Archery

30 years of straight shooting

“I have people shooting who are six years old, and I have people shooting that are in their 90s,” says Wayne Piersol, owner of Archery Only. When driving by a small shopping center on Cedar Boulevard in Newark, you wouldn’t guess that one of the shops opens into a 20-yard indoor archery range and pro shop with an impressive array of equipment. But this has been a unique resource of the greater Tri-City community for decades, whether seasoned bow hunters, young people looking for a unique night out, parents and children, or even those with disabilities.

Archery was part of Piersol’s life long before he decided to open his own shop. “I started shooting when I was probably 10 or 11 years old, and I came into a store like this when I was probably 13 years old

Medication Safety

Washington Hospital takes steps to ensure patient safety

When you go to the hospital for an operation or treatment for an illness, you are asked to provide a list of your current medications (including prescriptions, over-the-counter and herbals), but not to bring them when you are admitted. At Washington Hospital, the medications you may need to take, along with any new medications ordered during your hospital stay, will be provided by the Hospital's inpatient pharmacy.

Many patients wonder why they can't use their own medications from home. Wouldn't that be easier — and less expensive — than getting new medications in the Hospital for those they currently are taking at home?

The answer is simple, according to Minh-Thu Dennen, PharmD, director of the Washington Hospital inpatient pharmacy: the Hospital needs to ensure the quality of the medicines administered to patients while in the hospital.

Washington Hospital, like most large hospitals, has a process in place to track the origin of the drugs it dispenses to patients, Dennen adds. "We have extensive controls to ensure all the medications we dispense meet the highest quality standards set by the Federal Drug Administration (FDA). This gives us confidence in the quality of medications we use."

Dennen explains: "Medications can be tainted or of poor quality. Federal law administered by the FDA requires a full supply chain traceability system from pharmaceutical manufacturer to pharmacy dispenser for prescription medications being distributed in the U.S. We confirm that the companies we do business with are registered and licensed by the FDA. Our protocols ensure the medications we administer to patients are properly stored and have traceable documentation. Further, we have safeguards in place to prevent any potential adverse drug reactions."

These protocols are important since quality requirements can vary from country to country. Some pharmaceutical manufacturers provide medications to a variety of other countries where the quality standards vary and are different than those of the FDA. And, these products often are available online where individuals in the U.S. may have purchased them.

While the Hospital pharmacy protocols encourage patients not to bring medications from home, on occasion the Hospital does allow home medications to be used, according to Dennen. These situations include medications the Hospital doesn't carry, or when the patient requires alternative therapy administered while in the Hospital's care.

Washington Hospital follows strict protocols to ensure there is no question about the safety of inpatient medications.

"In those instances, we will check the source and integrity of the medications prior to allowing them to be used," Dennen adds. Herbals are not allowed because the pharmacy staff can't ensure the source and purity of herbal medicines. The Hospital pharmacy's policy and procedures reflect Washington Hospital's Patient First Ethic, "It is our job to ensure our patients receive the highest quality medications while under our care."

For more information on procedures the U.S. government uses to ensure the safety of medication distribution, visit: www.fda.gov/drugs. For more information on Washington Hospital, visit: whhs.com.

First of a Four-Part Back-to-School Series: Healthy School Lunches

Strategies for Packing Healthy Lunches Your Children Will Enjoy

The end of August marks the beginning of the school year for most K-12 students. This article on healthy school lunches is the first in a weekly series to provide parents with practical back-to-school health and safety tips. Over the next weeks, look for features on backpack safety, immunizations and how to help students deal with stress.

Healthy lunches are an important part of a student's day. Involving children in the creation of their lunches is a way to teach them about healthy eating.

Most of us know eating well is vital to our health, and it is also important to teach children about good nutrition beginning when they are young. A healthy school lunch provides sound nutrition to establish a lifetime of smart eating habits and the energy children need to learn and play throughout the rest of their day.

Recent studies have shown that nutrition affects students' thinking ability, behavior and overall health, which are key factors that impact their academic performance," said Washington Hospital's Director of Food and Nutrition/Clinical Services Kimberlee Alvari, MBA, RD, CPXP. "Children with properly fueled brains concentrate and perform better than those who skip meals or do not eat the right foods."

So how do you know what to pack in a lunch and how much is appropriate for your child? Alvari recommends www.myplate.gov as an excellent online resource for how to pack a nutritious lunch. It also provides suggested portion sizes based on a child's age.

"A good approach to building a healthy lunch is to provide items that fall into at least three of the major food groups, which include fruits, vegetables, grains, dairy or milk alternatives, and meat or protein alternatives," explained Alvari. Sometimes parents include numerous items in the lunchbox so the child can pick and choose what they want to eat, which is not advised. "Last month, a study in the International Journal of Obesity found that too much variety may lead to overeating, so more is not necessarily better in terms of choices," she added.

Alvari recommends a "soup to nuts" approach to school lunches, where children participate in all aspects of the preparation. Taking an active role in creating their lunches can encourage even the most finicky children to eat at lunchtime. "The helping hands involved in creating the lunch will be the healthy hands that are eating those smart lunch choices," she noted.

Some of her suggested examples for including children in lunch preparation include:

- Consider growing vegetables with your child, such as cherry tomatoes in a pot, which can be included in their lunch
- Discuss what items should be on the shopping list and bring your child to the grocery store to participate in selecting and buying their lunch food

- Create a picture chart with lunch items they would like to try in each of the different food groups. The child can draw and color the pictures or cut them out of magazines
- Use the picture chart to identify options to make lunch fun
- Designate areas in the kitchen or refrigerator where the child can find the lunch items to assemble in the morning or have a packing station where you can arrange it together

"Children experience food through taste, touch and sight, so adding an element of fun can help keep them interested in eating a nutritious lunch," said Alvari. Some of her ideas include changing the look of foods by creating sandwich shapes using cookie cutters, or serving cheese in slices, cubes or sticks. Vary the types of bread used for sandwiches such as pita, bagels or tortillas. Include dips for fruits or vegetables such as cottage cheese, hummus or yogurt. You can even create different themes each day and pack lunch items of one color like orange or blue, or one consistency, such as crunchy things.

A well-balanced breakfast is also important to fuel the brain and body for the day. For middle- or high school-aged children rushing out the door to early morning classes or activities, Alvari recommends packing up an easy-to-eat breakfast to send with them to school.

Alvari also stresses the importance of food safety. Make sure hands preparing the food are properly washed and kitchen surfaces and utensils are clean. Perishable foods should be removed from the refrigerator at the last minute and can be kept chilled in a thermos or next to an ice pack or frozen juice box. Also, be respectful of school policies regarding which food items are banned due to food allergies.

Registered dietitians from Washington Hospital will be staffing a booth and available to discuss healthy food choices at the free Summer Concert Series at Lake Elizabeth on August 15, from 6 to 8 p.m. Nutrition counseling is also available by referral through Washington Hospital's Outpatient Nutrition Program. Alleged phony pharmacist filled 745,000 prescriptions

AP WIRE SERVICE

Authorities have charged a woman with impersonating a pharmacist and illegally filling more than 745,000 prescriptions in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Charges against Kim Thien Le were announced Tuesday.

Prosecutors say that from late 2006 through 2017, Le – who didn't have a pharmacist license – used the license numbers of registered pharmacists in order to impersonate them and dispense prescriptions at Walgreens pharmacies in Santa Clara and Alameda counties.

They included more than 100,000 for opioids such as fentanyl, morphine and codeine.

Le was arrested last Friday. It's unclear whether she has an attorney.

Unicef Fundraiser

SUBMITTED BY MEGHA JOSHI

A UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) fundraiser took place on Sunday, July 28 at Castro Valley's Center for the Arts. The fundraiser itself was the solo dance debut of Megha Joshi, a rising senior at Newark Memorial High School. This type of debut is known as Ranga Puja, and Joshi performed in the Indian Classical dance form known as Odissi.

Joshi started learning Odissi at the tender age of five. Twelve years later, as she was about to undergo the customary solo debut, she decided that turning her debut into a fundraiser for UNICEF would be the perfect way to give back to the world that gave her the opportunity dance. UNICEF is active in 190 countries worldwide, including the United States, providing children with basic needs such as health care, immunizations, clean water, nutrition, and education.

Despite being a solo debut, the fundraiser was by no means a solo effort, as 100 volunteers and Joshi's dance guru, Gayatri Joshi, were involved in ensuring its success. The 450+ attendees enjoyed an evening of six dance performances that were accompanied by a mini orchestra of musicians who had come all the way from India.

Guests were encouraged to donate to the UNICEF global education program via either the donation box provided at the door, or an online link to UNICEF USA included in the invite. Through these means, over $3,700 was raised.

California Symphony's residence program accepting applicants

SUBMITTED BY THERESA MADEIRA

California Symphony is accepting composer applications for the orchestra's competitive Young American Composer-in-Residence program, taking place from August 1, 2020 through July 31, 2023. The application deadline is October 31; a selection will be made on or before February 1, 2020.

The residence program is designed to give outstanding, emerging, young American composers an opportunity to write orchestral music while working with a professional orchestra and conductor over a three-year period. "We hope that we can provide a platform of dreaming, without restriction, for the composer, in terms of what to write next," said California Symphony Music Director Donato Cabrera.

The program features key differences compared with others of its type. The selection process includes two initial blind review rounds (where works submitted by applicants are considered anonymously), designed to reduce or eliminate unconscious bias. Composers from underrepresented backgrounds are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates participate in reading rehearsals and receive study recordings of their work during the composition process. Over a three-year residency, the composer, conductor, and orchestra become partners in the creation of the works and share their experience and insights as compositions develop.

The Composer-in-Residence receives a commission fee of $10,000 for each work; three world premiere performances (one for each new work) in Walnut Creek in the spring of 2021, 2022 and 2023; and a recorded rehearsal reading of each piece before it premieres. The orchestra also provides accommodations and airfare for two residency weeks each year for on-site reading rehearsal and premiere weeks.

Working with Cabrera and California Symphony musicians, and symphony's board of directors and staff gives the composer an opportunity to develop their music in a collaborative and creative atmosphere that offers professional growth opportunities. The selected composer will also visit local schools to inspire young people about the art of composing; participate in pre-concert talks, receptions and events; and be involved in the search for the residency's next young composer.

To apply for the residency, visit californiasymphony.org/composer-application. Applicants will need to submit a resume, composition list, and award recognition list; three professional references; at least three scores from within the last three years that represent a cross section of work, plus audio recordings of up to three original compositions; proof of U.S. citizenship, and a $75 non-refundable application fee.

Uber lays off 400 employees from global marketing team

BY CATHY BUSSEWITZ
AP BUSINESS WRITER

Uber is laying off 400 employees in marketing, about a quarter of the marketing team's global workforce of 1,200 people.

The move, announced Monday, follows a leadership shake-up in June when CEO Dara Khosrowshahi combined the company's marketing, communications and policy teams.

The ride-hailing company has struggled to prove it can become profitable and its stock has traded mostly below its IPO price since its debut in May. Uber has blamed its losses partly on its costly promotions to attract riders and drivers. Those promotions are crafted by its marketing department.

Khosrowshahi installed Jill Hazelbaker to lead up marketing and public affairs in June. On Monday they announced a more centralized structure for marketing and said they want to build a consistent brand narrative across audiences, products and regions.

Apple buys Intel’s smartphone modem division for $1 billion

By MICHAEL LIEDTKE
AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

Apple is paying Intel $1 billion for the chip maker’s smartphone modem division in a deal driven by the upcoming transition to the next generation of wireless technology.

The agreement announced Thursday comes three months after Apple ended a long-running dispute with one of Intel’s rivals, Qualcomm. That ensured Apple would have a pipeline of chips it needs for future iPhones to work on ultrafast wireless networks known as 5G. The Apple-Qualcomm truce prompted Intel to abandon its attempts to make chips for 5G modems, effectively putting that part of its business up for grabs. Once the sale is completed later this year Apple will be picking up about 2,200 Intel employees and 17,000 wireless technology patents. Barring any complications, the deal is expected to close sometime between October and December. Apple’s purchase of Intel’s smartphone modem patents and other technology could bolster its attempt to build its own line of 5G chips and lessen its dependence on Qualcomm. The Cupertino, California business has hammered out a licensing agreement with Qualcomm that carries through April 2025, with an option to extend for an additional two years after that. Qualcomm is a pivotal supplier in the rollout of 5G, particularly in the U.S. That’s because President Donald Trump’s administration has blacklisted another key 5G supplier, Huawei, as part of its trade war with China.

So far, 5G connections are only available in a few cities in the U.S., but they are expected to become more prevalent by next year. The faster networks will enable consumers with 5G devices to download movies in a matter of seconds and access other streaming services more quickly. Apple isn’t expected to release an iPhone that works on 5G networks until September 2020, putting it behind rivals such as Huawei and Samsung, which already make handsets that work with the faster wireless technology. The sale is a residue of Intel’s inability to catch up with Qualcomm in the business of making chips for smartphone modems. Intel spent the past decade trying to make inroads in that market, with its big move coming in 2011 when it bought Infineon Technologies’ smartphone modem division for $1.4 billion. Apple rarely spends a lot on acquisitions, preferring to snap up startups for relatively small sums. The price it’s paying Intel ranks this deal among its largest besides its $3 billion takeover of Beats’ headphones and music streaming service in 2014. Even if the Intel acquisition turns out to be flop, it won’t leave a major dent in Apple’s finances. The company ended March with $225 billion in cash.

California governor signs law impacting desert water project

By ADAM BEAM ASSOCIATED PRESS

California’s governor signed a law on Wednesday that could delay a project to pump billions of gallons of water out from under the Mojave Desert. Cadiz Inc., an agriculture company in Southern California, wants to take the water and sell it to 400,000 customers in the Los Angeles region. The project has passed all the required environmental reviews dating back to at least 2002. But Wednesday, Democratic Gov. Gavin Newsom signed a law that adds another step by requiring the State Lands Commission to review the project before it can go forward. “This fragile ecosystem has existed, in balance, for centuries. Prior to allowing any project to move forward there must be certainty that it will not threaten the important natural and cultural resources,” Newsom wrote in his signing statement. In December, state regulators said new information showed the project would dry up a nearby spring that provides water for bighorn sheep, which are protected under state and federal endangered species laws. Company officials have disputed that, noting reviews under the California Environmental Quality Act found that claim impossible. The company says the project has been upheld at least 12 times by the courts. Cadiz Inc. CEO Scott Slater said while the company opposed the bill, they will comply with the law and submit the project to the State Lands Commission for approval, adding: “We don’t expect any different outcome.” “It’s a shame for California that we have to go through this,” Slater said, noting the new source of water could spur new development in the country’s most populous state facing a critical housing shortage. “The question is can (the state) put in place the procedural hurdles that will tire us out. But they don’t know us very well. We’ve been at it for a while, and we haven’t gotten tired out.”

U.S. Sen. Dianne Feinstein, who has opposed the project for years, accused the company of trying “to skirt federal permitting and rob the Mojave Desert of its most precious resource, water.” “If Cadiz were allowed to drain a vital desert aquifer, everything that makes our desert special - from bighorn sheep and desert tortoises to Joshua trees and breathtaking wildflower blooms - would have been endangered,” she said in a news release. The company says more than 20 million acre feet of water sits in an aquifer beneath the Mojave Desert. The water eventually flows to low-lying areas called “dry lakes” and either evaporates or becomes too salty to drink. One acre foot of water (43,560 cubic feet) is more than 325,000 gallons, the amount of irrigation water that would cover an acre to the depth of a foot. State Sen. Richard Roth, a Democrat from Riverside who authored the bill, said he’s concerned the company would remove billions of gallons of water more than nature puts back in every year. The company, citing a model developed by the U.S. Geological Survey, says the project would remove about 50,000 acre feet of that water each year while nature would replenish about 32,000 acre-feet per year. But Roth said other studies from the U.S. Geological Survey and the National Park Service suggest the aquifer naturally replenishes between 2,000 acre-feet and 10,000 acre-feet per year. “We cannot afford to get this wrong. It is critical to allow independent scientists to review the scientific evidence in order to resolve the conflict,” he said.

Trump refuses to shield Apple’s Mac Pros from China tariffs

AP WIRE SERVICE

President Donald Trump has vowed to slap tariffs on Apple’s Mac Pros if the company shifts production of the computer from Texas to China. The pledge made in a Friday tweet rebuffs Apple’s attempt to shield its products from taxes being imposed on goods made in China as part of Trump administration’s trade war with the world’s most populous country. Apple recently sent a letter to the Trump administration warning that the U.S. economy and its ability to compete will hurt if its products are hit with the tariffs. The Cupertino, California, company has been assembling its Mac Pros in Austin, Texas since 2013, but a report surfaced last month that Apple plans to shift production to a factory near Shanghai. Apple is reportedly moving Mac Pro production because it is having trouble finding enough skilled labor to assemble the computer in Texas. Apple didn’t immediately respond to a request for comment Friday but has previously said the Mac Pro will continue to be designed and engineered in California. The company hasn’t said where the computer will be assembled in the future though. Trump demanded in his tweet that they continue to be made in the U.S if Apple doesn’t want to be exposed to a 25 percent tariff on electronics made in China. Just hours later, Trump once again asserted the U.S. should have first dibs over the companies headquartered here. In a tweet, he vowed to retaliate against France for the new digital tax the country is imposing on big tech companies that sell online advertising. If anyone taxes the companies, Trump wrote in a tweet, it should be the U.S. He stuck in a dig about French wine, writing “I’ve always said American wine is better than French wine!” Investors appeared unfazed by Trump’s sparring with one of the world’s biggest and most powerful companies. Apple’s stock edged up $1.22 to $208.24 in Friday’s midday trading. The reaction probably would have been different had Trump made it clear that the tariffs will be applied to Apple’s top-selling product, the iPhone, which has long been assembled in China. Mac computers, on the other hand, now represent a relatively small part of Apple’s business, unlike the company’s early years when the computers were its marquee products. Mac computers held a 6 percent share of the worldwide personal computer market during the second quarter of this year, ranking well behind China’s Lenovo as well as HP and Dell in the U.S., according to the research firm Gartner Inc.

That’s money Tesla is going to need to repay its massive debt and other bills, unless it can’t stop hemorrhaging red ink. In a sign that investors are still worried about Tesla’s future prospects, the company’s stock dropped by nearly 10 percent to $239 in extended trading after the results came out. Tesla has sustained losses of more than $6 billion since its inception, but Musk promised a year ago that the road ahead would be paved with nothing but profits. The Palo Alto, California, company made good on that pledge with a profit of $451 million during the final half of last year, but now has posted successive quarterly losses totaling $1.1 billion during the first half of this year. The loss of $2.31 per share for the April-June quarter was worse than the $1.27 per share loss on a GAAP basis that analysts had expected, according to FactSet. It also came despite Tesla selling more electric cars – 95,356 – than in any other quarter in its history. The company remains behind the sales pace needed to realize Musk’s goal to deliver 360,000 to 400,000 cars this year. In a shareholder letter released with its second-quarter result, Tesla said it will focus more on increasing its manufacturing capacity and its car-delivery cars instead of hitting a specific financial target. The company said it will “aim” for a profit in the current quarter, without making an iron-clad commitment to do so. Just reaching the lower-end of Musk’s car-delivery goal for this year may prove difficult because the U.S. has reduced its tax incentive for electric car purchases before phasing it out entirely at the end of the year. Tesla is pinning its hopes largely on its lowest-priced vehicle so far, the Model 3 sedan, which starts at $35,000. That’s comparable to other mass-market cars, but many analysts doubt the company can make money on the Model 3 at its starting price. Tesla other’s cars, the Model S and Model X, both sell for more than $70,000 – far beyond the reach of most consumers. Musk also believes Tesla can reel in profits by launching a ride-hailing service composed entirely of driverless cars by the end of the next year. His plan will offer Tesla owners with cars equipped with a special self-driving chip to allow their vehicles to operate in a fully robotic mode so they can pick up fare-paying passengers. Musk envisions up to 1 million Teslas moonlighting as robotaxis, although most self-driving car experts don’t believe it will be remotely possible to pull off by the end of 2020. In a sign that autonomous cars aren’t coming along as quickly as once envisioned, General Motors has scrapped its plans to offer a fully driverless ride-hailing service in San Francisco this year.

Tesla posts $408M loss in 2Q, causing stock to plummet

By MICHAEL LIEDTKE
AP BUSINESS WRITER

Tesla suffered a loss of $408 million during its latest quarter as the company continues to struggle to prove it can make money while producing electric cars at prices that a mass market can afford. The setback announced Wednesday had already been telegraphed by Tesla CEO Elon Musk, but it still underscored an ongoing challenge that helps explain why the company’s shares have plunged by more than 20 percent so far this year while the Standard & Poor’s 500 index has surged by 20 percent. On the upside, Tesla’s second-quarter revenue climbed 47 percent from the same time last year to $5.2 billion. The company also generated $614 million in cash during the quarter, helping to fatten its bank account to $5 billion through June.

Dining reservation
app OpenTable
moves into delivery

By DEE-ANN DURBIN
AP BUSINESS WRITER

OpenTable is getting into the food delivery business.
The world's biggest online restaurant reservation service – which was founded 21 years ago – has been watching warily as more and more diners opt for delivery. Between May 2018 and May 2019, U.S. restaurant visits were flat at 23.8 billion, but deliveries rose 3 percent to 2 billion, according to NPD Group, a market research company.
So OpenTable decided to partner with three delivery companies – Caviar, GrubHub and Uber Eats – to offer that service through its app.
“We want OpenTable to be the go-to dining app for every meal occasion,” said Steve Hafner, who leads OpenTable and Kayak, an airline fare search engine. Both companies are owned by travel conglomerate Booking Holdings.
When OpenTable's updated site launches this week, it will give diners a delivery option for 8,000 restaurants in 90 U.S. cities. If they select delivery, users will be directed to the restaurant's preferred service to complete the transaction. If a restaurant works with more than one delivery company, each option will be shown. Eventually, OpenTable wants to post estimated delivery times and costs for each service as well.
Hafner said OpenTable decided to add a delivery option about nine months ago but didn't want to operate its own fleet in what's already become a booming sector. According to Technomic, the top five food delivery companies in the U.S. had $13.5 billion in sales between May 2018 and May 2019.

But the delivery market is crowded, and companies have been aggressively discounting and offering bonuses for drivers. GrubHub's first quarter profit tumbled 78 percent.
Partnering was the easiest and fastest way to get into the business, Hafner said. OpenTable – which says it seats 123 million diners each month – offered delivery companies access to a huge customer base.
“All these companies are in a chase for growth and they want to be where the consumers are,” Hafner said.
Hafner said the delivery function will make it easier for diners, who may use multiple delivery apps but don't always know which companies work with which restaurants.
OpenTable chose its three partners because they have the biggest reach, Hafner said. Eventually, the service will expand to more of the 51,000 restaurants OpenTable works with. OpenTable is active in 20 countries, including Australia and Japan.
GrubHub says the partnership is another way for diners to discover delivery. It also gives them an option to try a restaurant's food even if a reservation isn't available, the company said.
GrubHub said it's not concerned about OpenTable potentially posting its fees alongside competitors.

“We support any efforts to help consumers save money on delivery,” the company said in a statement.
Dan Simons, who runs seven restaurants as the co-owner and founder of Maryland-based Farmers Restaurant Group, said delivery was irrelevant six years ago. Now, it's the fastest growing part of his business, accounting for between 4 percent and 10 percent of his sales.
Simons said more than half his reservations already come through OpenTable. The new system will help him advertise his delivery option. Simons already works with Caviar and GrubHub as well as DoorDash.
Simons says he hears a lot of full-service restaurants complain that delivery is taking away customers who would otherwise eat in the restaurant. He thinks it's actually bringing in more business, because customers who want to stay home and watch TV while they eat weren't going to dine out anyway.
“I want them dining on my food whenever they want it,” Simons said.
OpenTable currently charges restaurants $249 per month for its service, plus $1 per seated diner who booked through OpenTable or 25 cents per diner who booked on the restaurant's website using OpenTable software. Restaurants won't pay any additional fee for the delivery option, Hafner said. Instead, OpenTable will charge a “modest fee” to delivery companies.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: AUGUST 7 – AUGUST 13, 2019

For All Signs: This week, Uranus is changing direction from direct to retrograde motion. Uranus is also known as Prometheus and is the only planet in the solar system that rolls on its belly. One side of the planet is always directed at the sun. Essentially, the planet breaks the rules of planetary protocol. In mythological terms, Prometheus defied Zeus’ orders and stole fire from the sun to share it with humankind. Prometheus, therefore, represents the renegade in our psyche – the one who does not color within the lines, who is rebellious, and who can be expressed as ingenuity. He can act as an anarchist, who breaks rules just because they are there or can represent a special genius that each of us offer in service to the world. Some individuals are more “connected” to this energy than others, as you can imagine. Those who choose to follow their special genius are in some way helping humankind to evolve, to stretch and grow. At its highest level, Uranus operates as the intuitive mind that connects the dots to form fresh, new ideas. His best side is always a supporter of social justice.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): This week is likely to be quiet and a good period to bring projects to a conclusion. You will want to finish that which has been in motion through the summer. Normally you are always planning for the next thing to focus upon, but for a couple of weeks here that does not appeal. Maybe you need some R&R.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): You may feel nailed to a tree by life's challenges right now. The good news is that Jupiter is favoring your planet, Venus. Jupiter is the “greater benefic,” which offers favors and help from people in your life. Others are sympathetic to your cause and want to lend a hand. Let them do so. It will be a blessing to you both.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): You and your partner(s) are in a celebratory mood. You are talkative and in an exploring frame of mind. Curb your tendency to be opinionated or overbearing. Be careful if you feel compelled to buy. You are likely to splurge on an item that ultimately doesn't fully satisfy what you want or need.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): You will likely be engaged in activities that require you to think and to express your feelings. You and your partner may be at odds; you will require to take a stand for yourself. After the weekend you'll be ready to crawl back to your shell for some R&R.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This week is far better for love life and play. Your usual routines are bogged down by circumstances out of your control, so give them time to take care of themselves while you use your energy for more rewarding activities. Worry is useless.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): There is a shift of your attention to matters of your personal history that may go back quite a long time. You will be looking inside yourself for meditative peace, answers to serious questions, and encouragement from your source. Journaling, hypnosis, meditation or counseling are useful activities now.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): Your avatar planet, Venus, is stuck in a hard place for a short time this week. You may not be feeling well and would rather avoid people while you mend. Meanwhile, friends and those who are close to you want to help in whatever ways they can.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): Please note the lead paragraph. For the next few years, Uranus will turn up in your life through your partner's changes in behavior and attitudes. (“Partners” can be a spouse, a very close friend, a clientele, or a business partner.) You probably already feel the need to play the stable role in these relationships.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Jupiter, your planetary avatar, is turning direct this week. This increases confidence and you'll find that you will be able to move forward on plans. Aspects strongly favor activities involving the law, travel, teaching, publishing, and education. Travel is auspicious.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): It is probably time to let one of your business situations flow back into the ethers. You may be "ahead of your time" or "behind the times", but somehow this one is out of sync with today's trends. If it seems to you that some minor tweaking could salvage the situation, begin now.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): You have been pondering serious things in recent weeks and months. It is possible that you have critiqued yourself for not producing more in your life thus far. Your friends and family would readily tell you that who you are for them is by far greater than what you have produced. Listen to them.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Your normal routines of living seem to be interrupted this week. It is hard to move forward. This may be due to physical or emotional stressors. Give yourself to uplifting movies or books. Avoid brooding. The time is short.

Third Thursdays have been a hit in Hayward this summer with the 2019 "Downtown Hayward Street Parties." If you missed the first two in June and July, you still have a chance to join our final event on August 15. Bring your friends and family to enjoy live bands, food, classic car show, street entertainers, kids' rides, Alan the Amazing, and face painters. Brews will be served in the beer garden adjacent the Bank of the West Stage.

"It says a lot about Hayward that our participants look at the street parties as a family reunion," said Kim Huggett, president of Hayward Chamber of Commerce. "These are events that not only are family-friendly, but the coolness factor is there, too."

The street party series is made possible through a partnership of the Downtown Hayward Improvement Association, City of Hayward and Chamber of Commerce. For more information, call (510) 537-2424 or visit <https://www.hayward-ca.gov/discover/events/june-2019-downtown-hayward-third-thursday-street-party>.

US home prices climbed just 2.4 percent from a year ago

By JOSH BOAK
AP ECONOMICS WRITER

U.S. home prices rose at a slower pace in May, a sign that many would-be buyers are finding properties unaffordable. The S&P CoreLogic Case-Shiller 20-city home price index increased 2.4 percent in May from a year earlier, according to a Tuesday report. Price growth decelerated slightly from the 2.5 percent year-over-year gain in April. “Thwarted by climbing prices for years, buyers are no longer willing to pay any price,” said Matthew Speakman, an economist at real estate company Zillow. “There were too few homes on the market and buyers were unable to find houses that fit both their needs and their budgets, so they took a breather.”

The sluggish price growth stems largely from the most expensive markets, where years of price growth have undermined affordability. Home prices rose less than 2 percent in Los Angeles, New York, San Diego and San Francisco. Prices in the typically hot market of Seattle fell 1.2 percent from a year ago, a sharp reversal from an annualized gain of 13.6 percent in May 2018.

The strongest price gains were in Las Vegas at 6.4 percent, Phoenix at 5.7 percent and Tampa at 5.1 percent. There were signs in a National Association of Realtors report on existing homes that prices may get some support from lower mortgage rates.

Home & Garden

Garden BnB for our feathered and flighty friends

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY
LALITHA VISVESWARAN

Imagine this: A garden AirBnB allowing insects and birds and maybe some warty customers to stay in return for their pest management and cleanup services.

When our garden bursts with flowers leaving a blaze of color, that is only the first part of the flowers' life cycle. Everything that blooms must die, you see. Flowers produce seeds so their DNA may spread when those seeds are carried away by wind or birds and deposited someplace else. Plants have wanderlust too even if they are rooted and earthbound. Sadly, we chop down flowers after they seem dried up. We cut the natural cycle readymade bird mix at a store. Beautiful and cheery bird feeders can also be found at garden stores. Bird feeders are usually hung high to detract predators such as snakes, critters, and cats from making an easy meal out of a distracted greedy bird.

To make your own bird feeder, take a container with a cavity to hold seeds. The container can be hung on a branch with hemp or jute rope. A branch or a stick perch for the birds is a bonus. Do not make the feeder too big as birds might mistake it for a bird house if they get comfortable enough. I love using old cat food tin cans as bird feeders. The metal tins cans are easy to decorate and have large openings that discourage birds from using the feeders as houses.

short and deny plants the very reason for their existence.

Ideally, I would like all of us to leave our garden messy with dried-out flowers, so the plants can live out their purpose; doing so could attract birds, who are the chauffeurs for the seeds. But sometimes, we must maintain appearances. So, we weed, sow, and prune our garden. However, there are still ways to make your garden inviting for flighty, buzzy and feathery pollinators.

Bird feeders

If you want birds around, you must feed them. While most birds prefer fresh seeds from dying flowers, it is easy to find a them into bird feeders. One of my favorite bird feeders: When sunflowers have shed their petals, nail them to the fence. Bird love the feeder as it's an easy pecking buffet for them.

Toad House

Having toads around is every gardener's dream. Toads eat thousands of garden pests such as insects, snails, and slugs. But how to attract toads to the garden? Build a toad house.

Toads don't live in water like frogs do, but as amphibians they do need lots of moisture, shade and access to water. Toads also need cover as they are meals to predators such as snakes and raptors.

In nature, logs and tree trunks act as homes for insects. Many insects are ground nesters, but as we trod the earth and create walking paths, these refuges are lacking in our manicured gardens. We can rectify the problem – even staking stones or drilling holes into tiles can help insects snuggle during winter. Larvae can safely gestate in such spaces. Stones, wood, hollow reeds, and bamboo are suitable for creating tunnel-like abodes. A stack of old corrugated cardboard is perfect, even better with a sprinkling of garden soil. For our zone, insect hotels must be southern facing.

Fruit trees are perfect to house earwigs; plant lice are earwigs' meal of choice. Hang a terracotta pot upside down or sideways and fill it with straw. Ladybugs hibernate as a group and like old twigs for their glam shack. They are great for aphid control and will polish off aphids near your vegetable garden or roses in a matter of hours.

Crevices

Butterflies like crevices and even a bundle of leaves will give them space to deposit their eggs. Butterflies also need foraging plants before the larval stage and nectar plants after they emerge from the chrysalis. Do keep that in mind while setting up butterfly habitats. Anise Swallowtail butterflies like fennel tops and flowers, monarchs specifically love milkweed, Gulf Fritillary like Passiflora, and all butterflies appreciate the showy butterfly bush for nectar. Do some research into the kind of plants butterflies like to create a butterfly garden.

Lalitha Visveswaran is a full-time farmer at Jellicles Farm in the Sunol AgPark. www.jelliclesfarm.com

To build a toad house, location is key. It must be a moist and shady spot, preferably with understory of leafy plants. Access to water is also crucial; a pond or a water feature is not needed, but toads can't be in an arid or hot part of the garden. Toads like to live under porches, near large tree roots and rocks that absorb heat. Access to an upturned clay pot is enough to create a toad palace. Do not use metal as it tends to become hot and can be oppressive for our toad friends. (Also true for bird houses)

To build an easy-peasy toad house, dig a small hole or a ditch around the toad shelter, so there is always some water around its abode.

Bug Motels

Insect houses or "bug motels" are manmade structures created to provide shelter for insects. The houses come in a variety of shapes and sizes to accommodate different kinds of insects and bugs. Most houses provide nesting facilities, particularly during winter, offering shelter or refuge for many types of insects. Solitary bees and wasps do not create colonies or hives, and need a place to stay. Butterflies and ladybirds can also hibernate or overwinter in the folds and nooks of the bug motel.

THE ACWD CONNECTION

Niles Canyon Stroll & Roll

Come enjoy the beautiful scenery of Alameda Creek and Niles Canyon at the Niles Canyon Stroll & Roll event.

ACWD is excited to be an event partner and will host two hydration stations and an information booth. Stop by our booth and learn more about the importance of protecting Alameda Creek and the work we've done to foster environmental, wildlife and water supply protection. We will have information on critical projects along Alameda Creek including the replacement of one inflatable rubber dam, the installation of a series of fish screens and water diversion pipelines, and the construction of two fish ladders that will help threatened steelhead trout migrate upstream for spawning.

This family-fun event will allow you to bike, walk or run through Niles Canyon without vehicle traffic. This opportunity does not come along often, so we hope to see you there!

Davis Street Health Fair

also known simply as “Davis Street,” has become a leader in guiding its client families out of poverty and into productive lives.

The center’s approach includes services to address not only the immediate needs of their clients, but also tackle the larger issues of poverty and disenfranchisement that often prevent people from breaking out of the cycle. Founded as a ministry of the First Christian Church in 1970, Davis Street became a 501(c) (3) organization in 1990. While it started small, offering only childcare services, thrift shop, food pantry and recycling center, services have expanded to include medical, dental, behavioral, pediatric, and women’s health services, nutrition, domestic abuse counseling, housing, and utility assistance.

Davis Street became a federally qualified health center in 2015 and now provides a full continuum of healthcare services to families in southern Alameda county area, including supportive and educational services to developmentally disabled children and adults. The center also focuses on improving community involvement and empowering its clients to become change agents and advocates to broaden its impact.

To further extend its reach into the community and build on the foundation of service, Davis Street will be hosting its fifth annual Health Fair on Saturday, August 10th in San Leandro. This one-of-a-kind event will offer complimentary medical and dental screenings and free backpacks and shoes for eligible children. The fair will include a farmer’s market as well as nutrition education, making it a one-stop shop to generate awareness about healthy eating habits. There will also be free games and prizes, and fun activities for the whole family.

The fair is an expression of center employees’ heartfelt commitment to the cause.

Kristal Gonzales, Basic Needs Assistant Manager at the center shared what it means to be a part of the center – “I feel really fulfilled. I think about my kids where I can provide. Yet there are many parents that are not able to provide at this place and time. I am so glad to work for a place like Davis Street that can help provide for families.” She adds, “Kids are judged in school by what they wear and bring, and for kids in need to get a new backpack full of supplies or new shoes to wear when going back to school, their spirits are uplifted and it often restores their dignity.”

Over the years, the popularity of the fair has grown steadily, and this year over 2,000 people are expected to take part, an increase of over 30% from last year. The opportunity to get free health screenings in an informal, non-traditional setting makes it easier for people to stay updated on their basic health, and follow up with the primary care physicians if needed. Screenings allow the center to offer tailored services based on client’s needs and cultivates a stronger relationship with the population they serve. While the participation numbers speak for themselves for the success of the fair, for the employees of Davis Center there is a deeper meaning of success as well. As Vida Benavides, Director of Marketing and Communications put it – “When clients come back and tell us how their quality of life has improved with the help from Davis Street, that is truly a meaningful success for all of us”.

The secret sauce to operating a center with services of this magnitude is a dedicated team of staff and volunteers and support from community. Rose Padilla Johnson, who has been the CEO since 1991, in conjunction with the Board of Directors provides leadership to the nearly 100 full-time and part-time employees in serving over 9,000 patients every year.

Funding from local businesses and help from volunteers makes it possible for the center to deliver on its vision.

There are many ways to contribute. Please check out <http://davisstreet.org/> for more information. A little help goes a long way and makes us part of an effort bigger than ourselves – ensuring everyone has a home, food and necessities of life, and a safety net if they fall through the cracks. We wish DSFRC the very best as it nears the 50th anniversary of relentless community service.

Networks sue Locast, a service that streams TV for free

By TALI ARBEL
AP BUSINESS WRITER

The country’s biggest TV networks – ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox – have sued Locast, a streaming service that transmits their broadcasts for free, in federal court in New York.

The companies said in the suit, filed Wednesday, that Locast is violating their copyrights and asked for its service to be shut down. Locast has held that under the law, it is allowed to stream the networks without paying them because it is a non-profit.

The networks are suing because Locast threatens their business model, and they say that Locast is acting on behalf of Dish and AT&T, which owns DirecTV. Cable and satellite TV companies pay TV stations; the TV stations then pay the networks, which are owned by Walt Disney Co., CBS Corp., Comcast Corp and Fox Corp.

These fees paid by cable and satellite companies have climbed from under a billion a decade ago to more than $11 billion expected this year. Because of this escalation in costs, TV providers often get into fights with the broadcasters over how much to pay them, resulting in blacked-out channels for consumers. Such fights have increased.

In their suit, the networks claim that Locast “is serving” its “patrons” Dish and AT&T. Locast last month got a $500,000 donation from AT&T. AT&T has integrated Locast into its DirecTV and U-verse cable services, as has Dish. Having Locast as a backstop could help them in their fights with the broadcasters. AT&T, for example, is in a payment dispute with CBS that has taken CBS off its platforms.

Locast’s founder, David Goodfriend, is a former Dish executive and a longtime Dish lobbyist. The suit claims that Locast was started with a big loan from a former Dish executive. Goodfriend has refused to identify to the AP who gave him the funding to start Locast.

Locast said Wednesday in a prepared statement that it is an independent non-profit that provides a public service, and that what it does is allowed under copyright law. The networks it streams are also available free to consumers if they have an antenna.

Dish and AT&T did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

Locast currently works in 13 cities. Most of them are major markets, including New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Houston.

NILES CANYON RAILWAY

Niles Canyon Railway, Niles Depot Museum, Pacific Bus Museum and the Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum present “Nostalgic Niles,” on Friday, August 9 – Sunday August 11. This weekend of rides on an old-fashioned steam train celebrates the historic role of the Niles District of Fremont, CA in railroading.

Together, each museum will take you back in time to explore the colorful past with a weekend full of fun, nostalgic, and historic adventures using great storytelling. This time travel adventure begins with special presentations and films starting Friday evening at the Essanay Silent Film Museum and continue with steam powered train rides Saturday and Sunday on the Niles Canyon Railway (NCRy). Special bus transportation is available (extra cost) between the NCRy's Niles Station and downtown main street Niles.

Once in downtown, train passengers can take advantage of special matinee movie showings all weekend at the Essanay Silent Film Museum with their bus & movie wristband. Additionally, visitors can visit the Niles Depot and Model Railroad Museum and shop or dine in downtown Choose your boarding location to start your experience aboard our vintage steam train. Boarding times in Sunol are limited, so please check the schedule on the NCRy website. Should you decide to step back in time and stroll historic Niles; a bus awaits you in Niles/Fremont station to take you to and from Main Street to explore. We have steam train departures from each station throughout the day, with the last one-way departure from our Niles/Fremont station to Sunol at 5:20 p.m. on Saturday and 3:20 p.m. on Sunday.

Roadways between the Fremont/Niles station and Downtown Niles are not pedestrian-safe, so please use the bus or your own vehicle when not traveling by train. Combination bus transportation and

What Goes Up Must Come Down

On Earth, gravity keeps the air around us (and everything else) from drifting off into space. Gravity pulls on everything—every rock, every grain of sand, every leaf and every person.

Newton's Apple

One day, according to a _____ story, a man named Sir Isaac Newton was _____ under an apple tree. An apple _____ on his head, and he suddenly _____ of the law of gravity.

It is most likely that years of _____ things falling to the ground were what led to the _____ insight he called Newton's Law of Gravity.

Whoops! Gravity has made some of the words in this article fall to the ground. Can you find where each word belongs?

Weight and Gravity

Your weight is determined by the pull of gravity on your body. If you weigh 60 pounds, then the pull of the Earth's gravity on you is 60 pounds. The weight of a box tells how much gravity pulls on the box.

Standards Link: Earth Science: Students understand forces and know that gravity is not a physical object, but affects physical objects.

Weight Around the Solar System

The moon and the planets all have gravity. The moon has less gravity than Earth. That means you would weigh less on the moon, because less gravity pulls on you. If you weigh 60 pounds on Earth, you would weigh 10 pounds on the moon.

How many pounds would a 60-pound person weigh on each of these planets? Do the math to discover the answer.

Oakland Zoo summer events

As summer moves into fall, your favorite East Bay zoo is adding to their rich and varied animal encounters with special events for kids and adults alike. Learn more about endangered lions and primates, help clean up Arroyo Viejo Creek or celebrate the Moon Festival. In addition, two events are dedicated to senior citizens in the Oakland area.

Read below for times, dates and fees.

Lion Appreciation Day

Saturday, August 10
All Ages
10 a.m. – 3 p.m.

Come watch our African lion enjoy special enrichment
Hear a talk by our lion keeper
Get your face painted like a lion
Learn about the world's lions from our conservation partners
Purchase crafts and music made by communities that live near lions

Why do we celebrate World Lion Day?

Lions are one of the most iconic animals in the world – but the king of beasts is in trouble in the wild. It is estimated there are fewer than 20,000 lions left in all of Africa due to habitat loss and human-wildlife conflict, and our own California mountain lions face similar challenges. Lions in captivity also face difficulties, from canned hunting to the abuses of the cub-petting and circus industries. But you can be a part of the solution by learning about lions and ways to help them!

SAVE launches Women's community Art night

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS SUBMITTED
BY SHAILAJA DIXIT

Officials from Safe Alternatives to Violent Environments (SAVE) recently hosted the agency's first community art night for women at the Fremont Family Resource Center in central Fremont.

The July 17 event theme “Embrace the Artist Within You” offered an opportunity for women to celebrate their artistic sides while connecting with others in a fun and collaborative environment. The evening began on a note of harmony as attendees planted seeds and decorated small pots, and then went onto explore different artistic themes through mixed multi-media.

The plan is to hold women's art nights the third Wednesday of every month at the Fremont Family Resource Center on Liberty Street. The next meeting will be 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 21. No previous art experience is necessary to participate; all materials will be provided onsite. Admission is free, but those planning to attend should send an RSVP via email to light@save-dv.org.

SAVE is grateful to local artist, activist and SAVE supporter Allie Nardella and to the LIGHT team for hosting and organizing this event. To learn more about SAVE and the LIGHT program, visit their website at www.save-dv.org.

SAVE is a nonprofit community-based organization that provides free domestic violence prevention and support services to residents in the Tri-City area and greater Bay Area.

I need a Forever Home

Draco is a goofy, active, playful and loving 1 year old white Siberian Husky who's looking for a loving, playful, active, goofy family to share their lives with him. He may be a wonderful addition to a family with younger children since he doesn't mind sharing his treats and food. He plays well with other dogs who like to run and discover new things. Neutered. Meet Draco at the Hayward Animal Shelter.

George is a pint sized, 10 yrs young black and tan Yorkie mix with a huge personality. He's playful and loves to chase his toys, and he's also good at sharing and dropping them. He's very social and would rather be out and about with friends than being showered with treats. George does well with other dogs and may be a good fit with young kids as well. Neutered. Meet George at the Hayward

Animal Shelter.

Easy Bay Park District bans glyphosate

By DENNIS WAESPI
EAST BAY REGIONAL PARK DISTRICT BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Responding to public concerns about health effects of the herbicide glyphosate, the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors has approved a resolution calling for an immediate ban of its use in picnic areas. The resolution also calls for full elimination of glyphosate in all developed park areas by the end of 2020.

Glyphosate is currently used as part of the park district’s pest management program for fire prevention and vegetation maintenance around park structures, fences, walkways, parking areas and in public right-of-way areas such as roads, bike paths, and trails.

However, the district has taken steps during the past two years to reduce glyphosate use and find alternatives. In 2016 the district updated its integrated pest management practices to focus on early intervention and the use of organic products when possible as an alternative to glyphosate. Over the past two years, the district has reduced its use by 66 percent for park maintenance.

By the end of 2020, the district plans to phase out glyphosate use in developed park areas, including parking lots, campgrounds, lawns, and paved trails. Currently, glyphosate is not used near play areas or water fountains. The phase-out will take substantial financial resources and significantly impact the district’s general fund and staffing levels. The board has asked staff to report back with an assessment of staff and fiscal needs.

Celebration of East Bay Regional Park District’s 85th anniversary continues with lots of great activities still on the calendar.

For one, there’s free parking, swimming, fishing, and boating (though state fees and permits still apply) at all the regional parks, every Friday through the end of the year. There’s free entrance on non-event Fridays at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont.

Free concerts are scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Fridays, August 9 and September 13 at Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda. Parking will be available on Webster Street or the Crown Beach lot on Otis and Shoreline Drive. Bring a blanket or lawn chair, eat a picnic dinner or purchase food on-site.

A major anniversary celebration will be the Fall Arts and Music Festival on Saturday, September 28 in the park district’s Bridge Yard Building at the eastern touchdown of the Bay Bridge in Oakland.

The Regional Parks Foundation celebrates its 50th anniversary with a gala from 5:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. Thursday, October 10 at the Casa Real – Ruby Hill Winery in Pleasanton.

Check the park district website at www.ebparks.org and stay tuned for more information on special events marking the two anniversaries.

Kids and adults will enjoy free family outdoor movie night from 8:20 p.m. to 10:05 p.m. Saturday, August 10 at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont. The feature is “The Lego Movie 2: The Second Part,” which will start shortly after sunset. Arrive early to get a good seat. Bring a flashlight, warm clothes, and a blanket or chair. No pets are allowed. The event will be cancelled if it rains (unlikely).

Ardenwood is at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard, just north of Highway 84. For information call (510) 544-2567.

For a trip back in time, check out the Knap-In at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont. A hands-on demonstration of the ancient art of stone tool making will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, August 24 and Sunday, August 25. Experienced stone tool makers will show how ancient peoples made spear points and arrowheads out of chert, obsidian, and other stones. Young children may watch. Anyone ages 16 or older can give stone tool making a try, but if you wish to do so, bring leather gloves, long pants, close-toed shoes, and protective eye wear.

Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road, off Paseo Padre Parkway. Call (510) 544-3220.

Summer brings live music

Summer is the perfect time to lay out a blanket or pull up a lawn chair and listen to your favorite bands (or discover new ones!) in the long pleasant evenings around the East Bay. In 2019, the summer season will kick off with on June 15 in Fremont with the Pacific Commons Summer Concert Series, starting with pop and rock hits from Cover Story. The fun will continue with concerts from Milpitas to San Leandro. Milpitas will start their season with their Juneteenth summer concert on June 18, to pick up again on July 16 with Lyin I’s. Meanwhile, Hayward will join in with their Municipal Band and Summer Music in the park series, starting June 16 and August 4 respectively. Hayward’s lineup includes Chris Marquis’ Giant Garage Spiders, Sycamore 129 Blues Band, and What’s Up Big Band—and that’s just the start of the season. Newark will host Music at the Grove (starting June 21 with Big Band Beat), and San Leandro will join in with Hot August Thursdays.

With concerts running through September, there is plenty of time for music lovers to make the most of those summer days.

California law to limit youth football practices

BY ADAM BEAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

California’s governor has signed a law limiting full-contact practices for youth football teams to reduce brain injuries.

State law already limits full-contact practices for middle and high school football teams to no more than 90 minutes per day, twice per week.

Wednesday, Democratic Gov. Gavin Newsom signed a law to limit full contact practices for youth football teams to no more than 30 minutes per day for two days per week. The law bans full-contact practices for youth football teams during the offseason.

The law also requires a medical professional be present for all games and an independent person attend all practices with the authority to remove players who show signs of an injury.

The law is aimed at preventing a degenerative brain disease known as chronic traumatic encephalopathy, or CTE. Researchers are studying the disease’s link to frequent blows to the head, which occur more often in sports like football.

The NFL and NCAA have changed the rules in recent years to reduce head injuries. Last year, Democratic Assemblyman Kevin McCarty introduced a bill that would have banned anyone from playing organized tackle football younger than 12. That bill did not pass.

The law Newsom signed is authored by Democratic Assemblyman Jim Cooper, who represents Elk Grove.

Connecting robots to artificial intelligence in the cloud

THE ROBOT REPORT

Connecting robots to artificial intelligence in the cloud can reduce onboard processing and power demands. On July 12, CloudMinds Technology Inc., which offers cloud-based systems for robotics, filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission for an initial public offering of stock worth $500 million. The company has headquarters in Beijing and Santa Clara, California.

In its SEC filing, CloudMinds claimed to be the world’s first company “to commercialize products and services related to the end-to-end cloud robot system.” It cited a Frost & Sullivan report estimating that the global market for cloud robotics will grow from $75.5 billion last year to $103 billion in 2023.

Company connects brains for service robots

CloudMinds said it “makes robots smarter, providing the secure virtual backbone network coupled with a real-time, multi-modal, human-in-the-loop cloud brain platform to connect different types of service robots.”

The “cloud brain,” or Human Augmented Robotics Intelligence with Extreme Reality (HARIX) platform, is capable of operating millions of connected robots conducting different tasks simultaneously, said CloudMinds. The AI system includes capabilities such as computer vision, natural language processing, and vision-controlled manipulation, aided by human supervision and input.

HARIX is connected to smart devices and robots via CloudMinds’ Virtual Backbone Networks (VBNs). The “nerve network” is built on 4G and emerging 5G network infrastructure, primarily in China, the U.S., Japan, and Europe.

Onboard the robot, the Data A1 smartphone, which serves as a robot control unit (RCU), processes data locally before transmission to the cloud and receipt of commands. Smart Compliant Actuators (SCAs) from INNFO Technologies Co. include embedded AI processors and multimodal sensors for human-like motion, said CloudMinds.

Honing humanoid service robots

Sales of service robots last year rose by 39% to $6.6 billion, said the International Federation of Robotics.

The need for service robots is growing because of aging populations, rising labor costs, and ongoing demands for greater productivity, said Frost & Sullivan. It predicted that there will be 42 million service robots by the end of 2020 and that personal robots will be a $19 billion market opportunity by 2020.

CloudMinds’ portfolio includes CloudPepper, a humanoid robot from SoftBank Robotics using its cloud-based AI. Other robots include cloud-based vending machines, security robots, and the Cloudia virtual AI robot.

In February, CloudMinds combined its technologies in the Temporary Housing Navigation Center

The City of Fremont has opened a new topic on its online forum, Fremont Open City Hall, regarding the proposed temporary housing navigation center. The navigation center will provide a clean, safe, calm, and flexible environment that allows homeless persons to rebuild their lives and focus on finding stable permanent housing. The center is modeled after the City of Berkeley’s successful Housing Navigation (STAIR) Center.

The City Council is considering two potential locations for the center – Parking Lot at Fremont City Hall (rear area) and Decoto Surplus Property (unleased property next to Regan Nursery). In addition to meeting minimum site requirements in size, these locations are within one-half mile of food and bus services, utility connection points are available, and the locations are outside of a fault trace zone and not subject to surface fault rupture hazards.

The forum will accept feedback until Monday, September 2. Feedback will be shared with the council as part of the community outreach efforts at a council meeting in September (date to be determined). For more information and to take the survey, visit www.Fremont.gov/OpenCityHallNavCenter.

Dockless Mobility

The city is partnering with HOPR, a leading micro-mobility company operating in cities across North America, to introduce a dockless bike share system. Fremont’s new bike share system will offer a convenient option for short trips and for first-and last-mile portions of transit trips. HOPR will roll out 250 dockless bicycles in Fremont on Monday, August 5, to provide a safe and sustainable mobility option. The GPS-enabled bikes are available 24/7 and easy to find and rent. Users simply download the HOPR Transit app (available on iOS and Android) to sign up and unlock a bike. The first 30 minutes are free to all new users.

Bikes can be used across the city, with HOPR deploying and rebalancing bikes near transit stations, in major commercial districts, and near activity centers. The city has issued HOPR a one-year pilot program permit as part of its Shared Active Transportation program. This program, which supports the city’s vision to be smart and environmentally sustainable, is made possible in part by a grant from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

HOPR smart-bikes are one of the most affordable shared mobility systems in the area. Pay Per Ride trips cost $1 to start and only 15¢/min. For more frequent riders, a 30-Day Pass is $20 per month and provides unlimited free unlocks and a reduced per-minute rate of 10¢/min; while a 365 Day Pass costs $60 per year and provides 30 minutes of riding time a day, unlimited free unlocks, and the reduced per minute rate of 10¢/min.

To keep streets and sidewalks safe for all, riders are encouraged to park in designated parking areas (visible in the app) or by public bicycle racks. The program is open to anyone ages 18 or older, and users are encouraged to bring their own helmets.

Climate Action Plan Update

Since the adoption of first Climate Action Plan (CAP) in 2012, the city has implemented several municipal and public-facing projects, programs, and policies that have resulted in significant reductions in greenhouse gas emissions. The city is now working to update its CAP to align with the new 2045 carbon neutrality goal established by the City Council in February.

As part of the CAP update process, the city is seeking the community’s help in identifying actions that will make Fremont a cleaner and healthier place for everyone. Strategies for achieving these goals can include transitioning to renewable and fossil-free energy in buildings and vehicles, enhancing sustainable transit and travel options, reducing waste and pollution, incorporating green building design, restoring natural habitats, drawing down carbon dioxide from the atmosphere through plants and trees, and increasing our resilience to climate change.

To gain feedback, the city invites the community to complete the Climate Action Plan Update Survey at www.Fremont.gov/OpenCityHallClimate.

Solar Installations and Electric Vehicles

Fremont is excited to announce that SunShares is back this year and now open for registration. The city is one of nearly 40 local government agencies and major employers participating in the 2019 Bay Area SunShares program, a community program helping residents access discounts and resources to help them go solar and buy zero-emission vehicles. This is the city’s fifth year as a SunShares outreach partner.

Three local and recognized solar installation companies – PetersenDean, SkyTech Solar, and Solar Technologies – have been selected for the program and are offering a 15 percent discount, making now the most affordable time to go solar. In addition, those who choose to go solar can still take advantage of the federal solar tax credit. SunShares is also offering zero-emission vehicle discounts on the 2019 all electric Nissan Leaf and the 2019 hydrogen fuel-cell Toyota Mirai. To sign up, visit www.BayAreaSunShares.org. This offer is available until November 15.

XR-1 humanoid service robot. At Mobile World Congress 2019

in Barcelona, co-founder and CEO Bill Huang described the general-purpose robot as a step toward general-purpose “family nanny robots by the year 2025.”

“Based on a set of advanced technologies, CloudMinds will develop a number of intelligent compliant service robots, from wheeled to two-legged,” Huang said. “Leveraging the 5G network’s high bandwidth and low latency, our cloud AI platform will rapidly grow its intelligence as well as its deployment size. We will usher in a new era of service-oriented robotics.”

In April, CloudMinds released the XR Robotics Development Kit to enable programmers, developers, and end users to create skills for the XR-1 and subsequent robots in the series. The Robotics Development Environment includes a HARIX digital twin and uses deep learning to acquire and test skills that can later be transferred back to physical XR-1 robots.

Banking on robot brains

CloudMinds was founded in 2015 and has close to 700 full-time employees. Citigroup, JP Morgan, and IBS Investment Bank are bookrunners in the IPO, said Xinhua News.

This past spring, CloudMinds closed its $186 million Series B fund-raising round, according to Crunchbase, and it raised a total of $300 million with investment from the SoftBank Vision Fund. Other investors include Foxconn, Keytone Ventures, and Walden International.

Fremont Unified School Board Meeting Highlights

SUBMITTED BY KENNETH BLACKSTONE

At the July 31 Board of Education Meeting – Measure E Bond Program, the Fremont Unified School District Amend agreement with Terraphase Engineering in the amount of $40,408 to include a biological study and a Preliminary Environmental Assessment (PEA) for the Patterson Ranch property. This is to identify any potential activities that may trigger regulatory requirements for biological constraints at the school site, and to involve the Department of Toxic Substance Control earlier in the PEA process. (This is a non-Measure E item, funded by Fund 25 Developer Fee Funds.) Required public hearing to consider grants and adopt Resolution No. 002-1920 Authorizing and Approving a Use of Grants Request as needed for new construction projects. The district will file construction funding applications to the state, including construction at Horner, Hopkins, Centerville and Thornton middle schools; Washington High School and Washington High School drama classroom. Recent policy changes now require districts to submit eligibility updates for the enrollment year in which the application is processed. Districts may request pupil grants at a different grade level than the pupils housed by the project, if there are none available at the project’s grade level. This is known as a Use of Grants application, and may be necessary to fully fund a project. The adoption of the resolution will allow this flexibility in pupil grant requests.

Discussion on the new construction project at Horner Middle School related to Hirsch Elementary School buildings annex concept and provide direction to staff. Construction at Horner Middle School is in progress; demolition of the existing junior high school is scheduled for winter 2019 after the new buildings are occupied. Discussion centered on whether to demolish or upgrade existing Horner buildings #4 and #5. An industrial hygienist will be required either way. Amend the agreement with Quattrocchi Kwok Architects (QKA) for an amount not to exceed $4,093,991 for the new construction and modernization project at Thornton Middle School. QKA is finalizing the design in alignment with option 2B as directed by the Board at its September 26, 2018 meeting. Option 2B increased the project scope and budget to $76 million.

Major building project moves forward

SUBMITTED BY THE CITY OF HAYWARD

The next step in a major residential and retail development project at the former Mervyn’s headquarters site in downtown Hayward is now in place. On July 2, the City of Hayward issued a building permit to Dollinger Properties for development of its Lincoln Landing residential and retail project which will include 476 apartments and more than 80,500 square feet of retail space on the prominent 11.5-acre site at 22301 Foothill Blvd. “Lincoln Landing is poised to become a cornerstone in the revitalization of the Foothill-Mission Boulevard corridor and the transformation of downtown Hayward,” said City Manager Kelly McAdoo. The project would be the sixth residential or mixed-use residential development to break ground on Foothill and Mission boulevards in the last two years — each bringing new life and investment to vacant and underutilized properties. The projects include: • Mission Crossings, a reimagining of the former Hayward Ford automotive dealership into 142 townhouse-style condominiums, an extended-stay hotel and retail around an urban agricultural garden. • SoHay, a new transit-oriented neighborhood of 472 condominiums in different formats with 20,000 square feet of ground-floor retail, connected by trails, paseos, sidewalks and bike paths, near South Hayward BART station. • Mission Village, Campways and Haymont, three mixed-use developments bringing a combined 202 apartments, condominiums and townhomes, and retail and commercial space to Mission Boulevard at

Industrial Boulevard, Hancock Street and Sorenson Road, respectively. Lincoln Landing also would be the first major downtown project to begin construction since adoption of the Hayward’s new Downtown Specific Plan in May 2019. The plan updates zoning across 320 acres to allow for development of up to 3,427 new housing units and 1.9 million square feet of nonresidential space. It accomplishes this in part by increasing allowable building heights to up to 11 stories in central downtown, along Foothill Boulevard and next to the downtown Hayward BART station. Other new housing in the pipeline for downtown includes Maple and Main, approved for development of 240 apartments — 192 market rate and 48 affordable to very low-income households — as well as rehabilitation of 48,800 square feet of medical offices and 5,500 square feet of new retail space. Matsya Family Villas, by nonprofit housing developer EAH Housing, calls for construction of 57 apartments on the site of a recently demolished office building at Second and A streets. The housing will be leased at rates affordable to low-income and extremely low-income households. Citywide, Hayward has 3,695 housing units under construction or approved for development — and an additional 628 housing units that have been proposed and under City planning review. Of the 3,695 units already in the development pipeline, 238 are designated to be affordable and rented or sold at below-market rates. And, of the 628 units proposed for development and under review, 171 are designated affordable and would be rented or sold at below-market rates.

Dockless in Fremont

NOVEMBER 19, 2018

The scooters are coming, the scooters are coming!

After an abortive attempt in 2018 at solving the “last mile” dilemma of transporting people to and from mass transit terminals to work sites, the city is back with another whack at it. Shunning automobiles, with or without drivers, bicycles seem to be the preferred mode of transportation.

The first attempt of introducing a shared system of pedal power to commuters was through a system called Lime. Competitors such as Bird asked for the opportunity to introduce their systems to Fremont, but a decision to use Lime as a sole contractor was approved by the city council. Announced as a 1-year pilot program beginning in February 2019, a mobile app was to be used to call upon a fleet of 500 bicycles, electric assist bicycles and electric scooters of shared “micromobility.” Parking zones were anticipated to contain vehicles between use. February 2019 came and went without a single shared bicycle, scooter or micro vehicle in sight.

Fast forward to the next attempt of a bicycle-oriented system for Fremont. An announcement, without any fanfare or council consideration, has now appeared in city communications that another “dockless mobility” system is in the works. According to a press release and city communications, HOPR has been issued a permit to “roll out 250 dockless bicycles in Fremont on August 5, to provide a safe and sustainable mobility option.” Utilizing a one-year grant from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, shared bicycles are touted by Josh Squire, CEO of HOPR as a “convenient, fun and offer the added benefit of storage to carry groceries while also keeping you fit.” Open to anyone 18 years old or older, the program is helmet optional, opening questions of safety and user competence.

In a previous editorial [The scooters are coming, the scooters are coming: November 20, 2018], I raised the issue of road safety. Although my observations are anecdotal and may not be a true representation of all traffic conditions, they are nonetheless, still worth consideration. I have reprinted the editorial as written since my impressions have not changed dramatically from that time.

I don't know about the rest of you, but not only does the heavy automobile traffic in our area challenge my driving skills, but reckless disregard of signals and ignorance of basic rules of the road by aggressive, inattentive and ignorant drivers is daunting. I value my life and do not believe my commute – as short as it is – should be a daily demolition derby challenge. As I watch from what I used to think of as the safety of my car, it is apparent that others have a much different idea how to use streets and highways.

Self-driving cars may help avoid the typical daily mayhem on our streets, but the ubiquitous presence of such vehicles is probably many years away. In the meantime, anyone who ventures into vehicle spaces is in dangerous territory. Now, Fremont has decided to initiate an experiment of shared bicycles and scooters for the next year. An interesting concept; the idea is to allow adults to rent these modes of transportation and share space with the existing chaos. Responsible bicyclists who actually pay attention to the rules of the road understand the danger and potential lethal results of match between a 20-lb. to 40-lb. scooter or bicycle with a 3,500 lb. car. For those unaccustomed to traveling beside SUV behemoths, even in good weather and visibility, this presents significant challenges.

Popular use of this type of transportation in other cities such as Seattle and San Francisco may give some indication of its viability in our area, but concentration of work, residential and mass transportation is not a strong suit for Fremont and its environs. Envisioned by the exclusive contractor, Lime, a presentation to the Fremont City Council on November 13th focused on a limited area around the BART/downtown segment of the city. However, salivating councilmembers asked to extend the focus to the Warm Springs BART as a solution to the “last mile” conundrum for workers of that area. Will this become a modern version of the Wild West where harried automobile commuters tangle with scooters and bicycles? Motorcycles that weave in and out of traffic can be problematic, but untrained riders of scooters and bicycles, even in bike lanes, could be catastrophic.

The trial period of one year will give an indication of whether this may be a transportation alternative, but much remains to be ironed out. Will people actually use this? Bicycles are not new and yet there are relatively few people actually using them to commute. Scooters may also be treated more as a toy or recreational device, rather than serious transportation. Those required to dress conservatively for work may be loath to saddle up on a bike or scooter. If the weather is uncooperative – hot, cold, rain – will those depending on such devices abandon them? How convenient will it be to pick up and/or leave these vehicles at an intended destination? Should helmets be required for safety? If so, how are these supplied?

There are many questions to be answered about the practical nature of Lime and its counterparts such as Bird in the dispersed environments of our cities, but it will be interesting to see what happens. I hope it doesn't result in an enthusiastic group of environmental advocates trying to match their prowess with the many witless wonders currently on the roadways. Not only do those using such transportation need to understand the difference between these vehicles, but it is time to address the plethora of automobile drivers who either do not know or refuse to observe even basic rules of the road such as who has right of way at stoplights... or even what a red stoplight means.

Until we can all confidently use transportation services - either manned or unmanned – without the need or desire for individually-owned automobiles, personal responsibility and safety issues will be paramount. The scooters/bicycles are coming, but are we ready for them?

Bernice R. Ortiz

Resident of Fremont

January 19, 1941 – July 21, 2019

Bernice R. Ortiz, age 78, passed away on Sunday, July 21, 2019 at her residence in Fremont, CA at the Carlton Senior Living, a passionate and loving community that helped care for her. She was born in Bronx, New York to Martha and Nathan Stender, and was the only child.

Bernice met her first husband Richard R. Lamont in the late 50's, and then went on to have 3 beautiful children (2 girls and 1 boy). They all moved to California in 1964 and nestled into the city of Fremont, where Bernice resided for the rest of her time. Bernice was a woman always on the move; she loved getting out taking short road trips or attending local events. Family for her was everything, and she loved every moment she got to spend with them making memories. In the mid-80's Bernice met her second husband to be, Arturo Ortiz at her place of employment. Arturo used to look forward to seeing her every week when he would come in, and would converse for hours, the beginning of a kindling relationship. Eventually he asked for her hand in marriage and they got married in 1988, and remained married for 31 years until she passed away. Bernice had 7 grandchildren (5 girls 2 boys) and 7 great-grandchildren (3 girls 4 boys), and she adored every one of them. Bernice came from little to nothing growing up with the absence of her family, so having a growing family of her own meant the world to her. All she wanted was to see everyone happy and thriving. Bernice was a strong, independent, and selfless woman and mother; she instilled so many priceless values into her children, which has continued to pass on through the generations. Her beautiful soul will forever live on in all of our hearts and we will love you forever, meowwww.

Auto burglary suspect in custody

SUBMITTED BY
LT. JOHN TORREZ,
MILPITAS PD

After several weeks of investigation, Milpitas police have arrested a suspect in conjunction with several auto burglaries in a local shopping center.

The case started on June 7 when officers were called to investigate multiple auto break-ins in a parking lot on the 400 block of Barber Lane. During the investigation, an officer reviewed security camera footage and obtained a limited description of two suspects and their vehicle, identified as a 2016 green Honda HR-V. The officer was also able to obtain latent fingerprint evidence from a victim’s vehicle.

Two weeks later, an officer spotted the suspect vehicle near the shopping center again and tried to make a traffic stop, but the driver sped away. On July 18, investigators identified Joseph Ronzelle Lane, 23, of Oakland as the driver of the vehicle and an arrest warrant was issued.

Lane was arrested by police detectives on July 30 in San Francisco and booked into the Santa Clara County Main Jail. He faces charges of burglary and evading a police officer. Meanwhile, police are reminding the public to never leave valuables in unattended vehicles and to report suspicious activity immediately.

Heads-up! Stepped-up traffic enforcement is underway

SUBMITTED BY
SGT. JOSEPH A. HEYLEN, MILPITAS PD

During August, the Milpitas Police Department is partnering with the California Office of Traffic Safety in conducting a Primary Collision Factor Enforcement Operation at various intersections throughout the city. The operation is focusing on violations that commonly cause traffic collisions. Officer are specifically looking for moving violations involving speed, stop signs, red lights, illegal turns, failure to yield, distracted driving and other dangerous vehicle code violations. The Milpitas Police Department has analyzed two years of accident data to identify locations and violations that causes those types of accidents. Extra officers are on duty patrolling areas where traffic congestion and collisions typically occur. The goal of this enforcement operation is to decrease traffic-related injuries and deaths, while encouraging safe driving.

Funding for this program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Meanwhile, with summer vacation soon coming to an end and a new school year starting, police are reminding the public to expect more vehicle and pedestrian traffic around schools and to drive safely.

Friday, July 26

- At about 11:15 a.m. detectives found and monitored an unoccupied stolen vehicle parked in an apartment complex in the area of Central Avenue and Blacow Road. Eventually, a woman, later identified as Melissa Diamond, 39, of Fremont got into the driver’s seat of the vehicle. When confronted, Diamond started the car and reportedly rammed two unmarked police vehicles and attempted to run over a detective while driving away. No officers were injured, but the vehicles were totaled.

Diamond drove through a gate and sped westbound on Central Avenue, crossing into Newark before colliding with two vehicles at the intersection of Central Avenue and Cedar Boulevard. Diamond sustained major injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene by paramedics. The driver of one of the other vehicles involved was taken to the hospital with major injuries.

The Newark Police Department is investigating the collision. Anyone with information or who witnessed the collision is asked contact Traffic Officer Ryan Johnson at (510) 578-4934 or via email at ryan.johnson@newark.org. Anonymous information can be shared on the Newark Police Department tip line at (510) 578-4965. Meanwhile, Fremont police are investigating the incident at the apartment complex as an assault with a deadly weapon.

PROBATE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF

JOHN A. FARIA

CASE NO. RP19028042

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: John A. Faria

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Perry J. deFaria in the Superior Court of California, County of Alameda.

The Petition for Probate requests that Perry J. deFaria be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The Petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)

The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court on 8/14/2019 at 9:31 a.m. in Dept. 202 located at 2120 Martin Luther King Jr. Way, Berkeley, CA 94704.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either

(1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Sandra A. Meyer

Resident of Fremont

January 24, 1957 – July 31, 2019

Sandra Ann Meyer was born on January 24, 1957 in Whittier California to Frank and Stephanie Provenzano. A majority of her childhood was right here in Fremont California. She enjoyed playing outside with the neighborhood children and spending time with her cousins. She Graduated from American High school in 1975 where she met her best friend Nicolette Meyer. Sandra and Nicki spent every moment together from tanning on the beach to cruising down Fremont Boulevard. Nicki had a younger brother, Kenneth Meyer who Sandra and he picked on each other a lot. However one day fell in love and Sandra married the love of her life on June 6, 1981. Ken and Sandra moved into their first apartment together right down the street from Sandra's parents' home. Sandra didn't want to move far as her parents meant the world to her. In September of 1983 Sandra and Ken welcomed their first born child, a boy, Jonathan Christopher Meyer. Jonathan was Sandra's pride and joy and mamas "boober". Jon was Sandra's best friend, they did everything together and went everywhere together. In April of 1988 Sandra and Ken welcomed their second child, a baby girl, Sara Elizabeth. Sandra was so happy to have a little girl she could dress up and do girly things with. Ken and Sandra eventually ended up renting a home right next door to her parents and Sandra was able to walk her children to her parents' home every day. Her father passed away shortly after Sara was born so Sandra's and her family moved back into her old house with her mother to take care of her. Sandra was a stay at home mom for many years and babysat the neighborhood children and her friend's children as well. In March of 1990 Ken and Sandra welcomed their last baby, another little girl Julie Ann. Sandra's and kens family was now complete. After her mother passed away in 1998 Sandra went back to work at Raleys supermarket for 15 years working in the deli. She

GOP pushes immigration bill, skirting rules as Dems protest

BY LISA MASCARO
AP CONGRESSIONAL CORRESPONDENT

Republicans on the Senate Judiciary Committee upended the rules Thursday for immigration legislation that would extend family detentions as chairman Lindsey Graham muscled the measure forward over the objections of Democrats.

It’s one last battle, led by a top ally of President Donald Trump, before senators break for a long August recess and the start of 2020 campaigning with immigration at the forefront of the debate.

Graham gaveled open the hearing saying he wasn’t going to wait any longer to address the crisis at the southern border. He acknowledged that his outreach to Democrats has failed to reach a compromise on detention policies for children and families.

In pushing the bill forward, the chairman skirted committee rules allowing for amendments and requiring minority participation in certain actions, including to end debate.

“What am I supposed to do?” asked the South Carolina Republican. “We have a right to vote.”

Democrats have protested the bill and refused to attend a panel session last week, setting off the battle Thursday. They voted against the measure, decrying what Rhode Island Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse called an “illegitimate process.”

Ripping up a copy of the committee’s rules, Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont, a former chairman of the panel, questioned why normal rules were being discarded.

“Apparently, it’s for legislation to give the president what he wants in his political war on immigration,” Leahy said.

The bill would change existing law, which limits family detentions to 20 days for migrants traveling with children and requires them to be released pending asylum hearings. Instead, Graham’s bill would allow longer detentions by doing away with the limits, which have been part of the so-called Flores legal settlement.

Among other changes, the legislation would restructure asylum law to have applicants apply in Mexico and other countries, rather than when they arrive at the U.S. border, and bring on 500 new immigration judges to help process the backlog of cases.

Sen. Mazie Hirono, D-Hawaii, said the bill is unworkable. “In a word, it’s nuts and probably unconstitutional,” she said.

The morning hearing set off a particularly heated dispute over not just immigration policy, which often divides the political parties, but the traditions of the Senate, where Republicans hold the majority and have chipped away at longstanding rules.

Ground zero for much of the uproar has been the work of the Judiciary Committee, which handled Brett Kavanaugh’s nomination to the Supreme Court last year.

Senate rules were changed to allow faster confirmation of Trump’s judicial nominees and confirming Kavanaugh and filling court vacancies with Trump’s picks has been a top accomplishment of the Republican-led Senate.

Graham, who faces his own re-election alongside Trump in 2020, acknowledged his immigration bill may not be approved by the Senate – and faces even less chance in the House, where Democrats have the majority.

He indicated a willingness to continue negotiating with Democrats and the president on a compromise, but said he wasn’t going to leave for the August break without acting.

Graham also acknowledged that negotiating a bipartisan solution can be a problem when Trump changes his mind, as he did last year on immigration policy.

In earlier immigration talks Trumps has suggested he liked one bipartisan approach only to drop it days later. “The Tuesday-Thursday Trump is a real dilemma,” Graham said.

“Bipartisanship is going to be required,” he said. “Maybe we can get there.”

Lawmakers are eager to return home saying they have taken action to stem the crisis at the border.

Fremont Startup Grind Digest

BY TINA KAPOOR, ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT MANAGER

The last Startup Grind meeting brought yet another accomplished speaker to share her words of wisdom. Irene Koehler, social media marketing and personal branding expert, focused her talk on the importance of entrepreneurs’ personal brand and how it affects their business. Through her Ready Set Expert program, Koehler prepares entrepreneurs and successful professionals to attract their ideal prospects. Koehler is a highly sought-after speaker, trainer, and strategist, as well as an adjunct professor in social media marketing program at both San Francisco State University and California State University.

Koehler has helped thousands improve business results by developing their marketing strategies and personal brands. She urges entrepreneurs to focus on three questions as they start developing or reshaping their personal brand:

How do you want others to see you?

How do you want to show up?

How do you currently show up?

Focusing on these three questions can help the thought process around your brand and what you stand for, according to Koehler. For example, thinking about why you do what you do might help you make the connection between what fuels you and your team, and why it is rewarding. Koehler also advises on keeping your audience in mind while thinking about highlighting the brand.

Perhaps the most effective analogy Koehler shared during the meet-up was that of a mirror. As entrepreneurs looking to reinvent their personal brand, they must think of themselves as a mirror because they see the things as they seem. At the same time, others looking at the entrepreneurs are windows, seeing things as they perceive. Keeping this in mind can help anyone improve their personal brand and understand customer engagement. After all, investors don’t invest their time or resources in companies; they invest in the people behind the companies.

Police officer Injured during collision

SUBMITTED BY UNION CITY PD

Late Friday, August 2, a Union City Police Officer was driving a police vehicle in the area of G Street and 5th Street, when a Toyota Prius traveling at a high rate of speed hit the driver side rear door. The impact sent the marked police vehicle into a neighboring front yard, injuring our officer and totally destroying both vehicles. The Toyota was occupied with multiple people at the time of the collision. Officers were able to detain one of the occupants, the other passengers and driver fled the crash on foot. Arriving officers blocked a number of streets and conducted a large area search for the other occupants. The driver and other passengers were not located during the search. Our officer sustained some head and neck injuries and was taken to a local emergency room. Thankfully our officer was treated and released from the hospital. We were lucky that the initial impact was behind our officer’s door and did not cause significant injuries. A close call for our PD family and our community. Anyone with information about this incident is encouraged to call or contact Union City Police Department at (510) 471-1365; Tip Line (may be anonymous): 510-675-5207 or tips@unioncity.org

NASA NIGHT SKY NETWORK

Chill Out: Spot an Ice Giant in August

BY DAVID PROSPER

Is the summer heat getting to you? Cool off overnight while spotting one of the solar system’s ice giants: Neptune. It’s the perfect way to commemorate the 30th anniversary of Voyager 2’s flyby.

Neptune is too dim to see with your unaided eye, so you’ll need a telescope to find it. Although Neptune is at opposition in September, it’s so distant its brightness and apparent size won’t change dramatically; the planet is usually just under 8th magnitude and 4.5 billion kilometers away. You can see Neptune with binoculars, but a telescope is recommended if you want to discern its disc; the distant world reveals a very small but discernible disc at high magnification. Neptune currently appears in Aquarius, a constellation lacking bright stars, which adds difficulty to pinpointing its exact location. Fortunately, the Moon and Neptune travel past each other the night of August 16, passing less than six degrees apart (or about 12 Moon widths) at their closest. If the Moon’s glare overwhelms Neptune’s dim light, you can still use its location that evening to mark the general area to search on a darker night.

Another Neptune-spotting tip: Draw an imaginary line from bright southern star Fomalhaut up to the Great Square of Pegasus, then mark a point roughly in the middle and search there, in the eastern edge of Aquarius. If you spot a blueish star, swap your telescope’s eyepiece to zoom in as much as possible. Is the suspect blue “star” now a tiny disc, while the surrounding stars remain points of white light? You’ve found Neptune.

Neptune and Uranus are ice giant planets. These worlds are larger than BinoViewAugust2018NeptuneandMoon: Finder chart for Neptune. This is a simulated view through 10x50 binoculars (10x magnification). terrestrial worlds like Earth but smaller than gas giants like Jupiter. Neptune’s atmosphere contains hydrogen and helium like a gas giant, but also methane, which gives it a striking blue color. The “ice” in “ice giant” refers to the mix of ammonia, methane, and water that makes up most of Neptune’s mass, located in the planet’s large, dense, hot mantle. This mantle surrounds an Earth-size rocky core. Neptune possesses a faint ring system and 13 confirmed moons.

NASA’s Voyager 2 mission made a very close flyby on August 25, 1989. It revealed a dynamic, stormy world streaked by the fastest winds in the solar system, their ferocity fueled by the planet’s surprisingly strong internal heating. Triton, Neptune’s largest moon, was discovered to be geologically active, with cryovolcanoes erupting nitrogen gas and dust dotting its surface, and a mottled “cantaloupe” terrain made up of hard water ice. Triton is similar to Pluto in size and composition, and orbits Neptune in the opposite direction of the planet’s rotation, unlike every other large moon in the solar system. These clues lead scientists to conclude that this unusual moon is likely a captured Kuiper Belt object. Discover more about Voyager 2 and NASA’s current and future missions at www.nasa.gov.

The art and passion of macramé

ARTICLE AND PHOTO SUBMITTED BY SUSAN HELMER

Fremont Art Association’s guest artist for August will be Parul Parekh, who will give a demonstration on “Macramé – The Art of Knotting.” Parekh is a self-taught macramé artist who has been mastering the art of knotting and its numerous variations for many years. Although she worked as a clinical psychologist, a special educator and a psychology instructor for more than a decade in India, after immigrating to the U.S. she decided to explore her creative site.

As a teacher, Parekh is passionate about macramé as both a therapeutic and meditative process, which she wants her students to experience in her classes. She thoroughly enjoys the art form, relying on instinct and spontaneity, which results in a personalized work of art. Adding beautiful beads accentuates her distinctive style, and each mistake along the journey is a happy accident. During her Wednesday, August 7 macramé demonstration Parekh will show how to create a plant holder with cotton cords mounted on a piece of driftwood, using different knots and their variations such as the lark’s head knot, square knot, and double hitch knot. She also will talk about the history of macramé and the types of materials that are used in this art form. Her intentions are to bring this ancient art alive and promote it for its simplicity and elegance. The demonstration starts at 1 p.m. at the Fremont Art Association gallery at 37697 Niles Blvd. Admission is free.

Park It

BY NED MACKAY

Among the many pleasures that are offered during summertime in the East Bay Regional Park District are free concerts, and there’s one from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Friday, August 9 at Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda. The concert will feature the band “Jazz Mafia.” The center stays open until 8 p.m. with activities on the deck starting at 4:30 p.m. Bring your blanket or lawn chair, and a picnic dinner or buy local food and beverages on-site.

Parking is available on Webster Street or the Crown Beach lot at Otis Drive. The event is sponsored by the Alameda Rotary Club, park district, and Regional Parks Foundation.

If you can’t make it to the August 9 concert, another one will take place at Crab Cove on Friday, September 13 with SambaDa traditional Afro-Brazilian heritage music. Other free concerts are planned on Friday, August 23 at Contra Loma Regional Park in Antioch, and on Saturday, September 28 at Judge John Sutter Regional Shoreline in Oakland.

Crab Cove is at 1252 McKay Avenue. For information, call (510) 544-3187.

While we’re talking about free opportunities, remember that the regional park entry and other fees are waived every Friday through the end of 2019, in celebration of the park district’s 85th anniversary. The waiver includes park entrance and fees for day use parking, swimming, dogs, horse trailers, boat launching and fishing permits. Special event permits, state fishing licenses, camping and some other fees are still charged.

Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont is offering three free programs.

“Fantastic Flowers” is the theme of a session with naturalist Kristina Parkison, for ages 7 and older, from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. Saturday, August 10. Learn how flowers enhance our lives and the lives of animals around us, then make paper flowers to take home.

Early risers will enjoy nature yoga with the interpretive staff at Coyote Hills from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Sunday, August 11. Wear comfortable clothing; bring water and a mat (a few mats are available for loan). The session is for ages 14 and older. Both programs will meet at the visitor center.

Naturalist James Frank plans a hike from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Sunday, August 11 to explore Coyote Hills’ marsh, Ohlone village site and Willows Trail. It’s a flat, 2.5-mile walk for ages 14 and older. Meet at the Quarry parking lot.

Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road, off Paseo Padre Parkway. There’s a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. For details, call (510) 544-3220.

It’s all about bats in a program from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, August 14 and August 28 at Sunol Regional Wilderness. Naturalist Ashley Adams will dispel the mysteries surrounding the flying mammals while the group watches the bats fly from their roost to begin their nightly insect hunt. Bring a picnic dinner to enjoy in the park before the bat watch begins.

Sunol Regional Wilderness is at the end of Geary Road off, Calaveras Road about 5 miles south of I-680 and the town of Sunol. For information, call (510) 544-3249.

Ashley also will lead a program about mountain lions from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, August 11 at Del Valle Regional Park south of Livermore. The group will stroll the hills while learning about the secretive life of the big cats.

Del Valle is at the end of Del Valle Road, off Mines Road about 9 miles south of Livermore. Meet at the visitor center. For information, call (510) 544-3249.

“Frolicking frogs” are the topic of a program from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, August 10 at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley. Discover how the amphibians hop around the park in search of food and family.

Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road, off Main Street. Call (888) 327-2757, ext. 3050.

Because of concerns about health effects, the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors has approved a resolution calling for an immediate ban of the herbicide glyphosate in picnic areas. The resolution also calls for full elimination of glyphosate in all developed park areas by the end of 2020.

Glyphosate is currently used as part of the park district’s pest management program for fire prevention and vegetation maintenance around park structures, fences, walkways, parking areas and in public right-of-way areas such as roads, bike paths and trails. Glyphosate not used in play areas or around drinking fountains.
