Over 2,000 stolen electronic devices recovered in auto burglary investigation

By Stephanie Gertsch

On Thursday, March 12 the Fremont Police Department and Santa Clara County District Attorney's office held a press conference to update the results of recent investigations into auto burglaries and large-scale fencing operations across the East Bay Area. At the event, stolen laptops and backpacks were displayed, as well as several vehicles that had been purchased with proceeds of stolen goods.

John Steinbeck may have written about it, but East Bay resident Mary Jo Thomas-Wold lived it. Her story starts in December 1933 in Cove Arkansas, four years after the stock market crash of 1929. The leaves kicked up under a swift cool breeze a month after a devastating dust storm hit South Dakota, a foreshadowing of what was to follow in the next year.

Mary Jo was just seven years old when her family packed up and headed to Imperial, California, so her father, a former farmer, could find work. Hardly able to comprehend the significance of what she was experiencing, and certainly not from a historical perspective, Mary Jo got in the back of a wooden school bus her father had

Did you know...

...that the San Francisco Bay Area provides habitats for a diversity of local and migratory birds? That the open water and sloughs of the Bay contain an abundance of microscopic life called phytoplankton or zooplankton? What a watershed is and why it's critical that we protect ours? How an airboat uses a giant fan for propulsion, and how it helps biologists get closer to wildlife?

These are just some of the facts about the San Francisco Bay Area that elementary students and families of Newark Unified School District (NUSD) are exploring at "Family Science Nights 2020." This event is hosted and organized with community partners - Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge, East Bay Regional Parks at Coyote Hills, and Alameda County Water District. NUSD families enjoy an evening of exploration, inquiry, discovery and fun while experiencing Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS) 3-dimensional learning.

On February 12, over 150 students and parents attended and enjoyed interactive stations at Graham Elementary. Graham teachers and Newark Memorial High School students guided families through different learning experiences. Genie Moore and Tia Glagolev, Naturalists from Don Edwards San Franciso Bay National Wildlife Refuge, designed and organized all the learning stations.

Economic Impact Study Shows Washington Hospital Healthcare System Major Factor in Local Economic Health

The Washington Hospital Healthcare System (WHHS) is a major contributor to the economic health and growth of southern Alameda County, according to a recent economic impact study commissioned by the Hospital Healthcare System.

In fiscal year (FY) 2018, WHHS recorded direct spending of $670,236,000 in operations and construction outlay within the Hospital Healthcare System's geographical boundaries which include Fremont, Newark, Union City, Sunol and a portion of Hayward, and $743,126,000 throughout Alameda County, the economic impact report stated.

"This study not only demonstrates the direct and indirect economic impacts the healthcare system has on its local community, it also demonstrates the immense value of keeping the Hospital independent, and not part of a regional chain," says Donald A. Pipkin, chief of Strategic Management.

Washington Sports Medicine Orthopedic Surgeon Gets in the Game

March Madness Experience Benefits Local Community

Russell Nord, MD, loves the excitement of college basketball's March Madness. The medical director of Washington Sports Medicine has served as tournament physician for the West Coast Conference Men's and Women's NCAA Basketball Championships for the last nine years.

"While there were some interesting upsets at the tournament this year," said Dr. Nord, who is also an orthopedic surgeon with Washington Township Medical Foundation, "Thankfully, unlike the last few years, there were only minor injuries this year."

Each year, Dr. Nord travels to Las Vegas where the tournament is held to care for teams that do not bring their own team doctor. He developed an appreciation for basketball while attending Duke University, where the game is enormously popular.

"It hasn't just been about taking care of the players when they are injured," he explained. "It's also been about setting up the infrastructure so that moving forward we can provide better care. Over the years, I've worked on the logistical side to improve the medical aspect of the tournament."

One way care was improved this year was by the addition of headsets, allowing the tournament physician to communicate in real time with the athletic trainer and others running the tournament.

"About half the teams don't bring their own physicians," noted Dr. Nord, who also works closely with those physicians who attend, providing his expertise as an orthopedic surgeon when needed. "It's all about keeping the players safe."

March Madness isn't his first experience treating high-level athletes. Dr. Nord served as team physician for the Stanford football team while completing his fellowship in sports medicine at the university, and he also provided orthopedic care for the San Francisco 49ers.

Caring for the Home Team

Dr. Nord believes his experience with high-level athletes has helped to up his game when it comes to providing care for the local community. "Sports medicine is all about testing out and refining treatments in a higher demand environment," he explained. "College and professional athletes have to get back in the game as soon as possible, so it forces us to critically analyze treatment options that can then be rolled out to other patients."

Before the suspension of the NCAA tournament, Dr. Russell Nord worked to help keep players safe and injury-free.

At Washington Sports Medicine, Dr. Nord leads a team of physical therapists and athletic trainers who help injured athletes return to their favorite sport with minimal downtime. His team also helps patients learn how to prevent future injuries and find ways to improve their performance.

According to Dr. Nord, the program is filling the growing need in the local sports community for high-quality medical services close to home. He and his team work with area high schools and help young athletes get the care they need to stay in the game.

"I've gleaned a lot from working with higher level athletes," he added. "The experience helps me provide the best care possible to athletes of all ages and others who want to be physically active."

Economic Impact Study Shows Washington Hospital Healthcare System Major Factor in Local Economic Health

"A significant portion of the Hospital Healthcare System's revenues are spent locally, right here in the community. The district continually reinvests in the local community," Pipkin adds. "The study shows how the significant economic benefits of jobs and spending by the Hospital Healthcare System, along with its nationally ranked medical services, enhance the entire area. Often when part of a larger chain, revenue generated does not stay in the community, but rather, is returned to corporate headquarters and shareholders."

The study, by Economic & Planning Systems, Inc. of Oakland, analyzed the primary direct benefits of jobs and spending, along with the secondary economic benefits of medical care, community benefits and charity care. The study compared data from FY 2018 with data from its previous FY 2011 study.

"This study finds that WHHS has a broad and significant economic impact both locally and regionally, creating a substantial number of direct, indirect, and induced jobs, as well as associated spending," the study's authors said.

"WHHS also enhances local and regional economic productivity and competitiveness by providing high-quality medical care and health services, including high-impact services for underserved populations, and a range of beneficial programs for the community," the report stated.

WHHS is the third largest employer in the healthcare system's geographical area and the 46th largest employer in the greater Bay Area. WHHS supported about 3,420 jobs in Alameda County (including 3,002 in the healthcare system) through its ongoing operational activity and construction projects combined during FY 2018, the report said.

With annual operating expenses of nearly $554 million and construction spending of more than $50 million in FY 2018, WHHS is responsible for a significant amount of regional employment, employee compensation, and business spending.

Almost 70 percent of WHHS payroll stays in the county and more than 40 percent of WHHS employees live in the community. The report noted that, with the total number of employees being approximately 2,396, this creates a notable economic ripple effect from household spending.

Further, nearly one in 10 vendors used by WHHS are based in the community, creating local vendor spending of nearly $9 million in FY 2018, spending that "is important to the economic health of Fremont, Newark, Union City and the rest of the district," the report added.

The healthcare system's spending on capital improvement projects "has accounted for notable construction value in Fremont." The $350 million outlay to construct the Morris Hyman Critical Care Pavilion alone supported a daily average of about 200 direct on-site jobs per year during the 10-year project, peaking at 450 jobs at the height of the construction and supporting about 255 jobs during FY 2018.

The healthcare system's nationally ranked medical services produce strong secondary economic impacts, the report said. These include joint replacement, cancer treatment, cardiac care, and neurocritical care, along with the healthcare system's partnership with UCSF, and the expanded emergency room and critical care services made available in the new Pavilion. All of these services and others bring patients into the community for specialized treatment, Pipkin explains, and they make it possible for local residents to receive the very best medical care close to home, rather than having to travel out of the area.

Also, with roughly 200,000 inpatient and outpatient visits per year and a variety of other health care services and programs available to district residents and others in the broader geographic area, "WHHS has a positive impact on regional economic and social welfare," the report said. "Among other things, these services keep community members healthy and maximize the potential for them to make contributions to the regional economy."

Economic impacts from "charity care" include unreimbursed and subsidized Medicare and Medi-Cal services and other costs of $154.4 million to the indigent. The healthcare system also funds free and discounted community health services and undertakes other philanthropic activities.

The healthcare system's "community benefits" programs include the local InHealth television channel, the Washington on Wheels mobile health clinic, maternal/child health clinics, the Women's Center, athletic trainers for the Fremont Union School District, donated mammogram services, ER call professional fees, community health education outreach, various grants and other similar programs. Subsidized leases to community non-profits totaled $360,000, the report noted.

The WHHS mission is to meet the health care needs of the community through medical services, education, and research. This economic impact study shows that, by providing a variety of health care services and programs to the local community and beyond, WHHS keeps community members healthy and maximizes their potential to make positive contributions to the regional economy.

Pipkin continues, "A number of recent economic studies show that health care services provide economic benefits that exceed the costs. This study confirms those findings. Moreover, WHHS provides a significant range of health-related services that benefit populations that would not otherwise have access to care."

Kids had the chance to learn about the different parts of fish and fashion their own fish using play dough and model parts, use microscopes to identify plankton in water samples from the slough, make and test their own miniature air boats, compare different feet and beak shapes from birds, and much more!

The fun continued at Kennedy Elementary on February 27, coordinated by Science Resource Teachers Tania Brock and Dana Wright. Thirty minutes into the event, the multipurpose room was packed!

While Family Science Night is an annual event, this is the first time NUSD collaborated with its community partners. If the experience at Graham and Kennedy is any indication, this partnership demonstrated that science is fun, interesting and all around us! It also highlights the fact that we are immersed in one of the abundant environments in the state and we have so much to learn about our community that can truly enrich our lives today and in the future!

Unfortunately, due to the danger of Corona Virus infection, the upcoming schedule for Family Science Nights has been changed. The new dates, subject to modification, are as follows:

Musick Elementary: Thursday, Apr 23 Snow Elementary: Wednesday, May 6 Birch Grove Schools at BGP: Tuesday, May 19 Schilling Elementary: Wednesday, May 20 Lincoln Elementary: Thursday, May 28

All science nights are from 6:00 p.m. – 7:30 p.m. They are intended for families of NUSD students, but there are no admissions fees or official guest list.

A flamboyance of pink flamingos arrives at the zoo

SUBMITTED BY ISABELLA LINARES

Oakland Zoo officials are pleased to announce they have doubled the size of their flamingo population with the arrival of 10 new lesser flamingos from the San Diego Zoo, bringing their flock to 19 members total.

The mixed-sex group (often called a flamboyance) arrived in early March. This is the largest flamingo flock the zoo has seen in quite some time and zoo officials expect that growth in this habitat will better the welfare of the flamingos and increase personal relationships within the flamboyance.

With the flamboyance growing to 19, there will be an opportunity for the mixed-sex flock to break off into smaller groups for increased socialization. A larger flock size provides the possibility for more courtship behaviors and of nest-building within those smaller socialized groups. "We are happy to contribute to genetic diversity in zoos. We are excited for our flamboyance to enjoy a larger flock size," said Andrea Dougall, Zoological Manager at Oakland Zoo.

Along with this inclusion of new flamingos, the zoo recently made changes to the habitat to help improve their home. This habitat reconstruction was developed in partnership with researchers at the University of Exeter in England.

Flamingo expert, Dr. Paul Rose, who -- along with psychology student Luke Jones -analyzed the Oakland Zoo's flamingo behavior and suggested improvements to their habitat to better encourage natural and increased social behaviors. These changes proved a success and keepers, along with the zoo's Behavioral Observational Team, have noted the flamingos appear to be enjoying their habitat much more, social interactivity has increased, and an opportunity was created to add new members to the flock.

General welfare for flamingos in the wild is measured by large amounts of smaller mixed groups within a population. The addition of these birds and the change in their habitat at Oakland Zoo will better represent what is seen in the wild.

The development of the zoo's flamboyance was recommended by the Association of Zoos Aquariums' (AZA) Species Survival Plan (SSP). The 10 new flamingos are a part of an SSP exchange, with two Oakland Zoo males going to San Diego Zoo in return. SSP was developed by the AZA (which Oakland Zoo is accredited by) to help ensure the sustainability of a healthy, genetically diverse, and demographically varied AZA population.

The newest additions will spend the usual 30 days in quarantine at Oakland Zoo's Vet Hospital before joining their new family.

Moratorium on PG&E customer shutoffs for nonpayment

SUBMITTED BY TAMAR SARKISSIAN

On March 13, Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) announced that due to the COVID-19 pandemic it has voluntarily implemented a moratorium on service disconnections for nonpayment, effective immediately. This suspension will apply to both residential and commercial customers and will remain in effect until further notice.

To further support customers who may be impacted by the pandemic, PG&E will offer its most flexible pay plans to customers who indicate either an impact or hardship as a result of COVID-19. PG&E will continue to monitor current events and identify opportunities to support our customers and communities. Customers who visit local offices to pay bills and are sick or experiencing symptoms are being asked to use other payment options such as online or by phone at (877) 704-8470.

In addition to the moratorium on service shut-offs, PG&E's response to the COVID-19 pandemic is focused on efforts to protect the health and safety of its customers, employees, contractors and the communities it serves. Actions the company has taken include providing guidance for employees who have direct customer contact to take social distancing precautionary measures, such as avoiding handshakes and wearing disposable nitrile gloves while in customers' homes.

Internally the company is taking advanced cleaning measures, communicating best practices frequently with employees, and is asking its leaders to let employees work remotely if their job allows while avoiding critical business disruption.

"We recognize that this is a rapidly changing situation and an uncertain time for many of our customers. Our most important responsibility is the health and safety of our customers and employees. We also want to provide some relief from the stress and financial challenges many are facing during this worldwide, public health crisis. We understand that many of our customers may experience a personal financial strain due to the slowdown in the economy related to the pandemic," said Chief Customer Officer and Senior Vice President Laurie Giammona.

Facing a Tough Decision? Here's What You Should Do

By Anne Chan, PhD, MFT

What should I be when I grow up?
Should I have children?
Whom should I marry?
Should I break up with my partner?
When should I retire?

Which job should I take?

Most of us struggle w

Most of us struggle with one or more of these big life questions, but we might approach decision-making in radically different ways. Some of us might quickly tire of the process of deciding and thus rush to a conclusion. Others might feel paralyzed by the thought of deciding and thus put off the decision as long as possible, perhaps indefinitely. Another common strategy is to research, research, and research indefinitely and then feel overwhelmed by information overload. Yet another approach is to ask advice from anyone and everyone, resulting in utter confusion with all the opinions sought and given. Still others might avoid deciding altogether and resort to an external source, like flipping a coin, to make the decision for them.

If any of the above describes you accurately, please know that making a decision is, to put it simply, hard. It is completely normal to feel paralysis, fear, and anxiety around a big decision. Decision-making is a cognitively difficult process which involves balancing competing input from your brain and your heart. None of us has been trained in decision-making and I do not know of high schools that offer a comprehensive curriculum in decision making. No wonder most of us feel ill-equipped to make a decision. But there are some things you can do to make the process easier and more productive.

Research Smart

You probably know that research is a logical step toward making a decision. Many of us will turn to google to fulfil this research component. However, a very smart thing to do when researching is to seek the opinions of people or sources who disagree with your decision. It is all too easy to seek information that we agree with. However, having input from opposing viewpoints can lead us to a better decision by giving us a chance to examine the decision from all sides.

Research ... To A Point

You begin your Google search, which gives you a trillion hits and you dutifully start reading the first few links. These links open more links, which you also dutifully read, but even more information starts pouring out at you. After many days and even weeks of researching your decision, you feel like you've made no headway.

Information overload is one common block to making a good decision. Information overload often comes from the internet, but it can also come from well-meaning family and friends, who have a ton of input to give on the subject. The trick is to know when to stop the research and information-gathering. Perhaps you might give yourself a deadline to move on to the next step.

Write Down Pros, Cons, and Worst-Case Scenarios

Writing down a list of pros and cons of your decision is a wise step. One additional thing to do is to write down the worst-case scenarios that may come with each path you take. For instance, if you decide to make a career switch, write the worst outcomes that could result from this decision. Then flip it around and write the worst outcomes that might happen if you don't make the career switch. For each worst-case scenario, write a solution that will address the dreaded potential consequence; e.g. if you think that you will miss your co-workers when you leave your job, you might figure out a way to stay in touch with them.

State Your Values

Leave your decision aside for a second. Instead, list what your personal values are and prioritize them. What do you most value in work and life? What do you truly want (as opposed to what others want from you)? Some common values are work-life balance, intellectual challenge, status, financial reward, and making a difference in people's lives. List as many values as you can and prioritize them. This step disengages your rational mind and allows your heart to have a say. The path to the right decision might suddenly become clearer with this step.

Sleep on It

After being briefed on the situation surrounding Osama bin Laden, President Obama reportedly said he'd think about it and make his decision in the morning. Your parents might have given you the same advice to "sleep on it." This advice may sound silly, but science has shown the value of sleep and rest in smart decision-making. One of the critical but overlooked pieces of making a good decision is to ensure that you are well-rested and clear-headed. In the morning, when all is clear, your decision might also become clear as well.

All stages of life come with big decisions and all of us have to deal with major decisions at several points in our lives. Instead of using Google's flip a coin, try all the steps outlined above, and you should become a far better decision maker.

Working in Washington D.C. to improve the lives of Californians

BY ALFRED HU

A graduate of James Logan High School in Fremont, Nandini Narayan remembers a saying she heard often as part of the speech and debate team: that as you progress further in life, you should be a "voice for the voiceless." That phrase stuck with her as she went on to study for a double major in biochemistry and business administration at Cal State University East Bay and later work in the offices of two Congressmen representing the State of California in Washington D.C. Narayan, who grew up in the Bay Area and was aware of the issues faced by this constituency, was able to pursue a career that would improve the lives of many Californians.

In the beginning of 2017, she started working as a case worker and field representative for Congressman Ro Khanna, a Democrat representing California's 17th Congressional district, which is primarily Silicon Valley. This experience enabled her to see how a member of Congress can actively help every individual constituent. During her tenure with Khanna, she was also able to help people with immigration issues, help veterans receive overdue back payments, and meet with numerous advocacy and nonprofit groups.

As for how she got the position, Narayan said, "The opportunity fell in my lap, but I grabbed it and ran with it because of the work that I [would be] doing." Narayan also mentioned that Khanna has a true intellectual mind and allowed her to see both sides of a congressional office, adding, "After a little over a year he brought me into the DC office to coordinate all of his scheduling.
This role showed me the benefits and challenges in every position in a congressional office on Capitol Hill." According to Narayan, Congressman Khanna focuses on many different issues such as bringing in more tech jobs and making the internet and technology available for all, implementing government reform, protecting immigrants' rights, fighting climate change, and expanding access to health and quality education care to all Americans.

Narayan feels very privileged and honored to have worked with Khanna and said, "He is one of four Indian Americans in Congress currently and it was an honor working for him especially since I am of Indian descent," and added, "I was the first Indian hired between both offices after he was elected; for the first 18 months of his first term I was the only Indian American."

But Narayan did not stop with the internship with Khanna. Looking for further growth in the political arena as well as ways to increase her legislative portfolio, Narayan accepted an offer from Congressman TJ Cox's office in 2019. Cox, a Democrat representing California's 21st Congressional district, primarily in the Central Valley, has focused on many issues such as providing residents access to clean water, health care, education, a reliable workforce for Central Valley farmers and a mechanism for legal status of undocumented agricultural workers. Cox, according to Narayan, fights day and night for his constituency and makes sure they have every opportunity they could to improve their lives.

Furthermore, Narayan added that Cox has shown her what it truly means to be a member of Congress. "Every day I am 100 percent sure he comes to work not only ready to represent the Central Valley, but to find a way to fix issues. He is so dedicated to his constituency and he really represents the people and makes sure that every item of work the office produces will benefit the 21st congressional district in California. I truly am inspired to be working for him." Recently Cox has signed onto a letter asking the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to ensure that local hospitals across the country have the resources they need to detect and treat the corona virus.

Both Cox and Khanna asked Narayan if she would be interested in running for office one day. Being taught never to say "never," she does not rule out the idea. She currently works in Cox's office in Washington DC as a legislative assistant enabling her to work on legislation that will make a difference in the lives of Californians. Her primary focuses include veteran affairs, immigration, small business technology, civil rights and intellectual property. In her free time, she tutors low income students in the DC area in math and science and volunteers at speech and debate tournaments as a judge.

She hopes to return to California in the future but at present truly enjoys her position and life in DC. Whatever decisions she makes in her life, Narayan is guided by the principle of being a voice for the voiceless.

Fremont Business Update Regarding COVID-19 (Coronavirus) Outbreak

By Donovan Lazaro, Economic DEVELOPMENT MANAGER

The worldwide outbreak of Covid-19 (commonly referred to as the coronavirus) has led many of our region's globally connected businesses to swiftly develop new operational policies and procedures, often erroring on the side of precaution. While the City is supportive of these cautionary moves, we also want to emphasize that it is important that businesses and residents continue to follow guidance provided local and state health officials, staying current with updates on the local virus response and relying upon the facts for decisions that impact their operations. With that in mind, we will continue to provide updates to businesses as new information and resources become available. We also encourage you to businesses to visit Fremont's webpage on Covid-19 at www.Fremont.gov/Coronavirus.

Fortunately, as of the time of this blog, there have been no Covid-19 cases reported within the City of Fremont. On March 10th, Alameda County reported its third case, the spouse of the second confirmed case who was a passenger on the Grand Princess cruise ship. This patient is under house quarantine and is not believed to have interacted with other members of the public while contagious. It is also important to note none of the ship's passengers will not be released into the general public or treated in any Alameda County hospital. Passengers who are California residents will be taken to federal facilities for isolation and quarantine, while non-California residents will be transported to federal facilities in other states.

Alameda County Public Health Dept. Current Guidance

Yesterday, the Alameda County Public Health Dept. released new guidance (http://www.acphd.org/2019ncov.aspx) for residents and businesses. "There is evidence of increasing circulation of COVID-19 in our region. These recommendations are meant to slow the spread of the virus in order to protect the health of Alameda County residents, particularly the elderly and people who have underlying medical conditions," said Dr. Erica Pan, Health Officer for Alameda County. The new guidance includes:

- For persons of "higher risk," including those over 60 years of age and those with chronic health conditions that make them more vulnerable to infections:
- Stay home and away from crowded social gatherings as much as possible. These types of gatherings include, but are not limited to parades, conferences, sporting events, and concerts where large numbers of people are within arm's length of one another.

For event organizers:

- Regional event calendars should be assessed on a rolling 30-day basis as the situation evolves.
- Large events (over 1,000 people) should be canceled or postponed.
- Medium events (100-1000 people) should consider postponement or shortening duration, density, and geographic reach of the event to lower risk of contagion.
- Small events under 100 may proceed with additional caution exercised.

Business and Employee Resources

Below are programs to note for businesses and workers who become financially impacted from the Covid-19 outbreak and response:

• Sick Leave: California has a supportive sick leave policy that allows for sick leave to be taken for preventative care as well as taking care of sick family member. In response to Covid-19, some businesses have gone further to allow for voluntary paid sick leave.

Small Business Administration (SBA):

• It is expected that a disaster relief bill will be signed by the President issuing Economic Injury Disaster Loans

(https://disasterloan.sba.gov/ela/I nformation/EIDLLoans)for small businesses financially impacted by the Covid-19 outbreak. Check regularly to sba.gov for updates.

CA Employee Development Dept. (EDD):

- Impacted employers in the service and manufacturing sectors are encouraged to offer furlough or reduce hours before considering headcount reductions.
- Employees facing reduced hours as result of impacts from the outbreak can apply for unemployment insurance to gap-fill their lost wages.
- Any employee who becomes sick or quarantined due to Covid-19 is encouraged to file a disability claim that can provide up to $1,300/week to cover lost wages.
- Paid family leave (FML) is also available to cover for lost wages due to caring for another a family member who becomes ill or is quarantined from Covid-19.
- See EDD's Covid-19 Resources Page (https://www.edd.ca.gov/about_e dd/coronavirus-2019.htm) for more information.

The Fremont Economic Development Staff joined a call with leaders from the State of California and Governor's Office vesterday to understand the statewide response to the virus. Here are the takeaways:

- While CA is more likely to have a higher number of cases of Covid-19 due to its size and connectedness to the rest of the world through commerce and travel, CA's Dept. of Public Health and Emergency Operations Center (EOC) are well-equipped to deal with pandemics, as evidenced in past years with SARS, H1NA, and Zeka outbreaks.
- Community transmissions are increasing but remain a low share of the total number of confirmed cases. As of March 10th, 157 people have tested positive for Covid-19 in California, of which 29 cases appear to be individuals with no travel history or relationship to other infected persons.
- Each community has a different risk profile and on-the-ground conditions, and it is important to follow local updates to get the most relevant information.

Tri-City Stargazer for week: MARCH 17, 2020

All Signs: This week Saturn leaves Capricorn, where it's been since 2017, to enter rebellious Aquarius. Saturn will be in Aquarius for only three months, then return to Capricorn to stay until the end of the year. (When it leaves, it will not return for 29 years.) This means the next three months are a hint of what is to come in 2021.

Meanwhile, this week, on the Spring Equinox, the Sun enters Aries.

Aries the Ram (March 21-

April 20): Once a year, for four weeks, the Sun is in your sign boosting your energy and bringing you good fortune. This month you will be powerful because in addition to the Sun in your sign, fiery Mars and Jupiter are both at the top of your chart. This makes you ambitious. It also means doors will open for you, allowing you to promote your reputation among your peers. This is a rare and opportune time so make the most of it.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): This week you're getting mixed signals. Because your birthday is a month away, your personal year is coming to an end. This means the Sun is "hiding" in your chart for the next four weeks, which makes you want to seek privacy to contemplate goals for your new year ahead. However, contrary to this influence, fiery Mars and Jupiter want you to explore your world by expanding your knowledge through books, film, and study. Meanwhile, someone younger will grab your attention this week.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): Your popularity will soar in the next four weeks. Some of you will become more involved in organizations and perhaps take on a leadership role. Discussions with authority figures – bosses, supervisors, teachers and, parents will be important this week because Mercury is high in your chart. This is an excellent time to think about your life direction in general. Meanwhile, disputes about shared property, insurance issues, and inheritances might be an issue. Fortunately, because Jupiter is also in this part of your chart, you'll come out smelling like a rose.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): For the next four weeks, the Sun will be sitting at the top of your chart. (This is the only time all year this can occur.) When it happens, it symbolizes that you are thrust into a flattering spotlight, which makes you look good in the eyes of bosses, parents, and VIPs. Go after what you want. However, keep in mind that though you make such a great impression on bosses and VIPs, with Mars opposite your sign now, relations with partners and close friends are testy and challenging.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): This is a strong time for Leos. In the next four weeks, you will focus more on publishing, media, law, and medicine. You want to travel and do anything to expand your world. You will explore learning new things, hearing lectures, going to classes, attending musical performances or doing anything unusual that is informative and educational. Meanwhile, relations with authority figures are fabulous. Don't hesitate to ask for a favor. Someone will ask for your advice about design, layout, furniture arrangement, regardless of what you do for a living. You are a creative sign, who is quick to see the whole picture.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): No matter what you are doing, you will be more passionate in the next four weeks.

You will be passionate about everything. Your desire to travel and explore opportunities in media, publishing, and medicine are strong. With your ruler Mercury sitting right opposite your sign, you will be eager to talk to partners and close friends, and they will enjoy talking to you. Mars continues to make you competitive, especially in sports, as well as being playful and prankish. Mars gives you the freedom to demand to be yourself and express to others exactly who you are.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): For the next four weeks, the Sun is opposite your sign, which is (symbolically speaking) as far away from you as it can get all year. This means you will need more sleep. Make sure you get your rest because increased chaos and activity on the home front could be frustrating for you.

renovations, repairs, DIY projects or visiting guests. For some, it might mean a residential move.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

This activity might be due to

You'll be in work mode for the next four weeks. This is a good thing. This influence happens only once a year and it means you suddenly want to be efficient and effective in everything you do. You will look around you to see how you can work better and improve things. You want to be better organized. This feeling is so strong, you will even want to improve your health as well. Mars and Jupiter continue to enhance your communications making you effective in writing, acting, selling, and speaking to others.

Meanwhile, Venus is opposite your sign making all your relationships sweet and cozy.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

This week the Sun enters your fellow Fire sign, which totally pumps your energy. Specifically, it makes you want to party, to have fun, and to do your own thing. Your primary drive will be to do what you want and to set your own priorities. Romantic relationships will be lighter and fun-filled. Vacations, social outings, and schmoozing with others will be tops on your menu. Sports events will be exciting, and you will be involved with children more than usual. Relations with coworkers will be supportive. Family discussions and home repairs are also on your agenda.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

Your attention now turns to home, family, and your private life for the next four weeks. You might be more involved than usual with a parent. Having said that, by contrast, Mercury and Venus will encourage you to talk to others, take short trips, and explore fun times socializing and enjoying the arts. As mentioned last week, you can do all this because Mars and Jupiter give you tons of energy right now. (Mars is in your sign for about six weeks every two years, and when it happens, you are PowerPoint on steroids.)

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):
As the Sun changes signs this week, it enters a part of your chart that makes you super busy.

The next four weeks are jammed with short trips, errands, appointments, tasks, and conversations with siblings, relatives and neighbors. The pace of your days will accelerate. But fear not because this will be "fun busy", not frantic. You'll be curious to talk to everyone and learn new things. You have excellent moneymaking ideas as well. Meanwhile, you will enjoy entertaining at home as well as redecorating your digs. Some of you might also explore real-estate opportunities.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

This week the Sun moves into your Money House of earnings to stay for four weeks. (This happens only once a year.) This also urges you to reflect upon your values both in terms of what you own, and your abstract values – the values that govern your decisions. This placement of the Sun will also make you take stock about what you own. Do your possessions serve your needs or are you a slave to them? Do they get in your way? The next four weeks are the perfect time to address this situation. Competitive sports will appeal.

College day opens doors to the future

SUBMITTED BY TINA VOSSUGH

For more than 100 local high school students attending the recent Ohlone College Mission Valley Regional Occupational Program (MVROP) College Career Day, it was a time to think ahead and contemplate their next steps after high school.

"Each and every one of you has the potential to do what you want. So, the million-dollar question is, what are you going to do with it?" Milton Lang, Vice President of Student Services, asked the students.

During the Friday, February 28 event, juniors and seniors from Newark Memorial, Bridgepoint, Conley-Caraballo and Robertson high schools got to experience a taste of what their future could be.

"If I can do it, you can kill it," Lang said. He spoke from the heart telling students his own story about being the youngest of seven in a family where higher education wasn't a priority and where his own father mocked his dreams of going to college. Now, he says, his father is his number one fan showing him off to all his friends.

"Many of these high school juniors and seniors have never been, or ever expected to be, on a college campus," said Computer Science Professor Suporn Chenhansa. "Some may not have ever thought about college at all."

That's why Ohlone College -- the community college serving the Tri-Cities -- has made it a priority to reach out to local students like these to show them how much they do belong and that they can be college material -- making it an annual event coordinated by the Ohlone College Tri-Cities Career Center and MVROP since 2014.

In her role at the college's career center, Career Center Specialist and Adjunct Counselor Gail Satake-Nakamura brings career planning modules to local MVROP high schools so that students can have a better idea of what's possible for them through Ohlone's many educational and career paths. One of the events she looks forward to the most is this one where the students can actually feel what it's like on campus.

"It's a wonderful way for students to learn that college is attainable and for us to show them all of the great programs and educational paths we offer at Ohlone," Satake-Nakamura said.

Each year the program begins with a welcome and introduction to the campus from Ohlone College administration, staff, and from the MVROP Superintendent Tom Hanson. Students then participate in workshops led by Ohlone faculty and student helpers, have lunch together, and engage with student service organizations and clubs with a tour of the campus in the afternoon.

"Educators have many chances to talk to students about their futures," Hanson said. "The trip to Ohlone demonstrates to kids how that future can actually take shape. It is powerful for everyone involved."

Cortese Calls for Coronavirus Measures

SUBMITTED BY JANICE ROMBECK

The current count of confirmed cases of COVID-19 in Santa Clara County has risen to 79, and is likely to keep growing. In light of this continual spread of COVID-19, I strongly support County Health Officer Dr. Sara Cody's mandate that events and gatherings with audiences of more than 100 must be postponed or canceled. The Health Department also announced it is imposing conditions on gatherings of 35 to 100. I concur with this decision, as well.

Two days ago, I sent a request to County Executive Jeff Smith that the mandate to postpone or cancel events be lowered to gatherings of at least 200.

I'm also relieved that Santa Clara County Superintendent Dr. Mary Ann Dewan announced today that all public schools in Santa Clara County will be closed for three weeks beginning on Monday, March 16. While canceling on-campus classes is a huge disruption to families across Santa Clara County, as well as staff and faculty, the health of our students and their families, especially older family members such as grandparents who are vulnerable, are the No. 1 priority.

Dr. Dewan said that the County Office of Education will work with the State regarding online learning and attendance requirements. On Thursday, March 15, I sent a letter to Governor Gavin Newsom requesting that schools be closed and that state officials create a state-controlled emergency fund that can cover potential losses incurred for non-Basic Aid school districts due to lower ADA rates in the wake of the COVID-19 outbreak. I further requested that the state temporarily waive the requirement of physical classroom attendance when calculating student ADA to allow for equivalent online and/or remote schoolwork to count towards attendance.

We have established remote work protocols in my office to minimize face-to-face interactions and will continue doing so on a day-to-day basis. We will also continue to help constituents and respond to media requests. We will be available during our normal office hours by email at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org or by phone at 408-299-5030.

I am pleased with the steps taken today locally and proud of the County's response to this health crisis, but the federal government must step up distribution of resources to help our community, including test kits and the testing capacity of local labs and testing facilities.

For updated information on the coronavirus and Public Health guidelines, visit sccgov.org\coronavirus. To reach the Office of Supervisor Dave Cortese, call (408) 299-5030.

Color, Reauty, and Functionality in Qmall Rath

By Anna Jacoby

Fremont houses are not known for their large baths, especially if the house is on the older side. In fact, some baths are so small that they do not even adhere to current building codes when it comes to spacing around the toilet and size of shower. That was the case in this bathroom, where we had to create a curbless shower so it would be large enough to pass inspection. But just because a bathroom is small, does not mean it can't be both beautiful and functional. Homeowners now have lots of storage, improved lighting, and easy-to-maintain surfaces, all presented in a fun and colorful package.

It started with the Mexican tile, which the clients loved and wanted to feature. I designed the "medallion" in the shower and surrounded it with simple cream-colored porcelain to set it off. I brought the colorful tile over to the backsplash as well, to continue the theme on that end of the small bath. The bright blue countertop material (Cambria Quartz in the color Bala Blue) is also used for the bench seat in the shower. This energetic hue really pops against the cream color on the walls. The floor, ceiling, and walls were kept the same light color to make the whole space look larger. And the clear glass shower doors also help to create a feeling of spaciousness.

The benefit of using custom cabinetry is that I can use every inch of space to its best advantage. I designed the vanity with a tilt tray underneath the sink (great for toothbrushes and toothpaste) and three drawers on the left. The drawers are graduated in size; the top is for smaller items like makeup, the middle is a couple of inches deeper, and the bottom is deeper still, for bulkier items like a hairdryer.

I was also able to give them additional storage on the wall above the sink. The wall cabinet on the left side has adjustable shelves inside, is deeper than a traditional medicine cabinet, and can hold a multitude of items. At the top is an open cubby that can be used for display.

Above the towel bar (across from the toilet), what looks like a framed art print is a recessed medicine cabinet, for even more storage. In the shower, I included a recessed niche for shampoos and soap, and, of course the bench seat can be used for additional toiletries, or for sitting, should that need arise. With a light in the shower, and decorative grab bars on the walls, the shower is safe as well as beautiful.

If you're a member of the "small bath club," don't fret. Feel free to borrow some of these ideas to add precious storage and fun personality to your space.

Fix a Leak Week is a great time to inspect faucets, toilets, and irrigation systems for leaks. Finding and fixing leaks in the office and workplace is just as important as fixing leaks at home. Did you know that a leaking toilet could waste up to 200 gallons of water per day? That would be equivalent to flushing your toilet 50 extra times per day!

Celebrate Fix a Leak Week, March 16 - 22, and become a leak detective in your home and workplace. ACWD provides customers with leak kits FREE of charge to help detect and fix leaks. Visit www.acwd.org/leakfixkit to order your kit or call (510) 668-4218.

Over 2,000 stolen electronic devices recovered in auto burglary investigation

Eleven suspects have been charged with Tier 1 and 2 fencing.

Present at the event were Fremont Chief of Police Kimberly Peterson, Fremont Detective Rick Zemlok, Supervising District Attorney for Santa Clara Marisa McKeown, Assemblymember Kansen Chu, Fremont Mayor Lily Mei, and Vice-Mayor Rick Jones. "This press conference represents a collaboration, and an effort that spans all of the Bay Area, from San Francisco, San Mateo, Alameda, Contra Costa, and Santa Clara County," said Marisa

The investigation has been ongoing since late 2017. In the fall of 2019, Fremont, Newark, Milpitas, Santa Clara, and San Jose each received $750,000 in State Surplus funding to investigate these crimes. "When we received this funding, we ensured our approach would be strategic and collaborative," said Peterson.

Peterson also recounted the first major investigation into a laptop fencing ring in January of 2018. After increasing numbers of auto burglaries, Fremont detectives followed the trail back to Santa Clara County and stopped a shipping container headed to the Port of Oakland to be shipped overseas. More than 2,000 electronic devices were recovered, at a value of more than $2 million. Eight suspects were arrested.

Detective Rick Zemlok gave an overview of developments over the last

Two local discount electronics businesses were implicated in the crime ring. In October 2019, Torspin Wireless in Hayward was served with multiple search warrants after a seven-month investigation. 1,800 electronic devices were recovered, and $350,000 in cash was seized. In spite of this, Torspin later reopened for business; on February 4, 2020, investigators conducted a business inspection and found numerous violations of California second-hand dealer laws. Torspin is now shutting down for good.

The other store, iTek Mobile Care in San Jose, was wiping and fencing stolen laptops and phones. On January 21, 2020, detectives conducted a sting in which stolen phones were sold to the business. A search warrant was issued, and the owners were arrested for possession of stolen property. 549 devices were recovered, and $31,000 was seized. Evidence showed the owner had been trained to wipe laptops and put them in IT mode. The laptops were then shipped via bus to Los Angeles and on to Vietnam.

Just in 2020, several other individuals were arrested after stolen laptops were found in their vehicles and/or storage units. Detectives recovered approximately 2,200 stolen devices, valued at $1.5 Million. Additionally, $100,00 in cash and $148,000 in bank accounts were seized. Six vehicles (two Mercedes, one Maserati, one BMW, one Porsche, and one Lexus SUV) were also seized, as it is believed they were purchased with the proceeds from the stolen devices.

A full list of names and arrest details can be found on the Fremont Police website: https://www.fremontpolice.gov.

"Make no mistake about it. What you're looking at here is organized crime," said Marisa McKeown. "And behind me are the spoils of a vast criminal conspiracy...What you're looking at in front of you is several hundred victims' property that hopefully they will get back thanks to the hard work and collaboration of these detectives. But this is a vast criminal network that every single night is fueled by a multi-million-dollar scheme to break into your cars and resell these products on websites back to unwitting consumers as 'gently used.' Which is offensive. And it's wrong."

The District Attorney's office is changing how these crimes are charged. McKeown said, "We're doing everything we can at the DA's office in Santa Clara County to reflect the seriousness of this conduct, including for the first time in our office's history charging a fencing scheme in a multi-count complaint for multiple defendants to include a white collar crime enhancement and criminal profiteering."

The Bay Area is currently outpacing the rest of the state and nation in auto burglaries, and McKeown urged residents to take precautions - to never leave electronics even in locked cars as thieves show no hesitation to break glass and pop trunks. "For each one of these devices, they're getting cash in hand, and it's easy, and they don't need a day job because they can take your property. So please help us stop this epidemic."

Kansen Chu underlined how these crimes have gone beyond the level of misdemeanor to serious felony, especially as the value of information (personal or work-related) on stolen laptops is greater than that of the devices themselves. "Therefore, I have proposed a bill, AB 2375 to make car break-ins and stealing personal devices - like your cell phone, your iPad, your computers – automatically a felony," Chu stated. "This is not to bypass any existing law. But we knew that there are people who will risk their life retrieving the personal or work-related information on their electronic devices."

Chu will also an include an amendment to the bill, with the goal of reducing the market value of stolen electronic devices. The amendment establishes a statewide public database so anyone buying or dealing in used equipment can find out more about what they're buying.

During a question and answer session, Rick Zemlok stated that so far there is no indication that information has been stolen but that's always a possibility.

There were also questions related to the State Surplus funding from 2019: Has it contributed to results, and how sustainable are current operations? Peterson said the funding has contributed greatly to the recent arrests, and even though there isn't an assurance of the funding continuing, the police will continue their strategies of information sharing and collaboration. Seeing an impact is the most important factor in continued success. Peterson said, "We want the word to get our there for these criminals. 'You gonna steal laptops? Don't come to Fremont. Don't come to the Bay Area, because we're going to go after you wherever you are."

For inquiries about recovering property stolen between July 19, 2019 and January 20, 2020, email LaptopRecovery@fremont.gov. Due to the large number of laptops recovered, you will need to provide a serial number for your device.

More information abut AB 2375 can be found on Kansen Chu's website at https://a25.asmdc.org/district-report/chus -news-february-2020.

attached to the back of a flatbed truck, and started her journey to California on old Route 66. The next year, the worst storm of all hit the drought-stricken plains, creating the "Dust Bowl." What followed was a flood of migrant farm workers to California.

By the time John Steinbeck was getting magazine articles published in 1936, writing of the poor working conditions and treatment of migrant workers, Mary Jo had already been living in California for the better part of two years. And she had seen first-hand the early migrants on the road to California in various encampments along Route 66. She saw more come after the Dust Bowl. She knew what it was like to be an "Okie," or in her case, an "Arkie." And she had already started to work on losing "that accent" to escape discrimination. She was after all, a migrant herself, her family taking various jobs on ranches, picking fruit and doing whatever it took to survive.

Mary 2020

By the time Grapes of Wrath hit the theaters, the Thomas family had moved from Imperial California to Modesto and Mary Jo had all but lost her "Arkie" accent. She graduated from high school in 1944 and moved to Oakland in 1946 where she eventually met and married Edward Culver Wold, settled down and had a family of four of her own, raising them in the East Bay.

It was not until the 1980s that she felt emotionally over the stigma of being from the south and learned to embrace her country roots. Over the next three decades, she began writing her memories and reconnecting with her past. What came of that was her first self-published book, Little Annie Poot, about her life growing up in Arkansas. And the follow up, still-unpublished Desert Memories about the trip to California and her time in Imperial up to the time her family moved to Modesto in 1938.

She writes with an uncanny ability to recall the vernacular of the day. Her real-life stories and the characters who walk through them at times seem larger than life, and never ordinary. As they say, "you can't make this stuff up."

Due to the current COVID-19 outbreak, a book signing and author preview of Desert Memories scheduled for March 21 has been postponed. However, Little Annie Poot is available at Books on B in Hayward.

A suffragist is a person who fights for suffrage.

This meeting was the first women's rights convention in the United States. At that meeting, men and women signed a document called the "Declaration of Sentiments and Resolutions.' By signing, these people agreed to the goals of what was becoming the woman's movement.

For more than 70 years, women and men marched, wrote letters and articles, protested and picketed to get an Amendment to the Constitution which would give women the right to vote. These people were known as suffragists

In the United States, women have had that right for only 100 years of the 244 years we have been a country. And getting the right to vote took decades of protesting and writing to lawmakers who were all men at the time.

The United States Senate approved the amendment a week after the House.

Election Day, Nov. 5, 1872, Susan B. Anthony walked into her polling place and voted.

Two weeks later, a U.S. marshal knocked on her door.

"I have a warrant for your arrest," he told Susan. "You are charged with voting without the lawful right to vote."

In 1872, by U.S. law, a person had to be 21 years or older to vote. Susan was born in 1820. Was she old enough to vote:

THIS MONTH, EAT LIKE YOU'LL LIVE TO 100

Using centenarians as a guide for a brain—and heart—healthy diet.

MARCH IS NATIONAL NUTRITION MONTH, and the Masonic Homes of California in Union City is doing its part to promote a brain- and heart-healthy diet for all residents across its campus.

The concept is based on foods found in the "Blue Zones"—regions of the world with the highest concentration of centenarians, and with relatively low rates of degenerative diseases. Joseph Pritchard, Vice President of Clinical Operations at the Masonic Home, explains, "The Blue Zone diet helps preserve memory because it helps stave off some of the risk factors associated with dementia."

At the Masonic Home, the Blue Zone Café serves things like sushi bowls, potato leek soup, and banana-kale smoothies—fruit- and vegetable-packed meals that are both satisfying and nutritionally sound.

According to Dan Buettner, author of The Blue Zones Solution, people in the five worldwide blue zones—which are spaced all around the globe—share some commonalities in what they eat: In all cases, people eat a varied, plant-based diet. From beets to sweet potatoes to papaya to seaweed, they all regularlyu consume vibrant foods that grow organically in their regions. In other words, they eat colorfully—and locally. Some nutritionists call that "eating the rainbow." Now, with farmers markets and all of the choices available at supermarkets, doing the same thing has never been easier.

In addition to eating an array of vegetables, people in Blue Zone regions eat wild-caught fish. Since fish is known for its brain-healthy Omega oils, including it in your diet is a smart choice. Choose trout, snapper, and other "mid-chain" fish since it is exposed to less mercury. As for eggs and meat, consider them an accent to plant-based meals, rather than a centerpiece. Finally, go for more digestible dairy without added sugar. Plain yogurt is an excellent choice, as it contains gut-healthy probiotics, and milk products from sheep and goat are easier on the belly.

Other Blue Zone foods to add to your diet include oats, whole grains, beans, nuts, and seeds. The bottom line: with intention and an eye for color, you, too, can eat for longevity.

LIVE, LAUGH, AND LOVE YOUR VEGGIES

Along with laughter, vegetables are key to longevity. March is National Nutrition Month, so try marching to a healthier beat with some of these tricks:

- 1. Sneak in the salads. Salads are an easy way to add nutrients without fuss, and they don't have to stop at green. Slice up a fresh radish for some spice and color.
- 2. Spruce up your sandwich. Add some sliced cucumber, sprouts, or lettuce for some crunch.
- 3. Sip on soup. Soup made of chopped or pureed vegetables is a great way to get your daily intake. Garnish with some scallion for an extra kick.4. Satisfy simply. Slice up carrot, bell pepper, and cucumber, and serve with
- hummus for a tasty snack.

 5. Spice up the scramble. Add slow-cooked onion and bell pepper to your eggs and dig in
- 6. Sauté a side. Sauté some spinach and drizzle with heart-healthy olive oil. Then devour!

Calling All Tri-City Young People: Your Vote Counts...Register and Vote!

SUBMITTED BY SHIRLEY GILBERT

Advait Prasad is a busy senior at Mission San Jose High School in Fremont. He's got a slew of tests, he's on the track team and he's waiting to hear what colleges have accepted him. He's also excited about the prospect of voting in the 2020 election since he turns 18 on April 23rd. That's why he registered when his economics class joined a presentation in the school's auditorium that centered around the history and importance of voting.

"Registering gets a bad rap," said Prasad. "It's part of the stigma with which we young people view the government. It doesn't matter what choices you make. You just need to make your voice heard. There's so much polarization in our country now and voting gives you some say in the future."

Prasad was one of 2,801 junior and senior high school students who registered to vote as part of an aggressive drive that covered seven schools over seven days in the Tri-City area. The schools were: Irvington, American, Washington, Mission, Robertson, Logan and Averroes, a private Muslim-based school.

Students from social science classes heard two presentations. The first, led by League of Women Voters, highlighted the history of voting including the 100th anniversary of women's suffrage and the 19th Amendment, reminded the students of the power of the youth vote and the breadth of voting issues. The second, led by teen leaders, took students through the voter registration process. Then, with the help of volunteers, they filled out the registration applications and sent them on to the registrar to be processed.

The organization at the heart of the drive is the Youth Voter Movement (YVM), a partnership with the League of Women Voters of Fremont-Newark-Union City. YVM, like the League, is nonpartisan and nonissue committed to registering all eligible youth so they have a stake in their own future. In 2018, the youth vote enjoyed a 100-year high with an impressive 80 percent increase in voting nationwide. However, some 70 percent of those 65 or older vote, while only 38 percent of youth vote. This gap is what co-founder of YVM Julie Dunkle and her team are determined to close.

The push to register teenagers began when Dunkle and her son Michael created a program called the Parkland Voter Movement way to get youth excited about voting and was encouraged to see student leaders taking charge of a great deal of the communication. "The line that keeps ringing in my head about youth voting is from the musical Hamilton. 'I am not throwing away my shot...I'm young, scrappy and hungry...and I'm not throwing away my shot.' I don't want these kids to throw away their shot."

Sarah Nauss, Social Science Department Chair at American

before the 2018 mid-term elections which resulted in the registration of some 3000 students. "The origins of that program," said Dunkle, "were inspired by the courageous youth of Parkland, to honor both their silenced and amplified voices. The new name better personifies how youth are leading a movement in voting and in democratic engagement."

Thanks to 100 students and 250 adult volunteers, YVM and the League were able to register the over 2000 students in record time. "It certainly takes a village," said Dunkle, shaking her head in wonder at what the team accomplished so quickly.

Gayle Tupper, a League member, was one of the new adult volunteers who helped pre-register and register students. She thinks the YVM is a great High School, was the intermediary between teachers and the registration team for the drive at her school. American registered 829 students, the most of any of the seven schools. How to account for this high number? According to Nauss, there was a full commitment on the part of teachers and the school to cooperate with the registration process.

Nauss believes the Youth Voter Movement is a great initiative and fulfills an important purpose. "Congress is essentially broken," she said, "and controlled by old white men who don't look like our students. As a result, eligible students want to be involved now and change that in the future." Nauss remembers what it was like when she was her students' age. "The way our government worked was never explained to me in high school. That's why I think YVM is such a fantastic program. The information young people get is first rate and they are more likely to register and vote when asked to do so in an organized way."

Alvin Lee is a student leader and activist at Mission San Jose High School and led the drive at his school. Lee is also the leader of a group called Generation Up that encourages activism and positive change to make education more dynamic. "I've always felt that youth voter registration is an important part of activism," he said, "and I want to register one million Millennials since the record hasn't been so good." Lee believes that young people can bring about positive change in our democracy. "Students really do care."

To further create awareness of the power of the youth vote and allow high school and college students to experience some hands-on activities, Irvington student Elaine Yan, along with support from YVM and the League staged a Get-Out-The-Vote Rally and march on March 1st at the Fremont Main Library.

It was exciting to encounter the industrious hubbub in the library's Fukaya Room where some 80 students and about 30 volunteers prepared for the march. There was a spirit of activism and determination to be part of the democratic process.

At one series of tables, students worked to stop voter suppression by telephoning and writing postcards, encouraging voters removed from the voter rolls in Elmore County, Alabama to reregister and vote. In many cases, these residents, often minorities or poor, have no idea they have been removed from the voter rolls. This Center for Common Ground program is called Reclaim Our Vote and is supported by many organizations such as the NAACP.

In another corner of the room and on the floor, youth designed posters for the march –" Democracy Dies in Darkness" and "Young Voters are America's Future" or "vote" written in a plethora of languages.

About ten elected officials attended the event including Senator Wieckowski, County Assessor La, Mayor Mei, Council Members Keng and Lamnin, School Board Trustees Campbell, Cheema, Cox and Kaur. Students asked questions about the environment, gun control, student loans and tax assessments and possible internships. League members were available to register students and there were snacks aplenty and opportunities to acquire t-shirts, wristbands, bookmarks and stickers. And through it all, a happy whirl of activity.

Then it was time for the boisterous crowd of teenagers to start the two-mile march to deposit their ballots in the Registrar of Voters Election mailbox and mail the voter suppression postcards. While the young people gathered with their posters at the Unity sculpture at Paseo Padre and Stevenson, students gave inspiring speeches about the power of voting.

In her speech, Drishti Gupta focused on issues important to Millennials such as debt forgiveness, climate change and health care. She stated that every vote counts and youth need to help get out the vote. Alvin Lee spoke about the "dilemma of how the older generation is screwing things up for us" and how fundamental shifts, led by the youth movement, is the answer. Jackie Cox talked about her great grandmother, Sarah Dudley Pettey, who was influential in the suffragist movement for black women in the early 1900's. She shared a few of her grandmother's quotes in relationship to women's abilities and energy. "What position is there that a woman cannot fulfill?" her great grandmother asked. Mrs. Pettey also challenged one's belief of the term colored. "All people," she said, "are colored from the fairest blond to the darkest hue of humanity."

On the route to the City Hall, drivers honked and cheered as the students held their posters aloft. At City Hall, young eligible voters cast their ballots. On the return journey to the Unity sculpture, student activists triumphantly mailed the voter suppression postcards.

Fremont Mayor Lily Mei called the rally inspirational and said she was "proud to witness and welcome our high school youth and young college adults joined together to celebrate and exercise their right to vote. Some for the very first time."

It was a fun and exhilarating time and also communicated a serious message: the youth vote is vital to the success of our democracy and to its future. Young people please register and vote!

If you would like to host similar events, register to vote, volunteer, send a donation or learn more about the Youth Voter Movement, go to www.youthvotermovement.org.

Update on San Leandro Response to COVID-19

SUBMITTED BY ERIC ENGELBART

The City of San Leandro is continuing to monitor the spread of the Coronavirus (COVID 19) and the impacts the virus has had upon city operations and the San Leandro community. In response to recommendations made by the Alameda County Public Health Department (ACPHD), the City is cancelling and/or postponing large events and gatherings. In addition, the city has taken the actions outlined below out of concern for the community and to mitigate potential exposure to this virus.

We're all in this together and our team is working hard to do everything we can to support public health and keep our community safe," stated Mayor Pauline Russo Cutter.

- The Mayor has elected to postpone her State of the City address to a future date to be determined and the Chamber of Commerce will be postponing the Taste of
- The City does not have plans at this time to change procedures for City Council and City Commission meetings; however, the public is reminded that these meetings can be streamed online and that public comments to both staff and the City Council can be shared by email
- San Leandro leadership has made the decision to relax enforcement of the City's noise ordinance in order to allow certain specific stores, such as Costco, the ability to receive delivery of products that have been in high demand since this outbreak, whenever such delivery may arrive at the store, including evenings.
- Operations at City facilities, such as libraries and community centers, are being continually assessed in accordance with health guidelines and best practices. Programming that is targeted to high-risk populations such as seniors, as well as youth, has been suspended. For facilities that remain open, protocols are in place to enhance the cleaning and sanitization of high-touch surfaces.

For the most current information on the availability of City facilities and services, please visit www.sanleandro.org.

The public is encouraged to review the latest recommendations from the Alameda County Public Health Department regarding mass gatherings at www.acphd.org/2019-ncov.aspx

If you are experiencing symptoms of COVID-19, may have had contact with a person with COVID-19, or recently traveled to countries with apparent community spread, call your health care provider or local public health department first before seeking medical care so that appropriate precautions can be taken.

City of San Leandro leadership and the San Leandro Police Department are also closely tracking updates from the appropriate regional and national health agencies and will provide additional updates as appropriate.

City declares local emergency

SUBMITTED BY CHERYL GOLDEN

On March 13, Fremont City Manager Mark Danaj proclaimed a local emergency for the city in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The purpose of this emergency declaration is to give the city legal authority and flexibility to mobilize resources in response to this unprecedented public health threat for the protection of the community. The action will also help ensure critical services and operations continue. Additionally, it allows the city to request mutual aid from regional, state, and other governmental entities.

The city has taken measures to limit the number of people in the same room of a public meeting, cancelled or postponed city-sponsored events and community meetings, as well as canceled or postponed all nonessential work-related travel and attendance at meetings and conferences for city employees. Social distancing measures are also now in place at various public counters throughout city hall and city buildings.

"Given the challenges this disease is causing, we are working to organize resources, implement best practices to reduce the spread of the pathogen, and inform the community, said Danaj.

"The city continues to monitor this rapidly changing situation and working with our local, schools, hospitals, and County officials," said Mayor Lily Mei. "In this current environment, we will continue evaluating the way in which we provide city services to the public and will assess and review actions on a rolling 30-day basis."

For more information about resources available to minimize the spread of COVID-19, visit www.Fremont.gov/Coronavirus and follow the city on its social media channels at www.Fremont.gov/SocialMedia.

BART continues regular service

SUBMITTED BY LES MENSINGER

We want our riders to know that regular BART service continues and we are not considering reduced service or a system shut down unless forced to do so.

We are committed to offering daily updates at www.bart.gov because we understand information about the impacts of COVID-19 is changing rapidly and our riders need a place they can turn to for reliable, real-time information about BART service. We are posting daily ridership figures so riders understand the crowding levels on the system and can feel reassured that they can remain an arms-length distance from each other while on board trains and in stations.

General Manager Bob Powers confirmed that hand sanitizer dispensers began to be installed and as of Thursday March 12, 2020, BART has enough supply to last 7-10 days. Staff is working to purchase more and is in communication with vendors. Increased cleaning and disinfecting continues.

Powers confirmed staff has emergency plans in place should there be a call to shut down or significantly reduce service; however, that is not anticipated at this time. Should there be a reduction in service, BART will communicate in real time with the public using email/text alerts, the BART website and the official app, social media, in-station announcements, posted signs, and through the news media.

BART ridership for Wednesday, March 11, 2020 was 268,192 representing a 35% drop compared to an average Wednesday in February 2020.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

In some political circles, the phrase " an audience of one" often refers to those seeking to impress a single person rather than any group, special interest or cause. It appears that now, the audience for gatherings has been reduced to none. During a period of distress and unease, it is difficult to gain a broad prospective on events since those involved – in this case, all of us - face the challenge to resist the temptation of surrendering to an overwhelming sense of despair and resignation. In the midst of this bruhaha, a well-known saying, "When you're up to your neck in alligators, it's hard to remember that your initial objective was to drain the swamp" cautions against losing sight of the original goal.

During the decades of publication of Tri-City Voice, I have learned that the communities we serve are vibrant and resilient, oriented toward positive aspects of family, friends and neighbors. I firmly believe this attitude will prevail. Tri-City Voice will attempt to keep our communities informed of relevant activities and actions, but actions by authorities are moving at such a fast pace that many events and programs planned in the next few weeks have been canceled, postponed or modified. We will maintain an open line of communication with our civic and organizational partners to include the best information possible, but remind our readers that it is wise to check with sponsors and venues prior to attendance.

Tri-City Voice is optimistic about the future and our collective ability to rebound from the draconian measures in place at this time. Recognizing the need to isolate and defeat the threat of COVID-19, it is imperative for all of us to adhere to the informed analysis and response required to return to a normal state of affairs. Panic and irrational behavior impedes eventual recovery and has no place in the midst of a crisis. We must rely on local and regional authorities who have the responsibility and planning expertise to provide guidance. So far, local actions have been reasonable and measured. As painful as these actions have been, it is of critical importance that we, the public, give our attention and commitment to their efforts.

Although closure of many public facilities and institutions is painful, it is a necessary step and should result in an orderly and hopefully rapid return to normalcy. During any large-scale operation such as this, there will be errors and mistakes. There will be plenty of time later for a postmortem of actions and procedures, so the best course now is to be resolute by supporting and embracing our family, friends, neighbors and community. Avoid perpetuating rumors without substance and information without context. As Franklin Delano Roosevelt said in his inaugural address March 4, 1933 when the United States was mired in the depths of economic depression:

"This is preeminently the time to speak the truth, the whole truth, frankly and boldly. Nor need we shrink from honestly facing conditions in our country today. This great Nation will endure as it has endured, will revive and will prosper. So, first of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself-nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance. In every dark hour of our national life a leadership of frankness and vigor has met with that understanding and support of the people themselves which is essential to victory."

When confronted with a universal threat, it may feel as if there is an audience of none, but actually, the audience and our responsibility has expanded exponentially. This nation has succeeded when faced with severe crises in the past and will do so again.

Protecting Californians from COVID-19

SUBMITTED BY CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH

On March 7, California officials issued updated guidance to schools, colleges and universities, event organizers and public health officials as they plan to face further spread of COVID-19.

"It's a question of when – not if – some California public schools will face closure because of COVID-19. School districts must prepare for these scenarios so that parents and children can plan for what would happen if their local school faced closure," said Governor Gavin Newsom.

"It's also not lost on anyone that these scenarios would put significant stress on families—especially those with the least financial resources. Already, we are seeing how this outbreak is having significant economic impact on families, workers, businesses and communities across California. The state of California is working around the clock to help shoulder the burden that Californians are facing during this crisis. We really are all in this together," added Newsom.

California AG drops challenge to T-Mobile-Sprint merger

By Tali Arbel AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

California's attorney general said Wednesday that the state will not appeal a judge's decision approving T-Mobile's $26.5 billion purchase of Sprint.

Attorney General Xavier Becerra and New York Attorney General Letitia James led a coalition of 14 state attorneys general who sued to stop the deal. They had argued that eliminating a major wireless company would harm consumers by reducing competition and adding billions of dollars in costs through higher phone bills.

The companies said the deal would benefit consumers by helping the companies build a better next-generation, 5G wireless network than each could do alone. A federal judge in New York sided with the companies in February. New York decided not to appeal a few days

Becerra will hold a press conference Wednesday to announce a settlement with the companies.

The merger has been approved by the Justice Department and the Federal Communications Commission. As part of its deal with the federal government, T-Mobile and Sprint agreed to set up satellite TV company Dish as a new cellular competitor, though it will be a much smaller one.

A federal judge in Washington, D.C., must still approve the Justice Department settlement. A California utility board has also not approved the deal yet.

T-Mobile has said that it expects to close the deal as early as April 1. Its Sprint deal would create a new wireless giant that is roughly the size of AT&T and Verizon.

California $37,706,709 receives in support of COVID-19 response

SUBMITTED BY U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is announcing another upcoming action by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to provide $37,706,709 in funding to California in support of their response efforts to the coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19).

"State and local health departments are on the front lines of responding to the COVID-19 outbreak, and we are deeply grateful for their work," said HHS Secretary Alex Azar. "CDC is distributing this new funding extremely rapidly, as called for by Congress. President Trump and his entire administration will continue working to ensure state and local jurisdictions have the resources they need to keep Americans safe and healthy.'

"Our state, local, tribal and territorial public health partners are on the front lines of the COVID-19 response. The action we are taking today will continue to support their efforts to increase public health capacity where it's needed most," said CDC Director Robert R. Redfield, M.D. "These funds will allow public health leaders to implement critical steps necessary to contain and mitigate spread of the virus in communities across the country.'

On March 6, President Donald Trump signed the Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2020. The supplemental contains $8.3 billion government-wide, with resources directed for grants or cooperative agreements to states, localities, territories, and tribes to accelerate planning and operational readiness for COVID-19; develop tools and strategies; provide technical assistance and program support; and ensure ongoing communication and coordination among public health agencies and partners throughout the response.

Mission Valley ROP Superintendent's Message

obligated party. 3/17, 3/24/20

Dear Mission Valley ROP Community

As you are well aware, the COVID-19 landscape is continuously evolving as more positive cases are being confirmed. To date, seven positive cases have been confirmed in Alameda County. It is important to note, as of today, no positive cases are located in Fremont, Newark, or Union City.

Today MVROP participated in another collective call with all Alameda County Superintendents, the Alameda County Office of Education (ACOE) and the Alameda County Public Health Department (ACPHD) to discuss and plan for varying levels of COVID-19 mitigation, preventative practices, and scenarios involving school closures.

While there has been no direct order from ACPHD or the CDC to date for school closures in Alameda County, there are some districts that have chosen to suspend classroom instruction and instead implement distance learning models in order to promote social distancing and mitigation. MVROP serves three separate partner districts with CTE programming and will continue to remain in communication to appropriately adjust to their plans as we continue to receive up to date information. New Haven USD has announced it will suspend in-classroom instruction effective Monday, March 16 through Friday, March 27, with regular classes resuming on Monday, April 6. Our two other partner districts have scheduled Board of Education meetings in an emergency capacity to empower Superintendents to make hard decisions and any necessary actions due to the time-sensitive nature of the escalating COVID-19 novel virus for this evening.

MVROP plans to conduct in-class instruction on the ROP Main Center Campus on Monday, March 16. Students who are participating in internships should report to their sites for their normal schedule unless said schedule has been augmented or they have been notified otherwise by MVROP.

Public medical health professionals who are experts in protecting the community still request MVROP to communicate the importance and overall effectiveness of preventative measures in the following forms to combat against the COVID-19 virus: thorough and regular hand-washing procedures, coughing into a tissue/ your arm, and if sick, please stay home. Symptoms of COVID-19 are similar to cold and flu. If you are experiencing symptoms, stay home and contact your healthcare provider. The information being shared by health care providers is stressing that although children can become infected with COVID-19 that their symptoms are less severe than the elderly population.

We are doing our best to ensure we do our due diligence to provide continuity of services and learning for the Tri-Cities while navigating ongoing circumstances that are rapidly changing. We will continue to provide updated information to the com quickly as possible.

> Sincerely, Thomas Hanson Superintendent Mission Valley ROP

Responses to COVID-19 novel

SUBMITTED BY CHUCK FINNIE

The City of Hayward is cancelling all nonessential, nongovernmental meetings and events on a rolling 30-day basis to limit exposure and slow the transmission the COVID-19 novel coronavirus.

The measure is one of a series of steps taken by City Manager Kelly McAdoo to protect the Hayward community and city workforce-including a declaration of a local emergency that allows for greater flexibility in the deployment of city employees and acquisition of needed equipment, supplies, and other resources.

Other steps include operational changes and partial closures of city facilities to limit person-to-person spread of the virus. These changes include, but may not be limited to, consolidation of in-person business transaction activity to glass-partitioned counters in the rotunda of city hall, shifting of other nonessential services to telephone-only, and reduction of hours and access at the Downtown and Weekes libraries.

The City Manager also is encouraging nonessential, nonpublic safety municipal workers, whose duties allow, to begin planning with supervisors to temporarily work remotely from home, also for the next 30 days. The goal of these arrangements is to continue to provide as many city services as possible while minimizing in-person contact.

All governmental meetings of the Hayward City Council and other boards, commissions and appointed bodies will continue to be held with times, dates and locations published and shared on the city website, via email, and in other ways and means required and provided for under state law.

For more information on COVID-19, updates from the city and Alameda County Department of Public Health, and additional resources, visit www.hayward-ca.gov/covid-19.

More time to file, pay for California taxpayers

SUBMITTED BY DANIEL TAHARA, PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Franchise Tax Board (FTB) today announced special tax relief for California taxpayers affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. Affected taxpayers are granted an extension to file 2019 California tax returns and make certain payments until June 15, 2020, in line with Governor Newsom's March 12 Executive Order.

"During this public health emergency, every Californian should be free to focus on their health and wellbeing," said State Controller Betty T. Yee, who serves as chair of FTB. "Having extra time to file their taxes helps allows people to do this, as the experts work to control the spread of coronavirus."

This relief includes moving the various tax filing and payment deadlines that occur on March 15, 2020, through June 15, 2020, to June 15, 2020. This includes:

- Partnerships and LLCs who are taxed as partnerships whose tax returns are due on March 15 now have a 90-day extension to file and pay by June 15.
- Individual filers whose tax returns are due on April 15 now have a 60-day extension to file and pay by June 15.

Quarterly estimated tax payments due on April 15 now have a 60-day extension to pay by June 15.

The FTB's June 15 extended due date may be pushed back even further if the Internal Revenue Service grants a longer relief period. Taxpayers claiming the special COVID-19 relief should write the name of the state of emergency (for example, COVID-19) in black ink at the top of the tax return to alert FTB of the special extension period. If taxpayers are e-filing, they should follow the software instructions to enter The FTB will also waive interest and any late filing or late payment penalties that would otherwise apply.

School closure information

SUBMITTED BY FUSD

As a precaution and in an effort to slow the potential spread of COVID-19 (coronavirus), along with the other school districts in Alameda County, Fremont Unified will be closed starting on Monday, March 16, 2020. This decision was not made lightly and involved close collaboration and coordination with the Fremont Unified School District (FUSD) Board of Trustees, labor groups, the Alameda County Office of Education and the Alameda County Department of Public Health (ACDPH). We will continue working with our community partners to coordinate the reopening of our schools.

Students will not attend school starting on Monday, March 16th. All district facilities will be open on March 16-17th and staff will report to their usual work locations and duties. Every site will be deep cleaned and sanitized. Sites will be accessible to parents and students to pick up any materials they may need during the full closure.

From Wednesday, March 18th - Friday March 27th, all sites in Fremont Unified will be fully closed to students, employees, 0and the public. There will be no classes, activities, or sports on site. Students will not attend school and all employees will work from remote locations.

Outside rentals of our sites will be canceled during the two weeks as well. No part of campus may be accessed by anyone at any time during the closure.

The tentative reopening date is scheduled for Monday March 30th, but that may be extended depending on conditions at the time and recommendations from the Alameda County Department of Public Health (ACDPH) and the State of California. We will let staff and families know by March 24th for planning the following week. Learning will continue during this district closure.

FUSD staff has been preparing for this contingency and are making arrangements for continued instruction regardless of how long schools remain closed to students. Look for instructions from your individual teacher(s). Special education meetings and/or services will be handled through other formats or rescheduled to continue to address student needs.

At this time, FUSD is not expected to move or cancel its Spring Break scheduled from April 10-17th, but adjustments to the school calendar may be necessary depending on the length of the closure. We will announce any changes as soon as possible. As of now, graduation schedules remain unchanged.

We understand there are many concerns around COVID-19 and want to ensure families that we are working closely with ACDPH for updates and guidance. For the latest information on COVID-19, families are encouraged to visit the FUSD website (https://www.fremont.k12.ca.us) the ACDPH webpage dedicated to COVID-19 (2019 Novel Coronavirus), and the CDC homepage.

Fremont is a strong and united community and we will get through this together! We will do everything possible to keep you informed of any developments and when students can return to school.

Swalwell, Crawford reintroduce MOBILE resolution

SUBMITTED BY NATALIE EDELSTEIN

On March 9, Rep. Eric Swalwell (D-CA) and Rep. Rick Crawford (R-AR) reintroduced the Members Operating to Be Innovative and Link Everyone (MOBILE) Resolution. The resolution would strengthen the ability of Members to virtually participate in committee hearings and allow them to vote remotely on suspension bills.

"From coast to coast, some of the country's largest companies are already using technology to communicate and conduct business remotely," said Swalwell. "Modern technology belongs in Congress and my resolution would allow Members to not only spend more time with their constituents and their families, but would prove useful for a number of situations, including the public health crisis in which we currently find ourselves."

"The ability for Members of Congress to vote remotely, if need be, has been technologically feasible for decades," said Crawford. "The ongoing Coronavirus outbreak underscores the need for Congress to embrace what the 21st Century has to offer."

The MOBILE Resolution would require that Members and invited witnesses be allowed to participate in committee hearings remotely, and this participation would count toward rules on quorum. It also would mandate the development of a secure remote voting system which Members could use to vote remotely on suspension bills, generally non-controversial bills that require a two-thirds vote to pass.

During the struggle, the suspect pointed a gun at the woman and took the purse and escaped in a silver 2012 Toyota Camry. During the escape, a male bystander attempted to stop the suspect, who pointed a gun at him causing him to back away and let the suspect get away before officers arrived. Witnesses provided officers with a description of the suspect and a vehicle license number. Detectives went to a San Jose address where the vehicle was r egistered, and soon spotted a man who matched the suspect

• At about 1:37 a.m. officers responded to a report from a man who said a green 1999 Honda Accord sedan occupied by several males followed him as he was walking along the 1249 block of Great Mall Drive. Soon one of the occupants, later identified by police as Brandon Moreno, 18, of Watsonville, jumped out of vehicle and pointed a black handgun at the victim, who tried to run away, but was chased by the suspects. Arriving officers soon spotted the suspect vehicle with the suspects inside and pursued it for about four miles until it crashed into a light pole in San Jose. Four male juveniles, ages 14-17, were apprehended without incident. The 17-yearold driver sustained moderate head injuries from the crash and was taken to a hospital for treatment where he was later cited for felony vehicle evasion and released to his parents. The other juveniles were cited and released to their parents for curfew violation. Moreno was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail for brandishing a firearm. Officers conducted an extensive search for the handgun but did not locate it. Anyone with information about the incident is asked to call the Milpitas Police Department at (408) 586-2400. UNESCO plaque unveiled at Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House

AP WIRE SERVICE

State and local officials in California unveiled a plaque designating architect Frank Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House in Los Angeles as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Democratic U.S. Rep. Adam B. Schiff and Los Angeles City Councilman Mitch O'Farrell delivered remarks at a ceremony Sunday, The Los Angeles Times reported.

Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs officials also attended the unveiling at the Hollyhock House, which earned the city its first World Heritage designation in July.

There are 1,121 World Heritage Sites globally, with 869 of those awarded cultural status. The Hollyhock House is one of eight Wright buildings representing the first U.S. modern architecture designations on the World Heritage list.

The other Wright buildings include the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York City; the Unity Temple and the Frederick C. Robie House in Chicago; Fallingwater in Mill Run, Pennsylvania; the Herbert and Katherine Jacobs House in Madison, Wisconsin; Taliesin in Spring Green, Wisconsin; and Taliesin West in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Among his most iconic buildings was the Guggenheim with its spiral ramp for viewing galleries. It was completed in 1959, the same year Wright died. Built between 1918 and 1921 on a hill in East Hollywood, the Hollyhock House in Barnsdall Art Park was almost demolished in the 1940s. The structure is named for stylized motifs of the flower of the same name that dominate its concrete exterior.

The Hollyhock House, Wright's first California commission, is now owned by the city of Los Angeles and serves as an arts center.

"The unveiling of the plaque," O'Farrell said Sunday, "underscores what we already know: The structure represents an unparalleled symbol of cultural heritage and an outstanding contribution to design in the city of Los Angeles and the world."

Fremont Unified School District closes until March 27

In a letter to staff, families and guardians, School Superintendent Kim Wallace stated, "As a precaution, and in an effort to slow the potential spread of COVID-19 (coronavirus), along with the other school districts in Alameda County, Fremont Unified will be closed starting on Monday 3/16/20." A tentative date for reopening is scheduled for March 30th. All sites will be fully closed to students, employees and the public from March 18-27 for deep cleaning and sanitizing. Wallace adds that "There will be no classes, activities, or sports on site." Although classes may resume March 30th, Spring Break is still scheduled April 10-17 but the school calendar may be adjusted "depending on the length of the closure." SpaceX launches station supplies, nails 50th rocket landing

By Marcia Dunn AP AEROSPACE WRITER

SpaceX launched another load of station supplies for NASA late Friday night and nailed its 50th rocket landing.

The Falcon rocket blasted off with 4,300 pounds (1,950 kilograms) of equipment and experiments for the International Space Station. Just minutes later, the spent first-stage booster made a dramatic midnight landing back at Cape Canaveral, its return accompanied by sonic booms.

"The Falcon has landed for the 50th time in SpaceX history!" SpaceX's Launch Control announced.

Both the booster and the Dragon capsule, en route to a Monday rendezvous with the space station, flew on previous missions.

It's the 20th station delivery for SpaceX, which has launched nearly 100,000 pounds (45,360 kilograms) of goods to the orbiting outpost and returned nearly that much back to Earth since it began shipments in 2012. Northrop Grumman is NASA's other commercial shipper.

SpaceX founder and chief executive Elon Musk said it was the windiest conditions ever for a booster landing at Cape Canaveral, but he wanted to push the envelope. The landing was the 50th successful touchdown of a SpaceX booster following liftoff, either on land or at sea.

The company's first booster landing was in 2015, intended as a cost-saving, rocket-recycling move. Both the booster and the Dragon capsule, en route to a Monday rendezvous with the space station, were recycled from previous flights.

Among the science experiments flying: an analysis of running shoe cushioning in weightlessness by Adidas, a water droplet study by Delta Faucet Co. striving for better showerhead water conservation, 3D models of heart and intestinal tissue, and 320 snippets of grape vines by Space Cargo Unlimited, the same Luxembourg startup that sent 12 bottles of red wine to the space station last November for a year of high-altitude aging.

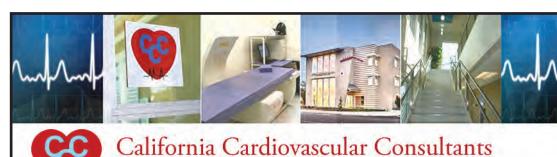

The Dragon also contained treats for the two Americans and one Russian at the space station: grapefruit, oranges, apples, tomatoes, Skittles, Hot Tamales and Reese's Pieces.

As for packing the capsule for launch, no extra precautions were taken because of the global coronavirus outbreak, according to NASA. The usual stringent precautions were taken to avoid passing along any germs or diseases to the space station crew. The doctor-approved procedures have proven effective in the past, officials noted.

This is the last of SpaceX's original Dragon cargo capsules. Going forward, the company will launch supplies in second-generation Dragons, roomier and more elaborate versions built for crews.

The company aims to launch NASA astronauts this spring. The California-based SpaceX is also teaming up with other companies to fly tourists and private researchers to the space station, as well as high solo orbits in the next couple years.
