After more than two years of darkness, Niles Essanay is opening their theater for Charlie Chaplin Days, Saturday and Sunday, June 25 – 26. The weekend will be packed with film screenings in the vintage theater, a walking tour of downtown Niles, a special rail bus trip from Niles Canyon Railway, and a virtual and in-person Charlie Chaplin lookalike contest! Niles Film Museum is thrilled to welcome the community back to safely celebrate this piece of local history.

The film museum will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days, but now for the first time since the Covid shutdown, guests will be able to see silent films in the theater such as "The Champion," "A Night Out," and "A Jitney Elopement." (Please bring a 50-cent donation; check the website for the full schedule.) There is limited seating for all showings, and Saturday's evenings show "The Gold Rush" requires tickets purchased online.

ChamberFest Returns!

THE MISSION CHAMBERFEST

This summer's Music at the Mission "ChamberFest" concert opens with the delightful Haydn "Gypsy" Piano Trio (piano, violin, cello), followed by the CPE Bach Trio Sonata in Bb Major, H.578 (flute, violin, cello, piano), Mozart Piano Trio, K. 496 (piano, violin, cello), and Beethoven Spring Sonata (violin, piano). "Summertime" from Porgy and Bess (flute, piano), one of Gershwin's most popular works, concludes the concert program.

"Through Music at the Mission's ChamberFest, we hope to open our students' eyes to the idea that there can be more to playing music than simply practicing at home by yourself. While solo playing and practicing are a critical part to music education, it's an incredible experience to find a community of musicians who love to make music together," noted Dr. Katherine Lee, ChamberFest Director.

Dr. Lee is passionate about providing local young musicians with opportunities for playing chamber music. She founded Happy Notes Music Camp in her hometown of Fremont in 2003, and later joined Music at the Mission as a board member, chamber musician, and Director of ChamberFest, the annual classical music festival that culminates in a Festival Concert.

"Due to the pandemic, it has been three years since our last ChamberFest in 2019. So first and foremost, the number one highlight is actually being able to

New trauma center approved in Fremont

Morris Hyman Critical Care Pavilion, specifically designed around trauma center requirements; opened in 2018

SUBMITTED BY GISELA HERNANDEZ

Alameda County Emergency Medical Services Agency (ACEMSA) has approved Washington Hospital Healthcare System (WHHS) to be designated as the county's next level II adult trauma center within five years. While this decision follows an extensive yearlong evaluation of the county's current trauma system and trauma needs, Washington Hospital has been preparing to become a trauma center for more than two decades.

Results of the study commissioned by ACEMSA found that while Alameda County's trauma system is currently functioning well, Alameda County will need one additional level II trauma center in the next five years based on projected population growth and trauma volume, and to minimize the number of patients sent to another county for trauma care. It was determined that with WHHS's trauma-ready facilities and decades of preparation to become a trauma center, it is well positioned to meet the needs of trauma victims in the South County Area within five years.

"Approval to become Alameda County's next trauma center is a major milestone in Washington Hospital's 64-year mission to meet the health care needs of our District residents," said Jeannie Yee, president of Washington Township Health Care District Board of Directors. "For years our community has asked that we bring trauma care to the community, and now we can finally say that trauma care will be available locally within five years."

WHHS began preparing to become a trauma center two decades ago when it first announced its long-term Facility Master Plan, which was designed for the campus to expand. In 2018, the

When and Why You Should Be Screened for Breast Cancer

Local Physician Provides Latest Medical Information at Free Online Seminar

Getting your routine breast cancer screening is among the most important steps you can take to lower your likelihood of death from breast cancer. Breast X-rays, called mammograms, can identify breast tissue abnormalities and signs of breast cancer early, before it has spread to any other area. The five-year relative survival rate of localized breast cancer is in fact high, at 99 percent.

Presenting the latest science on how breast cancer is detected through mammography and when screening for breast cancer is recommended, Bettina Kurkjian, MD, FACOG, will be featured in an online Health & Wellness Seminar hosted by Washington Hospital Healthcare System (WHHS). The seminar, titled “Breast Cancer Screenings: When and Why,” will take place on July 26, 2022, at 3:30 p.m., and can be viewed on Facebook and YouTube. There will be an opportunity for the audience to ask questions on Facebook during the presentation, or to submit questions in advance by emailing them to communityoutreach@whhs.com.

“Dr. Kurkjian is an expert in obstetrics and gynecology, who has spent decades providing women with the highest level of preventive care and treatment,” says

Christine Mikkelsen, RN, a certified breast health navigator at Washington Hospital’s Women’s Center. “In the July 26 seminar, she will explain the risk factors that make breast cancer screening so important, and the advantages of state-of-the-art 3D mammography for detecting irregularities in breast tissue that may warrant additional testing.”

In the U.S., women are diagnosed with breast cancer more than any other type of cancer except skin cancer. It is the second most common cause of death from cancer in women after lung cancer. And as women age, their chance of contracting breast cancer increases. That said, Mikkelsen reminds us that the earlier cancer is detected, the more likely it is that treatment will be successful. “With knowledge comes power. The good news is that breast cancer screenings can decrease the number of women diagnosed with difficult-to-treat, late-stage cancer, and increase the life expectancy of those diagnosed with breast cancer,” she says.

At the Women’s Center, Mikkelsen provides information and training to patients, and helps them access the center’s many services. “Even routine screenings can be stressful for some people. My role is to help make patients’ experience at the center as comfortable as possible. If something irregular is seen in the X-rays, I discuss with the patient what additional imaging studies or diagnostic procedures she may need, and help her set up follow-up appointments.”

“With our digital mammography capacity, the Women’s Center is able to provide patients with a powerful diagnostic tool. Our 3D mammogram creates a three-dimensional image from multiple scans taken at different angles. The radiologist then has more information with which to make an assessment,” she explains. 3D mammography lessens the likelihood that a patient will have to return for additional imaging because the initial image is clear and detailed (even with very dense breast tissue) and can be magnified and optimized as the radiologist needs.

Mammograms have the potential to detect breast cancer sometimes as early as three years before a physical lump in the breast can be felt. Mikkelsen notes, “Although there are some cancers that aren’t detected through screening, mammograms are the best chance we have of finding breast tumors before they are detectable clinically.” In her seminar, Dr. Kurkjian will discuss what happens during a mammogram appointment, and how this safe and quick exam saves lives.

Patient Care Isn't Always Just Physical

Washington Hospital Spiritual Care Team Offers Support During Stressful Times

Being a patient in a hospital can make a person feel isolated, scared or lonely. One person may worry about what the doctor is going to tell them about their condition and what the future holds. Another may grieve the loss of independence that accompanies illness, and feel sad about not being the person they used to be.

The Spiritual Care Program at Washington Hospital Health System (WHHS) addresses those feelings for all patients, regardless of their religious beliefs or spiritual affiliations. "Unlike a physician, the spiritual care provider doesn't fix anything," notes Washington Hospital's Spiritual Care Coordinator, JB Goodier. "We help people who request our services express their emotions related to being ill; to articulate their feelings; and, ideally, to get to a more optimistic view of the future."

For some people, spiritual rituals help them release their feelings and come to accept their new normal.

For others for whom religious practice is part of their lives and culture, the Spiritual Care Program offers the services of 25 specially trained volunteers who represent many belief systems, including Buddhist, Catholic, Hindu, Jewish, Muslim and Protestant. These volunteers are available to meet with any patient who requests a visit.

And for those patients who have no formal belief system, "A spiritual care volunteer can provide a listening ear and a nonjudgmental, supportive presence for reflection and companionship," notes Goodier, whose personal practice is Buddhism. "I am trained as a meditation instructor, which can help patients emerge from a state of agitation or pain to become more grounded in the present moment," he says.

Helen Campbell, a Eucharistic Minister of the Catholic Church, says she was drawn to this field "as I watched and worked with families struggling to understand and cope with illness, end of life issues, and the loss of loved ones. I am humbled and amazed to be part of this caring plan."

The Washington Hospital Spiritual Care Program also includes a grief support group that is open to members of the local community. John Reynoso, a participant in that group, recalls losing his best friend in 2018. "The best part of me died that day," he says. "But going to the grief support group JB leads helped me see that I wasn't floating out on the ocean by myself. Other people were dealing with the waves, too. Sharing my grief helped soften the blow, though the healing is never complete."

Three types of spiritual care providers

The corps of volunteers who are part of the Spiritual Care Program are usually in one of three categories.

First, there are those who provide a specific religious service, such as Eucharistic ministers or priests. They make rounds in the Hospital once or twice every week. This group also includes Spanish-speaking providers.

Second, are religious leaders who are on call and come to the Hospital when requested. Such a person may be an imam, a rabbi, a Tagalog-speaking Christian minister, or other religion-based spiritual care provider.

And third, are a group that has had formal training at a seminary and then gone on to a specialized training program in clinical pastoral care, which includes an internship at a hospital or other health care institution. They are at the Hospital a couple of days a week. Some of these volunteers share on-call duties, so there is always someone available for urgent needs during off-hours.

Deacon Chuck Glover, an ordained clergy in the Catholic Church, comments that "we offer prayers when requested, but often just serve as a presence to people during their time of need." He and his wife Sherry, a Eucharistic minister, both volunteer to be part of Washington Hospital's Spiritual Care Team.

Admitted patients and their families are informed about these services so they can request them if needed.

An all-volunteer corps

"All of our trained spiritual care providers are volunteers," says Goodier. "Their motivation to participate varies, but all are driven by a desire to serve their fellow community members."

Rabbi Sean Raman notes, "Volunteering in this program helps me focus on what is really important in life – the people around me. I'm grateful to the Hospital for allowing me to serve the community in this manner."

Joy Barnitz, a seminary-trained hospital chaplain, echoes Rabbi Ramon's sentiments. "Volunteering in this way is very rewarding, and I feel a deep connection with patients and families. That connection became even deeper during the pandemic – which created a lot of loneliness and isolation."

Jan Schafir, With a Brush in My Hand

SUBMITTED BY SUSAN HELMER

In March, Fremont lost a vital member of the art community with the passing of Jan Schafir. This talented watercolorist and lacemaker taught and influenced countless artists in Fremont and beyond. Besides teaching locally, she also taught classes in Yosemite; La Romita, Italy; and even on cruise ships.

She was my first painting teacher when I moved to Fremont. She had a talent for encouraging you and not destroying a budding artist with criticism. Her deceptively easy and loose style was effective in capturing scenes from nature. Her watercolors were what is known as "juicy." I still use some of the techniques that Jan taught. Her works have been included in several watercolor books. She was in a least three of the Splash watercolor books published by North Light Publishing.

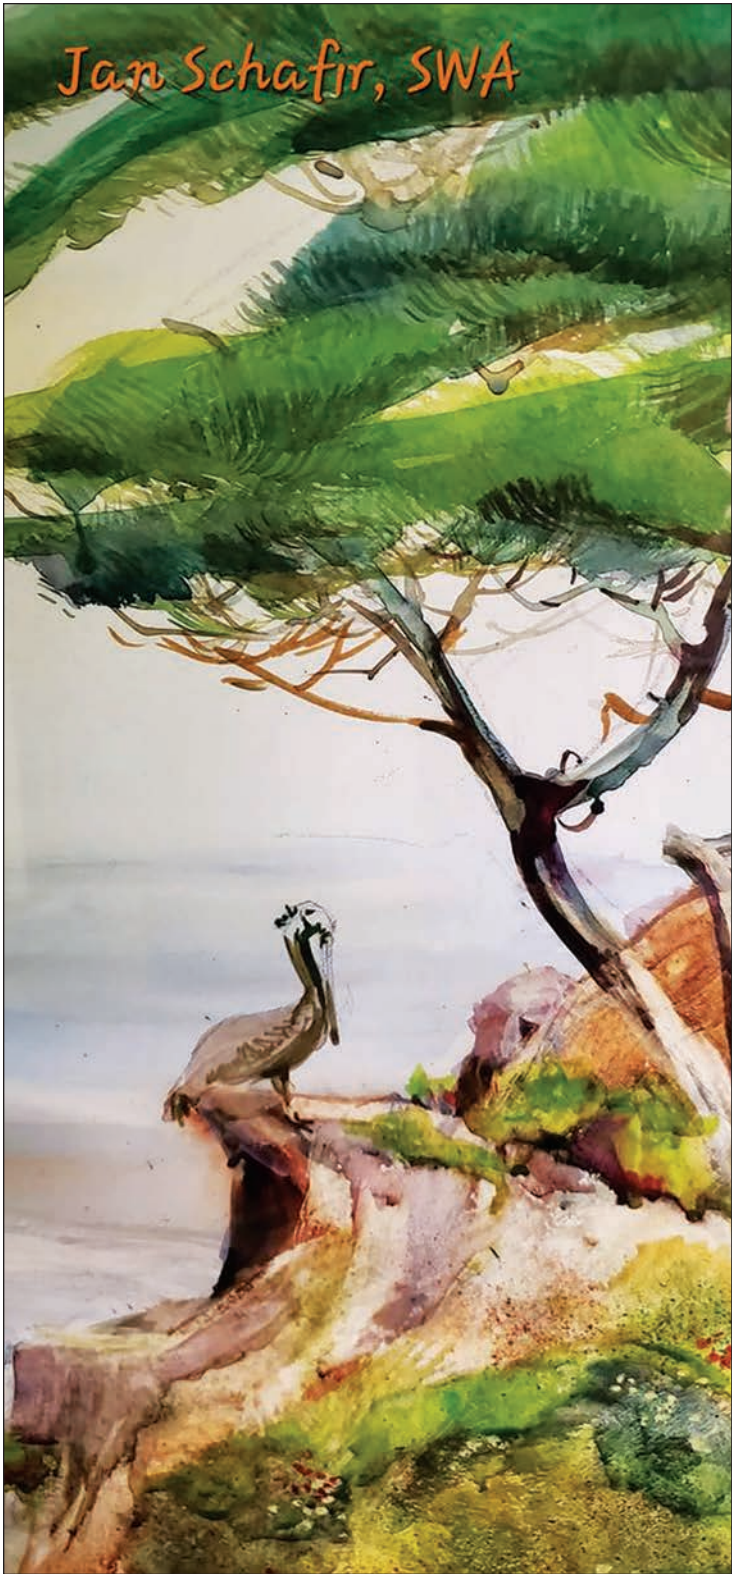

In 1996, she started an artist co-op with four other artists called Jan's Art Studios on Fremont Boulevard. She still continued to be active in local art groups such as Olive Hyde Art Guild and Fremont Art Association where she helped found what is now Fremont Art and Wine Festival.

Fremont Art Association is hosting an exhibition of Jan's work during the months of May and June. The gallery is open Saturday and Sunday from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. There will be a reception and gathering of friends on Sunday, June 26 from 12 noon to 3 p.m. All are welcomed to this celebration of art.

'Nothing replaces the in-person experience': Bay Area Showcase Chorus is back in-person

BY DHOHA BARECHE

When the COVID-19 pandemic broke out in 2020 and altered the social aspects of everyday life, Bay Area Showcase Chorus continued to rehearse over Zoom. This Milpitas-based women's barbershop chorus has been around since 1965 with over 100 active members, however, the pandemic brought that number down to 50. Music Director Julie Starr said the chorus enjoys singing in unison with each other, but Zoom only allows members to sing one at a time. "What we really are is a performing group," Starr said. "So when you can't perform, people tend to lose their enthusiasm."

Despite the drop in membership and lack of enthusiasm, the group continued to meet virtually every Thursday, and leadership found creative ways to keep spirits lifted through games and more. Starr said the chorus persevered during these difficult times because it was important to keep people together. She said, "If we could keep everyone together and in reasonably good spirits, then we knew we would come back to singing eventually."

"It was a learning curve," Membership Coordinator Maggie Harris explains.

When they first started using Zoom to rehearse, she noted there were technical struggles with members having difficulty seeing and hearing other participants. But what kept the chorus's leadership, like Starr, motivated is the people who she describes as a "second family."

Starr describes the music the chorus sings as "feel good music" with a happy, upbeat feel. She says her optimism allowed her to view the pandemic as an "interesting challenge" rather than "a miserable way to be." She was committed to keeping the chorus connected over Zoom through various ways. For example, there was a member spotlight every week to showcase one of the singers and give the group an opportunity to get to know her. In an effort to keep members engaged with one another, they would be put in breakout rooms where they would discuss a certain topic. A guest coach was invited every month to talk to the singers and Starr said she started teaching new music. Harris said they would have fashion shows, where people would show their different outfits; travel shows, where people would demonstrate photos from their travels or where they wanted to go after the pandemic; and a hobbies show where people would talk about their hobbies.

Besides the inability to rehearse in-person, the pandemic made it difficult for the chorus to afford leasing their space. According to Starr, the performing group used to rehearse at a converted industrial building in San Jose, but they had to let it go because it was too expensive. So when pandemic restrictions started to ease last summer, they started to rehearse at De Anza park in Sunnyvale.

Starr and Harris said that when they started rehearsing outdoors last summer they saw an uptick in membership and enthusiasm. "People were laughing and crying at our first in-person rehearsal," Starr said. Everyone had stickers to indicate whether they were comfortable being hugged or not. But Harris said nearly all of them were comfortable being hugged because they were desperate for human contact.

"Nothing replaces the in-person experience," shared Starr. While the chorus had to let go of their original rehearsal space in San Jose, they were able to find another home last fall at Mount Olive Ministries in Milpitas. The chorus continues to meet every Thursday at 7:30p.m. while abiding by COVID-9 protocols such as social distancing, masks and vaccinations. On June 26 they will hold their Summer Show and Ice Cream Social, debuting their new song "Remember Me," and with performances from Peninsulaires men's barbershop chorus, Songstruck, and Shout, Sister, Shout!

Recycling Contamination – What Is It, Why Is It, and Why Should You Care?

SUBMITTED BY TRI-CED COMMUNITY RECYCLING

Roughly a third of the materials placed in Union City’s curbside recycling carts don’t belong there based on a study conducted in May 2021. When these materials that don’t belong are included with recycling, it results in causing recyclables that would have otherwise been recovered to get sent directly to landfill. Why does this matter? Well, because contaminating recyclables with these other materials degrades the quality of the recyclable materials and makes it more expensive to sort. The solution: only put recyclables in the recycling cart, yard trimmings and food scraps in the compost (organics) cart, and actual garbage in the landfill (garbage) cart.

Recycling contamination occurs when non-recyclable materials are placed in the recycling cart and when recyclable materials that are not clean, empty, and dry are placed in the recycling cart. Oils from grease-soiled pizza boxes can muck up perfectly recyclable paper. Excessive amounts of food residue or liquids left in a peanut butter jar or yogurt container can also contaminate recyclable materials such as paper and cardboard. Contamination degrades the quality of recyclables, which lessens their market value and can render materials unmarketable, which in turn results in otherwise recyclable materials to be landfilled.

Recycling contamination also occurs when people engage in aspirational recycling or “wish-cycling” – that is, they place non-recyclable items in the recycling cart thinking or wishing that it is recyclable when it is not recyclable. Wish-cycling can happen when people are unfamiliar with what is accepted and prohibited in their city’s curbside recycling program. For details on what is accepted in Union City’s curbside recycling, visit www.Tri-CED.org.

Union City’s curbside recycling program prohibits plastic bags and other types of film plastics such as plastic wrap and bubble packaging envelopes, yet they are one of the most common contaminants in recycling programs. Wish-cycling also happens when people intentionally place prohibited items such as garden hoses, electric cords, and clothes hangers in the recycling cart in the hopes these items will be recycled. These prohibited items can damage sorting equipment and require costly maintenance. Recycling contamination can increase sorting and collection costs because of the additional effort needed to remove contaminants.

Cities and recyclers across California and the world are tackling the critical issue of recycling contamination so that quality recyclable materials can be recovered and delivered back into the economy. When it comes to recycling, everyone has a role to play. Manufacturers can play a role in reducing recycling contamination through responsible product and packaging design and truthful recycling labeling. Residents and businesses play a significant role in reducing contamination because the cleanest and most efficient sorting starts in your homes, businesses, and at the curb. Residents and businesses can become better recyclers and ensure clean recycling by following these simple guidelines:

1. Know what is accepted in the curbside recycling and compost program. Only place acceptable items in the recycling and compost cart. Visit www.Resources.StopWaste.org/Curbside to learn more.
2. Keep all recyclables empty, clean, and dry (i.e., free of food and liquid). Rinse and wipe as much food residue and liquids from recyclables as possible so materials can be recycled into their highest and best use.
3. Keep recyclables loose when placing them in the recycling cart. Do not bag recyclables as these bags can clog up sorting equipment.

While hazardous materials such as used motor oil, batteries, leftover paint, and electronic waste can be recycled, they require special handling and disposal by a certified facility and are prohibited in all curbside collection carts. Properly dispose of hazardous materials for free at an Alameda County HHW Drop-off Facility or at County-sponsored events throughout the year. For drop-off facility locations, hours, and a list of accepted items, call 800-606-6606 or visit www.StopWaste.org/HHW.

Together, we can reduce recycling contamination, help make recycling more economically viable, and ensure quality recyclables can be recovered and transformed into something new instead of sent to landfill. Remember to find out what is accepted in your curbside collection program, only place acceptable items in their respective collection carts, and keep recyclables empty, clean, dry and loose.

For additional information on recycling, please visit: www.StopWaste.org.

Help Those In Need

As you know, given the current economic issues of high inflation and gas prices, a lot of people are hurting economically, and are certainly worse off. We need to support our citizens in any way we can, and it has been shown that government measures such as the Child Tax Credit payments do help, but those expired recently.

Please support the idea of using California's budget surplus to help our most vulnerable citizens.

Thank you,

It’s Simply Neuroscience!

PHOTOS PROVIDED BY
CHINMAYI BALUSU

Looking for a way to better understand the expanding world of psychology? Simply Neuroscience has you covered. The international, student-led non-profit organization supports students with a passion for learning about psychology and its multiple applications in other fields within STEM programs.

Founded on May 30, 2019 by 19-year-old Fremont resident Chinmayi Balusu, Simply Neuroscience was made to share her love of learning about interdisciplinary brain-related fields with others, and provide a welcoming environment for anyone interested in learning about such fields. Balusu is currently pursuing her Masters of Public Health in neuroepidemiology after obtaining her Bachelor of Arts in Medical Humanities from Columbia University earlier this year. She is also a global youth science communicator, mentor, and three-time TEDx speaker.

Her work with Simply Neuroscience and other communities named her 2022 Global Teen Leader by We Are Family Foundation’s Three Dot Dash program, which empowers youth leaders between the ages of 13 through 19. According to Balusu, those who are a part of the program work towards building solutions that address UN Sustainable Development Goals, such as promoting quality education, gender equality or environmental sustainability, among others.

“As a Global Teen Leader, I have the opportunity to build my skills as a changemaker this coming summer and understand how to grow initiatives that work towards a more equitable and peaceful future,” Balusu says. “I’m extremely grateful to have this opportunity to represent and amplify the voices of early STEM and neuroscience outreach efforts, especially considering it is often unseen and invisible work.”

What initially started as a blog compiling learning materials about neuroscience and giving back to her community eventually grew to become its own organization with a team of over 350 volunteer staff members from across the globe who gathered over 25,000 followers and subscribers worldwide. Projects that Simply Neuroscience has participated in, such as The Synapse Podcast and Brain Resource Creation, not only provide free online resources for studying about psychology and neuroscience, but have also amassed multiple collaborators over the years, including the International Brain Research Organization (IBRO), STEM Advocacy Institute (SAI), Global Coalition of International Youth Organizations (GCIYO) and degree-holding psychologists from around the world.

Chinmayi Balusu; founder of

Upcoming projects for Simply Neuroscience include reaching out to grassroots community initiatives and supporting change within their school and university communities, such as by creating hybrid learning programs. Balusu has also stated that she plans to apply to medical school during the next few years, in order to better pursue a career that allows her to stay engaged with science mentorship and youth education.

“Though our events and programming primarily target students, we have also seen incredible engagement from the general public, with many enthusiasts tuning in to our virtual events – even if they do not have any prior background or formal training relevant to neuroscience,” Balusu states. “It’s wonderful to be able to share our love for the brain with members of our community and hopefully inspire them to learn more as well!”

Strategies for Salary Negotiation

BY ANNE CHAN, PHD, MFT

You did it! You just got a great job offer with a fairly decent salary.

Now what?

If you’re like 59% of American employees, you accept the offer without negotiation. According to a 2020 Glassdoor survey, women and older employees tend to accept job offers without attempting to ask for a higher salary. Understandably, it is awkward to ask for more money. People might shy away from salary negotiations because they fear being regarded as aggressive, pushy, or money-grabbers.

However, there are several reasons why you should negotiate:

- This is your biggest chance to establish the salary and job terms you want. It is much more difficult to get these things once you accept the job.
- A good salary negotiation sets the tone for how your new employer views you. If you are confident in stating your value and asking for the salary you deserve, you will start the job with your value established in your manager’s mind. Negotiating for your desired salary helps you get recognition for your worth right from the outset.
- It is acceptable and normal to ask for a higher salary. Most employers are used to salary negotiations. Hence, they often offer the lowest possible base pay because they expect candidates to ask for more. If you don’t negotiate, you could be settling for a lower rate.

Here are some solid strategies for a successful salary negotiation:

Take Your Time

It is absolutely fine to take the time to evaluate the job offer. Some companies might push for a quick decision, but you can request extra time to think through the offer. Doing so might even win you some points for being thoughtful and careful. Use this time to research the company’s compensation and benefits.

Do Your Research

Be sure to research the typical salary range for similar jobs in the city in which the company is located. You can get this information from a variety of places, including Salary.com, Glassdoor, and LinkedIn. If you are moving to a new area for a job, it is vitally important to calculate the cost of living there. As we all know in the Bay Area, it is not cheap to live here, but you can avoid sticker shock if you research the cost of living.

This is the time to break out your calculator and do some serious number crunching and take into consideration the benefits that might come with the job, such as commissions, annual bonuses, 401(k) contributions, moving expenses, free meals, medical/dental benefits, sign-on bonuses, pension plans, sick time, and stock options. You might want to factor in other non-financial but important benefits including vacation days, flex work, the rate of PTO accrual, promotion possibilities, telecommuting, housing assistance, daycare options, continuing education, tuition reimbursement, and commuting perks. Combined, these factors contribute to your total income as well as your job satisfaction.

You should also research how the company handles compensation and raises. Sites like Glassdoor and LinkedIn may provide valuable inside information. Note that some jobs, such as lower level customer service, retail, and hourly jobs, might have fixed rates that are not open for negotiation. If you know someone at the company, ask for information on the company’s compensation practices.

Take Stock of Your Worth

Now that you’ve passed the interview process and have a better understanding of the employer’s needs, list what you bring to the table that will directly address those needs. Be sure to highlight these skills and experiences to make your case for why you deserve a higher salary.

Aim For a Negotiation Win-Win

When countering an offer, be gracious, appreciative, and collaborative. One way is to be direct in expressing your willingness to negotiate. Hiring managers can be your greatest allies during this process. They can make things happen if they are really interested in getting you on board. Do not think only about yourself and your needs. A surefire way to turn people off is to start the salary talk by saying things like “I need more money,” or “This salary doesn’t cover my expenses.” Instead, try for a more professional approach, such as bringing up the market rate for the position as well as the specific skills you can bring to the job.

Remember that salary negotiation is not just about wrangling over how much you are paid. Don’t be narrowly focused on the final figure of your annual salary. If the employer is unwilling to budge on the number, you can still negotiate for non-financial benefits such as extra vacation days.

Last but not least, remember that the employer has spent a lot of time interviewing candidates and they chose you as their top pick. They want you to work for them. Keep this in mind and remain confident and positive when you start the salary negotiation.

Park It: All Abilities Day

BY NED MACKAY

Nature exploration for all ages and levels of ability is the plan for All Abilities Day, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesday, June 28 at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley. Assisted by staff, or exploring at their own pace, visitors will be able to travel along paved trails with stations to touch fur, listen to birds, sketch wildlife, watch the Delta water for animal activity, or paint the view.

The program will have both indoor and outdoor options, all wheelchair accessible. It's free of charge; drop in any time during program hours. No registration required. Big Break Regional Shoreline is located at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's Main Street. For information, call (510) 544-3050.

Reptiles will be the stars of the show during a Reptile Rendezvous from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Sunday, June 26 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont, with naturalist Maeron Yeshiwas. It's a chance to get a close, safe look at some of the park's reptile "animal ambassadors," learn about their adaptations and where they live, then create your own reptile-inspired craft.

The program is free, for all ages (with parent participation for youngsters), and no registration is required. Meet at the visitor center. Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway.

Maeron also will host a campfire program, "Animal Myths," from 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 25 at Dumbarton Quarry Campground on the Bay. The topic is how some of our favorite animals are portrayed in different stories and movies. You don't have to be camping to attend the program. It's for ages five and up with parent participation, and parking fees apply.

For information and directions on both the reptile and campfire programs, call (510) 544-3220.

Nearby at Ardenwood Historic Farm, providing a welcoming environment for bees is the theme of a program from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 25, led by naturalist Chris Garcia. Learn how we can help the precious pollinators survive in our urban and suburban world. Or you can find out what it's like to be taller by giving stilts a try in a program from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Stilts weren't just toys; farmers used them for various chores.

Both programs are drop-in; no registration required. Ardenwood admission fee applies. The park is at 34600 Ardenwood Boulevard, just north of Highway 84 in Fremont. For information, call (510) 544-2797.

Terns, those endangered seabirds, get a turn in the spotlight during a program from 10:15 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 25 at Crab Cove Visitor Center in Alameda. Find out all about these beautiful birds and their lives. Three separate bus trips will be offered to see the colonies; registration is required. This is the only time the public can view the nests. For registration and information, go to www.ebparks.org/things-to-do or call (888) 327-2757 and select option 2.

Crab Cove is at 1253 McKay Ave. off Alameda's Central Avenue. For information, call (510) 544-3187.

Death of General Warren at the Battle of Bunker Hill
Credit: John Trumbull

BY JOHN GRIMALDI AND
DAVID BRUCE SMITH

June 16 through 30

A pivotal battle

"Don't one of you fire until you see the whites of their eyes!" said American General William Prescott to his rag-tag squad of amateur soldiers; on June 17, 1775; they were about to confront a squad of Great Britain's professional armed forces at the base of Bunker Hill, Massachusetts. When the Redcoats were approximately 120 feet away, they "let loose with a lethal barrage of musket fire," according to History.com.

The Englishmen, commanded by the experienced, battle worn General Thomas Gage, were caught off guard; they retreated and reconstituted; attacked again, and withdrew.

General Gage, who was not about to surrender, guided his troops into a third confrontation. By then, Prescott's revolutionaries -- low on ammunition -- were forced to stand their ground and engage the enemy in head-to-head, hand-to-hand combat. The rebels were unyielding against staggering odds and, though the Americans lost the Battle of Bunker Hill, it "was a morale-builder for the Americans, convincing them that patriotic dedication could overcome superior British military might," as reported by History.com.

For more information, the Grateful American Book Prize recommends "Patriots, A Story of Bunker Hill for Young Adults" by Gregory T. Edgar.

Tall tales

The legendary mountain man, Joe Meek, did not live passively. Born in 1810 Virginia, he "was a friendly and relentlessly good-humored young man, but he had too much rambunctious energy to do well in school," according to History.com. Meek became a frontiersman who trapped and hunted his way through the western territories.

Mountain men used to gather each year at various "wild west" locations to exchange information and to tell tales about their wilderness ventures. Their stories were "...often exaggerated," says History.com. Meek was a natural-born spinner of half-myths, and better than most at amplifying his exploits, such as how he "wrestled an attacking grizzly with his bare hands."

Eventually, he settled in the Willamette Valley of western Oregon, became a farmer, and a political activist. In 1847, he led a delegation to Washington, D.C., seeking territorial status for Oregon. The self-described envoy/minister/plenipotentiary from the Republic of Oregon [traveled] to the Court of the United States" and got what he wanted. Meek died June 20, 1875.

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends Stanley Vestal's Joe Meek: The Merry Mountain Man.

A new constitution

America won the war; now, all it needed was a constitution to empower itself to flourish. The Articles of Confederation had released the country from Great Britain's rule, but a better plan was required for the future.

So, as History.com described it, "Congress endorsed a plan to draft a new constitution, and on May 25, 1787, the Constitutional Convention convened at Independence Hall in Philadelphia. On September 17, 1787, after three months of debate moderated by convention president George Washington, the new U.S. constitution, which created a strong federal government with an intricate system of checks and balances, was signed by 38 of the 41 delegates present at the conclusion of the convention. As dictated by Article VII, the document would not become binding until it was ratified by nine of the 13 states."

On June 21, 1788, New Hampshire cast its ballot -- the ninth in favor of ratifying the U.S. Constitution -- making it the law of the land.

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends "Ratification: The People Debate the Constitution, 1787-1788" by Pauline Maier.

2022 Chevrolet Suburban: Choose Wisely

By MICHAEL COATES

Here's the good news. The estimated fuel economy numbers are the 2022 Chevrolet Suburban are easy to beat. Cruise on the freeway with a light foot on the gas or simply ease around town without mashing the accelerator and you can best the 14 mpg city and 19 mpg highway that the EPA estimated for the big SUV. You can credit the Dynamic Fuel Management that smoothly shuts off fuel to unneeded cylinders as you drive.

The bad news is my best shot was a brief 22.4 mpg run, which means the average American's 1,000 miles a month is going to run you more than $250 at current gas prices. The Suburban's 28-gallon tank will probably take at least a C-note to fill.

This makes it sound like there would be no reason to ever even think about spending the $55,000 that a Suburban starts at, much less the $79,370 that my 4WD Premier cost (And you can spend more!). But there are many reasons buyers—even in these high gas price times—will be checking out the Suburban.

Made for the Road—Bring Everything

The Suburban is a road machine. It will haul seven adults and their luggage in comfort. Plus, you can bring along a 7,600-pound trailer or boat with the trailering package. With 420 horsepower and a massive 460 pound-feet of torque, this set is designed to tow. Part of the trailering package makes it even easier with “hitch guidance,” alerts and cameras to make the whole process easy even for a novice. Of course, loading up with people and gear as well as towing isn't going to help in the fuel economy department, but those are the trade-offs.

The inside of the Suburban was updated recently, and all of the high-tech bells and whistles you would expect are either standard or available as an option. At the Premier trim level, you have a 10-speaker Bose audio system, wireless charging for devices, a Wi-Fi hotspot and an infotainment system with Google built in. A tri-zone heating and cooling system allows you to customize everyone's comfort, augmented by heated and ventilated front seats and heated bucket seats in the second row. The seating for the driver (and everyone) could have been done by La-Z-Boy since it is all about comfort.

Chevy has also layered on all of the safety equipment you'll find in a modern SUV, taking advantage of cameras and sensors to provide automatic emergency braking, front pedestrian braking, forward collision alert, lane keep assist with lane departure warning, automatic high beam (great for the open road where the Suburban's most at home), blind zone alert, front and rear park assist and rear cross traffic alert (a life saver in parking lots). With a vehicle of this size and bulk, all of that technology is a welcome help, with the head-up display a particularly useful addition that keeps your eyes on the road while delivering all of the driving information you need.

One interesting addition to the safety/technology package is a seat-connected system that delivers alerts in the form of vibrations. It's effective, and more pleasant than some of the chimes and buzzing tones encountered in other cars.

Smooth Sailing

Driving the Suburban on a variety of different roads in the Bay Area proved one thing—this vehicle loves to be on the highway. That's where the best fuel economy was and where the “magnetic ride control” seemed to take over. However, with a minimum 5,718-pound beast (before passengers and cargo), talking about handling is a bit of a misnomer.

Boat analogies seem particular apt for the Suburban. Smooth sailing is a natural description, but when it comes to maneuvering, a tug boat might be another descriptor. Steering seems more like you're giving suggestions rather than actively directing the car in any precise manner. It will get you (and all of your friends, family and equipment) there in comfort, but remember, you'll pay at the pump.

TALES OF SUNKEN TREASURE!

A Sunken City

In the 1600s, Port Royal, Jamaica, was one of the busiest seaports in the Caribbean. It was home to merchants, missionaries, smugglers and pirates.

In 1692, an earthquake hit the city. Much of it sank 65 feet (20 meters) below sea level. For hundreds of years, sand and mud covered the city. Many treasure seekers tried to find the sunken city and failed.

Then in 1965, a diver named Robert Marx used modern equipment to dig under the layers of mud and found the lost city. He was not looking for treasure, but find it he did! Thousands of coins were found—perhaps lost pirate treasure.

Treasure hunters look instead for lumps that could be the remains of metal parts of a ship: cannons, anchors, tools and ballast. Sometimes, even these are hard to see, as most of them have been encrusted with sand and shells.

The Greatest Treasure in the World

What is the world's greatest treasure? Why?

Here is why we have the longest day of the year

By KAILASH KALIDOSS, AEROSPACE ENTHUSIAST

The summer solstice is quickly approaching, and many know this as the longest day of the year. [Tuesday, June 21, 2022] But why do we even notice the summer solstice? Why have humans been recording this over the thousands of years throughout human history in many different parts of the world? In this article, we will dig a little deeper into these questions and the phenomenon itself to get an understanding of what the summer solstice means and why it happens in the first place.

The word solstice is derived from the Latin word “sol” which means sun and “sistere” which means to stand still. This is because, depending on where you live, at the solstices the sun’s declination appears to stand still i.e., the seasonal movement of the sun’s daily path across the sky pauses at the northern or southern limit before it starts to reverse direction. On the other hand, there are places close to the equator where we have equal day and night, and this event is called the “equinox.”

Solstices are astronomical events that are directly related to and caused by the earth’s tilt on an axis in its orbit around the sun. The axial tilt of the earth is 23 and a half degrees, and the sun’s light hits the earth unevenly. This is also one of the main reasons we have seasons. In the northern hemisphere, we will have more direct sunlight whereas in the southern hemisphere light is spread out over a greater area, cooling that portion of the globe. This phenomenon is not just limited to the Earth. Other solar system planets such as Mars have a similar axial tilt, and also exhibit seasons.

Hence, at the summer solstice for our hemisphere, the sun rises to the highest point in the sky which gives us the longest day of the year. The opposite of this would be the winter solstice that takes place in the other hemisphere. This is when the sun hits its lowest point in the sky and therefore, we have the shortest days of the year. This cycle of Solstices happens twice every year for a given hemisphere.

It is noteworthy that the earliest humans spent more time outside than we do. It is not surprising that they likely used the sky as both a clock and a calendar. The solstice was a major datapoint that served their calculations.

News and Notes FROM AROUND THE WORLD

SUBMITTED BY THE ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS

Supermom

Halima Cissé knew she would be giving birth to a goodly number of babies when her time came. In fact, says the Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC), the doctors told her she could count on septuplets, perhaps even, octuplets as she went into labor. Close but no cigar! She’s the first known mother in the world to have nonuplets -- that’s nine babies in one fell swoop! It happened last year, but it was announced just recently. Halima hails from the Republic of Mali in West Africa but spent the first year with her newborns in Morocco where she gave birth. It was a precautionary stay. What did Halima have to say? “I hope God blesses everyone who doesn’t yet have children, that they can have what we, the parents of nonuplets, currently have.” See video of the babies on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=VG BHM6JVbEE.

Good-deed

Vicky Umodu of San Bernardino, California found the living room furniture she needed for her new home on Craigslist and it didn’t cost her a dime, according to AMAC. But, when she brought the two couches and an armchair home, she got quite a shock. Stuffed in one of the cushions were numerous envelopes, each filled with cold, hard cash, totaling more than $36,000. It brought the best out of Vicky. Instead of quietly keeping the money, she called the previous owner who told her the furniture belonged to a deceased relative and that they, too, had discovered a bunch of cash filled envelopes in his home. The man, who remained anonymous, was so moved with Vicky’s innate honesty, presented her with a $2,000 reward for her good deed. Vicky, never for a moment, thought to take the money and keep quiet. “I knew I couldn’t keep it. I knew I had to give it back.” See a video report about the stashed cash on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=oO OezBethHA.

Helicamper

U.S. Coast Guard helicopter pilots stationed in Mobile, Alabama, Blake Morris and Maggie Morton, were browsing the Facebook Marketplace website when they came across a helicopter body for sale. They wasted no time in acquiring the hulk and quickly got into the task of repurposing it into a very unique camper. Their “helicamper” conversion is well on its way to completion. Meanwhile, Blake and Maggie have been busy gathering the chopper’s history. According to Blake, it belonged to “the German military police first, then it got bought from there and used in Afghanistan with U.S. troops for a few years then it came here in about 2011 back in the states.” See video of the helicopter camper on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZKk Yb61cqOQ.

New exhibit highlights the complex history of redlining

SUBMITTED BY BRIAN SIMONS

San Leandro Public Library is hosting an opening event featuring its historical exhibit, Redlining & Housing Discrimination. The general public is invited to the first floor of the Main Library on Tuesday, June 28th to view and engage with the library’s first exhibit illuminating the history of federally sponsored housing segregation policies that were reinforced at state and local levels – including in San Leandro.

Decades of discriminatory practices on national, state, and local levels impacted the ability of people of color to own homes – resulting in long-term segregation and loss of generational wealth. The effects of housing discrimination continue to permeate our country’s landscape and with very real impacts on people today. The path forward begins with acknowledgement and learning about this complex history.

This historical exhibit is meant to spark conversations within the community to better understand this difficult and sensitive subject. The Exhibit examines two specific aspects of housing discrimination:

1. Redlining and 2. The development of mostly white suburban neighborhoods.

“The goal of this exhibit is not to shame the community, but to help us better understand the systemic origins of what kept San Leandro a mostly white community well into the 1990s,” says Library Director Brian Simons. “By telling San Leandro’s story, we’re really telling the nation’s story. Systemically racist policies and practices were not unique to San Leandro. And when we know other people’s stories and lived experiences, coupled with the historical records, we can begin to understand one another and the insidiousness of the racism within our country. Thankfully, San Leandro is now one of the most diverse cities in the country. But diversity and unity are two different things. There’s still a better future out there, and our hope is that this exhibit can begin to provide the context necessary to move from diversity to unity.”

The Opening Event will include a speech from San Leandro City Council Member Corina Lopez, who is sponsoring this exhibit as her Sesquicentennial focus. We also hope to hear from a few of the people who lent their firsthand stories to this exhibit, and perhaps from the County Recorder’s Office about their role in eliminating the discriminatory language from existing deeds and covenants since the passage of AB1466 by California State Legislature.

This exhibit is a part of the City’s 150th anniversary programs and is available for viewing at both the Main Library and San Leandro History Museum (320 W. Estudillo Ave, San Leandro). The Main Library exhibit will be on display until September 2022.

So long, Internet Explorer. The browser retires today

By RICHARD JACOBSEN ASSOCIATED PRESS

Internet Explorer is finally headed out to pasture.

As of Wednesday, Microsoft will no longer support the once-dominant browser that legions of web surfers loved to hate – and a few still claim to adore. The 27-year-old application now joins BlackBerry phones, dial-up modems and Palm Pilots in the dustbin of tech history.

IE’s demise was not a surprise. A year ago, Microsoft said that it was putting an end to Internet Explorer on June 15, 2022, pushing users to its Edge browser, which was launched in 2015.

The company made clear then it was time to move on.

“Not only is Microsoft Edge a faster, more secure and more modern browsing experience than Internet Explorer, but it is also able to address a key concern: compatibility for older, legacy websites and applications,” Sean Lyndersay, general manager of Microsoft Edge Enterprise, wrote in a May 2021 blog post.

Users marked Explorer’s passing on Twitter, with some referring to it as a “bug-ridden, insecure POS” or the “top browser for installing other browsers.” For others it was a moment for 90’s nostalgia memes, while The Wall Street Journal quoted a 22-year-old who was sad to see IE go.

Microsoft released the first version of Internet Explorer in 1995, the antediluvian era of web surfing dominated by the first widely popular browser, Netscape Navigator. Its launch signaled the beginning of the end of Navigator: Microsoft went on to tie IE and its ubiquitous Windows operating system together so tightly that many people simply used it by default instead of Navigator.

The Justice Department sued Microsoft in 1997, saying it violated an earlier consent decree by requiring computer makers to use its browser as a condition of using Windows. It eventually agreed to settle the antitrust battle in 2002 over its use of its Windows monopoly to squash competitors. It also tangled with European regulators who said that tying Internet Explorer to Windows gave it an unfair advantage over rivals such as Mozilla’s Firefox, Opera and Google’s Chrome.

Users, meanwhile, complained that IE was slow, prone to crashing and vulnerable to hacks. IE’s market share, which in the early 2000s was over 90%, began to fade as users found more appealing alternatives.

Today, the Chrome browser dominates with roughly a 65% share of the worldwide browser market, followed by Apple’s Safari with 19%, according to internet analytics company Statcounter. IE’s heir, Edge, lags with about 4%, just ahead of Firefox.

hospital opened the Morris Hyman Critical Care Pavilion, specifically designed around trauma center requirements, including: 48 CCU beds, 39 Emergency Department rooms, trauma resuscitation bays and shell space that is now being developed into state-of-the-art operating rooms and other critical patient services, all housed in a seismically sound building.

“This momentous achievement reflects the dedication of our extraordinary staff, physicians, and volunteers who are committed to serving our community,” said WHHS CEO Kimberly Hartz. “We are thrilled to achieve this important milestone in our trauma journey, but now we must turn our attention to the tremendous amount of work required of us to earn Level II Adult Trauma Center designation. This journey goes to the core of who we are and our commitment to the health care needs of our growing community for many decades to come.”

WHHS will be Alameda County’s fourth trauma center, joining Highland Hospital, Eden Medical Center, and UCSF Benioff Children’s Hospital Oakland. This new proposed south county trauma service area covers Hayward south of Industrial Blvd., Union City, Fremont, Newark, Sunol and the southern portion of the Tri-Valley Area. This change to the countywide trauma system is the first since ACEMSA designated the current trauma centers in 1987.

Sunflower Power

BY DANIEL O'DONNELL

There is a story with many versions in Greek mythology where a water nymph named Clytie falls passionately in love with Apollo, the Sun God. They have a brief encounter, but Apollo falls in love with her sister. Clytie tells her father about the affair and the father has the sister put to death. Some versions say Apollo angrily turns Clytie into a sunflower, while other versions say Clytie turns herself into a sunflower. Regardless which version is believed, Clytie as a sunflower always faces towards the sun hoping that Apollo will return to her. This myth led to sunflowers representing devotion, another reason to plant one besides their striking beauty.

Sunflowers are in the genus Helianthus, derived from Helios meaning sun, and Anthos meaning flower. There are over 70 different species and cultivars. Sunflowers are native to North, Central and South America. Ukraine leads the world in production and exportation of sunflower seeds and sunflower oil, with Russia not far behind. Sunflowers are annual plants that can range in height from a few feet to the tallest one recorded at just over 30 feet tall. Different species have flower heads varying from a couple of inches to the largest one recorded at 32.25 inches in diameter. Sunflowers can tolerate most of the summer temperature zones found in the Bay Area, and although drought tolerant, when the temperatures rise above the mid 90's for a prolonged period of time, they may need additional water to survive.

Sunflowers got their common name from the flowerheads looking like the sun sitting in the sky above. However, a sunflower head is not a single flower. The bright outer petals that look like flames are non-fruiting flowers called ray flowers. The interior of the flowerhead is comprised of many individual flowers called disk flowers. These small five-petaled flowers are what produce seeds.

Sunflowers do not like their roots to be disturbed, so it is best to sow seeds directly in the ground beginning in early spring. Staggering the sowing every couple of weeks into early July will allow for continuous blooms in the garden through September. Seeds should be planted about an inch deep in soil top-dressed with compost or manure and about a foot apart from each other if they are nonbranching. Branching sunflower varieties should be planted about three feet apart. The location should be an area that gets at least six hours of direct sunlight per day. Planting larger varieties near a fence or wall can protect them from being blown over by the wind when the flowerhead is top-heavy with hundreds of seeds.

Sunflower seedlings may need to be watered every day or every other day, depending on how warm the temperature is, until they are established with four or more true leaves. Deep watering for established plants should be done about once a week or when the leaves begin to wilt to encourage deep rooting.

Although sunflowers brighten up the garden, they are also great as cut flowers for interior arrangements. The seeds can also provide food for birds, squirrels, and other wildlife so leaving some flowers untouched will support the garden's habitat. Flowerheads slated for seed harvesting can be cut from the stem when the back of the head turns brown, leaves on the stalk start to turn yellow, and seeds look mature. Seeds can then be scraped into a bowl. Seeds for planting the next year or for feeding wildlife in the winter can be placed in an envelope and stored in a cool dark place. Seeds for roasting should be completely dried out before baking.

Choosing the most appropriate type of sunflower to grow will depend on its purpose. Below is a list of sunflowers types with characteristics that make them ideal candidates for certain situations.

"Mongolian Giant" occupies the top choice for height and seed production. This enormous sunflower can grow to 14 feet and produces a single 18-inch flowerhead that can yield over 1,000 1 1/2 inch edible seeds.

"Lemon Queen" is a branching 5- to-9-foot-tall sunflower that produces 4-to-6-inch lemon colored flowerheads. It is ranked by researchers as one of the best plants to attract bees and other pollinators.

"Chianti" is a sunflower that produces a wine-red flowerhead dappled with golden highlights that is just as intoxicating as the wine variety it is named after.

"Sunspot" is a dwarf sunflower that produces 10-inch flowerheads with edible seeds on thick 18-inch stems. The perfect choice for planting in a container.

"Teddy Bear" is a 3-foot-tall sunflower that produces 6-inch fluffy yellow flowerheads that feel as cuddly as the little stuffed animal it was named after.

"Sun-Fill Green" is a sunflower bred by the premier American sunflower breeder Tom Heaton. This single stem sunflower develops a 4-inch head with bright green sepals which are modified leaves that wrap the flowerhead face. This green sunflower is pollenless and recommended for cutting flowers.

Although Apollo may never return to Clytie, her devotion remains true. Show your devotion to the garden by planting sunflowers and think of Clytie and Apollo when the flowers track the sun through the day.

Reduce Daily Outdoor Water Use

California is in its third year of severe drought. Small and consistent changes to reduce outdoor water use daily will make a big impact in the long run.

Easy actionable steps to save water outside include:

- Lay mulch around your plants and yard
- Convert grass to water-efficient landscaping and plant water-wise, California-native plants
- Install automatic shut off valves for your outdoor sprinkler systems

Learn more about how you can do your part at saveourwater.com

Reminder: Local water use restrictions are in effect and sprinkler use is allowed only 2 days per week June 1 - Sept. 30.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: JUNE 21, 2022

All Signs: This week two planetary events occur: On Tuesday, the Sun moves into Cancer to stay for four weeks. Cancer is warm hearted, nurturing and thrifty; hence, these qualities will blossom more in all of us. We'll focus more on home, family, gardening, cooking and boating, especially activity around marinas. On Wednesday, Venus moves into Gemini, to stay for almost four weeks. Venus will attract different opportunities to each of us. Venus is a social planet. It represents romantic relationships, the arts and all things beautiful. It also has a strong association with money. Let's welcome this change.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

Your attention now turns to home, family and your private life. Many will be involved more than usual with a parent. Because of this, some of you will cocoon at home more. However, countering this energy, your ruler Mars is still in your sign, along with lucky Jupiter. This means you want to be physically active! The shift of Venus will increase this influence by attracting interactions with siblings, relatives and neighbors. Something will make you appreciate the beauty of your everyday.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

The pace of your days will accelerate in the next four weeks. Errands, appointments, short trips and visits with siblings, relatives and neighbors! You're eager to enlighten others. If you can squeeze in a little vacation – this is a great idea. Meanwhile, your ruler Venus, a planet that attracts things to you (especially money) is moving into one of your Money Houses! Things don't get much better than this! This means you might get richer in the next four weeks. It also means you will spend money on beautiful things.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

In the next four weeks, you will reflect upon your values. You want to know what really matters. You want greater control of your world through what you own. Meanwhile, the lovely news is that this week fair Venus moves into your sign to stay for the next four weeks. This makes you want to reach out to others. It also makes you charming and diplomatic. Good times with friends will be a priority. This is a great time for a vacation! It's also a wonderful time to buy wardrobe goodies for yourself.

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

This week, the Sun moves into your sign to stay for four weeks, giving you a chance to recharge your batteries for the rest of year. You will also attract important people and favorable situations to you. This is the power of the Sun! This year's birthday month is empowering because lucky Jupiter is at the top of your chart. (Happens only once in 12 years.) Jupiter makes you look successful! You may get a promotion or public recognition. Meanwhile, with Venus hiding in your chart, secret love affairs might flower.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

Your personal year is ending but your new year will not begin until the Sun enters Leo, a month from now. Therefore, the next four weeks are a time of limbo. Nevertheless, you can use this time to make plans for your new year. What do you want to achieve? Set some goals because this will give you a clearer focus on what is important. Venus is now moving into your House of Friendships, which means you will schmooze more with others, especially artistic, creative people.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

You will be more popular in the next four weeks. You will seek out friends, plus, you will also become more involved in groups, clubs and organizations. Your idealism will be aroused, and you might seek out charitable organizations or ways to help those who are less fortunate. Fair Venus will now be at the top of your chart, which is good for business and attracting people who can help you. Romance with a boss might begin. Someone will ask for your advice about how to make something look better.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

Once a year the Sun sits at the top of your chart for four weeks and that time has arrived. Symbolically, this means the Sun is shining down on you and capturing you in a flattering spotlight. Everyone will admire you and see you as capable (even if you don't do anything special). Since this almost magical phenomena is occurring for the next four weeks, now is the perfect window of time for you to go after what you want. Meanwhile, Venus makes you want to travel for pleasure.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

Act on your urge to do something different! Sometimes you need to give up familiarity to explore more of the world. This includes intellectual exploration, which is why many of you will choose to study instead of jetting off to new places. Fair Venus has just moved into one of your Money Houses, which means the financial or practical help you need might come to you! Romantic relations will be very affectionate and sexy!

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

Venus is opposite your sign for the next four weeks, which symbolizes that this is a lovely time for all relationships – love affairs, marriages, partnerships and professional relations with coworkers. Venus will even improve relations with your enemies! You can use the next four weeks to patch up difficult relationships and misunderstandings. Meanwhile, you will have more involvement with financial matters and shared property. This includes taxes, debt and inheritances. You will also feel emotionally passionate in the coming month, and even compulsive.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

It's been six months since your birthday, which means things in your life are culminating. Be smart, respectful and courteous when dealing with authority figures. Some situations might not work out right now. What is working needs to be incorporated into your life so that you move forward with growth and progress. Venus will promote warmer relations with coworkers. It will also boost your health. A work-related romance will begin for some.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

Grab that toolbox or briefcase because you're keen to work in the next four weeks. You want to be productive! One quirky detail is you might have to work on behalf of others. Nevertheless, you will derive satisfaction from a job well done. Fear not: Venus will bring you rewards because it will be travelling through the most fun part of your chart in the next four weeks, attracting creative activities, social outings, vacations, sports events, romance and fun times with kids.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

The next four weeks will be full of social outings, fun vacations, romantic diversions, sports events and enjoyable activities with kids. Not only do you want to play and socialize with others, at a deeper level, you want to express the real you, especially your creative talents. Expect relationships to be more lighthearted and fun-loving! Romance in particular will sizzle! Many of you will also enjoy redecorating projects and doing something to make your home more attractive. Invite family over for good food and drink because the vibes are warm and loving.

Pioneer named CCAA Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year

SUBMITTED BY ERIC HARDING;
CAL STATE EAST BAY ATHLETICS

Voted on by Faculty Athletic Representatives (FARs) of the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA), Mark Woinarowicz of Cal State East Bay baseball was named 2022 CCAA Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year. He is the first male student-athlete from CSUEB to win the conference's distinguished honor.

The Pioneers' pitcher graduated this past May with a degree in Kinesiology.

Woinarowicz played an important role on the mound for the Pioneers. Earning second team honors in the CCAA this past season, he went 7-3 in 2022 with a 3.75 ERA and 81 strikeouts.

Academically, Woinarowicz was the male recipient in 2020 and 2021 for Cal State East Bay's Dr. Hal Charnofsky Memorial Award, in addition to being named to CCAA Honor Roll three times throughout his career.

"Mark Woinarowicz is the epitome of the term 'student-athlete,'" said Dr. David Larson, Faculty Athletic Representative for CSUEB. "In the 14 years East Bay has been a CCAA member, the Pioneers have never had a male student-athlete with combined academic and athletic achievements remotely close to what Mark has accomplished."

"Congratulations to Mark on an honor well deserved for all of the work he has dedicated to being an exemplary student-athlete," said Allison Kern, Associate Vice President/Director of Athletics at Cal State East Bay. "We are proud to have him represent East Bay Athletics."

Woinarowicz is the first male student-athlete from CSUEB to be named CCAA Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year and the fourth student-athlete overall in Cal State East Bay history to earn the distinction.

To be nominated for the CCAA Scholar-Athlete of the Year award, individuals must have a 3.5 grade-point average or higher at a conference institution, complete their final season of eligibility, and participate in a CCAA-sponsored sport. Faculty Athletic Representatives from institutions in the CCAA focus on a student-athlete's body of work in the classroom, community and their sport when selecting the recipient.

Independence Day Celebration Returns to Meek Estate Park

SUBMITTED BY HAYWARD AREA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Following a two-year hiatus, Hayward Area Historical Society is happy to announce the return of its Independence Day Celebration at Meek Estate Park. This year's event will take place on Saturday, July 2 and will feature crafts, live music from Blues Bottle Band, community information and resources, self-guided tours of Meek Mansion, and fun and games for the whole family. The near annual event has taken place almost every year since 2009.

Originally, Meek Estate Park was the last remaining parcel of property that once belonged to horticulturalist William Meek. His vast land holdings made up most of what we know as Cherryland today, and Meek was responsible for making commercial agriculture prosperous in the Hayward area. Later, his son Horry, continued the legacy of investing in the local community and was instrumental in bringing Hunt Brothers Cannery to Hayward.

Their home, which still stands in the park, was built in 1869. Three generations of Meeks lived in the Italianate style house until it was sold to Dr. Milton Ream and his family in 1940. Recently repainted and furnished to better reflect the era in which the Meeks lived there, Meek Mansion remains a shining landmark of Cherryland.

Hayward Area Historical Society, established in 1956, operates out of the HAHS Museum of History and Culture at 22380 Foothill Boulevard in Hayward. For more information, please visit www.haywardareahistory.org.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

Waking up with a dreadful feeling of uncertainty has become routine these days. The sentiment is encapsulated in the 1966 song “Monday, Monday” written by John Phillips, sung by the Mamas & the Papas. Although focused on a personal relationship facet of life, the lyrics can easily be adapted to current angst over world affairs, economics and politics. Hopeful thoughts – “It was all I hoped it would be” - are juxtaposed with reality – “you can find me cryin’ all of the time,” resulting in the conclusion that you “can’t trust that day.”

In the midst of an atmosphere of despair, anger and distrust there are glimmers of hope. An honest appraisal of the trials and tribulations that confront our society can give a measure of relief; a sense of movement and purpose toward a more optimistic and brighter future. Participation in the recent mid-term primary election offers a bit of clarity and points to the importance and necessity of continued vigilance of our democratic system. It can also serve as a reminder that government is much more than elected officials and political party shenanigans.

Through a haze of candidate claims, counterclaims and political posturing, the myriad mundane functions of government such as maintaining roads, transportation, parks and recreation, social programs, defense and security, to name a few, continue unabated. To equate hyper-partisanship with the role of others employed in government positions is a mistake. Using the term “government” as a substitute for a political party or program is a vast oversimplification. While much of the media is consumed with sensational headlines, it is important to understand, and separate from routine matters, their importance and critical role to curb the corrosive influence of money, power and prestige that accompanies elected office.

However, it is also crucial to appreciate the functions of self-rule government as well. These do not generate headlines but without them, our daily lives would be severely and negatively impacted.

We are in the midst of what seems to be an interminable Monday that is unpredictable. In many ways this is an overwhelming moment that can easily baffle even the most composed individuals. Faith in our system of government and its representatives has been shaken to its core, but Mondays eventually give way to Tuesday and beyond. Belief in reasonable solutions and perseverance that has seen previous generations through difficult times will prevail this time too.

The ballad also holds hope, noting... “Every other day of the week is fine”

ROBOT REPORT

Researchers create walking robot half a millimeter wide

BY BRIANNA WESSLING

Engineers at Northwestern University have created a remote-controlled walking robot half a millimeter wide. The tiny robot, modeled after a peckytoe crab, is able to bend, twist, crawl, walk, turn and jump.

The research team constructed the robot with a shape-memory alloy material that can transform to a “remembered” shape when heated. The team used a scanned laser beam to quickly heat the robot at targeted locations, making those locations transform.

As the robot cools, a thin coating of glass brings the transformed part of the robot back into shape. These transformations, as parts of the robot heat and cool, create locomotion. Changing the direction of the laser scanning changes the robot’s walking direction.

“Our technology enables a variety of controlled motion

The tiny robot created by a team of engineers at Northwestern University is only about half a millimeter wide. Credit: Northwestern University modalities and can walk with an average speed of half its body length per second,” Yonggang Huang, leader the theoretical work on the project, said. “This is very challenging to achieve at such small scales for terrestrial robots.”

Huang is a professor of Mechanical Engineering and Civil and Environmental Engineering at Northwestern’s school of engineering, and key member of the university’s Querrey Simpson Institute for Bioelectronics. (QSIB).

“Because these structures are so tiny, the rate of cooling is very fast,” John A. Rogers, leader of the experimental work on the project, director of QSIB, and professor at Northwestern’s school of engineering, said. “In fact, reducing the sizes of these robots allows them to run faster.”

Huang and Rogers used a pop-up assembly method, inspired by pop-up books, that they previously developed together to create the robot. The team made precursors to the crab structure in flat, planar geometries, and then bonded the precursors to a slightly stretched rubber substrate.

When the stretched substrate relaxes, it creates a controlled buckling that causes the crab to pop into its three-dimensional form. This manufacturing method means the team could create robots of various different shapes and sizes.

The team hopes that its research, while exploratory, could someday bring the field closer to creating micro-sized robots that can perform tasks in tightly confined spaces.

“Robotics is an exciting field of research, and the development of microscale robots is a fun topic for academic exploration,” Rogers said. “You might imagine micro-robots as agents to repair or assemble small structures or machines in industry or as surgical assistants to clear clogged arteries, to stop internal bleeding or to eliminate cancerous tumors -- all in minimally invasive procedures.” The team’s research was published in Science Robotics magazine.

NEWARK PD

On Wednesday, June 8, 2022, at approximately 5:00 a.m., Newark Police Detectives served a felony warrant at a residence in the 5000 block of Souza Avenue. The warrant was for possession of obscene matter of a minor in a sexual act. As a result, a 20-year-old male Newark resident was taken into custody.

Newark Police became aware of the child sexual abuse material from the CyberTipline which is operated by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). The CyberTipline can receive information from private citizens, businesses, and Electronic Service Providers (ESPs). ESPs are required to report the presence of any suspected child abuse material when they become aware of facts or circumstances indicating there may be a violation of federal child pornography laws. Newark Police Detectives participate in the Silicon Valley Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force which reviews CyberTipline reports forwarded from NCMEC.

During the search of the residence, officers observed several firearms in plain view. One of the guns was a personally manufactured firearm, or a "Ghost gun".

Detectives ultimately arrested Jesus Mendoza Medina, for possession of obscene matter of a minor in a sexual act, illegal manufacturing of a firearm and illegal possession of an assault weapon. He was booked at Santa Rita Jail.

To report the online exploitation of children to the CyberTipline call the 24-hour Hotline at 1.800.843.5678 or visit www.cybertipline.com. Information can also be left anonymously with Newark Police on the "Anonymous Tip" hotline at 510.578.4965.

December 24, 1917- May 24, 2022

Resident of Fremont

Ruth Guettler, 104, of Fremont, California, peacefully passed away on May 24, 2022.

Ruth was born to the late Frank and Evelyn Palmer of Kansas City, Missouri. It was a second marriage for both her parents and they brought seven children of their own to the union. Ruth and her brother, Frank, were the youngest and very close. Although they struggled through the depression, Ruth had a happy childhood, with the older siblings helping when they could.

When she was 17, she met her future husband, Bill and fell in love with him and his family (Roy Sr., Jean, Roy Jr.). They were married on Bill's birthday, January 6, 1937. Son, Richard Dana, was born in 1938, and the second son, William, was born in 1942.

After the war, they lived for many years in Kansas City, Mo, surrounded by extended family and many friends. They even branched out to Wichita, Kansas for four years, where Bill sold popcorn machines and supplies. In 1955 they moved to South Gate, Ca., for General Motors where their boys finished school. Finally, Bill took a position setting up the new GM plant in Fremont. They bought a house on Higgins Way and enjoyed the empty nest and warmer weather of California, until Bill passed away on November 19, 1988. During those years, they traveled twice to Europe, Hawaii, and took many road trips. After losing Bill, Ruth continued to bowl, travel and garden. She took her best friend on a tour of China and her sister to Hawaii. Ruth continued to live in the same house that she loved until she passed away at the age of 104.

Ruth is survived by her son Richard and his wife Judy, and her son William and his wife Barbara. She has four grandchildren from each son: Kathy of Portland, Oregon, Debbie of Rochester, Minn., Barbara of Half Moon Bay, Ca. and Susan of Denver, Co.; and Michael of Los Angeles, Audra of Long Beach, Ca. David of Long Beach, Ca., and Diane of Phoenix, Arizona. She is also survived by nine Great Grandchildren and six Great, Great Grandchildren. Ruth has many "honorary" grandchildren in California, also.

Ruth was a wonderful matriarch of this Guettler family. Her character, wisdom, generosity, and love will be her legacy. She was there for her family always, whenever needed. Her personality and kindness will be remembered by many friends and neighbors, past and present.

A Memorial will be held on Monday, July 11, 2022 at 11:00 AM. at Fremont Chapel of the Roses, 1940 Peralta Blvd., Fremont. Her ashes will travel to her son, Richard and family, in Denver, Co., for another Memorial on August 13th, then she and her husband's ashes will then be interned at Mr. Moriah Memorial Park in Kansas City, Mo. They will rest together between the Guettler's and her mother, father, and brother. May they rest in peace together.

One of her granddaughters described her as the sweetest person on the planet. Most people would agree.

In lieu of flowers, the family ask that donations be made to:

US report: Nearly 400 crashes of automated tech vehicles

BY TOM KRISHER
AP AUTO WRITER

Automakers reported nearly 400 crashes over a 10-month period involving vehicles with partially automated driver-assist systems, including 273 with Teslas, according to statistics released Wednesday by U.S. safety regulators. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration cautioned against using the numbers to compare automakers, saying it didn't weight them by the number of vehicles from each manufacturer that use the systems, or how many miles those vehicles traveled. Automakers reported crashes from July of last year through May 15 under an order from the agency, which is examining such crashes broadly for the first time. "As we gather more data, NHTSA will be able to better identify any emerging risks or trends and learn more about how these technologies are performing in the real world," said Steven Cliff, the agency's administrator. Tesla's crashes happened while vehicles were using Autopilot, "Full Self-Driving," Traffic Aware Cruise Control, or other driver-assist systems that have some control over speed and steering. The company has about 830,000 vehicles with the systems on the road. The next closest of a dozen automakers that reported crashes was Honda, with 90. Honda says it has about six million vehicles on U.S. roads with such systems. Subaru was next with 10, and all other automakers reported five or fewer. In a June 2021 order, NHTSA told more than 100 automakers and automated vehicle tech companies to report serious crashes within one day of learning about them and to disclose less-serious crashes by the 15th day of the following month. The agency is assessing how the systems perform and whether new regulations may be needed. Six people were killed in the crashes involving driver-assist systems, and five were seriously hurt, NHTSA said. Of the deaths, five occurred in Teslas and one was reported by Ford. Three of the serious injuries were in Teslas, while Honda and Ford each reported one. Tesla's crash number may appear elevated somewhat because it uses telematics to monitor its vehicles and get real-time crash reports. Other automakers don't have such capability, so their reports may come slower or crashes may not be reported at all, NHTSA said. A message was left seeking comment from Tesla. Tesla's crashes accounted for nearly 70% of the 392 reported by the dozen automakers. Although the Austin, Texas, automaker calls its systems Autopilot and "Full Self-Driving," it says the vehicles cannot drive themselves and the drivers must be ready to intervene at all times. Auto safety advocates said driver-assist and self-driving systems have potential to save lives, but not until NHTSA sets minimum performance standards and requires safety improvements to protect all road users. "It's clear that U.S. road users are unwitting participants in beta testing of automated driving technology," said Cathy Chase, president of Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety. Sen. Edward Markey, D-Mass., said that although NHTSA's data has limitations, it's not isolated evidence that Tesla has ignored regulations, putting the public in danger. There has been "a never ending parade of reports" of Teslas on automated systems rolling through stop signs or braking for no reason, he said. NHTSA also is investigating Teslas that crash into parked emergency vehicles. "As today's data suggests, this contempt for auto safety laws has real-world consequences," Markey said while urging NHTSA to take enforcement action. But many Tesla owners love the automation. Craig Coombs of Alameda, California, said he uses the systems in stop-and-go traffic and on frequent highway trips. "They really reduce driver fatigue overall," he said. He gives himself a "moderate" grade for paying attention while using the system but says he never takes his mind off the road entirely. He knows the technology isn't perfect, and said he has had to take over driving at times. Manufacturers were not required to report how many vehicles they have on the road that have the systems, nor did they have to report how far those vehicles traveled, or when the systems are in use, NHTSA said. At present, those numbers aren't quantifiable, an agency official said. However, NHTSA has used the data to seek a recall, open investigations and provide information for existing inquiries, officials said. "This will help our investigators quickly identify potential defect trends that can emerge," Cliff said. "These data will also help us identify crashes that we want to investigate and provide more information about how people in other vehicles interact with the vehicles." Honda said it has packaged the systems to sell more of them, which could influence its numbers. "The population of vehicles that theoretically could be involved in a reportable event is much greater than the population of vehicles built by automakers with a less-aggressive deployment strategy," the company said. Also, reports to NHTSA are based on unverified customer statements about whether automated systems were running at the time of a crash. Those crashes may not qualify for reporting to NHTSA after more data is gathered, Honda said. NHTSA's order also covered companies that are running fully autonomous vehicles, and 25 reported a total of 130 crashes. Google spinoff Waymo led with 62, followed by Transdev Alternative Services with 34 and General Motors-controlled Cruise LLC with 23. Waymo, the autonomous vehicle unit of Alphabet Inc., said it has more than 700 autonomous vehicles in its fleet. The company is running a fully autonomous ride-hailing service in Arizona and testing one in California. The company said all the crashes happened at low speeds, with air bags inflating in only two of them. In 108 of the crashes involving fully autonomous vehicles, no injuries were reported, and there was only one serious injury. In most of the crashes, vehicles were struck from the rear.

Police Investigate Anti-Asian Hate Crime

SAN LEANDRO POLICE DEPARTMENT

On Saturday, June 18th, around 9 pm, San Leandro police officers responded to the 15300 block of Inverness Street regarding a vandalized realtor sign in front of a house in the process of being sold. The spray-painted graffiti on the sign included a racial epithet within an anti-Asian message. Officers returned the next morning, around 7 am, regarding another anti-Asian graffiti message using the same epithet. This time the message was spray-painted on the garage door of the residence.

Since the realtor, property owners, and most recent tenants of the residence are all of Asian descent, this crime is being investigated as a targeted hate crime.

"Hate crimes of any sort will not be tolerated in the City of San Leandro. The police department will devote extra resources to protect those being victimized by hate and to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice," said Lieutenant Abe Teng.

Anyone with information regarding these incidents is urged to contact SLPD via any of the following methods: non-emergency line at (510)577-2740, anonymous tip line at (510)577-3278, or text-to-tip at 888777 (keyword: TipSLPolice).

In addition to reporting suspected hate crimes to your local law enforcement agency, please visit the Alameda County District Attorney's website for more available resources: Resources & Publications: Brochures — Alameda County District Attorney's Office (alcoda.org)

UPDATE:

Monday, June 20: At about 1:30 am, this investigation led officers to a residence on the 15300 block of Inverness Street. This residence was in close proximity to the victim's address. Over the course of this weekend, patrol officers established probable cause to arrest a suspect for these crimes. Officers executed an arrest warrant and a search warrant and arrested 25-year-old Nicholas Swyers of San Leandro for hate crimes. Swyers was arrested without incident, and officers recovered evidence linking Swyers to the crime during the execution of their search warrant.

"I want to thank our weekend Patrol Division who worked around the clock on this investigation which resulted in a swift arrest."

"This is an unfortunate reminder that hate and racism do exist. But, this is also a reminder that the San Leandro Police Department will unequivocally not stand for this behavior and dedicate the necessary resources to bring these perpetrators to justice," said Lieutenant Matthew Barajas.

This case will be presented to the Alameda County District Attorney's Office on Tuesday, June 21st.

U.S. Lags behind Europe and China on EVs

EARTHTALK

*Dear EarthTalk:
Why is the U.S.
lagging behind
Europe and China on the production and sales of electric cars?*

-- James V., Miami, Florida

BY CAROLINE MORENO

The U.S. lags as a distant third among electric vehicle (EV) sales and production. According to Bloomberg, China claims a whopping 46% of global EV sales. Europe comes in second at 34%, while North America accounts for only 15%. The U.S. EV fleet continues to expand, growing 28% annually from 2015-2020, writes The Guardian. But that same period saw the European fleet increase 41% while China's fleet grew 51%.

Production rates show similar trends. The International Council on Clean Transportation (ICCT) establishes China as the market leader, accounting for 44% of EV production as of 2020. Europe again claims second place, with 25% market share. And the U.S.? – 18% of global production, a decrease from 20% in 2017.

Policy is the primary hold-up behind the U.S. lag. Both China and the European Union boast supply and demand policies to stimulate EV markets, such as greenhouse gas reductions, quota systems for new vehicle sales, and consumer incentives to reduce purchase price. “Electric vehicle manufacturing growth happens where there are strong national policies designed to spur the market forward,” says Nic Lutsey of ICCT.

Can the U.S. come back from its position as a laggard on production of electric vehicles as Chinese and European automakers blaze ahead?
Credit: Pexels.com

“Hundreds of billions of dollars are on the table, and the United States hasn’t even bothered to pull up a chair.” During the Trump administration, the U.S. rolled EV policies back. The Environmental Protection Agency under President Biden released new greenhouse gas vehicle standards in December 2021, but some argue the revisions merely reinstated Obama-era policies rather than advance the field.

Charging infrastructure is another missing link; electric charging stations are still scarce on the American landscape. In daily spins around the city, this dearth may not present a problem, but for long-distance trips, “range anxiety” can be enough to slow sales. As Alyssa Altman of Publicis Sapient told Wired, “Historically there simply haven’t been enough charge points. Potential EV customers are concerned with keeping their vehicle juiced up for long trips, and for some journeys in the U.S., the lack of charging stations makes this impossible.” Statista counts 113,600 charging outlets in the U.S., compared to China’s 800,000, with 36% in California, thanks to its profusion of EVs and supporting state policies.

Some bright spots are emerging for the U.S. EV market. President Biden is aiming for 50% of new car sales to be electric by 2030, although 20% may be more realistic. Congress passed a bill for 500,000 new charge outlets nationwide, but the death of the Build Back Better bill interrupted plans for expanding consumer incentives. Also, car manufactures are beginning to step up. GM, Volvo and Audi have announced intentions to go fully electric in 10-15 years. And, although the number of EV-ready manufacturing plants still lags behind traditional plants, that number is rising, says ICCT, with seven of 44 manufacturing plants scheduled to be all-electric by 2025. U.S. Department of Energy research shows that, even with higher price tags, less maintenance on EVs decreases lifetime costs compared to traditional cars. The more consumers consider electric, the more the U.S. market grows.

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

*Ask Rusty – How Does Social Security
Disability Work with Private Disability
Insurance?*

BY RUSSELL GLOOR,
NATIONAL SOCIAL SECURITY ADVISOR,
AMAC FOUNDATION

Dear Rusty: If someone is collecting long-term disability through their company and the company states the employee also must apply through Social Security, how does this work? Does the amount of Social Security decrease from the amount that the person would normally receive upon retirement? Is long-term disability for life, or just until you are of retirement age? How about for the spouse of that individual? Would it have any impact on them? Signed: Concerned

Dear Concerned: It’s common for private long-term disability (LTD) insurers to require that you apply for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits. Typically, the private LTD benefit will be offset (reduced) by the federal SSDI benefit.

The SSDI benefit amount, if awarded, will be the full Social Security benefit earned up to the point the recipient becomes disabled and unable to work. That means someone on SSDI before full retirement age (FRA) gets their FRA amount earlier (FRA is somewhere between 66 and 67 depending on the year of birth). The SSDI benefit will be based on the disabled person’s lifetime earnings history, unreduced for claiming earlier than full retirement age. SSDI will automatically convert to regular SS retirement benefits at the same amount when FRA is attained. Thus, getting SSDI doesn’t detract from the person’s FRA benefit amount; rather they get their FRA amount earlier.

Social Security disability benefits last for as long as you remain disabled, or up to your SS full retirement age. To be eligible, the disability must be expected to last for at least one year, and the disability must render you unable to perform significant work. You must also have worked recently (usually at least five of the last 10 years) to maintain eligibility, and you must have contributed Social Security FICA payroll taxes (or self-employment taxes) from your work earnings. Only very limited work earnings are allowed when collecting Social Security Disability Insurance benefits, and Social Security may periodically require confirmation of continued SSDI eligibility.

Applying for SSDI is a relatively easy process which can be done online at www.ssa.gov/applyfordisability, or by calling SS directly at 1 (800) 772-1213. Depending on the nature of the disability, it usually takes three to five months to obtain a determination and, if SSDI is approved, there is a five month wait for benefits to start. If the SSDI application is initially denied (about 65% of all initial applications are) you can exercise several levels of appeal, starting with simply requesting a reconsideration by Social Security, followed, if necessary, by a hearing with an independent Administrative Law Judge, a review by the SSDI Appeals Council, or even an appeal to Federal Court. Hopefully, if the applicant is now on private long-term disability, the SSDI application will be initially approved.

As for whether the spouse of a person on SSDI is affected, much depends on the spouse’s age and how the spouse’s own SS retirement benefit compares to the disabled partner’s SSDI benefit. Benefits for a spouse are available as early as age 62, but the spouse’s personal FRA benefit amount (from their own lifetime earnings record) must be less than 50% of the disabled partner’s SSDI amount to get a spousal boost from the disabled spouse. Otherwise, one marriage partner being on SSDI will not affect the other partner’s personal Social Security retirement benefit.

Happy the elephant isn't a person, top New York court rules

ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's top court on June 14 rejected an effort to free Happy the elephant from the Bronx Zoo, ruling that she does not meet the definition of “person” who is being illegally confined.

The 5-2 decision by the state Court of Appeals affirms an earlier court decision and means Happy will not be released through a habeas corpus proceeding, which is a way for people to challenge illegal confinement.

The majority decision written by Chief Judge Janet DiFiore said that “while no one disputes that elephants are intelligent beings deserving of proper care and compassion,” a writ of habeas corpus is intended to protect the liberty of human beings and does not apply to a nonhuman animal like Happy.

The case had been closely watched by animal rights activists and industries that depend on animals. The zoo and its supporters warned that a win for advocates at the Nonhuman Rights Project could open the door to more legal actions on behalf of animals, including pets and other species in zoos.

The advocates at the Nonhuman Rights Project argued that Happy is an autonomous, cognitively complex elephant worthy of the right reserved in law for “a person.” The Bronx Zoo argued Happy is neither illegally imprisoned nor a person, but a well-cared-for elephant “respected as the magnificent creature she is.”

ORDINANCE NO. 536
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, APPROVED AND ADOPTING A MILITARY EQUIPMENT USE POLICY AND ADDING CHAPTER 2.50 "MILITARY EQUIPMENT USE POLICY" TO TITLE 2, "ADMINISTRATION AND PERSONNEL" OF THE NEWARK MUNICIPAL CODE IN COMPLIANCE WITH ASSEMBLY BILL 481
WHEREAS, on September 30, 2021, Governor Gavin Newsom signed into law Assembly Bill 481 relating to the use of military equipment by California law enforcement agencies; and WHEREAS, Assembly Bill 481 seeks to provide transparency, oversight, and an opportunity for meaningful public input on decisions regarding whether and how military equipment is funded, acquired, or used by law enforcement agencies; and WHEREAS, Assembly Bill 481, codified at California Government Code section 7070, et. seq., requires law enforcement agencies to obtain approval of the applicable governing body by an ordinance adopting a "military equipment" use policy, at a regular meeting held pursuant to open meeting laws, prior to taking certain actions relating to the funding, acquisition, or use of military equipment. The term "military equipment" is defined in California Government Code section 7070 subdivision (c); and WHEREAS, the Newark Police Department is in possession of certain items of equipment that may qualify as "military equipment" under Assembly Bill 481; and WHEREAS, Assembly Bill 481 requires that a law enforcement agency possessing and using such qualifying equipment prepare a publicly released, written, military equipment use policy. The policy must be a document covering the inventory, description, purpose, acquisition, maintenance, fiscal impacts, procedures, training, oversight, and complaint process, applicable to the Department's use of such equipment; and WHEREAS, Assembly Bill 481 allows the governing body of a city to approve the military equipment use policy for continued or future funding, acquisition, or use of military equipment within its jurisdiction only if it makes specified determinations specified in Government Code Section 7071 subdivision (d); and WHEREAS, the military equipment use policy and supporting information must, upon adoption by ordinance, thereafter be approved by the governing body by ordinance and reviewed annually; and WHEREAS, the proposed military equipment use policy, including military equipment inventory, has been adopted by the Newark Police Department and identified as Policy 709; and WHEREAS, Policy 709 was published on the Newark Police Department's internet website 30 days prior to the public hearing concerning the military equipment at issue in compliance with Government Code Section 7071(b); and WHEREAS, the Newark Police Department commenced the approval process prior to May 1, 2022, in accordance with Assembly Bill 481; and WHEREAS, the Policy 709 was presented to City Council at a public hearing on May 26, 2022; and WHEREAS, the Policy 709 meets the requirements of California Government Code Section 7070(d); and WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Newark, having received the information required under Assembly Bill 481 regarding the Newark Police Department's use of military equipment as defined in said law, and makes the specified determinations required under Government Code Section 7071(d), deems it to be in the best interest of the City to approve the Newark Police Department's Military Equipment Funding, Acquisition and Use Policy as set forth herein.
THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NEWARK DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS: SECTION 1. Recitals. The above recitals are true and correct and made a part of this Ordinance.
SECTION 2. Determinations. Based on the findings above, in addition to information provided to the City Council at the public meeting, the City Council determines as follows: The Newark Police Department's Military Equipment Use Policy is necessary because there are no reasonable alternatives that can achieve the same objective of officer and civilian safety. The Newark Police Department's Military Equipment Use Policy is reasonably cost effective compared to available alternatives that can achieve the same objectives of officer and civilian safety. The Newark Police Department complied with the Military Equipment Use Policy although it was not yet in effect at the time, or if prior uses did not comply with the accompanying military equipment use policy, corrective action has been taken to remedy nonconforming uses and ensure future compliance. The Newark Police Department's Military Equipment Use Policy, Policy 709, setting forth the City's military equipment use policy is approved and adopted.
SECTION 3. Addition of Chapter 2.50. Chapter 2.50, Military Equipment Use Policy, is added to the Newark Municipal Code as follows: "Chapter 2.50 Military Equipment Use Policy. Pursuant to Government Code Section 7071(d), the City Council has made the following determinations: The military equipment inventoried and presented to the City Council is necessary because there are no reasonable alternative that can achieve the same objective of officer and civilian safety. The proposed military equipment use policy ("Policy") will safeguard the public's welfare, safety, civil rights, and civil liberties. The equipment is reasonably cost effective compared to available alternatives that can achieve the same objective of officer and civilian safety (if any); and Prior to the equipment use policy being adopted, the applicable equipment use policy (which included equipment now defined as military equipment) that was in effect at the time, or if prior uses did not comply with the accompanying military equipment use policy, corrective action has been taken to remedy nonconforming uses and ensure future compliance. The Police Department has submitted a proposed Policy to the City Council identified as Newark Police Department Policy 709 and has made those documents available on the Police Department's website for at least 30 days prior to the public hearing concerning the military equipment at issue. The Policy was considered by the City Council as an agenda item in an open session of a regular meeting, noticed in accordance with the Ralph M. Brown Act, at which public comment was permitted. The Policy shall be made publicly available on the Police Department's website for as long as the military equipment is available for use. The Police Department shall submit an annual military equipment report to the City Council, containing the information required in Government Code Section 7072, and the City Council shall determine whether each type of military equipment identified in that report has complied with the standards for approval set forth in a(1)-(4) above. The City Council shall review this ordinance, and vote on whether to renew it, on an annual basis at a regular meeting, in accordance with Government Code Section 7071(e)(2). The City Council approves the use of the Policy identified as Newark Police Department Policy 709, and finds that it satisfies the requirements of Government Code Section 7070(d).
SECTION 4. Severability. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid or unconstitutional by a decision of any court of competent jurisdiction, such decision will not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council hereby declares that it would have passed this ordinance and each of its sections, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase not declared invalid or unconstitutional without regard to whether any portion of the ordinance would be subsequently declared invalid or unconstitutional.
SECTION 5. CEQA. Approval of the ordinance is exempt from further environmental review under the general rule in California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) Guidelines Section 15061(b) (3). CEQA analysis is not required because of the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment. As a series of text amendments and additions that do not authorize any new activity, it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility that the ordinance will have a significant effect on the environment.
SECTION 6. Publication and effective date. Within fifteen (15) days from and after adoption, this Ordinance shall be published once a week in the City Voice, a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in Alameda County and circulated in the City of Newark, in accordance with California Government Code Section 36933. A Petition for Probate has been filed by RONALD R. GOMEZ in the Superior Court of California, County of ALAMEDA.

FAA says future planes will need to reduce carbon emissions

AP WIRE SERVICE

The Biden administration proposed Wednesday that future planes produce lower levels of greenhouse gas emissions before they can be certified by federal regulators.

The Federal Aviation Administration proposal would increase fuel-efficiency standards for jets and large turboprop and propeller-driven planes that it has not yet certified and planes built after Jan. 1, 2028.

FAA said the rule, if made final, would cover new large airliners from both Boeing and Airbus, plus various business jets and other planes. The FAA said the rule would bring the United States in line with carbon dioxide emission standards set by the United Nation's aviation organization.

The rule would not cover planes that are already flying.

Planes are a small but growing contributor to greenhouse gas emissions that are tied to climate change. The FAA said civilian planes caused 3% of U.S. emissions before the pandemic.

Boeing and Airbus said they support efforts to reduce carbon emissions. Boeing praised the FAA's approach of considering a variety of measures — aerodynamics, engine technology, and lighter weight — to improve efficiency.

Environmentalists have spent years pushing the government to regulate limits on heat-trapping emissions from planes.

In 2015, the Environmental Protection Agency determined that aircraft emissions posed a health threat, a step that required EPA to draft rules. In response, in 2020 the Trump administration announced a proposal that critics said would do little more than approve steps the aviation industry already supported to reduce fuel burn by new planes starting in 2028.

Last year, President Joe Biden touted an agreement with the airline industry to cut aircraft emissions 20% by the end of the decade and try to replace jet fuel with cleaner alternatives by 2050. Climate experts said the administration's approach, which assumed a rapid, exponential increase in the production of sustainable fuel, was unrealistic.

Oakland Zoo Helps Coordinate Big Cat Rescue

SUBMITTED BY OAKLAND ZOO

Four fortunate big cats will now live safe, dignified lives after a cross-country rescue was facilitated on June 10 by a three-entity collaboration. Oakland Zoo and globally accredited big cat sanctuaries Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge (Eureka Springs, AR) and Lions Tigers & Bears (Alpine, CA) teamed up to rescue a lion, a tiger hybrid and two generic tigers from a defunct, abandoned drive-thru roadside zoo in northeast Oklahoma. Cited and shut down by the USDA in 2008, the roadside zoo and its owner were reported to have ties to “Joe Exotic,” also known in the well-known Netflix series as “Tiger King.”

After a concerned Oklahoma resident contacted Oakland Zoo, Colleen Kinzley, VP of Animal Care, Conservation and Research for the Zoo immediately contacted both animal sanctuaries to team together in the effort. Oakland Zoo and Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge conducted onsite animal evaluations, and Lions Tigers & Bears used its state-of-the-art, self-contained animal rescue hauler to transport three of the big cats to California.

“For the past thirty years, we’ve fully committed Oakland Zoo’s tiger habitat as a sanctuary for tigers victimized by the circus, roadside zoo, private ownership, and cub-petting industries. Those tigers need help, and we can provide that help while educating the public about the dangers of animal exploitation practiced in those industries,” said Nik Dehejia, CEO, Oakland Zoo.

Rescued animals, all female and declawed, include:

- An elderly, arthritic lion that required immediate medical attention and care (going to Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge)
- A tiger hybrid in poor condition and with a badly infected tooth that has caused facial deformity, and bowed legs (going to Oakland Zoo)
- Two tigers in separate enclosures, both energetic, but lean (one going to Oakland Zoo and one to Lions Tigers & Bears)

“There are major red flags that show these animals were victims of the cub petting industry,” said Bobbi Brink, founder and director of Lions Tigers & Bears. “These cats were declawed and in poor health and living conditions. Most likely, they were bred to be photo props, and once they grew too big and couldn’t be profitable, they were abandoned.”

In their new homes, each big cat has a proper enclosure, diet, safety protocol and more, as is required by the Global Federation of Animal Sanctuaries (GFAS). Oakland Zoo’s tiger habitat features climbing platforms, two pools for swimming, trees, and a grass-covered ground. Upon arriving at Oakland Zoo, the tigers will be taken to the Zoo’s veterinary hospital for medical attention and care for approximately four weeks before being moved to the Zoo’s tiger habitat.
