Niles Canyon Railway 'relays' awareness and support for cancer patients

BY CHARLENE DIZON

On April 23, Niles Canyon Railway will be holding its twelfth annual "Ride the Rails for Relay" event for Relay for Life, a movement created by the American Cancer Society. Since its in-person return in 2022, this special round-trip diesel train ride occasion is especially anticipated by community members of all ages.

Relay for Life was created by Dr. Gordon "Gordy" Klatt in 1985 when he circled around a track in Tacoma, Washington for 24 hours in order to raise money and awareness around cancer. From there, Relay for Life was born. Today, members of the movement all across California form their own teams and hold numerous fundraising events. East Bay local Cathy Norvell has been the primary organizer of Ride the Rails for

Difficult Health Care Decisions Made in Advance

Do your people know your wishes?

You're worried that something could happen to a parent or family member — illness or an accident — that leaves the person unable to manage his or her own medical choices. Or, you haven't told any of those closest to you what your own wishes would be if you were incapacitated and unable to direct your own medical care.

Advance health care directives (AHCD) are the answer to these and other similar situations, according to Bernardita Roe, Nurse Practitioner and Clinical Director of Washington Hospital's Palliative Care Services.

Whether it's about your own care or the wishes of others in your family regarding their care, it's important to have these conversations. Roe says, "It is essential to have clarity about medical treatments you would or would not want, so that there isn't any doubt or second-guessing if such a situation arises."

The AHCD forms are easy to read and easy to follow, and can be obtained online or from your local hospital or physician. They are simple to fill out with questions to answer that help clarify what your choices would be in various situations, including undergoing special treatments, balancing quality of life with medical care options and decisions about life support and end-of-life choices. The AHCD must be notarized or have two witnesses that know you well and can confirm your decisions.

The first and most important step is to identify a "trusted" person whom you believe would be the best person to talk with the medical team. This person could tell the medical team what type of medical treatment you would or would not want. Roe says, "You should have conversations with that trusted person, whether it is a family member, close friend, lawyer or someone else you trust. You need to feel certain the trusted person is comfortable taking on the role of being your surrogate for health care choices when you are no longer capable of doing so for yourself."

Make sure you record your choices in the AHCD and, if necessary, write down your rationale and other comments to attach to the AHCD so that everyone is clear as to what you wish. You also can indicate whether you want to allow your trusted decision-maker to have total flexibility in making medical decisions, some flexibility, or no flexibility (meaning the person has to follow your written wishes no matter what).

Once you've completed the AHCD, it's important to go over your choices with all key family members or others whom you believe should know your wishes. "These conversations are essential so that those you care about understand your choices," Roe advises. "Be sure to share copies of your AHCD with family members and others (your physician, local hospital, etc.),

"You need to feel certain the trusted person is comfortable taking on the role of being your surrogate for health care choices when you are no longer capable of doing so for yourself."

and place copies with your important documents, such as your will," Roe adds.

It's also important to revisit your AHCD periodically as you age over time. The medical decisions you identified 10 years ago may have changed due to life events and may need to be updated. "The periodic review is to make sure the medical care you are getting is in alignment with what your wishes are on the AHCD," Roe adds.

Advance health care directives may be obtained online from prepareforyourcare.org and are available in Spanish as well as English. HPV Vaccine– When is the Time Right?

Local Gynecologist Offers Important Health Information

Online seminar June 6, 12 p.m.

For women, the most important step one can take to prevent cervical and other related sexually transmitted cancers is to have the HPV vaccine, notes Dr. Sudeepthi Prasad, a Washington Township Medical Foundation gynecologist.

“HPV (human papillomavirus) is the most common sexually transmitted infection (STI) in women, and the majority of cervical cancers are caused by HPV,” Dr. Prasad explains. The vaccine is highly effective for preventing cervical cancer as well as reducing the incidence of other cancers caused by HPV. These include cancers of the vagina, vulva, anus and some head and neck cancers.

Dr. Prasad will present “HPV Vaccine: When and Why?” at a virtual Washington Hospital Health & Wellness seminar on Tuesday, June 6. At the online 12 p.m. seminar, Dr. Prasad will discuss the HPV virus, how the vaccine protects against most HPV infections, why it is important to have the vaccine, and what the best age is to receive it.

The HPV vaccine is one of the few vaccines that prevents cancer. Dr. Prasad notes, “The vaccine protects against cervical cancers caused by high-risk strains of HPV. All those eligible for the vaccine should make sure they are protected.”

Currently, HPV vaccines are recommended for girls and boys, starting at age 9, and are mostly administered by a pediatrician for those between the ages of 9 - 12. The vaccine can be administered until age 45. “Anyone under the age of 45 should make sure to be vaccinated for HPV,” Dr. Prasad says. If you are above the age of 45, she recommends talking with a gynecologist to determine if the vaccine is appropriate for you. “It’s one of the most important preventive steps you can take to protect yourself from cervical cancer.”

HPV is found in up to 80 percent of the sexually active general population. Dr. Prasad emphasizes, “It is one of the most prevalent sexually transmittable viruses and everyone may have had it at some point if you have been sexually active.” According to the Cleveland Clinic, up to 14 million individuals become infected with HPV every year.

For vaccinated individuals under 30, most HPV infections clear up on their own because of healthy immune systems. Beginning at age 30, women should make sure they are tested regularly for HPV by their gynecologist as part of their regular preventive gynecology exam. While HPV is not routinely tested in men, the virus can cause cancers of the penis, anus, head and neck as well as genital warts in men.

The HPV vaccine seminar can be viewed live on Facebook and YouTube. For Facebook, sign in to your account and then go to facebook.com/WashingtonHosp. YouTube does not require an account. Simply go to YouTube.com/whhsInHealth.

Stronger Than You Think presents youth-centered healthy relationship summit

SUBMITTED BY JESSICA KIM

Team Stronger Than You Think (STYT) is a youth-led empowerment group that seeks to educate fellow youth across the Bay Area about healthy relationships and healthy communities. The group acts under the Youth Services Project (YSP) led by Safe Alternatives to Violent Environments (SAVE). Annually, Team STYT organizes and hosts a youth-centered summit, Symbiosis, which helps youth build the skills to foster healthy relationships and recognize signs of unhealthy relationships.

This year's summit is called Symbiosis: Out of Bounds which focuses on boundaries, including information about how to set, maintain, and respect them. The summit is for folks ages 12-18 and will feature a combination of interactive and informative workshops and boundaries-based projects.

Currently, we have a diverse group of speakers and presenters, including two-time world champion boxer Eliza Olson, SAVE preventionists, and STYT youth members themselves.

This FREE event will be hosted from 9:00 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 29 at Ohlone College in Fremont. In addition to the fantastic workshops and activities offered, we will be hosting a Community Resource and Art Fair. Partners from the Tri-Cities are also invited and encouraged to table and promote resources and programs for youth throughout the event.

To register for this event, visit ysp.save-dv.org/symbiosis. To ensure that Symbiosis is accessible and enjoyable for all, there is no cost, and we cater food and drinks! We do, however, welcome donations, which will go directly toward improving and continuing the work that we do to end intergenerational cycles of violence.

San Leandro response to pedestrian bridge collapse

Haas Ave Pedestrian Bridge

SUBMITTED BY
CITY OF SAN LEANDRO

San Leandro Unified School District and City of San Leandro announce a joint partnership to address the damage caused to the Cary Drive/Haas Ave. Pedestrian Bridge during the recent storms. San Leandro Unified School District and City of San Leandro have joined forces to explore potential solutions for pedestrian traffic in the impacted area.

“We are committed to working with the City of San Leandro to look into a solution that ensures our students and the community have safe and reliable access to this area of San Leandro,” said

Dr. Mike McLaughlin, Superintendent of San Leandro Unified School District.

City Manager Fran Robustelli stated, “We understand the importance of this bridge to the community, and we will do everything in our power to ensure a safe solution to this issue.”

According to San Leandro Mayor Juan González, “Residents expect an effective collaboration between City Hall and the school districts serving our residents. I am grateful to see this joint effort to address damage caused by the storms that battered our city.” The agencies will continue working closely to explore potential solutions for pedestrian traffic in this area.

San Leandro Family Aquatic Center to close for summer 2023

SUBMITTED BY
CITY OF SAN LEANDRO

The City of San Leandro announced today the San Leandro Family Aquatic Center (SLFAC) will be closed and unavailable for public use during the upcoming 2023 summer season in order to accommodate necessary repairs. Subject to the availability of needed supplies, the city currently expects the pool will be available again for public use in summer 2024.

Following a thorough inspection of the facility, the city has determined the pool is no longer safe for public use. Current challenges include damage to the concrete deck, existing pool surface, play structures, splash pad, and sections of the big slide stairs. Ultimately, nationwide supply-chain shortages and challenges scheduling a pool resurfacing contractor made it impossible to open SLFAC in time for the 2023 summer season.

Mayor Juan González noted, “While the Family Aquatic Center’s unavailability is disappointing, thanks to recent and significant investments authorized by the City Council at both Farrelly Pool and the Boys & Girls Club, San Leandrans have a number of alternative options for swimming this summer at wonderfully renovated facilities.”

Farrelly Pool and the Boys & Girls Club Pool will be offering additional programs this 2023 summer season to offset the impact of closing SLFAC. Expanded swim times for lap swim, adult recreational swim, family recreational swim, and swim lessons will also be available at both facilities.

In addition to the expanded swim times and programs, the city is also bringing back Summer Family Swim Passes. This option provides a great way for individuals and families to maximize their opportunities to swim at city facilities this summer.

Tomato Tidbits

BY PAT KITE

My tomato seeds seemed to have drowned. Every morning I look out for tiny green sprigs. Sigh. Everybody I know grows gallons of tomatoes. Most years I get five.

Tomatoes are a good luck plant. While they now come in a variety of colors, the favorite is still red. Red is a good luck color. This may be yet another superstition, but it's true tomatoes are indeed clinically high in magnesium, iron, folate, tryptophan and vitamin B6, all needed for mood-regulating brain things.

The only tomatoes I can grow are the tiny red ones. I sometimes can even grow them in my one sunny house window. But there are oodles of alternatives, such as Black Beauty, Wagner Blue Green, Cream Sausage, Blue Gold Berries, Aunt Ruby's German Green, Beam's Yellow Pear, Ivory Egg, Violet Jasper, Raspberry Lyanna, Cherokee Chocolate, Orange Icicle, etc. Of course, you must search the Internet for the intense seed variety, but that is part of the fun of tomato growing.

The first tiny yellow tomatoes seem to have originated in Peru and thereabouts (the original form was called pomo d'oro), and had a love/hate relationship throughout Europe. They didn't show up in North America until Thomas Jefferson grew some in his private garden in the early 1800s. Nobody is quite sure of where he got his seeds, but by about 1850 cook book tomato recipes were standard. Per author T.S. Gold “We raised our first tomatoes about 1832 as a curiosity, made no use of them though we had heard that the French ate them. They were called love apples.” However, World War I changed the picture. The varying Southern Farm Clubs for Children encouraged tomato growing, saying a healthy diet should include 55 pounds per person per year.

Nowadays tomatoes are the most popular home garden vegetable. Botanically, a tomato is a fruit, but since it is used as a egetable for trade purposes it is a vegetable. This is according to a 19th century Supreme Court case. Gardeners are always adding something to the soil to encourage their growing tomatoes. Here are some of the items used (and no, I haven't tried them): chopped banana peels, coffee grounds, egg shells, aspirin, baking soda, and epsom salt.

Tomato plants do not like being dried out, but don't drown them. A little moist is usually just fine, but remember that plants in pots can get hot fast. Enjoy. And have a lovely spring-summer harvest.

Park It: Briones Pilot Project

BY NED MACKAY

A two-year pilot project relating to trail use at the northeast corner of Briones Regional Park near Martinez will begin on Friday, April 21.

The Briones Pilot Project will test a variety of trail management strategies to improve the parkland experience for everyone, reduce conflicts between trail users, and protect habitat, wildlife and watersheds. The project zone is generally east of the Toyon Canyon, Briones Crest, Table Top and Sunrise Trails.

One impetus for the project was the rising number of parkland visitors in recent years, with the resulting need to find ways to share trails. Another was the growing number of illegal "bootleg" trails at Briones and other regional parks. These illegally built trails are not up to sustainable design standards and can adversely impact watersheds and harm wildlife.

Within the zone, equestrians and bicycle riders will alternate trail use on weekends. Horses will be allowed in the zone on even-numbered weekend days; bikes will be allowed on odd-numbered weekend days.

On even-numbered weekend days, horses will be allowed on all trails open to equestrian use. On odd-numbered weekend days, bikes will be allowed on all trails open to bike use. No horses will be allowed in the zone at all on weekend bicycle days, even on trails normally open to equestrians. No bikes will be allowed in the zone at all on weekend equestrian days, even on trails normally open to bikes.

Some trails within the zone will be designated for bike use only, limited to a downhill direction of travel. There will be signs at the top and bottom. These trails are recommended for expert riders only. On even-numbered weekend days, bikes will be prohibited from using any trails in the zone, including bike-only trails. Some other user-built trails in the zone will be closed for restoration.

The odd-even day restrictions in the zone apply only to bicycle and horse use during weekends. Hikers can use trails in the zone seven days per week during normal park hours. But for their safety, hikers should never use the bikes-only trails.

In the rest of the park, equestrians and cyclists will not need to alternate weekend days. Standard trail regulations will apply seven days per week, as set forth in the Park District's Ordinance 38. Visitors should stay on official trails. Hikers and bicycles are supposed to yield the right of way to equestrians; bicycles yield to hikers.

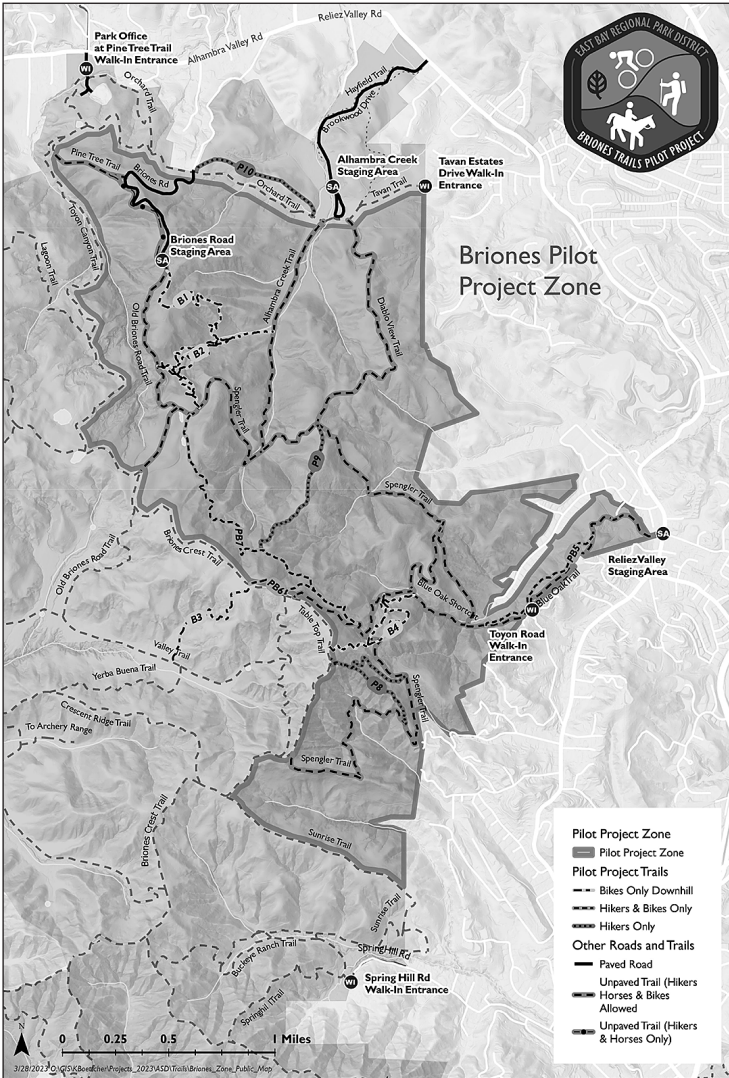

The Briones Pilot Project is described in detail on the pilot project webpage, www.ebparks.org/briones-pilot-project. I'd advise reading it before you set out. The description includes a trail map of the zone with a user key, a chart of the pilot zone trail use schedule, and a list of answers to frequently asked questions. You can also sign up to receive updates or volunteer to help with the project.

A flower walk is on the agenda during Family Nature Fun Hour, from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 15, at the Doug Siden Visitor Center at Crab Cove in Alameda. The program is free of charge and registration is not necessary. It repeats at the same time on Sunday, April 16. Crab Cove is at 1252 McKay Ave. off Alameda's Central Avenue. For information, call (510) 544-3187.

With the arrival of warmer weather, snakes are beginning to venture out above ground at parks and open space including Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in Antioch. During a program from 11:00 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. on Sunday, April 16, naturalist Jessica Kauzer will talk about snake activity in the springtime, and what to do if you see them on the trails. Weather permitting, a live snake will be part of the program.

Meet Kauzer at Black Diamond Mines' uppermost parking lot, 3½ miles south of Highway 4 and a mile past the park's entrance kiosk. The program is free and registration is not necessary. Heavy rain may cancel. Black Diamond Mines has a parking fee of $5 per vehicle when the kiosk is attended. For information, call (510) 544-2750.

A Delta-themed puppet show with naturalist Miriam Klingler will be the featured attraction from 10:30 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. on Sunday, April 16, at Big Break Regional Shoreline in Oakley. Bring a blanket and a snack: Meet at the visitor center. Big Break is at 69 Big Break Road off Oakley's

Main Street. For information, call (510) 544-3050.

For a full list of programs and activities available in the regional parks, visit www.ebparks.org/things-to-do. And be sure to check at the website before visiting a parkland, to be sure that adverse weather or other factors have not resulted in a program cancellation or limited park use.

Fremont's Updated Housing Element Certified by State

2023-2031
Housing Element
Certified and complete!

fremont.gov/housingelement

On Wednesday, March 22, 2023, the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) announced that the City of Fremont's updated 2023-2031 Housing Element, which is part of the City's General Plan, is in full compliance with State law—becoming the sixth city in Alameda County to receive State certification.

"HCD applauds the leadership of the City in taking significant steps to affirmatively further fair housing and accommodate the future housing needs of all segments of the community," HCD's Senior Program Manager Paul McDougall stated in a letter to the City.

- Key policy commitments in the City's updated Housing Element include:
- Planning for approximately 300 units of housing on an 8.4-acre City-owned property at Fremont Blvd. and Decoto Rd.,
- Considering revisions to parking requirements in transit-oriented areas, and
- Updating City ordinances and standards to maximize residential density in certain areas.

"We are pleased that the State recognized Fremont's strong support for housing at all income levels," said Fremont Mayor Lily Mei. "We will continue to promote transit-oriented development, prioritize affordable housing, streamline approvals for accessory dwelling units (ADUs), and implement other strategies to meet our housing targets."

Under California law, all local governments are required to adopt a Housing Element and update it every eight years to help meet the housing needs of everyone in the community.

Fremont's assigned share of the region's housing need for the next eight years is almost 13,000 new residential units, over 7,000 of which are intended to be affordable. In 2022 alone, the City permitted 1,133 housing units, including 298 affordable units. An additional 947 units of affordable housing are currently under construction or in early phases of the development pipeline in Fremont.

According to the HCD website, other Alameda County cities to receive State certification include Alameda, Berkeley, Emeryville, Oakland, and San Leandro.

To learn more about the City's Housing Element, please visit our webpage at fremont.gov/housingelement. Additionally, anyone interested in learning more about affordable housing in Fremont can access an interactive map of existing and upcoming developments at city.fremont.gov/affordablehousingmap.

Bringing Back the Natives Garden Tour and Green Home Features Showcase

Registration for the free, Nineteenth Annual “Bringing Back the Natives Garden Tour and Green Home Features Showcase” is now open! This year there will be four days of inspiration: two days online in April, and two days in person in May. And, for the second time, the tour will also showcase green home features.

What's special about California native plants? They are adapted to our soil and climate, naturally water conserving, and easy to care for. California native plants are better than non-native plants when it comes to attracting native birds, butterflies, and other forms of wildlife. And, as the gardens on the Tour show, these lovely gardens display a sense of place that is uniquely Californian.

Online Tour

The online portion of the event will take place on the weekend of April 15 and 16. Inspirational best-selling author Doug Tallamy will kick off the event with a keynote presentation. The online tour will feature beautiful native plant gardens that attract birds, bees, and butterflies, as well as visits to homes with solar panels and backup batteries, heat pumps for heating and cooling the house and heating water, induction ranges, and more.

In-Person Tour

On May 6 and 7, registrants will get the chance to visit more than fifty beautiful, water-conserving native plant gardens. All of the homes have gardens; twenty will be sharing their green home features, such as solar panels and batteries, induction ranges, heat pumps, and more.

Registrants will learn how design a native plant garden for color and interest throughout the year, garden to support local wildlife, lower their water bills, protect their family's health and the environment by gardening without using pesticides. People will also have the chance to ask questions about electrification.

For more information, about the garden tour contact Kathy@KathyKramerConsulting.net or call (510) 236-9558 between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Use rain barrels to capture rainwater

By MELINDA MYERS

Put rainwater to use in your landscape with the help of rain barrels. This centuries-old technique allows you to capture rainfall to use for watering ornamental gardens and containers. Always start with a call to your local municipality. Some have restrictions on water harvesting, but most encourage this practice, and some even offer rebates or rain barrels at a discounted rate.

Purchase a rain barrel or make your own from a large, recycled food-grade container. In either case, there are some features to consider when purchasing, creating, and adding a rain barrel to your landscape.

Make sure the top is covered to keep out bugs and debris. Some come equipped with a solid lid with an opening just big enough to accommodate the downspout. Others use a screen to keep out debris, while letting in the rain.

With minor precautions, you will be able to prevent mosquitoes from breeding inside your rain barrel. Just use an organic mosquito control like Mosquito Dunks and Mosquito Bits (SummitResponsibleSolutions.com) in rain barrels and other water features. Mosquito Bits quickly knock down the mosquito larval population, while Mosquito Dunks provide 30 days of control. They are both safe for people, pets, fish, wildlife and beneficial insects.

Look for a barrel with the spigot near the base so water does not stagnate in the bottom. Use the spigot to fill watering cans or attach a hose for watering.

Include an overflow outlet near the top of the barrel to direct excess water away from the house or toward connecting adjacent barrels. A downspout diverter is another way to manage rain barrel overflows. When the rain barrels are full, this device diverts the water back to the downspout where it is carried away from your home's foundation.

Elevate your rain barrel on cement blocks, decorative stands, or similar supports. This provides easier access to the spigot for filling containers and speeds water flow with the help of gravity. A water pump will boost water pressure for a nice steady flow of water.

Dress up your container with a bit of paint suited for outdoor use on plastic surfaces. And don't worry if you are not an artist; you can also hide your rain barrels with some decorative screens or plantings or upright shrubs, perennials or ornamental grasses. Just make sure you have easy access to the spout for retrieving water.

Start your conversion to rain barrels one downspout at a time. You can capture as much as 623 gallons of water from 1,000 square feet of roof in a one-inch rainfall. This can be a lot to manage when first adjusting to this change of habit. Disconnecting one downspout at a time allows you to successfully match the use of rain barrels and other rain harvesting techniques to your gardening style and schedule.

The choices are many, making it easy for you to conserve water and grow a beautiful landscape.

Melinda Myers has written more than 20 gardening books, including The Midwest Gardener's Handbook, 2nd Edition and Small Space Gardening. She hosts The Great Courses "How to Grow Anything" DVD series and the nationally-syndicated Melinda's Garden Moment TV & radio program. Myers is a columnist and contributing editor for Birds & Blooms magazine and was commissioned by Summit for her expertise to write this article. Her website is www.MelindaMyers.com.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: APRIL 11, 2023

All Signs: This is a happy, laid-back week. On Monday and Tuesday, the Sun lines up with lucky Jupiter (happens only once a year), creating feelings of well-being, generosity and sunny optimism. People will help each other and be glad to see each other. It's a great week to socialize and pool resources. Midweek there will be a few detours, but these are temporary, and things will soon return to a laidback tempo leading to a fun weekend. Let your motto be: How can I help someone? This will create the best vibes for you.

- Aries the Ram
(March 21-April 20):

This is a lovely week for you because your energy and confidence are pumped! You can accomplish a lot when you're up for something and you know you can do it. That's how this week will be for you. Relations with others will be mutually affectionate and charming. You might act on your moneymaking ideas. Admittedly, chaos and increased activity on the home front are a challenge. Nevertheless, if you can travel, you will. Midweek, you're high viz. and by the weekend, you'll love schmoozing with friends and groups.

Taurus the Bull
(April 21-May 20):

This is a solid week for you. For starters, the Sun lining up with Jupiter takes place in a hidden part of your chart, which will give you a warm feeling, while Mercury in your sign will make you talkative. Furthermore, your ruler Venus in one of your Money Houses will attract wealth. Fiery Mars is in your House of Communications, making you a persuasive and effective communicator! Next month, lucky Jupiter enters your sign to stay for a whole year. Life is good for Taurus – and getting better.

Gemini the Twins
(May 21-June 20):

You're popular this week because the Sun and Jupiter are lined up in your House of Friendships, which means you'll enjoy time spent with friends. Furthermore, in groups you might assume a leadership position. To sweeten the picture, fair Venus is now in your sign, which makes you
- charming and diplomatic with everyone. This is a sociable, friendly week! Make plans to do something different or travel by the end of the week. Meanwhile, Mars will encourage you to earn money because you're certainly spending it.

Cancer the Crab
(June 21-July 21):

You shine in the eyes of others this week because both the Sun and Jupiter are lined up at the top of your chart, making you look heroic. You exude goodwill and confidence, which is one reason you are more involved than usual with younger people. With fiery Mars in your sign, you have energy to spare. You are proactive, focused and competitive. Meanwhile, some of you are involved in a secret love affair. Others might be doing financial transactions behind the scenes. (You're very private about your money.)

Leo the Lion
(July 22-August 22):

You feel happy this week. You need a change of scenery. You would love to learn new things and discover new ideas as well as meet with people from different cultures. Make a point of socializing at the beginning of the week on Monday or Tuesday. As the week progresses, interactions with creative, artistic types will please you. This is a time of preparation because lucky Jupiter will soon move to the top of your chart, where it will stay for a year, making you look fabulous and successful.

Virgo the Virgin
(August 23-September 22):

This week begins with an emphasis on home and family, and
- then swings to a time of socializing, playful outings and sports events, with an increased emphasis on children. Venus is high in your chart now, which makes you look good to others. Expect someone to ask for your advice. This is a strong week for financial negotiations and dealing with wills, taxes, and debt. Whatever decision you make will favor you. It's also a good time to ask for a loan or mortgage. Meanwhile, competition with friends and groups will be edgy!

Libra the Scales
(September 23-October 22):

You have a strong need to be heard now, which is why discussions with partners and close friends will be meaningful to you. These might be a teaching or learning occasion. Meanwhile, travel for pleasure is starting to beckon now and in the next few weeks. But because you're ambitious with your personal projects, will you take the time? Probably not. Perhaps you can slip in some weekend getaways? The main thing to know this week is that your interaction with partners and close friends will benefit you. You will also benefit others.

Scorpio the Scorpion
(October 23-November 21):

You're in work mode. You want to be productive and accomplish as much as possible. This favorable situation will help you pool resources with colleagues, customers, clients and friends to achieve your objectives. Work-related travel is a likelihood for many. All of you will feel more optimistic. You might explore publishing, legal matters or something to do with medicine. Whatever you do will expand your
- world. Meanwhile, financial assistance can come your way. Discussions with partners and close friends might surprise you. Do what you can to get out of your rut.

Sagittarius the Archer
(November 22-December 21):

This week is fun city for Sagittarians! It begins with the Moon in your sign on Monday and Tuesday, making this the perfect time to interact with others. Accept invitations to party and socialize! Sports events and anything to do with concerts, museums and galleries will delight. Many of you will be more involved with children. Relations with partners and close friends will be warm and affectionate because Venus is opposite your sign now. In fact, your sex drive is amped! Look for ways to express your creative talents.

Capricorn the Goat
(December 22-January 19):

On Monday, things are low key, and you feel the need for privacy. However, by Tuesday, you'll be out there flying your colors! This is the perfect time to entertain at home or enjoy family gatherings. In fact, anything to do with home, family and real estate will benefit you now. This is a fun-loving week, with opportunities to enjoy where you live and appreciate your family. Even relations with work colleagues will be mutually supportive. One tiny glitch: with Mars opposite your sign now, be patient with partners and close friends.

Aquarius the Water Bearer
(January 20-February 18):

This is a wonderful week for you because you're super optimistic. You might be thrilled
- with what's happening in your daily world and happy to be with those in your surroundings. You might be learning something exciting, or see new plans that will unfold for you in an exciting way. Some of you are in in the throes of a magical love affair because fair Venus is now in one of the most romantic parts of your chart, triggering opportunities for love, romance, vacations and sheer pleasure. Enjoy good times!

Pisces the Fish
(February 19-March 20):

This year you are financially favored. Sometimes this happens at once with a big promotion. Other times, it happens in increments. If so, this week is definitely one of those increments. Something will boost your wealth and make you feel more affluent. It could be a raise, gift or chance to open up a new stream of income. Be aware that as this week begins, others notice you more than usual. In fact, personal details about your private life might become public. This is also a lovely week to entertain at home and redecorate.

Cohousing—Naturally

SUBMITTED BY
EVELYN LATORRE AND
JANE MUELLER

Fremont has done it again. For the second year in a row, it has been recognized as the “Happiest City in America” by Wallet Hub. Among the three main findings was that Fremont scored highest in the nation in the category of Community and Environment. Ideal weather and number of acres of parkland per 1,000 residents are key aspects of the environmental evaluation, along with “liking where you live, feeling safe, and having pride in your community.”

Measuring aspects of the quality of life has come about as more and more people migrate from rural to urban areas in search of employment, higher wages, and better educational and health care facilities. City dwellers are now more than 80 percent of the U.S. population. The members of Mission Peak Village, Fremont’s first cohousing development, also wished to have a close connection with nature’s landscape in their suburban environment.

Being connected to the natural environment is associated with lower levels of depression, anxiety, and poor mental health. Members of Mission Peak Village made attractive outdoor open spaces their number one priority. The future inhabitants desired the quality of life that so many studies say is beneficial.

“There is mounting evidence, from dozens and dozens of researchers, that nature has benefits for both physical and psychological human well-being,” says Lisa Nisbet, PhD, a psychologist at Trent University in Ontario, Canada, who studies connectedness to nature.

In the April 1, 2020 publication of the American Psychological Association, in the article “Nurtured by Nature,” researcher Kirsten Weir writes that nature enhances memory, restores focused attention, relieves fear and stress, and produces reductions in heart rate, blood pressure, and cortisol.

The Mission Peak cohousers wanted a design that would surround them with natural beauty. They got it. Not only will they have a view of the surrounding hills from the rooftop terrace and many of the homes, they’ll also have nearly a quarter acre of outdoor shared space that is a wonderland of blue, pink, and yellow plants among a forest of shade and fruit trees. Professional landscape architect Karin Kaufman has produced a plan that will include meandering footpaths and a natural playground where children can learn to ride bikes or roller skate in areas away from cars and traffic. Dining tables shaded by trees will fill the large patio adjacent to the “common house” (clubhouse). Green and flowering trees will tower above a myriad of proposed plants. In the sunniest spot on the High Street property, resident gardeners will raise vegetables for their common meals.

As Mission Peak Village takes shape, its future residents look forward to a real connection with nature. The community’s large common yard filled with plants is certain to delight both children and adults and provide a healthy and nature-filled atmosphere where all living things can grow and thrive.

This article is part of an ongoing series on cohousing. To learn more about Mission Peak Village, visit www.missionpeakcohousing.org.

Olive Hyde Art Guild Members Juried Show 2023

Latzer judged 122 artworks from the Guild's online image gallery, resulting in about 60 accepted works. Most generously, she wrote individual comments for each artist about their artwork, offering insights and encouragement. Her selection of awards will be presented at the Opening Reception on April 14. Guests that night will be grabbing a ballot to vote their personal favorite for the People's Choice Award.

Congratulations to the 40 artists exhibiting in OHAG's Members Juried Show: Vimal Advani, Hetal Anjaria, Simone Archer, Karen Barry, Sister Brigid Bray, Scott Capen, Edie Christensen, Thomas Cory, Abhijit Datta, Adriane Dedic, Joan Di Stefano, Dmitry Grudsky, Seema Gupta, Scott Hart, Susan Helmer, P. Kay Hille-Hatten, Mi-Young Jo, Priscilla La Rocca, Maureen Langenbach, Peter Langenbach, Robyn Leimer, Lina Melkonian, Denise Oyama Miller, Patricia Moran, Farshid Namei, Mitchell Neto, Gail Noeth, Parul Parekh, Norma Robinson, Emelie Rogers, Maria Grazia Romeo, Deepthi Saraswat, Arathi Satish, Barbara Schlein, Durba Sen, Lynne Shephard, Lynne Sparling, Lisa Stambaugh, Mary Sullivan, Kevin Tschaen.

As both a committee member and participating artist, Lisa Stambaugh eagerly anticipates this show: "I love celebrating the diverse art of our Guild members in a single gallery experience...On what other local stage can we witness simultaneous exuberant performances in oil, acrylic, and watercolor painting, photography, sculpture, mixed media, mosaic, clay, fused glass, dye-painted silk, quilting, crochet, linocut, macrame, and wood carving?"

Photography artist Scott Capen is inspired by nature: "There are so many beautiful places and things in the world that I feel like I'm lucky to be able to capture a single moment in time that may never be experienced in the same way again."

For Thomas Cory, the grace and beauty discovered in nature is inspiring: "I try to seek simplicity and precious, distinctiveness of the ordinary. My OHAG show paintings began as simple observations - Opus 3.2 from a tree in Monterey, and Rust Hummer from a barbed-wire fence... in a style I first used while in Graduate School: "Trompe O'leil," literally meaning 'trick of the eye,' a technique of using realistic imagery to create an optical illusion of depth."

By contrast, Scott Hart gets his ideas and inspiration from science fiction, mythology and folklore. He is "very intrigued by the idea of an explorer finding an object on another planet, made by some non-human intelligence, and what that might look like." That's part of the inspiration behind his piece Bound Object.

A mosaic artwork by Arathi Satish is influenced by Indian temple art and classical paintings. About her mosaic, The Universe of Puri, Arathi says, "The colors, geometrical shapes and proportions used have sacred meanings. The sphere symbolizes the expression of love, unity, brotherhood and non-violence that should always exist in this world."

Local artist Robyn Leimer states that her paintings reflect life's simple pleasures evoking a reminder of people, places or a moment in time, capturing the transitional beauty that winter brings, "like a brilliant sunset reflecting on the melting snow, or mysteriously cast shadows falling on the sun-lit snowy landscape near Half Dome."

For those wishing to learn more, Olive Hyde Art Guild will host a public Meet & Greet Social in the Olive Hyde courtyard from 10 a.m. - 12 noon on Thursday, April 20. Docent-led tours of the Members Juried Show will be conducted by Leah Andrews, Curator of the Olive Hyde Art Gallery, beginning at 12 noon, 1 p.m., 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

History Presentation: The Making of The Apology

SUBMITTED BY
HAYWARD AREA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY

On April 22, join a talk with filmmaker Mimi Chakarova and producer Aisha Knowles as they discuss the making of The Apology.
In 1963, officials in Alameda County began hearings to discuss the forced removal of Russell City, an unincorporated area, home to predominantly Black and Latino residents. Sixty years later, the City of Hayward formally recognized the impact of the forced removal and issued a formal apology to Russell City residents.

Award-winning filmmaker Mimi Chakarova's feature-length documentary The Apology follows the stories of two dozen Russell City residents and their descendants while exploring the significance of making amends for a past that shouldn't be forgotten.

2023 Jaguar F-Type Convertible: Spring Fling Sunshine & Drop Tops

By MICHAEL COATES

Finally, we seem to have turned the page on a winter for the ages. What better way to put that rainy, windy, miserable season of storms behind you than spending a week in a powerful, sexy British sports car. The 2023 Jaguar F-Type convertible is the antidote to gray days. It was made for a sunny spring day, even if the temperatures are still huddling around 50 degrees.

Another element was at work with this Jag. This past January the company announced that the 2024 F-Type would be the last internal combustion engine vehicle in its line. Jaguar will go all-electric starting with the 2025 model. This rumbling V8 with its great sound is at the end of its line. If the next generation F-Type has any sound, it will have to be artificially generated.

A Pricey Piece of History

Holding onto a piece of history like the F-Type P450 R-Dynamic AWD Convertible

does not come cheap. The model we drove had a base price of $87,200, but with options and the destination and delivery fee it came to $91,770. You can find a perfectly respectable rear-wheel drive convertible F-Type for $76,700 or splurge for the 575-horsepower “R” version for $111,200. The faster F-Type coupe is slightly more expensive than the convertible, but for a spring day I’ll take the drop top.

That rumbling anachronism of a V8 doesn't deliver much relief at the pump, offering only 16 mpg in the city, 24 on the highway and 18 combined. In my driving I couldn't best those numbers from the supercharged engine. That will all be in the rearview mirror when the electric F-Type hits the market, but the memories of a top-down afternoon drive along Skyline Drive, 440 horsepower growling from the quadruple tailpipes and the paddle shifters for the 8-speed Quickshift automatic transmission emulating a manual will remain.

The F-Type offers several driver-selectable drive modes, but why would you select anything other than “Sport?” Maybe if you're stuck in bridge traffic, but then why would you even want to be in this car in that situation—except for the tan?

The Luxury Equation

Jaguar has always been a luxury brand and the F-Type, as the brand's halo car, fairly reeks of it. The two seats, which offer reasonable support for the kind of driving the car encourages, are Windsor leather with suedecloth inserts, which is also found throughout the tight quarters of the interior. As with more and more models, you can initiate a variety of different mood lighting colors. For those of us used to living in the SUV age, that confined space envelopes you and makes it a home you want to live in. The 380-watt Meridian sound system is up to the task of cranking out tunes should you want to add to your drive.

Technology is an integral part of the luxury experience and, once again, Jaguar has filled the tank, particularly in tech that aids the car's performance. The wide sports car has an adaptive suspension that interprets the terrain and responds to keep maximum traction on the ground. The electronic active differential adds torque vectoring for smoother cornering. The F-Type convertible rides on 20-inch alloy wheels and has staggered tires with wider, lower-profile rear tires aiding its aggressive look.

Jaguar has a full complement of safety equipment included. We noted a rollover protection system as one critical addition for a convertible.

We'll withhold judgement until we see what comes next, but the experience in the now lame duck F-Type was exhilarating. It sets a pretty high bar for the EV that will follow.

A dog-eat-dog case

The question is what compelled the VIP Products company to make a dog toy resembling the iconic bottle of Jack Daniel's Tennessee sour mash. Whatever the connection is between a pooch and a bottle of booze, it riled the folks at Jack Daniel's who took their case to the highest court in the land where U.S. Supreme Court Justice Samuel Alito posed the question, "Could any reasonable person think that Jack Daniel's had approved this use of the mark?" On the other hand, Justice Elena Kagan seemed to be leaning in favor of the plaintiff and against the toy maker when she commented, "Maybe I just have no sense of humor." Trendy astronauts

American astronauts will soon get a newer, more chic look in their new spacesuits in time for NASA's much anticipated Artemis 3 moon mission in 2025. More important, the suits will be more comfortable and will allow astronauts to dress themselves. "This is going to be a much more flexible suit. The range of motion is really going to improve the astronauts' ability to do all the tasks they're going to do when out exploring on the lunar surface," said Peggy Whitson, a former NASA astronaut who is part of the Axiom Space, Inc. team. Prototypes of the spacesuits -- the first new suits in more than 50 years -- were recently displayed bearing black, blue and orange "to conceal the suit's proprietary design." The actual suits will be all white to reflect heat and keep modern day moonwalkers cool. Take a look at the new suits on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=w5Q7CQVPJ4Q

Some like it hot

New Mexico officially is the first state in the nation to have an official aroma, namely the "sweet smell of green chili peppers roasting in the fall." The state is a major producer of chili peppers and, in the most recent growing season, produced a record 53,000 tons of the spicy treats. In fact, the Rio Grande town of Hatch, NM, is known as the "Chili Capital of the World." See the peppers in production on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=YZwUkdPAUt8

THE ROBOT REPORT

Cruise robotaxi, SF bus involved in accident

By BRIANNA WESSLING

Thursday, March 23 a Cruise robotaxi, operating autonomously and with no driver or passengers in the vehicle, was involved in a minor accident with a San Francisco Muni bus. No one was injured in the incident. Both the Cruise vehicle and Muni bus received some damages, with the robotaxi seeming to take the brunt of the impact, according to Forbes Magazine.

While there aren't many details about the accident, Cruise tweeted the following brief statement after the incident: "Yesterday, one of our vehicles made contact with the rear of a Muni bus. No injuries were reported, and there were no passengers present in the Cruise AV. We are investigating the incident and will take follow-up actions if appropriate."

Robotaxi companies are typically quick to clear things up if their vehicles aren't at fault in incidents. So many are assuming the Cruise robotaxi rear-ended the bus, based partly on Cruise saying in the statement one of its vehicles "made contact with the rear of a Muni bus."

"This afternoon, one of our vehicles made contact with the rear of a Muni bus. No injuries were reported, there were no passengers present in the Cruise AV, and it has been cleared from the scene," Cruise stated March 24.

This incident happened just days after another Cruise robotaxi drove through caution tape that closed off a road where overhead trolley wires had fallen during a major high-wind storm. The vehicle hit the wires which were powered off at the time. Had the power lines been live when the vehicle hit them, the incident could have been much worse.

In December, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) announced it was opening an investigation into the company's automated driving system. In a filing, NHSTA said it was interested in two different issues that had been reported to the administration that both result in the robotaxis becoming hazards for others on the road.

NHSTA's first concern is with the company's robotaxis reportedly braking too hard in certain circumstances. The administration received three reports of a Cruise vehicle braking too hard in response to a car approaching them quickly from the rear, resulting in the Cruise vehicle being rear-ended in all three incidents.

The administration's second concern is with the robotaxis becoming immobilized on the road. NHSTA has received several reports of Cruise vehicles stalling on the road, with no human operators present. NHTSA's Office of Defects Investigation (ODI) opened a preliminary investigation to determine the scope and severity of both issues.

Last week, Cruise filed an application with the California DMV to test its robotaxis statewide. The company has been working to expand its services in several areas, including in Austin and in the suburbs of Phoenix. It's also working to roll out its purpose-built Origin vehicle on public roads in San Francisco.

Last month, Cruise announced its fully driverless vehicles have traveled over one million miles. A majority of Cruise's fully driverless miles were driven in San Francisco, where the company first rolled out its robotaxis in November 2021.

The Robot Report reached out to Cruise for details on both incidents but hasn't heard back as of press time. If we do get any more information, this story will be updated.

California cuts short commercial Dungeness crab season

ASSOCIATED PRESS

March 30, 2023

California will cut short the commercial Dungeness crab season to protect humpback whales from becoming entangled in trap and buoy lines, the state Department of Fish and Wildlife announced Thursday.

Commercial fishing will end on April 15 from the Mendocino county line to the Mexican border, the agency said. It will still be allowed in the waters off Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties. Recreational crabbing also will be allowed.

The crab industry is one of California's major fisheries and the shellfish is especially popular around the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. The season traditionally begins Nov. 15 and runs through late June but it already had been pushed back to New Year's Eve after three earlier delays.

Fish and game officials are concerned that humpback whales can get caught in the vertical ropes connected to heavy commercial traps. They can drag the ropes around for months, leaving them injured, starved or so exhausted that they can drown.

Humpback whales migrate north annually from Mexico's Baja California peninsula where they birth calves. In spring, summer and fall the humpbacks feed on anchovies, sardines and krill off the California coast before heading back south. The whales are expected to return to California in the next few weeks.

The fish and game department previously reported that at least 15 humpback whales were entangled in fishing gear off California last year.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 800-280-2832, or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-22-939960-AB to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE TO PROSPECTIVE OWNER-OCCUPANT: Any prospective owner-occupant as defined in Section 2924m of the California Civil Code who is the last and highest bidder at the trustee's sale shall provide the required affidavit or declaration of eligibility to the auctioneer at the trustee's sale or shall have it delivered to QUALITY LOAN SERVICE CORPORATION by 5 p.m. on the next business day following the trustee's sale at the address set forth in the below signature block. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. California city to provide services to homeless encampment

ASSOCIATED PRESS
April 1, 2023

A Northern California city said it will let a homeless encampment stay on some public land, agreeing to provide trailers and other services for up to four months.

A group of homeless people, mostly women, have been living on a lot owned by the city of Sacramento, California, for more than a year, the Sacramento Bee reported.

On Friday, city officials announced they had leased the land for free to Safe Ground Sacramento, a nonprofit group, for up to four months. People can park their cars or RVs on the property, and the city will provide up to 33 trailers for people to live in.

The city said the site will be self-governed by what it calls a "resident council," along with an operations plan that must be approved by the City Council in the next 30 days.

"I am incredibly proud that through months of hard work and open communication we found an innovative solution for this site that benefits our entire community," Councilmember Sean Loloee, whose district includes the land, said in a city blog post.

For decades, major cities across California have been grappling with homelessness, a problem that has only worsened in recent years as a housing shortage has increased rents and made it difficult to find an affordable place to live. California now has nearly a third of the nation's homeless population, according to federal data.

Cities have tried lots of different approaches to address the issue. In San Jose, a city of nearly 1 million people at the south end of the San Francisco Bay, officials installed about 500 small homes for homeless people to live in. The program reduced the rate of the city's homeless people who were unsheltered for the first time in years, Mayor Matt Mahan said.

Last month, Gov. Gavin Newsom announced the state would build 1,200 of these small homes across the state - homes that are as small as 120 square feet (11 square meters) that have electricity but no running water. Sacramento is scheduled to get 350 of those homes, most of which will likely be at the state fairgrounds, according to Mayor Darrell Steinberg.

Across California, local governments have plans for a 15% reduction in homelessness by 2025. Those plans originally called for a 2% reduction in homelessness, a goal that angered Newsom because he thought it was too low. Local governments revised those plans after Newsom threatened to withhold state funding.

The homeless encampment in Sacramento, known as "Camp Resolution," is not meant to be permanent. The city said the initial lease will run for four months. But the lease can be renewed until "all the residents obtain permanent housing."

"We are anxious to assist Camp Resolution residents to demonstrate that homeless people can self-govern and assist each other to obtain permanent housing," said Mark Merin, executive director for Safe Ground Sacramento.

Idaho governor signs 'abortion trafficking' bill into law

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Idaho Gov. Brad Little signed a bill into law Wednesday that makes it illegal for an adult to help a minor get an abortion without parental consent.

The law is the first of its kind in the U.S. and creates a new crime of “abortion trafficking,” barring adults from obtaining abortion pills for a minor or “recruiting, harboring or transporting the pregnant minor” without the consent of the minor's parent or guardian.

Anyone convicted of breaking the law will face two to five years in prison and could also be sued by the minor's parent or guardian. Parents who raped their child will not be able to sue, though the criminal penalties for anyone who helped the minor obtain an abortion will remain in effect.

To sidestep violating a constitutional right to travel between states, Idaho's law makes illegal only the in-state segment of a trip to an out-of-state abortion provider.

Opponents have promised a legal battle.

Few details in SF stabbing death of Cash App founder Bob Lee

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Details of how tech executive Bob Lee came to be fatally stabbed in downtown San Francisco early on April 4 were scarce as friends and family continued to mourn the man they called brilliant, kind and unlike others in the industry. San Francisco police found Lee, 43, on the sidewalk in front of a condominium building with stab wounds shortly after 2:35 a.m. on April 4. He was taken to a hospital where he died. The neighborhood where the stabbing occurred is near the Embarcadero waterfront and full of tech offices, towering condominium buildings and not much else late at night.

Lee created the mobile payment service Cash App and was the chief product officer for cryptocurrency MobileCoin at the time of his death. He was previously the chief technology officer of the payment company Square, which became Block in late 2021. Lee was apparently in San Francisco for a visit after moving to Miami in October, his father, Rick Lee, said on social media. The two had been living in the San Francisco suburb of Mill Valley. "Bob would give you the shirt off his back," Rick Lee wrote. "He would never look down on anyone and adhered to a strict no-judgment philosophy. Bobby worked harder than anyone and was the smartest person I have ever known."

San Francisco police have provided little information, saying the investigation is still early. "Because of this we are not commenting on evidence, nor will we speculate on the circumstances surrounding this horrific crime," Police Chief Bill Scott said in a statement on April 5. Lee's death further enflamed debate over public safety in San Francisco and its moribund downtown, which has not yet bounced back from the pandemic. Twitter's owner Elon Musk took to the social media site to post that "violent crime in SF is horrific and even if attackers are caught, they are often released immediately." Musk tagged the city's district attorney in the post. San Francisco suffers from property crime more than violent crime such as murder, rape, robbery and assault. In a statement, San Francisco Mayor London Breed called the homicide "a horrible tragedy" and said that the city is prioritizing public safety. "I'm confident that when the police make an arrest in cases like this, our district attorney will do what's necessary to hold any individuals accountable for their actions," she said.

MobileCoin CEO Josh Goldbard said in a string of tweets on April 5 that Lee's energy was infectious and his mind kaleidoscopic. "He had so much deep heartfelt love," Goldbard wrote. "Traveling with Bob was like seeing the world for the first time." Lee came to MobileCoin as an early-stage investor and advisor, then became chief product officer and helped launch the Moby app, Goldbard said. Lee was the chief technology officer at digital payments company Square in 2013 when it launched a money transfer application now known as Cash App. Among the tech leaders to share their devastation about Lee's death was venture capitalist Wesley Chan, co-founder of FPV Ventures.

Chan said he befriended Lee more than a decade ago when they both worked at Google, at a time when software engineers like Lee were helping to build the Android smartphone operating system before its 2008 release. "He was an incredibly iconic founder in the tech world," Chan said by phone on April 5. "He wrote large parts of Android when he was at Google. He became the CTO of Square and helped build Cash App. His resume reads something like a Fortune cover article." But Chan said Lee was also generous in helping to coach and champion other engineers and tech entrepreneurs who'd call on him for advice. And he was modest about his key role in developing successful products, such as the widely used Cash App. "With everything that Bob worked on, it was always a pleasant surprise," Chan said. "That's one of the things I loved about him. He was always humble about it, he'd say, 'Oh, I don't know if it's going to work or not, but we'll try.'"

Hayward Chamber of Commerce Officer of the Year

SUBMITTED BY
HAYWARD POLICE DEPARTMENT

Some may recall us highlighting Officer Emilio Gonzalez's hard work late last year after arresting two different people for gun possession at different traffic stops on the same night. Well, it turns out, that was just the tip of the iceberg of Emilio's work accomplishments. In fact, because of Emilio's consistent hard work, humility, sense of humor, and positive attitude, he was recently honored as Hayward Chamber of Commerce Officer of the Year for 2022! Acting Chief Matthews said, "Emilio has made incredibly positive contributions to this community through his proactive, professional, and dedicated approach to his work. He is compassionate and respectful when he interacts with community members and is described as a 'go to person' by those who work with him."

Hayward Police Officer Emilio Gonzalez

Emilio made over 100 arrests last year, including 65 proactive arrests, and 20 proactive firearm seizures. Even while assigned to the patrol division, Emilio authored several search and arrest warrants, and received his "10851 pin," which is awarded to those who have recovered a number of stolen vehicles, many of which resulted in arrests. As if this was not impressive enough, Emilio has done all of this while continuing to serve our country in the United States Marine Corps, not to mention while balancing family and social commitments as well. To say Emilio is worthy of this award is an understatement. Please join us in celebrating and congratulating Officer Emilio Gonzalez for this well-deserved recognition.

Cal State East Bay Women's Golf finishes season with tournament win

COMMUNICATIONS

The final tournament of the 2022-23 regular season for the Cal State East Bay (CSUEB) women's golf team came to a finish on Tuesday, April 4 at The Lodge at Ventana Canyon. The regular season ended in victorious fashion for the Pioneers, who placed first in the team competition at the West Texas Desert Invite.

The Pioneers won their third tournament of the spring season, and first with all scheduled rounds completed. They finished seven strokes ahead of the second place team, tournament host West Texas A&M.

The lowest score for CSUEB was from Drishti Karumbaya, who was tied for fourth on the leaderboard at 11-over-par 155. She made even par on 23 of the 36 holes played and also had two birdies.

Additional individual highlights for the Pioneers include:

- A ninth-place tie for Mandi Granato at 14-over-par 158. Granato had one eagle and three birdies.
- Top-20 finishes for Julika Grosspietsch (tied for 14th) and Jasmin Krishna (tied for 16th).
- Grosspietsch with CSUEB's only other eagle in the tournament.
- Three birdies for Arrianna Custodio in the tournament.

During the 2023 spring season, CSUEB also was the team champion in the Bay Area Invitational and Tim Tierney Pioneer Shootout.

CSUEB head coach Alan Sue following Tuesday's tournament win, "I'm very proud of the ladies and the way that we stayed in the moment on a very difficult golf course. Our mental games were the best they have been all year and not coincidentally, we performed well enough to beat a strong field. We also controlled potential damage on these tough holes only days after struggling with that very issue at Palm Valley."

The individual medalist at 5-over-par 149 was Minna Archer from Colorado State-Pueblo.

With the 2022-23 regular season concluded for Cal State East Bay, next for the Pioneers is the CCAA Championships. The three-round championship tournament takes place April 17-19 from Victoria Club in Riverside.

Castro Valley falls to Pittsburg in extra innings

BY ANDREW JOSEPH

The Castro Valley Trojans varsity baseball team lost 3-2 to the Pittsburg Pirates on Thursday, April 6 when the non-league home game went into extra innings in a rematch to last season's 10-0 defeat.

"The game plan coming into today was to outplay Pittsburg because we knew we had to really go in after last season's bad loss against them," said Castro Valley head coach David Perry. In the first inning the Trojans went scoreless as the Pirates scored one single run. During the second inning, Castro Valley was still unable to get onto the board, but their starting pitcher held his ground not allowing any runs to be scored until the fifth inning.

Castro Valley's Zach Gardner had base hit in the fourth inning followed by Matthew Cormier's deep drive to left field. With runners at first and second base, Owen Roura was thrown a pass ball which allowed the runners to advance to second and third base.

Then Roura hit a double to left field and two runners scored to give the Trojans a 2-1 lead heading into the fifth inning. "They thought they were going to trample us again like last year, but we came out and really competed," said Roura. "I saw a fastball a little outside the box on my big hit and I tried to drive it up the middle in the spaces and I was able to drive in two runs so we could get the 2-1 lead."

When senior, Halen Guerrero, hit his first home run of his high school career in the fifth inning the game became tied at 2-2. Castro Valley retook the league at 3-2, but the game was again tied at 3-3 at the end of seven innings to force overtime to decide the winner.

"I knew their hitters were struggling on my curve ball, so I knew all I had to do was go out there and try to throw strikes," said closing pitcher Gardner. Gardner threw a pitch for a fly ball to get the first out in the eighth inning. Pittsburg's second batter Octavio Lopez hit a ground ball and was tagged out at first base. Vic Valle was walked to first base for the Pirates with two outs left and the winning run on base. Gardner then committed an error throwing a pass ball at Guerrero that allowed Valle to score making a 4-3 deficit for the Trojans heading into the bottom of the eighth.

The tying run for Castro Valley was Cormier who hit a base hit to left field with two outs already. Roura had the final at-bat of the game as he hit a fly ball that was caught out ending the Trojans' hope of redemption for last season's scoreless outing against Pittsburg.

"Positives from today were that we had great pitching, our batters put the ball in play a lot, and we made a lot of great defensive plays," added coach Perry. "The goal is for us to win league this year and I think we can do it."

The future is bright for Castro Valley, who has already two more wins than last season's total record of 4-14 as they are now 6-8 and undefeated in league play at 2-0. The goal for this season's team is to do everything they can to win league and go to the NCS playoffs. The Trojans' last eight games this season are Western Alameda County Conference (WACC) league matchups that will be an important factor to win when deciding a league playoff run. They currently stand in first place among the WACC Foothill League.

Chabot College hosts Invitational Swim

BY ERIC DONATO

The much-deserved reprieve from rainy days delivered a fantastic sunny day of swimming competition in Hayward this easter weekend. This past Saturday, April 8, Chabot College (Hayward) hosted an exciting invitational swimming event attended by ten Bay Area community colleges, including another local area school, Ohlone College (Fremont). The other participating colleges at the swim meet were De Anza (Cupertino), Foothill (Los Altos Hills), Laney (Oakland), Marin (Kentfield), City College of San Francisco, College of San Mateo, Santa Rosa Junior College, Solano (Fairfield), and West Valley (Saratoga).

The busy all-day invitational had a total of sixty-one action-packed preliminary heats across thirty-four individual and team swimming events, with a total of one-hundred twenty-eight men and women collegiate swimmers. Among the notable local area wins include Riley Pearson of Chabot College, placing first in the coed 1650-yard freestyle event with a time of 18:24.99 as well as finishing second in the men's 500-yard freestyle. Teammate Tomiko Godoy placed second in the women's 200-yard individual medley. Gwen Manalsala placed third in the women's 400-yd individual medley, as did Lorenzo Nario in the men's 100-yd backstroke.

Ohlone also exhibited a strong presence in the invitational. Fabian Taplin won first place in the men's 200 butterfly with a time of 2:06.63 and placed second in the individual medley for the same distance. Cole Johnson placed second in the men's 100 backstroke, while teammate Brenda Pham placed third in the same event for women. Ohlone also did well in the team events placing third in both the men's 200 medley and 400 freestyle relay finals.

The collegiate swimming action continues to the 2023 Coast Conference Championships, hosted locally this time at Ohlone College in Fremont. The conference's preliminaries and finals swimming events are scheduled for April 20 to April 22.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Safety at the Library

I have written before about concerning situations. I wanted to report that about 1:30 p.m. on Friday (03/31/2023), at the Fremont Main Library, there was a man in a dark blue hoodie in the men’s bathroom, casually rolling a marijuana joint, lighting it up, and taking a few puffs. He spent several minutes hiding in a corner by the door. There are many fathers who take their children to the bathroom. This is unfair to all of us who do not partake of such a substance and find the practice and smell offensive. But especially, this is not a good environment for young ones. At the same time, by the bathrooms, there was a tall lady with a very short dress. I am not sure if she was shaving or doing something else to her upper thighs. She did not seem to be well mentally. She took her time until she finished and walked out. These incidents were happening at the same time. It’s fortunate that the library was not busy. When I inform the heads of the library about these incidents (using the contact information on the webpage), she replies that it is the responsibility of the patron to report such incidents in a “timely way” and to alert the staff. The library has to be proactive on such matters, especially when the marijuana smell was out in the hall where people were walking by! The library has a security guard. The library has become unsafe due to the permissiveness and apathy of its staff. After two significant episodes of violence (one of them a murder) that have occurred so far this year, the management continues exhibiting a live-and-let-live attitude that is putting families at risk. To burden the patrons with this responsibility is simply unfair. An example from just two weeks ago: A regular female computer user was walking around exclaiming vague profanity-laced threats. She did this for several minutes. Do the staff say or do anything? Again, no. Too much.

HERS Gala – a celebration of 25 years of service

BY STEPHANIE GERTSCH

On Saturday, April 8, HERS Breast Cancer Foundation held their 2023 People with Purpose Gala. It was a warm evening in downtown Sunol, and Casa Bella Event Center with pink and silver for the event. The annual gala is a chance for the nonprofit to celebrate the difference they have made in the lives of patients and to fundraise so they can continue providing services – with fun and laughter along the way. Elected officials from surrounding cities came out to show support, and Pleasanton Vice Mayor Jack Balch was MC. Balch shared his own grandmother’s breast cancer journey. “I remember the whispers, the crying, the closed doors, and the shame of it she didn’t want to share with her 18-year-old grandson. That impacted me significantly. It was difficult for her to share her story with me, and difficult for me to know how to support her. But after surgery, treatment, and remission, my grandmother, a true matriarch, would lighten the mood with her now young adult grandchildren by saying that anytime my grandfather got frisky, she knew what to hand him. She would provide him a prosthetic breast and walk out of the room.” Auctioneer Zan Aufderheide facilitated the live auction and led guests through fundraising games such as heads or tails (where they tried to predict a coin toss by gesturing with a fan). In an especially popular game, the final person to raise their paddle to donate $100 got to take home an iPad. Many competed (some multiple times) for the real final spot. HERS Chair Kirstin Litz shared the story of a client. “I’ve had many survivors come to me, thanking me for what HERS does. But it takes a lot of courage to stand up and tell your story. So we ask survivors if they will allow us to tell their stories.” That night’s story was of Rita, who came to HERS after undergoing a unilateral mastectomy. “She thought she could deal with her transformed body, but she came to realize that everyone could see what she wanted no one to notice: that she had one breast. Rita grew increasingly self-conscious and began to avoid social situations. Over time she realized that the lack of her breast significantly affected her emotional and overall health. Determined to make a change, and despite her concern over health care coverage and cost, Rita found HERS online and called for an appointment. “From the moment she walked in, she felt seen, she felt heard, and she felt understood. Our warm welcoming store helped Rita feel less fearful. And her friendly and patient breast care specialist Deborah put her at ease. Even one of Rita’s biggest fears, disrobing in front of a stranger, was more tolerable than she thought possible...After trying a variety of products, Rita found a breast prosthesis that matched her remaining breast in size, shape, weight, and skin tone.” Rita was also able to replace her old, worn wig with a new style that made her feel gorgeous. Litz concludes, “Before leaving, Rita shared that she had never felt so supported following her surgery than she did during her afternoon at HERS. She was beyond surprised that just as important as the products she received was the opportunity to share, be heard, and feel seen.” Every year HERS presents awards to people and organizations who have helped them do their work in the community. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Immigration Obstacles

I am writing about a concerning situation for all Americans, one that has affected my life intensely: The issue of immigration. I am a 54-year-old Cuban American, holding a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology with an emphasis in religious studies. In 2015, I converted to Sunni Islam since I had become more interested in having a closer relation to God as well as embracing sound family values and a hearty sense of social charity. In 2018, I met an Egyptian woman working in the government sector. We married in 2020, decided to apply for a spousal visa in 2021 then, on the advice of the lawyers of CAIR (Council on American-Islamic Relations), applied for a tourist visa several months later. There is a mixed opinion in regard to applying for both visas at the same time, mostly against such a practice although there is the matter of the “adjustment” of status. Since then, our life has been beset by many difficulties, starting with the inhumane, disillusioning, and degrading attitude and treatment that cause many Egyptians to be denied their visa - although they might have met all of the requirements and submitted the proper paperwork. My wife, like others, has been severely traumatized by the verbal abuse she had to endure within the walls of the prison-like American embassy. In addition, she was rudely denied. Despite the efforts of so many to immigrate legally under the USCIS process, the storm of people wanting to enter the U.S. in an undocumented manner is appalling and mind-numbing. Meanwhile, individuals such as my wife, whose only intention is to be with her husband, are given a hard time and made to jump through many hoops, after paying fees and submitting the proper paperwork. In December 2022, I tried to contact the USCIS office in Oakland, the closest one to me. I was able to speak to a live representative who gave me a reference number linked to an agent that was going to contact me so that I could make an appointment to visit the office. Neither a text or a call arrived. After not hearing from them, I tried the same number only to listen to a menu of options that did not lead to a representative but to prerecorded answers to queries. CAIR, a respected nonprofit organization with armies of lawyers and activists, has neglected to give us any legitimate help. CAIR only concerns itself with high pay-off cases of discrimination and incendiary social justice causes related to specific political issues. In terms of helping everyday Muslims, they fail tremendously.

For my wife and me, not only were we disappointed by CAIR’s apathy but their ignorance as to what really goes on in countries such as Egypt or in specific matters of immigration. Then, there is the Immigration Institute of The Bay Area (IIBA), lawyers who work for little or no payment: advertising themselves as crusaders for impoverished individuals and families who are in need of advocacy and legal aid. When I interacted with them in 2023 for a second meeting (I paid $30 for each meeting), IIBA was still operating under Covid mode. My phone line was having problems (the first meeting in November 2022 was over Zoom) and, without hesitation, they cancelled my appointment, telling me that they did not hold Zoom meetings anymore and refused to meet in person. If these are the only two institutes in the Bay Area that are supposed to help working class American immigrant families and they fail abysmally, who are we supposed to turn to? There are lawyers for Mexican immigrants and work visas for Indian immigrants. But what of someone from Africa or the Middle East? Currently, our spousal visa has been at the National Visa Center for one year. I was in Egypt until December 2022 and was able to pay the affidavit of support (AOS) fee in order to submit my financial and tax records. In late February I was able to get rehired by Fremont Unified School District. However, there is the second part of the paperwork to submit, my wife’s civil documents. The obscure language makes it difficult for a petitioner (myself) to fill out the necessary paperwork. I have been told countless times by persons experienced in this process that a lawyer is needed to speed up the process. Personally, I don't have the money, and finding lawyer who is familiar with Egypt and Muslim immigration has been difficult. The war in Ukraine has severely affected food prices and resources in Egypt. Medication and adequately trained physicians are hard to come by. Crime has risen. Yet, it is still difficult for Egyptians to emigrate for humane and medical matters. My wife and I both have health issues. The US embassy in Cairo treats prospective candidates and their families inhumanely and offensively. No one listens or seems to legitimately care about such predicaments, while those emigrating for economic matters or illegally are focused on. What is a couple to do?

Kind regards,
Dr. James M. Schmidt

Niles Canyon Railway 'relays' awareness and support for cancer patients

Relay for the past eleven years, as well as an active partaker alongside her own team, the Cure Crusaders. "Everybody is welcome, not just Relay for Life members," Norvell states. "Many people volunteer and donate. Money is raised specifically for cancer research and advocacy."

Niles Canyon Railway will be taking passengers around Sunol Valley through Niles Canyon in both indoor and open-air cars. Trains will be departing from Sunol Depot at various times: 10:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., and 2:30 p.m. Rides last one hour and 20 minutes. During the ride, volunteers roleplaying friendly "train robbers" will approach the cars, during which time participants can offer their donations. "People are always excited for the train robbers," Norvell says. "Our volunteers play them so well that one year, a person in the car thought it was real!"

The Niles Canyon Railway Museum will also be open during the event, along with the Sunol Gift Shop and booths featuring local organizations such as the Niles Canyon Artisan, who will be displaying handmade jewelry, paintings, and other goods for sale. In addition to food and beverages, a free wine tasting will be available for those 21 and older. Outside picnic areas are available for use. Per the recently updated COVID-19 mandates, masks are no longer required at the event. Norvell hopes to have another large turnout, as she explains, "Last year, we sold over 500 tickets and raised close to $12K." Overall, participants will be able to take in the sights and interact with fellow Relay for Life members and general locals as well.

The success behind Ride the Rails for Relay has been made possible in large part by the Niles Canyon Railway, who have generously volunteered their time and resources year after year. Such events like these not only bring awareness to cancer but allow the community to bond with others who may be experiencing the same overwhelming circumstances. "In my eleven years of organizing this event, I've witnessed so much appreciation and kindness from people," Norvell states. "Last year we celebrated the Gift Shop Director, who suffers from brain cancer, by putting special banners up for her on the car." This moment is merely one of many uplifting reasons why the movement matters: to continue working toward improved cancer research and treatments, as well as reminding others that they are not alone in their battle.

Niles Canyon Railway gift shop director Gail Hedberg, currently battling brain cancer, was honored at the 2022 Ride the Rails for Relay event.
