Get wild with us!

SUBMITTED BY ANGELA HARTMAN

On Saturday, October 29, 2022, Ohlone Humane Society Wildlife Rehabilitation Center (OHSWRC) is celebrating their 25th year of assisting orphaned and injured wildlife in the Tri-Cities. Thanks to our members, community support and very hard-working volunteers, we have taken in 25,000 animals since 1997.

So why would the wild critters of the Tri-Cities need rehabilitation? When wild animals get sick, injured or orphaned, they need a place to go for medical help. They depend on assistance from trained wildlife rehabilitators—skilled, and licensed individuals who provide care to wildlife in need. In the past, we have received an orphaned California Gray Fox who got stuck in a water pipe, a Red-Tailed Hawk who had a bullet injury to her wing, and a nest full of baby birds that fell from a tree while it was being trimmed.

Caring citizens and trained wildlife rehabilitators are a wild animal's second chance at life. Our reward is when we release a rehabilitated animal back into the environment to live the healthy life it deserves. Every OHSWRC volunteer and caring citizen who walked through our doors in 2022 made an enormous, positive footprint on our planet and our urban wildlife in need.

Join us at our Open House on Saturday, October 29 and see first-hand what a wildlife hospital looks like beyond the lobby! The event is free and open to all ages. Learn about our local wildlife, take a behind the scenes wildlife hospital tour, do some nature crafts, enter our opportunity drawings, meet Phil the beekeeper and attend live ambassador animal talks.

Licensed therapist explores benefits of self-care, self-compassion

Watch online seminar through Facebook or YouTube, Nov. 9, 1 p.m.

Fall is here and the holiday season is not far behind. And for many, along with the family visits, holiday parties, shopping and preparations, comes stress. Stress and strain can be managed during the holidays and throughout the year, according to Wajeeha Khan, a licensed marriage and family therapist with Washington Township Medical Foundation.

Khan will discuss how to manage stress and improve overall well-being at an online Washington Hospital Health & Wellness seminar at 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18. This event can be watched live on Facebook and YouTube. To view on Facebook, sign in to your account and then go to facebook.com/WashingtonHosp. Watching on YouTube does not require an account. Simply go to YouTube.com/whhsInHealth.

During the seminar, “Self-care and Self-compassion: Keys to Well-being,”

Khan will outline steps individuals can take to become aware of the various issues that create pressure and stress in their lives and discuss tools they can use to begin to relieve those pressures.

“Self-care is looking after your own health by paying attention to how you really are feeling,” Khan says. “It’s important to acknowledge what is missing and what is needed, to be in tune with yourself, to recognize when you are tired, hungry, drained or stressed, or that you need a break or a change in the situation you are in.”

Self-compassion is avoiding self-criticism, avoiding inflicting excess pressure on yourself, and instead, being mindful of your own needs. She adds, “Active use of self-care and self-compassion will improve your mental and physical health, lower the risk of illness and increase your energy to engage with the world around you.”

Neglecting self-care can result in feeling depleted, lack of focus and the inability to care for others — and for yourself. “Although challenging, it’s very important to prioritize time for yourself.” Tools include meditation — as little as five minutes at a time can be very helpful, she says. Stay hydrated, as dehydration can cause anxiety.

“Create boundaries; learn to say no when you can’t do something. We aren’t trained to be in tune with ourselves, to know our limits,” Khan explains. “In our society, the definition of productivity is to keep going. Often that’s counterproductive.”

Khan will discuss resources that are available to help when stress becomes overwhelming, beginning with a frank discussion with one’s own physician, if appropriate. It is important to seek guidance from professionals who can help, including, among others, physicians, behavioral and family therapists, and nutritionists.

Start caring for yourself. She adds, “When you fly, flight attendants say that in case of emergency, put the oxygen mask on yourself before helping others. That’s true of self-care and self-compassion. It’s preventive maintenance.”

For those who are unable to tune into the Nov. 18 Health & Wellness seminar, Khan’s presentation will continue to be available on the Washington Hospital Facebook and YouTube pages. On www.YouTube.com/whhsInHealth, find a library of health-related videos presented by experts in their fields.

AS PART OF BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH, THE TRI-CITY VOICE WILL FEATURE PATIENTS WILLING TO SHARE THEIR BREAST CANCER EXPERIENCES

Tri-City Woman Diagnosed with Breast Cancer After Discovering a Lump

Self-exams play a key role in early diagnosis and better outcomes

Daisy Magana discovered a lump in her breast last January, just a month after she was supposed to get her yearly mammogram. She wasn't too concerned because her last mammogram had been negative, but in February 2022 she was diagnosed with breast cancer. After nearly a year of treatment, including surgery, Daisy is grateful for the care she received at the UCSF - Washington Cancer Center in Fremont. She is now cancer-free and looking forward to enjoying retirement.

"I didn't really worry too much at first," she said. "There's no cancer in my family, so I thought maybe it was benign. But then a mammogram showed I had cancer, and I got scared."

Daisy benefitted from the newest technology available at the Washington Women's Center, where she received her mammogram. The center offers state-of-the-art 3D mammography, also called tomosynthesis. This advanced imaging takes multiple pictures of the breast that can be viewed as a three-dimensional image, allowing radiologists to see signs of breast cancer earlier than with traditional mammograms.

She met with a nurse navigator, Christine Mikkelsen, who helped guide her through the cancer treatment journey, making appointments and connecting her to resources. Nurse navigators are provided to patients through the Washington Women's Center, which supports breast cancer patients like Daisy by offering advanced diagnostic services and an expert clinical staff, as well as a host of wellness programs, in one easy-to-access setting. The center has been accredited by The National Accreditation Program for Breast Centers every year since 2012.

"I'm so thankful for the nurse navigators," Daisy added. "They really helped streamline the process."

She then saw Dr. Matthew Tenold, an oncologist with the UCSF - Washington Cancer Center, who helped her understand what she was facing. "I was very apprehensive, but he and his nurse were wonderful," she said. "The whole cancer team helped me manage my health and get the care I needed. The UCSF - Washington Cancer Center is really a great place."

Advanced Care Close to Home

Thanks to a partnership between Washington Hospital and UCSF Health, the UCSF - Washington Cancer Center was established in 2017 to provide the local community with the highest-quality cancer treatment, research and technology close to home. The center brings together specialists from both institutions who work together to provide the most effective therapies possible today.

Daisy started chemotherapy in March at the Sandy Amos RN Infusion Center at Washington Hospital and then in September, had surgery performed by Dr. William E. Dugoni, a surgeon with Washington Township Medical Foundation and medical director of the Washington Women's Center.

"After my surgery, they said I'm cancer-free," she said. "I'm so happy about that."

Now the Union City woman is hoping to enjoy her retirement and start volunteering. After nearly 30 years working at the Social Security Administration, she wants to help older adults. "I've always liked working with people," Daisy added. "I'm just glad to be cancer-free. I'm a firm believer that regular mammograms combined with self-exams really increases the odds of early detection. I'm fortunate I found the lump and that I was able to get such amazing care close to home."

A positive attitude and a flair for fashion help Daisy on her cancer-fighting journey.

Araceli Orozco
Hayward School Board

www.araceliorozcohusd.com

My husband Eduardo and I moved to Hayward almost 30 years ago. We have five children, four already graduated from Tennyson High School. Our youngest child is in third grade and currently attending Schafer Park Elementary. For the last 28 years, I have been a parent and a student advocate throughout Hayward public schools.

I have also been a parent representative in different committees like, School Usage Design Team (SUDT), School Site Council (SSC), Site Base Decision Making (SBDM), District Advisory Committee (DAC), and I'm in my second term as the president of the District English Learners Advisory Committee (DELAC).

One of my biggest passions is to give parents the necessary tools so that they can navigate the school system and help their children succeed. Because of my involvement in the community, I know the greatest area of needs. In order for all students to achieve high academic standards, we need to:

- Assess all students. Evaluate Special ED students at an early age and have inclusion programs in all schools, look at the data and put them in programs that will meet their diverse needs.
- Create an equitable, positive and safe environment for our students, parents and staff.
- Look deeply into budgetary issues and make sure that resources are directed to students first.
- Share accountability across the District that means Students, Parents, Staff and especially Board Members. Share it with the ultimate goal of helping every student reach his or her own full potential.

I will listen, discuss, and act by establishing a respectful and truthful partnership with all stakeholders. All our students deserve the highest quality education as they prepare to compete in a global economy. This is why I am asking for your support and your vote on Nov 8, 2022.

Artificial intelligence, real opportunity:

Enovix hosts Manufacturing Day at Fremont Headquarters

BY HUGO VERA

In 1991, parts of the science-fiction action blockbuster Terminator 2: Judgment Day were filmed in Fremont's steadily growing technological business park. More than 30 years later, students from nearby high schools in association with Mission Valley ROP have returned to the same location, now at the epicenter of Silicon Valley, to gain up-close-and-personal knowledge about the limitless opportunities that a tech-driven career can yield right in their own backyard.

Dubbed “Manufacturing Day,” this yearly event takes place at the Enovix headquarters in south Fremont. Formed in 2007 by veterans of the semiconductor industry, Enovix has specialized in the production and distribution of lithium-power batteries which provide energy to everything from cell phones to “smart glasses” to laptops. According to City of Fremont Economic Development Director Donovan Lazaro, the first national Manufacturing Day originated in 2012 and is typically held on the first Friday of October. For logistical purposes, Enovix invited the Mission Valley ROP students to attend a tour on Thursday, October 6, 2022.

“Manufacturing Day [and Manufacturing Week in Fremont in general] is an opportunity for companies to both literally and metaphorically open their doors and to allow students to experience advanced industries firsthand,” said Lazaro.

During Thursday's festivities, a bus dropped off eager high school seniors at the Enovix headquarters where they were first treated to a presentation from several Enovix representatives, including Co-Founder, President and CEO Harrold Rust. During the presentation, Rust stressed the importance of lithium-battery manufacturing in regards to safety and everyday use.

“Fifteen years ago it didn't seem feasible that we would have smartphones, smart-glasses and all other types of thenfuturistic devices," said Rust. "Today, these devices not only exist but they are powered by the same batteries we make right here in Fremont, which is quickly becoming the center of the technological world."

Following Rust's keynote address, Fremont Mayor Lily Mei spoke to the high-schoolers as well, emphasizing how a career in S.T.E.A.M. (science, technology, engineering, art and mathematics) can impact one's life.

"Fremont was recently ranked one of the best cities to work in America," said Mei. "It is people like you who will contribute to the growth and development of this city."

Following presentations and a Q&A, students and all other visitors suited up in hairnets, lab coats and shoe-covers as they toured the inside of the facility where batteries are assembled. Students and participants got to witness the meticulous means by which lithium batteries are cut from steel, soldered together and tested with heat. Tour guides even pointed out the use of robotic arms that are used to assemble various components as well as how they are packaged for distribution.

Many high-schoolers were in awe at the technological marvels before them, something that Lazaro, the Mayor's office and Enovix took great pride in.

“When local manufacturing companies pull back the curtain to showcase their operations, it has the power to inspire students to pursue an innovative, rewarding and lucrative career they may have never considered before,”

Teens honored for volunteer work

SUBMITTED BY
OLIVIA MA, YOUTH4GOOD

On the sunny afternoon of Saturday, October 1, several teenagers played basketball, laughed and caught up with each other on the grassy field at Irvington Community Park on Blacow Road in Fremont. Together, they were attending Youth4Good's annual President's Volunteer Service Awards.

One of the teenagers there was high school junior Ethan Tang, co-president of Youth4Good, a community service organization dedicated to helping youngsters develop leadership skills and good citizenship practices. Over the course of the past six years (since he was 10-years-old), Ethan has served more than 30 meals to the residents of a shelter.

Ethan truly believes in the goodness of helping others, stating that, "It has been such a rewarding experience for me when the residents came up and thanked us for the delicious meals. Their smiles and appreciation really melt my heart. Through all these years, I learned to cook and help others in my own way. I hope more and more volunteers will join us!" Ethan is one of 550 volunteers that are part of Youth4Good Foundation, a nonprofit, which actively serves underprivileged communities across the Bay Area, especially the homeless and low-income community.

Under student leadership based in Fremont, Youth4Good volunteers have tutored students-in-need from the U.S. and China, hosted farm events and parties for low-income families, provided meals at homeless shelters, organized food bank events, and cleaned local parks. Together, they have raised more than $10,000 to sponsor shelter meals and support the education of underprivileged students in China.

Youth4Good was presented with a whopping 58 recipients of the President's Volunteer Service Award in 2022, including 35 gold awards, four silver awards, and 19 bronze awards. Recipients range from elementary school students, such as 10-year-old Annabelle Hua, the youngest gold award winner, to high school students like Joshua Zhang, a zealous volunteer with more than 450 service hours in the last three years alone.

On this beautiful day in harvest October, Youth4Good held their annual President's Volunteer Service Award Ceremony to honor the work and accomplishments of these recipients. The award recognizes the important role of volunteers in America's strength and national identity. This nationally recognized award highlights individuals whose service positively impacts society and inspires those around them to take action, too.

Dr. Yang Shao, a Fremont City Councilmember, was one of the many people who attended the ceremony and handed out awards to each recipient. Shao eagerly recognized the kindheartedness and zeal of the recipients during the ceremony, stating that "We have a mission to be an active part of society. This is not the end of their service, but the beginning of their journey."

Warm Springs BART project receives American Society of Civil Engineers award

SUBMITTED BY GENEVA BOSQUES

The Warm Springs BART West Access Bridge and Plaza Project has been selected to receive the 2022 Outstanding Transportation Project award from the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) – San Francisco Section. The award recognizes innovative projects with a principal focus on transportation design and construction. The project was recognized at the annual ASCE San Francisco Section Meeting on September 28.

The West Access Bridge crosses over five sets of Union Pacific railroad tracks to connect the Warm Springs/South Fremont BART Station to the growing Fremont Innovation District. It is composed of a truss span and a cable stay span for a total length of 150 feet. The cable stay bridge includes a 120-foot-tall pylon that is the signature architecture element of the bridge. From there, the bridge ties into the Warm Springs Plaza via a staircase, escalators, and elevator tower. These elements are integral to the signature architecture.

The City's design team included Biggs Cardosa & Associates, HNTB and Gates & Associates, with Shimmick Construction Co. as the contractor. The total project cost was $41 million. Preconstruction, planning, design, and utility relocation work was funded by the City of Fremont ($11 million). The construction cost of $30 million was funded by the Alameda County Transportation Commission. By agreement, BART funded its own project support and oversight costs of $1.5 million from Measure RR separately.

The Warm Springs/South Fremont Station opened for service in 2017 and boasts eye-catching art installations, solar panels and EV charging stations as well as other environmentally sustainable features.

Flash Fiction Fairy Tales Results

BY ARATHI SATISH

Fremont Cultural Arts Council announced the results of the "Flash Fiction Fairy Tales" Contest. The event was co-sponsored by Half Price Books, Nothing Bundt Cakes and Erick's Delicafe. Fairy tales were posted on columns inside Half Price Books, Fremont Hub. Store patrons selected winners by vote. Julie Gilson, President, FCAC said, "I am pleased so many entries were submitted, all of which were fun to read. We have many creative writers in our community and we are glad to have showcased them."

Al Minard organizer, said, "It definitely takes a 'village' to make something like Flash Fiction work and be the success that it was this year. We had over thirty writers submit fifty stories and the top three winners were only separated by one vote each. This should remind us that our one vote does make a difference."

Winners this year:

1st place - "The Magic Word" by Patricia Doyne

2nd place - "Butterflies" by MP Smith

3rd place - "The Leprechaun's Pot" by Richard Lau

4th place - "The Witch Who Flew Upside Down" by Sarah Jensen

5th place - "My Super Sibling" by Karina Sapkota

President Emeritus Award - "Magical Meals" by Nitika Sathiya

Richard Lau, who has been participating in the event the last few years and had a winning entry this year pointed out, "It has been fun to watch the Flash Fiction contest grow and develop over the years...Coming from oral tradition, fairy tales tend to have a lot of plot and imagery, and it's tough to squeeze all of that, and possibly a lesson as well into 300 words. I have a lot of admiration for the courageous entrants who rose to the challenge and shared their stories with us!"

Nitika Sathiya, a student at Washington High school and FCAC intern and prize winner said, "I am grateful for winning the President Emeritus award! My story is called 'Magical Meals.' I wrote about Indian snacks and food that were cooked with special ingredients and spells to make them magical. I wanted the story to reflect the importance of family recipes and how we need to pass down our 'Magical Meals,' as it is a big part of my life and culture."

Margaret Thornberry, who selected the President Emeritus award, said she selected this particular entry because, "'Magical Meals' tells of a restaurant that takes the ordinary preparation and serving of food and transmutes it into something joyous and special...which food cooked and served with love and imagination always is."

Al Minard concluded by saying, "Many of the ballots this year voted for five stories, the most anyone could vote for, which suggests to me that they had a hard time choosing their favorite. All in all a very successful and fun event."

Winners can be read on the Fremont Cultural Arts Council website www.fremontculturalartsCouncil.org. They will also run in the paper over the coming weeks.

First place winner, "The Magic Word":

Once there was a silver cow that gave sweet milk. But not just milk. If you said, "please," she'd give chocolate milk, root beer, herbal tea, even caramel latte.

Silver lived with an old woman named Mehitabel. The cow slept on a mattress in the family room. When Mehitabel cooked, she fixed two plates. "Silver's my best friend," said Mehitabel.

A neighbor named Snap was outraged. "My cows sleep in barns, if they're lucky," he said. "They eat grass. When they get old, I butcher them for stews and steaks."

Snap spied through Mehitabel's window. In the morning he heard her say, "Please, Silver, some café au lait this morning." At noon, she said, "Please, Silver, some spiced chai for my lunch." And after dinner, she said, "Please, Silver, some ice cream for dessert." Each time she milked the cow, and took away a mug of something wonderful.

The next day, Snap rushed up to Mehitabel's door. "A forest fire is headed this way," he shouted. "We need all hands to dig a trench to stop it."

Mehitabel rushed out with gloves and a shovel. Snap ran inside and led the silver cow down the road to his ramshackle barn.

"Okay, stupid cow," cried Snap, "Give me strong ale." Silver just looked at him. "Right now!" demanded Snap. He tried milking the cow. Nothing. "Give me strong ale or you're hamburger!" Snap snarled. He ran to get an axe.

"I'll give you one more chance," said Snap. He grabbed the cow—but his hand turned to vanilla ice cream, his tongue turned to yogurt, and his axe turned to cheddar cheese. Snap blinked three times, then dissolved into a puddle of melted butter.

"You forgot the magic word," said Silver. She sauntered slowly back to Mehitabel's house.

Diablo Valley beats Chabot football

By ERIC DONATO

Diablo Valley College Vikings (Pleasant Hill) beat Chabot College Gladiators (Hayward) in a California Community College Athletic Association (CCCCAA) weekend football conference match on October 15th with a 33-17 win.

Dueling field goals opened the match within eight minutes of the first quarter, 3-3. The Gladiators edged the Vikings with a 12-yard run TD to close the first quarter 3-10 lead. The momentum shifted to the visiting Diablo Valley in the second quarter opening with a long 45-yard field goal from Ray Vallee. The Viking's next possession led to a ninety-yard drive setting up a five-yard dash to the end zone switching leads at 13-10. Diablo Valley's momentum carried over to the third quarter, with their QB Joey Aguilar finding their passing game rhythm, gaining yardage aggressively down the field. The Vikings executed two critical twenty-yard plus TD passes with one failed extra point kick, ending the third quarter 26-10.

The Vikings extended their lead further in the last quarter with an eight-yard pass, 33-10. In a last-ditch effort near the game's two-minute warning mark, Chabot's QB, Kekoa Turangan, threw a long thirty-six-yard pass to Jeremiah Crum for a successful endzone reception. The game ended with a convincing Vikings victory, 37-17. Diablo Valley chalked their first win on the CCCCCAA conference standings while moving their overall record 4-2, just behind first-place College of San Mateo.

Quiet Quitting, Quiet Firing Jobs

By ANNE CHAN, PhD, MFT

According to a recent Gallup study, at least half of United States workers are quiet quitting. Quiet quitting is a phrase used for those who are doing the bare minimum on the job. These employees might not be quitting or sending out resumes, but they act like they are on their last day of the job. They do as little as they can, with the least amount of effort and enthusiasm. These quiet quitters are not going above and beyond, and are disconnected from their bosses, their jobs, and perhaps their co-workers. Some might use a term like “slacker” to describe quiet quitters. However, quiet quitting is also used to describe those who are not slacking, but are firm about their work/life balance and do not work beyond their expected job requirements.

The term “quiet quitting” originated in social media and is now trending, particularly with younger workers. Indeed, younger workers have been particularly hard hit in the pandemic workplace. Those under 35 have reported to Gallup that they feel a lack of encouragement and opportunity. In addition, fewer than four in 10 younger workers report that they know what is expected of them. Given that more than half of younger workers might not know what they are supposed to do on the job, perhaps it is not surprising that they are doing the bare minimum.

Younger workers are not the only ones quiet quitting. Older workers, and those higher up on the corporate ladder, also feel disenfranchised because their bosses or companies do not care about them and because there are few or no opportunities for growing in their career. Like their younger counterparts, they too, are negatively affected.

A related phenomenon to quiet quitting is “quiet firing” – in which employers ease out difficult employees by making their lives difficult at work. For instance, a teacher who has not won favor with his principal might be assigned a notoriously difficult class of students to teach. The employer basically sets out to make the employee's life so onerous that the employee quits, thus saving the employer the trouble and expense of firing them.

Most employees who are quiet quitting feel they have no choice but to continue trudging along miserably. However, there is always something that you can do to improve your situation. Here are some thoughts:

- 1. Assess your work-life balance. Are you having enough time off to recharge from work and prevent burnout? Do what you can to have a life outside of work. Take Paid Time Off when you need it. Set appropriate boundaries around work.
- 2. Ask yourself: “Is this a job I really want? If no, what steps can I take to get to a new and better job?” Decide on one action step that can start opening doors to a better position, perhaps updating your LinkedIn profile or reaching out to your network.
- 3. Ask yourself if your work situation can be fixed with a frank conversation with your boss. Many employees are afraid to ask for what they need and they stew and suffer as a result. However, I have witnessed employees coming up with a proposal for their bosses AND getting a better work deal in the process.
- 4. Do a break check. Are you taking enough breaks during your work day? Some workers burn themselves out by working nonstop, when this actually isn't either required or productive. They then hate their jobs and may fall into quiet quitting.
- 5. Assess your boundaries around work. It can be hard to get away from work, especially with all our inter-connected devices. However, you can still set firm limits to protect your personal life, e.g. deciding you will not check work emails during the weekend.
- 6. Assess your career at this point in time. I suspect those who are quiet quitting are so focused on getting by that they are forgetting that any job (even a bad one) can be a step to the next job. A good question to ask yourself is: “What experiences and skills can I gain in this current position that will get me to a better position?”

Quiet quitting is a problem with two causes – one stems from the employee as a reaction to a poor work situation and the other stems from the employer who has not provided clear expectations and encouragement. In my next article, I will issue a work challenge for employers and managers so that quiet quitting becomes much less of a problem for all.

Louisa May Alcott

Louisa May Alcott was born on November 29, 1832. She was the second oldest of four girls. Her love of her sisters helped her to become one of America's most beloved children's book authors.

If she were alive today, how old would she be?

Teacher in the Family

As a child, Louisa and her family moved to Boston, Massachusetts, where her father, Amos Alcott, set up a school based upon his beliefs about education.

Put the vowels back in this sentence to find out what Amos Bronson Alcott believed about education.

Money Troubles

Louisa's family did not have much money. To help out, Louisa started taking on as many jobs as a young girl could find. She read for an elderly man and his sister. Louisa and her sister Anna taught young children and mended and washed laundry.

In 1852, Louisa's first poem was published in a magazine, and she made her first money from writing.

Though poor themselves, Louisa's family always tried to help people who were worse off than they were. Look through the newspaper to find a person or people you could help.

Rights for Women

Louisa worked hard to help women get the right to vote. She wrote articles about equality for women and went door-to-door encouraging women to register to vote. In 1879, Alcott became the first woman in Concord, Mass., to register to vote when she cast a ballot for the village school committee.

Writing Success

In 1855, her first book, Flower Fables was published.

In 1862, Louisa went to Washington, D.C. to serve as a Civil War nurse. Like many other nurses, Louisa contracted typhoid fever. Although she got better, mercury in the medicine caused her suffering for the rest of her life. In Washington, Louisa continued to write and she published two more books.

Her publisher, Thomas Niles, asked that she write "a girl's story." Having spent her life with three interesting sisters, Louisa wrote Little Women based on her own experiences. The novel, published in 1868, was an instant success. It has now been a favorite book for generations.

Discover the names of the sisters in Little Women by crossing out every other letter.

Louisa's parents encouraged her to follow her dreams and to hold on to her freedom in life. Her father Amos had very advanced ideas about childhood and education. In fact, many people believe he is the founder of this part of the school day.

Kid Scoop Together: Newspaper Blackout Poetry

Louisa Alcott loved poetry. She loved to read it and to write it.

Modern day poet Austin Kleon came up with an idea for creating poetry with a newspaper, a black marker and creativity.

Here is an example of a poem he made by clipping an article from the newspaper and crossing out all the words, except for the ones he wanted in his poem:

BEFORE

The home needed extensive refurbishment. Jim Meadows, a local architect, was hired to supervise the project. He designed the award-winning Laurel Street Library in 2003.

Meadows worked with local historian Yolanda Henderson, who said, "Tradition and style were essential on this project."

The local architect designed Laurel Street with Tradition

Handmade Treasures

38th Holiday for the Arts Show & Sale

SUBMITTED BY SEEMA GUPTA

The long-awaited, Olive Hyde Art Guild's signature community event "Holiday for the Arts" Gala, Show and Sale is finally here! We invite you to explore a wealth of artistic, handmade objects at Olive Hyde Art Gallery in Fremont. Celebrating its 38th anniversary, Holiday for the Arts offers unique gift items created by local Bay Area artists. Every year, we sell about $25,000 worth of high-quality artifacts, with proceeds benefitting the Olive Hyde Art Gallery as well as supporting visual arts programs in Fremont schools and community.

The show will open with a ticketed Gala on Friday, October 21. Hors d'oeuvres, sweets, coffee, wine and beer, will be served, alongside the first viewing and sale of art. Visitors will enjoy live musical entertainment provided by Steve Kritzer on Strings. Kritzer moves effortlessly in concert between originals, Celtic, Bluegrass, Pop, rock, big band swing, and traditional folk, woven together by his warm, engaging stage presence.

Gala Night also comprises a drawing for an original sculpture by our featured artist Peter Langenbach, who describes his work as "whimsically sophomoric to topically edgy." He has created two sculptures for the show; the winner gets to choose the one they prefer.

The Show and Sale opens to public, free of charge, on Saturday and Sunday. It's an opportunity to purchase unique artifacts for yourself or your holiday shopping list. Seventy artists, including twenty newcomers, will be exhibiting a diverse array of items in ceramics, glass & sculpture, paintings, photography, jewelry, wood, holiday décor, and more. Participating artists had to go through a judging process for their works to be selected.

New participants this year include Anna Kultysheva, who loves embroidery on jewelry items such as pins, earrings, necklaces, along with home decor and clothing. Bradner Bond was 13 years old when he started making table legs for his grandfather's furniture. Today he owns Q Branch Woodworks, with a focus on bowls, turned boxes, and pens.

Michael Sunzeri, sold his first graphic artwork at age 12. He works in Assemblage, creating eclectic and simple pieces that adorn the wall, tabletop, or floor. For Scott Capen, what began as a vacation to New Zealand and Australia turned into a full-time photography business.

Jeff Ishikawa, a Bay Area native, has lived in Fremont for over 20 years. A realistic painter, working in watercolors, Jeff says, "my aim is to capture the light and mood of a subject and translate what I see and feel into paint - bringing the viewer into familiar, and unfamiliar, places." Another watercolor artist, Vineeta Dhillon decided about five years ago, to "dive deep into her soul to create whimsical, fun, and inspiring mixed media, ink and watercolor drawings." Her repertoire includes flowers, birds, landscapes and abstract illustrations.

New artist Cindy Unruh loves working with fused glass because of its versatility: "It could be two- or three-dimensional, opaque or translucent." She also likes ice dyeing textiles. There are "dozens of colors to choose from, and unlike glass, one can't control how the dye flows, so every piece is a lovely surprise!"

Among returning artists will be well-known Bay Area artist and ceramic instructor, Akio Aochi, whose large bowls and platters are perfect for serving a big meal at holiday gatherings. Also, ceramic artist, Anita Clemetson has been participating in the show since 2010. Her functional and graceful stoneware is safe for everyday use.

With an Engineering background, professional "Web Diva" Lisa Stambaugh, volunteers to manage Olive Hyde's website graphic needs. This year she has painted flowerpots.

perfect place to find one-of-a-kind personal treasures and gifts at a reasonable price. Tickets for the Opening Gala are $15 for members when purchased in advance, $20 at the door, and for non-members.

Last but not the least, we'd like to thank our Holiday Show Sponsors: Fremont Bank Foundation, The Anderson Family Foundation, Mahuron Family Fund, Kalyanpur Family Giving Fund, Tri-City Voice Newspaper, and East Bay Community Energy.

Don Edwards Wildlife Refuge Celebrates 50th Anniversary

BY JESSICA KIM

Since its beginnings in 1972, Don Edwards Wildlife Refuge has played an integral role in preserving our local wildlife ecosystem while inspiring stewardship. Created predominantly as a response to the grassroots efforts by local community members, volunteers and their hearts full of enthusiasm have always been the backbone to maintaining the fifteen habitats for the hundreds of species that live in the refuge.

At its 50th anniversary celebration, its largest-scale event since the start of the pandemic, the refuge not only re-established its mission to focus on education, diversity, science, and restoration, but also marked the reopening of its volunteer programs. The turnout at the Saturday, October 8 event did not disappoint as families celebrated the return with face painting, fly fishing, talks with biologists, and hikes along the Tidelands Trail. Despite the closing of all refuge buildings during the pandemic, Don Edwards Wildlife Refuge shows no sign of slowing down, and with the continued support from Bay Area communities, its future of conserving nature looks optimistic.

Pumping up pumpkin spice

By DANIEL O'DONNELL

“The Emperor's New Clothes,” a fairytale written by Hans Christian Anderson, is about two con artists who tell an ostentatious Emperor that they can make grandiose clothes for him that are invisible to stupid people. The emperor hires them and they outfit him with invisible clothes. Not wanting to look unintelligent, the emperor walks through the city wearing nothing, but pretending to be in his new clothes. His subjects, also not wanting to appear dumb, go along with the charade, until a child shouts out that the emperor is wearing no clothes. Everyone realizes they were fooled. Today, the phrase ‘the emperor is wearing no clothes’ describes an exposed illusion. An illusion such as the one of pumpkin spice. It has no pumpkin in it.

Pumpkin spice, also called pumpkin pie spice commonly has a base of cinnamon, ginger, and nutmeg. It is used to flavor pumpkin dishes and some other foods primarily eaten in cooler weather. Commercial and home pumpkin spice recipes add a combination of ground cloves, allspice, mace, or cardamom. Although pumpkin spice is an American seasoning, its origins are rooted far back in time and halfway around the world.

In the 1600s, the Dutch East India Company took control of many Southeast Asian islands, the original source of many of the plants used in pumpkin spice. The newly-introduced spices quickly came into high demand in the Netherlands, and soon new spice blends were created. Speculaaskruiden was one early blend that is very similar to American pumpkin spice—with the addition of white pepper, coriander seed, and anise. Its popularity in Dutch desserts led to high demand in neighboring countries.

A recipe for a similar blend called mixed spice was published in a British cookbook in 1791, which also contained allspice, a spice native to the Caribbean where the English had colonies. By the end of the 18th century, a recipe for pumpkin pie published in the first American cookbook included a pumpkin spice blend. McCormick, the world's largest spice company, introduced their blend branded ‘pumpkin pie spice’ to the American market in 1934.

Today in the US, pumpkin pie spice, although still heavily used in pumpkin pies, cookies, breads, muffins, and other pumpkin desserts, is being utilized to flavor foods and drinks that contain no pumpkin—such as stews, ice cream, beer, and lattes. The spice blend's versatility in sweet and savory dishes has led to variations and experiments with substitution blends.

Allspice is the dried fruit of a small tree in the myrtle family, native to Jamaica. The British coined the name allspice because a single ground berry has the tastes of cinnamon, clove, and nutmeg. Although some pumpkin spice blends include allspice as an ingredient, it can be used alone as a substitute.

Spices have been imported to Morocco for thousands of years and are used extensively in Moroccan cuisine. Ras El Hanout is a popular Moroccan spice blend called for in a lot of traditional recipes and makes a great substitute for pumpkin spice. Cinnamon, ginger, allspice, cardamom, coriander seed, clove, the same spices found in many pumpkin spice blends, are used in many Ras El Hanout blends. The addition of black pepper, cayenne, and chili pepper can subtly spice up a pumpkin latte or pumpkin pie.

Chinese five spice is another intriguing pumpkin spice substitute. Cinnamon and clove are two of the five spices. Some blends use powdered ginger as the fifth spice, giving it three of the primary ingredients in pumpkin spice blends. The other two spices are fennel, which complements the sweet and warm flavors of the cinnamon; and star anise, which brings a distinct licorice flavor, making Chinese five spice a flavorful alternative.

Pumpkin spice blends are continually evolving. Adding toasted coconut to the blend is a natural progression. Toasted coconut has been added to East Asian pumpkin curries and other island dishes for centuries. It pairs well with the flavors of any pumpkin spice recipe. An easy way to sample the flavorful union is to mix the toasted coconut into the whipped cream for a pumpkin pie or latte.

Sage offers a savory element and a more sophisticated culinary flavor to pumpkin recipes. Powdered sage added to a blend used in a pumpkin brown butter ravioli, for example, offers a satisfying change to the sweet results of other blends. Pumpkin spice blends with sage can also be added to pumpkin soups, pastas, and risottos.

The emperor is wearing no clothes. There is no pumpkin in pumpkin spice. People were fooled in the case of the emperor's new clothes. Although people have been tricked into believing that there is pumpkin in pumpkin spice, the only people who would be made fools of are the ones who would choose to stop using this delicious blend.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: OCTOBER 18, 2022

All Signs: We can use this week's opportunities to accomplish what we want to do! There is lots of energy flying around helping us to communicate with others. This same energy will spur us to act, even competitively. This wonderful blessing is because the Sun, Venus and Mars are supporting each other. (Admittedly mid-week, power struggles are likely because Pluto is in the picture.) This is our chance to clean up whatever needs to be done.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):
This is a wonderful week to work with others, especially partners and close friends. The major bonus is that you will find it easy to communicate with others. (Admittedly, on Wednesday there could be power struggles with authority figures.) People will help you! This is a particularly strong week for writers, teachers, actors and people doing sales and marketing. Towards the end of the week, listen to the advice of someone older or more experienced, perhaps a friend or a group member, because this person will have valuable advice for you.

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):
You will be super active and productive this week! For starters, coworkers and helpers will be supportive. Furthermore, you feel motivated to boost your earnings. Spend time making your work area look more attractive. It's a good time to discuss agreements openly with others, including financial discussions. You may gain financial or other favors, quite unexpectedly, from a boss. Later in the week, get organized! You'll have a sharp eye for detail. You will deal with serious matters in a persevering, dogged manner.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):
Lucky you, because you have an edge over everyone. This is a week where everyone can accomplish a lot because energy and motivation are at hand. But in your case, fiery Mars is in your sign, which means you're really pumped for action! Those of you who work in the entertainment world, the hospitality industry, show business or anything to do with the arts, sports and working with children will particularly excel. That's because all this high-energy is combined with a creative component. Therefore, accept invitations to party!

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):
You will accomplish a lot in your personal life this week. That's because everything to do with home, family and dealing with family members, especially a parent, will be ripe ground for you to make improvements and get things done. It's the ideal week to tackle home repairs and redecorating projects or renovations. Family discussions will go well (even though something mysterious is going on behind the scenes). Late in the week, discussions about shared property and financial support will be solid. Avoid power strugglesmidweek with a partner or close friend.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):
This week is fast-paced. You're excited about new ideas and keen to share them. It's a fabulous week for those who teach, write, act, or work in sales and marketing, because your words are magic. Meanwhile, you're keen to study, learn, talk and enlighten others. Short trips and travel will delight. One reason you feel happy and upbeat is that you are able to appreciate who you are, and what you have, especially your daily surroundings. A competition with a friend or a group might be happening. If so, you're ready.

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):
Financial issues are uppermost in your mind this week. You will work hard to earn money. You have moneymaking ideas, and you're motivated because you are spending money on beautiful things for yourself and loved ones. Fortunately, you can attract money to you this week. You can also influence bosses, parents, and VIPs in a positive way. You will make things happen because others will support you and respond to your words. Avoid power struggles with your kids midweek. By the end of the week, make practical plans for your job and health.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):
The Sun, Mercury and your ruler Venus are all in your sign this week dancing beautifully with energetic Mars and stern Saturn. This is a burst of energy that works for you! Don't hesitate to speak up and share your ideas. It's a strong week for public speaking, lecturing and convincing others to agree with you. Be patient so that you can avoid power struggles with family members midweek. Don't take the bait! At the end of the week, make practical plans regarding your kids or a future vacation.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):
This is a curious week. Everyone else is running around with an outboard motor strapped to their butt! However, you will be productive even though you are watching from the sidelines. For starters, your ability to research anything and come up with nuggets of information is stellar. If you work for the police, security systems, or medical research, your will be effective in grabbing information. Avoid ego battles on Wednesday. Remember that this is a year where you can improve your job or get a better one. You can also improve your health.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):
This is a popular week for you! In particular, you will hang out with younger people more than usual, as well as creative, artistic types. Expect involvement with groups. In fact, you might elected to a leadership position. Friends, spouses and partners will support you. Nevertheless, around Wednesday, you might have to defend your position. (Don't let this get you down and don't make a big deal about it.) This is good week to make plans for the future, especially travel and vacations! You might spend time with someone special to you.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):
It's a powerful, active week for everyone. However, you are the only sign that has the Sun, Mercury, and Venus at the top of your chart! This means you're running the show, and you're getting credit for it. Bosses and people in authority will listen to you. In fact, you will make such a great impression on VIPs, some of you will strike up a romance with a boss or authority figure. People are impressed with your performance at work. At the end of the week, conversations that could impact your earnings will take place.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):
This week has the flavor of freedom that you like. You will desire to explore and expand your world. If you can, you'll travel! But if you can't travel, you will learn new things and talk to fascinating people from other cultures. Some will strike up a romance with someone "different." Your involvement with your kids will be energizing. Creative demands on your time will make you hustle. Later in the week, a serious discussion about life belief systems, history, and religion will take place.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):
You can still get richer this year. This week, you're focused on shared finances, shared property and the wealth and resources of someone else. Obviously, people are supportive to you this year. They will give you gifts, practical things as well as money. Some of this wealth will come from a family member. (Note: Whatever goes around, comes around, which means if gifts and goodies come your way now – you deserve them.) At the end of the week, behind-the-scenes research, or a discussion with someone older might make you reassess your values about something.

Home Sales Report

SUBMITTED BY JANE MUELLER AND EVELYN KOHL LATORRE

“I think living in cohousing must be like living in my cul-de-sac,” remarked a woman who attended the Mission Peak Village event at the Downtown Event Center in September. The plans for Fremont’s first cohousing community were the focus of the event. Mission Peak Village has recently submitted its plans to the city for approval. But is cohousing really like living on a cul-de-sac? A closer look points out significant differences.

Southern Alameda County cities have a great many cul-de-sacs and looped streets built into their residential neighborhoods. Cul-de-sac means “a street or passage closed at one end: a route or course leading nowhere.” The concept goes back as far as 1885 BCE when a village unearthed in Egypt showed 15 streets that ended at enclosed walls. In the U.S., cul-de-sac and looped streets were promoted in the 1936 FHA guidelines for new subdivisions. Homebuyers often paid 20% more for the closed-street locations. Studies showed that the dead-end streets reduce the amount of traffic, noise, air pollution, accidents, and crime. In addition, if the cul-de-sac and looped streets are interconnected by foot and bike paths, residents often walk or bike as opposed to relying on autos.

But does housing arranged on a cul-de-sac increase social interaction? And for how long? Interviews with residents reveal that it takes concerted effort to keep the interactions going. Unless there is someone to take the lead on neighborhood interaction, rarely do the neighbors know when another is ill and needs assistance or could use an item picked up at the store. A casual “Hi!” doesn’t reveal significant events such as a birthday or an anniversary, a major accomplishment to be celebrated, or the death of a relative.

The quality and quantity of social interaction on a cul-de-sac is determined by how often residents are willing to make the effort to organize neighborhood activities. And it appears that the motivation for regular social activities subsides with age. Spontaneous interactions may happen between neighbors when young children play outdoors, but as youngsters grow up and residents age, social action tends to decrease.

In cohousing, by comparison, the potential for social interaction occurs several times a day because of the layout of buildings and open space areas. Garages and cars are placed on the perimeter, tucked away from the natural gathering areas such as interior pathways and the community garden. Potential for contact exists simply in going to and from one’s private home; in the interior courtyard, laundry, or work room; retrieving the mail; at a shared meal in the community dining room, a planning meeting, on the rooftop deck viewing Fremont’s hills; or at any number of places within the complex.</

This October, a Walk to Remember

THE MASONIC HOMES OF CALIFORNIA JOINS THE NATIONWIDE
WALK TO END ALZHEIMER'S.

FOR SOME, the Walk to End Alzheimer's is about raising much-needed money to fund research into one of the leading killers in the United States. For others, it's about bringing awareness to the pain and stress inflicted on families by memory loss. For everyone, though, the walk is a chance to come together in the fight against a disease affecting more than 6 million Americans.

On Saturday, Oct. 29, the Masonic Homes of California is proud to take part in the East Bay Walk to End Alzheimer's, held in-person at Bishop Ranch in San Ramon. The Masonic Homes is a supporting sponsor of the annual event.

The Walk to End Alzheimer's is the world's largest event to raise awareness and funds for Alzheimer's care, support, and research. It is held annually in 600 communities around the country. At this year's walk, participants will carry flowers indicating their relationship to the disease: blue represents those living with Alzheimer's or another form of dementia; purple for those who've lost a loved one to the disease; yellow for those caring for someone with Alzheimer's; and orange for those who support the cause. Someday, a white flower will be given to the first Alzheimer's survivor.

"One of the most important functions of the walk is to show everyone that they are not walking alone," says Masonic Homes chief clinical officer Joseph Prithard. "Whether you are coping with the disease, caring for a family member, or otherwise helping fight the disease, you are not alone. There is love. There is hope."

"You are not alone. There is love. There is hope."

— JOSEPH PRITHARD, CHIEF CLINICAL OFFICER,
MASONIC HOMES OF CALIFORNIA

Memory loss, including Alzheimer's and other dementias, now represent one of the leading risks to the elderly. Alzheimer's disease alone is responsible for more deaths each year than breast cancer and prostate cancer combined; in fact, one in three seniors dies with Alzheimer's or dementia. It's also a growing concern: Over the past 20 years, deaths from Alzheimer's have increased by 145 percent. They've also jumped by 16 percent during the pandemic.

But the news isn't all bad: Early diagnoses can help dramatically slow the procession of memory impairment, and treatments are showing promise in halting and even reversing cognitive decline.

That's where the Masonic Homes of California comes in. With a wide array of services available to those dealing with memory conditions, the Masonic Homes is a leader in treating memory loss at every step with dignity and compassion.

• The newly opened PAVILION AT THE MASONIC HOMES is a state-of-the-art residence with on-site skilled nursing care specifically for those dealing with memory loss.

• The BRAIN FITNESS GYM helps resident sharpen their cognition through neurologist-designed software.

• The COMPASS CLUB memory program allows people in independent living who are experiencing early memory loss an opportunity to focus on social engagement and art therapies and provides a respite for caregivers.

• The TRADITIONS program provides assisted-living care and around-the-clock support for those at advanced stages of memory loss.

"The thought of having a life's worth of memories erased by these diseases is one of the greatest concerns facing seniors today," says Masonic Homes president and CEO Gary Charland. "That's why we're committed to providing the best possible memory care and support." ♦

Explore the Paranormal at Historic Mansion

SUBMITTED BY HAYWARD AREA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Get your flashlights and your walking shoes ready, and while you're at it, don't forget your smartphone, too. You don't want to miss a thing during the upcoming paranormal investigation and walking tour through the historic Meek Mansion in Hayward.

Sponsored by Hayward Area Historical Society (HAHS), the event will be guided by experienced docent investigators who will lead visitors, 18 and older, through the house located inside Meek Park from 7 p.m. Saturday, November 5 to 1 a.m. the next day. Docents will show visitors how they investigate paranormal activity and what tools they use. Visitors are welcome to bring any equipment they have, too, along with an open mind and discerning attitude.

According to HAHS officials, many paranormal research groups have investigated Meek House and found it to be an active site. Data collected on previous investigations include electronic voice phenomena, cold spots, touches, apparitions and other surprises.

Tickets are $75 and must be purchased in advance. Proceeds from ticket sales support the ongoing maintenance and preservation of this historic property.

Earth Day: Election Edition

SUBMITTED BY LISA DANZ AND ABE MAZLIACH

Citizens' Climate Lobby (CCL) had the idea to celebrate a Second Annual Earth Day, six months after the traditional Earth Day, held in April 2022. The local Silicon Valley East Chapter will be hosting an October Earth Day: Election Edition celebration on Saturday, October 22 behind the Performance Pavilion at Fremont Central Park, on Paseo Padre Parkway.

Attendees will be able to meet local environmental leaders, walk and talk about climate change and environmental policy. Attendees will also learn about the recently passed Inflation Reduction Act. This is a non-partisan event.

There will be two casual walks around Lake Elizabeth at the park, one at 10:00 a.m. and one at 11:30 a.m. Each walk will be kicked off with brief remarks, and the chapter's volunteers will be spread throughout the walking groups to enable longer conversations about the event's themes.

CCL is a non-profit, nonpartisan, grassroots advocacy organization focused on national policies to address climate change.

Lisa Danz and Abe Mazliach are volunteer members of Citizens' Climate Lobby, Silicon Valley Chapter.

WILLIAM MARSHAK

Edging closer to election day and early voting, a whirlwind of brochures and glossy portrayals of candidates has arrived in mailboxes. Touting candidate strengths and endorsements may be helpful, but along with these puff pieces, a bevy of hit pieces, with photoshopped images, carefully worded statements that appear to be “fact,” but use terms such as “allegedly” and one such mailer even relies on an anonymous “tabloid blogger” for verification. Although I understand the stakes of the local contest for State Senator are high and many special interests are lining up to put themselves in a favored position if their candidate wins, mud-slinging should be beneath both contenders.

Campaigns may disavow knowledge or control of negative mailers, but the tenor and attitude of a political contest is set from the top. To claim ignorance of such advertisements is disingenuous and, while negative campaigns are sadly a fixture in

Political Hits

American politics, hopefully they can be held to a minimum. Instead of a focus on a negative vote to reject a candidate, opponents should ask constituents to understand positive aspects of their tenure and affirm continuation of time in office.

Advertisements for and against candidates usually include information about who and what organizations are funding them. It is instructive to read this information and ask if any are familiar and if so, why they are willing to spend a great deal of money in support or in opposition to a particular candidate. If the organizations listed are unknown, who are they? Names that sound patriotic or expansive such as “... of America” or “and affiliated entities” are often fronts for special interests that prefer to remain anonymous. It is worth taking the effort to check this out and make sure who is supporting or opposing candidates (or measures and propositions).

As we have seen on the national front, it is easy to attack with little or no evidence. Those who use this tactic are often of weak character and use this method to direct attention away from their own faults and failings. When an opponent is forced to spend time and energy defending rather than explaining policies, voter focus is put in the wrong place. It is much more productive to disregard the personal attacks and misdirection of negative advertising and, instead, concentrate on the record of accomplishments of candidates. Using political party labels may be useful as a coarse guide of a candidate’s philosophy, but is by no means definitive, especially when considering local and regional representation.

Although political parties use local elections as a proving ground and, increasingly, to promote national agendas, close contact between constituents and candidates gives voters a chance to question and debate rather than simply view well-orchestrated events. In many cases, those seeking local elected office are willing and obligated to participate in grass roots activities. With just a few weeks left to cast your vote either by mail or in person, now is the time to separate political hits from substantive information and legitimate endorsements.

Students promote voter registration

SUBMITTED BY FATIMA KHAWAJA

On February 7, 2022, nearly 15 James Logan High School students skipped their classes in allegiance to the nation’s democracy. These students, led by Julie Dunkle (Youth Voter Movement’s founder) and student leader, Fatima Khawaja, guided a record-breaking 900 juniors and seniors through the pre-registration process.

This event was largely developed and supported by the Youth Voter Movement and the League of Women Voters, two organizations that have collaboratively pre-registered high school students to vote over the past several years. The initiative by the student and adult organizers alike was largely to encourage a larger voting turnout from rising generations. Of the 900 students that pre-registered in February, several will be voting in the upcoming November general elections.

During the day-long event, juniors and seniors skipped their social science classes to pre-register. With every cycle of students, youth and adult organizers led a Kahoot game, post-card writing session, and ballot filling. At the end of the day, student and adult volunteers collected filled ballots and organized the postcards for short-term storage.

In September, seven months after the pre-registration event at Logan, volunteers regrouped and unpacked the postcards to send eligible students reminders to vote in the general elections in November. After several hours, the volunteers had written inspiring messages on the designated postcards and prepared them for distribution.

In recognition of the students' efforts, the Union City mayor issued a Mayoral Proclamation applauding the efforts of the partaking organizers in February’s event.

Just like one tree can start a forest, one group of leaders can start a movement. The volunteers successfully organized, ran, and wrapped up the pre-registration event all in the name of democracy.

Runaway gas prices

A friend of mine who just returned from North Carolina said the gas is selling there at $3.25 per gallon. Wow! And the other day, I paid $6.89 a gallon at the Chevron pump in my neighborhood. What is the difference between two states -- more than double for the same gas?

Although governor Newsom denounced companies and called a special legislative session to impose a new tax on their profits. Are they going to match the price of North Carolina? Great News!

Of course, we are all aware of the fact that our state's gas prices are the highest in the nation due to taxes and environmental regulations. But for us, the high price of gas at the pump is emptying our pockets. Therefore, the governor has to take immediate action on the hot issue of the day without further delay.

Park It: Return of the ladybugs

By NED MACKAY

The ladybugs are back. Ladybugs, more ormally known as ladybird beetles, are beginning their annual winter convention at Reinhardt Redwood Regional Park in Oakland, though not in great numbers so far.

As part of their life cycle, the little red insects cluster together in trailside shrubs during cold winter weather, then disperse in the warmer springtime. Although you can see them in many regional parks and other open spaces, Redwood is probably the most convenient place for viewing.

Enter the park from Redwood Road, about two miles east of the intersection with Skyline Boulevard in Oakland. Park at the road's end, then walk on the Stream Trail for about a mile and a half to the junction with the Prince Trail. As you approach the Prince Trail, you should start seeing ladybugs on the bushes and fence posts to the left. Look for the ladybug information panel.

Gardeners like ladybugs, because the insects eat mostly aphids, an agricultural pest. But please do not take any ladybugs for your garden. Collecting any animals or plants is illegal in the regional parks. Ladybugs' bright red color is a signal to potential predators that they taste bad. When threatened, ladybugs secrete an oily foul-tasting fluid from joints in their legs. Nevertheless, frogs, wasps, spiders, dragonflies and some kinds of birds will still dine on ladybugs.

Keep in mind a couple of Redwood park rules. Dogs are supposed to be on leash on the Stream Trail. Please also keep them out of Redwood Creek; though there's little water in the creek right now, it will be spawning ground for rainbow trout when the rains arrive. Also, bicycles are allowed on the Stream Trail only as far as Trail's End, which is about a half-mile before you reach the ladybug habitat.

Perhaps they are not as cute, but spiders and scorpions are also beneficial bugs. You can find out more about them during a short walk in search of the arachnids from 3:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, October 22 at Tilden Nature Area near Berkeley, led by naturalist Trent Pearce. Meet Trent at the Environmental Education Center, which is at the north end of Tilden's Central Park Drive. The program is free and registration is not required. For information, call (510) 544-2233.

From bugs to bats: there's a program all about the night flyers from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. on unday, October 23 at Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont, with naturalist Maeron Yeshiwas. Learn about the area's native bat species compared to other bats found around the world, then make your own bat craft.

The program is for all ages; parent participation is required. No reservations are necessary. Meet at the visitor center. Coyote Hills is at the end of Patterson Ranch Road off Paseo Padre Parkway. There's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle; the program is free. For information, call (510) 544-3220.

The plants and animals of Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch will be on display during a two-mile, naturalist-led walk through the park's hills and dales, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday, October 22. Meet in the parking lot at the upper end of Somersville Road, two miles south of Highway 4. The walk is free; there's a parking fee of $5 per vehicle when the kiosk is attended. For information, call (510) 544-2750.

Turtles are the focus of a program from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, October 22 at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley. Learn all about the amphibians, then make a turtle craft. There's a nature-based activity during those hours every weekend at the Big Break Visitor Center. These are free, drop-in programs; no registration is required, though parents must participate.

Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's Main Street. For information, call (510) 544-3050.

This is just a snapshot. For the full picture of available programs in the regional parks, go to www.ebparks.org/things-to-do online.

How artists can legally protect themselves

SUBMITTED BY FREMONT AREA WRITERS

Lots of us want to become writers, singers, dancers, painters and musicians, but the lack of financial security makes most of us back away. So how can someone stay involved even when they've moved on to another professional field?

On Saturday, October 22, you're invited to meet Attorney Robert Parker. Parker is a litigator in Oregon who volunteers his time with Oregon Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts. He'll be telling the Fremont Area Writers about his work, how artists can protect themselves from legal issues and how they can get help.

"The Oregon Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts" he explained "is one of many groups, all across the United States, whose lawyers either drastically cut their fees or donate their services to help artists of all kinds." Prior to becoming an expert in entertainment and First Amendment law, Parker was a producer, actor, writer and journalist. He now focuses on helping others achieve their full potential while protecting themselves from unwittingly violating the rights of other artists.

The presentation will Keynote the FAW's October meeting and is open, at no charge, to anyone interested in writing, or any of the other creative arts. For an email link to this Zoom event send your request to scottfrombayside@yahoo.com with "FAW Link" on the subject line.

Parker promised "I'll do my best to answer any questions you bring, so feel free to bring them!"

Amazon ends testing of Scout delivery robots

By STEVE CROWE

Amazon is shutting down testing of its Scout home delivery robots, according to multiple reports. Bloomberg was first to report the news, saying "the e-commerce giant is starting to wind down experimental projects amid slowing sales growth."

"During our Scout limited field test, we worked to create a unique delivery experience, but learned through feedback that there were aspects of the program that weren't meeting customers' needs," an Amazon spokesperson told Bloomberg. "As a result, we are ending our field tests and reorienting the program. We are working with employees during this transition, matching them to open roles that best fit their experience and skills."

Amazon rolled out Scout in 2019 with tests in the Seattle area. It later expanded to Southern California, Atlanta, and Franklin, Tennessee. The robots autonomously followed their delivery route via sidewalks and were accompanied by an Amazon Scout Ambassador during testing.

Amazon said the Scout team is being disbanded and employees will be offered new jobs in the organization. About 400 people were working on the project globally, according to Amazon. Amazon quietly acquired Dispatch, a last-mile delivery company, in 2017. It used the company's technology and expertise to create Scout.

There are a number of startups developing last-mile delivery robots that operate on sidewalks, including Starship Technologies, Serve Robotics, Coco, Tortoise, and more.

Despite shutting down the testing of Scout, Amazon continues to expand and invest in other types of robotics. In August 2022, Amazon agreed to acquire iRobot for $1.7 billion, which is more than double what it paid for Kiva Systems back in 2012. The FTC is currently investigating this deal, citing a number of potential issues.

In September 2022, Amazon announced it agreed to acquire Cloostermans, a Belgium-based company that specializes in mechatronics. Cloostermans has been selling products to Amazon since at least 2019, including technology Amazon uses in its operation to move and stack heavy pallets and totes and robots to package products for customer orders.

Have unneeded prescription drugs? Here's where to take them

BY ROB KLINDT

On Saturday, October 29, numerous police departments and other agencies in the greater East Bay will be partnering with the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) on its 23rd National Prescription Drug Take Back Day. The event is designed to give the public an opportunity to prevent pill abuse and theft by ridding their homes of potentially dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs.

People are encouraged to bring their unneeded medications for disposal to their closest participating agency between 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. Most prescription drugs, including pills and patches are eligible for the event, however needles, sharps and syringes cannot be accepted. The service is free and anonymous, with no questions asked.

In addition, e-cigarette and vaping devices will be collected for safe disposal. The DEA will accept these items from individual consumers only after the batteries are removed from them.

More than 4,400 law enforcement agencies across the nation participated in the last Prescription Drug Take Back Day held in April 2022. For more information, visit the DEA National Take Back Day website at www.dea.gov/takebackday.

Larry Arthur Pollock Sr.

May 25, 1962- September 19, 2022

Larry A. Pollock passed away surrounded by his wife and family on September 19th in Fremont, CA. Larry was born in Oakland, CA on May 25th, 1962 to the parents of Felipe J. Pollock and Lorraine C. Pollock. Larry lived in Oakland, Castro Valley, Newark, Discovery Bay, Capitola, and most recently, Fremont. Larry attended St. Edward Catholic School and graduated in 1976. His brother Phil graduated in 1973. Since that time, Larry's siblings, children, nieces, nephews, and grandchildren have also attended St. Edward School. Thus far, a total of three generations have attended this school. He graduated from Moreau Catholic High School in Hayward, CA in 1980. In 1982, Larry married his high school sweetheart, the woman of his dreams, Elizabeth (Trujillo) Pollock. Together they raised their two children, Desiree and Larry Jr. Larry attended Ohlone College and received an AA in Criminal Justice. He worked as a security guard at New Park Mall. Larry became an Alameda County Deputy Sheriff in 1984 and worked the next 27 years as a Deputy, badge # 919. He retired in 2011.

Larry enjoyed spending time with his wife where traveling to various events was his go-to. He and his wife had just celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. He also enjoyed spending time with his family, attending sporting events with his kids and grandkids, like Oakland Raiders, Golden State Warriors, and A's games. Larry, along with his brother Phil, his father Phil, his nephew Philip, son Larry, and brother-in-law Bret joined the annual traveling Oakland Raider fan group, WCSOB (Walt Coleman Society of the Blind). These fans picked a stadium in or out of the country to attend a Raider game. He also enjoyed going to numerous concerts. No matter where Larry was at, he was the life of the party constantly telling humorous stories about life events. Larry knew how to tell a story.

Larry was predeceased by his father, Felipe (Phil) J. Pollock Sr. and Lorraine C. (Pollock) Beaudry. He is survived by his wife of 40 years, Elizabeth Pollock, his two children, Larry Jr. and Desiree Pollock, his 4 grandchildren, Larry III, Selena, Ernesto, and Sophia. He also has 2 brothers, Felipe Pollock (spouse-DeeDee Pollock, dec. 2020), Timothy Cooper, and 2 sisters, Marie Pollock-Wright (spouse- Kevin Wright) and Joanne Pollock-Beaudreau (spouse-Bret Beaudreau). Larry also has many nieces and nephews, cousins, aunts and uncles.

Sidney Krow

Resident of Fremont

October 8, 1925 – July 27, 2022

Sidney Bernard Krow, a Postman and long-time resident of Fremont passed away peacefully on July 27, 2022 at 96 after battling long term illnesses. We are thankful he is no longer suffering and at peace.

He was born in San Francisco, California on October 8, 1925 to Aaron and Sarah Krow. He was the third of four children. Sidney is survived by his two daughters Michelle Krow and Stacy Armstrong, son-in-law Chris Armstrong; two grandchildren Braeden and Jamison as well as many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his father Aaron Krow, mother Sarah Krow, wife Eunice Krow, son Brian Krow, sisters Caroline (“Carol”) Pollack, Gloria Krow, brother Morris Krow, and nephew Daniel Krow.

Sidney grew up in the depression and his early occupations were spent in button & rattan furniture sales. He was proud to have served in the United State Navy during World War II. It was while working as a mail carrier in the Financial District of San Francisco that he learned the “ins and outs” of stock market trading. He worked for the Federal Government for over 44 years. Although not a gambler, he also was skilled at playing “Craps” and he and my mom loved visiting Reno. He enjoyed going to the movies, exercising, traveling, and was an avid Oakland A’s Fan.

Sidney will always be remembered for his good-natured personality, generosity and devotion to his family. He was a modern dad ahead of his time while helping raise a family in the 70’s and 80’s. He was never afraid to take on the roles of diapering, cooking, chauffeuring and being a nurse to his children when they were sick. He had a distinctive deep sounding voice that people would point out when they met him. He was a true “character” in the best way.

Sidney lived life in a very “zen like” way. He chose to focus on the here and now, never dwelling in the past. He had many curveballs thrown at him later in life and whenever he got knocked down, he would get right back up, literally and metaphorically. Even with cancer that had went to his bones, a failing heart and lungs and a recent stroke, he was able to get out of bed and walk again in his last month of life.

He was the true definition of a “Mensch,” living his life with honesty and integrity always. Sidney will be forever in our hearts and his legacy will live on through the wonderful memories!

A celebration of life will be at Berge Pappas Smith Chapel of the Angels, 40842 Fremont Blvd., Fremont, CA on Saturday, November 5th starting at 12:30 p.m. In honor of his favorite team, “The Oakland Athletics,” feel free to wear yellow and green.

Sidney will be laid to rest at a later date at “The California Central Coast Veterans Cemetery.”

Voter's Choice Act: More days more ways

By JACK ALCORN

The California Voter's Choice Act (VCA) modernizes elections in California by conducting elections with greater flexibility and convenience for voters. The November 8 General Election will allow voters to choose how, when, and where to cast their ballot. The VCA will improve elections by:

- Mailing every voter a ballot.
- Expanding in-person early voting.
- Increasing the number of days to vote.
- Allowing voters to cast a ballot at any vote center within their county.
- Providing secure ballot drop off locations.

Every active, registered voter is mailed a ballot 28 days before Election Day. Voters have three ways to return their vote-by-mail ballots:

- Mail the ballot.
- Drop the ballot in a secure county ballot drop box.
- Return the ballot to a Vote Center.

Vote Centers replace traditional polling centers. Voters have the freedom to cast a ballot in-person at any vote center in their county instead of being assigned to a single polling location. Vote centers look and feel like polling places, but provide additional modern features to make voting easy and convenient.

At any vote center a voter may:

- Vote in-person.
- Drop off their ballot.
- Get a replacement ballot.
- Vote using an accessible voting machine.
- Get help and voting material in multiple languages.
- Register to vote or update their voter registration.

Vote Center locations are listed at acvote.org (Alameda County), and sccvote.org (Santa Clara County). Registered voters may still arrive at any Vote Center, identify yourself, and cast a ballot provided at the Vote Center.

Early voting begins 10 days before the Election with one Vote Center for every 50,000 registered voters. Beginning the weekend preceding the election the number Vote Center will increase to one for every 10,000 registered voters.

Ballot drop-off locations provide voters with an additional way to return their ballot, postage-free. Starting 28 days before Election Day, there is at least one drop-off location for every 15,000 registered voters. Drop-off locations must be secure, accessible to voters with disabilities, and located as near as possible to public transportation routes. For a detailed list of drop-off locations with maps, visit caearlyvoting.sos.ca.gov

Visit vca.sos.ca.gov for more information.

Newark offers new affordable housing

By JACK ALCORN

In May 2021, Newark City Council adopted a two-year work plan to focus on affordable housing. The primary effort is to convert the Towne Place Suites extended-stay hotel in Newark into 124 affordable residential units to be known as Cedar Community Apartments. The attractive property at 39802 Cedar Boulevard contains studios, one-bedroom, and two-bedroom units, all with kitchens. Converting these units to affordable homes will require minimal changes to the interior and exterior of the building. A gated parking area will provide 80 spots for the residents and staff.

The City of Newark allotted $6 million for the renovation and Alameda County HOME Consortium contributed $4 million. The State of California's Project Homekey recently awarded the City of Newark $38.2 million dollars to complete the project. Project Homekey is a statewide effort to sustain and rapidly expand housing for persons experiencing homelessness or at risk of homelessness. New residents could move in before the end of 2022. Newark Mayor Alan Nagy said, "I am grateful for these partnerships and the opportunity to welcome the residents of Cedar Community Apartments to the Newark community."

The remodeled apartment units will be affordable to extremely low-income families and individuals who are unhoused or are at-risk of homelessness, including 11 units that will be reserved for military veterans. Security guard service to monitor the property will be provided 24 hours per day, 7 days per week. The housing complex will also offer supportive services for residents, including education and employment assistance, recreational and community activities. All residents will pay rent based on their income, and the balance of their rent will be subsidized from various sources. The maximum income that a household can make will depend on the household size and will range from $28,800 to $44,400 per year.

The residential application process for Cedar Community Apartments is a referral system managed by Abode Services with City of Newark oversight. Alameda County's Coordinated Entry System and the Veteran's Administration may also refer clients. For more information on the project or to be put on an interest list to be able to apply to live there, email Abode Services newarkhotel@abodeservices.org or visit <https://www.newark.org/CedarCommunityApartments>.

International Day of Peace

By DENNIS WAESPI, EAST BAY REGIONAL PARK DISTRICT BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Dozens of people from many community organizations gathered on Saturday, September 17 at Lake Chabot Regional Park in Castro Valley to celebrate the United Nations International Day of Peace. I was privileged to participate.

Activities included music, peace messages, arts and crafts, a walk along the lakeshore, and a gathering at the park’s Peace Pole to reaffirm the goal of world peace. The 12-foot pole has inscriptions in 31 languages symbolizing the hopes and dreams of the global family for peace on earth. At the event, there was a presentation from the Muwekma Ohlone Indian Tribe, and singing by students from the Martin Luther King Jr. Freedom Center.

The International Day of Peace was established in 1981 by the United Nations General Assembly. The General Assembly unanimously voted to designate the day as a period of non-violence and cease-fire.

During the summer swim season, the park district provides lifeguard services at 11 swim areas: six lakefront beaches, two swimming pools, and three swim lagoons. Lifeguards undergo rigorous training; some have worked during the swim season for many years.

I’m happy to report that thanks to the lifeguards, the park district has just concluded its 13th annual swim season without a drowning fatality. Besides the lifeguards’ vigilance, this record is partly attributable to swim area rules requiring children to be carefully supervised by parents or other responsible parties. Congratulations to the lifeguard corps for their professionalism and hard work.

An innovative pilot project is now under way at Anthony Chabot Regional Park in Castro Valley as a method of removing large numbers of trees killed by drought and disease, without creating excess carbon and adding to global warming. The pilot project is on 80 acres in the area of the park’s former rifle and shotgun range, now closed.

As described by Khari Helae, park district assistant fire chief, the process involves placing logs and limbs into a carbonator, a device that uses an eco-friendly combustion process to convert biomass into biochar. Biochar helps with water retention, and provides nutrients for drought-stressed plants.

Traditionally, biomass produced from dead trees and limbs is trucked out of the area for disposal. Because biochar can be used locally, it reduces truck traffic and exhaust emissions tenfold. It’s estimated that the process could sequester 8,000 tons of carbon that would otherwise contribute to global warming. Assuming the 80-acre pilot project is successful, the process will be used on another 500 acres of land at the park that have been affected by tree die-off.

Half of the $2 million pilot project is being funded by the park district, the other half by a Coastal Conservancy grant.

Ayn Wieskamp, my colleague on the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors, has announced that she is retiring from the board at the end of this year. Ayn has served as a board member since 1999, representing Ward 5. The ward includes portions of Dublin, Fremont, Livermore, Newark, Pleasanton, Sunol and Union City.

Besides her work on the park district board, Ayn has an impressive record of public service. She was a Livermore City Council member for about 20 years. She also has served on the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District Board, Alameda County Recycling Board and Alameda County Congestion Management Agency.

In 2022 Ayn received two well-deserved awards: the Distinguished Service Award from Society of Outdoor Recreation Professionals, and the Award of Distinction for Outstanding Board Member from California Association of Recreation and Park Districts.

It has been an honor and pleasure to serve with Ayn for part of her long and successful career on the board. She has been a great friend and mentor. A true champion of parks, recreation and open space. I know that I speak for all the park district board members in thanking Ayn for her years of exemplary service. We wish her well in all her future activities.

A community survey seeking feedback from the Fremont residents, business owners and visitors about services provided by the Fremont Police Department (FPD) is posted online.

According to FPD officials, feedback from the survey will be used to help the department determine the best way to serve the community, improve services and identify primary concerns that should be addressed.

The 10-question multiple-choice survey will be available through October 31 and is being hosted on the City of Fremont’s new community engagement platform, MyFremont. Registration is required to participate but only involves a few simple questions. Access the survey at http://my.fremont.gov/fpd-survey.

Have your say about multi-family housing

SUBMITTED BY CITY OF UNION CITY

Officials from the Union City Planning Division are asking residents to share their thoughts about multi-family housing design and development standards in the city.

They have posted an online 15-question, multiple-choice survey on what residents want to see in townhouses, apartment buildings and mixed-use buildings (apartments over or next to retailers). The survey does not apply to single-family homes. Respondents also will have a chance to include comments.

To access the survey, visit the City of Union City website at www.unioncity.org, enter “Objective Development Standards” into the search field and follow the link. Those who complete the survey before November 4 will be entered to win a $50 gift card. For details, call (510) 675-5379.

Wednesday, October 12

- At about 3:50 a.m. deputies responded to a report about shots fired on the 4500 block of Sargent Ave. in Castro Valley. Upon arrival, a male victim was found with two gunshot wounds to his leg. Four suspects were attempting to steal the catalytic converter from the victim’s vehicle and shot the victim when confronted. The suspects fled in a silver 4-door sedan. Deputies applied a tourniquet to the victim’s leg; he was later taken to a hospital and is expected to survive his injuries.

As the suspects fled the area, a patrol unit located a vehicle matching the description on I-580 at 150th Avenue toward Oakland. The deputy followed the vehicle onto Eastbound Highway 24 where he was eventually joined by CHP. A stop was attempted, but the driver failed to yield. The pursuit ended at the 680 split when law enforcement could not determine which way the vehicle went. CHP later reported a solo vehicle accident occurred in Walnut Creek at the intersection of Treat and Buskirk, where four suspects ran from the vehicle. The suspects were not located. Deputies took possession of the suspect vehicle and found the trunk to be filled with cut catalytic converters. An investigation is continuing.

- At about 7:45 a.m. officers responded to a report about an in-progress fight and a possible gunshot heard in the 2500 Medallion Drive area. When they arrived, officers determined a 28-year-old man was involved in an altercation with two male suspects who had forced him into the trunk of a car and drove away. Detectives later learned the victim was at a local hospital. When interviewed, the victim told detectives he was beaten unconscious and woke up at the bottom of a creek. A Good Samaritan picked him up and took him to a hospital where he was treated for non-life-threatening injuries. No firearms were involved in the incident.
- With assistance from Newark and Fremont police departments, UCPD detectives identified the suspects and learned their vehicle was used in a carjacking incident earlier in the day in Fremont. The next day, Fremont police detectives located and arrested three suspects police identified as Kenneth Hayes, 38 and Anthony Lankford, 22, both of Fremont, and Tyler Perea, 21, a transient. An investigation is continuing. Anyone with information is asked to contact Detective Angela Fonseca at Angelaf@unioncity.org or (510) 675-5227. Anonymous information can be left on the UCPD tip line at (510) 675-5207 or at via email at tips@unioncity.org.

Veteran officer honored in Union City

SUBMITTED BY UNION CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT

As part of Hispanic Heritage Month during October, officials from Union City Police Department (UCPD) are recognizing numerous employees. One of them is Lieutenant Sergio Quintero. Quintero began his career with UCPD as a Police Cadet in 2008 before becoming a full-time police officer in 2010. During his time as an officer, Quintero was assigned to patrol and was a member of the UCPD SWAT team, where he served as the team leader. He was also a detective assigned to the Southern Alameda County Major Crimes Task Force. In 2018, Quintero was promoted to sergeant and, in addition to supervising patrol, he was assigned to the UCPD Investigations Unit as a detective sergeant. In 2020, he was named UCPD Officer of the Year by his peers. In addition to his police operations work, Quintero served on the Union City Police Officers Association from 2015 to 2020 in several capacities including member at large, sergeant at arms and vice president. In 2021 Quintero was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, where he oversees patrol operations. "Becoming a police officer has provided me with the opportunities to help others when they need it most or when they don't have someone to help them," Quintero said. "Also, it provides opportunities to represent my family and my community in a positive way."
