Intellectual Curiosity Inspires a Passion for Patient Care

As the son of a doctor, Jesse Alexander, MD, PhD, was always interested in medicine. Guided by intense intellectual curiosity, he initially planned to work in basic research. “I was interested in biology and cancer research. I wanted to help people through research,” said Dr. Alexander. “I felt studying medicine would make me a better scientist, so you could say my career began with intellectual curiosity, combined with a desire to help.” Dr. Alexander is now a radiation oncologist with the Washington Radiation Oncology Center (ROC).

Growing up in Lawrence, Kansas, Dr. Alexander’s interest in medical research led him to study biology and chemistry at Stanford University. He earned his PhD in biology from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), and his MD at Duke University. Dr. Alexander interned in internal medicine at St. Mary’s Medical Center in San Francisco, and did his residency in radiation oncology at the University of California, San Francisco (UCSF).

A change of direction

Interested in cancer research, Dr. Alexander joined the faculty at the University of Washington Medical Center. His position was mostly research-based, but he also spent time treating patients. His clinical work was mainly in palliative care, in which he was relieving pain and discomfort, but not curing patients because at that point, their cancer had metastasized. To his surprise, he discovered that he found working with palliative patients more rewarding than research.

“When you’re conducting research, you don’t see the results of your work for a few years. With palliative care, you treat patients and then in two to four weeks, their pain is often much better. It was very rewarding,” noted

Dr. Alexander. “At University of Washington, I was 80% research and 20% clinical work. I discovered I enjoyed the clinical work more than the research and began a shift in the direction of my career. Now I basically am a clinician and do clinical research as well.”

This shift involved returning to UCSF where he had done his residency, a move precipitated by his wife being recruited for a job in the Bay Area. Dr. Alexander emailed the chair of the radiation oncology department, who was pleased to welcome him aboard.

Dr. Alexander is a radiation oncologist at UCSF and through their affiliation with Washington Hospital, he works at the Washington Radiation Oncology Center, where he has joined Dr. Nicolas Prionas and Dr. Emi Yoshida, also UCSF physicians who treat patients at the ROC.

“Every patient is an opportunity to learn something new,” said Dr. Alexander. “At UCSF, we are very specialized, and at Washington Hospital we are generalized. So there’s a great opportunity to learn with every patient.”

Local treatment, less stress

Radiation oncology treatment is tailored to each patient, which fits in well with Washington Hospital’s Patient First Ethic.

Another key benefit of the affiliation between Washington Hospital and UCSF Health is the convenience for patients to receive their treatment locally. With radiation oncology, most patients receive treatment as much as five days a week over a period of several weeks. With the other upheavals and disruptions cancer care brings, removing the necessity to drive to San Francisco several days a week benefits the patient’s peace of mind.

Jesse Alexander, MD, PhD, provides treatment to local cancer patients.

“The location is much more convenient and people are very happy to not have to drive across the bridge,” said Dr. Alexander.

Washington Hospital is a designated Radiation Oncology Center of Excellence by the American College of Radiology (ACR). The affiliation between Washington Hospital and UCSF Health provides optimal care for people with cancer in the Tri-City Area. On a temporary basis, Washington Hospital radiation oncology patients are receiving treatment in Hayward. The permanent location of the ROC, located at 39101 Civic Center Drive in Fremont, is undergoing renovation and will feature a new linear accelerator providing the latest technology for radiation therapy. For more information about the oncology services offered through Washington Hospital, visit www.whhs.com/cancer.

Cancer Diagnosis During the Coronavirus Pandemic

A Fremont Woman's Remarkable Story

Breast cancer survivor,
Laura Sato-Wong
received incredible support from her family: husband Bob,
daughter Katie,
and son Bryan.

All of us remember when the Bay Area became the first region in the country to shelter-in-place in mid-March and with it, all the change and uncertainty that followed. Now imagine if on top of it all, you found out at that exact time you had cancer. That's just what happened to a local woman. But as scary as it was to find out she had breast cancer, her timing was actually fortunate. Over the course of her diagnosis and treatment, it repeatedly became clear that Laura Sato-Wong was in the right place at the right time.

On Friday, March 13, Sato-Wong, a 54-year-old Fremont resident, went to the Women's Center at Washington Hospital for her annual mammogram. She didn't know it at the time, but the new state-of-the-art 3D mammogram machine the technician was using had just been installed the month before. In addition, her appointment was in the nick of time, because that weekend Governor Newsom announced a temporary shutdown of all non-emergency medical appointments.

"Not only was I one of the last women to get a mammogram before the shutdown," said Sato-Wong, "I also found out from my doctors that if it wasn't for the new 3D mammography, my cancer would likely not have been detected for another year. Luckily, the mass was still small—just 7 millimeters, which was key to a good outcome."

3D mammography, also called tomosynthesis, has been shown to increase the detection rate of invasive cancers by 41%, especially in women with dense breasts, and significantly reduce callbacks over 2D mammograms alone.

Sato-Wong returned to the Women's Center, which she says was beginning to look like a ghost town, for a follow-up mammogram and ultrasound on March 17, then again for a biopsy on Friday the 20th. The following Monday she got the call from her primary care physician with the diagnosis—she had invasive lobular carcinoma.

"Right when I got off the phone with my doctor, the nurse navigator, Laura Constantine, called to set up my appointments with the surgeon and oncologist," she recalled. "From day one, Laura was a reassuring voice and incredible resource. Her support was especially welcome and comforting since I had to come to all my appointments alone because of the pandemic." Sato-Wong was also thankful for the comprehensive binder from the surgery coordinator that had breast cancer information, an appointment calendar, doctors' contact information and other helpful resources – including the online support group she attended – for women dealing with breast cancer.

Sato-Wong's oncologist was UCSF physician David J. Lee, MD, co-medical director of the UCSF – Washington Cancer Center, whom she says, "has an incredible way of explaining everything thoroughly in terms I could easily understand." And her surgeon was William Dugoni Jr., MD, medical director of the Washington Women's Center. Together they agreed her best course of treatment was to start with a lumpectomy surgery, during which Dr. Dugoni checked her lymph nodes to see if the cancer had spread, fortunately it had not. That was April 7, and after six weeks of healing, she underwent radiation five days a week for three weeks at the Washington Radiation Oncology Center, which she described as, "an amazing place where everyone was warm, welcoming and compassionate."

Once again, timing proved to be on Sato-Wong's side during her brief but triumphant battle with cancer. "Because of the pandemic, I was able to go through the entire ordeal with my whole family at home to care for me, including my adult children. My daughter was home from college because of the shelter-in-place and my son was home too, working remotely."

Sato-Wong describes her experience with Washington Women's Center as wonderful. "They took something that was frightening and made me feel comfortable every step of the way. I never had to worry about what to do or who to call next because everything was planned out and set up for me, which I truly appreciated. If you have to go through an experience like breast cancer, this is the place to do it."

For more information on the Washington Women's Center, visit whhs.com/WomensCenter. It has returned to regular hours as before the pandemic with rigorous cleaning and safety precautions in place to prevent the spread of COVID-19. To schedule a mammogram, once you have an order from your physician, call Washington Hospital's outpatient registration at 510.818.7410.

and includes a Pre-Concert Talk available one week prior to the concert.

"We all miss our audience very much and are committed to keeping music alive in Fremont," said Music at the Mission Artistic Director Bill Everett. The Fall 2020 Season will be broadcast online October 24, November 21, and December 19. "We will return to hosting live audiences as soon as it is safe. In the meantime, we see these online concert productions as a chance to reimagine performances and bring you closer to the artists than you'd ever be in a concert hall. And if you can't make it at 4 p.m., the concert will be available via streaming until Monday, October 26 at midnight."

Piano virtuoso Aileen Chanco welcomes cellist Evan Kahn as guest artist: "Working on this video production with Evan is such a joy! Before filming, we had worked on just one short composition together so I didn't know how compatible we would be, musically. And recording is so much more intense than straight up rehearsing. He is the type of musician that you don't need words to communicate. His style is electrifying, nuanced and passionate."

"East and West" opens with Frederic Chopin's Introduction and Polonaise Brillante, op.3, written when the composer was only nineteen years old in order to impress a young noblewoman in Warsaw. The next work, Ludwig van Beethoven's Cello Sonata no. 3, op. 69, marks the birth of the romantic Cello sonata. "It is really the piece that raises the cello from accompanying instrument to solo instrument," said Everett.

Chanco, Kahn, and Everett are looking forward to introducing composer Reza Vali to the Music at the Mission audience with three Persian folksongs: "Longing," "In Memory of a Lost Beloved," and "Love Drunk." For cellist Evan Kahn, it's an intensely personal experience, "Reza and I met while I was a student at Carnegie Mellon, and his joie de vivre always inspired me, in his person and in his music. Playing and listening to this Folk Song Set No. 16C is like bathing in a well of raw emotions, so visceral is his writing. We hope that you will discover the colors made by the cello and piano that pull at the heartstrings and remind us of the experiences of love."

Next on the program is "Variations on a Slovakian Theme" by Bohuslav Martin, "one of the twin giants of Czech music in the twentieth century, a composer with a distinctively individual voice" (ArkivMusic). The evening concludes with another young continental transplant to the United States, Erick Korngold, who became recognized as a film composer at twenty. For generations, he was "despised because of his success," as NPR's Libbey has pointed out. Fortunately, enough time has passed for his works to have recovered in popularity so that we may all enjoy "Gartenscene" ("The Garden Scene") from Korngold's Much Ado About Nothing Suite.

"This concert experience will be unusual and especially interesting because videography allows visual perspectives that aren't possible in a concert hall. And please be sure to join us for the virtual PreConcert Talk, available now, and the Zoom AfterParty!" encouraged Chanco.

Niles Essanay Celebrates Halloween

SUBMITTED BY NILES ESSANAY SILENT FILM MUSEUM

The Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum's doors are closed at this time due to COVID, but that doesn't mean we aren't busy. Between restoring previously lost films from a century ago, working on our theater building (more on that very soon) and producing monthly online visual treats, we are working hard every day. The museum and store will hopefully be open in early 2021 and the theater after that, but for now, take a look on a computer screen near you. Many offerings are accessible through our YouTube channel, but we suggest you check our museum website as everything is in context and in order of screening. Also available online are 2020's Charlie Chaplin Days and the Broncho Billy Silent Film Festival and other video highlights.

In October, our programs feature Halloween, keeping in the "spirit" of the season, the Circus, and Baby Peggy, childhood star of early 1920s cinema. Links to each day's program will be available at 12:01 a.m. on the day of screening.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24

THE TERROR OF DRACULA

This special film is unique 25-minute version of the classic 1922 silent classic NOSFERATU. This interpretation, originally only released on 8mm film, features a unique edit of the film, including a completely alternate ending! Reconstructed by silent film scholar Nigel Dreiner with a newly created soundtrack by Fredrick Hodges. Vintage Halloween Fun!

THE SPIELER (1928, Ralph Block Productions)

This film directed by Tay Garnett stars Alan Hale Sr., Renée Adorée and Clyde Cook. The premise is that after being released from jail, two con artists take their grift to a carnival. A worthwhile popcorn movie. Piano Accompaniment by Greg Pane

FORMERLY LOST, NOW FOUND: RINGLING BROS CIRCUS PARADE shot in Indianapolis 5 p.m.

This is a big one! Our museum will debut a newly found film from 1902 online - it's only three minutes in length but you get to see a lot for that little time: downtown Indianapolis, a streetcar and hand-carved wagons and what you'd expect with the greatest show on earth of the past - horses and elephants. The history detective work of figuring out exactly who made the film, when and where it was shot will be shared by film historian David Kiehn prior to the actuality debuting on the small screen.

Accompaniment by Frederick Hodges.

The film will be followed by a Zoom Discussion: The Circus as an art form and its appearances in silent and talkie films.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 25

BABY PEGGY / DIANA SERRA CARY

Born October 29th, 1918, she became a movie star known around the world as Baby Peggy by the time she was four years old. As an adult, she changed her name to Diana and married Bob Cary thinking she was leaving Baby Peggy in the past - until she re-claimed her lost childhood and little Peggy Jean Montgomery. She came to author several books on film history and became an advocate for child performers and a real friend to our film museum. Diana passed away this past February and we were unable to have the in-person memorial we planned for the end of March, so until we can all be together again, online is the way we will celebrate her amazing life!

On Sunday, October 25th, we will share film shorts, interviews with the star, and a Zoom program sharing reminiscences of Diana with her documentarian Vera Iwerebor in Amsterdam and Essanay film museum volunteers stateside. (Zoom Q&A starts at 10 a.m.)

THE KID REPORTER

Three-year-old Peggy is a secretary for a newspaperman who is determined to catch a jewel thief. She wears disguises, makes us laugh and is darling in this 20-minute farce. Music by David Drazin.

CIRCUS CLOWNS Baby Peggy is joined by her star-making partner, Brownie the Wonder Dog and is in a circus as a junior clown. Music by Ben Model.

I BELIEVE IN HALLOWEEN (60 min) by Strephon Taylor

"It was a dark and stormy night." That's how it begins, right? A good Halloween story has those elements. "I Believe in Halloween" contains interviews with kids telling us what Halloween means to them, fun music videos, vintage footage and photos, antique postcards, advertisements, decorations, and costumes. This celebration of Halloween is complete with a toe-tapping soundtrack of nine classic Halloween songs that Bryan Kehoe and HobGoblin recreated. No tricks, all treats! Reflections on Water

Dillon Creek: splitting
boulders effortlessly

BY DEVON BECKER, ENGINEER, ALAMEDA COUNTY WATER DISTRICT

Dillon Creek is a small tributary to the Klamath River in northern California, somewhere between Happy Camp and Somes Bar. It is also the site where, for three consecutive years growing up, my extended family made an annual pilgrimage for a certain type of water.

Maybe some of our attraction to northern California was that the tumult of our family catastrophes did not seem to follow us here. We came south two states, as vacationers, and pretended that sobriety and financial stability were our family's normal. Even looking back two decades later, those years still mark the best times our larger family had together.

Every August, we would pile into my uncle's gray van, as big as a small school bus, and bake for 10 hours as we drove down the five through Oregon. In some ways, the heat and stench of this trip—13 of us on laminate seats with no air-conditioning—only heightened our anticipation. We could picture the creek perfectly in our minds and would debate, with flourishing detail, the exact dares each cousin had to perform that year off the canyon wall.

Although we spent the occasional vacation day floating down the dark green Klamath in cheap yellow rafts, the real jewel—what kept us coming back year after year—was the creek right beside our campground. Part of this creek's magic was its improbability. Tucked away in a pocket of old prospectors' claims, the water cut open dry boulders and ran so clear you could spot each individual stone along the bottom.

The swimming hole for the camp was accessed by a single dusty path that snaked down the side of a gully. At the bottom, two enormous rocks, one flat, one round, jutted out over the widest part of the creek. This was where the sunbathers would lie in the afternoons—disinterested locals who provided the perfect audience for our stunting, since only the most dangerous acts would rouse them. Each year we would race down to the water, strip to our trunks, and launch ourselves in before we could think of how cold the water was.

The canyon wall on the far side of the creek rose well over 100 feet. If you followed an ascending line of irregular cracks, you could reach a tiered outcrop and look down 50 feet into a blanket of river stones. The water surface was invisible at that height, so when you jumped, you had the thrill of leaping to your death. Each vacation, we would worry about the water levels in this pool, afraid that this year we would not be able to outjump our previous records because the creek would be too low.

It's funny that now, in my professional life, I continue to track California water levels as they progress throughout the year, using this information to prepare various water supply contingencies for our district. I follow reservoir volumes across the state and keep tabs on river flows in the usual suspects -- Sacramento and San Joaquin, as well as their major tributaries, Feather, Mokelumne, Tuolumne, Stanislaus, and Merced.

The Klamath River is too far north to be of interest to our district, and Dillon Creek is probably too small to rate for any water district. Yet, when I think of the bounty of California water, it is always Dillon Creek that comes to mind. I can picture the creek today just as vividly as when I was a boy -- coming around its final bend, splitting boulders effortlessly.

Walk & Roll
in their Neighborhoods

SUBMITTED BY MAISHA EVERHART

Although it may look a bit different than in years past, thousands of Alameda County school students will enjoy the health benefits of walking, riding, rolling, and/or scooting around their neighborhoods during International Walk and Roll Week, October 19-23. In response to schools continuing to implement distanced learning, the annual event, which has traditionally been International Walk and Roll to School Day, will be a week-long celebration. Throughout the week, students, their families, and teachers will participate in an array of activities. Students who track their participation will be eligible to win prizes.

International Walk and Roll Week is organized by Alameda County's Safe Routes to Schools (SR2S) Program, which works in schools across Alameda County to encourage walking and biking to and from school and teaches walking and biking safety.

Organized around daily themes, the week's activities will be aimed at encouraging physical activity and healthy habits through safe biking, rolling, and walking behavior. It will also be a chance for students to celebrate their school and community spirit from their own neighborhood.

Participating students and families will be able to use an International Walk and Roll Week passport for students to track their walking and rolling throughout the week; for convenience, both hard copy and online versions of the passport are available. Students and families submit the passport, students and families will be entered into a drawing for a chance to win prizes.

Below are the themes for each day of International Walk and Roll Week:

Monday: Explore your neighborhood

Tuesday: Show off colorful and kooky socks on your walk or roll!

Wednesday: Dress up as your favorite character from a book!

Thursday: Put on your silliest hat and take it for a spin!

Friday: Be kind to the environment – identify three trees on your street.

Participants are encouraged to take photos and videos from the event and post them on their school's website and/or on social media using the hashtags #WalkandRollWeek and #WalktoSchoolDay.

H.A.R.D. CHOICES NOVEMBER 3 ELECTION

Four candidates are running for three HARD board seats in the November 3 election. Incumbents Lou Andrade and Rick Hatcher (both voted against any humane changes in HARD's rodeo policy); newcomers Peter Rosen and Joshua Kelton. Contact all for their positions on animal welfare issues, then vote accordingly.

Peter Rosen - peter@peterrosen4HARD.org

Joshua Kelton - jekelton@teamkelton.com

ROSEN/KELTON STATEMENTS

As you heard me state during the recent Hayward Democrat Endorsement meeting, I believe that the BOS banned the wrong event. Mutton Busting, as I have personally seen at the Rowell Ranch Rodeo, is not the brutal event that I had heard about and seen videos about. I was surprised that they focused on banning this event instead of the Wild Cow Milking. Regardless of what I believe, the Rodeo grounds need to continue to be operated in a safe, legal manner, and they must follow the rules as determined by the local authorities. I believe that the Rodeo grounds are underutilized and there is a huge opportunity to do more with this location. Some possible uses could include holding outdoor concerts with food and etc, hosting summer camps for kids, and creating an animal rehabilitation/learning center like Sulphur Creek. The site has so much potential, and I am open exploring all options for the site.

Regards,
Peter Rosen

If elected, I would reopen and fully review this issue in detail. I know that I do not believe HARD should donate the property to another organization, but should manage it in a more ethical manner. If anything, the property is wildly under utilized for community events. Education oriented programs, like Ag Day, are just the tip of the iceberg. The District has a large network of agencies it can work with to bring more education events/programming to the area, without losing the property. In recent years the District has been able to rehabilitate large swaths of shoreline for animals and has a functioning animal hospital for injured wildlife at Sulphur Creek. Personally, I feel animal abuse is blatantly wrong and a shame on humanity. What falls under abuse is too often subjective to the individual. Any decision made by the board would affect, not only the Rowell Rodeo, but all cultural events that occur on premises. This would include the Bill Pickett Rodeo and Black Cowboy events, as well as local Latino rodeos. Tradition is important, but change is always certain. There is a way to meet an amicable solution if we all TRULY worked together. Velle Est Posse. [Travis: "Where there's a will, there's a way."]

Being Authentic at Work

COUNSELING CORNER

By ANNE CHAN, PhD, MFT

It may seem strange to talk about authenticity at work when the workplace might be the very last place on earth where you can feel truly authentic. Workplaces tend to have many unwritten rules for standards of behavior, including what is appropriate to talk about.

In some instances, the CEO and upper management set the tone for company values and standards. You might not adhere to these values but are nevertheless powerless to say anything about it. Perhaps your organization's culture is cutthroat and uber competitive. In your heart, you despise the work culture and the way the management operates, but you feel pressured to join in company rallies and act like a go-getter, even though you secretly want to run as far away from the company as possible.

Even the clothing you wear can be dictated by the workplace. If your company goes for the buttoned up corporate look, you probably will not be wearing your red pants to work, even if it's the most prized article of clothing in your wardrobe.

Perhaps you are heavily involved in the "Black Lives Matter" movement, and you spend all your weekends devoted to BLM work. How do you respond when your colleagues casually ask, "How was your weekend?"

Parents often feel hamstrung at work. You might feel that your children mean everything to you and that they are the #1 priority in your life. But you are afraid to talk about your children because your colleagues and boss might judge you as being less committed to work.

Authenticity is about being yourself, living out your true values, and not putting on a false front. Some things might be confused with authenticity, but for the purposes of this discussion, it is helpful to discern authenticity from other issues. For instance, you may have trouble speaking up at meetings and getting your voice heard – this may not be a problem with authenticity but may be due to shyness or a lack of assertiveness.

Being authentic is not about blurting out what is on your mind and saying anything regardless of the impact on someone else. Someone snarky might say, "I'm being authentic when I tell you that you look fat." Do not be fooled by statements like these. This stance is not about authenticity; rather it is about being a jerk.

Authenticity is about being who you are and living your core values. Core values tend not to change over time and may be connected to your religious convictions, political affiliations, and cultural values. It takes up a lot of energy to pretend to be who we are not. You are likely to be a lot more fatigued when you come home. You might even resort to guzzling a few more drinks than you really should. You might have a shorter fuse with your kids and partner. All of this can lead to depression, anxiety, and increased stress.

Conversely, researchers have shown that when we are our true selves at work, our lives feel more meaningful and fulfilling. Those of us who are lucky enough to feel authenticity have lower levels of depression, stress, and anxiety. Work is also more engaging and feels more satisfying.

Take a self-inventory and ask yourself: "What is my true self?" It might be helpful for you to think about five adjectives that describe your true, best self. Now ask yourself how you can be more authentic at work. For example, if "kind" is one of your adjectives, consider how you can be kind at work. This will get you to figuring out how you can be more of your authentic self at work.

Remember that authenticity does not mean that you are 100 percent authentic, 100 percent of the time. You can choose certain venues for expressing some of your values (e.g. church, temple, or mosque) but not others. Of course, certain things are not appropriate to bring up at work, but this does not mean that you can't bring some authentic pieces of yourself to work occasionally.

Seed money from city, corporate donations provides ready cash to businesses

By J.D. FLATEN

FREMONT ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Cafes, salons, and other personal-touch businesses have taken an especially brutal hit during this economic downturn thanks to months of COVID-19 keeping people home. Many of these businesses' loyal customers miss their familiar shops, but financial resources are often strained for them, too.

One way for Fremont residents to support their favorite small businesses and get a little extra is through the innovative Gift Fremont program. If one buys a gift card valued at $20 or more, a bonus $5 is added; cards valued at $40 or more come with a $15 bonus. Customers can use both the gift card and the bonus, or gift them to someone else – it's all online, using transferrable electronic codes.

The City of Fremont launched Gift Fremont in partnership with eGift card platform Yiftee and the Fremont Chamber of Commerce. Since the program's May 21 start date, people have so far purchased nearly a thousand gift cards. "The community has really embraced it," said Tina Kapoor, Fremont Economic Development manager.

Kapoor, who created Gift Fremont, said it has already generated almost $26,000 to several independent area businesses. There are 43 businesses on the site now, with more joining as the word gets out. Merchant offerings include tea houses, pizza, beer, hair services, fitness, food, clothing, jewelry and more. Businesses are encouraged to participate and can set up their profile in minutes at GiftFremont.com.

When the shelter-in-place orders came in March, Kapoor and her team knew that small, independent businesses – particularly those who rely on "in-person" transactions – would suffer when their doors were ordered shut. "We brainstormed as to how could we really help small businesses engage their customers," she said. Gift Fremont was developed to encourage people to think locally and to give small businesses much-needed immediate relief. They also established a Small Business Hotline (510-284-4020) that provides businesses guidance and resources.

Kapoor and her team built the program so it would be easy and accessible for businesses. "There's no cost to a business to sign up for it, and the City has been able to absorb the merchant fees," she said. The revenue goes to the business as soon as the gift card is purchased, which is not typical for gift cards. "Usually the money is generated for the business as the card is used, but we designed the program so businesses immediately get the financial support," Kapoor said. Redemption is contactless, and the codes never expire, a benefit to customers.

Another benefit to businesses is the marketing support that comes with the program. "Some businesses do a great job and already have a team in place," Kapoor said. "We are helping bring awareness and exposure to other businesses who might have limited marketing budgets while giving them an ecommerce experience."

Gift Fremont's success has prompted several cities across the Bay Area and beyond to contact Fremont to learn about the program and set up their own versions.

Back in May, seed money ($5,000) from the city helped kick-start the program. Corporate donations, including a $10,000 infusion from Facebook and $5,000 each from Crossroads Shopping Center and Seagate, will help the program continue longer than originally planned, Kapoor said. As of early October, Gift Fremont has already seen a 300% return on initial investment and is expected to contribute approximately $75,000 to the small business community, according to the most recent Fremont.Gov newsletter.

Justice Transformation
creates new protections for youth*

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF FREMONT HUMAN SERVICES DEPARTMENT

City of Fremont, Human Services Department's Youth & Family Services Division and Police Department have been partnering for more than 40 years to provide diversion programs to youth who commit first time illegal offenses to help divert these youth from the Juvenile Justice System and provide them with early crisis intervention. As a founding member of the Alameda County Probation Department's juvenile Delinquency Prevention Network, the City has also provided crisis intervention, counseling and family support services to youth being diverted and youth on Probation supervision. Youth and Family Services Clinical Counseling team, Substance Use Counselors and the Family Resource Center's Case Managers have worked tirelessly to provide innovative, confidential and youth focused diversion services for youth and their families.

Confidentiality and protection for youth around diversion related records has been and will continue to be a cornerstone of the policies and procedures applied to the program in accordance with the passage of AB 2425, new legislation protecting the confidentiality and record sealing of Police Diversion Records. This legislation ensures that youth who are diverted from the juvenile justice system when they come into contact with law enforcement, or who are referred by the Probation Department, are protected from negative consequences of having a police department related record.

Additionally, in alignment with AB 901, which supports a new vision for youth development and system diversion, the City's Youth and Family Services Division, is working closely with the Alameda County Probation Department to design and implement trauma focused and evidence based cognitive behavioral programs that help reduce the social and emotional consequences to youth (and their families) that have come into contact with Probation and law enforcement.

Deal provides county schools staff with COVID-19 testing

SUBMITTED BY
MICHELLE SMITH McDONALD

Alameda County Superintendent of Schools L. Karen Monroe reached an agreement, announced October 14, that will provide access to screening testing services for the staff of the county's 18 TK-12 public school districts, court and community schools run by the Alameda County Office of Education (ACOE) and 12 charter schools authorized by ACOE.

The agreement with California-based Curative, Inc. provides districts and schools with an option to provide testing to school staff. It is another significant step in assisting districts as they put reopening plans in place following the announcement by the Alameda County Public Health Department (ACPHD) that elementary schools (TK-6) may consider reopening across the county beginning the second week of October. The self-administered, oral-fluid swab COVID-19 tests will deliver test results within 48 hours and will allow schools and districts to test staff at regular intervals.

"Being able to secure testing for our school districts has been one of my highest priorities," said Monroe. "The transition to bring students and staff back to schools, while taking all possible safety measures, brings with it substantial barriers, particularly for our public school districts. Testing has been a significant priority for our teachers, staff and school leaders alike, and this agreement serves to eliminate a critical barrier monitoring the health and safety of our staff. I am proud we were able to offer this option for our schools at little to no additional cost. We also know we have more work to do."

Public school districts face specific challenges in reopening due to the size, scope and complexity of returning large numbers of students and staff to classrooms. Implementing screening testing for staff is among the biggest challenges.

Following criteria laid out in California's Blueprint for a Safer Economy, schools are allowed to open when a county moves into the "Red Tier" based on a formula of daily case rates and positive testing rates. When Alameda County entered the Red Tier on September 22, ACHPD announced it would permit a phased reopening of schools beginning with the elementary grade levels, and will consider reopening dates for schools serving students in grades 7-12 in four to 12-week phases as local disease conditions allow. Schools may also bring back students at any grade level under the state's Small Cohort Guidance in order to serve their students of highest need in small group settings.

The contract with Curative, which has operational labs in Los Angeles, Washington, D.C. and Austin, Texas, comes at little or no cost to districts. Insurance providers, which are legally required by the state to provide testing to essential workers, will be billed for the tests. Testing is recommended for school employees by ACPHD and the California Department of Public Health at regular intervals. ACPHD is recommending that staff be tested once a month. Schools and districts may opt to test more often.

Producers Susan E. Evans and Scott Munson, are thrilled to announce the premiere performances of five new short plays: The Informer by Christine U'Ren; I'm With Her and The People Upstairs by Scott Munson; Judicial Process by Reg Clay; and Judith by Denmo Ibrahim – forming the first contributions to The Private Life of the (Not So) Master Race.

Inspired by Bertolt Brecht's 1938 documentary portrait Fear and Misery of the Third Reich, the plays will have three live virtual performances October 27, 28, and 29. Tickets are free, at thebrechtproject.org, with suggested $10-50 donations welcomed.

Why now? Fear and Misery of the Third Reich by Bertolt Brecht was one of the first documentary theatre pieces. Brecht asked the world: "How did this happen? How did Germany come to be ruled by the National Socialist dictatorship? How are the people's actions or inactions allowing the regime to thrive? How and when will Resistance manifest?" Our playwrights transport these same questions to 21st century America.

In the stories, a couple dreads where their son's loyalties may lie (The Informer); a Trump supporter bullies and tricks a worker (I'm With Her); man is not his neighbor's keeper if they happen to be "illegals" (The People Upstairs); a Judge faces an impossible case (Judicial Process); and a Jewish woman remembers her family's journey (Judith).

The five playlets are directed by Susan E. Evans, assisted by Kimberly Ridgeway; and the Brecht Project ensemble is comprised of 12 performers (four of whom appeared in Eastenders Repertory Company's 2007 production of Fear and Misery) -- some are local, some hail from far afield: Benjamin Boucvalt, April Deutschle, Damaris Divito, Carolyn Doyle, Tim Holt Jones, Aaron Royce Jones, Suzan A Kendall, Francis Koll, Gene Mocsy, Tom Reilly, Kimberly Ridgeway, and Sharon Shao.

Former Washington and Kennedy vice principal celebrates 100th birthday

SUBMITTED BY MICHELLE STONE

A communitywide, happy birthday goes out to longtime Fremont resident and former Washington and John F. Kennedy high school instructor Roy Snyder, who celebrated his 100th birthday on October 15.

Snyder, a father of six children, World War II veteran, and a local resident since the 1960s, served in such roles as teacher, dean, vice-principal, activities director, and baseball coach at Washington and Kennedy high schools from 1962 until his retirement in 1985.

Born October 15, 1920, in Longswamp, Pennsylvania, Snyder joined the U.S. Army after his high school graduation and served until 1941. But when World War II began, he re-enlisted, this time with the U.S. Air Force, according to his family, which includes his children, Gail, Linda, Roy Jr., Gary, Penny, and Carol.

Snyder's service took him from England to North Africa to Italy where during a mission on December 19, 1943, his plane was shot down and he was taken prisoner by German forces. Snyder and his fellow POWs were transferred to Austria before they were eventually liberated by American forces and sent home to the United States in 1945.

Through the GI bill, he graduated with an English degree from Moravian College in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania and later earned a master's degree in history from Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Married with a growing family, Snyder worked as an educator at schools in Montana and Arizona before moving to Fremont in 1962 and beginning his two-decade-plus career at Washington and Kennedy. His wife Charlotte, whom he married in 1946, died in 2010.

Trend-Setting Daffodils for Gardens and Bouquets

BY MELINDA MYERS
OF LONGFIELD-GARDENS.COM

Daffodils are having their day. Floral designers are opening our eyes to a world of gorgeous daffodils that extends far beyond the iconic yellow trumpets. These unexpected varieties include doubles, bi-colors, and split cups, in colors such as creamy white, peach, pink, gold, and orange. Plant the bulbs in fall to see these beauties emerge in your spring garden. Then enjoy how they elevate all your spring bouquets.

A benefit of planting some of these more unusual varieties is being able to stretch the daffodil season. Be sure to include some early bloomers such as miniature Tete-a-Tete. Another early bloomer is Barrett Browning. This heirloom variety's orange-red cup has a yellow halo at the base, set off by bright white petals. Silver Smiles is a subtle beauty; a cluster of two or three little flowers tops each stem. Greenish-white petals surround a pale-yellow cup that fades to buff and then white.

Pink-cupped daffodils have been around for almost 100 years, yet are still relatively unusual. Grow them in filtered sunlight to accentuate their color. Blushing Lady has yellow petals and a flared, salmon-pink cup. Turn up the pink even more with Pink Pride. Another early-blooming variety, it features a ruffled cup that opens apricot and gradually turns coral pink.

As early daffodils begin to fade, midseason varieties take center stage. This is the time for split corona and double daffodils. Both types work well with the more traditional daffodils, while adding flair to gardens and arrangements.

Instead of a trumpet, the cup of a split corona daffodil is split into sections. These split cups may be ruffled or pleated and often lie flat against the outer petals. One of the showiest split cup daffodils is Cum Laude. Its white petals frame a frilly, peachy-yellow cup with a green eye. Include other split-cup varieties such as Cassata, with a delicate ruffled yellow split cup and white petals, or Lemon Beauty with a star-like yellow cup set against white petals. Can't decide? Plant a split-cup assortment to find your favorites.

Close out the season with double daffodils. Their fluffy flowers resemble roses, and most varieties are fragrant. Delnashaugh (longfield-gardens.com) is one of the most impressive doubles. Its enormous, 4-inch flowers feature layers of frilly white and peach-pink petals. Tahiti is just as large, with soft yellow petals and red-orange ruffles.

Two of the latest bloomers are also two of the most fragrant: Cheerfulness and Yellow Cheerfulness. Each stem is topped with a mini bouquet of three or four little rose-like flowers, each the size of a cherry tomato. They are incredibly beautiful and extremely long-lasting.

In a vase, daffodils can essentially arrange themselves. The more flower forms and colors you include, the better. Have a little more time? Add a few stems of forsythia or curly willow and some other spring favorites such as bleeding heart, tulips, and hyacinths.

The stems of freshly cut daffodils release a clear sap that can shorten the life of other flowers. Conditioning your daffodils is easy and eliminates this risk. Cut the stems to the final length and stand them in a clean container of cool water for four to six hours. After that, they can be combined with tulips and other blooms. Just remember to not recut the stems.

Nothing says spring like a yellow trumpet daffodil. But with so many other flower styles and colors to choose from, why not stretch your boundaries and discover some new favorites?

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: OCTOBER 18, 2020

All Signs: The week ahead looks great. Venus in Virgo will relate beautifully to the trio of planets now in Capricorn, which is a welcome relief. Everyone will feel a shift when the Sun moves into Scorpio for four weeks. This will make people feel more passionate and intense about everything.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20): During the next four weeks, your feelings will be more intense; however, this might help you focus on what needs to be done because this month, you're concerned with joint finances, shared property and the wealth of a spouse or partner. Mercury retrograde will help you wrap up this stuff to such an extent that you will be surprised at how quickly things will get done. In no small measure, this will be assisted by the influences of Venus with the Capricorn trio, which will give you a mind that is steady and capable of handling details as well as a desire for practical results.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20): This week the Sun moves opposite your sign to stay for the next four weeks. This happens only once a year, and when it occurs, among other things, it means you will need more sleep. However, this polarized position of the Sun will give you more objectivity so that you can better understand the subtle ramifications of your closest relationships. Meanwhile, issues related to kids, sports, vacations, arts, and social outings will be practical and beneficial to you. Good time to make future vacation plans!

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20): This week ushers in a four-week window where you are revved up to work smart and work hard. You want to make every action count. Fear not -- all it takes is motivation, and because you have the desire to do this, you will see concrete results and will accomplish a lot in the next four weeks. Incidentally, this high standard that you are setting for yourself will also apply to your health. Meanwhile, this week issues at home and relations with family member will be much better.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21): It's good news for you because this week, the Sun moves into your fellow Water Sign of Scorpio. This occurs twice a year about four months before and after your birthday. This is a beneficial connection because it will help give you balance and equilibrium in your life. In addition, this four-week window will be more lighthearted and more fun-loving. Plus, your ability to concentrate will improve this week as will your communication style.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22): As the Sun shifts into Scorpio this week, it will increase your focus on home, family, and your private life for the next four weeks. You will be most comfortable to be at home among familiar surroundings. Memories of your youth and early family days will return. Some of you will be more involved with a parent. All this private rumination might reveal how past behavior patterns are no longer appropriate. This week, you will be sensible about money and possessions. Lucky Leos will see ways to boost their earnings.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22): This week is the beginning of a four-week window where your daily pace will accelerate because of a busy schedule. Expect some delays and silly frustrations because Mercury retrograde is still in the picture creating transportation problems and mixed-up communications. Mercury retrograde will also attract relatives, siblings, and people from your past back into your world. Fortunately, Venus in your sign is beautifully supported by Saturn, Pluto, and Jupiter, which means you will be productive, focused, efficient, and quite joyful.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22): This week ushers in a four-week window where your focus on money, earnings, assets, and your wealth in general will be stronger. You will be more interested in everything that you own. You might want to show something off. You will want to establish greater control in your life through what you own. Meanwhile, privately, you will enjoy study, research and discovering new knowledge that is enlightening and edifying. Study and research will reward you.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21): This week the Sun moves into your sign to stay for the next four weeks. This happens only once a year and when it does it is great because it boosts your energy and gives you a chance to recharge your batteries. Plus, it attracts people and favorable situations to you. Meanwhile, Mercury retrograde will attract ex-partners and people from your past back into your world. Meanwhile, this week is lovely for friendships and relations with people in groups and organizations. Someone older might have good advice for you. Others will help and support you in practical and generous ways.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21): Because your birthday looms ahead, this means your personal year is ending. Therefore, set aside time in the next four weeks to think about what you want for your new year ahead. This will be the perfect time to define goals, especially since you are a forward-thinking sign. Meanwhile, this week, someone older or more experienced might give you excellent advice that might help you. Your interactions with a group will be positive in a practical way, as well as uplifting.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19): This week the Sun changes signs for the next four weeks, which has the effect of making you more popular, more in touch with friends, and more interactive with clubs and organizations. You will also have a stronger interest in making goals and thinking about how you can translate your hopes and dreams for the future from the abstract to the concrete. Meanwhile, this week is perfect for study, exploring new philosophies and ideas, and making travel plans. Some of you might meet a guru-like figure or teacher.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18): This week the Sun moves to the top of your chart to stay for the next four weeks. This can happen only once a year and when it does, symbolically, it means that you are being cast in a flattering spotlight. In turn, this means that other people admire you and see you as competent and capable, even if you do not do anything different. Money and practical support will come to you from other sources and other people. Accept whatever help is offered to you because it could bring you a long-term benefit.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20): Every four weeks, the Sun changes signs and when it does, it creates a new shift in our lives. For the next four weeks, you will want to do whatever you can to broaden your horizons, especially through travel or studies into metaphysics, philosophy, religion, or any discipline that proves to be a positive learning experience for you. Some of you might have a greater involvement with law or medicine. Meanwhile, this is a marvelous week to relate to members of the public, as well as those who are closest to you because Venus is opposite your sign dancing beautifully with Jupiter, Pluto, and Saturn.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

Some follow a script while others are spontaneous, but the goal of so-called “reality” shows in many cases is entertainment rather than reliable information. While some, such as physical and mental competitions, may impart useful information, many are designed to highlight exaggerated, abnormal situations, personalities and emotions that bear little resemblance to ordinary and acceptable behavior. For the viewing audience, this reality functions as a relief valve from everyday stress and complicated life choices while satisfying voyeuristic instincts. The audience is able to watch and mentally participate without risk or exposure while others perform for their amusement, accolades or criticism.

Following the antics of eccentric families and individuals can be exciting and amusing if they are easily invited into or just as easily dismissed from our lives. However, when frantic, sometimes erratic patterns become ingrained within daily activities or personal lives, show reality can become dangerously intermingled with personal societal functions. When this happens, consequences can devastate normality, impairing judgement and civility.

The political landscape is awash with reality but of what type? Campaigns often paint glowing, flattering portraits of individuals that have decided to participate in the electoral process as candidates. Irrespective of titles and promises, voters must try to decipher the quality and core values of each candidate behind the hype. These are people, similar to all of us, with strengths, weaknesses and flaws. To expect more or less is unrealistic and can create a dangerous reality show of its own. When elevated or depreciated to improbable heights or depths, distortion can replace normality; resistance becomes a personal challenge to those mired in its grip.

Well financed campaigns study behavioral patterns to augment those favorable to their candidate or issue while using perceived weaknesses to denigrate opposition. Unfortunately, this has become commonplace at the national level and has filtered to the local level as well. Enhancing the image of a preferred candidate is part of the political game, but when “facts” without context are promoted as reasons to reject others, the process ceases to be a legitimate component of a free and open democracy. Deceptive statements and advertisements are simplistic and mask truth under the guise of reality. Instead, they pander to the unabashed entertainment value of naked aggression, conflict, and fear in formulaic television shows or movies... a short-term diversion from the problems and hardships of real life, but a poor long-term substitute.

We do not elect our government representatives for 30-minute segments, produced by a gaggle of professional script writers, designed to grab fleeting attention and, if required, hook the audience for the next segment in a week or so. Our elected officials are asked to constantly and consistently confront and attempt to solve serious issues that have lasting consequences. Easy solutions and witty quips to distract from root causes will not substitute for thoughtful and rational consideration that take as many ideas as possible into account. In the end, we rely on those elected to act as stabilizers when seas are rough and emotions high. Those who have remained as steady influences for ourselves and our community, even if all decisions do not align with our own judgement, deserve support. These are not reality show actors, rather real people with many different attitudes and desires competing for their attention and actions.

We may not agree with every decision made, but confidence in the process, attention and judgement of our elected representatives is essential. If complacency by either those elected or the electorate sets in, a fragile balance between them can be disrupted to a breaking point. It is our job as constituents to support those who have remained true to their commitments and, without rancor, ask others to replace them when they have not.

Incumbency in an election is not a free pass to reelection nor a pardon for past misdeeds, but rather an opportunity to congratulate and reward those who have served honorably and continue to hold the trust and faith of their communities. In balance, challengers with new ideas and approaches hold the promise of vital discussion and reexamination of problems and solutions as well.

This is a reality show that affects everyone, every day. Your attention and vote is critical to a strong and vibrant democracy.

Construction begins on new fire training center and fire station

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF HAYWARD

Hayward and Chabot-Las Positas Community College District have begun construction on a new regional Fire Training Center and Fire Station #6 to serve neighborhoods and industrial areas near Hayward Executive Airport.

Barricaded felon surrenders to police negotiators

SUBMITTED BY CAPTAIN
JONATHAN ARGUELLO,
NEWARK PD

Neighbors in a quiet Newark residential neighborhood were asked to shelter in place or evacuate their homes early Thursday, October 15 as Newark Police Department officers and negotiators tried to coax a suspected felon barricaded inside a residence to surrender.

The incident started at about 8:40 a.m. when patrol officers attempted to contact a man who was wanted on a felony firearms arrest warrant and parole violations at a home located in the 6100 block of Castillon Drive. Police identified the man as Jaray Washington, 38, of Newark and considered him armed and dangerous.

When Washington refused to come out of the home, members of the Newark and Union City Police Department's Crisis Negotiation teams (CNT) along with members of their Special Weapons and Tactics teams (SWAT) were sent to the scene. Meanwhile, officers evacuated two adult women and two children, ages 7 and 17 from the home. Additionally, neighboring residents were asked to either shelter-in-place or evacuate from nearby homes.

After nine hours of coordinated efforts between the units, the specially trained CNT police officers were able to convince Washington to exit the residence and surrender to SWAT officers. He was taken into custody at about 5:49 p.m. No one was injured.

During the investigation, an associate of Washington's, identified by police as Gerrick Waller, 28, of Oakland, was also arrested for having a no-bail arrest warrant for a parole violation related to felony criminal threats and firearms violations.

Washington faces charges of having a felony, no bail arrest warrant for second degree robbery and a felony arrest warrant for being a felon in possession of a firearm. The Newark Police Department plans to seek additional charges of resisting, delaying or obstructing a peace officer and prohibited felon in possession of ammunition.

‘Vegas Loop’
people mover proposed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A company nearing completion of a short underground motorway for electric cars at the expanded Las Vegas Convention Center wants to widen its scope and build a people mover tunnel system beneath the Las Vegas Strip.

Billionaire entrepreneur Elon Musk's tunneling operator, called The Boring Co., dubs the project the “Vegas Loop.” It would drill underground from downtown Las Vegas, beneath the Las Vegas Boulevard resort corridor to the newly opened Allegiant Stadium, a distance of about 7 miles (11.25 kilometers), according to an Oct. 13 presentation to the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority.

A connection to McCarran International Airport is also being considered, the Las Vegas Review-Journal reported. No cost projections were disclosed by authority CEO Steve Hill and Boring Co. President Steve Davis. But they said taxpayer dollars would not be used and passenger stations would be paid for by property owners. They said the company is seeking a city permit and will submit plans to Clark County.

The concept includes a loop of about 15 miles (24.15 kilometers), with perhaps 50 stations where passengers would board self-driving electric Tesla vehicles. Passenger fares have not yet been determined.

Boring Co. has spent about a year drilling the $52.5 million Convention Center people mover, which has three stations along parallel 1-mile (1.6 kilometer) tunnels connecting exhibit halls and parking at the sprawling conference facility just east of the Strip.

It is expected to open by the end of the year to provide trips of less than two minutes for conventioners in 16-passenger Tesla vehicles. The convention authority plans to make trips free.

Davis and Hill have in the past floated the idea of a wider transit system similar to the Convention Center project that would be built and operated as a commercial venture by Boring, the Review-Journal reported. The system would function as an underground ride-hailing system with passengers taken point-to-point to destinations, instead of a subway system with station stops.

Musk co-founded and leads Tesla, the private rocket company SpaceX and the human-computer interface firm Neuralink.

Center receives AARP grant

FROM HUMAN SERVICES DEPARTMENT NEWSLETTER

The Age Well Center at South Fremont has been named a recipient of a 2020 AARP Community Challenge grant, one of just eight grantees selected in California.

AARP's Challenge Grant will specifically be used to provide “farm to table” fresh vegetables in its own backyard with construction of 10 huge planter boxes and a new garden shed. Members of the Age Well Center enjoy planting and growing fresh vegetables in this spacious outdoor environment. Produce from the garden will be used to support both the Center's delicious and nutritious meal program, which is cooked on site, as well as provide fresh produce for senior gardeners who will manage the food project.

Bernard Blueford Sr.

Resident of Fremont

September 30, 1932 – October 5, 2020

Bernard Blueford Sr. passed away on October 5, 2020 at the age of 88. Beloved husband of almost 50 years to Joyce Blueford and loving father to Barbara Martinez (Jose), Linda Baca (Donel), and Bernard Blueford Jr. from a previous marriage to Sammie Blueford. Born in Oak Ridge, Louisiana on Sept 30, 1932 to Luke and Jerlin Blueford. His early life was one of hardship and poverty. His mother would always tease him that if it had not rained the night before, he would have been born in a cottonfield.

He was brought up in the segregated south and the school for blacks was 5 miles away. Most of the time he had to help the family as a sharecropper tending the cottonfields at an early age. Bernard was one of 7 children that grew to adults and his father was told to leave the farm by the plantation owner. He got his first pair of shoes at 12, walking with potato sacks wrapped on his feet. He had not learned how to read or write, and always was in awe of a black man in the community, who could read a paper, and vowed to himself that one day he will be able to read.

Bernard arrived in California in 1951, and it was like coming to the promised land. He finally would go to school to learn how to read and write starting at age 21 while starting a new family. It took him another 4 years to finally learn how to read, and a few more years to get his high school diploma. His AA degree from Ohlone College in 1981 was a milestone that he thought he would never achieve. Throughout his early life he owned a grocery store and Papa's Record store in Oakland, while working full time.

He worked for General Motors for 30 years, first in Oakland and then in the newly built plant in Fremont (1962). He worked in the paint department and became foreman. Bernard was known throughout GM as an employee who would come up with money saving ideas. GM would give employees a percentage of the cost savings. Then in an unusual move for GM, he became a time study engineer, because of his innate ability with numbers and love of efficiency. In 1974 he moved to Fremont with his wife, Joyce, and has lived there ever since.

After he retired from GM with 30 years, he started a new career with one of his loves, cars. He became a used car dealer in San Leandro called “Bluefords Cars” having a 200 car lot. He was noted as a dealer with honest and integrity and had many family customers. He would also carry his own loans, making it affordable for people. He closed the car lot after 20 years so he could take care of his aging mother Jerlin, who passed at 97.

Bernard then decided to open up another car lot in Fremont to help pay for a new commercial building to house the Math Science Nucleus, a nonprofit devoted to science education for children founded by his wife, Joyce. Bernard's love for education helped support the many initiatives that MSN sponsored. California State Senator, Robert Wiecekowski commented that “Bernard was the best landlord – ever.”

Bernard traveled with his wife on many adventures around the world including Europe, Russia, and Africa, helping scientists and children. He enjoyed their home in Ponza, Italy where they would spend many vacations with his father-in-law, Alfonso Raia.

Bernard is survived by 5 grandchildren Kimberly and Kelly Martinez (deceased), Danielle and Dorel Baca, and Stephon Blueford and 7 great grandchildren. He is survived by 1 brother, Edward and preceded by 1 brother, Harmon(Leola) and 4 sisters: Bertha Williams, Bell Bullock, Jerline Williams, and Genieve Fowler). He will join his friend of 40 years, Walt Fries, for morning coffee.

Resident of Tracy

July 2, 1964 – October 7, 2020

On Wednesday, October 7th, 2020, Rick Davis, loving husband, father and friend passed away at home with his wife, Vickie, by his side at the age of 56.

Rick was born in Lincoln, Nebraska on July 2nd, 1964. He spent the majority of his life residing in different bay area cities before landing in Tracy, CA where he, along with his wife, fulfilled their shared dream of becoming homeowners.

Rick enjoyed operating and customizing vehicles of all types. You could always tell when something was his just by how clean and unique it was. He took pride in owning and maintaining his vehicles as he worked very hard to earn each and every one of them. It could be a dirt bike, motorcycle, powerboat, jet ski, heavy construction equipment or semi-truck, there wasn't a vehicle on the roads or in the water that he couldn't operate. He shared this passion with all of his loved ones and could often be found in the summer months out on New Melones Lake with his wife ripping away on their jet skis.

His passion was also his career as he held a Class A commercial drivers license that enabled him to drive anything that came his way. He willingly embraced learning new skills and never shied away from a challenge. While in Tracy, he took his career into a new direction and became an Electronic Maintenance Technician III for the Defense Depot. While at the Defense Depot he still maintained a second job where he was able to leverage his Class A license from time to time and get behind the wheel, a place he always felt comfortable. Rick worked hard, always making the impossible, possible, but never for himself. He was selfless beyond measure and always wanted his children and family to have more than he was allotted growing up. He achieved this in many ways and rightfully considered it to be one of his greatest successes.

Rick made friends everywhere he went; he always had a guy or someone for any and everything. His charismatic and generous personality was infectious and hard to resist. He loved to love and bravely bared his heart to the world around him. He was authentic, one of one and will be sorely missed.

Rick is survived by his greatest love, his wife, Vickie and children Christopher, Antoinette and Ricky; their spouses Angela and Ann; grandchildren Aiden, Colton, Julius and Marlowe; his four legged pals Cuddles and Chloe, mother in law and father in law, the Gordon's, his brother and sister-in-laws the Angeles's, San Pedro's and Bombon's as well as his many nieces, nephews and his closest friends that he was a father or brother to.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

COVID rules should be strict

In my opinion, Fremont should have stricter rules regarding COVID. Although I do agree that COVID cases are starting to decrease, I disagree that we should be starting to reopen small businesses around town. Just take a look at Italy for example; at one point of time they had the leading number of COVID cases. When COVID numbers began to decline, they started meeting up again, opening restaurants and businesses. Now COVID is back on the rise again. I am worried that this may happen in Fremont. If Fremont really wants to support small businesses, I feel they should support them monetary-wise, but keep them closed for the sake of our people.

National Drug Take Back Day

SUBMITTED BY ALAMEDA COUNTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY OFFICE

On Saturday, October 24, Alameda County District Attorney's (DA) Office will participate in the Drug Take Back Day. Residents can properly and safely dispose of any narcotics, prescription medications, vaping devices and cartridges, and over-the-counter medications. Pet medications will also be accepted. The DA Office will also offer education on prevention of potential drug abuse and overdosing, and proper disposal of medications.

"Please look through your cabinets and drawers for expired or unused medications or vaping products," says District Attorney Nancy O'Malley. "The safe disposal of these drugs serves an important public safety and public health need. Safe disposal reduces the chance that the medications will be misused or abused and ensures that they won't be disposed of in a way that is harmful to the environment."

COVID-19 safety measures will be followed. Face coverings must be worn at all sites by anyone dropping off medications as well as by those staffing the sites. All social distancing guidelines will be adhered to maintain a minimum of 6 feet between individuals.

The service is free and anonymous, no questions asked. For more information, visit www.alcoda.org/newsroom/categories/upcoming_events.

The City of Newark and Newark Chamber of Commerce is launching the Newark eGift Card Marketplace, a one-stop-shop of eGift Card choices for Newark's shops, restaurants, services, and entertainment venues. Residents and companies are invited to purchase the eGift Cards at www.GiftNewark.com to support Newark's local businesses as they weather the COVID-19 storm.

The Newark eGift Card Marketplace puts people just a click away from the unique local chefs, shops, and vendors that make the Newark community special. Anyone can buy and send the virtual gift card instantly to friends, family, employees, or even for yourself. It works electronically as a contactless solution with no hard copy or touch requirements with no expiration date.

As further incentive, City of Newark is sweetening the deal by offering free bonus gifts: Purchase a $20 eGift and get a $5 bonus. A $40 eGift gets a $15 bonus (while funds last, some limitations apply).

"Newark chose this program because it helps businesses who are suffering in the pandemic and because everyone in our community can safely buy gifts to support our merchants who have been hurting for several months," said Steven Turner, Community Development Director.

"This is the first program that truly benefits small business owners because the small business receives the money directly and immediately without waiting for a third party," said Lion Center property manager Fallon Tran.

"This is a unique opportunity for small businesses in our community to keep their businesses alive," said Richard Lipsit, member of Newark's Chamber of Commerce. "This lets our community show support person by person, shop by shop."

Suspect in fatal Milpitas shooting found dead in Merced County

SUBMITTED BY CAPTAIN JOHN TORREZ, MILPITAS PD

The suspect in the shooting death of a San Jose woman that occurred on Saturday, October 10 outside a Milpitas hotel was found dead in a Merced County hotel room by local authorities on Wednesday, October 14.

Detectives from the Milpitas Police Department (MPD) identified the suspect as Kevin James Gitmed, 35, of Gilroy as the suspect in the death of Causandra Inocencio, 40, at the Hilton Garden Inn on Ranch Drive. The shooting was reported at about 10:16 p.m., but Gitmed had fled the scene by the time officers arrived and found Inocencio on the ground outside the hotel suffering from a gunshot wound. She was taken to a hospital by paramedics where she later died. A regional search for Gitmed started right away on the case which MPD officials said is being investigated as a homicide.

During the evening of October 14, detectives located Gitmed at a hotel in Merced County. With the assistance of the Merced County Sheriff’s Office and United States Marshals Service, detectives served a search and arrest warrant at the hotel. Merced County Sheriff’s Office deputies made announcements requesting Gitmed exit the room and surrender, but they got no response.

Deputies later entered the room and found Gitmed dead. His death is being investigated by the Merced County Sheriff’s Office. Authorities did not specify the name of the hotel or where in Merced County Gitmed was found.

Just before Gitmed was found, police announced that a combined $20,000 reward for information leading to his arrest and conviction was being offered by the Milpitas Police Department and the Milpitas Police Officers’ Association in partnership with the non-profit Mothers Against Murder organization.

Teen arrested, charged in suspected gang shooting

SUBMITTED BY SAN LEANDRO POLICE DEPARTMENT

An 18-year-old man has been arrested in connection with a suspected gang shooting on September 30 in San Leandro.

Police detectives from the San Leandro Police Department, with assistance from officers from the Fremont Police Department, arrested the suspect, identified by police as Colby Demarea Berry on Wednesday, October 13.

The shooting occurred outside a barbershop on the 200 block of Macarthur Blvd. Police believe that when Berry went inside to get a haircut, he recognized another person there as being associated with his rival gang, “ENT.”

When Barry was finished, he walked outside the barbershop and waited for the unknown male to exit. Once the male and an associate walked outside and got into a vehicle, Barry produced a semi-automatic handgun with a high capacity drum magazine and fired four rounds into the vehicle. After firing the rounds, Barry fled the scene. No one was struck or injured by the gunfire.

Detectives immediately began an investigation into the shooting and gathered evidence that ultimately identified Barry as the gunman. When Barry was arrested, police said he had a semi-automatic handgun with a high capacity drum magazine in his possession.

“This arrest was made possible thanks to the dedicated, diligent, and focused work by detectives. We also would like to send a “thank you” to the Fremont Police Department who assisted us by apprehending Barry,” said Lt. Ted Henderson.

On Thursday, October 15 the case against Barry was charged by the Alameda County District Attorney’s Office with shooting into an occupied motor vehicle and other firearm violations. An investigation is continuing. Anyone with additional information about this shooting is asked to contact the San Leandro Police Department at (510) 577-2740.

Team effort nabs robbery suspects

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES, FREMONT PD

With the help of a Fremont police drone, K9 officer and a San Jose Police Department helicopter unit, officers from the Fremont Police Department recently tracked down and arrested two Union City men suspected in at least two armed robberies.

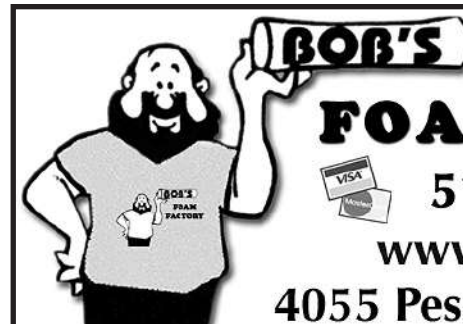

The pursuit started at 10:15 p.m. Monday, October 12 after suspects entered a Shell gas station store on the 42000 block of Mission Blvd. in Fremont and stole cash at gunpoint from an employee. The suspects fled in a red Dodge caravan which officers suspected was involved in another armed robbery on October 11 at the Fast & Easy Mart on the 34000 block of Ardenwood Blvd.

Soon after the Shell robbery, an officer spotted the vehicle on Stevenson Boulevard and started a pursuit. The vehicle was being driven recklessly and eventually crashed at Stevenson and Fremont boulevards. The driver exited the vehicle and attempted to flee on foot but was quickly stopped by K9 Officer Karo. A passenger then moved to the driver’s seat and fled the scene. A community member soon reported seeing the suspect leaving the van at Glenview and Mattos drives and running into the neighborhood. A search of the area using K9 officers, a drone and a helicopter uncovered the suspect hiding in a yard on Mattos Drive where he was taken into custody. During a follow up investigation, a loaded firearm and BB gun were recovered along the pursuit path.

The two suspects arrested were identified by police as Albert Balucan, 27, and Eduardo Garcia, 30, both of Union City. Both were booked at Santa Rita Jail where they face charges of armed robbery, reckless evading, hit and run, and probation violations. Detectives are investigating other possible crimes involving the suspects. Anyone with information is asked to contact Det. Jared Madsen via email at jmadson@fremont.gov or call (510) 790-6900.

Park It

By NED MACKAY

A new 45-acre regional shoreline park is now open at the eastern touchdown of the Bay Bridge, offering spectacular views of San Francisco Bay and the bridge’s new span between Oakland and Yerba Buena Island. The park is named Judge John Sutter Regional Shoreline. Judge Sutter, now retired, had a distinguished career including time as a superior court judge, Oakland’s vice mayor, and member of the Regional Park District board. He is also an environmental leader instrumental in obtaining and preserving public access to the bay shoreline.

Features of the new park include the newly renovated

Bridge Yard building, available for future public events; a walking trail to the recently constructed 600-foot observation pier; and improved parking with bicycle and pedestrian access to the Alex Zuckermann Bay Bridge Trail, which leads out to Treasure Island. The pier was constructed on supports remaining when the new bridge replaced the old earthquake-damaged structure.

From 1903 to 1960, the site of the new park was the base of operations for the Key System electric railway, which transported passengers around the East Bay and to San Francisco via the lower deck of the Bay Bridge. A substation located at the site provided electrical power to all the Key System trains.

The site was also part of the Oakland Army Base, which was a transportation port and distribution terminal for the Pacific region from 1941 until it closed in 1999. The district will receive additional property from the Army.

The 1930s-era Bridge Yard building was the maintenance center for the Key System trains. It will be the activity hub for the park, with interpretive and recreational programming, equipment rentals, food concessionaires, and space for public events and conferences.

The 24,000 square-foot building was renovated by Caltrans and Bay Area Toll Authority and has been leased to the park district by Caltrans. The Bay Conservation and Development Commission and Bay Area Transportation Authority also provided funding.

The park district plans to celebrate the opening with a “virtual” dedication, though with some on-site participants, at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, October 21. For information on how to watch the ceremony online, visit www.ebparks.org.

Robert Doyle, general manager, East Bay Regional Park District, reports that the lightning strikes on August 15 caused major fires in five regional parks: Round Valley, Morgan Territory, Mission Peak, Sunol Wilderness, and Ohlone Wilderness. All were part of the SCU Lightning Complex Fire, which burned almost 397,000 acres, most of it south of Sunol and Ohlone. About 6,000 acres of regional parkland burned.

Doyle notes that the park district has been proactive for years in fire prevention efforts on its lands, especially in places where the regional parks adjoin urban and suburban neighborhoods. Efforts include proper trail and fire road maintenance, and the district’s grazing program. In the East Bay Hills, the district is carrying out an approved Wildfire Hazard Reduction and Resource Management Plan, with funding from FEMA, Measure FF and grants.

We are now in the peak of the fire season when vegetation has been dried by a long hot summer and the rains of winter have not yet arrived. So, the district staff and board are urging everyone to be vigilant, abide by fire-related restrictions, and report any fires or dangerous activities by calling 911.

Everyone’s cooperation is greatly appreciated. Visit the district website www.ebparks.org for up-to-date information on the status of all the regional parks, including fire-related closures, if any.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

SUBMITTED BY
WASHINGTON HOSPITAL

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, an annual campaign to increase awareness of the disease. Other than skin cancer, breast cancer is the most common cancer among American women. Early detection and treatment, however, significantly increases the survival rate of breast cancer patients. Mammograms are the best way to find breast cancer early.

Washington Outpatient Imaging Center is proud to offer Tomosynthesis, or 3D Mammography. This FDA-approved imaging modality is proven to be a more accurate method for detecting early breast cancers compared to traditional 2D mammography alone, especially for women with dense breast tissue. As with all mammograms, patients must first see their care provider, who will order a screening or diagnostic mammogram.

Cancer won’t wait for the pandemic to end — and neither should screenings. That’s why it is critical to put preventive care back on your to-do list. For more information visit: <https://www.whhs.com/Services/Specialized-Programs/Outpatient-Imaging-Center/Digital-Mammography-Services.aspx>.

Throughout October, Washington Hospital will be hosting an online event to raise awareness of breast cancer.

Ask Rusty – Can I Get Social Security with My Municipal Pension?

By CERTIFIED SOCIAL SECURITY ADVISOR
RUSSELL GLOOR
ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS

Dear Rusty: I retired from a municipal fire department seven years ago at the age of 54. It is a private pension, and I was exempt from Social Security while I was working. I receive about $50,000 per year in pension benefits. I recently got a letter from Social Security saying I needed 8 more credits of work to qualify for Social Security benefits. I was wondering if I worked two more years, paying into Social Security, would I qualify for benefits, since I am on a municipal pension? Signed: Retired Fireman

Dear Retired Fireman: Although your municipal fire department pension would reduce your Social Security benefit, it will not eliminate it. So, if you work and earn those additional eight credits you will be entitled to a Social Security benefit.

Because of your non-covered municipal pension, your Social Security benefit will be affected by the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP), which affects anyone who has a pension from an employer which did not participate in Social Security (neither the employee nor the employer paid into Social Security). WEP uses a special benefit computation formula which will result in you getting a smaller benefit, but you will, nevertheless, get some benefit amount if you have accumulated at least 40 quarters of Social Security credit. Note that your SS benefit amount will be further reduced if you claim it at age 62, or any age prior to your full retirement age.

You earn Social Security credits by working in a job where you pay FICA payroll taxes on your earnings, and you can earn a maximum of four SS credits per year. For 2020, you will earn one credit for each $1410 of earnings, up to a maximum of four credits for the year, but you don’t need to work the entire year to get the credits. For example, if you work yet in 2020 and earn $5640 (4 times $1410) you will earn the maximum four credits for this year.

You need a total of 40 quarter credits to become eligible for Social Security, and those credits never expire, so even old credits earned before your Fire Department career still count. And, even if small, this would be a benefit you have earned by contributing to Social Security, so there’s little reason not to pursue it by gaining the needed additional credits.

PUBLIC NOTICE AND SUMMARY OF CITY OF NEWARK ORDINANCE NO. 525 REPEALING AND REPLACING CHAPTERS 15.09 "RESIDENTIAL CODE" AND 15.21 "CALIFORNIA EXISTING BUILDING CODE" IN ORDER TO ADOPT BY REFERENCE, WITH MODIFICATIONS, TO ADDRESS UNIQUE LOCAL CONDITIONS, THE 2019 EDITIONS OF THE CALIFORNIA RESIDENTIAL CODE AND THE CALIFORNIA EXISTING BUILDING CODE.
On September 10, 2020 the Newark City Council introduced an ordinance to repeal and replace Chapter 15.09 (California Residential Code) and Chapter 15.21 (California Existing Building Code) with the code amendments previously approved by the City Council. While the Statement of Findings for all local amendments and these specific code sections were formally listed and approved by ordinance and became legally effective January 12, 2020, the final updated text for these two code sections were inadvertently left out of the ordinance adopted at that time. This additional ordinance formally repeals the existing code sections and replace those code sections with the updated text.
This ordinance was adopted at the regular meeting of the Newark City Council on October 8, 2020. Council Member Hannon moved that it be adopted and passed, which motion was duly seconded, and said ordinance was passed and adopted and ordered a summary published pursuant to Government Code 36933 (c) (1) within 15 days of the date of adoption in The Tri City Voice by the following vote: AYES: Hannon, Bucci, Collazo, Freitas, and Nagy.
The full text of this ordinance is available for public examination on the City website at <https://www.newark.org/departments/city-manager-s-office/agendas-minutes> and posted by the City Hall bulletin board at 37101 Newark Boulevard, California.

Harmony Fusion welcomes singers

SUBMITTED BY HEIDI MASSIE

Harmony Fusion Chorus, a women's cappella barbershop show chorus, will host a virtual open house rehearsal night on Monday, October 26, to welcome new singers. Guests will learn about singing in the barbershop style and singing a song or a "tag" – the close-harmony ending of a song. The open house will also show what being a member of Harmony Fusion Chorus can offer. A chapter of Sweet Adelines International (SAI), Harmony Fusion Chorus is open to female singers as young as high school age.

What can an a cappella chorus do during this COVID-19 pandemic? "Plenty!" says Joanne Morrison, chorus board president. "Although we can't meet in person right now, we are fully engaged in learning new music and honing our skills."
Morrison adds, "We're looking for women who love to sing and are interested in performing, competing, and improving their vocal skills. If you have a good ear for music, we want you. The ability to read music is not required."
Harmony Fusion is using the Zoom platform to meet every Monday evening, with physical and vocal warm-ups, practice in breakout rooms, and lots of music education. Because travel issues are eliminated, it is easier to have guest coaches and educators visit from all over the world. The singers are also working on a virtual chorus video to share with family and friends for the holidays.

To get the Zoom link and to learn more details about the virtual open rehearsal night, email info@harmonyfusion.org or visit www.harmonyfusion.org.

‘Day on the Bay’ goes virtual

BY SUPERVISOR DAVE CORTESE

For 10 years, I have been privileged to bring diverse groups of residents together on a sunny autumn day to connect with vital resources, enjoy local entertainment and fun activities, ride in kayaks, pick out pumpkins, and savor free food at Alviso Marina County Park.
As with many traditional and annual events, "Day on the Bay" multicultural festival and resource fair will not happen this year because of coronavirus, and I will miss it. I have been riding my bike to the festival since we launched "Bike to the Bay," an 8.5-mile community ride along the Guadalupe River Trail in 2016.
Upon arrival, I would walk through the park greeting guests, taking in the sights and sounds, and reflecting on how lucky I am to live in this beautiful place with these wonderful people. I found it rewarding that the festival's resource fair was focused on health. Our guests received free flu shots, vision and hearing screenings, blood pressure checks and lots of information about services and programs in the County and elsewhere.
We cannot gather this year, but we can explore the Alviso waterway and its unique ecosystem through a new virtual

Day on the Bay boat tour. When I knew, for the safety of our community, we couldn't produce Day on Bay this year, my office teamed up with the County Parks Department to offer a video tour that simulates the educational experience that the county has been providing to school children through the South Bay Boat Tour Field Trip Program that I initiated in 2015. In 2018, we began offering the tour from a boat that can hold 30 passengers.
On Sunday, October 11, we launched the virtual Day on the Bay boat tour with visitors from across the county climbing aboard. The tour is guided by County Park staff interpreters, Luke and Rachel, who will tell you about the history of the area and the people who lived there thousands of years ago, the plant life, the wildlife, and the impacts of humans on the wetlands.
The video tour starts from the Alviso Marina County Park from a dock that was installed during my first year on the Board of Supervisors, opening access to the Alviso slough and the Don Edwards San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge. Traveling through the salt marshes of the Alviso Slough, you will see the shore alive with dozens of species of plants that provide habitat for birds, harbor seals and even two endangered species: the Ridgway's Rail (formerly the California Clapper Rail) and the Salt Marsh Harvest Mouse. Those two inhabitants feed on pickleweed, a plant that only grows in the marshes of the wetlands.

I do not want to give away all the details of the tour of the Alviso Slough, which is the South Bay's entry into the waters of the San Francisco Bay and a stop on the San Francisco Bay Area Water Trail.
I invite you to find out for yourself at any time from any device by visiting www.tinyurl.com/VirtualDOB. The video tour will be shared with teachers from all around the county to provide students with firsthand exposure to the Bay, its wildlife, and its connection to our local communities, while providing lessons on the impacts of climate change.
I hope you will join the tour and then plan an actual trip to the Alviso Marina County Park, which besides boating also offers hiking and biking along boardwalks, pathways, and trails. Together, let us spend time figuring out how we can be the best environmental stewards of these magnificent wetlands.
As always, you can reach my office at (408) 299-3030 or email me at dave.cortese@bos.sccgov.org

Relay For Life Luminaria

SUBMITTED BY CHRISTINA FERRY

There is nothing more beautiful than the sight of hundreds of luminaria bags illuminating the night to honor and remember those with cancer.

When the sun goes down at every American Cancer Society "Relay For Life" event, hope shines the brightest. During the Luminaria event, hundreds of paper lanterns light a track to celebrate the lives of those who have battled cancer, remember those who have lost their battle, and fight back against a disease that has taken too much. This ceremony of light symbolizes the hope and perseverance with which we all continue to fight.

Although we can't be together at the event this year, Relay For Life of Tri-City F.U.N. and Mission San Jose High School want to have a moment of reflection for every life touched by cancer by inviting everyone to drive through a special Luminaria display at The Silliman Center on October 24 from 7 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Those who have already decorated luminaria bags during July's virtual relay may drop them off on October 21 at the Silliman Center parking lot from 5 p.m. - 7 p.m. or on October 24 from 4 p.m. - 6 p.m. prior to the event. If you don't have a bag yet but want to participate, you can pick one up on October 21, or purchase one (decorated by volunteers) on the website for $10 before 7 p.m. that day.

We are living in a historic time. In a very short time, the COVID-19 pandemic and its social and economic components have changed our lives dramatically. The Rotary Club of Castro Valley wants to capture these events for history.

The Rotary Club of Castro Valley and A.R.T., Inc. (Artists Relaxing Together) are jointly sponsoring an online show of photographs, artworks, and poetry that document the coronavirus pandemic in the Castro Valley area. We hope to illustrate the medical, economic and social effects of the pandemic in our community.
