Math Professor Geoff Hirsch’s students gave him was squeezed into a pill bottle. Three came in a piñata. Now Professor Hirsch is known by his students and colleagues for having what is undoubtedly one of the world’s most diverse tie collections, comprising over 1,000 creative and artistic pieces.

In the summer of 1987, Hirsch received a fish tie and a shark tie, along with other eccentric gifts and a card signed by everyone in his class. This was the start of his tie collection, which has become a way for students to demonstrate their artistic flare, memorialize class in-jokes, and in general, express thanks to their dedicated professor. Hirsch says, “I showed the ties and the card to subsequent classes, and told ‘The mother of all tie stories,’ and that got it going. Creative students tried to top that, so the collection grew, and the stories grew, slowly at first, then faster and faster.”

The ties can even facilitate a more positive classroom environment. Hirsch remembers receiving a tie featuring student thumbprints, designed by Pam Guerro. “I thought it rather amusing and shared it with my Finite Math class,” recalls Hirsch. “I’m glad I did. Two guys who had been giving me a hard time made a 180-degree turnaround. It seems Pam was a respected leader in their church! They added mightily to the tie collection.”

Although Hirsch has an “official” favorite tie among his collection (hint: it is prominently labeled “This is my favorite tie!”), he especially appreciates any items that exhibit creativity, such as the tie patterned with one of his favorite math books, and others which highlight that book’s Five-Step Process for solving word and other math problems. He also likes the ties signed by everyone in the class, including the thumbprint tie.

Some ties are made from unusual materials, including the tire tie. “My Pre-calculus student and Ohlone College Bicycle Club President Doug Miller made this from the tire off of a mountain bike,” says Hirsch, quipping, “I never tire of showing it. (Maybe, I should tread lightly with that joke? Or just retire it?)”

Students will go to extraordinary lengths to present a creative tie. One represented a semester-long in joke: “The first day of class one semester, I used the phrase, “At any rate,” three times, so some students decided they’d do a tally. At any rate, to cut to the chase, they presented this tie on the last day of class, with tally marks indicating I’d used the phrase 66 times!” Another class holds the record for presenting the largest number of ties, at 103 (eclipsing the former record by 98).

Many of the most eccentric and creative ties of the collection can be viewed at the Newark Ohlone

Library, in an exhibit that will run Monday, June 17 – Thursday, August 8. Viewing hours are 9 a.m. – 2 p.m. Hirsch says, “I hope you are as impressed as I am by my students’ creativity, both in what they made and how they delivered it. I feel blessed to be a part of it, if only as a recipient... the stories grew...and the tie collection grew.”

Summer brings live music

Summer is the perfect time to lay out a blanket or pull up a lawn chair and listen to your favorite bands (or discover new ones!) in the long pleasant evenings around the East Bay. In 2019, the summer season will kick off with on June 15 in Fremont with the Pacific Commons Summer Concert Series, starting with pop and rock hits from Cover Story. The fun will continue with concerts from Milpitas to San Leandro. Milpitas will start their season with their Juneteenth summer concert on June 18, to pick up again on July 16 with Lyin I's. Meanwhile, Hayward will join in with their Municipal Band and Summer Music in the park series, starting June 16 and August 4 respectively. Hayward's lineup includes Chris Marquis' Giant Garage Spiders, Sycamore 129 Blues Band, and What's Up Big Band—and that's just the start of the season. Newark will host Music at the Grove (starting June 21 with Big Band Beat), and San Leandro will join in with Hot August Thursdays.

With concerts running through September, there is plenty of time for music lovers to make the most of those summer days.

Google’s challenge to game consoles to kick off in November

BY MAE ANDERSON
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

Google will start its Stadia streaming game service to challenge the video game industry in November – but initially only as part of a $130 bundle that includes hardware and a pass for a friend.

Google announced the service in March with few details. On Thursday, Google said it will start advance sales for the limited “Founder’s Edition” bundles right away, though it isn’t saying how many are available. Google won’t offer stand-alone subscriptions, for $10 a month, until next year.

Stadia is Google’s attempt to make traditional game consoles such as the Xbox and PlayStation obsolete.

Games are stored online, and players can pick up where they left off.

Much like movies and music, the traditional video game industry has been shifting to digital downloads and streaming.

California governor backs bill expanding racing board powers

AP WIRE SERVICE

Gov. Gavin Newsom is supporting a state Senate bill that would give the California Horse Racing Board authority to quickly suspend a meet license to protect the health and safety of horses or riders.

The announcement Thursday comes amid deaths of 26 horses at Santa Anita since Dec. 26.

Newsom says in a statement that the horse fatalities are unacceptable.

The legislation by Sen. Bill Dodd would allow the board to immediately suspend a license without the usual legal notice of at least 10 days.

The track has instituted various reforms due to the deaths, which have involved injuries during training or racing resulting in euthanasia.

Santa Anita’s current meet ends June 23. On Nov. 1-2, it will host the Breeders’ Cup, the biggest two-day event in U.S. horse racing.

Google to acquire data firm Looker for $2.6 billion

AP WIRE SERVICE

Google is acquiring data analytics firm Looker for $2.6 billion cash to expand its Google Cloud business.

The company says Looker will give its cloud-computing customers more ways to use their data. The companies were already working together and share about 350 customers including BuzzFeed, Hearst and Yahoo! The deal is expected to close later this year.

Cloud computing involves companies using remote servers to house their data rather than storing things locally. Amazon, Microsoft, IBM and Alphabet Inc.’s Google are some of the biggest players in the increasingly competitive market.

The acquisition is Google Cloud CEO Thomas Kurian’s first major move since he came aboard from software maker Oracle in November 2018.

Park It

By NED MacKAY

Mother’s Day was on May 12; it’s Dad turn on Sunday, June 16 and the East Bay Regional Park District has several Father’s Day activities planned.

Garin Regional Park in Hayward will stage a “Father’s Day Adventure,” featuring a wilderness skill and a Stone Age activity. Your host is naturalist Dino Labiste.

From 10 a.m. to 12 noon, Labiste will conduct a clinic on how to start a fire without matches or lighters, using a hand drill, or solar power. From 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. it’s atlatl time, for ages 8 and older; first watch a demonstration on how to create a Paleolithic stone point, then try your skill at hitting a target, using a dart-throwing atlatl.

Garin Regional Park is at the end of Garin Avenue, off Mission Boulevard. Both programs are free; there’s a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

“Father’s Day Fishing” is the theme of a free program from 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Crown Beach in Alameda. Learn about some famous fish dads, then go fishing with your kids. Adults who are fishing must have a day or annual fishing license. Kids ages 15 and under can fish for free. Fishing gear is provided.

Registration is required as space is limited. To register and for more information, call (888) 327-2757, select option 2 and refer to program number 25139.

If you can’t make the atlatl clinic at Garin Regional Park, there’s one scheduled from 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley with naturalist Anthony Fisher. Before that, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Fisher will lead a variety of games traditional with California Native Americans.

Both programs are free; for both programs meet at Tilden’s Environmental Education Center, north end of Central Park Drive. For information and directions, call (510) 544-2233.

Night owls will enjoy “Evening in the Wild West End,” a steep and rugged 6-mile hike from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, June 15 at Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch, led by naturalist Kevin Dixon. The group will look for owls and other wildlife as the moon rises over the parkland. Dixon’s hike is for ages 10 and older and registration is required. Call (888) 327-2757, select option 2, and refer to program number 25057.

Owls are also the topic of a program from 11 a.m. to 12 noon on Sunday, June 16 at Black Diamond Mines, led by naturalist Eddie Willis. By dissecting owl pellets, you can learn what the birds have been eating. Meet Willis near the parking lot at the end of Somersville Road, 3½ miles south of Highway 4. Black Diamond Mines has a parking fee of $5 per vehicle when the kiosk is staffed. For information, call (888) 327-2757, ext. 2750.

Saturday, June 15 is Railroad Adventure Day at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont. Visitors can take a ride on the narrow gauge train and learn the history of the original railroad that ran through the farm. The train is operated by Society for the Preservation of Carter Railroad Resources, a nonprofit organization. Unlimited train rides are included in the park admission fee – $6 for adults 18 and older, $5 for seniors 62 and older, $4 for children ages 4 through 17, and free for ages 3 and under. Ardenwood recreates a 19th century farming estate with domestic animals, farming demonstrations, and tours of the historic Patterson House. The park is at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard, just north of Highway 84. For details, call (510) 544-2797.

Father’s Day, Mother’s Day, or every day, there’s always something to do in the regional parks. Check out the website www.ebparcs.org.

Union City recognizes June as Pride Month

SUBMITTED BY LAUREN SUGAYAN

Union City has lifted the Rainbow flag up the City Hall flagpole to mark the beginning of a monthlong recognition for Pride Month. On Tuesday, June 11, at the City Council meeting, Mayor Carol Dutra-Vernaci will also read a proclamation that calls attention to the history of Pride Month and the current challenges still facing the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and questioning, intersex, pansexual, 2-spirit, and asexual (LGBTQIP2SA) in the Tri-City Area. This is Union City’s first time raising the Rainbow flag in support of the LGBTQ+ community.

Dutra-Vernaci said, “It is important that we, as a city, have a strong and visible show of support for the LGBTQ+ community by raising the Rainbow Flag on our city flagpole. I am encouraged by the work of our Human Relations Commission and hope they continue to generate new ideas on ways we can continue to support the LGBTQ+ community in the future.”

At the proclamation ceremony, Intersex & Genderqueer Recognition Project (IGRP) – a Tri-City nonprofit – will be in attendance to receive the proclamation and share their organization’s mission to address the rights of people to identify as non-binary on government issued documents. IGRP’s mission is to create legal recognition of people whose sex and/or gender identity are non-binary by engaging in direct legal services, impact litigation, legislation, collaboration, and education.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ADOPT A MITIGATED NEGATIVE DECLARATION FOR THE PROPOSED ADVANCED METERING INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECT IN THE CITY OF FREMONT, CITY OF NEWARK & CITY OF UNION CITY

The Alameda County Water District (ACWD) has prepared a Draft Initial Study/Mitigated Negative Declaration (IS/MND) for the Advanced Metering Infrastructure Project (Project). The Project is located in the cities of Fremont, Newark and Union City, California.

In accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the Notice of Intent and Draft IS/MND is to be made available for public review and comment.

Proposed Project Location and Summary

The Project is located within ACWD’s service area and would retrofit or replace the existing manual meter reading systems within its service area with an Advanced Metering Infrastructure (AMI) system.

The proposed project would involve upgrading meter reading devices within ACWD’s service area to advanced meter reading devices that communicate interval usage data to the District. The project would include installation of an AMI system, upgrade of existing consumption meters, Meter Data Management software (MDMS), Customer Portal software, the integration of these systems, and installation of pressure monitoring sensors in selected areas. Project deployment is expected to begin in 2020, and be completed within five years.

As compared to the current system, the number of field personnel required to read and maintain meters would be reduced, which would reduce operational vehicle travel and associated air quality, greenhouse gas emission, and energy consumption. In addition, near-real-time monitoring of water usage would allow quicker detection of water leaks, theft, and unnecessary water usage.

Review Period and Access to Project Materials

The Draft IS/MND may be reviewed at:

- ACWD headquarters at 43885 South Grimmer Blvd, Fremont, CA 94538;
- Union City Library at 34007 Alvarado-Niles Rd, Union City, CA 94587;

Abode Services receives recognition

ARTICLE AND PHOTO SUBMITTED BY TOMASA DUENAS

Assemblymember Bill Quirk (D-Hayward) honored Abode Services of Fremont as the 20th Assembly District’s “2019 Nonprofit of the Year.” Abode’s executive director, Louis Chicoine, joined Quirk at the State Capitol in Sacramento for a celebratory lunch and ceremony organized by the California Association of Nonprofits.

Abode Services was founded in Alameda County in 1989 when a small group of people came together to address a growing problem with family homelessness in the Tri-City area. Since then, the organization has expanded their reach throughout Bay Area, serving more than 8,000 adults and children each year. Adobe Services’ permanent housing and supportive services programs offer individualized service plans that address needs and goals of individuals and families experiencing homelessness.

“I am proud to recognize Abode Services for the tremendous work they do year-round to end homelessness in our communities,” Quirk said. “The need to house vulnerable children and adults has never been greater than today. The high cost of living and lack of affordable housing in the Bay Area has pushed many people into homelessness.

Reflections

This is the time of year that the frantic activity of graduation ceremonies and transitions is mirrored by a change in seasons. With relief from the pressures of ending a school year and emergence into longer, warm days that invite vacations and leisure pursuits, comes a pause that can conjure personal and collective in trospection. As with students who can review past accomplishments and look forward to new challenges, ventures and opportunities within their cadre or on their own, this time for reflection can also apply to our own social and political communities.

City councils are currently in the process of reviewing and adopting Annual Budgets and Capital Improvement Programs that guide use of tax and grant monies received. Much time and effort has been expended preparing these documents and, although a bit overwhelming if considered in a single review, there are many parts that can hold particular interest to almost everyone who lives and/or works in the area. If you care about housing, safety, transportation, shopping, street repairs, solvency, growth, environment and a host of other factors that affect daily living, then this is the document for you. Similar to a personal budget and plan for future expenditures, this is an outline of how your money will be spent in the current year and beyond. Income and expenses, although on a larger scale than a typical family, are remarkably similar.

Families have basic needs that must be met for survival no matter what the economic circumstance. If possible, we use our money as wisely as possible to meet those needs and have a bit left over for intermittent or discretionary expenses – car repairs, holidays, vacations, college, employment changes, etc. A critical component for our future security is a rainy-day fund to make sure that when the unforeseen happens, money is set aside to offset any shortfall. In the best of circumstances, our plans and income coincide to achieve current and future personal and financial goals. Does this always work as planned? Usually not... we need course corrections over time as do our civic organizations. The process of review is not only a good thing in our personal lives, but so important for our collective welfare that cities, counties and governments are required to review this on a regular basis in public documents and presentations.

Not only do these documents let the public know how money is spent, but reveal the structure, goals and standards of the organization as well. Past performance and comparisons to future use of monies and personnel is discussed in an understandable manner. Even if financial documents are not your interest, the overview portions of these voluminous reports minimize detailed charts and graphs, summarizing in relatively few pages. For accountancy-minded individuals, detailed analysis of Operating Budgets and Capital Improvement Programs are a delight, but for the rest of us, the overview contained within them succinctly reflects a sense of purpose and serious introspection of the resources used to operate our communities.

Now might be a good time to not only reflect on personal circumstances, but our civic security and comfort as well.

US home prices
outpaced income growth in 2018

AP WIRE SERVICE
By JOSH BOAK
AP ECONOMICS WRITER

Home prices in 2018 climbed 4.5%, while incomes grew 3.2%, according to CoreLogic real estate figures and government wage data released Friday.

The gap suggests that affordability is worsening. Still, this gap appears to be narrowing relative in much of the country as gains in average hourly earnings have risen as the unemployment rate has fallen. Meanwhile, a slowdown in homebuying since 2018 has limited price gains in real estate and improved affordability.

Across the country, there are significant variations in this trend as some markets are seeing affordability worsen and others have seen it stabilize after rapid growth.

Home prices in the Boise, Idaho area jumped 16.3%, significantly higher than the 3.7% gain in incomes. The Florida retirement community known as The Villages saw a similar trend as incomes rose 3.1% while home values increased 7.7%.

Places such as New York, Seattle and San Francisco are already pricing out residents, forcing many to stay as renters or move to cheaper cities. But in the past year, rising incomes in these areas and slowing growth in home prices has improved affordability slightly. This doesn't mean that middle-class workers can suddenly afford to buy in these communities, so much as the squeeze isn't as great as it was at the start of 2018.

A few major metro areas have seen homes prices and incomes grow roughly in sync such that there have been minimal changes in affordability, including Atlanta, Louisville and Birmingham, Alabama.

Huawei app to be stripped of Google services after U.S. ban

BY FRANK BAJAK AND
JOE MCDONALD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Huawei could quickly lose its grip on the No. 2 ranking in worldwide cellphone sales after Google announced it would comply with U.S. government restrictions meant to punish the Chinese tech powerhouse.

The Trump administration's move, which effectively bars U.S. firms from selling components and software to Huawei, ups the ante in a trade war between Washington and Beijing that partly reflects a struggle for global economic and technological dominance.

Google said it would continue to support existing Huawei smartphones, but future devices will not have its flagship apps and services, including maps, Gmail and search. Only basic services would be available for future versions of the Android operating system on Huawei's smartphones.

Though the U.S. Commerce Department grants exceptions, the ban announced last week on all purchases of U.S. technology is thus apt to badly hurt Huawei, analysts say.

Washington claims Huawei poses a national security threat, and its placement on the so-called Entity List by the Trump administration last week is widely seen as intended to persuade resistant U.S. allies in Europe to exclude Huawei equipment from their next-generation wireless networks, known as 5G.

"This is major crisis for Huawei. Instead of being the world's largest handset manufacturer this year, it will struggle to stay two, but probably fall behind," analyst Roger Entner said. "How competitive is a smartphone without the most well-known and popular apps?"

Huawei will likely use its own, stripped-down version of Android, whose basic code is provided free of charge by Google. But the Mountain View, California, company said Huawei would not be authorized to use other Google software and services if the sanctions go forward as announced.

Google could seek exemptions but would not comment on whether it planned to do so.

Entner, founder of Recon Analytics, said Google itself won't feel a large direct impact, "as consumers will shift to other Android devices. The biggest concern is not to be caught in the crossfire of two governments."

Gartner analyst Tuong Nguyen said 48 percent of Huawei's phone shipments last year were outside of China and the company will need to scramble not to lose market share.

Samsung led global smartphone sales in the first quarter of this year with a 23.1 percent share. Huawei was second with 19 percent, followed by Apple at 11.7 percent, according to IDC.

Huawei's smartphone sales in the U.S. are tiny – and the Chinese company's footprint in telecommunications networks is limited to smaller wireless and internet providers – so any impact on U.S. consumers of a Google services cutoff would be slight.

Hardware suppliers led by Qualcomm, Broadcom and Intel would also be forced to halt shipments to Huawei under the Commerce Department rule, which requires all U.S. technology sales to the company to obtain U.S. government approval unless exceptions are made.

The global risk assessment outfit Eurasia Group said the Commerce Department was expected to set a 90-day grace period this week. Department officials did not immediately return phone calls and emails seeking comment.

In a report, Eurasia Group said that if the Commerce Department sanction process helps persuade European carriers to shun Huawei equipment, a full ban on purchases of U.S. technology products and services could be avoided.

Google, a unit of Alphabet Inc., said in a statement late Sunday that it was complying with and "reviewing the implications" of the requirement for export licenses for technology sales to Huawei, which took effect Thursday. "For users of our services, Google Play and the security protections from Google Play Protect will continue to function on existing Huawei devices," it added.

The U.S. government says Chinese suppliers including Huawei and its smaller rival, ZTE Corp., pose an espionage threat because they are beholden to China's ruling Communist Party. But American officials have presented no evidence of any Huawei equipment serving as intentional conduits for espionage by Beijing.

Huawei, headquartered in the southern city of Shenzhen near Hong Kong, reported earlier that its worldwide sales rose 19.5 percent last year over 2017 to 721.2 billion ($105.2 billion). Profit rose 25.1 percent to 59.3 billion yuan ($8.6 billion).

Huawei smartphone shipments rose 50 percent in the first three months of 2019 to 59.1 million, compared with a year earlier, while the global industry's total fell 6.6 percent, according to IDC. Shipments from Samsung and Apple both declined.

Huawei defended itself Monday as "one of Android's key global partners." The company said it helped to develop a system that "benefited both users and the industry."

"We will continue to build a safe and sustainable software ecosystem, in order to provide the best experience for all users globally," the company said.

A foreign ministry spokesman, Lu Kang, said China will "monitor the development of the situation" but gave no indication how Beijing might respond.

The U.S. order took effect Thursday and requires government approval for all purchases of American microchips, software and other components globally by Huawei and 68 affiliated businesses. Huawei says that amounted to $11 billion in goods last year.

That could certainly create some collateral damage for U.S. companies.

The California chipmaker Xilinx Inc. tumbled 4 percent Monday. David Wong, an analyst with Nomura, said Xilinx has benefited from demand in next-generation, 5G technologies and "action against a major maker of communications infrastructure equipment like Huawei likely poses risk for Xilinx."

PG&E expands weather station and camera network

SUBMITTED BY TAMAR SARKISSIAN

As part of its Community Wildfire Safety Program (CWSP), Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) announced that it is expanding its network of weather stations and high-definition cameras to improve the company's ability to predict and respond to extreme wildfire danger. By the end of 2019, PG&E plans to have at least 600 weather stations and 100 high-definition cameras in high fire-threat areas. These new installations are one of the many additional precautionary measures the company is implementing after the 2017 and 2018 wildfires to further reduce wildfire risks.

Building on the 200 weather stations it installed in 2018, PG&E has added an additional 200 weather stations in 2019 to capture localized, real-time data related to temperature, wind speeds and humidity levels. Approximately 400 new weather stations are scheduled to be installed in 2019, prioritized in areas at elevated and extreme risk for wildfires, based on the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) High Fire-Threat District Map. Alameda and other counties have already received weather stations.

To help protect customers and communities during extreme weather events, electric power may be shut off for public safety to prevent a wildfire. This is called a Public Safety Power Shutoff (PSPS). PG&E's meteorologists will feed data from these new stations to the company's Wildfire Safety Operations Center team, where it can be utilized to help inform actions such as PSPS.

"These new weather stations help us monitor conditions around the clock, improving our ability to understand when and where it is necessary to take this precautionary action in the interest of public safety," said Aaron Johnson, PG&E vice president of electric operations.

PG&E has also installed 25 of the 100 high-definition (HD) cameras planned for this year. The company has now installed 34 HD cameras since 2018, with a goal of installing 600 new cameras by 2022 as part of the ALERTWildfire Camera Network. The high-definition, pan-tilt-zoom cameras allow firefighters, first responders and companies like PG&E to confirm and monitor potential wildfires.

Sign up for Medicare and estimate Medicare costs

BY LINDA ZAMFINO
SOCIAL SECURITY REPRESENTATIVE

Affordable medical coverage is something everyone wants, especially as people age. Luckily, our nation has safeguards for workers as they get older. Millions of people rely on Medicare, and it can be part of your health insurance plan when you retire.

Medicare is available for people ages 65 or older, as well as younger people who have received Social Security disability benefits for 24 months, and people with certain diseases. Two parts of Medicare are Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (Medicare insurance). You are eligible for premium-free Part A if you are age 65 or older and you or your spouse worked and paid Medicare taxes for at least 10 years. Part B usually requires a monthly premium payment.

You can apply online for Medicare even if you are not ready to retire. Use our online application to sign up. It takes less than 10 minutes. In most cases, once your application is submitted electronically, you're done. There are no forms to sign and usually no documentation is required. Social Security will process your application and contact you if we need more information. Otherwise, you'll receive your Medicare card in the mail.

You can sign up for Medicare at www.socialsecurity.gov/benefits/medicare. If you don't sign up for Medicare during your initial enrollment window that begins three months before the birthday on which you reach age 65 and ends three months after that birthday, you'll face a 10 percent increase in your Part B premiums for every yearlong period you're eligible for coverage but don't enroll.

You may not have to pay the penalty if you qualify for a special enrollment period (SEP). If you are 65 or older and covered under a group health plan, either from your own or your spouse's current employment, you may have a SEP during which you can sign up for Medicare Part B. This means that you may delay enrolling in Part B without having to wait for a general enrollment period and without paying the lifetime penalty for late enrollment. Additional rules and limits apply, so if you think a SEP may apply to you, read our Medicare publication at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/, and visit the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services at Medicare.gov for more information.

Health and drug costs not covered by Medicare can have a big impact on how much you spend each year. You can also estimate Medicare costs using an online tool at www.medicare.gov/oopec/. Keeping your healthcare costs down allows you to use your retirement income on other things that you can enjoy. Social Security is here to help you plan a long and happy retirement at www.socialsecurity.gov.

California governor has doubts about tougher vaccine rules

AP WIRE SERVICE

Gov. Gavin Newsom says he has concerns about enacting tougher rules that limit parents from choosing whether to vaccinate their schoolchildren.

The measure would give state public health officials instead of local doctors the authority to decide which children can skip their shots before attending school. It's being considered by the State Assembly amid growing cases of measles.

Newsom told reporters at the California Democratic Party Convention Saturday that although he supports immunization, he has concerns about having government officials sign off on vaccine exemptions. He said as a parent, he wouldn't want a bureaucrat to make a personal decision for his family.

The Sacramento Bee reports Newsom didn't mention the bill explicitly. Opponents say the doctor-patient relationship will be compromised if it becomes law.

Alia started playing soccer in 7th grade, but became interested in wrestling because of her wrestling champion brother, Hussien, whom she looks up to. She likes how different the sport is for females and strategizing for matches. Alia and Hussien not only talk about upcoming matches but also practice together.

Alia is interested in Folk Style and Freestyle wrestling. Her accomplishments to date include: All American 4-time Freestyle Champion, and 3-time NCS Folk Style Champion culminating in the State 2019 Wrestling Championship.

Alia’s preparation for matches consists of eating carbs, drinking Gatorade, and listening to her music mix to focus and clear her head. Coach Lou, Coach Rick, and Coach Rich have taught her techniques and strategies.

Generational support is a family affair. Great grandparents, grandparents, Mom (Leanna), Dad (Billy, also a former high school wrestler), brothers Hussien (a champion wrestler) and Billy Jr. (converting to high school sports), and sister (Leenah, 2019 Middle School Wrestling Champion) attend every family member’s matches. Alia’s great grandparents and grandparents are known for bringing special match treats.

As a young child he had enjoyed a range of sports such as basketball, football, baseball, soccer, swimming, golf, and wrestling. In 8th grade, Hussien zeroed in on wrestling and has accomplished the following: NCS Champion, 2019 NCS 6th Place Champion (while he was injured), 2-time WACC League Champion, and 3-time WACC League Finalist.

Hussien is extremely interested in joining the Chabot College wrestling team since it is considered one of the best college wrestling programs in the State. While at college he will be majoring in Kinesiology; his goal is to help others through physical therapy.

Hussien’s coaches are Coach Rick (the head coach who has worked with him since 7th grade), Coach Lou, and Coach Rich. They have taught him to strategize, to learn from his mistake and to not beat himself up over losses and mistakes.

To prepare for his matches, he hydrates, eats peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, and listens to music (rap, Elvis, Frank Sinatra, etc.) to help his clarity and focus. Repetitive practice routines prepare him for upcoming matches. With whatever free time he has, Hussien watches TV on his phone.

Hussien looks up to his father, Billy, who was a high school wrestler. He feels fortunate to have the support of his family: dad Billy and mom Leanne; sisters Alia and Leenah, and brother Billy Jr. His great grandparents and grandparents are avid supporters and attend matches on a regular basis.

Simple preparations can help prevent home burglaries

SUBMITTED BY NEWARK PD

Did you know that a home burglary occurs approximately every 15 seconds in the United States? Nearly 66% of all burglaries are residential, and of those, 62% occur during the daytime, between 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. when no one is likely to be at home. It's also important to know that 30% of all burglaries are classified as "unlawful entry," meaning the burglar was able to gain entry without using force — often through an unlocked door or window.

Here are the top 10 things you can do to help prevent your home from being broken into:

- Lock your doors and windows
- If you open your window, use window stops
- Make sure valuables are not visible from windows
- Store ladders and any objects that can be used to assist in home entry in a locked shed or garage
- Keep garage doors closed and locked. If the garage doors have windows, put the garage door release cord away from those windows

- Use a home security system and a doorbell camera to deter thieves
- At night, turn your lights on and leave them on (light is a great deterrent)
- Use solid wood or metal doors
- Lock your pet door so it cannot be used as a point of entry
- Do not open the door for or allow solicitors entry to your home

If someone is trying to gain access to your home or a neighbor's home or exhibiting suspicious behavior, or you are not sure, call 911 first and tell the dispatcher your location, the address where you are, followed by the reason for calling and give a description of the behavior you are witnessing and the people involved. Finally, remember that a person's behavior is what makes them suspicious, not what they look like.

- At about 1:00 p.m. officers responded to a report of a white Mercedes-Benz being driven recklessly on the 500 Block of E. Calaveras Boulevard. Officers spotted the vehicle leaving the Town Center shopping center and made a vehicle stop. The driver, later identified by police as Jerrad Downey, 42, of Berkeley was determined to be on probation in Alameda County. Officers also found an unloaded Berretta handgun in the car. Officers contacted another person in the hotel room, later identified as Kyndra Wozniak, 24, of Campbell. A record check on Wozniak showed she had a felony warrant for burglary out of San Jose. Officers searched the motel room and found methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia. Scroggins was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail for driving a stolen motorcycle with prior auto theft convictions and a probation violation. Wozniak was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail for her warrant, possession of methamphetamine, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

SUBMITTED BY LT. ISAAC BENABOU, SAN LEANDRO PD

Saturday, June 1

- At about 10 a.m. officers patrolling at the San Leandro Cherry Festival downtown spotted a man dressed in a "K9 Unit" police-style uniform with a ballistic vest, duty belt, firearm ammunition, Taser and a German shepherd dog. Officers recognized the man as Sergio Taylor, 20, of Oakland from a recent flyer distributed by the Berkeley Police Department that indicated Taylor was wanted on an outstanding arrest warrant and various other charges stemming from a May 12th incident at a bar in Berkeley.

Before officers could stop Taylor, he drove away in a black 2013 Ford Taurus with security markings on it resembling a police vehicle. Also, in the vehicle was a man later identified by police as John Payne, 39, of Oakland and a German shepherd dog. Officers made a vehicle stop and Taylor was taken into custody without incident. A search of the vehicle turned up a replica Glock semi-automatic pistol and ammunition. Payne also was arrested on suspicion of delaying the officer's investigation. The dog was released to one of Taylor's family members.

AACHS has been serving the African American community in the Tri-City and Hayward areas since 1974, providing cultural enrichment, and community and financial support. The group's focus is to share their history through educational and cultural activities, as well as networking in harmony and friendship/kinship with multi-ethnic groups throughout the Bay Area.

Reverend George Gaskins of Bethel Baptist Church provided opening and closing prayers to bookend the night's ceremonies. New Tri-City AACHS member Ms. Pepper Moore welcomed everyone to the occasion and kicked off the night's program. Scholarship recipient from 2018, Yvette Enoru, gave a tribute to this year's graduates. Accompanying the award ceremony were dance performances from Angel Hearts Dance Ministry and Shauntoya Robinson, and piano selections from Donovan Hodgson.

The following students received scholarships, awarded by AACHS President Darlene Green and Secretary Marian Langford:

Alexis Early, Irvington H.S

Damiughn Bradley, Newark Memorial H.S.

Endigo Coleman, Newark Memorial H.S.

Bria Deadwiler, James Logan H.S.

Leilani McDuffie, James Logan H.S.

Third Thursdays are going to be a hit with the 2019 “Downtown Hayward Street Parties” on June 20, July 18 and August 15. Bring your friends and family to enjoy live bands, food, classic car show, street entertainers, kids’ rides, Alan the Amazing, and face painters. Brews will be served in the beer garden adjacent the Bank of the West Stage.

“It says a lot about Hayward that our participants look at the street parties as a family reunion,” said Kim Huggett, president of Hayward Chamber of Commerce. “These are events that not only are family-friendly, but the coolness factor is there, too.”

On June 20, the Bank of the West Stage will feature West Coast Blues Society

Caravan of All Stars, celebrating Hayward/Russell City Blues Festival. Also performing that night will be Mitch Polzak and The Royal Deuces on Bistro Patio Stage, and DJ Robert Hoffman “Club Nowhere” on Moler Cosmetology School Stage. DJ Robert Louis will entertain at Car Show Central at the Chamber of Commerce’s Main Street Stage.

The street party series is made possible through a partnership of the Downtown Hayward Improvement Association, City of Hayward and Chamber of Commerce. For more information, call (510) 537-2424 or visit <https://www.hayward-ca.gov/discover/events/june-2019-downtown-hayward-third-thursday-street-party>.

THE ROBOT REPORT

In a research project for the U.S. Army, researchers at the University of California, Berkeley, developed an agile robot called Salto that looks like a “Star Wars” Imperial walker in miniature and may be able to aid in scouting and search-and-rescue operations. Robots like this may one day be used to save lives of both warfighters and civilians, researchers said.

Topping out at less than a foot, Salto, which stands for saltatorial (leaping like a grasshopper) locomotion on terrain obstacles, now has a sophisticated control system that allows it to master increasingly complex tasks, like bouncing in place, navigating an obstacle course or following a moving target, all controlled with a radio controller.

In 2016, the research team demonstrated how Salto could take a leap and then immediately spring higher by ricocheting off a wall, making it the world’s most vertically agile robot — jumping for than three times its height. With its new capabilities, the researchers said they hope Salto will propel the development of small, nimble robots that could leap through rubble to aid in search-and-rescue and other military missions.

“The physical environment the Army operates in is highly irregular, cluttered, and constantly changing,” said Dr. Samuel Stanton, program manager at Army Research Office, an element of U.S. Army Combat Capability Development Command’s Army Research Laboratory. “The science underlying the advancements is critical for achieving the desired mobility, speed of action, and situational awareness generation necessary for future Army operations.”

The research team described the robot’s new skills at the 2019 International Conference on Robotics and Automation in Montreal on May 21. “Small robots are really great for a lot of things, like running around in places where larger robots or humans can’t fit. For example, in a disaster scenario, where people might be trapped under rubble, robots might be really useful at finding the people in a way that is not dangerous to rescuers and might even be faster than rescuers could have done unaided,” said UC Berkeley robotics graduate student Justin Yim. “We wanted Salto to not only be small, but also able to jump really high and really quickly so that it could navigate these difficult places.”

Biologically inspired design

Yim works with Ronald Fearing, an electrical engineering and computer sciences professor at UC Berkeley, who’s Biomimetic Millisystems Lab explores how the mechanics of animal movement can be applied to create more agile robots. Fearing’s lab is known for building insect-inspired robots that can safely crawl across tricky surfaces that are too smooth or too rough for a wheeled robot to navigate.

Salto’s single, powerful leg is modeled after those of the galago, or Senegalese bush baby. The small, tree-dwelling primate’s muscles and tendons store energy in a way that gives the spry creature the ability to string together multiple jumps in a matter of seconds.

By linking a series of quick jumps, Salto can also navigate complex terrain — like a pile of debris — that might be impossible to cross without jumping or flying. “Unlike a grasshopper or cricket that winds up and gives one jump, we’re looking at a mechanism where it can jump, jump, jump, jump,” Fearing said. “This allows our robot to jump from location to location, which then gives it

In a disaster scenario, where people might be trapped under rubble, robots might be really useful at finding the people in a way that is not dangerous to rescuers and might even be faster than rescuers could have done unaided

the ability to temporarily land on surfaces that we might not be able to perch on.”

Yim has also equipped Salto with new technology that allows it to feel its own body, telling it what angle it is pointing and the bend of its leg. Without these abilities, Salto has been confined to a room in one of Berkeley’s engineering buildings, where motion capture cameras track its exact angle and position and transmit that data back to a computer, which rapidly crunches the numbers to tell Salto how to angle itself for its next leap.

Now that Salto has a sense of itself and its own motion, the robot can make these calculations for itself, allowing Yim to take the robot outside and use a joystick and radio controller to tell it where to go.

“By understanding the way that these dynamics work for Salto, with its mass and size, then we can extend the same type of understanding to other systems, and we could build other robots that are bigger or smaller or differently shaped or weighted,” Yim said.

Leaping into the future

In the future, Fearing hopes to continue to explore the possibilities for hopping robots. “This Army investment extends the current state of the art for small ground robot mobility beyond what is currently capable through traditional wheeled and tracked locomotion which are severely limited in complex three-dimensional terrain,” said Dr. Brett Piekarski, Vehicle Technology Directorate, Army Research Laboratory (ARL). “These advances will inform and guide our researchers as they continue to develop innovative solutions for robotic actuation and mobility and will enable agile robots that can go anywhere a Soldier can and beyond. This research brings us a step closer to providing our warfighters with effective unmanned systems that can be deployed in the field.”

Oakland becomes 2nd US city to decriminalize magic mushrooms

BY SAMANTHA MALDONADO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland on Tuesday became the second U.S. city to decriminalize magic mushrooms after a string of people shared how psychedelics helped them overcome depression, drug addiction and post-traumatic stress disorder.

The City Council voted unanimously to decriminalize the adult use and possession of magic mushrooms and other entheogenic, or psychoactive, plants. Denver voters approved a similar measure for people 21 and older last month.

Speakers overwhelmingly supported the move, describing substances like peyote as traditional plant-based medicines. One man who described himself as a former heroin addict said such plants saved his life. Some offered mystical descriptions of the hallucinogens as providing spiritual healing.

The vote makes the investigation and arrest of adults who grow, possess, use or distribute entheogenic plants one of the lowest priorities for police. No City money could be used to enforce laws criminalizing the substances, and the Alameda County district attorney would stop prosecuting people who have been apprehended for use or possession.

Council member Noel Gallo, who introduced the resolution, had said decriminalizing such plants would enable Oakland police to focus on serious crime.

Amendments offered by Council member Loren Taylor added caveats that the substances

“are not for everyone,” recommending that people with PTSD or major depression seek professional help before using them and that people “don’t go solo” but seek expert guidance and have a trusted friend present during the use.

The ordinance also directs the city administrator to come back within a year to provide the council with an assessment of the law’s impact on the community.

“Entheogenic plants and fungi are tremendous for helping to enable healing, particularly for folks who have experienced trauma in their lives,” Carlos Plazola, chairman of the advocacy group Decriminalize Nature Oakland, said before the council meeting.

“These plants are being recommended pretty extensively undercover, underground, by doctors and therapists.”

The Oakland Police Department did not respond to emailed messages from The Associated Press seeking comment before the meeting. Alameda County Deputy District Attorney Teresa Drenick declined to comment.

Magic mushrooms are still illegal under federal and state law. Entheogenic substances are considered Schedule 1 drugs under the federal Controlled Substances Act, which categorizes drugs that have potential for abuse and no medical value.

Skeptics had raised concerns about unsafe use, especially in schools.

To address such concerns, Gallo said, lawmakers would have to establish rules and regulations about the use of such substances, including what exactly can be used, how to use them and what the associated risks are.

Entheogenic plants have long been used in religious and cultural contexts. Gallo remembers his grandmother treating his family members with plants, including entheogenic ones, for a variety of ailments.

“Growing up in the Mexican community, this was our cure,” Gallo said.

Hemp oils, mushrooms and yerba buenas — an aromatic plant known for its medicinal properties — “that was our Walgreens. We didn’t have a Walgreens. We didn’t have a way to pay for any drugs. These are plants we have known for thousands of years in our community and that we continue to use.”

Sen. Wieckowski drops bid for Congressional seat in East Bay

SUBMITTED BY MATT LIEBMAN

On June 7, California State Senator Bob Wieckowski announced that he will be withdrawing his candidacy for California’s 15th Congressional District. The Congressional seat has been left potentially open following the announcement that current Rep. Eric Swalwell would pursue a bid for the United States Presidency.

“After much thought and review of the political landscape, I know I can best serve our community closer to home. The work we have been doing in Sacramento to take on climate change, to serve low-income Californians facing massive debt and inequity, and to modernize our infrastructure to better connect people, housing, and jobs has been incredible. I will continue to serve our community, and work to deliver real results for the East Bay,” said Wieckowski.

In the Legislature, Wieckowski currently chairs the California State Senate’s Budget and Fiscal Review Subcommittee on resources, environmental protection, energy and transportation. He also serves as a member of the Senate’s appropriations, environmental quality, housing, judiciary, and transportation committees.

Pioneer family creates scholarship for arts and literature

SUBMITTED BY MARLENE LEAL

Washington Township was once a land of ranches. Only one ranch in Alameda County, Leal Ranch, has been a family operation for over 130 years. The history of the Leal Ranch began when Joseph Silveira Leal of Faial, Azores, working on a whaling ship, jumped ship in the mid-1880s. In 1899, Joseph married Julia Perry, also from Faial. Julia had graduated from Irvington Grammar School in 1891, the beginning of a long tradition of attendance and affiliation with Washington Township schools and Fremont Unified School District.

Through the years, Leal children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren have become Irvington High School alumni. In honor of the family’s love of learning and the storied history of their family, a $1,500 Bernie and Marlene Leal Scholarship for Arts and Literature for a graduating Irvington High School student was created by Samantha Leal in honor of her grandparents and their ancestors. The first recipient of this honor was Jane Zucker at Irvington High School Senior Awards Night on June 3, 2019.

EARTHTALK

Dear EarthTalk: I’ve heard that many household cleaners contain toxic ingredients that can pollute my indoor environment. How do I avoid such chemicals and can you suggest any safer alternatives?

— M. Sharp, Las Vegas, Nevada

It’s true that many common household cleaning products contain synthetic chemicals that can make the inhabitants of your home sick. The non-profit Environmental Working Group (EWG) looked into the ingredients lists of more than 2,000 cleaning supplies commonly available on store shelves across the country and found that hundreds of them contain substances linked to serious health problems.

“A large and growing body of evidence links frequent use of many ordinary cleaning supplies at home or on the job with development of asthma and other respiratory problems,” reports EWG. Furthermore, many cleaning products contain carcinogenic elements like 1,4-dioxane and formaldehyde. Still others can cause chemical burns, allergic reactions or other irritations upon exposure to the skin.

“Despite these health concerns, cleaning product labels often do not give consumers enough information about their ingredients to allow people to make informed decisions on which ones are safer and which ones might harm their health,” adds EWG. To fill the void, EWG launched its “Guide to Healthy Cleaning” to point consumers toward products made from natural ingredients that won’t make us sick.

This free online database provides short reviews and letter grades regarding the eco-friendliness of thousands of cleaning products. Among the dozens of products scoring an “A” grade are: Meliora’s Unscented Soap Flakes (general cleaning), Nature Clean Automatic Dishwasher Pacs (dishwasher detergent), Aura Cacia Aromatherapy Mist (air freshening), MamaSuds Toilet Bombs (toilet bowl cleaner), Aspen Clean Kitchen Cleaner (kitchen disinfectant), Attitude Laundry Detergent (laundry soap) and BuggyLOVE Organic No-Wash Stain Remover (carpet and upholstery cleaner).

If you are a “do-it-yourselfer” you can make your own all-natural cleaning formulations for a small fraction of the cost of what you would pay for any manufactured name brand’s version of the same thing. National Geographic suggests that a 1:1 mix of distilled white vinegar and water in a spray bottle is all you need to clean stovetops, countertops, backsplashes, porcelain and ceramic tile, and that you can dissolve mineral deposits at the base of faucets by wrapping the offending areas in a vinegar-soaked rag for a few minutes and then wiping clean. Meanwhile, freshening indoor air without compromising indoor air quality is as simple as wringing out a towel soaked in vinegar and whirling it around the room.

If bad smells are coming up from the bowels of your sink, pour a 1:1 mix of baking soda and vinegar (about a quarter-cup of each) into the drain and then once the ensuing bubbles dissipate, flush with hot water. You can even avoid the nasty smell and chemical exposure inherent in using oven cleaning formulations by doing it yourself with an 8-hour, on-the-hour application of hot water and baking soda on oven splatter spots. It literally costs pennies to clean your house without any chemical exposure. With so many good all-natural, inexpensive options to choose from nowadays, why would anyone in their right mind pay the big bucks for name-brand, toxin-laden cleaners anymore?
