For the Love of LEGO®

By KAREN MACLAUGHLIN

LEGO® is a combination of two Danish words which mean “play well.” Builders at the upcoming “Bricks by the Bay” Public Exhibition on June 25-26 had a lot of time to play well during lockdown. They have returned to this year’s in-person convention with the task of expanding upon the theme Looking Back. Hobbyists from across the nation will display their craft throughout the 22,568 square feet of the Grand Ballroom in the Santa Clara Convention Center, along with a variety of vendors who sell LEGO® elements, accessories and kits.

The event is run entirely by volunteers. Johannes van Galen has been an organizer since the first Bricks by the Bay held in Fremont when members of the Bay Area Lego Users Group (baylug.org) decided to start an exhibit like those in Seattle and Chicago. So many people showed up the

Pocket parks to be built in Castro Valley

By ANDREW CAVETTE

Two new pocket parks are being developed in Castro Valley on plots of land near highway 580. Both plots are owned by CalTrans.

Dragonfly Park along Castro Valley Boulevard and a separate park site along Strobridge Avenue are being developed by Forestr.org, a non-profit organization based in Castro Valley. Recently, Forestr.org developed a pocket park near the Castro Valley library.

Pocket park does not have an official definition. They are green spaces, often small, embedded into cities. Pocket parks are a way to purposely create a natural setting in an overlooked space.

The proposed plans for these new parks include fruit trees, native plants and perennial gardens. The plan for the un-named, second site (along Strobridge Avenue) also includes a dog park.

At first, Forestr.org founder, Yon Hardisty, simply wanted access to some public land to plant a redwood tree. He and his wife, Nimone Li-Hardisty, started a non-profit, Forestr.org in 2019, so they could work more easily with public agencies.

Li-Hardisty, CEO, expanded the scope of Forestr.org. She now has a team that cleans up litter, a team that designs and builds pocket parks, and an outreach team that provides food to local communities. Forestr.org grows food in smaller sections of some of their park spaces.

Yon Hardisty leads the clean-up team. When asked, he noted that pocket parks are different from landscaping.

“Landscaping focuses on the aesthetic of the land rather than your interaction with it,” Hardisty said. “We want to create spaces that invite the public to come and sit, to walk on [the land], to feel the soil as opposed to feeling the concrete.”

Men: Take Charge of Your Health

Fremont Urologist Urges Men to Focus on Prevention

Father’s Day is almost here and what do dads everywhere need? Good health! Dr. Mark Hsu wants fathers and all men to know they need to be more proactive about their health. As a urologist with the Washington Township Medical Foundation, Dr. Hsu treats a variety of health problems that men face, including prostate and urination issues, kidney stones, and erectile dysfunction.

“The biggest thing for men is that we tend to be reactive when we seek medical care,” he said. “We wait until something doesn’t feel right. But it’s important to be proactive. Get your health screenings and stay focused on prevention.”

This week is National Men’s Health Week (June 13-19), a great time to focus on your health. The annual observance is held every year during the week leading up to Father’s Day to raise awareness about the need for men to get regular health screenings to prevent serious health complications.

“I really encourage men to think more holistically about their health,” Dr. Hsu added. “I don’t believe that most men think about ‘overall wellness’ when they think of their health.”

Part of staying healthy is keeping your numbers in check, he added. High blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose levels increase your risk for a number of health issues like heart disease, stroke and diabetes. According to Dr. Hsu, these issues can often affect a person’s urinary and sexual health. He said men should consider getting an annual exam that includes preventive screenings for blood pressure, cholesterol, body mass index (BMI) and an A1C test to measure blood sugar.

“Lifestyle choices like exercising, maintaining a healthy weight, and eating a nutritious diet can help to keep these numbers down,” he added. “Cancer screenings are also critical when it comes to prevention.”

Cancer Screenings

Prostate cancer is the most common cancer for men in the U.S. and the second leading cause of cancer deaths among men, according to the National Cancer Institute. The prostate is a gland in men that helps make semen.

A PSA test is a blood test used to screen for prostate cancer. The test measures the amount of prostate-specific antigen (PSA) in your blood. Dr. Hsu recommends talking to your doctor to determine when you should get a PSA test and how often. It often depends on your risk factors for prostate cancer and whether you have had other issues with your prostate.

A colonoscopy is another tool for preventing cancer. It screens for colorectal cancer, the third leading cause of cancer deaths among men. The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends getting a colonoscopy starting at age 45.

Testicular cancer is a rarer type of cancer, but men should still do periodic self-exams for early detection, according to Dr. Hsu. He suggested getting into the habit of checking the testicles for any irregularities while in the shower, and to notify your physician if you feel or see an abnormality.

Don’t Forget Mental Health

“I think mental health is also a very underestimated and under-reported issue,” Dr. Hsu said. “We have been seeing a lot more anxiety and depression – especially since the pandemic. It’s important for men to think about their mental health and to not be afraid or embarrassed to seek help.”

Dr. Hsu encourages men to have a physical and mental outlet. Exercise, sports activities, and introspective activities such as meditation are not only good for your body, but can also help with mental health. Having a social network of family and friends is also very beneficial, he added.

“I really encourage men to be proactive rather than reactive about their health,” Dr. Hsu stressed. “Have a relationship with a regular health care provider who can follow you over time. They can help you get the appropriate screenings and refer you to the right resources needed.”

Avoid Tragedy at the Beach

Seminar Focuses on Sneaker Waves and Other Hidden Dangers

You’re going to the beach and you’ve packed sun screen, towels and other beach equipment. You know what the weather will be, but have you checked on what the tides will be that day?

Knowing the tide schedule at the beach your going to is critical. This information could save your life or that of one of your companions, according to Dr. Steven Zonner, a sports medicine expert and Washington Hospital’s Concussion Program director.

While many know rip tides can be dangerous, fewer have heard of sneaker waves. These waves appear suddenly on a beach where the water has been gently lapping on the shore. So called because it “sneaks” up on the beach, the sneaker wave is unexpected, large and strong, and it can knock an unsuspecting person off his feet and drag him out to sea in seconds.

Dr. Zonner will discuss sneaker waves, including how to identify beaches where they may occur, how to react if you experience a sneaker wave, and other important information about surviving sneaker waves at his 11 a.m., July 15 Washington Hospital online seminar: “Beach And Water Safety.” The free virtual seminar will take place on Facebook and YouTube. For more information or to register, visit www.whhs.com/events.

This Washington Hospital Health & Wellness seminar is co-sponsored by the Arunay Foundation. The Foundation honors Arunay Pruthi, a 12-year-old Fremont boy who was swept to sea in January 2021 while playing on a beach with friends and family. His body was never recovered. In an effort to prevent this type of tragic accident from happening to others, his family established the Arunay Foundation to increase awareness of dangerous tides along the coast.

Sneaker waves are common along the Northern California coast extending down past Big Sur and north up along the coast through Oregon and Washington. In the Bay Area, Baker Beach and Ocean Beach are particularly known for sneaker waves and rip tides.

Dr. Zonner recommends checking with the National Weather Service and/or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to learn about current tide conditions in the area you plan to visit. Tide information often is posted along beaches to warn visitors of conditions.

“It’s very important to check beach conditions in advance and to heed any warning signs you may see at the beach,” Dr. Zonner says. “It may save your life or that of a loved one.” And, he adds, never turn your back on the ocean. “The water can be lapping around your ankles one minute and up to your hips the next, knocking you over and sweeping you out to sea,” he explains.

“If you are swept off the beach by a sneaker wave, don’t fight it,” Dr. Zonner advises. “The best strategy is to relax and tread water until you no longer feel the pull of the tide and then try to swim back to shore. You may end up several hundred yards away from where you started but you should be safe.”

But, he adds: “The best way to stay safe is to learn about beach conditions before you go and to make sure you’ve taken all safety precautions while you are on the beach.”

first year that the following year they had to move to San Jose where the exhibit has been held ever since. Van Galen says that builders come from all walks of life, but usually have this one narrative in common: they started building when they were kids, went through a teen “Dark Age” of feeling they had outgrown it, then returned to the hobby with renewed passion after having kids of their own.

Volunteer and builder, Tiffeny Thompson, never experienced the teen Dark Age. She started building as a kid, has “never stopped building,” and now has a nine-year-old son who “builds all the time.” She coordinates the Town & Train creations and likes to see adults come together and realize that they’re not “weird” because they enjoy designing and building with bricks as much as the kids.

Exhibitor Jeremy Stevermer combines his love of bonsai and LEGO® to create one-of-a-kind, living, lighted designs. Growing up, Stevermer would buy a LEGO® kit and build it according to the specifications, then immediately take it apart and re-build it the way he wanted. This year he will be showing the latest version of his “LEGO Treehouse in a ficus tree” which, he says, is “hard to ignore” because, among other things, it pulsates with green lights. Julian Gomez, former Director of Advanced Technology and Chief Scientist for LEGO®, gave the first organized talk to convention-goers in 2010 about the company’s then effort to develop a digital version of the bricks in order to compete with growing video game markets. That initiative led to the LEGO® MINDSTORMS® series which builders, young and old, use to build their own programmable, moveable robots.

There are two Bricks by the Bay events to choose from this June. One is the two-day Public Exhibition for viewing and shopping. The other is a four-day Builder Convention in which workshops, presentations, games, and awards give participants the opportunity to acquire new skills and mingle with fellow fans. (Register online in advance for the Builder Convention.) One workshop teaches the standards and specs for building a “Great Ball Contraption” (GBC). Similar to a Rube Goldberg machine, GBCs are made up of separate LEGO® modules that form a continuous loop for delivering tiny LEGO® balls to whatever fate the creator intends. GBC builders can bring in their discrete modules and link them up with other people’s without any need to consult beforehand. Build by the Box, Build in the Bag, Individual Speed Build, Team Speed Build, and Brick Trader of the Galaxy are some of the names of the games available to compete in for prizes at the four-day Builder Convention.

Park It: Juneteenth Events

By NED MacKay

Juneteenth, now a federal holiday in the United States, commemorates the emancipation of enslaved African-Americans at the end of the Civil War.

The holiday is on the anniversary of an order issued on June 19, 1865 by Union Army General Gordon Granger, proclaiming freedom for enslaved people in Texas. This year it falls on a Sunday; East Bay Regional Park District offices will be closed on Monday, June 20 in observance, though of course the parks will remain open.

Activities celebrating Juneteenth are planned in three regional parks. All three programs are drop-in; no registration is required. One is a Juneteenth Celebration Hike from 10:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, June 19 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont, led by naturalist Maeron Yeshiwas. During the hike, Maeron will discuss Black contributions throughout history in the fields of science, conservation and art. Meet at the visitor center.

Parent participation is required. Masks are also recommended and social distancing must be maintained. Coyote Hills is located at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. For information, call (510)544-3220.

Nearby at Ardenwood Historic Farm, you can play baseball, a Juneteenth tradition, in a program from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, June 19. Naturalist David Cohen will preside, and talk about the history of America's second Independence Day. Ardenwood admission will be waived in honor of Juneteenth, and parking is free. The park is at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard in Fremont, just north of Highway 84. For information, call (510) 544-2792.

And since Juneteenth is also Father's Day, Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda will celebrate the double holiday with crafts and other activities between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on June 19. Craft activity will be ongoing; there will be a story circle at the start of every hour. Crab Cove is at 1253 McKay Ave. off Alameda's Central Avenue. For information, call (510) 544-3187.

The park district and Regional Parks Foundation are sponsoring free online Wellness & Fitness classes from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. every Thursday in June, celebrating Juneteenth and LGBTQ+ Pride Month. The program on June 16 is Pan African Dance. June 23 is a Cardio Dance Party, and on June 30 it's Zumba. To register, go to www.ebparks.org/DelValle/WF.

By the way, for an explanation of the symbolism of the rainbow-colored LGBTQ+ flag, go to www.ebparks.org/pride-month/pride-and-parks-all-are-welcome-here.

Reptiles are the focus of a program from 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon on Sunday, June 19 at the Environmental Education Center in Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley with naturalist Jenna S. Collins. Find out what turtles eat, how snakes move and what scales feel like, while meeting a couple of the center's reptile residents.

Then from 3:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. you can join Jenna and help to close the adjacent Little Farm for the night and put the animals to bed. Meet at the chicken coop for a variety of age-appropriate activities. Both programs are free of charge and registration is not required. The center and farm are at the north end of Tilden's Central Park Drive. Masks are required. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

Tuesday, June 21 is the summer solstice, the longest day of the year. The naturalists at Big Break Visitor Center in Oakley will mark it with a free, drop-in program from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., an evening exploration of the Delta. Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's Main Street. For information, call (510) 544-3050.

There's also a Summer Solstice walk with a naturalist from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, June 22 at Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch. The group will look for signs of summer while walking trails around the Somersville town site. Black Diamond Mines is at the end of Somersville Road, 3½ miles south of Highway 4. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle. The walk is free of charge, but registration is required. For registration and information, call (888) 327-2757, option 2.

Games, crafts and other activities are on the agenda during a Beach Break from 3:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 19 at Del Valle Regional Park south of Livermore. The park is at the end of Del Valle Road off Mines Road about nine miles south of town. The program is drop-in, free of charge. Del Valle has a parking fee of $6 per vehicle.

There's always a lot going on in the regional parks. For a complete program list, go to www.ebparks.org/things-to-do.

BART Board Focuses on Rider Experience

SUBMITTED BY BART

On June 9th, the BART Board approved a two-year budget focused on improving the rider experience with a continued commitment to running full-service levels prioritizing a clean and safe ride. BART riders will soon benefit from trains better spaced apart, especially on Sundays and during all evening hours, and increased service on Saturday evenings to better serve late-night workers and those who are taking BART to events, restaurants and other activities. The budget for Fiscal Years 2023 and 2024 includes a less-than-inflation-rate fare increase effective July 1, 2022.

The budget funds two impactful service changes in the coming months designed to provide efficient, equitable, and rider-friendly service. Beginning in September 2022, BART trains will run with more consistent intervals. Currently, evening service through San Francisco seven days a week and on Sundays has trains that are not well-spaced apart because of single tracking for rebuilding work. This pattern will come to an end and trains will be better spread apart, reducing wait times for many riders.

In February 2023, BART anticipates making a major investment on Saturday evening service by running five-line service until closure which increases frequency and reduces transfers for many riders.

BART’s budget supports the acceleration of hiring and training the staff most critical to putting out reliable service as BART responds to staffing challenges brought on by the pandemic. BART aims to hire more train operators and additional rail controllers, the employees who monitor and control train movement from the Operations Control Center. The service enhancements in the budget relies on being able to hire these critical positions.

The operating budget also includes funds to modernize two more underground restrooms at the Downtown Berkeley and Embarcadero stations as well as to continue providing restroom attendants at recently reopened underground restrooms at Powell Street and 19th St./Oakland, and soon to reopen Lake Merritt and Montgomery Street stations.

The budget reinstitutes a 3.4% fare increase that was originally scheduled to go into effect January 1, 2022, but was delayed by six months. The increase will add 15 cents to the average fare of $3.78. For example, a short trip from Downtown Berkeley to 19th St./Oakland would increase five cents while a longer trip such as from Antioch to Montgomery would increase by 30 cents. The fare increase, well below the current rate of inflation, is needed to keep up with the cost of providing safe and reliable service. It’s expected to generate about $15 million in additional revenue over FY23 & FY24.

This is the first time the Board has adopted a budget for two consecutive years instead of a one-year budget. The shift is an effort to assist a more strategic approach to long-term financial planning.

The total proposed FY23 operating and capital budget is $2.5 billion, with the largest amounts of capital funding directed toward purchasing new train cars, Measure RR rebuilding projects, and the Core Capacity Program to significantly increase service levels. These high priority capital projects will help BART meet the needs of the region for years to come.

Shape Our Fremont

Several new development proposals have recently been submitted in Fremont. Some are requesting a preliminary review to get feedback from city staff, while others are formal applications being finished. No matter where these proposals are in the process, they are all open to comments, questions, and concerns from residents. In fact, correspondence from the public is one of the most important parts of the review process.

Here are some of the latest new development proposals around town -- plus a few updates on existing proposals. The staff contact is listed for each proposal.

Irvington

North Coast Rentals LLC has submitted preliminary plans for the North Coast development on the southeast corner of Fremont Boulevard and Blacow Road. The existing NorCal Tire and Wheels building on this site would be demolished. The proposed development would consist of a single, stepped three-story and four-story building with 30 studio apartments and 2,600 square feet of commercial space. All parking would be on the site. This proposal is undergoing a Preliminary Review Procedure (PRP) and has not been submitted as a formal development application yet. Contact City Staff Team Lead Aki Snelling at asnelling@fremont.gov

CRP Affordable Housing and Community Development has recently submitted a formal application for the Arbor View development at 41868 Osgood Road on the east side of the road near the future Irvington BART station. This development would have 67 affordable housing units in an eight-story building with a parking garage on the ground level. A state-mandated density bonus that applies to affordable housing allows a taller building. Contact City Staff Team Lead Courtney Pal at cpal@fremont.gov

Mission San Jose

On May 5, the Historical Architectural Review Board (HARB) rendered a split vote (2-2-1) on the Mission Paradise formal application to build 11 townhouses, 2 flats, and 3,000 square feet of commercial space on the southwest corner of Washington Boulevard and Ellsworth Street. Because the proposal did not receive a majority in favor, it was considered denied. It is tentatively scheduled to be heard by the Planning Commission on July 14. Several residents wrote to oppose this proposal. Contact City Staff Team Lead Mark Hungerford at mhungerford@fremont.gov

Robson Homes has submitted a formal application for the Ellsworth Mixed-Use development on a vacant lot across from the post office on Ellsworth Street. This development would include 6 three-story townhouses grouped in attached duets facing Ellsworth, 5 two-story detached houses on a private street behind them, and 1 three-story detached townhouse facing Grove Street. Three commercial units with a total of 3,516 square feet of retail space would occupy a one-story building on the corner. Residential parking would be in garages and uncovered spaces on the site. Guest and commercial parking would be on the site and along the frontage on the surrounding streets. Contact City Staff Team Lead James Willis at jwillis@fremont.gov.

Centerville

City Ventures has submitted preliminary plans for a development at 37447 Fremont Boulevard in downtown Centerville. The existing 1932 Century House and the 1954 building that formerly housed Minerva's restaurant would be demolished. The proposed development would include 59 townhouses and 6,000 square feet of commercial space in several three- and four-story buildings. This is on the same parcels of land as a previous proposal which was withdrawn. This proposal is undergoing a Preliminary Review Procedure (PRP) and has not been submitted as a formal development application yet. Contact City Staff Team Lead Aki Snelling at asnelling@fremont.gov

The recently submitted Li Bao Li Townhomes formal application would include 10 townhouses in a pair of three-story buildings at 4467 Central Avenue. Parking would be in garages for the residents, with uncovered spaces for guests. Contact City Staff Team Lead Aki Snelling at asnelling@fremont.gov

In other news from Centerville, a revised version of the Sakoon Homes formal application to build a four-story building with 8 condominiums at 4092 Decoto Road was approved by the Planning Commission on May 11. The new version has one commercial building instead of two and a revised parking layout that includes two-level vehicle stackers. The commissioners were satisfied that these changes would resolve their previous concerns about parking and safety.

Pat Kite's Garden

L. Patricia [Pat] Kite's several garden books include KISS Guide to Gardening, Gardening Wizardry for Kids, Raccoons, Ladybug Facts and Folklore and Silkworms. They may be found at Amazon.com and Alibris.com.

Queen Elizabeth 1 of England [1533-1603] invented the Gingerbread Man. She had oodles of suitors and many guests, and was known to give a lot of gifts. Most of her gifts were those she had gotten and didn't want. But the Queen was also highly inventive. She had her bakers make gingerbread biscuits, but each was decorated and designed to resemble a specific suitor. The guests could then nibble on their own likenesses.

Ginger growing goes back at least 7,000 years. You can't grow it from seed. You need a piece of ginger root. While there are several ginger varieties, only Zingiber officinale is the food one. Today I found packaged roots at a local grocery store. The famed Chinese philosopher Confucius insisted ginger was to be on his table during every meal. He insisted food have taste. Ginger became a staple in Chinese cuisine: ginger tea, ginger wine, chopped and pickled ginger were part of the menu. Spicy ginger was also utilized in medicine. Chinese monks used herbal medicine to teach locals about the Buddhist religion.

Ginger meandered over to Japan where it also was utilized for taste as well as health intake. Aside from the pink pickled ginger [gari] next to your sushi, meant for cleaning the palate, there is hiyashiame to help you keep cool on a hot day, and shoga no sato zuke for travel sickness.

In addition to flavor, ginger and other spices were used to semi-preserve food and/or to hide the taste of edibles that had started to spoil. Spices were extremely profitable to adventurers. Portuguese explorer Vasco de Gama sailed around the dangerous Africa's Cape of Good Hope to reach India. He returned to Portugal with ginger root, nutmeg and cinnamon. The profit was at least 60 percent over all of his expenses.

Ginger got to Europe with the ancient Roman adventurers and India trade. When Rome fell, Marco Polo brought spices, including ginger, back into the taste buds. Of course, it was expensive. A pound of ginger was equal in price to one fat sheep.

Immigrants brought gingerbread to America. George Washington's mother added her recipe to the mix. Gingerbread houses got their start with Hansel and Gretel. In November 2022 there is the 30th annual national Gingerbread house competition in North Carolina.

If you want to grow edible ginger, Zingiber officinale, get fresh rhizomes [roots]. Cut into 2-inch pieces with buds. Plant in a pot of semi-moist soil. Water itsy-bitsy until you see growth. If you want to try the old English custom of finding a human husband, try eating gingerbread "husbands," or men, and see if it helps.

News and Notes FROM AROUND THE WORLD

SUBMITTED BY THE ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS

Once in a very long lifetime

What's in your bucket list? Perhaps you'd like to see the Pyramids in Egypt, go white water rafting or write a book, says the Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC). Not for Bertha Komor. This resident of Farmington, Connecticut says she has always wanted to pet a penguin. They're not so easy to find in that part of the world, but the local chapter of the Twilight Wish Foundation made it happen in time for the celebration of her 104th birthday. She was thrilled and kind of cuddled with the flightless seabird saying, "I didn't expect this. It's wonderful. Just petting the penguin and seeing him close up." See video of Komor and the penguin on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=C62KGbF85WY.

With the greatest of ease

And then there is Ruth Larsson of Motala, Sweden. It wasn't enough of a feat having made a tandem parachute jump two years ago when she was a mere 101 years of age, so she did it again -- this time at the age of 103 years and 259 days old. A Guinness World Record official was on hand to watch her as she flew through the air with the greatest of ease and declared her to be the oldest woman ever to make the jump. According to AMAC, Larsson replaced the previous record holder, Kathryn Hodges of Snohomish, Washington who was 103 years and 129 days old when she won the title in 2019. See video of Larsson's record-breaking jump on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=xcPSYp-ysjU.

Chase the cheese

The Cooper's Hill Cheese-Rolling race sounds like a pretty tame competition. It takes place each year in the quaint British village of Brockworth. But it's not for the faint of heart, warns AMAC. It was an officially sanctioned event until 2010 when things got a bit out of hand as the result of its growing popularity. Too many contenders were showing up causing near-riot conditions as contestants chased a nine-pound wheel of Double Gloucester cheese down a very steep hillside. Notwithstanding the likelihood of breaking an arm or a leg, the race continues to attract the hundreds of participants from all over the world. The dangers were heightened at this year's event due to wet weather. See video of the cheese-rolling contest on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=K40o7eiFEOQ.

The Association of Mature American Citizens is a nonprofit, nonpartisan advocacy organization representing membership in Washington, D.C. and in local congressional districts nationwide. More information is available on its website at www.amac.us.

Pocket parks to be built in Castro Valley

Forestr.org has developed partnerships with public agencies like CalTrans and the Alameda County Library system, as well as privately-owned land near businesses. They gather funding through corporate sponsorships and grants and design their pocket parks to be low-maintenance. As a team of volunteers from the community, Forestr.org offers to maintain the land long after they propose a design or build a park.

"What's very popular, unfortunately, is the planting of a tree and walking away," Hardisty said. "We treat the ecology of the land like a business."

Forestr.org provides public agencies and private landowners a five, 10, 15, sometimes 30-year plan to maintain the land.

Forestr.org has more projects beyond the two sites in Castro Valley. They are currently working with Harmony Court Beautification Project, a neighborhood coalition in the southern end of unincorporated Ashland.

"Harmony Park" is being planned inside a housing development located South of highway 238 and North of San Lorenzo Creek. The housing development was built in the early 1950s and the original plans for that neighborhood required an agricultural space to be included. A green space was built (where Harmony Drive and Court meet), but no one had time to manage it. That oval-shaped plot of land was later covered over with asphalt.

"It looks like a very large traffic turn-around in the neighborhood," Hardisty said, "but it is literally zoned for agriculture. It's supposed to be green space dedicated to that community... and it has been asphalt for almost a hundred years."

Hardisty was clearly excited by the project. "This is what I love most, because it's not a Forestr.org project... this is a Harmony Court project," Hardisty said. "But we got onto a phone call [Alameda County Public Works Agency] and they got a grant and were very willing to transform this space."

According to Hardisty, Alameda County Public Works Agency told him they would bring water to the plot, plant trees and genuinely asked what the community at Harmony Court wanted for the space.

According to Hardisty, they also insisted that the community maintain the park. Hardisty immediately volunteered Forestr.org to be the ones who worked with the community and to meet the needs of the new pocket park.

"Please just put it in," Hardisty told to the agency, "or let us put it in...I'll go get a corporate sponsor."

"Thankfully public works was super jazzed about doing it themselves," Hardisty said.

In a development meeting, according to Hardisty, Harmony Court Beautification Project and Alameda County Public Works Agency were excited to install green trees, fruit trees and above-ground vegetable planters. According to Hardisty, Harmony Park project will begin construction in October / November of 2022.

For more information on Pocket Parks visit Forestr.org.

Do you know the history behind Father's Day?

STAFF REPORT

Although Father's Day did not become a nationwide holiday in the United States until 1972, its roots stretch back many decades before that.

The annual celebration occurs on the third Sunday in June to honor fathers and other paternal family figures who help nurture and raise children and help provide for their families. According to History.com, Father's Day was actually created by a woman named Sonora Smart Dodd in 1909.

Dodd, who lived in Spokane, Washington, was one of six children raised by a widower. Although Mother's Day was already well-established, there wasn't an equivalent honor for male parents -- and Dodd was determined to change that.

She went to local churches, the YMCA, shopkeepers and government officials to drum up support for her idea, and she was successful: Washington State celebrated the nation's first statewide Father's Day on June 19, 1910.

Slowly, the holiday spread. In 1916, President Woodrow Wilson honored the day by using telegraph signals to unfurl a flag in Spokane when he pressed a button in Washington, D.C. In 1924, President Calvin Coolidge urged state governments to observe Father's Day.

When World War II began, advertisers began to argue that celebrating Father's Day was a way to honor American troops and support the war effort. By the end of the war, Father's Day may not have been a federal holiday, but it was a national institution. Finally, on April 24, 1972 President Richard M. Nixon signed a proclamation making Father's Day a federal holiday.

Today, according to History.House.gov, Father's Day is celebrated in 110 nations, although not always as an official holiday and often on different dates depending on each country's own tradition. In 2022, Father's Day occurs in the United States on Sunday, June 19.

The Rise and Fall of the Ohlone Owl

By STEPHANIE GERTSCH

Art can change the soul of a space. It can enliven an environment, inspire people to alter their routes, and finally, it can even spur on destruction. A student art piece at Ohlone College, featuring a pair of solemn barn owls nesting in a tree, touched on all these aspects.

The owls would not have fledged without the Lytton Center, which provides grants for student and faculty projects that benefit the Ohlone community. This project involved 12 students working with community build artist Amanda Larson to create five mosaic sculptures.

“The first thought was animals that you might see around campus or that are native to the area,” explains art student Nadia Nasiri. “I personally am a fan of predator birds. I feel like owls are hauntingly beautiful.” In addition to the owls, the class built leaping trout, a snail, turtle, and beetle—all endangered species.

Nasiri took up art classes when she returned to the Bay Area a few years ago. She was delighted to reconnect with Ohlone ceramics instructor Katherine Frank. “Funnily enough, Katie was my teacher my freshman year. This was 20 years ago.”

“It’s so sterile on campus because it’s new,” Nasiri reflects. “A lot of the character that used to be here is pretty much wiped out.” 2010’s Measure G allowed Ohlone’s campus to be updated with new buildings, but they’re stark and bland. Student murals and sculptures add needed texture.

So, what goes into making an owl? First, you have to make a tree—in this case with red clay rolled into coils and wrapped into a cylinder. Amanda Larson recommended a sturdy clay that could withstand temperature fluctuations outdoors. The owls are made of several flat clay pieces fitted together to form a 3D animal.

“This was the largest scale sculpture anyone in this art group had ever done,” Katherine Frank says. “We’re in a brand-new art building. We have two huge gas kilns. So we wanted to take advantage of that.”

“I thought we’ll do a smaller scale project,” she admits. “But when creativity is involved you can’t necessarily do small. When students have a vision, you must go through with it!” she declares.

Larson the mosaicist originally recommended store-bought tiles to add texture to the owls in their tree, but Frank the ceramicist pushed for handmade. “Nadia made so many handmade tiles,” Frank laughs. “SO MANY handmade tiles.” The final sculpture combines colorful glass and mirror pieces, as well as tiles hand textured by Nasiri and curved to fit the tree. Tiles were glued on in a thin set, then grouted over, which holds them in place even while exposed to the elements.

Frank reflects, “Amanda [Larson] was saying that for a public art piece like this because there were all these handmade tiles, and the scale, that it would be 5,000 – 7,500 dollars.”

“It was super important to this group that the owl was high enough that it was making eye contact,” remembers Frank. “I was like, ‘Really? You need your tree stump THIS tall?’”

“No, we’re going big,” Nasiri told her. “We’re the biggest group; we’re going big.”

The piece enchanted the campus. Frank remembers, “So many people stopped us or emailed me and said, ‘Oh my god that owl.’ Or, ‘I’ve stopped parking on that side of the campus and I’m parking over there now so I can see the owl.’”

The owl went up Friday, May 13. “It was literally an entire semester’s work,” says Nasiri. “We had done a student critique where we went to everyone’s projects, talked about how it turned out and how it could be positioned better.” She adds, “Then that next day it got vandalized.”

Some ne’er-do-well knocked over the tree, pried the owl loose, and kicked it across the courtyard and down two hills, leaving a trail of clay shards behind. “It was devastating,” says Frank. “Saturday morning I was sick, and I got a text with a photograph of the tree on the ground and owl bits.”

“Katie [Frank] had emailed our class just so we wouldn’t come in and find it in that way,” Nasiri recalls. Before she saw the email, another group member messaged her with a crying emoji. “I don’t know where my mind went, but I couldn’t figure out what he was going to tell me. He said, ‘Katie emailed us; somebody vandalized the owl!’ I was like, ‘No way.’”

One day of elation turned into harsh disappointment. “This is my 21st year here, and we’ve never had this happen before,” Frank says. “Our work has always been so respected. I was stunned.”

Nasiri remembers trying to patch up the sculpture the day after, and a couple of teachers walking by asking, “What happened to the owl? Is it in the owl hospital?” She could only shrug and answer, “It’s gone.” Still, she concludes, “I do not regret making this. Even though it took all semester. Even though there were bumps in the road and frustrations with collaborating.” When passersby learned of the owl’s sad fate, they reiterated how much they enjoyed the piece. “Their response of how much they appreciated it was so meaningful for me to hear.”

For now, a succulent has been installed on top to prevent people from sitting on or climbing the tree, while the baby owl keeps watch from a hollow below. Even better, the Lytton Center has offered another grant for students to rebuild the owl in the fall. (They also paid for the plant.)

Since the vandalism happened late on a Friday when campus was closed, the culprit was likely an outsider. Still, the timing of the biggest project getting targeted the day it went up seems more than a little fishy. Unless someone comes forward with more information, the case of the Ohlone Owl remains a real Hoo-dunnit.

Plankton

They may be teensy, tiny little things, but plankton are hugely important!

They are hard to see, but these tiny living things in the ocean are important to our entire planet. They are food for many sea creatures. And they make much of the oxygen we breathe.

The word plankton comes from the Greek word planktos, which means "drifter." Their name fits because plankton do not swim on their own. Instead, they drift through water. When the water moves, they move with it.

Powerful Plankton

Though they are quite tiny, swarms of this plankton are so huge they can be seen from space! Circle every other letter to discover its name.

How many of me can you find on this page?

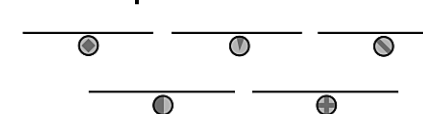

How many plankton are in a teaspoon of water?

How many would you guess? Use the secret code to discover the surprising answer!

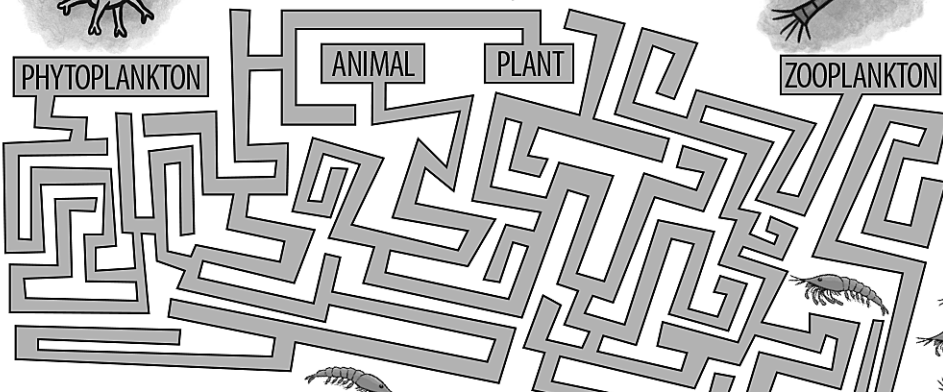

● = SIX ● = HUNDRED ● = THAN
● = MORE ● = MILLION ● = PLANKTON
● = LESS ● = THOUSAND ● = ONE

A teaspoon of water can contain

Are plankton plants or animals?

The answer is both! There are two main types of plankton: phytoplankton (fi-toe-plank-ton) and zooplankton. Follow the maze to discover which are plants and which are animals.

A Breath of Fresh Air

Phytoplankton make more than half of the oxygen in our world. Think of it this way, every time you take four breaths, two of those breaths came from oxygen made by phytoplankton through photosynthesis. So even if you live far from the ocean, you depend on it to survive!

Extra! Extra! PH = F

In English, when the letters p and h are next to each other, they make an F sound.

Words like phytoplankton, phone, photograph and pharmacy. Look through the newspaper and find letters to spell each of these words. Glue the letters onto a piece of paper, spelling out each word. Then read each one aloud.

Ocean Food Chain

Plankton is made up of tiny, usually one-celled plants and small water animals such as larvae and eggs. Zooplankton and other small marine creatures eat phytoplankton and then become food for fish, crustaceans, and other larger species.

Complete this food chain diagram by drawing an ocean predator (shark, orca, barracuda) here:

Kid Scoop® Puzzler

The world's largest animal, eats up to 16 tons of plankton daily. Ten adult men together would weigh about one ton. So 16 tons of plankton would be equal to the weight of 160 men. Good thing it likes plankton and not people!

Color the spaces with odd numbers blue to reveal the animal's name.

City of Fremont Offices will be closed June 20 in Recognition of Juneteenth Holiday

On June 17, 2021, President Biden signed the “Juneteenth National Independence Day Act” into law, which designates Juneteenth National Independence Day as a legal Federal holiday. The Juneteenth National Holiday commemorates and celebrates the historical significance of June 19, 1865 nearly nine decades after our Nation’s founding and more than 2 years after President Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. Enslaved Americans in Galveston, Texas, finally received the word that they were free to mark the end of slavery in the United States.

In July of 2021, Fremont’s City Council recommitted to diversity, equality, and inclusion throughout the City of Fremont, by asking staff to analyze and present for Council consideration the recognition and celebration of Juneteenth as a paid City of Fremont holiday commencing on or near the date of June 19, 2022. Consistent with City Council direction, the City of Fremont will honor Juneteenth as a new annual federal holiday on June 20, 2022.

All City offices will be closed on June 20, 2022 in honor of the federal holiday. The closure will not affect public safety field services.

National Night Out is August 2

Join Fremont Police Department staff along with community organizations, neighborhood groups, and City leaders in celebrating the 39th Annual National Night Out on Tuesday, August 2.

Participate in National Night Out by organizing a block or neighborhood party.

Many will organize barbecues or ice cream socials where neighbors share good food, laughter, and updates on what is happening in the neighborhood. (Please visit the Alameda County website at <https://covid-19.acgov.org/index.page> for guidelines on how to safely host a gathering.) National Night Out provides the opportunity for neighbors to get to know each other a little better and sends a strong message to criminals that our community will look out for each other by reporting suspicious activity in their neighborhood. Throughout the night, Fremont Police Department staff will make visits to the registered parties where they will share information, network, and answer questions that community members may have.

Registration is now open for Fremont community members to register their parties to participate in this year's event. You can register your event with the Fremont Police Department at www.fremontpolice.gov/community/events/national-night-out/national-night-out-party-registration.

The registration deadline is 5:00 p.m. on July 1, 2022, to be considered for a visit by the Police. Our goal is to provide each party with one visit from City staff, but it will be dependent upon the number of parties and staff who sign up to participate.

If you plan to block off your street for your celebration, you will need to obtain a block party permit from the City of Fremont by contacting Marc Cleveland at 510-494-4543 or email mcleveland@fremont.gov. The deadline to file for a permit is Friday, July 1, 2022 at 5:00 p.m. and the cost of the permit is $20. Information regarding the City’s block party permit can be found at www.fremont.gov/permits/special-event-permit.

To learn how other communities celebrate National Night Out visit the National Association of Town Watch online at <https://natw.org>.

If you have questions about National Night Out in Fremont, please call the Fremont Police Department’s Community Engagement Unit at 510-790-6740.

MFMII Talent Hunt

SUBMITTED BY VEERA KAZAK

Stars shone bright in Music for Minors II's (MFMII's) first virtual children's talent hunt on May 14, 2022. Over 200 children in kindergarten through sixth grade in Fremont, Newark and Milpitas Unified MFMII schools, entered their musical talents on video as individual, group or class singers and instrumentalists.

A MFMII panel of judges then selected the final nominees for the exciting event. Fremont Unified School District Superintendent CJ Cammack and Niles School principal Diana Brumbaugh were some of the award presenters. All participants received participation certificates and goodie bags including free books donated by Half Price Books in Fremont. Individual first place winners received medals and class winners, a trophy.

MFMII thanks our Star event sponsors for their support: 4Imprint, Blackhawk Museum, Oakland Zoo, Castro Valley School of Music, Half Price Books, Safeway, Allegro and Kumon. A special thank you to Intero Foundation for their ongoing support of MFMII.

The nonprofit MFMII's mission has kept music in children's classrooms and lives since 1988 and has offered countless annual in person performance opportunities in the community since then with the last one being at Harbor Light. The nonprofit has kept music in the schools virtually since 2020 as it is committed to children in need of music, now more than ever. This MFMII's Got Talent 2022 performance opportunity offered children their chance to shine, even if it had to be virtually.

On May 21, MFMII honored its volunteers with a Year-End Volunteer Recognition Event in the park that highlighted the service of its community volunteer Music Docents, Board of Directors, and part-time staff. The event highlight was honoring the extraordinary service of two MFMII volunteers Docents Claire Sauret and Trupti Ramball, with the annual "In Harmony Service Award." Their names are engraved on the large plaque which honors recipients "for continued excellence in making the musical difference in children's lives." This award has been presented annually since 2005. MFMII thanks our community sponsors Dale Hardware, Chipotle, Chick-Fil-A, Body Shop, Walt Disney Museum and Kendra Scott.

MFMII Kids Choir "Sing for Spring" Concert in May was also a huge hit and their special performance at the Rotary Club of Silicon Andhra, Milpitas on May 22 was sensational! District Governor Richard Flanders was the guest of honor and the choir was honored to have been asked to entertain him. The choir is an afterschool group of 40 students in grades one to six under the directorship of Lydia Concepcion, former MFMII volunteer Docent and private voice and piano teacher.

The choir welcomes new members in August. Visit www.musicforminors2.org/kids-choir.

MFMII will be offering its annual music docent training class in September. The commitment is to take the free training and then volunteer to share 30-minute weekly music lessons in a school classroom for the school year. Contact us at: www.musicforminors2.org, recruitment@musicforminors2.org or (510) 733-1189.

Growing Tomatoes in Pots

By MELINDA MYERS

Keep garden-fresh tomatoes close at hand this season. Grow one or more in containers on your patio, balcony, or front steps.

Any tomato can be grown in a pot, but determinate varieties are smaller and more compact, so they are a bit easier to manage in a container. They produce fruit in a relatively short period of time, making them great choices for preserving as well as using fresh. Look for a D or determinate on the plant tag, seed packet or in the catalog description.

Indeterminate tomatoes, often identified with an I, are large, sprawling plants. These are usually staked or grown in wire cages to save space, reduce pest problems and make harvesting easier. They continue to grow, flower, and produce fruit until the frost kills the plant. Indeterminate tomatoes usually produce more tomatoes, but the harvest is later in the season than determinate varieties. New containers with built-in trellises or creative gardeners crafting their own makes growing indeterminate tomatoes in pots an easier possibility.

Grow one tomato per container for maximum productivity. Use a five-gallon or bigger container for large varieties and at least a two to three gallon or similar size pot for smaller varieties. Some research suggests growing tomatoes in a pot that is at least 14 inches but preferably 20 inches wide will yield greater results. Adding flowers and herbs to the container boosts the beauty and diversity of your container garden but will reduce the number of tomatoes produced.

Growing tomatoes in containers also allows you to extend the season. Start earlier by moving the planter inside when the weather is harsh and back outside when the weather is warm and sunny. As the weather turns cold at the end of the growing season, cover the planter or move it into a frost-free location as needed. Some gardeners even move a pot or two inside to finish off the tomato season.

Grow tomatoes in a container with drainage holes or a self-watering pot that has a reservoir to hold water and extend the time between watering. Further reduce the need to water by adding an organic, sustainable soil amendment like Wild Valley Farms' wool pellets (wildvalleyfarms.com) to the potting mix. Made from wool waste, this product reduces watering by up to 25%. Adding a low nitrogen, slow-release fertilizer at planting will eliminate the need to fertilize weekly. Just make a second application if needed mid-season.

Plant tall tomato transplants a few inches deeper than they were growing in their container. Remove the lowest leaves that would otherwise be buried in the soil. Cover with soil and water. This is also a good time to install any stakes, trellises, or cages to support taller varieties.

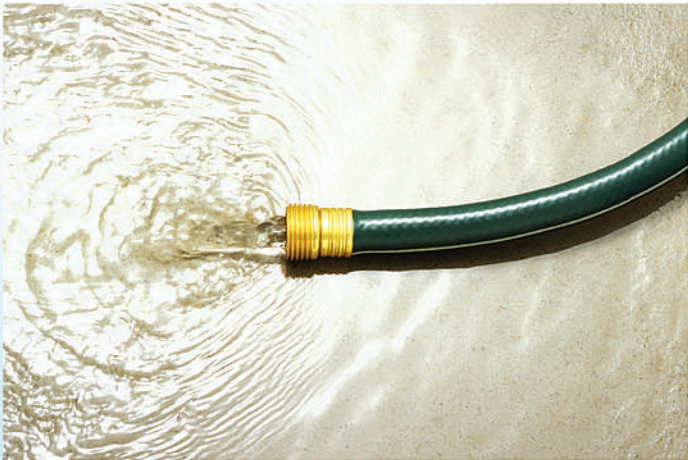

Initially, check tomatoes growing in containers every day and water often enough to keep the developing root system moist. Reduce watering frequency as plants become established. Feel the top few inches of soil and water the established plants thoroughly whenever this is dry. Mulch the soil with evergreen needles, shredded leaves, or other organic mulch to keep the soil consistently moist and suppress weeds. Consistent soil moisture encourages more flowering and fruiting, while reducing the risk of blossom end rot, cracking, and misshapen fruit.

Harvest tomatoes when fully colored or leave them on the plant a few more days for an even sweeter flavor. You'll enjoy the convenience of harvesting fresh tomatoes right outside your door for use in salads, sauces, and other favorite recipes.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: JUNE 14, 2022

All Signs: This is a marvelous week to socialize! Reach out to friends, or widen your social circle by meeting new people. It’s not just this week that promises fun energy – the next several weeks are perfect for summertime socializing! Mercury is in Gemini, which makes everyone eager to communicate. The Full Moon on Tuesday is powerful. Act on every chance to do good because what goes around comes around.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

This is an upbeat week for you because the Sun and Mercury combined make you want to take short trips and talk to everyone. You have a busy schedule of errands and appointments. Meanwhile, with fiery Mars in your sign, you have energy to do what you want; and lucky Jupiter (also in your sign) is bringing you good fortune and divine protection. Meanwhile, Venus in your Money House will attract money and entice you to buy beautiful things for yourself and loved ones. Be patient and helpful on Tuesday's Full Moon.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

Your ruler, fair Venus, is in your sign now, which makes you warm and diplomatic when talking to friends. In fact, you will want to make peace if there is dissension. It's the perfect time for vacations, parties, socializing, or doing whatever gives you pleasure. Basically, when Venus is in your sign, you will put pleasure above work. Nevertheless, let us not forget that you are the financial wizard of the zodiac, so you're also going to keep an eye on your money and cash flow.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

This week the Sun is in your sign, pumping you with energy. And now your ruler Mercury joins the party! This makes you want to express your POV. Your mind will be busy, which is why it will jump from topic to topic. You will have a strong urge to get out and travel, preferably short trips. You will enjoy physical activity, (especially competitive) with groups. As I mentioned last week, many of you are still dabbling in secret love affairs. Go with the flow while your mind is exploding with ideas.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

Like everyone else, you will feel a strong urge to socialize this week. Nevertheless, unlike others, you still have a desire to keep a low profile or work alone or behind the scenes. Therefore, the choice is entirely yours. Be patient with coworkers at the beginning of the week. After the Full Moon peaks on Tuesday, these relations will become smoother. Act on your ambition because Jupiter is at the top of your chart making you look great in the eyes of others; and this blessing comes only once every 12 years.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

Enjoy the company of friends as well as groups, clubs and organizations. You will especially enjoy meeting new faces. In particular, you might be stimulated by hanging out with younger people, who make you feel younger. One of the reasons you feel good is because people admire you. Meanwhile, your urge to get outta Dodge is strong! Take a short trip so that you can get a change of scenery. This is a good week to think about goals. Likewise, examine your attitude towards groups. Do these people benefit you?

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

The Sun is still at the top of your chart, which means it is casting a flattering light on you. This is why bosses, parents and teachers are impressed with you even if you don't do anything special. As Mercury starts to move across the top of your chart, you will contemplate more serious plans about your career. You might decide to take up a new study. Communications with others, especially bosses, will be important. Meanwhile, because travel for pleasure still appeals, grab every chance to take a short trip.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

You are one of the most sociable signs of the zodiac, and this week ahead is full of opportunities to enjoy the company of others. Nevertheless, be careful at the beginning of the week because Tuesday's Full Moon will create an accident-prone influence for you. Think before you act or speak. In addition, Mars is opposite your sign, creating tension with partners. Aside from that, it's a fabulous week to travel and meet people from other cultures. Romance will be passionate and affectionate. Gifts, goodies and favors from others will come your way.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

Financial issues come to a head at the beginning of the week – no question. Likely, they will involve banking, bills, taxes and shared property – possibly inheritances. However, like others, you want to party this week, especially with Venus opposite your sign. When Venus is opposite your sign, it is literally the best position for all relationships – love affairs, friendships, coworkers, even enemies. In part, this is because you will more easily express your affection for others. Plus, you are motivated to get along.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

Is this a marvelous week to socialize and have fun with others? Yes. Does this week have the only Full Moon in your sign all year? Another yes. Therefore, be careful Sunday and Monday before the Full Moon on Tuesday, because you will feel tension building with others, especially partners and close friends. However, once you pass that speedbump, fiery Mars will make you want to have fun. Playful activities with kids, sports, entertainment – are all great choices. Invite coworkers, because right now, relations with them are excellent.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

This is a marvelous week to socialize and enjoy friendly encounters. Nevertheless, your primary focus is to work efficiently and get things done. Both the Sun and Mercury want you to roll up your sleeves and get busy, but fair Venus wants you to party! That means a week where you will do both. Work hard, party hard. Increased activity and chaos on the home front continue to be a challenge.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

This week is play city for you! You're ready to have fun, and fortunately, so is everyone else. Invite someone over. This will motivate you to redecorate and tweak your digs. You also want to travel, explore and talk to others, especially young people. Check out sports events and fun diversions. (After all you are the networker extraordinaire of the zodiac.) You love reaching out and connecting people because this makes you feel fulfilled in a worthy way.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

Live for today. Plan for tomorrow. Party tonight! This is your motto not only this week, but in the month ahead. Admittedly, Tuesday's Full Moon might create tension at home on Monday. Fear not because this will be quickly resolved. You have a strong focus right now on home and family. In fact, many of you are tackling home repairs and having family discussions. Fortunately, Venus will make your words sweet. You're tempted to buy a lot of stuff right now – do you really need it?

TriPaw Tales translated into Spanish

SUBMITTED BY PAMELA ADLER

Maddy & Mia: TriPaw Tales, by local author Pamela Adler, has been translated into Spanish! This children's book about a three-legged rescue poodle and her girl, debuted two years ago on June 3, 2020. The Spanish version became available this month on June 13. The book can be purchased on Amazon; link available on the author website at www.pamelaadler.com. Readers can also see photos of the real tri-paw Mia, learn about upcoming events & watch a video titled "Mia's Story" which tells how Mia was found and rescued.

Adler will also be hosting a booth at the Niles Dog Show on Saturday, July 16. Copies of Maddy and Mia: TriPaw Tales (English only) will be available for purchase and anyone who purchases or brings a copy to the booth can get it "signed" by Mia and have a photo taken with her!

The Role of Technology in Promoting Wellbeing: Youth Wellness Ambassador Aditya Mittal

happy. So, when the user is feeling sad, the app can recommend playing tennis or other activities to help alleviate the user's mood," he further described.

After Mittal was able to see his efforts have a fruitful outcome; he was invited by the City of Fremont to lead the annual Wellness Ambassador Program. "What started with me listening in to a [discussion] now allowed me to lead the program," he said. Working with the program, Mittal decided to call the 2021-2022 ambassador project, "The Role of Technology in Promoting Wellbeing." That was what spurred the development of the program for the upcoming session.

As their project grew, Mittal guided them to research into the trillion-dollar wellness tech industry and the changing landscape of digital health. The program then created a survey that spread across Fremont to learn the prevailing trends of technology usage and how it was being used to benefit wellbeing. "The responses showed how the youth perceived technology as a positive force and how they wanted to use it to promote wellbeing through healthy eating, fitness, task organization, like Zenn Path, and to regulate the use of technology itself," said Mittal.

Mittal's app skyrocketed after he stumbled upon a wellness discussion, and he is now using his knowledge to better the wellbeing of those negatively affected by the pandemic. This is only the beginning of Mittal's findings within the complex world of technology in wellbeing.

Youth Wellness Ambassadors on Zoom

BY PRIYANKA SHAH

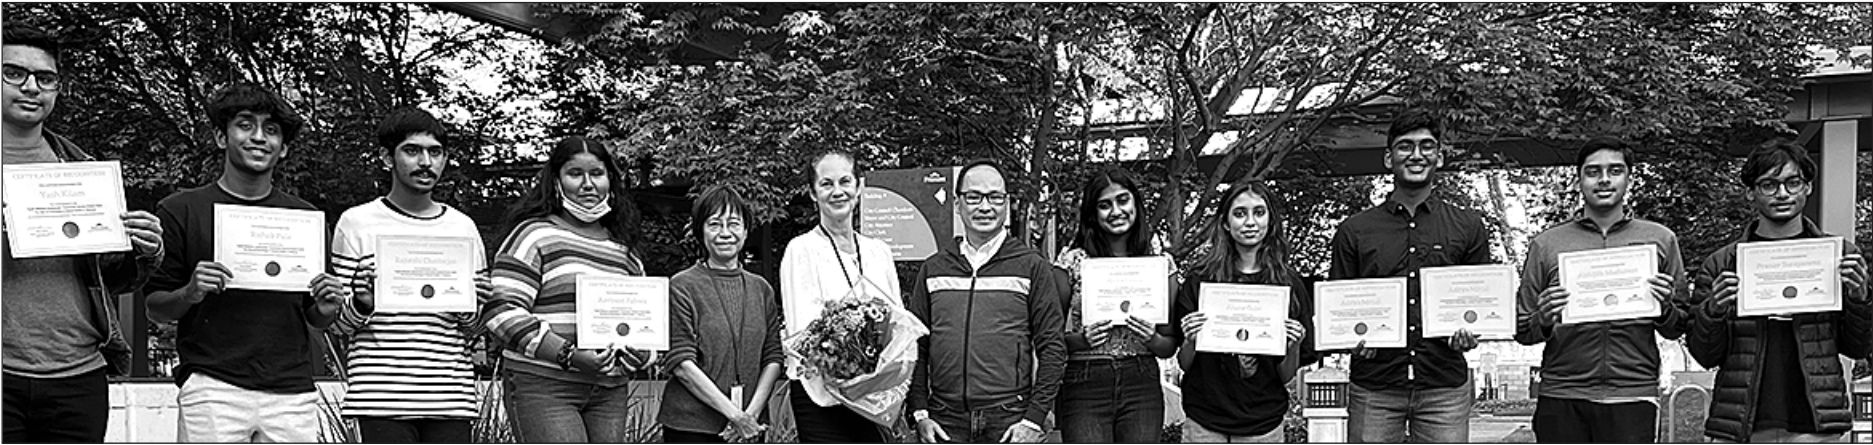

Amidst the chaos of the pandemic, like others, Aditya Mittal found himself in a slump. "The lack of structure due to the absence of school and the bell schedule took a toll on me. I found myself surrounded by wads of post-it notes and makeshift to-do lists," said Mittal. Everything changed when Mittal stumbled upon a wellness discussion that was hosted by the Fremont Youth Wellness Ambassadors Program from 2019 to 2020. The discussion struck a chord in Mittal when he realized that it was the drag of the lockdown routine and cycle of depressing news that was taking a toll on his mental health.

At the time, Mittal was learning about IOS app development, and decided to do more research on how mood affects productivity. He realized that most productivity apps failed to take into consideration how the user was feeling. "I did a little research and I came across several scientific studies that empirically showed that positive emotions can actually increase something called cognitive flexibility, and negative emotions can impair it. In simpler words, if you were happy, you were more productive," Mittal explained. After his disappointing research, he formed a concept for a mobile app that would combine both task and mood management to intelligently recommend ways to boost productivity.

What was once a faceless idea that Mittal had has now become a fully developed app that can be found on the IOS app store. Dubbed "Zenn Path," the app, enables users to track their mood and their mood associated activities, which then matches their data with their to-do list. The app then recommends ways to help the user maximize their individual results. "If a user is happy on a particular day, they can enter that they are feeling happy, and also what made them happy. That data point allows the app to realize that the user likes playing tennis, and playing tennis makes them

FreeWire Locates Its Global Headquarters in the East Bay

By ASOK CHATTERJEE, BUSINESS REPORTER

Founded in 2014, FreeWire Technologies is the leading manufacturer of battery-integrated EV charging stations and power solutions in the U.S. The Company's fully integrated Boost Charger plugs into existing and ubiquitous low-voltage utility service (such as PG&E in the East Bay) and delivers high-power charging in areas that typically require extensive grid upgrades.

The Boost Charger's combination of proprietary battery and power conversion technology enables ultrafast EV charging at all locations, freeing customers from the costs of providing fast charging using power directly from the electric grid.

On May 24th, FreeWire Technologies Inc. showcased its new Global Headquarters, R&D, and Manufacturing Facility in Newark. The launch event provided an inside look at the company's new 66,000-square-foot facility to accelerate the development and introduction of new ultrafast charging and energy storage solutions while delivering hundreds of high-quality manufacturing and engineering jobs across the community.

The event was graced by Alan Nagy, Mayor and Mike Hannon, Vice Mayor of Newark, and other invited guests. At the brief opening ceremony Arcady Sosinov, FreeWire's Founder and CEO, and an alumnus of UC Berkeley said “State and federal policymakers set ambitious and necessary electrification goals to foster an electrified future. The Newark facility boasts an impressive footprint. FreeWire, and our technology stand ready to meet this moment with the urgency and innovation it demands.”

The facility, located at 7200 Gateway Boulevard, will create more than 200 well-paying engineering and manufacturing jobs in electrification and clean energy across the community. The facility will be fully operational by Fall 2022, putting FreeWire at the center of the San Francisco Bay Area's transportation technology hub.

The headquarters facility will focus on manufacturing and scaling FreeWire's Buy

On a related note, Phillips 66 has recently signed a letter of intent with FreeWire in support of its first electric vehicle charging program in the United States. The two companies will explore opportunities to deploy FreeWire's technology in Phillips 66 filling stations and other strategic locations.

Someone's been eating my porridge!

In 1837, there were three bears, but no small child with golden hair. Instead, the tale, published by English poet Robert Southey, featured an old and disagreeable woman who enters the home of three amicable, hospitable bachelor bears out for a walk while waiting for their porridge to cool. The old woman breaks Wee Bear's chair, eats his porridge and falls asleep in his bed. Upon discovery by the returning bears, the old woman runs away. Prior to Southey's version, the story circulated with some variations as a cautionary admonition for children who lack self-control.

Over time, the characters changed to become a bear family – papa, mama and baby – and a small, more innocuous, fair-haired child. Joseph Cundall's re-creation, eventually named Goldilocks by Flora Annie Steel, no longer a disruptive, disreputable hag, teaches a lesson about respecting the possessions of others and finding a solution that is "just right."

In elemental fashion, Goldilocks and the Three Bears is a study of extremism and the search for what is just the right balance between them. The disruptive, destructive and juvenile behavior of Goldilocks is juxtaposed with a calm and orderly bear habitat. It's a tale of an uninvited guest, softened by use of a small child as the intruder, in an interesting study of a complex problem. Goldilocks found satisfaction by sampling possessions of others, but did so under negative circumstances she created.

Although a fairy tale usually reserved for young children, applying the Goldilocks experience to current events does have relevance. Watching and listening to the hearings of the January 6, 2021 US Capitol invasion, some comparisons are unavoidable. The mob involved might claim they were invited to enter the Capitol, but legitimacy is questionable; methods and tactics totally unacceptable.

As more information has become available, it is evident that the experiment with extremism has not, so far, resulted in finding a just right solution to societal angst. So far, in this contemporary story, the chair has been broken, porridge sampled and bed prepared. The bears have returned to find their orderly house in disarray and spread the alarm.

A message and parallels are clear. Can we find the right balance between extremes? Can our house be put back in order? Are we represented by the young girl with golden hair that will return to her family having learned a lesson of moderation and self-control? Or, are we the hag who runs off into the woods having learned nothing?

Facebook fails again to detect hate speech in ads

By BARBARA ORTUTAY
ASSOCIATED PRESS
TECHNOLOGY WRITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP), June 9 -- The test couldn't have been much easier -- and Facebook still failed. Facebook and its parent company Meta flopped once again in a test of how well they could detect obviously violent hate speech in advertisements submitted to the platform by the nonprofit groups Global Witness and Foxglove. The hateful messages focused on Ethiopia, where internal documents obtained by whistleblower Frances Haugen showed that Facebook's ineffective moderation is “literally fanning ethnic violence,” as she said in her 2021 congressional testimony. In March, Global Witness ran a similar test with hate speech in Myanmar, which Facebook also failed to detect. The group created 12 text-based ads that used dehumanizing hate speech to call for the murder of people belonging to each of Ethiopia's three main ethnic groups -- the Amhara, the Oromo and the Tigrayans. Facebook's systems approved the ads for publication, just as they did with the Myanmar ads. The ads were not actually published on Facebook. This time around, though, the group informed Meta about the undetected violations. The company said the ads shouldn't have been approved and pointed to the work it has done to catch hateful content on its platforms. A week after hearing from Meta, Global Witness submitted two more ads for approval, again with blatant hate speech. The two ads, written in Amharic, the most widely used language in Ethiopia, were approved. Meta said the ads shouldn't have been approved. “We've invested heavily in safety measures in Ethiopia, adding more staff with local expertise and building our capacity to catch hateful and inflammatory content in the most widely spoken languages, including Amharic,” the company said in an emailed statement, adding that machines and people can still make mistakes. The statement was identical to the one Global Witness received. “We picked out the worst cases we could think of,” said Rosie Sharpe, a campaigner at Global Witness. “The ones that ought to be the easiest for Facebook to detect. They weren't coded language. They weren't dog whistles. They were explicit statements saying that this type of person is not a human or these type of people should be starved to death.” Meta has consistently refused to say how many content moderators it has in countries where English is not the primary language. This includes moderators in Ethiopia, Myanmar and other regions where material posted on the company's platforms has been linked to real-world violence. In November, Meta said it removed a post by Ethiopia's prime minister that urged citizens to rise up and “bury” rival Tigray forces who threatened the country's capital. In the since-deleted post, Abiy said the “obligation to die for Ethiopia belongs to all of us.” He called on citizens to mobilize “by holding any weapon or capacity.” Abiy has continued to post on the platform, though, where he has 4.1 million followers. The U.S. and others have warned Ethiopia about “dehumanizing rhetoric” after the prime minister described the Tigray forces as “cancer” and “weeds” in comments made in July 2021. “When ads calling for genocide in Ethiopia repeatedly get through Facebook's net -- even after the issue is flagged with Facebook -- there's only one possible conclusion: there's nobody home,” said Rosa Curling, director of Foxglove, a London-based legal nonprofit that partnered with Global Witness in its investigation. “Years after the Myanmar genocide, it is clear Facebook hasn't learned its lesson.”

PG&E pleads not guilty in deadly 2020 California wildfire

ASSOCIATED PRESS

REDDING, Calif. (AP), June 9 -- Pacific Gas & Electric on June 9 pleaded not guilty to involuntary manslaughter and other charges it faces after its equipment sparked a wildfire that killed four people and destroyed hundreds of homes in Northern California two years ago, prosecutors announced. PG&E was arraigned at a court in Redding on 31 criminal counts and enhancements, including four counts of involuntary manslaughter, after being accused of recklessly starting the Zogg Fire, the Shasta County District Attorney's Office said in a brief statement. A preliminary hearing in the case was set for January. The wind-whipped blaze began on Sept. 27, 2020, and raged through rugged terrain and small communities west of Redding, killing four people, burning about 200 homes and blackening about 87 square miles of land. Last year, state fire investigators concluded the fire was sparked by a gray pine tree that fell onto a PG&E distribution line. Shasta and Tehama counties have sued the utility, alleging negligence. They say PG&E failed to remove the tree even though it had been marked for removal two years earlier. The utility says the tree was subsequently cleared to stay. The district attorney determined that the company was criminally liable for the fire and charged the utility last September. The charges PG&E faces include enhancements for injury to a 29-year-old firefighter who was hit by a falling tree that fractured his spine, paralyzing him from the chest down. They also include felony arson counts linked to several fires started by the utility's equipment in Shasta County over the last year. PG&E, which has an estimated 16 million customers in central and Northern California, filed for bankruptcy protection in 2019 after its aging equipment was blamed for a series of fires, including the 2018 Camp Fire that killed 85 people and destroyed 10,000 homes in Paradise and neighboring communities.

96 segments of streets are included in the Fiscal Year 2022 PIP with nearby residents affected receiving 72-hour notice of the exact time of work. Work is being done by contractor Bay Cities Paving and Grading, Inc. Street segments included in this year's project were chosen based on the city's evaluation of current pavement conditions, public and City Council member input and opportunities for efficiency through geographic grouping of improvements. The annual PIP is funded through a combination of Alameda County Measure B and BB transportation sales tax revenue, gas tax revenue, state vehicle registration fees, and the California Road Repair and Accountability Act of 2017. To learn more about the project visit www.hayward-ca.gov, then enter “Fiscal year 2022 pavement improvement project” into the search box and follow the link.

In-Person Learning: Student Perspectives on the Transition Back

By NANKI KAUR

From creating virtual classrooms to using online whiteboards, the concept of education has been forever changed by the pandemic. Teachers, administrators, and students alike had been wondering what the future of education looked like for the incoming generation of learners. And as our world began to recover from the onset of COVID-19, schools around the Bay Area also began to resume in-person learning. Jumping back into daily interactions with staff members, peers, and the overall environment of school wasn't so simple, though. After spending almost two years at home, the abrupt transition from logging into a screen every morning, to having to encounter throngs of students in cramped hallways took a toll on the mental health of some students. "In quarantine, during my sophomore year, it was hard because I wasn't around anyone. [I] was so isolated. But, when we came back into school, it was quite the opposite... it was just so many people," Isha Kale, a local high school junior, explained. "I felt really overwhelmed [in my first semester] and it definitely took more adjusting to be like 'Oh, there's actually a lot more people around me now.' Of course, my mental health improved going into second semester because I was more adjusted to being around so many people." Some students, like high school senior Emyr Ortiz, felt that the return had a positive effect on their social-emotional health. "Being able to personally see the people you know and enjoy spending time with on a daily basis, your friends, teachers, teammates, classmates, it really keeps you connected with the support groups we all rely on," he shared.

Students also began to notice a difference in their academic mindsets and abilities since returning, as they tried to re-familiarize themselves with in-person learning. "The return led me to more exhaustion and burn-out. As a person who is filled with extracurricular activities such as Student Government and various clubs, it was tiring having to stay after school a minimum of an hour to even six hours. On top of that with taking honors and AP classes, it was very draining," Kiarra Bautista, a sophomore at a local high school, noted. Ortiz added, "The return to in person learning has definitely taken some adjustment and relearning. As much as people tried to maintain academic rigor and integrity during the Zoom years, the fact of the matter is it wasn't the same. You could get away with a lot more, stuff slipped through the cracks easier, it was harder to maintain motivation, the consequences for falling behind weren't as real. It was all through a screen." Nandini Dharwadkar, a freshman, provided some insight on how the switch also affected the perspective of high school for the incoming classes, as they entered an entirely new institution with higher levels of academics without actually completing middle school. "Coming into high school was intimidating at first, especially since I would be in a school with people much older than me and the courses would be much more difficult, not just because of my grade level, but also because in distance learning, expectations of the students were low, and retaining information that I learned from a screen was quite difficult." While this sudden transition has been tough in some aspects for students, the students agree that the overall experience of coming back has been enjoyable, allowing them to reconnect both academically and socially. "The pros of the return to an in-person learning environment was the ability to pay attention easier," Bautista noted. "During our online year, there was no way I could've possibly stayed in one place. I had snacks on one side of my desk, my computer in the middle, and my phone on the other side of it. So many distractions led me to just being there in the class rather than learning. This year led me to pay more attention and putting down my phone for once." As a freshman who has just started her high school career, Dharwadkar shares that she is "definitely looking forward to an enriching experience by staying involved in sports, clubs, and other activities as well as meeting so many new people in high school not only to make up for what I may have missed in middle school, but also to make the best out of my four years in high school." Overall, this school year, despite its ups and downs, has been refreshing for some. "Especially after seeing all that the last two senior classes missed, with drive-through graduations two years ago, or missed proms, missing extracurriculars, nonexistent sports seasons, or school events, I can't really complain that much. I'm grateful for what I get to have this senior year," Ortiz said. Others, such as Dharwadkar and Bautista, are hopeful to enjoy future school events with fewer restrictions. As the school year wraps up and seniors prepare to bid farewell to the school they've called home for the past few years. Students are optimistic for a full return to normalcy in the coming years.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Complete Streets

Before the advent of the automobile, streets were arteries for walking, biking and horse riding, and people gathered on street corners, in commons, gardens, marketplaces, plazas, and churches. Much later on, after World War II, suburbs built streets to move cars at high speed. Too often, streets in suburbs have shoved city life aside. In the early 2000s, a new generation of urban planners, transportation engineers and recreation advocates brought back the old notion of "complete streets." They designed streets for a mix of vehicular and pedestrian uses, with public spaces like plazas, parks and open green spaces. According to the National Association of City Transportation Officials, "'The complete streets concept and movement has come out of the idea that streets need to be more than just places for cars to move quickly. Streets are public places where people can connect with each other and move around their city in ways that are safe and equitable.' Cars give way to people, and cars move at a kinder, gentler pace. The city of Fremont has embraced complete streets, and plans to reconfigure transit corridors including Decoto Road and downtown Centerville. Four intersections at Walnut Avenue have been reconstructed, to showcase the concept of complete streets. Walnut Ave extends eastward past Mission Blvd, where Walnut becomes Morrison Canyon Road. The first two blocks of Morrison Canyon Rd have homes and curb parking on both sides of the street. Beyond that, the road carries hikers and bicyclists another two miles with 900 ft of elevation change up to Vargas Plateau Regional Park. A rather inexplicable traffic sign is posted there, that declares "No Stopping Anytime on Morrison Canyon Road." This would block parking alongside the road, and stop homeowners from parking on the street. Pedestrians and bicyclists wanting to use Morrison Canyon Trail would have to park in nearby neighborhoods. The parked cars could irritate the neighbors. If the city were to crack down on roadside parking in the name of "public safety," it would lose sight of complete streets and make access to our trails and parks more difficult. Curb parking is also prohibited in front of two acres of "surplus" land set aside for a city park near Pickering Ave. We call upon planners and transportation officials to extend the "complete street" for Walnut Avenue farther eastward towards Morrison Canyon and Canyon Heights Drive. The city should not return to the post World War II era, when cars ruled our streets and parking was prohibited to move traffic faster. "Complete streets" should put pedestrians, park visitors and bicyclists first.

Solar power nonprofit receives statewide honor

SUBMITTED BY JEFF BARBOSA

SunWork Renewable Energy Projects, a nonprofit company working to make the adoption of solar power more economically practical for homeowners, preschools and others, has been selected as NonProfit of the Year for Senate District 10. In a June 8 announcement, State Senator Bob Wieckowski, said SunWork, based in Milpitas, is one of more than 100 honorees selected by state legislators to be honored on California Nonprofits Day. The organizations selected for the honor address a diverse range of issues including climate change, food insecurity, at-risk youth, domestic violence, mental health and arts education. SunWork installs solar electricity systems in the Bay Area and Central Coast to help customers with modest energy use make the switch to renewable power. It trains homeowners and volunteers to work on its projects to reduce expenses. "Addressing the threats posed by climate change is a primary focus of our state and we must continue aggressively transitioning to a clean energy economy by investing in renewable power and reducing greenhouse gas emissions," Wieckowski, said. He is chair of the Senate's Budget and Fiscal Review Subcommittee on Resources, Environmental Protection and Energy. "The SunWork team -- our amazing volunteers, customers, and staff -- have been helping to chip away at the problem of carbon-polluting electricity generation for over a decade, one solar rooftop at a time," said SunWork Founder and Executive Director Reuben Veek. He added that the company has installed more than five megawatts of solar capacity across more than 1,000 preschools, shelters, meal centers, places of worship, nonprofit organization headquarters, and low-energy-use homes. Wieckowski represents the 10th District in the State Senate. Constituents who need information or assistance on state issues can call the senator's district office at (510) 794-3900 or send an email to <https://sd10.senate.ca.gov/contact/email>.

Fremont 4th of July Parade nonprofit took innovation to heart during the pandemic, as they kept the festive 4th of July patriotic energy going in the Fremont community, with a Porch Parade in 2020 that over 20,000 fans viewed on Facebook Live. This was a friendly competition that engaged the entire city and brought people together when they needed it most...and while social distancing.

They pivoted once again in 2021 with a hybrid Porch Parade in 2021 with headquarters at Saki's Spin A Yarn parking lot. Grand Marshal in a Jeep, Supervisor David Haubert in a fire truck, and Oakland Harley motorcycles paraded by. Mayor and City Council presented their "Community Heroes" and other vibrant activities and porches streamed again on Facebook Live.

This year they can once again produce a live parade, on the usual route that begins at the Main library on Stevenson, travels north on Paseo Padre Parkway, and ends at City Hall on Capital Avenue. This year's parade has increased marching bands entries and many of the favorite entries will appear again, such as Citizens for Better Community, Fremont Football and Cheer, and Oakland Harley Motorcycle group. New entries will be the BMX Team USA and the Bay Area Panthers/Indoor professional football team dancers.

Sal Castenada, KTVU anchor/reporter will serve as event Grand Marshal and Fremont Family Resource Center as community Grand Marshal. The Center is being honored for its work assisting families through the pandemic and providing resources for newly resettling Afghan refugees in the Tri-City area.

The Porch Parade continues, but this year they will forego the competitive nature and offer up bragging rights and opportunities to share patriotic decorative talent here in Fremont. The website will soon post a signup link and an interactive map with decorated porches, yards or balconies to be viewed at your leisure.

Monday, July 4, 2022 the Parade begins promptly at 10 a.m. Announcers Brandon Sass and Steve Coulthard will guide the crowd through entries and likely conduct some fun interviews on Facebook Live. Huge thanks to their top tier sponsors, City of Fremont, Fremont Chevrolet and San Francisco Bay University.

For the first time, there will be a "Parade After Party" hosted by Tri-City Nonprofit Coalition in the Downtown Event Center Plaza. Nonprofits will come together with games, activities and give aways. There will be music and live performances by local nonprofits including a sneak preview of Starstruck Theater's summer production of Les Miserables. Food Trucks and Das Brew will be in the plaza adding to Parade After Party festivities.

Admission is free; food and beer are available for purchase. They are thankful for Event Sponsor Alameda County Supervisor David Haubert, Community sponsors Fremont Chamber of Commerce and Citizens for Better Community and media sponsor Tri-City Voice.
