39 Strong: Little League winning inspiration

BY ERIC DONATO

The Union City National Padres Little League team had an incredible run to the 2023 Tournament of Champions championship and District 45 Title, with an impressive undefeated record. Accolades go to both the talented players and great coaching. Coach Armando Hurtado, who has been coaching the champion Padres for eight years, proudly said, "I have a group of boys that had the same desire and passion to work hard and challenge each other daily." The successful team owes a great deal to Coach Armando's coaching philosophy of not just developing baseball players, but, as he puts it, "athletes that can play baseball." He encourages his players to get involved in secondary sports, explaining, "You get great conditioning and strength from soccer; from football, you're probably going to be a really good, strong player." Coach Armando also wants to develop well-rounded baseball players. He said, "I tell them we're gonna work at three positions, each kid."

What are Advanced Practice Providers?

Learn About these Important Players on Your Health Care Team

Advanced Practice Providers, or APPs, are a group of licensed, nonphysician medical professionals that include physician assistants and nurse practitioners as well as other advanced practice registered nurses (RNs) such as certified nurse midwives, clinical nurse specialists, and certified RN anesthetists. They work in numerous medical specialties across all areas of hospitals and clinics to create a seamless environment of care.

Nurse practitioners are RNs with additional education and clinical training at the master's or doctoral degree level and at least 1,000 hours of clinical practice completed in a focused area. Physician assistants train for two years after receiving a bachelor's, usually alongside medical students, to earn their master's degree and complete 2,000 hours of supervised clinical care. APPs can assess symptoms, prescribe medications, order tests for all procedures and many other medical activities traditionally performed by physicians.

Albert L. Brooks, MD, president of the Washington Township Medical Group and Chief Medical Officer of Washington Township Medical Foundation (WTMF), is a proponent of APPs working side-by-side with physicians since he enjoyed this model during his 40-year practice as an obstetrician-gynecologist (OB-GYN) physician and hospital administrator.

"Starting with my residency in New York City, midwives worked together with physicians to deliver babies. When I later started my OB-GYN practice at Alta Bates Hospital, I had two nurse practitioners, who happened to be female, working alongside me, said Dr. Brooks. "Our patients benefited because, in addition to being under the care of an OB-GYN doctor, they identified with the nurse practitioners who counseled them on things like contraceptive options and prenatal care. Together we made up a unified medical team delivering safe, quality care to women."

APP occupations emerged in the mid-1960s to mitigate shortages of primary care physicians, especially in rural areas, which continues today. Physician assistants and nurse practitioners are essential to improving and expanding access to health care by relieving the burden on physicians; providing cost-effective care; and decreasing the time it takes to be seen for a health care appointment, whether it be a preventive or urgent medical need.

In addition to improving access to health care, Dr. Brooks points out that APPs bring numerous benefits to patients. "While doctors tend to be very busy with appointments, meetings, and charting, having APPs within a medical office can 'humanize' the practice. They allow more time with the patients – providing care, discussing conditions, being empathetic, and answering all the questions patients may have."

Dr. Brooks has his finger on the pulse of what it is like to be a Bay Area doctor today. In addition to his leadership at WTMF, he is President-Elect for the Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Association, representing more than 5,000 local physicians. "Physician burnout has become a crisis in health care. In addition to full days, many physicians spend long hours on nights and weekends catching up on medical charting, which shortens valuable time spent with their families. Those with APPs or medical scribes on staff enjoy the benefits of these 'physician extenders.' Also, physicians who teach others in addition to caring for patients find that it improves their knowledge and skill set, making them better doctors."

Dr. Brooks also points out that all patient medical notes and reports recorded by APPs in Washington Hospital Healthcare System's comprehensive Epic electronic health record system are reviewed by the supervising physicians. He added, "Health care is a team sport. The use of physician assistants and nurse practitioners is on the rise, which is a good thing. Physicians collaborating closely with APPs leads to a higher quality of care and service for our patients."

Heart-healthy Diet Can Change Your Life

Registered Dietitians Show You How!

Learn heart-healthy cooking with online seminar, Aug. 16.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in the United States for both men and women, so we should remind ourselves there is a clear path forward to a healthy life. Paying special attention to our heart health is one of the best ways to achieve the goal of overall good health, which is why eating smart has become an increasingly vital part of daily living.

Watch what you eat. That’s been a mantra probably for as long as you can remember. But it’s more than just an expression, it is also a movement. Heart-healthy cooking can combat heart disease and we are finding out that doing so is much simpler than you may think.

“Once people get into the routine of eating the right foods, momentum builds and soon they find the changes made are easier to continue,” said Anna Corona, a clinical registered dietitian with Washington Hospital Healthcare System. “Then, as they begin to feel better and become more active, they are on their way to better health.”

Corona and Hospital colleague Grace Ching, also a clinical registered dietitian, will present “Heart-healthy Cooking Made Easy,” a Health & Wellness seminar on Wednesday, Aug. 16, at 2 p.m. During a cooking demonstration, Ching and Corona will talk about recipes and how they apply to heart health. The free online seminar will take place on Facebook and YouTube. For information or to register, visit www.whhs.com/events or call 800.963.7070.

Knowing the basics of cooking for healthy eating is the foundation of the seminar. For instance, lowering the intake of salt is an important consideration and so is being mindful of the kind of fats that are incorporated into a diet. “Moderation is also an important factor,” notes Ching. “For example, try a good salt substitute. You need to find what works for you.”

Years of unhealthy eating habits may be a difficult cycle to break, but Ching and Corona believe it is attainable with a little practice. What foods to eat and which ones to avoid is basic knowledge and a practical place to begin. The keys are more fruits and vegetables, more whole grains, less salt, healthy fats, zero trans fats, using smaller plates and once again, everything in moderation.

Heart-healthy dieters will also discover that theirs is not a costly pursuit. “It certainly doesn’t have to be too expensive,” Corona said. “Look to see what foods are available in your area. Read the food labels very closely. Do your investigative work.” Ching encourages clients to shop around and to pursue bargain prices for better deals.

Dieting and lifestyle work together, but the experts say they are still different. Diets tend to be more short-term, but a lifestyle change is something you continue to do the rest of your life. Ching explained that if you turn heart-healthy cooking and diet into a lifestyle change, you will see the food you eat becomes a habit that is here to stay. “In other words, you get used to eating healthy,” she said.

How soon heart-healthy dieters begin to see the benefits from what they are preparing and eating could take time. It is important to remember that heart-healthy cooking is a trend and not a fad. Both Ching and Corona recommend being realistic. Exercise a degree of patience and follow the plan, realize it’s easy to backslide so don’t be too hard on yourself. For instance, if you find it difficult to stop using salt altogether in preparing meals, then cut back incrementally.

The seminar will explain that following a diet of heart-healthy cooking is a journey, but that the benefits are certainly worth going the distance no matter how long.

“It varies from person to person on how long it takes to get into a routine,” Ching said. “It may be a couple of weeks or a couple of months, but not overnight. I always encourage people to be patient with it.”

Corona mentioned one final piece to add to the heart-healthy puzzle. “Get in some exercise. Walking is great.”

San Leandro High School introduces Girl's Flag Football

BY APRIL RAMOS
SANDRA HERNANDEZ

On May 2, San Leandro High School Athletics announced it would be offering girl's flag football as an official sport for the 2023-2024 season. Along with that, San Leandro High School (SLHS) announced that they already had a coach for the team.

This announcement was big news since no high school in the West Alameda County Conference (WACC) has ever had an official girl's flag football team. Although this seems like a sudden addition to the high school's sports line up, SLHS Athletic Director Nick Thomas, explains it was actually very much anticipated. "All the Athletic Directors of the WACC league meet up once a month. When we found out in October that the CIF [California Interscholastic Federation] was getting close to approving girl's flag football in Sothern California, we knew it was only a matter of time before they approved it for Northern California."

Sandra Hernandez on the Bay Area Bandits

Thomas was right. In early February, CIF – the governing body for all high school sports in the state – approved girl's flag football as an official sport for high schools all over Northern California. "When it became officially approved in February, I knew I was going to do whatever I had to do to have a team next year," shared Thomas.

San Leandro Unified School board had to approve the salary of the future coach, which was a simple process recalls Thomas, "The school board was supportive and excited to see this team as well." After the approval, the next step was to find the right person to fill the role. There was no need to look far to find the perfect candidate.

Sandra Hernandez answered the call. Originally from Sonoma County, Hernandez has been a Physical Education teacher for 12 years, 11 of those years with San Leandro Unified School District, and has 20 years of experience coaching basketball. She also has an impressive resume with a combined 10 years of experience playing flag and tackle football.

Girls Flag Football at their first summer workout

"I've played for the Santa Rosa Scorchers, Bay Area Bandits and other teams all over the Bay Area," says Hernandez.

Although this is the first time Hernandez will be coaching flag football, with her years of experience as a basketball coach and a flag football player herself, she understands the task at hand. "I'm preparing by building a program for the team, and preparing for a lot of teaching because most of the girls will have little to no experience with flag football."

In May, SLHS organized an informational meeting for those who had an interest in the sport. An impressive 40 girls were in attendance. At the meeting the students were introduced to Coach Hernandez and discussed the future of the team including summer conditioning and tryouts planned for August.

Thomas explained that at the moment there is only a rough outline of the team's schedule with games taking place on Thursdays and larger events, such as Jamborees and League Championships, held on Saturdays. But the team will have to hold off on regional tournaments for now. "It's a rule set by CIF; teams must have played two to three seasons as an established team. Mostly to make sure that they get any kinks out and have a hold on how to run the team smoothly before moving on to larger tournaments," explains Thomas.

Thomas shares his excitement for the future of the sport, "I'm really looking forward to this and how it will impact the community and bring us together." Even before the season has begun Thomas' words ring true. When asked if he had anything to add about the team his immediate thought went to the help they received from a local organization. "San Leandro Athletics would like to give a huge thank you to Lou's Dugout for their continued support. They purchased uniforms for our flag football team to help us get started and have our girls looking great!"

As for Hernandez's thoughts on the future of the team, she shares, "I'm looking forward to building not only the name for the high school, but the sport overall. I'm also excited for the girls to have the opportunity to play a new sport and hopefully for them to feel empowered and proud of themselves for playing flag football."

A Summer Fest at Shinn

SUBMITTED BY JANET BARTON

On July 16, bring your picnic and blanket to lunch under the shade of the historic trees at Shinn Historical Park & Arboretum. We are celebrating two park anniversaries. Forty years ago, the Japanese garden was planted and dedicated. Twenty years ago, the Shinn House Museum opened with displays about the history of the Shinn family.

The day starts off at 10 a.m. with a plant fundraiser by Friends of Heirloom Flowers. The garden club has taken care of the gardens around the historic 1876 Shinn house for 29 years. At 11:30 a.m., a greeting and the Wadaiko Newark Taiko will open the afternoon activities. Celebratory cake will follow. At 1 p.m. Shinn House will open for tours (continuing until the event ends at 4 p.m.).

A little on the Kato Japanese Garden:

Many visitors simply enjoy the serene beauty of the garden. However, they may not know that the garden was built to honor the Japanese who have lived in Southern Alameda County and who helped build the community. A memorial plaque to Koomei George Kato, is adorned with a strawberry and an inscription that says, "A kind, gentle man...a special friend. He believed in making the world a little better." Mr. Kato grew and sold the sweetest strawberries at the produce stand at Mission and Stevenson.

The garden was designed by well-known landscape architect Mai Kitazawa Arbegast. It was dedicated 40 years ago in 1983. It was a community effort by the friends and family of George Kato with help from the City of Fremont. Friends and family took care of the garden for many years. Seventeen years ago, the Merritt College Aesthetic Pruning students took over the specialized care of the pines, maples, and cherry trees. The Friends of Heirloom Flowers take care of the smaller plants and the weeds.

On the Shinn House Museum and Archives:

James and Lucy Shinn arrived in 1856 from Texas with two young children. They had a plant nursery in the 1870s - 1880s, which is why there are so many old and interesting trees planted in the park. After that the family focused on fruit ranching until the 1950s. Visit the house and museum to find out more about the children who grew up there.

Twenty years ago, the Shinn family built the museum and archives behind the house. This is the gathering place for the volunteers of the Mission Peak Heritage Foundation who manage the house activities—tours, events, meetings, wreath making, teas, research, clothing conservation, and archives.

Enjoy the house and gardens, plant sale, as well as refreshments and Taiko performance at this special summer event at Shinn House.

TCNPC Celebrated July 4th and Local Nonprofits!

SUBMITTED BY TINA FERNANDEZ STECKLER

Tri-City Nonprofit Coalition (TCNPC) hosted its 2nd Annual July 4th Parade After-Party at Fremont's Downtown Event Center on Tuesday, July 4, 2023. Thanks to a small army of volunteers; event sponsors Alameda County Supervisor David Haubert (District 1), Fremont Chamber of Commerce, Collective Discovery, Alameda County Supervisor Elisa Marquest (District 2), Bay Philharmonic, Citizens for a Better Community; and media sponsor Tri-City Voice, the after-party was a resounding success!

Scores of community members attended, many of whom had walked a few blocks from the parade route on Paseo Padre Parkway to Fremont's beautiful Downtown Event Center and Plaza. Once on site they enjoyed nonprofit exhibits and live entertainment from groups including Dream Achievers, Bay Philharmonic, and Ohlone College Summerfest. Food Mafia food trucks provided delicious food and beverages, TCNPC distributed free water, and attendees line danced thanks to DJ Mike of Fremont's Music Plus Events.

Twenty-seven nonprofits representing a wide range of causes participated, including The Candle Lighters, SAVE, League of Women Voters, HERS Breast Cancer Foundation, Fremont Education Foundation, Mission Peak Conservancy, Citizens for a Better Community, Fremont for Everyone, Room Redux, Ohlone Humane Society, Olive Hyde Art Guild, and Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum. For a complete list of participating nonprofits, visit <https://tcnpc.org/4th-of-july-parade-after-party/>.

The nonprofits provided free giveaways and hands-on activities such as cornhusk dollmaking at the Washington Township Museum of Local History booth and creating simple musical instruments made from everyday household items at the Music for Minors II booth.

The parade after party is TCNPC's signature event and is designed to highlight the missions, programs, events, and support needs of Fremont, Union City, and Newark nonprofit organizations. Organizers Kathy Kimberlin, Lisa Stambaugh, and Tina Fernandez Steckler are determined to make this lively and impactful gathering an annual event, so be sure to save the date for next year! If you would like to find out more, including ways you can support this event in 2024, contact TCNPC at <https://tcnpc.org/contact/> and be sure to check out TCNPC's event photo gallery while you're there, courtesy of local photographer Scott Capen.

39 Strong: Little League winning inspiration

The start of the winning season was driven by the players wanting to break their successive second-place positions in the last two years. Coach Armando said it was heartbreaking for the players who had another perfect season last year, but lost the championship game. Their motivation paid off with a winning streak. However, unexpected sad news dampened the joy of a winning season: Teammate Leland Waterhouse was diagnosed with Hodgkins Lymphoma and could not play the games leading to the championship.

Coach Armando described Leland: “I met him about two years ago. He was a kid I took a tremendous liking to. He was very positive, very happy. He had a general love for the game, but you can tell that he was a natural. He had an intelligence of it where you can tell he watches it, he plays it, he understands it.” Coach Armando added, “Leland was always smiling, always happy, always upbeat. He was tremendously supportive of his teammates, so I think it’s amazing that his teammates support him the same way.”

Padre teammate Caleb Degala-Burnett’s dad Michael Degala said of Leland, “He’s a totally outgoing kid. He’s kind of the cheerleader as well for the team. He gets things going and is a teammate that you can count on.” Leland’s teammate and Coach Armando’s son, Fro Hurtado, said, “[I’m] kind of sad. Like, I want him to be there to enjoy the moment.” Teammate and fellow Itliong-Vera Cruz Middle School (Union City) student Caleb said, “It kind of hurt because he’s the main person on our team. We need him in the infield. We need [him] as the first baseman, so that really hurt us.” He added, “During breaks, we said his name, and we put his number on the mound.”

Despite Leland’s inability to play for health reasons, he continued to join the practice and games. Coach Armando said, “We need him to compete.” Coach Armando and parent Michael Degala described the collective team, parents, and supporters as a tight extended family. As with any close family, when problems arise, the entire family rallies around. The team was extra motivated with every game since Leland had to take a break from active playing. Coach Armando said, “We had a very tough bracket with not a lot of rest days, and it was going to take all of us to win it, including Leland.”

39 is Leland’s jersey number, and “39 Strong” had been the rallying cry, with each remaining game leading to the championship. “39 Strong” badges were made by parents and were sewn on uniforms; similar wristbands, bracelets, and stickers were made. Players wrote the words on the pitching mound at every game. Parent Michael Degala said, “We knew the fight he had coming up.”

Degala added, “On the day of the championship game, we made our banners. [Leland] couldn’t make it, but his grandparents came out. When they called his name, they walked out for the ceremonial; when the entire roster [was presented], we had his parents walk out, and his grandparents came out and took pictures with the flags... so that he had a representative in there and we had them in the team picture with us.”

Coach Armando said, “He really inspired the boys. There were a couple of innings when these boys had tough moments. They would lead on three, and we expect him to fight and give us full effort. So I told the boys, I expect you guys to do the same for him on the field. He’s part of this team, whether he’s on the field or he is not on there. It always takes all of us.” The announcers at the pregame ceremony would announce his name before the games, and the audience would cheer loudly with a standing ovation. Other little leagues heard of Leland Waterhouse and were reaching out about how they could help. Coach Armando said, “He not only motivated our kids on our team, but it’s motivated other little leagues to help contribute. It’s pulled our parents a lot closer together.”

Learn how to recycle right

SUBMITTED BY REPUBLIC SERVICES

Recycling properly keeps our environment clean, cuts down on pollution, conserves natural resources and benefits our economy. It is important we all do our part and become better recyclers by following these simple guidelines:

Know what is accepted in the curbside recycling and compost program. Only place acceptable items in the recycling and compost cart.

Paper and Cardboard - Recycle clean and dry cardboard, newspaper, magazines, office paper and junk mail. Flatten cardboard boxes to make room for other materials in the cart. Multi-layered paper materials that are lined with plastic and/or aluminum foil such as soup, juice and dairy cartons should be placed in the landfill cart. Grease- and food-soiled paper towels and pizza boxes should be placed in the compost cart.

Metal Cans and Aluminum Trays - Before you recycle metal beverage/food cans and aluminum foil/trays, be sure these are empty and free of food and grease/oil. Wipe these clean and remove labels.

Plastic Containers – Recycle all rigid plastic containers labeled with numbers 1 and 2 (look for this at the bottom of the container). These include water and condiment bottles, milk jugs, shampoo bottles, and detergent containers. Keep lids on the plastic containers and be sure the containers are clean, empty, and dry. Flimsy plastics such as plastic wrappers and bags should be reused if possible or placed in the landfill cart. Single-use plastic utensils and plastic containers labeled #3-7 should be reused if possible or placed in the landfill cart.

Keep recyclables empty, clean, and dry. Empty and rinse/wipe food residue and liquids from recyclable containers so everything in the recycle cart can be recycled into its highest and best use.

Keep recyclables loose and do not place items in a bag prior to placing them in the recycle cart as these bags can clog up sorting equipment.

It is illegal to place household hazardous waste (HHW) in any recycle, compost, or landfill bin/cart. HHW materials such as pesticides, fluorescent lamps, medications, paints, and treated wood require careful disposal by a certified facility. Safely and conveniently dispose of HHW for free at an Alameda County HHW Drop-off Facility or County-sponsored events throughout the year. To find drop-off facility locations and for more information, call (800) 606-6606 or visit www.StopWaste.org/HHW.

Learn more about what is accepted in the curbside collection program and find education resources and publications by visiting UnionCityRecycles.org.

Hydrangea help

By PAT KITE

One of my readers wants a drought tolerant garden. She is also insistent on having hydrangeas. Hydrangeas are water hogs, or so I have always heard. Over the years, I have successfully massacred several expensive hydrangeas, as I forgot to water for a few days. (Well, maybe it was a week.)

I have been researching, and it seems not all of the 75 possible hydrangea species are water fiends. But they all require moisture. A large hydrangea can require 12 gallons per day. While some species tolerate sun, it’s best to place plants in mostly shade. (Mostly shade does not mean under oak trees.)

Before purchasing, learn to look at labels. Hydrangeas can grow very big. Climbing versions can take over your house, even a two-story. Big-Leaf will get eight feet tall and eight feet wide. Hydrangeas seemannii is an evergreen vine which will cling to almost anything, including your house and maybe the adjacent condominium.

So, let’s look at the smaller varieties. For “dwarf” versions, the term is flexible. It can mean up to five feet high. Let’s go smaller, to pot size. Fire Light Tidbit grows up to three feet high and wide, as does Invoicebelle minimauvette. Invoicebelle wee white ranges from one to three feet high/wide.

Of course, use a large pot. I have seldom seen a growing plant that enjoyed repotting. The pot must have drainage holes. Without them, plants drown. Use a bagged potting mix with a small dose of slow-release fertilizer. Loosen plant roots, add plant, then add soil. Water. Soil should be damp, not soggy. Never let a hydrangea dry out.

Fables are few for hydrangeas, but one long-ago story comes from Japan. An Emperor was so busy being Emperor that he neglected his most beloved girlfriend. Wishing to apologize, he gave her a gift of blue hydrangeas to show his affection and gratitude.

Demonstrating how tales travel, back in 1736 a colonist brought a gift of hydrangeas to England. By 1800, gentlemen who were unhappy about being rejected for whatever reason sent hydrangea flowers to the rejecting ladies. This was to mock them for being frigid. Thus came the tall tale that women who grew hydrangeas in their front yard will never marry.

In flower symbolism, hydrangeas demonstrate beauty, grace and gratitude. The varying colors manifest love, peace and harmony. There is a lot of internet material on how to change Hydrangea colors by adding this or that to the soil. My life is already complex, but you can research.

Hydrangeas have value beyond the ornamental. According to one ancient legend, on the day the Buddha was born, the sky rained beautiful flowers and poured out the sweet nectar called “amaca.” From this blessed liquid came the Earth flower “audisi” (Ajisai), as the hydrangea in called in Japanese.

Rita Rebus and the Case of the Mysterious Night Lights

Mystery fan Rita Rebus and her best friend, Misty Phy, were about to head out for a night of backyard camping.

They asked Rita's little sister, Lula, to come along, too. But ...

At night, I see these little lights blinking near the bushes. I think there must be MONSTERS out there!

Oh, I think I know what those lights are. They won't hurt you. How about if we investigate tonight?

See Lula? Those little lights are FIREFLIES!

What is a firefly?

A firefly is an insect, but it is not a fly. It is a beetle.

Beetles have two pairs of wings. The front pair is stiff and protects the soft back wings, which are used for flying.

Standards Link: Life Science: Students know animals have structures that serve different functions in survival.

How does a firefly glow?

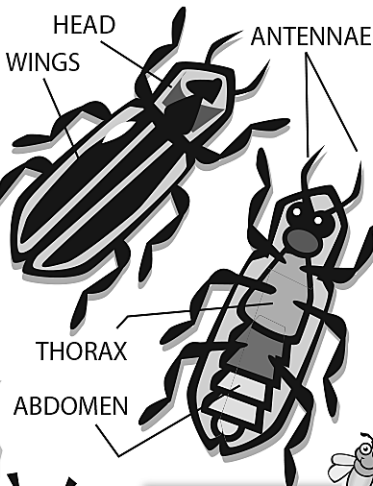

Fireflies need four things to glow. Three of those are chemicals it has in its body. Circle every third letter to discover the fourth thing it needs to glow.

PY O J E X T R Y S A G F W E Y B N

How do fireflies breathe?

People use their lungs to get oxygen from the air. A firefly has small holes on its abdomen that let in oxygen.

QUICK INVESTIGATION:

Use a light stick, often found with sporting goods, to demonstrate how chemicals can mix together to create light without giving off any heat.

Firefly Life Cycle

A firefly lights up the world in two of its four parts or stages of its life cycle.

Like all beetles, fireflies have four stages or parts to their lives. These are egg, larvae, pupa, and adult.

Do the math to label this diagram.

6 + 2 = LARVAE
9 + 2 = PUPA
8 + 4 = ADULT
7 + 3 = EGG

Extra! Extra! More Than One Spells Confusion

One firefly is spelled f-i-r-e-f-l-y. More than one is spelled f-i-r-e-f-l-i-e-s. To make firefly plural you change the y to i and add es.

Look through the newspaper for five nouns that end in y. Change each from singular to plural. Then, look for five plural nouns, and change them to singular nouns.

Standards Link: Language Arts/Grammar: Use conventions of spelling, identify plural and singular nouns.

Kid Scoop Together:

Proof It!

Are you an eagle-eyed reader? Read the article below and circle the seven errors you find. Then rewrite it correctly on the lines below the article.

Fireflies Around the World

Fireflies can be found on every continent except Antarctica. About 2,000 species are known to scientists, and probably many more await discovery.

In Japan, there is a myth that says fireflies are the tears of the Moon Princess. One Native American legend says fireflies created fire. In ancient times in Mexico, a firefly was considered the Queen of the Stars.

In Malaysia there is a nature reserve for fireflies. Many villages in Japan hold firefly festivals.

In Asia, one kind of firefly gathers with others of its species in a tree. They start to blink together until the entire tree is blinking on and off at the same time.

Standards Link: Life Science: Know that differences exist among individuals of the same kind of animal.

Tri-City Agencies Working Together on New Local Hazard Mitigation Plan

Get Involved and Help Your Community be Hazard-Ready!

The City of Fremont is partnering with the Cities of Newark and Union City, the Alameda County Water District, and the Union Sanitary District to develop a new Tri-City Multi-jurisdictional Local Hazard Mitigation Plan (LHMP). The scope of the plan will address various natural hazards including earthquake, wildfire, severe weather, flood, tsunami, landslides, and more. The plan will assess local risks and identify and prioritize strategies to reduce them.

Communities with a FEMA-approved Local Hazard Mitigation Plan are eligible to apply for pre- and post-disaster mitigation grant funding. The project will also develop a framework to reduce flood risk and potentially lower the cost of flood insurance premiums and businesses under the National Flood Insurance Program's (NFIP) Community Rating System (CRS). We encourage the public to attend and participate in our upcoming meetings. Informational Public Meetings will explain the LHMP development process, the benefits of cities' participation in the CRS program, and how you can become involved. The next Informational Public Meeting is Thursday, July 13, 2023, from 6:00 – 7:30 p.m. at the Age Well Center at Lake Elizabeth, 40086 Paseo Padre Pkwy. in Fremont.

The Cities of Fremont, Newark, and Union City are seeking interested community representatives to participate on a special floodplain management Steering Committee—and to regularly attend Planning Committee Meetings—over the course of the project, through early 2024. If you are a Fremont, Newark, or Union City resident and interested in being appointed to the Steering Committee, please contact the following:

Fremont Minimum Wage Increased on July 1

In February 2019, the City Council approved a minimum wage ordinance that increased the local minimum wage to $15 per hour—two years earlier than mandated under State law—and required annual adjustment of the minimum wage after that based on inflation, which incorporated feedback received from residents, businesses, non-profit organizations, and low-wage workers.

On July 1, Fremont's minimum wage increased to $16.80 per hour. Employers must pay hourly employees who perform work within the geographic boundaries of the City of Fremont the minimum wage for all hours worked as well as visibly post the official City of Fremont Wage Bulletin in Fremont's top five languages spoken at each work site. The Official Bulletins, including translated versions, are available for download on the City's Minimum Wage webpage at <https://city.fremont.gov/minimumwage>.

To avoid a reduction in the valuable services they provide to the community, the minimum wage ordinance exempts employees of non-profit corporations. Questions can be directed to minwage@fremont.gov.

City Now Accepting Public Comments on Draft Climate Action Plan

Fremont's updated draft Climate Action Plan is now available on MyFremont for the community to review and provide feedback! On June 20, the Fremont City Council unanimously approved to release the draft for a period of public review and comment.

The plan, titled Climate Ready Fremont, provides a series of local greenhouse gas (GHG) emission reduction and climate adaptation measures to be undertaken through the year 2030. To learn more about the plan and the update process, please visit the City's Climate Action Plan webpage at www.fremont.gov/climateactionplan.

To provide feedback on the draft, community members can take the following actions on MyFremont (www.my.fremont.gov/draftcap), the City's community engagement platform:

- Review the draft.
- Take a quick poll with only three questions.
- View and participate in a discussion forum.
- Ask a question.

Feedback will be accepted on MyFremont for approximately one month. The feedback received will be reviewed and considered as staff prepares the final Climate Action Plan to bring to the City Council for adoption later this year.

The City welcomes all feedback, and thanks everyone for participating and helping to create a climate ready Fremont!

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends David McCullough’s 1776

July 1 through July 15

The Declaration of Independence

On April 19, 1775, shots were heard from Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts; the Revolutionary War had begun, but The Continental Congress did not deliver a Declaration of Independence until July 4th of the following year.

It proclaimed—in part: “We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.”

The Liberty Bell

Four days after its ratification, the first public reading of the Declaration took place at the Pennsylvania State House. Citizens were summoned by the sound of “the 2,000-pound copper-and-tin... ‘Liberty Bell’,” according to History.com.

Cast in 1752 England, the bell—stenciled with a message of, “Proclaim Liberty Throughout All the Land unto All the inhabitants thereof”—was shipped to Pennsylvania—and garnered incremental iconic status—because of its crack; a herald of liberty, according to the National Park Service.

The Grateful American Book Prize suggests The Medal of Honor: The Evolution of America’s Highest Military Decoration by Dwight S. Mears

The bell has “served to remind Americans of a time when they fought together for independence. Abolitionists, women’s suffrage advocates and civil rights leaders took inspiration from [its] inscription. Now a worldwide symbol, the...message of freedom remains reverberating and relevant.

The Medal of Honor

On July 12, 1862 Abraham Lincoln formulated the Medal of Honor during the Civil War to honor “noncommissioned officers and privates who most distinguish themselves by their gallantry in action, and other soldier-like qualities during the present insurrection.”

Eight months later Congress converted it into a permanent decoration and authorized it for all members of the armed forces, including commissioned officers.

Fire it up: Grilling weather is here!

Pasko Maksim, via Shutterstock

BY JOHN SCHINKEL

While weather around here seems to change at the drop of a hat, the past few weeks have been perfect weather to be outside spending time by the grill, with a beverage of choice in hand, surrounded by friends and family. In addition to being an excellent, though sometimes weather-prohibitive method of cooking, grilling has become an American pastime for socializing, as well as showing off one's skills.

It's safe to say that most people can be pleased with something off the summer grill, including our vegetarian and vegan friends. Vegetables, meats, and even certain non-melty cheeses such as Halloumi (which should really be more popular) take on incredible flavors when cooked over an open heat source.

The most common mistake I see at summer barbecues is when it comes to adding sauce, specifically barbecue sauce. BBQ chicken drenched in sauce is one of my very favorite things, but it is important to note that most sauces that we grill with are loaded with sugar. When introduced to too much heat, sugar burns. Add sauce to your meats just before removing them from the heat; otherwise, you risk unpleasant-tasting burnt bits that are often mistaken for grill marks.

Another common mistake is not cleaning the grill grates properly. Now, some believe that bits left behind on a grate equate to more flavor, but I have to disagree. Whether you are using a gas, electric, or charcoal grill, you need to allow time for the grill to thoroughly heat up. During this process, whatever is on the grates will burn. Instead, once the grill is hot, scrub the grates with a grill brush. Then, using a paper towel on the tip of a pair of tongs with a small amount of canola or vegetable oil, gently brush the grates. This provides a little bit of flavor and natural non-stick to the surface.

Vegetables, specifically Mexican Gray Squash and Broccolini, make for amazing grilling. It's almost as if they want to be grilled, as each takes on incredible new flavors. For squash, I cut them lengthwise and rub a very small amount of olive oil on each side, plus a little salt and pepper. For broccolini, I do the same without cutting. Place them directly on the grill, or on the upper rack if you have one, and cook until tender. The squash will take on beautiful grill marks, and the broccolini will have depth to its color, with the stocks taking on char marks and the outermost fronds gaining a bit of brown. Healthy, delicious, simple... does it get any better?

In this country, we love our burgers, which are a classic summer barbecue offering. I came up with a burger patty recipe derived from something I found online some time back. It's a little unique in flavor, but still focuses on the flavors provided by the beef itself. This recipe certainly does not have to be made using beef: Ground turkey or even Beyond Meat would work just fine. Be sure, however, to adjust cooking time/temperature as recommended by the packaging. Enjoy!

All-American Burger Patties

Yield: 6 patties

Level: easy

2 lbs ground beef, 80/20 (can substitute ground turkey/ground beef alternative, follow cooking instructions on package)

- 1/2 cup plain breadcrumbs
- 1 large egg
- 2 tbsp worcestershire sauce
- Splash of milk (about 2 tbsp)
- 1 tsp kosher salt
- 2/3 cup onion, diced fine
- 1 tsp garlic powder
- 1 tsp black pepper (coarse)
- Thick-sliced pepper jack cheese (optional)

1. Mix all ingredients except the beef and cheese in a large bowl.
2. Once thoroughly mixed, add beef and work mixture in. Stop once evenly combined. Overmixing will create too dense of a texture. Leave the mixture in the refrigerator for about 30 minutes to an hour, then form patties, about 1/3 lb each.
3. Grill the patties over medium-high heat, only flipping once. This will ensure beautiful grill marks and a juicy, tender patty. This should take about 4-5 minutes on each side, but check for doneness using a thermometer (or, if you are experienced, the "poke" method).
4. Add cheese about a minute before removing from the heat. Patties should be cooked to medium, or about 145 degrees.
5. Serve on a sturdy bun, and top with fixings of your choice!

Tri-City Stargazer

FOR WEEK: JULY 4 2023

All Signs: Some weeks are excellent times for productivity. Other weeks are mushy and full of distractions. Accept the fact that this week is about enjoying yourself. Now is the time to give work a back seat. Have fun! Especially evenings and weekends. A lunar T-square on Thursday will create a bit of angst. Otherwise, do yourself a favor and make time to enjoy the good life!

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

This is a lovely week for you, especially if you are spending more time at home with family. You will enjoy a chance to relax in familiar surroundings. A few surprises might occur this week. You might buy something unusual or high tech for your home. At the beginning of the week, be patient with your kids. On Thursday, let sleeping dogs lie. Meanwhile, both Mercury and Venus are in a part of your chart that boosts social outings, fun with sports events, romantic tête-à-têtes and exciting times and vacations! (Fear not. Finances still look extremely good.)

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

Even though this week is more laid-back, it is fast-paced and busy with errands, short trips and conversations with relatives and siblings. Be patient with family members on Monday. Enjoy opportunities to redecorate where you live. Social outings will appeal, especially physical activities and competitive sports. Take things easy on Thursday because financial matters might create angst. Nevertheless, lucky Jupiter is in your sign and you have divine protection. Explore romantic possibilities and creative opportunities. Get in touch with your muse: This is a strong week for writers and artists.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

Cash flow, earnings, and your assets in general are still on your mind. In fact, something unexpected might occur towards the end of the week that impacts your wealth. Avoid power struggles on Monday because the rest of the week is laid-back. Nevertheless, increased chaos, work and activity on the home front might push your buttons, especially on Thursday. But overall, this is a fun filled, fast-paced week for you! Make sure you can appreciate this. So many of our experiences are colored by our expectations. Keep an open mind!

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

With the Sun in your sign for a few more weeks, you're blessed. You feel energized, confident, and strong! Important people and favorable situations will be attracted to you. Note: On Friday, you might feel rebellious. Meanwhile, despite the fact that this is more of a laid-back, fun-filled week, you have moneymaking ideas. Possibly on Monday, someone will disagree with you about these ideas. (This is short-lived.) You might also attract money to you this week. You will certainly enjoy spending it on beautiful things. This week, you're very convincing when talking to others.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

Mercury is moving into your sign, which means the next few weeks are perfect for expressing your views. You will put a great deal of yourself into whatever you say. Plus, Mercury will give you the urge to travel. If you can, get out of town. Meanwhile, avoid power struggles with partners and close friends on Monday. On Thursday, everyone feels a glitch somewhere; you might have a financial disagreement. It's not big – but it's there. Meanwhile, enjoy your good press because right now, you look great to everyone!

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

You're energetic now because fiery Mars is in your sign (which is something that happens only once every two years, for seven weeks). Because Mars symbolizes energy, when this planet is in your sign, you are driven to work hard to further your interests. It also indicates a time of great activity in your life because your physical energy is so high. You will be more of a fighter for your own rights than usual. Meanwhile, this continues to be a popular time for you. Expect to meet someone unusual by the end of the week.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

The Sun is still at the top of your chart, casting you in a flattering spotlight, which happens only once a year for four weeks. Make the most of this! (You have two more weeks.) You might have power struggles with a friend on Monday, and Thursday threatens travel glitches or problems with politics or religion. Aside from that, this is a great week to enjoy the company of others, especially younger, creative people. (Not surprising because you are a lover of the arts). New romance might begin. Perhaps a friend will become a lover?

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

Avoid power struggles with authority figures at the beginning of this week. Likewise, on Thursday, you might have an entanglement with a friend or one of your kids. Practice patience because both these hiccups are temporary. This is a great week to meet new faces. An unexpected travel opportunity might come your way at the end of the week. Remember that this is a wonderful year to improve your existing relationships—or to meet someone new. This is a blessing that comes only once every 12 years! It's also a great year to get married.

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

Steer clear of controversial subjects on Monday. Likewise, avoid power struggles with bosses and parents on Thursday. Keep on top of banking and financial situations on Friday to avoid a surprise. Aside from these minor warnings, this is a great week for you. You might travel or meet people from other countries or different cultures. Opportunities in publishing, medicine and law are possible. Continue to look for ways to improve your health and your job.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

Here are the key points to watch out for this week: Avoid financial arguments or disagreements about shared property on Monday. On Thursday, there might be disagreements about work, a pet, or your health. On Friday, a close friend or partner might throw you a curveball. The rest of the week is a wonderful time to enjoy yourself! Accept invitations to socialize and party. Meanwhile, romance will be hot and sexy. It's also likely that money and favors will come to you. This is an excellent week to ask for a loan or mortgage.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

Even though you're in work mode now, you will find ways to relax and enjoy yourself this week. You might entertain at home. You will definitely have lively discussions with partners and close friends because Mercury has just moved opposite your sign. Admittedly, on Monday, you must avoid disputes with someone close to you. And on Thursday, glitches with your kids or about finances might be annoying. On Friday, a work-related surprise or something to do with a pet or your health might take place. But these are minor details.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

This week you will have lovely opportunities to enjoy playful times with kids, sports events, social outings and romantic connections. It's a wonderful week to socialize and enjoy yourself! Work-related arguments might take place on Monday. Domestic upsets might occur on Thursday; on Friday, social plans might suddenly change. Be extra vigilant with your kids on Friday. But aside from these highlighted glitches, the entire week offers social opportunities and chances for you to have a good time.

Children get Independence Day lesson in voting

SUBMITTED BY
LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The League of Women Voters of Fremont, Newark & Union City (LWVFNUC) provided youngsters with a lesson in voting at the Tri-City Nonprofit Coalition's 4th of July After-Party, held at Downtown Fremont Plaza. Children eagerly queued up to receive a ballot and enter a mock voting booth to cast their votes. Afterward, they turned in their ballots for tallying and received a sticker indicating that they had voted.

"We liked it. Thumbs up," declared sisters Serena and Camellia Wagenet. Parents Veronica and Sean agreed. Veronica mentioned that her great grandmother had been part of the women's suffragist movement that led to passage of the 19th Amendment in 1920. It was out of that movement that the League of Women Voters was born.

Charles and Xenia Swan, parents of four-year-old Zurielle, also liked the idea. Charles has lived in Fremont off-and-on since he was not much older than his daughter is now. He got a kick out of celebrating the Fremont's Fourth with his family at the parade and after-party. With surprisingly little help from her parents, Zurielle made her choices, cast her ballot, and proudly wore her "I Voted Today" sticker.

The concept was the brainchild of League member Julie Dunkle, who is also the motivating force behind the LWVFNUC's Youth Voter Movement. League co-president Dennis Godden designed and built the kid-sized polling place. "When we talked about kids voting, it got me thinking why not go all out with a voting booth? I looked at a few online for inspiration. It figures that the kids would see the booth and want to vote."

And that's just what happened. Throughout the event, kids pointed to the booth, pulled their parents over, and lined up for the opportunity to make their opinion heard. When the votes were tallied, 149 kids had voted on six different issues. The outcome of the election indicated that the young voters favored:

1. Swim parties offered as a fun summer activity by Fremont.
2. Naan offered as a lunch food at school.
3. Blue as the paint color if Fremont painted the library.
4. Making school safer as a way the principal could make their school better.
5. Homelessness as the issue the City of Fremont should spend more money on.
6. Ariel as the person who should be an honorary school board member.

Also part of the League's exhibit were voter registration forms for parents, as well as information about how to find reliable voter information. Some of the fathers who stopped by with their kids were surprised to learn that membership in the League of Women Voters is open to both men and women. As a nonpartisan political organization, the League encourages informed and active participation in government, works to increase understanding of major public policy issues, and influences public policy through education and advocacy.

2023 BMW 330e xDrive Sedan: Three Things

By MICHAEL COATES

When discussing a BMW, it's never simply about the car. First, you also need to deal with the myth. BMW has created something beyond its car, a perception as the "Ultimate Driving Machine." You can dispute that all you want, but it comes printed on the car's official documentation. In the case of this month's 3-Series, let's just stipulate that the car lives up to the BMW heritage, while offering something a little different from the expected.

This month's car is a BMW 330e xDrive sedan. To decode the BMW nomenclature, that means it's a four-door compact sedan with all-wheel drive. And it's a plug-in hybrid, meaning it carries both a gas engine and an electric motor with a small battery so it can run on electricity for a short stretch—in this 330e's case, 20 miles.

The BMW 3-Series is the core BMW product, the essence of what BMW is all about, sporty sedans. It's one of its best-selling models. Although the X5 midsize SUV leads the sales parade, the 3- and 4-Series compact sedans are right behind.

Choice Is King

Second, choice is one of first things you'll notice with the 3-Series (and many other BMW models). Three district models—a gas-powered one, one that incorporates gas and electric power (our tester), and a performance version with a variety of more power engine versions (a hint of BMW's true focus).

All of these models are available in rear-wheel or all-wheel drive (we drew the latter option). After choosing the basic package, the real choices start. Any paint other than basic black or white will cost extra. Several slick wheel options are available for the 19-inch rims on our model. Inside, you can pick your seating material and trim. Then packages start (some may be triggered by your preferred wheels and interior): Convenience, Premium, Driving Assistance, Parking Assistance, Dynamic Handling and Shadowline. That gives you a good hint of how you start with a car with a $46,900 base price and end up with an out-the-door price of $56,990. It is loaded with goodies, some of which are really beneficial; others might not make your must-have list.

One BMW with a Plug

Finally, this model is a plug-in hybrid. BMW is moving aggressively to electrify its lineup. It has three fully electric models and offers plug-in hybrid versions of several others (including the best-selling X5). The technology is sophisticated, and it works. We were able to drive locally on electric power and charge up overnight, leaving us with an average close to the 68 MPGe that the EPA says the 330e is capable of. If your commute is longer than 20 miles and/or you can't charge at work or home, the savings will be hard to realize, and the non-plug-in version may make more sense—and save you about $3,000. Of course, the full electric i4 is a whole different animal, but a model comparable to our tester starts at about $61,000.

Another comparison might be with its all-electric competitor, the Tesla Model 3 that we reviewed last month (June 11). The BMW 3-Series was the original target—or supposed target for Tesla. Having driven both, there are several distinctions. The BMW is a real luxury performance car, versus Tesla's "new age" version of "luxury" performance. The Model 3 is not a true luxury car, except in price (and right now the Model 3 beats the BMW on price by a good margin), and its performance, while good, is not in the same league as the BMW.

Grammys CEO on new AI guidelines: Music that contains AI-created elements is eligible. 'Period.'

By MARIA SHERMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS MUSIC WRITER

Last month, the Recording Academy announced a series of changes to the Grammy Awards to better reflect an evolving music industry. Of those newly instituted guidelines, protocols involving technological advancements in machine learning sparked headlines: "Only human creators" could win the music industry's highest honor in a decision aimed at the use of artificial intelligence in popular music.

"A work that contains no human authorship is not eligible in any category," the rules read in part. "As the music industry continues to come to terms with this new technology, so too will the Grammys," says Recording Academy CEO and President Harvey Mason jr.

"Here's the super easy, headline statement: AI, or music that contains AI- created elements is absolutely eligible for entry and for consideration for Grammy nomination. Period," Mason told The Associated Press. "What's not going to happen is we are not going to give a Grammy or Grammy nomination to the AI portion."

If an AI or voice modeling program performs the lead vocal on a song, the track would be eligible in a songwriting category, for example, but not a performance category, because "what is performing is not human creation," he explains. "Conversely, if a song was sung by an actual human in the studio, and they did all the performing, but AI wrote the lyric or the track, the song would not be eligible in a composition or a songwriting category."

"As long as the human is contributing in a more than de minimis amount, which to us means a meaningful way, they are and will always be considered for a nomination or a win," he continued. "We don't want to see technology replace human creativity. We want to make sure technology is enhancing, embellishing, or additive to human creativity. So that's why we took this particular stand in this award cycle."

The Recording Academy has long considered setting rules related to AI following the popularity of new songs created alongside AI technology such as David Guetta's "Emin-AI-em"; the AI -compositions of TikTok user @ghostwriter977; and Grimes' voice modeling AI software.

In order to establish their AI guidelines, the Recording Academy engaged in extensive research, including holding tech summits.

"I've met with the copyright office. We've talked about the future and what that looks like on a federal level and the legislative level," Mason said, adding that AI conversations "really came to a head in the last six months."

The new Grammy AI protocols were announced three days after Paul McCartney shared that "the last Beatles record" had been composed using artificial intelligence to extract John Lennon's voice from an old demo. Without knowing the extent of the technology, Mason couldn't confirm or deny whether the song would be eligible for a Grammy nomination.

"We'll see what it turns out to be," he said. "But I would imagine from the early descriptions that I've heard there would be components of the creation that would be absolutely eligible."

So, can Grammy viewers expect to see work at least partially created with AI nominated for an award as early as next year? It's impossible to predict what is submitted. But as Mason affirms, "people are using the technology. I'm imagining it's going to be involved in a lot of records and a lot of songs this year, so we'll see if some of them get nominated or not, but I'm sure there'll be some that will be submitted."

The 2024 Grammy Awards will return to Los Angeles' Crypto.com Arena on Sunday, Feb. 4, 2024, airing live on CBS and livestreamed on Paramount+.

California mushroom farms cited for workplace safety violations after January fatal shootings

BY STEFANIE DAZIO, ASSOCIATED PRESS

California has cited two Northern California mushroom farms for health and safety violations and proposed more than $165,000 in potential fines five months after a farmworker killed seven people in back-to-back shootings on the farms in Half Moon Bay.

Chunli Zhao, who had worked at the farms, is charged with seven counts of murder and one count of attempted murder in the Jan. 23 shootings that stunned the small coastal community about 30 miles (48 kilometers) south of San Francisco. He has pleaded not guilty.

Authorities say Zhao opened fire at California Terra Garden, where he previously worked, killing four co-workers and wounding another one. They said he then drove about 2 miles (3.22 kilometers) to Concord Farms, a mushroom farm he was fired from in 2015, and shot to death three workers.

The state's Division of Occupational Safety and Health, known as CAL/OSHA, filed 22 violations against California Terra Garden, Inc. and proposes $113,800 in fines, according to a Monday news release. Concord Farms faces 19 violations and $51,770 in fines.

California Gov. Gavin Newsom's office previously said some of the farmworkers told him they made $9 an hour and lived in shipping containers. The state minimum wage is $15.50.

"The conditions farmworkers shared with the Governor ... are simply deplorable. Many workers have no choice but to tolerate the conditions provided to them by their employers," Newsom spokesperson Daniel Villasenor said in a statement at the time.

The violations at California Terra Garden include an alleged failure to have a plan in place to notify employees of the Jan. 23 active shooter threat and to tell them to take shelter. The shooting at California Terra Garden was at least the second time an employee tried to kill a coworker on the property, records show.

A manager there was charged with attempted murder after he threatened to kill another manager in July and then fired a shot into the man's trailer. The bullet went through the trailer and into a neighboring one that was home to Yetao Bing, one of the workers killed in the January violence. No one was injured in the July shooting.

California Terra Garden did not provide active shooter training to workers after the July violence, the state agency wrote.

Violations at Concord Farms include a failure to address prior workplace violence — including an incident where an employee assaulted a farm resident, which the employer did not investigate — and to develop a plan to prevent more violence in the future.

CAL/OSHA also said Concord Farms did not provide counseling for workers after the January shooting. Other violations for both farms included a lack of training for Spanish- and Mandarin-speaking workers in a language they can understand and failing to secure labor camp permits for onsite worker housing.

Most of the farmworkers in the area are Latino and the two mushrooms farms are among the few that employ Chinese workers, advocates have said. Efforts to reach the farms by telephone and email for comment were not immediately successful Monday.

The farms can appeal or seek reductions in the proposed penalties if corrective measures are taken.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Drop-in mailbox

The newly-installed mail-drop box at the drive-through is inconvenient

The other day I went to drop the mail at the drive-through of the Irvington post office in Fremont, and its big change surprised me.

I found I can't drop my letters while the car engine is running. I have to put the car into parking mode, get out of the vehicle, and drop the letter on the other side of the blue box. In fact, the old mailbox used to be easy facing towards the driver's side, just pull the arm out of the window drop letters and go. It was simple.

Since the USPS turned the face of the blue box to the other side, and I failed to understand its logic, it is just a waste of time for people on the go.

I hereby request the postmaster and USPS authorities to turn the face of the drop-in mailbox towards the driver's side for our convenience.

Arizona man driving to work finds bobcat under his vehicle’s hood; animal returned to the wild

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jul 09, 2023

Horsepower is one thing, but an Arizona man driving to work wound up with a bobcat underneath his car’s hood.

Arizona Game and Fish Department officials reported Friday that the unidentified driver unknowingly struck a bobcat on the way to work recently in Gila Bend, some 73 miles (117 kilometers) southwest of Phoenix.

“He didn’t know he hit the bobcat until he parked his car and heard some noise under the hood,” Game and Fish officials said. “He looked under the hood and saw two eyeballs looking at him.”

Maricopa County Sheriff’s deputies from District 2 __ which covers Gila Bend, Tonopah, the southwest areas of the Phoenix metropolitan area and other communities __ arrived to help as did Game and Fish workers.

They were able to sedate the bobcat and remove it from the vehicle’s engine compartment behind the grille.

The bobcat wasn’t injured and was released back into the wild, according to wildlife officials.

An online post from the sheriff’s department said “District 2 is still the wild, wild west!”

Life with Barbie

As dismayed as it may be for the “woke” folk among us, the fact is that some 90% of three-to-ten-year-old American girls still own one or more Barbie dolls, according to Mattel, the company that introduced the iconic toys 60 years ago. A soon-to-be-released Barbie movie is a sexagenarian tribute to the plaything as is the real-life Malibu Barbie DreamHouse in California, which, for the occasion, is available for a short term via the Airbnb realtors for two-person, two-day stays.

And they made what they called their “48N48” trip not in 48 hours but in a record breaking 44 hours and seven minutes.

An Irish tribute for Dolly Parton

In an interview during a visit to Ireland some time ago Dolly Parton declared that she has a love for Ireland. In return, an Irish gathering recently in the town of Listowel in County Kerry drew more than 1,100 participants, all of them dressed up and looking like Dolly. They all wore blonde wigs, cowboy boots and rhinestone-covered costumes. Their aim was to show their love for the Queen of Nashville and to raise funds for Kerry Hospice and Comfort for Chemo Kerry.

Wisconsin police officer races into burning barn and rescues cows trapped near flames

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jul 06, 2023

A Wisconsin police officer who ran into a burning barn and found three cows near flames says the bovines “made a beeline” for the safety of a pasture once he opened a gate holding them back.

Sturgeon Bay police officer Andrew Crabb was nearing the end of his overnight shift on the morning of June 25 when he spotted smoke coming from a barn at a farm. He stopped, dashed across a field and entered the barn, finding the cows trapped and mooing in distress.

“Once I realized what was going on inside that barn, I realized the gate didn’t get undone and those cows were not going to make it,” Crabb told Fox News Digital. “So I ran in there and got the gate and then got them out. And I didn’t have to really encourage them too much. They knew exactly what they needed to do once that gate was open.”

Crabb said the cows “made a beeline” out of the barn and joined the rest of the herd in the pasture. He said the three cows had been kept in the barn overnight because they were deemed “prone to escape.”

Police body camera video shows Crabb entering the barn, with flames near the animals. After he removes a chain from the gate, Crabb says “come on guys” and the cows quickly make their way out of the barn.

“Thankfully, everyone was safe!” Sturgeon Bay police said in a post on the department’s Facebook page.

Crabb said an all-volunteer fire brigade was able to “save the majority” of the barn.

clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 916-939-0772, or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-14-650701-RY to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. SOCIAL SECURITY

Ask Rusty – Why can't I collect survivor benefits from my deceased wife?

Dear Rusty: I am a 62-year-old widower that is still working full time. While my late spouse was in hospice, I was able to get her to apply for Social Security disability and she received one payment before she passed away two years ago. I was told that I could collect a survivor benefit, so I called my local Social Security office, but they told me that I could not collect any type of benefits from my wife, and that all the money she paid into SS for all of those years was basically gone for good. Would you please advise if this is true, and what I can do? I was also told that Social Security's agents will do everything they can to avoid paying out benefits. Signed: Frustrated Widower

Dear Frustrated Widower: I suspect that the reason Social Security said you were not eligible for benefits as a widower is because you are working full time. At age 62, you are subject to Social Security's "earnings test" which limits how much you can earn while collecting early Social Security benefits. The 2023 earnings limit is $21,240 and, if that is exceeded, SS will take away $1 in benefits for every $2 you are over the limit. If your earnings are high enough, that could make you temporarily ineligible to collect benefits until 1) your earnings are less, or 2) you reach your full retirement age (FRA) when the earnings test no longer applies.

Assuming you have not yet claimed your personal SS retirement benefit, you are still eligible to collect a survivor benefit from your wife when your earnings are less or after you reach your full retirement age. One strategy you may wish to consider, if you plan to keep working full time, is to wait and claim only your surviving spouse benefit at your FRA (67), thus allowing your personal SS retirement benefit to continue growing until you are 70 when your personal SS retirement benefit will be about 75% more than it would be now. Although your survivor benefit reaches maximum at your FRA, your personal benefit doesn't reach maximum until age 70, so it's possible to collect your smaller survivor benefit from your wife first and claim your higher personal benefit later.

You were apparently given some confusing information when you contacted Social Security. If you haven't already claimed your own SS retirement benefit, you are still eligible for a surviving spouse benefit from your wife but likely cannot collect a widower benefit at this time because you're working full time. However, that doesn't mean you can never collect a survivor benefit; only that you can't collect it at this time because of the "earnings test." The earnings test goes away when you reach age 67, so you can claim only your survivor benefit at that time (or before if you no longer work full time) and allow your personal SS retirement benefit to continue to grow (to age 70 if you like).

From our experience with the Social Security Administration, the skill level of SSA representatives varies, but we have never suspected their goal was trying to avoid paying benefits due. Nevertheless, depending on the agent you spoke with, the information provided may have been less clear about the best claiming strategy for you—which is why the AMAC Foundation's Social Security Advisory Service exists. Our advisors are all highly experienced and strive to provide you with complete and clear information which enables you to make an informed choice about how and when to claim the Social Security benefits you are entitled to. I hope we have succeeded.

BART Board votes to raise bay area bridge tolls

SUBMITTED BY BART COMMUNICATIONS OFFICE

The BART Board of Directors voted Friday, June 30, to support Senate Bill (SB) 532 -- the Safe, Clean, and Reliable Public Transportation Emergency Act.

Authored by Senator Scott Wiener (D-San Francisco), SB 532 would require the Bay Area Toll Authority to raise tolls on the seven state-owned bridges in the Bay Area by $1.50 from January 1, 2024, until December 31, 2028. Revenues from this toll increase would be distributed by the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) to BART and other fixed-route transit operators, including bus, rail or ferry, to address operating shortfalls and help fund initiatives to increase transit ridership.

“In authoring this bill, Senator Wiener continues to show extraordinary leadership in finding creative ways to assist essential public transit through the immense short-term financial difficulties we face in the wake of the pandemic,” said BART Board President Janice Li.

President Li also acknowledged the hard work and assistance of SB 532 co-authors Senators Josh Becker (D-Menlo Park) and Dave Cortese (D-San Jose) and Assemblymembers Mia Bonta (D-Alameda), Matt Haney (D-San Francisco), Alex Lee (D-Milpitas), Phil Ting (D-San Francisco) and Buffy Wicks (D-Oakland).

SB 532 offers Bay Area transit agencies experiencing the worst shortfalls a lifeline until a Bay Area regional transportation funding measure can be placed on the ballot, most likely in 2026.

The state budget agreement reached in June also offers short-term help for BART, although it’s not yet clear how much money BART will receive or when it will receive it.

Alameda County Formally Apologizes for its Role in Russell City’s Destruction

SUBMITTED BY THE OFFICE OF SUPERVISOR ELISA MARQUEZ

On Tuesday, June 27, Alameda County Board of Supervisors formally apologized for the County’s role in the seizure and destruction of the unincorporated area known as Russell City, now located within the City of Hayward.

During the 1950s and 1960s, roughly 1,400 residents were displaced when the largely African American and Latino farming community was annexed into Hayward to build an industrial park.

The 12-block neighborhood known as Russell City was home to more than 230 families and numerous businesses. At the time, ongoing neglect from the County of Alameda led to a lack of sewage and water services, dedicated fire service, and other basic public infrastructure.

Conditions created by the lack of these basic municipal services were used by County and City of Hayward officials to justify the creation of a redevelopment plan that required the destruction of Russell City to make way for the city to annex and permit the development of an industrial business park with dedicated municipal services denied to the residents of Russell City.

In adopting the resolution, several Supervisors apologized directly to former residents and descendants in attendance. Board President Miley and Supervisor Márquez read the full resolution into the record.

“It is a historic day. It is overwhelming. I can’t believe this day is here, I am excited for the elders,” added Aisha Knowles, one of the producers of the documentary film The Apology. Her father and grandparents were Russell City residents – all of whom have been active in the creation of Hayward’s Russell City Reporative Justice Project.

Upon an ACSO deputy’s arrival, an unknown individual was positioned on top of a CHP officer located on the ground in the 1600 block of 163rd Avenue, engaged in a violent struggle and actively being assaulted. Preventing Child Abuse, One Story at a Time

By CONNIE CHEUNG

In 2021, Krystaelynne Sanders Diggs' life changed when she learned that a child in her family had been sexually abused. "I fell into a deep depression and took a year off work," she explained, to become the primary caregiver to the child and start a journey of healing. Diggs was haunted by questions like whether she missed warning signs or could have done anything differently to prevent the trauma.

A first-generation college graduate of Cal State University East Bay, Diggs pursued her interests in public service by studying subjects like political science and criminal justice. After navigating the distressing period with her family two years ago, she was inspired to become an advocate for more awareness and education about child sexual abuse. Stories can naturally facilitate conversations with young children, and Diggs wanted to write a picture book that was educational without being frightening.

"I didn't want to scare children," Diggs said, "but rather gently introduce to them that inappropriate or uncomfortable touches can exist."

While many organizations offer resources in reaction to abusive circumstances, it can feel uncomfortable to preemptively talk to young children about the concepts of non-consensual touch. Diggs' book "Where Hands Go: An Introduction to Safe and Unsafe Touch" strikes a balance between comforting scenes and actionable advice that young readers can easily remember.

The story is set in the home of a young girl and her mother, who prepare dinner together and go through their nighttime rituals: play time, a bubble bath, then tucking into bed. During the bath, the child learns a poem describing the differences between touches like a pat on the head or a hug from mom, as opposed to how she should react to other kinds of touches "when hands begin to stray." The book sold so many copies that Diggs has now published an entire series devoted to the topic, including "Body Safety Rules" and "The Power of No."

Child abuse is a pervasive and urgent issue. In 2020, the Department of Health and Safety estimated that over 600,000 minors were abused in the United States. According to the CDC, girls and children under the age of four are particularly vulnerable to victimization.

As an African-American author, Diggs hoped to destigmatize the subject and create work that was free of the implicit bias she saw too commonly in school and in the media. "Few books feature people of color as the main character of a book, and even fewer have a child of color on the cover," she said.

Given the challenges in the publishing industry like a lack of diversity and an increasingly political climate of book bans and censorship, Diggs wanted to make her writings accessible by self-publishing, and chose not to pursue more traditional routes of publication. After seeing the overwhelmingly positive reception of her first book, she found an opportunity to expand her expertise and write stories that address other common challenges for children, like secret-keeping or understanding the importance of confiding in trusted adults.

This journey has been a winding one for Diggs, who experienced hardships as a child, including bouts of homelessness and hunger. Her determination to overcome the challenging circumstances of her early years now translates to an inspiring effort to improve the lives of children all over the country. Today, Diggs is not only a passionate author and speaker, but also a mentor to other aspiring authors. With her message and work, she strives to prevent child sexual abuse and help people communicate with kids in ways that feel authentic and helpful.

"Even though the topic is very difficult to talk about, it's important to bring to light," she said.

Celebration of Fremont's first new park in 24 Years: Dusterberry Neighborhood Park

BY MONIKA LEE

Excitement was in the air as people gathered on Friday, July 7 to celebrate the grand opening of Fremont's newest and long-awaited neighborhood park in Centerville. The recently-constructed Dusterberry Neighborhood Park promises to be a haven for outdoor activity, relaxation, and building a sense of community.

The grand opening ceremony was attended by city officials, community leaders and enthusiastic residents. "I am so excited to be able to open the first new neighborhood park in Fremont in over 24 years," said Fremont Mayor Lily Mei. "As your mayor, I believe the ten-minute walk should be a park standard for all and reaffirm my long-standing commitment and mayoral pledge to the national ten-minute walk campaign made in 2017.... Every resident in Fremont deserves a quality park or green space within a ten-minute walk of their home by 2050, but sooner, if possible. The research is clear: Parks boost the wellbeing of the entire neighborhood, and great parks foster community where everyone is welcome."

The new park, spanning almost four acres, offers many features designed to cater to the diverse interests and needs of the community. Open green spaces for play and beautifully landscaped areas welcome visitors, providing a tranquil setting for leisurely strolls and family picnics. Basketball enthusiasts will enjoy the basketball half-court. Adults can exercise and socialize in the adult fitness area. The park's wide paved loops offer people the chance to jog, cycle, or simply enjoy a walk around the park.

Children thoroughly enjoyed the park's modern play areas. One boy shouted, "This is my best day ever—I only live two blocks away!" From swings and large tube slides to a spinner, net climber and seesaw, the playground encourages children to play together. The tot play area features an Expression Swing which is a patented swing designed so an adult and child can swing face-to-face.

The non-profit Autism: Yesterday and Today, based in Fremont, unveiled their colorful mural in the park by artist Pablo Ruiz. The mural depicts children breaking chains to symbolize overcoming obstacles faced by children with disabilities. The group's mission is to increase awareness of autism and raise funds to provide computers and technology designed for special needs classes in public schools.

With the opening of this neighborhood park, Fremont has created an outdoor recreational space that promotes a sense of belonging and community.
