Retro theatern keeps it neel

Photos by Stephanie Gertsch

By STEPHANIE GERTSCH

On highly-trafficked Castro Valley Boulevard, you'll find a remnant of the past; a retro single-screen theater. Opened in 1950, The Chabot theater ran films continuously until 2019.

But, like with the rest of the Bay Area, development threatened. Jared Callahan, one half of the theater's programming team, explains, "It was going to get sold and turned into condos. It was the end of the life of the theater." Paul Keim, founder of community arts organization Smalltown Society, called a meeting with local leaders.

Smalltown Society "went in the last minute and said, 'No, this is important to the community. It could be a landmark. It needs to be reinvested in.'"

Managing Diabetes: More than Carb Counting

Seminar to explore hidden factors that can affect people with diabetes

Many people who have diabetes think that controlling their blood sugar level is all about food: what to eat, when to eat, how much to eat, and so on. But they may be surprised to learn that numerous other factors can affect their blood sugar levels. Though food intake is the core of diabetes management, it may not be the only culprit when A1C (the number to measure a patient's average blood sugar levels) starts climbing.

At a virtual seminar scheduled for Wednesday, April 27, at 3:30 p.m., diabetes educator Desiree Mehrabian, RN, will talk about "Diabetes Self-management: Lesser-known Factors Impacting Blood Glucose Levels." Mehrabian is a diabetes educator at Washington Hospital Healthcare System.

"Managing diabetes is not only about counting carbohydrates," says Mehrabian. "Many factors such as stress, lack of sleep, or other medical conditions can also affect a person's blood sugar levels." That's why a person with diabetes may go for an A1C test thinking their levels are under control and be surprised to learn that in fact, the number has risen since their last test.

It's More than Counting Carbs

Insulin is the hormone that enables the body to use sugar, or glucose, for energy. When a person doesn't create enough insulin, they can't metabolize sugar. The result is diabetes.

Women going through menopause may experience elevated blood glucose levels for the first time in their lives. People with diabetes who've been ill with COVID-19 or other diseases may see their levels rise, too. Even an injury such as a broken arm can create stress in the body and result in imbalances in insulin secretion.

Often, people newly diagnosed with diabetes may learn the skills needed to monitor and control their blood glucose, such as measuring portions and counting carbs. But over time, they may become less vigilant—portions gradually get bigger, they forget to monitor, they skip their medications, or their bodies start secreting insulin at a different rate from when they were initially diagnosed.

"Diabetes doesn't go away," notes Mehrabian. "It only gets managed, which is entirely up to the individual patient." It does take a lot of effort, but having worked with hundreds of patients in the Washington Hospital Outpatient Diabetes Center, she knows it can be done.

"In our diabetes education classes, we ask patients to create a log of what they eat, and then we do a 'deep dive' together to explore exactly what's going on in their lives that may have affected their blood glucose levels. Did they go on vacation? To a party? Did they stop exercising? Are they worrying about a friend or family member who is ill?"

Whatever the cause of fluctuations in blood glucose levels, the goal is to return to a stable A1C level, ideally below 7%.

Seminar Open to All

The April 27 seminar is open to anyone, not just people who have diabetes. Friends or family members of people diagnosed with diabetes, and people who are curious about the disease because someone in their family may have had it in the past are all welcome. "It's an opportunity to learn how a person's lifestyle may affect their well-being," notes Mehrabian.

In addition to attending the seminar, people who want to learn more about managing diabetes may enroll in a class at the Washington Hospital Outpatient Diabetes Center. "Research shows that diabetes education helps people prevent, delay or reverse complications through effective self-management," says Mehrabian. A referral from a physician is needed to sign up for classes.

To view the April 27 seminar on Facebook, sign into your account and then go to facebook.com/WashingtonHosp. Watching from YouTube does not require an account. Simply go to YouTube.com/whhsInHealth. Those attending the seminar via Facebook will be able to ask questions during the seminar. If you miss the live event, it will be archived and available for viewing within 24 hours on Washington Hospital's YouTube page. On the Hospital YouTube page, YouTube.com/whhsInHealth, this seminar, and many other past presentations offer information on diabetes and other health-related topics. A Blow to the Head?

Get it Checked Out

March is Traumatic Brain Injury Awareness Month

To bring greater awareness to the risks of traumatic brain injury (TBI) and the challenges of living with the condition, March is designated National Traumatic Brain Injury Awareness Month. The Brain Injury Association of America (BIAA) reports that one out of every 60 people in the United States lives with a traumatic brain injury-related disability. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) characterize TBIs as a serious public health concern that results in disability and death for thousands of people every year.

The most common TBI is concussion, which can range from mild to severe. The most dangerous concussions can cause an extended period of unconsciousness followed by lasting headaches, dizziness, and memory loss. TBIs can result from falls, motor vehicle accidents, or other blows to the skull, as well as sports-related injuries. Adding to the seriousness of the situation is when someone is alone and experiences a head injury—even what appears to be a mild injury. This person may not be in a position to accurately assess any signs of a brain injury.

At Washington Hospital in Fremont, board-certified cerebrovascular neurosurgeon, Jeffrey E. Thomas, MD, has treated a wide range of brain injuries in his years of training and practice. He advises that it is very important to know the signs and symptoms of TBI, and to seek medical attention right away if there is any concern. In some cases, new symptoms may emerge days, weeks, or even months after the injury.

Common symptoms from TBI include:

- Difficulties with thinking and memory
- Headaches, dizziness, nausea, sensitivity to light and lack of energy
- Mood changes including irritability, sadness, nervousness and anxiety
- Disruptions in sleep including sleeping more than usual, less than usual and difficulty falling asleep

“One of the reasons why TBIs are so dangerous,” states Dr. Thomas, “is that the brain, like other parts of the body, responds to injury with some degree of swelling. The inflammatory response is predictable. The problem is that the skull is a closed box, so when the brain swells there is nowhere for it to go.”

A traumatic brain injury (TBI) can result from what may seem like a mild impact.

“The treatment for many brain injuries is to reduce the pressure on the patient’s brain. We can do this with surgery,” he notes. “Decompressive craniectomy and ventriculostomy are two procedures that can reduce pressure and fluid on the brain and can be lifesaving.”

Brain damage from TBI is caused by the physical disruption of brain pathways, either from the swelling or the blow itself, which can stretch the brain’s white matter tissue. Sometimes that disruption happens deep in the brain and is not visible externally. Dr. Thomas explains, “A brain’s white matter pathways are long, and they are everywhere. You can imagine that a sudden acceleration of some kind when someone’s head is hit hard would be likely to disrupt the pathways. Although the surface of the brain can be damaged in a TBI, there can be a lot more disruption and damage that happens closer to the brainstem along the neuronal pathways.”

An injury sustained to the back of the head, for instance from falling backwards, will cause injury to the back of the brain. However, the more severe damage from that same fall can happen in the front of the brain. When an injury occurs on the opposite side of the brain from the site of impact, it is called a contrecoup injury. Dr. Thomas explains, “When the back of the head is struck, it can cause a momentary elongation of the fibers in the front of the brain, especially at the base of the frontal and temporal lobes. Contrecoup injury to these regions of the brain can be very serious, affecting a person’s motivation, emotions and memory.” These types of injuries risk being underdiagnosed because of their location.

Severe TBIs can have long-term effects on a person’s physical function and memory. “Other outcomes can include diminished motivation and depression,” says Dr. Thomas. “Depression can be particularly easy to overlook because in many patients it doesn’t manifest until after they have begun to recover. A common trajectory is that a patient survives the immediate TBI, but after the danger has passed and it seems like he is rounding a corner, he starts to exhibit lack of motivation, social withdrawal, sleeping problems, and even anorexia—all signs of depression.”

Recovery from TBI is a team effort. Support and understanding from family and friends is critical. Depending on an individual’s symptoms, a TBI care team may also include a physical therapist, occupational therapist, speech pathologist, psychologist, psychiatrist, physiatrist, and neurologist. People with TBI can experience major changes in their ability to walk or drive, along with other physical and mental challenges. Many may find it helpful to work with a vocational rehabilitation counselor and social worker once they have returned home.

It can be hard to predict how long it will take a person to recover from a TBI, and which long-term effects will stay with the patient forever. The rate and degree of recovery varies from person to person. Dr. Thomas believes that the brain’s ability to recover from TBI is generally underestimated, in part because it can take a long time. “People are just not prepared to think of recovery in terms of years. I tell them that you have to be patient with your brain’s recovery. There are limits, but you will be surprised at how much recovery you are capable of,” he stresses.

“Traumatic Brain Injury Awareness Month is a good opportunity to better understand the stakes of suffering a TBI, and to educate ourselves about the treatment and long road to recovery that so many people with TBI are living through today,” he adds.

For additional information and resources on TBI, visit the BIAA at biausa.org and the CDC at cdc.gov.

Washington Hospital also has an informative video on sports-related concussions, featuring former NFL player Ben Lynch and sports medicine physician Dr. Steven Zonner, which is available on its YouTube channel. To view the video, search “Concussion Awareness” on www.YouTube.com/whhsInHealth.

Fremont Area Writers

SUBMITTED BY TISH DAVIDSON

On Saturday, March 26th, Fremont Area Writers' monthly Zoom gathering will host Alameda County Arts Commissioner, Margaret Thornberry. She'll explain some of the fine arts grants available from private and government sources in our area.

Thornberry fell in love with the arts at age four during her first stage experience, a magician's assistant, for which she was paid one baby white rabbit. She last "trod the boards" in her high school's production of "Drums of Death," but she's continued to take the stage programs designed to advance fine arts in Alameda County. Having served for over 20 years on the Fremont Cultural Arts Council and four years as an Alameda County Arts Commissioner, to say she has her finger on the pulse of our creative arts scene is a huge understatement.

"I have a special interest in writers and visual artists," she says. "Their words and symbols can have a huge effect on human emotions and actions."

Thornberry will be cluing writers in on government and private grants, as well as other programs that are there to assist fine artists. "Too many of us have no idea of what these grants are there to do. It's not exactly 'free money.' Grants are offered to finance specific types of creative projects. I'll give an overview of who gives them, who gets them and why, and help you get started in researching what you might be eligible for."

Preparing the next generation for climate change

EARTHTALK

FROM THE EDITORS OF E – THE ENVIRONMENTAL MAGAZINE

Dear EarthTalk: Any ideas on how to talk to my kids about climate change?

-- J. Rowe, Alea, Hawaii

As our understanding of the human-caused effects on our environment deepens, we find ourselves changing our habits, but we also carry the responsibility of preparing the next generation. A National Public Radio (NPR) poll shows that 84% of parents think children should learn about climate change while only 45% of parents report having a conversation with their kids on the topic. Breaking the silence around climate change is a key step in developing intergenerational solutions.

Clinical psychologists like Wendy Greenspun caution that parents take a “developmentally sensitive” approach when preparing for climate change conversations. David Sobel, an environmental educator at Antioch University agrees, recommending that children younger than age 6 spend time outdoors to foster a close relationship with the natural world. Additionally, Sobel suggests that teaching good habits at a young age is also great place to start. A 2015 study from Brown University shows that routines and habits are formed by age 9, so lessons like turning off the lights to save energy and recycling to reduce plastic pollution will stick with children who learn to do so early on in life.

Addressing tougher climate topics should wait until kids are 9 years old, according to Sobel. Keeping in mind that your child may have already heard about climate change, gauging how much they know can be a jumping off point. To introduce the science, Robin Gurwitsch, a professor and psychologist at Duke University, suggests using the “blanket analogy,” which explains that the Earth is protected by a layer, like a blanket, that keeps it at the right temperature. Climate change, caused by gases that people put into the air by using lots of energy, adds more blankets around the earth, making it too hot. If questions arise that you are unable to answer, take the opportunity to learn together and keep the conversation going.

The climate crisis is a difficult topic. While maintaining open communication, it is also crucial to avoid damaging the mental health of yourself or your children. Susie Burke, senior psychologist at the Australian Psychological Society, suggests three big-picture responses to cope with climate anxiety. First, emotion-focused coping, which can include anything as simple as spending time with loved ones and taking a break. Next is problem-focused coping which is to “...try to mitigate the actual problem that is causing the stress.” The third is meaning-focused coping, thinking about “how to frame the problem so that we can continue to hope and not collapse into cynicism....”

While interpreting climate change for children involves teaching about seemingly unending challenges, it is important to emphasize the solutions. Children should know that there are scientists all over the world working hard to solve the problem and that regular citizens can help in meaningful ways. Suggest ways to be a part of the solution with small actions that you do together as a family, like a meatless Monday tradition or participation in the Turn It Off Campaign that encourages not idling your car when it is parked. These things help make your children part of the solution as they learn about the problem.

Military history

In 1778 -- during the Revolutionary War -- a fort was constructed along the Hudson River in Upstate New York. Known as West Point, it played a critical role -- then and now -- in the defense of the country. On March 16, 1802, an act of Congress declared it to be the home of the U.S. Military Academy [USMA].

According to the official USMA history, General George Washington recognized the strategic importance of West Point’s commanding plateau, and called on Thaddeus Kosciuszko, a Polish military officer and engineer, to design fortifications that would support America during its campaign to achieve independence.

Washington also envisioned its transition into a military school. In 1783 he penned a document called, “Sentiments on a Peace Establishment,” and wrote: “A Peace Establishment for the United States of America may in my opinion . . . [include] Academies, one or more for the Instruction of the Art Military; particularly those Branches of it which respect Engineering and Artillery, which are highly essential, and the knowledge of which is most difficult to obtain.”

For more information, the Grateful American Book Prize recommends “West Point History of the American Revolution” by The United States Military Academy.

Cherry blossoms

Each year since 1912 tourists from all over the world have visited Washington D.C. to catch a glimpse of the cherry blossoms.

Cherry trees are not native to the United States, but they are in Japan. First Lady Helen Taft spent a good portion of her time there when her husband, William Howard Taft, was President of the Philippine Commission. Her friend and socialite, Eliza Scidmore, knew of Mrs. Taft’s love of the cherry blossoms, and suggested that Japan create a field of them as a gift to the people of Washington D.C. Scidmore even helped finance the endeavor. When the Japanese consul in New York heard of the plan, he endorsed it.

In June of 1910, 2,000 cherry trees arrived from the Japanese government, but they didn’t take; two years later, another 3,020 appeared -- from an anonymous Japanese citizen.

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends “Cherry Blossoms: Sakura Collections from the Library of Congress” by Mari Nakahara and Katherine Blood.

Historic vote

The 15th Amendment, ratified on February 3, 1870, states: “the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.” The following day, Thomas Peterson-Mundy of Perth Amboy, New Jersey became the first African American to vote in an election to determine whether to revise -- or abandon -- its township.

That year was replete with triumphs for bygone slaves. “Hiram Rhodes Revels, a Republican from Natchez, Mississippi, became the first African American ever to sit in Congress. Although African American Republicans never obtained political office in proportion to their overwhelming electoral majority, Revels and a dozen other African American men served in Congress during Reconstruction, more than 600 served in state legislatures, and many more held local offices,” according to History.com.

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends “Stolen Justice: The Struggle for African American Voting Rights” by Lawrence Goldstone.

Retro theater keeps it neel

First Presbyterian Church of Hayward advanced a loan to save the theater, and now owns The Chabot, although Smalltown Society is still involved. Per Callahan, the mindset was, “Give us two to five, however many years to try. And you can sell it then. But at least give us a shot to keep it.” Callahan, a local filmmaker himself, became acquainted with the theater while it was already under the new management. “I was editing a project and needed a break. So, I just looked up local movies, and came to a screening of ‘Joker’ during the day on a weekday, and sat... by myself and loved it. When I walked in, I felt like I had been here before. It just had that welcoming vibe.”

But the vibe was short lived. After reopening in July 2019, the theater was forced to close its doors the next year due to the Covid-19 pandemic. The second programming director, Alex Largusa recalls, “We had a good eight months of trying to figure it out until March 2020, and then it shut down.” The team started doing livestream ‘riff-alongs’ of classic camp movies in a theater that had only ever done first run films. Largusa says, “During the pandemic, especially towards the beginning, that was really our one way to still connect with our audience.”

A slower schedule was a chance to do needed work on the old building. Callahan explains, “Part of the responsibility of running a retro theater is to be aware that you’re constantly revamping a space.” The expansive theater comprises a stage, regular and expanded rows of seating, bar top tables on the side aisles and a couch. It’s an ideal event space.

After a soft opening in 2021, The Chabot held its grand opening in 2022. Largusa says, “We got to a point in February where we went, ‘Hey, the space feels pretty much there. Our events feel kind of dialed in... We were like, OK, we feel more ready to go.’”

“Our first event in 2021, we showed a movie called Gook, which was about the Rodney King riots in LA from the perspective of two Korean brothers. And we had the lead actor from that film fly in. We had another one of the lead actors and a producer on Zoom. After we watched the film, we [did] a live Q&A.”

The grand opening took place over three days: Vibe Check, an art and music showcase; a Locals Only Film Festival, and a free showing of Moneyball. Callahan recalls, “We had over 80 films submitted, and we chose 13 made by local filmmakers to play. It was great because they came and did a Q&A with the audience about their films.”

“They got to see what they made on the big screen,” Largusa adds, while Callahan chimes in, “That’s the ultimate gift... We spend so long making films on laptop screens; getting to see it in 20 by 30 feet, it’s so special.” Largusa remembers, “One of the filmmakers who showed their short and won third place, grew up in Castro Valley...coming to this theater. And he was able to show his film here at his childhood theater.” Callahan adds, “He called it his life goal.”

Right now, The Chabot shows big budget movies Friday through Sunday and Tuesdays, and smaller “Movie Club” events on weeknights. For $1 per month, you can join the club and vote on upcoming screenings.

Largusa calls popular films the “tent poles” of the theater. “Showing Batman or Spiderman, allows us to do the things that we want to do, like highlighting local artists.” He continues, “We can’t just be a movie theater. We frankly will not make it if that’s the case. For a single-screen independently owned theater there is no competing with Century 16, Regal or AMC. So how can we not even play that game, but do something different?”

If people come for the movies, they stay for the memories. Callahan says, “We weekly are in conversations with people telling stories of how they came when they were a kid 50 years ago and they would never want it to close.”

“Since we took over the theater in 2019, people would tell us stories like, ‘We had our first date here 30 years ago.’ Or, ‘I watched Titanic here when it was out in theaters.’”

– Alex Largusa

There are more special events in the works, such as a showcase where local filmmakers will make music videos for local musicians. Follow The Chabot’s Facebook or Instagram for live riff-alongs, trivia and special screenings. If you just want to catch a movie, “The Lost City” will be showing at the theater starting Thursday, March 24.

FREMONT CITY COUNCIL TURNS MOTEL 6 TO HOMELESS HOUSING

By a 7-0 vote, Fremont City Council turns south Fremont Motel 6 to permanent homeless housing. The entire City Council apparently believes that a motel key to a motel room paid for by government public money is truly a key to a real home. It completely failed the "due process" requirement with advance notice to the impacted community, again. Obvious problems, what many people would view as basic common sense, are ignored. Modification and construction start now.

This is done without any prior community outreach to truly gather community input and feedback.

What the City Council did does NOT follow the law. Probably illegal.

Residents' expressed concerns for personal and family safety have been blatantly ignored.

Schools are nearby with more than 2000+ students.

This Homekey project will initially cost $40 million with further annual expenses.

There is no treatment or joining any job program requirement to live there.

By the way, there are already red flags with Fremont's financial ability to pay for employees' retirement.

Where is the money to put people in motels indefinitely? What is the source of all government funding?

This kind of homeless housing has NOT worked anywhere. Other cities are ending this kind of program.

Bad things can happen to good people. We should help. But not like this.

The City Council of Fremont must listen to the people of Fremont. Truly listen. Housing by itself is not enough. Our City's main priority regarding the homeless people must be helping them get back on their own feet. We help people who want to be helped. People should have the dignity and freedom of being able to live independently.

This public announcement is written and paid for by Hiu Ng, a north Fremont resident, to simply inform the people of Fremont.

Park It

By NED MACKAY

As of the end of this month, there’s a great new access point to McLaughlin Eastshore State Park, which is managed by East Bay Regional Park District. It’s Brickyard Cove, located at the Bay end of University Avenue in Berkeley.

For many years, Brickyard Cove was essentially a dump site for dirt and other debris from industrial activity. But thanks to a $5 million grant from California State Parks, the debris has been removed, the site has been re-graded, and significant wildlife habitat has been restored.

Amenities include bike racks, restrooms, a water fountain, interpretive panels, and walking paths for recreation and nature study that connect to the San Francisco Bay Trail. There’s parking for 47 vehicles. The project also was designed to protect the natural habitat from sea level rise.

McLaughlin Eastshore State Park extends 8.5 miles along the bay shoreline from the Bay Bridge to Richmond. It includes 1,833 acres of upland and tidelands habitat.

Farther down the Bay shoreline, there’s a lot to see and do at Crown Beach in Alameda.

For instance, there’s a story time program from 3:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Friday, March 25 at the park’s Crab Cove Visitor Center. Every Friday afternoon, the park’s interpretive staff will read stories about insects, animals, the season or something found nearby. Topics change each week. Then the kids can meet a real animal, complete a craft project, or go on a scavenger hunt. Rain cancels.

Or, if you don’t mind getting a bit dirty, join naturalist Susan Ramos for a minus low tide walk from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, March 26. The group will explore the mudflat and rocky shore in search of clams, seaweed, crabs and more. Wear old shoes or rain boots.

If you’d prefer to stay dry, go with “Duck, Duck, Goose” from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. the same day. It’s a program all about the waterbirds that frequent Crab Cove.

All three of these programs are free of charge, and no registration is required. Crab Cove Visitor Center is at the end of McKay Avenue off Alameda’s Central Avenue. For information, call (510) 544-3187.

Birds are also the focus of a program from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. on Sunday, March 27 at Ardenwood Historic Farm in Fremont. Naturalist Christina Garcia will lead a bird walk designed especially for people new to birding. Learn how to find and identify birds by sight and sound. Bring binoculars if you have them.

There’s no admission fee for this program, and no registration is required. Ardenwood is at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard, just north of Highway 84. For information, call (510) 544-2797.

At Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley, naturalist Trail Gail Broesder will lead an exploration of the watershed area, while talking about water needs and supply. It’s a walk from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday, March 27, free of charge, with no registration necessary. Meet Trail Gail at the Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Tilden’s Central Park Drive. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

Wildflower beauty is the reward of a hike from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, March 27 at Diablo Foothills Regional Park in Walnut Creek, led by naturalist Kevin Dixon.

The four-mile hike is for ages 10 and older. It will cover some steep and uneven ground in search of blooms, so wear sturdy shoes, dress for the weather, and bring food and water. The hike is free of charge, but registration is required. For registration and information, call (888) 327-2757 and select option 2.

There are lots of other activities on the regional parks calendar, both drop in and registration required. For full information, visit the www.ebparks.org and click on “Things To Do.”

Most transit workers meet vaccine mandate

SUBMITTED BY AC TRANSIT

In the hours leading up to the Friday, March 18 deadline for employees to meet a COVID-19 vaccination mandate, Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District (AC Transit) officials said that more than 80% of them have complied.

In December, AC Transit personnel were mandated to complete the regimen of one of the three FDA authorized vaccines within a 60-day implementation period, which began on January 12.

Implementation of the vaccine requirement followed weeks of discussions with employee unions to finetune processes, regulations and compliance requirements. Additionally, a December vote by members of AC Transit Board of Directors also required them to be fully vaccinated against COVID-19 without a testing option.

AC Transit officials said the vaccine requirement does permit exemptions for sincerely held religious beliefs and medical conditions. They said that employees who decline the vaccine or an exemption could be issued a notice of intent to terminate as early as Friday, March 18.

As a result, AC Transit said that riders could see a reduction in the system’s frontline workforce could affect service. If that happens, advanced measures would be implemented to avoid any cancelation of service. However, if service modifications are required, riders would be alerted that delays or the temporary suspension of low-use bus lines are possible. In keeping with established policies, AC Transit said it would marshal resources to support the bus lines in greatest demand, including those lines critical to riders in under-resourced communities.

“We are encouraged by the lifting of restrictions by public health officials,” said AC Transit General Manager Michael Hursh. “Nevertheless, recovery for public transit, will not be as simple as the transition from the term pandemic to endemic. Instead, AC Transit’s pandemic recovery will involve a multitude of considerations, including retirements, new hiring and training, and funding support from our state and federal lawmakers. As a result, our recovery will be slower and executed in timed phases.”

Real time service updates, transit maps and trip planning tips are posted on the AC Transit website at www.actransit.org.

Real Estate Notebook: Homebuying not for the meek or timid

By DAVID STARK, CHIEF PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICER, BAY EAST ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Highlights from a recent telephone conversation with Steve Medeiros, a life-long Fremont resident and 2022 President-Elect of the Bay East Association of REALTORS® is simultaneously sobering and hopeful.

David Stark: Is the Fremont real estate market “insane” – and you don't have to answer “yes” or “no.”

Steve Medeiros: It is incredibly hot right now.

DS: Is it hot for buyers, or sellers, or both?

SM: It's hot for sellers because their properties sell in a heartbeat and it's hot under the collar for buyers because these are the most challenging conditions I've seen for buyers during my career.

DS: Homes are selling quickly so even if it's painful for buyers, they seem to be staying in the market and they seem to be able to put up with the heat. So, what's going on with buyers?

SM: That's the key, keeping buyers engaged and positive when they've been in a competitive market for so long.

DS: What's keeping them in the market?

SM: There are buyers out there who are willing to compete in these conditions. Buying right now is not for the meek or the timid. You've got to really want it.

DS: How long is this going to last, is there a light at the end of the tunnel for buyers and should sellers start adjusting their expectations?

SM: My expectations are it's going to continue for a while. The uptick in mortgage rates hasn't seemed to dim anyone's demand at all. I know our inventory, while at an all-time low, is still up over 50% since this time last month. More inventory will relieve some pressure on offers and prices, but it hasn't happened yet – unless mortgage rates really skyrocket.

DS: Do you think sellers will need to adjust their pricing?

SM: If rates do increase, they may have to do that. So far, they haven't had to adjust pricing because there are plenty of buyers.

DS: Do you see buyers exiting the market, which will bring demand down and then prices down?

SM: It's possible, but there would have to be a paradigm shift for that many buyers to drop out of the market. I keep thinking we're going to have buyer fatigue, but it hasn't happened yet.

DS: Do you think sellers are going to look at these market conditions and decide now is the time to sell and will that bring more supply and bring prices down?

SM: I think sellers might be at the point where they are saying, 'We've got to get out while the getting is good.' I'm very encouraged by the fact that our inventory of homes for sale has gone up this past month.

Ask Rusty – My Husband Still Works; Must He Enroll in Medicare at age 65?

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

By RUSSELL GLOOR, NATIONAL SOCIAL SECURITY ADVISOR,
AMAC FOUNDATION

Dear Rusty: There is confusion between my husband and me on when he should file for Medicare. My husband will be 64 in July. While he does plan on continuing to work to age 67 and continuing with his employer's insurance plan, I believe there's a requirement that he file for a certain part of the Medicare retirement plan at age 65, otherwise there's some penalty at some point in the future after retirement. There's lots of confusion with this, and I'm hoping you can explain exactly what the process is in filing for Medicare at age 65 and after reaching full retirement age. Also, please comment on whether continuing with employers' insurance is an option or if you should file for Medicare at age 65.

Signed: Confused About Medicare

Dear Confused: There are two main parts of Medicare to be aware of for this discussion - Part A which is coverage for inpatient hospitalization services, and Part B which is coverage for outpatient services (doctors, medical tests, etc.).

Medicare Part A: Assuming your husband is eligible to collect Social Security when he turns 65 (he needn't be collecting it, only eligible to), there will be no premium associated with Medicare Part A (thus no penalty if he delays claiming it). If his employer coverage is “creditable” (which is a group plan with at least 20 participants), then he can defer enrolling in Part A until, 1) His employer hospitalization coverage ends, or 2) He starts collecting his Social Security benefits (enrolling in Part A is mandatory for those who are collecting Social Security after age 65).

He may also wish to check with his employer's HR department to see if his employer plan requires him to enroll in Part A when he turns 65. However, if your husband enrolls in Part A and has a Health Savings Account (HSA) through his employer, any contributions made to his HSA account after the month before he is 65 will be subject to an IRS penalty and become taxable income.

Medicare Part B: There is a monthly premium associated with Part B, but if your husband has “creditable” healthcare coverage from his employer when he turns 65, he can simply defer enrolling in Part B until his employer coverage ends and there will be no Late Enrollment Penalty for waiting. When his employer coverage ends, he will enter an eight month Medicare Special Enrollment Period (SEP) during which he can enroll in Part B without penalty. But if he doesn't enroll during (or before) his SEP and enrolls in Part B later, he'll be subject to a Late Enrollment Penalty which would increase his Part B premium by 10% for each full year he goes without “creditable” coverage after age 65.

FYI, your husband can also enroll in Part B shortly before his employer coverage ends and specify that he wishes his Medicare coverage to start on the 1st of the month following the end of his employer coverage (to avoid any gap in coverage). When your husband enrolls in Part B, he must also enroll in Part A (at no additional cost). FYI, Part B premiums can increase yearly - the standard 2022 Part B premium is $170.10/month.

There is another Medicare element called “Part D” which is coverage for prescription drugs. Prescription drug costs are not covered by Medicare Parts A/B and such coverage must be acquired separately if desired. When your husband's prescription drug coverage from his employer plan ends, he'll need to separately acquire (through a private insurer) drug coverage during his SEP, or there will be a separate Part D late enrollment penalty for acquiring drug coverage thereafter.

The bottom line is this: If your husband's healthcare coverage from his employer is “creditable” he can simply defer enrolling in Medicare until his employer coverage ends, and there will be no late enrollment penalty for doing so (unless he waits beyond his SEP to enroll).

No parking

Jay Ohrberg won the Guinness record for the world's longest car in 1986. The auto was originally 60 feet in length but, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC], Ohrberg, whose business was customizing automobiles, decided to extend it to 100 feet long. The super-limousine hadn't been seen in quite a while until another car buff, Michael Manning of Nassau County, New York, found it recently, apparently abandoned and in disrepair. “I first found the car at an autobody show in New Jersey and it was garbage. It was covered in graffiti, the windows were broken, the tires were flat, but I fell in love with it anyway.” Manning decided to rebuild it and the folks at Guinness, once again, declared it to be the world's longest car. If you're wondering how you can find a parking space for an auto that long, don't worry; Manning has put it on display at the Dezerland Park Car Museum in Orlando, Florida. See video of the car on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=sNE_dqkmLF0

A rewarding meal

Michael and Maria Spressler have been dining out at The Lobster House in Cape May, New Jersey for 34 years and Michael's favorite starter is usually a dozen clams on the half shell. On a recent visit to the eatery, their loyalty -- aided by Michael's taste for clams -- earned them not only the reward of a satisfying meal but a .35-inch pearl, as well, that could be worth several thousand dollars. But Maria told KYW-TV, Michael has “eaten dozens and dozens of clams, and we've never found anything like that, so it was pretty exciting ... [and so] I would like to have it set into a nice piece of jewelry, maybe a mermaid or something nautical. It's a beautiful remembrance of that day and what we have is so special.”

Baa

Heather Hogarty, a shepherdess in Northumberland, U.K., was showing off her newborn lamb for the cameras recently. The lamb was born with five legs but the extra limb doesn't seem to bother it. And Heather says it is quite healthy. Although it's a one-in-a-million occurrence, 10 years ago one of her sheep gave birth to a five-legged lamb called Quinto and had a long and healthy life. See video of the lamb on Facebook: www.facebook.com/NewcastleChronicle/videos/679690483177116/

Trailblazer: Dorothy Butler Gilliam

Imagine being told you couldn't do something just because of the color of your skin. That's what happened to Dorothy Butler Gilliam.

Dorothy wanted to be a reporter at a major daily newspaper. When she first applied, she wasn't hired. But that didn't stop her from trying again.

In 1961, she became a trailblazer as the first African-American woman to work as a reporter at The Washington Post, one of the largest newspapers in the United States.

HARD WORK Reciting a Famous Poem

When Dorothy was a young girl, she memorized and recited the entire poem 'Twas The Night Before Christmas at a church service. It took both the ability to read and hard work to accomplish that.

1942
– 1936

Dorothy was born in 1936. She recited the poem in church in 1942. How old was she then?

INFORMED A Newspaper in the Home

Dorothy's father believed in being informed about the community and the world. He read two newspapers every day.

Fill in the missing vowels in this quote by Dorothy:

"My _w_r_ness of the n_wsp_p_r, through h_ving it in our h_m_, was one of the th_ngs that g_ve m_the c_r_ge to _pply for a secretarial j_b at a n_wsp_p_r."

Dorothy's father became ill when she was 14. Their family moved to a small house in the country with no running water.

She was determined to go to school. She walked a half mile to catch a bus to a school for black children. Schools in Kentucky were segregated—they did not allow white and black students to attend the same school.

Community Project Funding Awarded to Fremont in Fiscal Year 2022 Federal Appropriations Government Funding Package

Under the Community Project Funding process, Congressional representatives were able to request funding for up to 10 projects in their districts for fiscal year 2022. The project proposals were selected based on their impact to responding directly to a need that helps improve the lives of constituents in their respective districts. In 2021, City staff presented a small handful of priority projects to Congressman Ro Khanna and Congressman Eric Swalwell and two were selected and funded with passage of the 2022 Government Funding Bill.

City of Fremont Housing Navigation Center- Funding Award: $500,000- supported by Congressman Ro Khanna

The City requested $500,000 to help fund Fremont's Housing Navigation Center operating costs for the facility to operate at its full 45-bed capacity, offering participants wrap-around services that include health and wellness resources, employment assistance, and intensive case management to connect to stable income, and permanent housing through advocacy, landlord liaisons and housing search. Press Release from Congressman Khanna's Office: <https://khanna.house.gov/media/press-releases/release-khanna-delivers-11905000-funding-local-projects>

City of Fremont Emergency Dispatch System- Funding Award: $250,000- supported by Congressman Eric Swalwell

The City requested $250,000 for a critical upgrade to the Emergency Dispatch System to ensure emergency responses are timely and coordinated amongst the Fremont Police Department and Fremont Fire Department, as well as other Tri-City first responder jurisdictions. A new Emergency dispatch system will assist in replacing the computer-aided dispatch (CAD), records management (RMS), ARS (report writing tool), property and evidence and jail systems currently used and allow for enhanced integration with other platforms such as the 9-1-1 phone, iPhones and tablets, map layers, other CAD systems with outside agencies. The new systems will also be multijurisdictional to allow for communication with Union City Police Department. Press Release from Congressman Swalwell's Office: <https://swalwell.house.gov/media-center/press-releases/swalwell-funds-11-million-local-projects-passage-government-funding-bill>

"The City of Fremont is thankful for the partnership of Congressman Ro Khanna and Congressman Eric Swalwell. This funding will help support two very important priority projects in our City that will directly improve the services that we offer to our community and will assist in our long term efforts to make our community healthier, safer, and stronger for all residents," stated Mayor Lily Mei.

City Council Approves Parks and Recreation Master Plan

The City of Fremont thanks all who participated and contributed to the development of the Parks and Recreation Master Plan. On Tuesday, March 15, the Fremont City Council unanimously adopted the Parks and Recreation Master Plan upon recommendation from the Recreation Commission. Over the last two years, the Master Plan process captured the needs of the community through an extensive public outreach and engagement, coupled with a thorough inventory and assessment of the park system and programs. Tri-City track and field face off

By APRIL RAMOS

After two years of canceled seasons, three Tri-City high schools gathered on Wednesday, March 16 to kick off the 2022 track and field season. Newark Memorial High School (Newark), American High School (Fremont) and James Logan High School (Union City) competed in their first meet of the season. Bleachers were filled with family and friends at Logan High School's stadium, eager to watch the action.

With a full heat, eight varsity girls took off at the sound of the gun to run the long sprint of 400-meters or a complete lap of the track. Off of the 300-meter curve, Logan High School's Simryn Parikh pulled ahead of fellow Logan Colt, Lena Jones. Parikh gained some distance and reached the finish line a full second before Jones. Both Logan athletes secured first and second place with times of 64.18 seconds and 65.44 seconds. Srinidhi Sampath of American High School took third place, three seconds after, with a time of 68.79 seconds.

Varsity boys were up next on the block for the same event. Newark Memorial sprinter Zach Kim, took first place with a full two second lead and time of 54.8 seconds. Second and third place went to American sprinters, Ryan Arakal with a time of 56.89 seconds, and Karan Singh at 58.15 seconds.

The 300-meter hurdles began with a few stumbles, but that did not discourage the varsity athletes. All three hurdlers pushed through the challenging event and reached the finish line. Vijay Murali was first to cross the finish line with a time of 45.41 seconds. Following Murali was Newark Memorial Cougar, Kelvin Aquino at 48.72 seconds. Behind him came Ryan Arakal, fellow American Eagle, at 53.41 seconds.

The 4X400 meter relay was the final event of the evening and it was worth the wait. Varsity sprinters on the American and Logan girls' team were the only two on the track. After the first three runners passed the baton, it was up to the anchors to claim the win. Coming off the final curve, the anchors were neck and neck and closed on a photo finish. It was only by checking the photo that Logan was declared the winner by milliseconds at 4:38.56 to 4:38.61.

Simryn Parikh and Lena Jones of James Logan High School complete the 400-meter sprint.

Aditya Chordiya of James Logan High School gets first place in the 800-meter race with a time of 2:12.08.

Zach Kim of Newark Memorial High School in first place in the varsity boys 400-meters sprint.

Local students win 1st place at Robotics Competitions

By ANNIKA SINGH

SUNIL CHINTAKINDI

Named after the famous anime series Attack on Titan, Team Survey Corps won first place in the First Lego League (FLL) Robotics Competition in the NorCal region. Comprised of six Hopkins Junior High students of Fremont, the team worked to produce an outstanding LEGO robot named Sasha.

Team members viewed the competition as an opportunity to learn about robotics and grow closer as Girl Scouts and friends. Their robot is basically a "brain attached to a frame with wheels" with four motors. Sasha needed to be able to accomplish "missions" such as closing a door. For the competition, the students needed a basic understanding of code.

"To tell the program to do something, you have to be very specific, or the robot won't do what you want," Survey Corps Team Member Aaranya Chintakindi explained. One of the things the team had to learn throughout their preparation process was working together efficiently and listening to each other's ideas. "We all have very different personalities and ways of thinking, so it was very hard [to collaborate]," Team Member Anvi Mishra commented.

While building the robot, the team was required to reach out to people in their community — neighbors, friends and family — to gain a new perspective on their project and ways to improve. During the competition, the team ran the programs they had previously coded through goals FLL had set. Team Member Netra Shukla commented, "We also had to learn to quickly work through problems that came up during the robot game. For example, our code was very changeable — meaning that it would work some days and be chaotic another."

Despite the challenges the team faced throughout their preparation meetings, their hard work paid off when they placed second overall in the first round of the competition, and first in the regional round. Team Member Saanvi Shah said the team created a GoFundMe with a goal of $1,500 in order to implement more safety features in their robot. They have raised $1,000 so far, and hope to reach their goal soon.

"[Another one of our achievements is that] towards the end of our [robotics] season, we grew comfortable talking to people and collecting data. We had started off a bit [uncomfortable] with outreach," shared Team Member Neha Puttachanda.

Following their win at regionals, the team hopes to move to the next level of FLL: First Tech Challenge (FTC), in which participants use real metal parts instead of LEGO parts.

Team Member Anika Srinivasan hopes that with the feedback and knowledge they have gained throughout their experience, they will be able to turn their robot into a true, patented product and add new features. The team is excited to participate in more competitions in the near future, and hopes to continue improving their robot.

Take a color-themed approach for more attractive arrangements

LONGFIELD-GARDENS.COM

Growing dahlias is a must for anyone who loves cutting and arranging flowers. But there are hundreds of beautiful dahlia varieties to choose from, and that can be overwhelming. To make the selection process easier, choose compatible colors that will look good together in the garden and in arrangements.

The combination of peach and burgundy is both striking and sophisticated. Peach-colored flowers add a fresh and soothing feel to the garden. Dahlia American Dawn is a blend of peach, mango, and papaya with plum-purple highlights. Good partners include other varieties in the same warm, sunset tones, such as dinnerplate dahlia Belle of Barmera, decorative dahlia Great Silence and ball dahlia Maarn.

Planting dahlias in a perennial garden ensures non-stop color from July into October. The fluttering, melon-colored blooms of HS Date work particularly well, due to this variety's maroon foliage and open growth habit. Complete your peach and burgundy theme with the dark-hued flowers of Rip City. These large, velvety flowers are almost black in the center and soften to wine-red toward the petal edges. Add ball dahlia Jowey Mirella for blooms that are smaller in size yet equally striking.

For another eye-catching color combination, narrow your selection to dahlias with purple and hot-pink flowers. Historically, purple was associated with royalty, spirituality and knowledge. While pastel purple evokes a sense of calm and serenity, deeper tones add drama and excitement. Dinnerplate dahlia Lilac Time is an heirloom variety with fluffy, lavender blooms that can measure eight to ten inches across. Be sure to also include flowers in juicy grape and violet hues such as dahlias Thomas Edison, Cartouche and Purple Taiheijo.

Complement these moody purples with vivid pink dahlias. Burlesca is a cute little pompon dahlia with tightly rolled petals that reveal hints of peach, burgundy and violet. Fascination's rose-pink, semi-double flowers contrast beautifully with the plant's dark foliage and the blossoms are irresistible to bees and butterflies. Ball dahlia Rocco is an all-star variety that is long lasting in both garden and vase.

If you prefer pastels to brights, choose dahlias in shades of pale yellow, soft pink and cream. The enormous flowers of dinnerplate dahlia Café au Lait are a must. Complement them with ball dahlias such as peachy Linda's Baby or buttery Boom Boom yellow. Decorative dahlia Fluffles has taffy-pink petals that fade to white, while Milena Fleur's are a mélange of pink, peach and pale butterscotch.

When you start with flowers in compatible colors, designing floral arrangements becomes so much easier. You'll have all you need to quickly create a centerpiece for any gathering, an impressive bouquet for your own home, or an informal handful of blooms to share with friends.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: MARCH 22, 2022

All Signs: This week is the Spring Equinox, when the Sun enters Aries, the first sign of the zodiac. On this lovely day, Mercury is also lined up with Jupiter, which portends positive things for the month ahead. Having said that, there will be some tense moments this week, especially Tuesday. But this will mellow out by Friday when a dynamic, energy encourages us to shake off negative emotions and enjoy spontaneous fun. By Saturday, confidence and clarity is restored along with bonds of friendship and trust.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):
It's that time again when the Sun is in your sign for four weeks, which is your best chance to rejuvenate yourself for the rest of the year. Your focus will be more personal, and you will project yourself with more forcefulness than usual, which is why this is a great time to make a strong impression on others. Because you are personally empowered, it's best to work alone or run the show. Expect challenges dealing with friends or groups, perhaps about money or possessions. Someone might try to thwart your goals.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):
Right now your personal year is ending because your birthday is a month away. Therefore, the next four weeks are the perfect time to keep a low profile and give serious thought to what you want in the year ahead. Goals are important right now because this is a time of harvest in your life. You can see clearly what is working and what isn't. In fact, your strong ambition might be thwarted by someone this week. If so, look for ways to match your goals with theirs.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):
You're heading into a four-week window that will increase your popularity and heighten your interest in groups and organizations. Perhaps a friendship will assume a greater importance for you? According to the Mayo Clinic, friendships enrich your life and improve your health. However, better to be alone than in bad company! This is because your friends influence your mind and your thinking. Therefore, hang out with quality people. Make friends with people who want the best for you.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):
For the next four weeks, the Sun will travel across the top of your chart. (This is the only time all year this happens.) This is wonderful news because it symbolizes that you are in the spotlight, and that others admire you. This will happen even if you don't do anything different. It's like magic. Nevertheless, this influence is a reality, which means you can use it to your advantage. Now is the time to go after what you want. Do whatever you can to get approval from people in power.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):
In the next four weeks, do what you can to broaden your horizons. Explore new and unfamiliar experiences. Meet people from different backgrounds. Grab every chance to change your surroundings so you feel invigorated. Even the most trivial encounter might be stimulating. The theme for this month ahead is that you want to break free from your usual routine and go somewhere you can learn something new. Some of you might be more involved with the law. Others will be excited to explore new belief systems.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):
Count on feeling more passionate about every aspect of your life in the next four weeks. You might even notice strange compulsions surfacing. During this same window of time, you might meet someone who causes you to do some serious soul-searching, which could force changes in your life. They might even challenge your values. You will also have a greater concern for finances. Perhaps you are trying to borrow money? Struggles at work, related to a pet, or even your health might arise this week. Stay chill. Jupiter will bring you divine protection.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):
For the next four weeks, the Sun will be opposite your sign. This means it will be as far away from you as it can get all year. Because the Sun is your source of energy, this means that you will feel more tired than usual. This polarized position of the Sun will also increase your focus on close friends and partners. It will give you more objectivity, which means you have a better chance to improve the relationship. Meanwhile, parents should be aware that this is an accident-prone week for kids. Social plans and vacations might be cancelled or suddenly changed.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):
In the next four weeks, you will be more competent, energetic and organized. This is timely because this week, there will be interruptions to your home or family, and fortunately, you will have the energy and focus to cope with whatever happens. In this window of time, you will strive to make every action count. Increased activity on the home front will create some speed bumps this week. You will also be into redecorating and making things look nicer at home. You might focus on your health or a pet more than usual.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):
The next four weeks will bring you happy times because the Sun will be travelling through one of the most fun parts of your chart. You'll feel lighter, happier and eager to explore amusing diversions. This is a great window to enjoy a vacation or fun outings. You might be more involved than usual with children. Certainly, your attitude toward your relationships will be lighter and for some, new romance will begin. Nevertheless, conflict with siblings or neighbors might occur this week, especially Tuesday.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):
Your attention will shift to home, family and private life in the next four weeks. Some of you will be more involved with a parent. Grab every opportunity to go off by yourself and spend time in contemplation. Maybe on the past or self-evaluation. You're keen to earn money, and you're spending it on beautiful things. In fact, this week, especially Tuesday, you might have financial disputes with someone. This disagreement could be about vacations, social issues, the arts or your kids. Some will have a rocky time with romance.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):
The pace of your days will accelerate in the next four weeks. This same window of time will be great to learn new things or explore new avenues through reading, writing and studying. You might also be more involved with siblings and relatives. However, be aware that with Mars in your sign, you're coming on a bit strong and this is bound to trigger conflict with others, especially around Tuesday. If this occurs, remind yourself what your long-term objective is. What's more important? Being right or being in the relationship?

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):
Money and finances are on your mind in the next four weeks. You might consider a new job offer or ponder moneymaking ideas? You will also be busy more than usual with your possessions. At a subtle level, you will be giving more thought to your values in life. Angst might be triggered at the beginning of the week because of something going on behind the scenes. Or perhaps it's going on internally in your mind?

Mirchi launches streaming App for North American audience

SUBMITTED BY SEHBA SHAH

Entertainment Network India Limited (ENIL), the company that operates the Mirchi brand in the United States, announced the launch of its streaming app, available on Apple and Android devices. The Mirchi app brings 12 live FM stations from 11 cities in India including Mumbai, Delhi, Bengaluru, Kolkata, Chennai, Hyderabad (Telugu and English), Kochi, Ahmedabad, Pune, Chandigarh, and Patna. More cities will be available in the future.

The city-wide local streams provide a convenient shortcut for the expat community in the US as feeds have been adjusted to mirror local day broadcasts. For example, a listener hailing from Mumbai but living in San Jose, will be able to tune in at his morning time for the Mumbai morning show and so on. US-based listeners get a feel of home via real-time developments taking place in their home city in India in the areas of music, movies, traffic, stock markets, and more.

The app also has an on-demand feature that includes hundreds of hours of curated “audio stories” across multiple genres. Mirchi staples like RJ Naved’s lighthearted Murga prank calls, “The Devdutt Patnaik” mythology show, and Kareena Kapoor Khan’s “What Women Want” interview series with top Bollywood celebrities will be available on the app.

Prashant Panday, MD & CEO, ENIL says, “Mirchi, India’s leader in radio and one of its most-loved entertainment brands, is now embarking on a digital journey with the launch of its app. We’ve been leaders in FM radio in India for more than 20 years and now we are making all our radio stations and a lot more audio content available to our listeners outside the country. The app offers brands and marketers across geographies the opportunity to connect with diaspora audiences in the US.”

The Mirchi app can be downloaded from MirchiUSA.

Health screenings available for veterans

SUBMITTED BY
HAYWARD PUBLIC LIBRARY

Military veterans in the East Bay will have a chance to meet with members of Veterans Affairs Palo Alto Mobile Medical Outreach Team when they visit Hayward on Thursday, March 24.

During the visit, team members will provide examinations, consultations and referrals to veterans enrolled in the VA health system. They will also work with veteran’s spouses, caregivers, family members and survivors by providing information about veteran enrollment for VA healthcare.

No appointment is necessary. Veterans uncertain of their benefits eligibility are encouraged to visit as requirements have changed, and VA health care may complement current medical coverage. VA representatives will also provide information or assistance with questions and enrollment for VA healthcare.

The three-hour program is held in front of Hayward Veterans Memorial Hall on Main Street. Veterans who want to participate must bring military discharge papers (Form DD-214) and a list of current medications they are taking.

Veterans must also have proof of service documents to participate in the event. Those who need to obtain the documents can get assistance by calling the library’s information desk at (510) 881-7980 or by sending an email to Hector Villaseñor at hector.villasenor@hayward-ca.gov.

Hayward Public Library is launching its Veterans Connect @ the Library program, a statewide outreach to Veterans sponsored by the California State Library, with this event. Follow us on Instagram at #haywardlibrary and Facebook at www.facebook.com/haywardlibrary.

The free program is a collaboration between VA Mobile Medical Outreach Team, Veteran Connect @The Library Program, Hayward Public Library and Hayward Veterans Memorial Hall.

In Remembrance

SUBMITTED BY SUSAN SWERDLOW

San Francisco Bay Area Chamber Choir (SFBACC), conducted by Music Director Scot Hanna-Weir, presents "In Remembrance," a concert reflecting upon loss, rest and peace. Particularly as we enter our third full year of the COVID-19 pandemic, we have experienced loss in so many ways as a community. In Remembrance gives us a moment of pause and reflection, confronting our grief and pain with music of hope and consolation. Eleanor Daley's haunting and mournful a cappella Requiem anchors the program along with spirituals and part songs.

The program includes:

Eleanor Daley - Requiem
Undine Moore - We Shall Walk Through the Valley
William Dawson - There Is a Balm in Gilead
Moses Hogan - Abide With Me
Ralph Vaughan Williams - Rest
Charles Parry - Music, when soft voices die
Steven Paulus - The Road Home

The Sunday, March 27 performance is part of Mission San Jose's 225th anniversary celebration. Founded in 1797, the Mission has a vibrant history of bringing music to the community, boasting its own choir and orchestra during the Spanish Franciscan era. SFBACC has enjoyed a decades-long relationship with the Mission, luxuriating in the lively acoustics of its historic sanctuary.

Carry on this tradition of live music as we perform in one of our favorite venues!

Irvington alumni prepare for charity game

BY APRIL RAMOS

With high energy and a playful attitude, Irvington High School alumni team is preparing for the Robert J. Turbin Charity Reunion Game on Saturday, March 26.

The fourth annual charity event is spearheaded by Superbowl Champion and Irvington alumni, Robert J. Turbin. This event, which draws the attendance of the community, serves a larger purpose than just a family friendly event and a competitive basketball game. Proceeds from the event will be donated to the Irvington High School sports program, as well as Turbin's Runnin4U Foundation. Runnin4U is committed to raising awareness of and solutions for Cerebral Palsy and Multiple Sclerosis.

The alumni team led by Coaches Cheryl Namoca and Jerry Trujillo, is comprised of Irvington alumni: Lamar Anderson, Nicole Ho, Scott Ho, Shaun Ho, Serge Chavez, Hannah Lee, Katie Owen, Ryan Leonard, Henry Wyatt and Robert J. Turbin.

The team was formed in the winter of 2019, but never had the chance to play the Irvington varsity team due to COVID-19. "This team in particular went through a lot and they stayed together the entire time," explained Turbin. In the 2019 game, the varsity team came out on top against the Viking alumni, but this year might have a different outcome as 2011 graduate Shaun Ho shares, "I'm feeling pretty confident about [the game.]"

Attendees will have a chance for a meet and greet with Robert J. Turbin and special guest for photos and an autograph. There will also be face painting, food, raffles, giveaways, a musical performance by Preston Pohl and more.

Tickets and information about the event, and Runnin4U Foundation is available at robertjturbin.com.

Returning money to California taxpayers may aid state budget

BY ADAM BEAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP);
March 9- California Gov. Gavin Newsom's proposal to send people another round of government checks, this time to help offset the record high cost of gas, will do more than just win him political points in an election year -- it could help him balance the state's budget.

California had a record surplus last year and while not as large this year the excess could still reach $29 billion. The state constitution limits how much money the Legislature can spend each year through a complex formula based on how much money the state collects in taxes.
The state has rarely surpassed the limit in the more than four decades it's been on the books.

But revenues have been climbing so fast that Newsom expects the state to be at least $2.6 billion past the limit this year and perhaps much more. Newsom and state lawmakers have a few options to get back under the limit. They can cut taxes, spend more money on things such as infrastructure and public education, or return money to taxpayers. That last option has been the most popular choice.
Last year, the state sent billions in rebates to taxpayers who met certain income requirements.

Newsom had not proposed any new rebates so far this year. But on March 8, he included a surprise proposal in his annual State of the State address: A rebate to help people pay for the high cost of fuel. His announcement came just hours after President Joe Biden banned oil imports from Russia in response to that nation's invasion of Ukraine, a decision that will likely further increase California's record-setting gas prices.

"There's news that's evolving every day on these questions, and we're trying to keep up and make sure that we can keep up with protecting Californians," said

Jason Elliott, Newsom's senior adviser.
The proposal is so new there aren't many details. Dee Dee Myers, another Newsom senior adviser, said one idea is to make the rebate available for people who have a car and live in California, regardless of their immigration status. She said the cost "will be in the billions" but it's unclear how much people would get individually. It's likely the state's Democratic legislative leaders will want to focus the rebate so the rich don't get the same amount as the poor.

It's also not clear how much the proposal would help keep the state under the spending limit. In general, every $1 above the limit requires $1.60 of response.
Newsom has already proposed $19.2 billion in spending on things such as building maintenance, drought response and transportation projects to help get the state under the limit.

The nonpartisan Legislative Analyst's Office says more action will likely be needed. The agency predicts there is a 90% chance that revenues for the current budget year will continue to grow and could exceed expectations by as little as $5 billion or as much as $20 billion.

That means any rebate proposal likely won't be enough on its own to address the problem. Myers said the Newsom administration is more focused on how the rebate would help drivers instead of how it would help meet the spending limit. "This would put money directly into the pockets of people," she said.

California's gas tax is 51.1 cents per gallon, the second highest in the nation.
It's scheduled to increase slightly for inflation on July 1. Newsom has proposed pausing that for one year, a move that would save drivers about $1.30 per month, according to Transportation California, a nonpartisan business and labor coalition.

California Republicans have backed a competing proposal that would suspend California's gas tax for six months.

the author of that proposal, said it would be "the quickest and easiest and most meaningful form of relief we could offer."

"There's no need for any sort of complicated rebate program that's going to take a lot of time," Kiley said.

Republicans, however, don't have the numbers in the state Legislature to pass their bill. The top two Democrats in the Legislature -- Assembly Speaker Anthony Rendon and Senate President Pro Tempore Toni Atkins -- don't support it, and they also don't support pausing the gas tax increase, saying "our focus cannot be a small cut to the gas tax that might not get passed on to consumers."

Suspending the gas tax, they say, would take "critical funds away from road repair and improvement." Instead, the leaders indicated they would do something similar to what Newsom proposed by seeking "tax relief from the General Fund."

The average price for a gallon of regular gas in California was a record $5.57 on March 9, the highest in the country, according to AAA. In the small community of Plumas Lake, about 30 miles north of Sacramento, regular gas was selling for just under $6 per gallon on March 9.

"It's crazy. But, I mean, what am I going to do? I can't do anything about it," said Viridiana Manriquez, 26, as she filled up her car.

George Thelen, 78, paid $74.65 to fill up his work truck on his way to a job.
He said he routinely drives more than 100 miles per day for his construction business. Thelen said he's raised his prices to compensate for rising fuel costs. But a fix is on the way: He's ordered an electric car he plans to turn into a work vehicle by removing some of the seats.

Meanwhile, Thelen said he's not too worried about customers getting upset with him about raising his prices. "There's a labor shortage," he said, pausing to pull his ringing cellphone from his front shirt pocket. "And my phone is ringing off the hook."

Longtime Residents celebrate 70 years of marriage

SUBMITTED BY JOAN FONTES AND LOU CUNEO

Moving into their first home in Niles in 1955, just three years after their marriage, Bill and Mary Fontes. They chose to raise their family and plant their roots, as well as their backyard garden and orchard, here in Fremont. Bill and Mary recently commemorated 70 years of marriage in February 2022. And, in April of this year they will celebrate their 90th birthdays. They were born on the same day, April 21, 1932.

Mr. and Mrs. Fontes raised three children in Fremont, all of them graduating from Mission San Jose High School. Their daughter, Joan, was born in the back seat of their 1953 Pontiac on New Year's Eve, in 1956, on their way to Eden Hospital, since Washington had yet to be built. Their youngest son, Joe, was born at Washington Hospital.

Bill volunteered as a coach for his daughter's softball team and son's baseball team. He retired from Safeway as an industrial engineer and Mary retired from banking in Niles. After retirement, she volunteered at Fremont Senior Center for about 22 years. Mary was elected president of the Builders Fund and served for seven years in that capacity. Bill also volunteered at the Senior Center in a few capacities, including photographer for membership cards.

Bill and Mary are now fully retired from service and enjoy their personal pursuits, which include gardening, and quilting for Mary. They also enjoy seeing their great-grandsons grow up in Fremont and Livermore.

They have watched Fremont grow from a rural orchards and farmland area into the great city it has become today. A total change from when they first moved to the city 67 years ago.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

We live in a dynamic world that is constantly changing. To measure and harness our conception of reality, from the moment of birth to death (or afterlife), the concept of time is captured by the path of our planet around the sun – sunlight and moon phase. To measure this movement, clocks allow everyone to synchronize actions and events.

Most of us don't consider the importance of time unless glancing at a clock to see if we are on time for an appointment or watching the final seconds of an exciting sporting match. However, the concept of universal time is extremely important in human affairs since constant contact with others is unrealistic, therefore there is widespread dependence on some means of coordination. Whether a sun dial, celestial observation, water clock, mechanical or atomic clock, time is a critical factor in society. Standardizing time around the planet through recognized "time zones" is essential for effective communication.

A little over a week ago, daily routines were interrupted for the first of two times each year. We suddenly lost an hour and mornings became a bit darker, traded for extended daylight in the evening. Switching to Daylight Saving Time acknowledges the increasing tilt of the northern hemisphere of the earth toward the sun during summer months and takes advantage of this phenomenon by exaggerating its effect. In this instance, on Sunday, March 13th, at the stroke of 2 a.m., in a magical moment, human time was converted. We will face the same magical moment, in reverse on November 6th.

Is this practical? Physiologically, our bodies and those of other animals and plants note the change, but do it gradually as days lengthen over time. There is no magical moment in nature since it accommodates these changes as they occur. Although the rationale for the human response to cyclical changes can be traced to wartime energy saving measures, the modern equivalent is less clearcut. Since the sun is unfazed by human intervention and does not function differently on a seasonal basis, the primary question is what we accomplish by changing clocks twice a year.

Recently, the U.S. Senate voted to extend Daylight Saving Time permanent effective November 2023. It still faces debate and approval by the House of Representatives and White House. This concept is not new, tested in 1974, during the Nixon Administration. Originally designed for a two-year test, it lasted only eight months as opposition, especially by parents of school-age children, objected to long, dark winter morning hours. Clock changes became routine again.

If, as proposed, artificial clock manipulations are halted, there are two choices: universal Standard Time or Daylight Saving Time. Either would eliminate sudden changes to human timekeeping. While one conserves morning daylight, the other extends afternoon daylight. In either event, our bodies and activities will adjust to natural, daily (circadian) rhythms of life on Earth. Although such a change will require an adjustment during particular times of the year, depending on personal circumstances and global position, standardization of time zones and daylight hours may be worth the effort.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Shooting in Fremont

After the Tesla tragedy, I am shocked that another Fremont resident was killed in a residential area. This is sad news to the entire neighborhood.

And don't blame it on mental health issues. Logically, it is the weapon that should be blamed.

The first and foremost question that arises is who authorized him and where did he get this weapon from and for what purpose? If this is bought for safety or defense then it should not be taken out in the street to kill your neighbor. But if the gun owner has the intention to kill another person, then this weapon should not have been sold in the first place.

I am puzzled by this question and come to the conclusion that gun dealers are selling assault weapons to the general public without a background check, like a passport to kill. At this juncture, the state of California has to overhaul the rules/regulations for issuing licenses to only those who are mentally fit.

Robin Ramona Roberts

October 28, 1955 – February 18, 2022

Our beloved Robin Roberts was born on October 28, 1955, in Great Lakes, Illinois. She passed away February 18, 2022, at the age of 66 while being treated for coronary artery disease at Washington Hospital.

Beginning in 1956, she lived mainly in Fremont, attending Washington High School and Ohlone College where she studied accounting. Throughout her working years, she was employed in various office positions — roles that would fund her famously thoughtful family gift giving.

Robin was a loving, devoted member of our family, an extremely good listener, and a trustworthy confidante. She gave out good advice when asked and was a willing baby and dog sitter. A quiet, independent woman, Robin was stoic in the face of challenge. For example, members of the staff at the nursing home where she spent her last few years said, “She was one of the good ones,” emphasizing that she rarely complained and was undemanding.

For relaxation, she followed Giants baseball and Warriors basketball. She also read mysteries, listened to music (especially 70s rock), collected Christmas ornaments, and loved watching movies. In fact, she made a fantastic movie buddy. Her breadth of knowledge in these areas was noteworthy.

Robin is survived by her mother, Faye Roberts, her sister, Donna Green, her brothers Carlis (Chuck), and John Roberts, many nieces, nephews, and great-nieces and great-nephews. Our family will always cherish her memory.

A memorial service and reception honoring Robin will be held at the Shinn Historical Park and Arboretum, 1251 Peralta Blvd., Fremont, CA 94536, Sunday, April 3, 2022, from 2pm to 4pm. Please wear masks, except while eating. If you would like to make a donation in her honor, we suggest: American Heart Association, and Tri-City Volunteers Food Bank.

Violet “Vit” Adao

March 23, 1932 – March 7, 2022

Resident of Union City

Violet Guevarra was born in Bataan, Philippines on Wednesday March 23, 1932 and passed away 2 weeks shy of her 90th birthday in Fremont, CA on Monday March 7, 2022 after a week-long stay at the Washington Hospital.

Daughter of Ricardo Banzon Guevarra and Isabel Koronel Jimenez, she grew up gifted with a zest for life and distinctive intelligence. Her feistiness sometimes served her well as she navigated her life’s journey with her husband, Ismail “Mike” Adao who she married on June 13, 1953. They have 2 children and 3 grandchildren.

Violet received her Bachelors of Arts degree in Education at Feati University in Manila and received a Masters Degree in Psychology in Nigeria where she and her husband lived and worked for nearly 5 years. She started very young, setting out on her own at a young age of 17. Violet’s fierce independence, at 20, buoyed her to start a beauty parlor that also served as a specialty retail store for goods she often obtained by traveling to Hong Kong and Tokyo with other business women seeking out bargains for resell. Vit and Mike lived and worked in several other countries by the time they were in their mid 20s: Guam, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Vietnam, Thailand, Iran and Nigeria and finally settling in California in the mid 80’s. Mike was an aircraft mechanic who worked at maintenance yards and also taught airframe mechanics while Violet set out to continue her craft. Significant in her career she ran and managed a successful entertainment business in Saigon in the 70’s.

Vit and Mike settled in the SF Bay Area in the mid 80’s to be closer to their sons and grandkids.

Violet and Ismail’s faith served as anchor and guided their life as people of God. They often traveled to Europe on pilgrimages to the Vatican, Fatima and Lourdes. From Madrid, where Violet lived for a couple of years, she often traveled back and forth to Nigeria as a business merchant to help supplement their income and provide for their 2 boys in school.

Violet was preceded in death by her parents Ricardo and Isabel, older brother Nestor Guevarra and sister Lolita Tolentino and younger sister Iluminada Romero. She is survived by her 2 boys and their wives and children. Arnel and his spouse Janet Adao have 3 children, Adam, Andre and Jocelyn. Bart Adao and his spouse Veronica Dostal have no children.

Violet lived an adventurous life with her husband always faithful in love and in their strong belief in the Risen Christ. She will be sorely missed by family and friends.

A Visitation will be held on Wednesday, March 23, 2022 from 4:00 – 8:00 PM. with a Vigil Service at 6:30 PM at Fremont Chapel of the Roses 1940 Peralta Blvd., Fremont. Funeral Mass will be Thursday, March 24 at 12:00 PM at St. Clement Catholic Church 750 Calhoun St. in Hayward. Burial at 1:30 PM. at Holy Sepulcher in Hayward. In her honor, you may choose to donate to Angela’s Piazza of Billings Montana.

Representative Eric Swalwell Secures $1.7 Million for Safe Routes to Schools Program

SUBMITTED BY THE ALAMEDA COUNTY TRANSPORTATION COMMISSION

The Alameda County Transportation Commission (Alameda CTC) Safe Routes to Schools (SR2S) program will receive $1.7 million to help students in Alameda County travel to school safely thanks to Representative Eric Swalwell's efforts in passing the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2022, which will fund the Federal government through September 30, 2022 and includes Community Projects Funding.

Alameda CTC's Safe Routes to Schools program is committed to creating safe environments surrounding school campuses. The SR2S program is a comprehensive countywide program that aims to increase safe walking and biking and encourage alternative modes to school with the goals of reducing congestion and harmful pollutants around schools and increasing the safety and physical activity of students.

Alameda CTC Chair, and Emeryville Mayor John J. Bauters said, "Investing in active transportation is a priority of the Commission, and we are excited to receive this funding for our Safe Routes to Schools Program, which will improve pedestrian and bicycle safety around schools and encourage sustainable travel and active transportation for youth throughout the County."

GE's Pipe-worm
robot clears, maps
pipeline networks

THE ROBOT REPORT

By BRIANNA WESSLING

GE has upgraded its worm-like tunneling robot with highly-sensitive whiskers, similar to a cockroach's whiskers, that give it enhanced perception capabilities for industrial pipeline monitoring, inspection and repair.

The Programmable Worm for Irregular Pipeline Exploration, or "Pipe-worm," is GE's latest adaptation of its autonomous giant earthworm-like robot. It was recently demonstrated at the company's research campus in Niskayuna, where it traveled over 100 meters of pipe.

During Pipe-worm's demonstration, it used its whiskers to navigate turns, as well as changes in the pipe's diameter and in altitude. The robot uses artificial intelligence (AI) and the sensory data it gathers from its whiskers to automatically detect turns, elbows, junctions, pipe diameter and pipe orientation, among other things. The robot uses this information to create a map of the pipeline network in real time.

Cockroach whiskers are super sensitive, and are able to detect slight changes in the air and the environment around them.

"GE's Pipe-worm takes the concept of the plumber's drain snake to a whole new level," Deepak Trivedi, a soft robotics expert at GE Research who led the development of Pipe-Worm, said. "This AI-enabled autonomous robot has the ability to inspect and potentially repair pipelines all on its own, breaking up the formation of solid waste masses like fatbergs that are an ongoing issue with many of our nation's sewer systems. We've added cockroach-like whiskers to its body that gives it greatly enhanced levels of perception to make sharp turns or negotiate its way through dark, unknown portions of a pipeline network."

Like the autonomous giant earthworm robot, Pipe-worm has powerful, fluid-powered muscles, which make it strong enough for heavy duty jobs. In 2020, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency's (DARPA's) Underminer program awarded GE Research with a 15-month, $2.5 million project to demonstrate the feasibility of a robot-like Pipe-worm. The robot can also be used in support of military operations.

GE Research's Robotics and Autonomy team are looking to apply Pipe-worm's capabilities to other inspection and repair applications, like jet engine and power turbines in the aviation and power sectors. According to Trivedi, this application would involve a scaled-down version of the robot.

PayPal
customers to send money to Ukrainians

By KEN SWEET
ASSOCIATED PRESS BUSINESS WRITER

PayPal said on March 17 that its users will now be able to send money to Ukrainians, both in the war-ravaged country as well as those now refugees across Europe.

Previously, people in Ukraine were only able to use the payments platform to send money out of the country. They will now be able to receive funds, as well as make transfers within Ukraine and abroad.

The decision by PayPal came following a request from the Ukrainian government to open up its services to its citizens. "Thank you for supporting Ukraine and peace!" said Mykhailo Fedorov, the country's vice prime minister, on Twitter. It's the latest measure by banks and other financial services companies looking for ways to help Ukrainians impacted by Russia's invasion. PayPal cut off Russia from its services last week.

Since the war began, Americans and other supporters of Ukraine have been looking for ways to financially support Ukrainian refugees as well as those still in the country. People have booked Airbnbs in Kyiv or sent cryptocurrencies to Ukrainians. Money transfer companies like MoneyGram and Western Union have seen surges in demand as people look for ways to send money to friends and family in the region.

PayPal, which is based in San Jose, California, said it will waive fees on transfers of funds to Ukrainian accounts, or for anyone receiving funds in Ukrainian accounts until June 30. The funds in a PayPal account can be then transferred into the user's local bank or used as a virtual Visa or Mastercard, which is more common in Europe than in the U.S. Physical cards will also be eligible to receive PayPal funds.

PayPal's Xoom international remittance service is also waiving its transaction fees, the company said.

Tuesday, March 15

- Shortly after 5:00 p.m. police responded to a report about a shooting in a residential area on the 4200 block of Doane Street near the Irvington district. Arriving officers found a male suffering from gunshot wounds; he later died at the scene. Officers located a male suspect nearby and took him into custody. During the investigation, police closed Lindenwood Street between Crestwood and Doane streets for about three hours. The identities of the victim and the suspect were not immediately released, pending additional investigation.

UPDATE:

On March 15, 2022, at approximately 5:15 p.m., Fremont patrol officers were dispatched to an "Ascertain the Problem" call in the area of the 40000 block of Lindenwood St. As officers were responding, the incident was upgraded to a shooting and several callers advised that the victim was lying on the ground. The suspect also called Dispatch and advised that he had shot the victim and would await the arrival of officers. He advised Dispatch that he would relinquish his firearm when officers arrived on scene. Officers arrived on scene and located the shooter, who was identified as 77-year-old Colorado resident Franklin Earl Lynch. Lynch was taken into custody after he surrendered his firearm as instructed by responding officers. Officers and medical personnel provided medical aid to the 34-year-old victim; however, the victim was pronounced deceased at 5:32 p.m.

While investigating this incident, it was determined that a disturbance had occurred between the involved parties and escalated into a shooting. Lynch provided a limited statement to detectives; however, several witness statements have also been taken. The Fremont Police Department is currently investigating this case as a homicide and detectives are still conducting follow up to determine a motive. Lynch was booked at Santa Rita Jail and the case was presented to the District Attorney on March 17, 2022. The District Attorney's Office has charged Lynch with one count of murder, and numerous enhancements, including the use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

US grew wealthier, better educated in 2nd half of 2010s

BY MIKE SCHNEIDER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mar 17, 2022 — The U.S. grew wealthier, better educated, less impoverished and less transient during the second half of the last decade, according to data released March 17 by the U.S. Census Bureau.

Median household income for the nation, which had been almost $59,000 from 2011 to 2015, rose to almost $65,000 during the 2016 to 2020 period, which was the final stretch of the longest expansion in the history of U.S. business cycles, according to American Community Survey 5-year estimates.

With the exception of Colorado, the states with the biggest gains in household income were primarily on the coasts. The Rocky Mountain state joined the District of Columbia, California, Massachusetts and Washington with household jumps ranging from $9,000 to $14,000. The smallest gain was in Louisiana, at almost $1,800, and household income declined by almost $1,500 in Alaska.

The data released March 17 capture the second half of a decade-long expansion in the U.S. economy that followed the Great Recession. The expansion ended in spring 2020 as the coronavirus started spreading throughout the U.S., forcing businesses to close and workers to be laid off. The data captured only a small part of the initial impact from the pandemic, according to the Census Bureau.

The nation's poverty rate dropped significantly in the last half of the decade, going from 15.5% in the 2011 to 2015 period, in the aftermath of the Great Recession, to 12.8% in the 2016 to 2020 period. With the exception of Alaska, where its change wasn't statistically significant, poverty decreased in 49 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Along with the increase in household income and decline in poverty, home sizes got bigger. The number of owner-occupied homes with at least four bedrooms jumped from 29.7% to 31.3%

People were slightly less mobile in the last half of the 2010s, with 86.2% staying in the same home in the 2016 to 2020 period, compared to 85.1% in the 2011 to 2015 span. Young adults, who tend to move more than any age group, also slowed down their mobility, with 76.4% of people between ages 25 and 34 staying put compared to 75% between 2011 and 2015. Demographers say overall mobility in the U.S. has declined in recent years because housing construction hasn't kept pace with population growth, and the increase in the debt people carry makes moving more difficult.

The U.S. became better educated in the second half of the 2010s, with almost a third of the population over age 25 having a bachelor's degree or higher between 2016 and 2020, compared to 29.8% between 2011 and 2015.

Income inequality was slightly higher at the end of the decade, and it was at its highest level in the 2010s than in more than five decades that records have been kept. It declined in the District of Columbia and Texas, and it rose most significantly in Wyoming.

The American Community Survey provides the most comprehensive data on American life by asking 3.5 million households each year questions about commuting times, internet access, family life, income, education levels, disabilities, military service and employment. Disruptions caused by the pandemic produced fewer responses in 2020. Because of the low response rate, the 1-year version of the survey capturing year-to-year changes didn't measure up to Census Bureau standards and it only was released in an experimental format.

For the 5-year version of the American Community Survey released March 17, the Census Bureau revised its methodology to reduce the impact from the lack of responses.

Representative Eric Swalwell meets with Hayward High Leadership Class

SUBMITTED BY THE HAYWARD UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

Hayward Unified School District (HUSD) students and district and site leaders met with Rep. Eric Swalwell (CA-15) during a virtual meeting on Wednesday, March 16. Students were able to ask questions of Rep. Swalwell, who was on-site at the U.S. Capitol while Congress was taking votes.

Hayward High School students Calvin Yang, Nick Falk and Hannah Aunger asked the congressman questions about becoming more involved within their communities and the civic process. Rep. Swalwell, who called in from his phone, was able to share real-time images of the Capitol with the students.

The congressman told those on the call that he was sincerely impressed by this generation of young people who have experienced unique and unprecedented hardships due to COVID-19, social justice movements and more.

"It means a lot to me that you invited me to do this. What a time right now to be alive," Swalwell said during the meeting. "It's an honor to represent you in D.C. as we face some of the greatest challenges we have ever faced. You are living through times that have tested all of us, but you're in this pivotal moment, and you all have persevered, and you all are making it through this."

Rep. Swalwell also shared opportunities to get involved within their communities. He told students about internships within his Castro Valley and Washington D.C. offices and an upcoming initiative to be a part of a Youth Advisory Council that would consult him and his staff on issues.

Superintendent Dr. Matt Wayne said he was proud of Yang, Falk and Aunger for their initiative to invite the congressman and thanked Rep. Swalwell for his continued support of HUSD.

"These students are our future leaders, and we are incredibly proud of them for reaching out to their congressional representative and staying involved in their civic duties," Wayne said. "Eric Swalwell has truly been a partner to our schools, and for him to show up in this way and give our students this really unique learning opportunity speaks to that."

HUSD Board of Education Trustee Peter Bufete was present and helped students to organize the meeting. He said it was an honor to have Swalwell visit with the students.

"As we look to the future of our community and working with Rep. Swalwell, we know we're in good hands," Bufete said. "A special thanks to our students Calvin, Nick and Hannah who led this event. We could not be more proud of how well they represented Hayward Unified School District during the meeting with the congressman."
