Community gathers to protest destruction of local old-growth trees

BY STEPHANIE GERTSCH

"A hundred years to grow, minutes to destroy," remarked a Castro Valley resident as a tree trimmer buzzed thick branches off a coast live oak in Ruby Meadow, a previously-undeveloped parcel bordering San Lorenzo Creek. The overgrown area was home to more wandering deer than humans. After September 2023, however, Eden Housing will transform the land into a new affordable apartment building.

The week of September 25, residents painted banners reading "Trees Help People Breathe" and came out to protest the destruction of 87 of 97 old growth trees. However, the atmosphere was more that of a vigil.

Over the previous weekend, Friends of San Lorenzo Creek

There’s More to Prostate Health than Cancer Screenings

No doubt, prostate cancer is a serious health concern in the United States. The American Cancer Society (ACS) estimates that one of every seven men will get prostate cancer during his lifetime.

Yet other prostate conditions warrant attention, too. Eight out of 10 men will develop an enlarged prostate, also known as benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH). Also, about one out of 10 adult men will be treated in their lifetime for prostatitis – an inflammation of the prostate usually caused by an infection. To help educate men about prostate diseases, the Prostate Health Council of the American Foundation for Urologic Disease inaugurated the first Prostate Health Month in September 1999.

Prostate Enlargement—New Treatment Options

“Most of the time when a man experiences symptoms such as urinary frequency or an urgent need to urinate, BPH is a more likely cause than cancer,” says Mark Saleh, MD, a urologist with Washington Township Medical Foundation.

Other symptoms of BPH may include: weak urine stream, increased frequency of urination at night, difficulty starting or stopping urination, inability to completely empty the bladder or blood in the urine.

“The symptoms of BPH are not necessarily a natural part of aging,” Dr. Saleh notes. “BPH can and should be treated to improve the patient’s quality of life. While these symptoms most likely indicate BPH, a man with such problems also should be examined to rule out cancer.”

Treatment options for BPH might include medications, minimally invasive therapies such as “Rezum” or the “Urolift” procedure, or – for more severe symptoms – endoscopic surgical procedures such as Aquablation. Dr. Saleh has begun performing Aquablation procedures at Washington Hospital. Aquablation therapy is an advanced, minimally invasive treatment. It uses the power of water delivered with robotic precision to provide best-in-class and long-lasting symptom relief with low rates of irreversible complications, regardless of prostate size or shape.

Prostatitis

Prostatitis may be caused by a bacterial infection. Acute bacterial prostatitis often produces a rapid onset of symptoms, including fever and chills, pain in the lower back and aching muscles, fatigue, or frequent or painful urination.

Chronic bacterial prostatitis develops slowly over several months or even years and may produce no symptoms other than those similar to a recurring urinary tract infection or advanced BPH symptoms. “Bacterial prostatitis can be treated with antibiotics, but it usually requires a course of treatment lasting from two to six weeks,” Dr. Saleh says.

Nonbacterial prostatitis is more complicated to diagnose and treat. Symptoms may include:

- Discomfort in the testicles, urethra, lower abdomen or back
- Discharge from the urethra
- Blood or urine in ejaculate
- Low sperm count
- Sexual difficulties
- Frequent urination

“We don’t really know what causes nonbacterial prostatitis,” Dr. Saleh explains. “The diagnosis is one of exclusion, ruling out other potential causes. Since the condition is not caused by bacteria, we cannot treat it with antibiotics, so the primary treatment is to use anti-inflammatory medications.”

Washington Hospital now offers an advanced BPH treatment option, Aquablation.

Prostate Cancer

Because early prostate cancer generally causes no symptoms, regular screenings have been considered an important diagnostic tool. Such screenings generally include a digital rectal exam (DRE) and a blood test to measure the level of prostate specific antigen (PSA), a protein made by prostate cells.

Dr. Saleh notes that if a patient’s PSA is high and remains elevated, or if the DRE detects any swelling, nodules or lumps in the prostate, a biopsy might be needed to determine if cancer is present. A prostate MRI may also be used to detect nodules deep in the prostate that may not be felt by a DRE. “Today we generally perform minimally invasive, ultrasound-guided needle biopsies, and we always take care to reduce the risk of post-biopsy infection or inflammation,” he says. “Complications from biopsies are rare, and they are much less onerous than complications of late-stage prostate cancer.”

Treatment options for prostate cancer generally depend on how aggressive the tumor is and the patient’s personal preference. “For men with low-grade, early stage tumors, the recommendation likely would be ‘watchful waiting,’ with more frequent regular screenings and biopsies as indicated,” Dr. Saleh explains. “Hormone therapy to stop production of testosterone, which promotes cancer growth, might also be considered. Hormone therapy alone does not cure the cancer, but it can help relieve symptoms and can be used in combination with radiation therapy to improve outcomes.”

If active treatment is desired, the patient may choose radiation therapy, surgery, cryotherapy (freezing of the prostate), or HIFU (high-intensity focused ultrasound). Radiation therapy could be in the form of external beam radiation therapy or brachytherapy – implantation of radioactive “seeds” into the prostate.

“Surgery for prostate cancer could be traditional open prostatectomy or laparoscopic/robotic surgery with smaller incisions,” Dr. Saleh says. “In the right surgeon’s hands, the results of robotic surgery and open surgery are equivalent, with good cancer control and few complications. Current surgical techniques allow us to preserve the nerves necessary for erectile function and maintaining urinary continence in the majority of patients.”

Renowned Neurosurgeon Presents Benefits of Minimally Invasive Spine Surgery

Online Seminar Answers Questions about Spine Surgery

Back- and spinal-related disorders can be extremely painful and, at times, incapacitating. These conditions are not rare. An estimated 70-85% of the population will experience back pain and some will require surgery to relieve that pain and to improve their quality of life.

There is a relatively new, minimally invasive approach to spinal surgery that yields positive results with faster healing times. This method uses small, one-inch incisions and avoids having to cut muscle. “The goal is to perform spinal surgery to provide relief without lasting side effects,” said UCSF neurosurgeon and Medical Director of Washington Hospital’s Taylor McAdam Bell Neuroscience Institute, Sandeep Kunwar, MD. “With anatomy-preserving surgery, we can address compressed nerves without the complicated procedure once required.”

Dr. Kunwar’s innovative work in minimally invasive spine and pituitary surgery has brought him and the neuroscience institute international recognition. Soon, community members will have the opportunity to join an online Health & Wellness seminar presented by Dr. Kunwar. “Anatomy-preserving Spine Surgery,” will be a livestream event on Washington Hospital’s Facebook and YouTube pages on Thursday, Oct. 19, at 1 p.m. The following day, the full presentation will be available for viewing on Washington Hospital’s YouTube channel, YouTube.com/whhsInHealth.

Neurosurgeon, Sandeep M. Kunwar, MD

Dr. Kunwar, who has performed more than 3,000 minimally invasive neurosurgical operations, said this type of surgery has been used for about 10 years and has been gaining in popularity because of its many benefits. He estimates that approximately 30-40% of spinal surgeries are now minimally invasive and represent 60% of the surgeries he performs. “The technology has progressed, allowing us to use computer guidance,” he noted. This advanced technology uses 3-D navigation, providing pinpoint accuracy with minimal blood loss.

Board-certified in neurosurgery, Dr. Kunwar graduated from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1993. He received his medical degree and neurosurgical training at UCSF School of Medicine and built a successful practice at UCSF Health before joining the medical community at Washington Hospital Healthcare System. He continues to serve as an associate professor of Neurological Surgery at UCSF.

He is a member of the Alpha Omega Medical Society and has served as the lead investigator for a number of international multi-institutional clinical trials.

Dr. Kunwar will include time in his seminar for participants to ask questions about their particular conditions or to learn more about the benefits of minimally invasive spine surgery. “I encourage questions. I cover a lot of information, but I also want to answer as many specific questions as I can.”

Flash Fiction - The Day I Fell in Love

BY ARATHI SATISH

What is love? William Shakespeare said, “Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind, And therefore is winged Cupid painted blind.” The word “love” is supposed to have appeared 2,146 times in Shakespeare’s collected works. Love stories have fascinated people from time immemorial. Are you interested in knowing how people fall in love? If the answer is yes, visit Half Price Books at the Fremont Hub on Saturday, October 7.

“Flash Fiction - The Day I Fell in Love” is an interesting writing contest co-sponsored by Fremont Cultural Arts Council (FCAC) and Half Price Books. It would be exciting to read about how the writers will express themselves about such a heartfelt emotion. Writers have taken it up as a challenge and let their emotions take them to a magical world.

Love stories of 300 words or less including the title on a single printed paper will be posted on the columns inside Half Price Books on Saturday, October 7 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Everyone visiting Half Price Books on that day will be able to read and vote for their five favorite love stories. There will be binders containing the complete set of submitted love stories for those who have difficulty reading the stories posted on the columns. Names of the writers will not be mentioned, so everyone will have to judge based on the content of the love stories.

Al Minard, board member, FCAC, and organizer of the contest said, “The Flash Fiction writing contest has a theme for each contest to help writers think about a specific idea or subject. Today there is so much bad news of fires, earthquakes and other disasters that I thought it would be nice if we wrote stories about positive events and could not think of anything more positive than the day I fell in love. Our last contest was about a day in the life of a creative artist and the winner was about a jar of peanut butter. I hope that writers will think about something other than another person when they write about the day I fell in love. I know there are men who have fallen in love with a car or a boat, and lots of people have fallen in love with a pet, but there have to be some inanimate object or maybe even from some inanimate object to another inanimate object or maybe even to a person or animal.”

Each writer is allowed to submit three entries that do not contain plagiarism or would be offensive to the general reader. There is no age and residency restriction. There is also no children’s or adult category; in this contest everyone is even. Ballots will be available at the Flash Fiction Contest table. Voting closes at 5 p.m. on the day of the contest.

Winners will be announced around 5:30 p.m., and five cash and gift card prizes will be awarded. Details will also be posted on the FCAC website the following week. Contestants don’t have to be present to win, but they are definitely encouraged to be there in person to mingle with other writers and collect their prizes. Margaret Thornberry, President Emeritus of FCAC will select an entry for a special award of a Nothing Bundt Cakes trio. Erick’s Delicafe will participate along with Infinity Care LLC, an organization that provides caring heart and quality service. They will help to conduct the event and provide refreshments.

As Al Minard pointed out, “Maybe you have not had a memorable time that you have fallen in love but you could write about how you think it would happen or feel. This is a contest about writing fiction, something that is not real. Have fun and be creative.”

Trash Talk

By THE PICKUP ARTIST

This is the 31st edition of Trash Talk, a column devoted to cleaning up our neighborhoods, our environment, and our outlook on life.

Contest Results – We have a winner!

We have a surprise ending for our Trash Talk Win-a-Laptop contest. The entry with the most votes was “Student Involvement,” but the winner was gracious enough to decline the prize, thinking it could go to someone with a greater need. The second-place entry was “Recycle Pill Bottles,” who also declined the laptop. So, the winner is “Recycle VHS Tapes.” A heartfelt thanks to all entrants, and to those who voted.

Reminder for FREE trash disposal

The next free disposal day event for Hayward residents will be on October 14. Six times per year, residents of incorporated Hayward may pre-register to dispose of up to five cubic yards of household items safely and legally, free of charge. Five cubic yards is roughly equivalent to one full bed of an average-size pickup truck. Items should be taken to the city transfer station at 3455 Enterprise Ave.

Registration will open two weeks prior to the event, no same-day drop-offs. Proof of Hayward residency is required. Hayward holds these events on the second Saturday of even-numbered months. They will be held regardless of weather conditions.

To learn more about Hayward's free Disposal Days, go to the program page on the City of Hayward website, or contact City Maintenance Services at (510) 881-7745 or disposal@hayward-ca.gov.

Heat Pumps

What is a heat pump? Think of it as air-conditioning that works in both directions. It can pump in heat from outside your house, heating it in the winter. It can also pump heat from inside your house outside, working like an AC.

Heat pumps give you comfortable, consistent heating and hot water. Advantages:

- Less energy: Heat pumps use 4x less energy than even the most efficient boilers to generate the same amount of heat.
- Less carbon: That efficiency means you'll instantly slash your heat carbon footprint by around 70%. Plus, they run on electricity, which gets greener every year.

• Less maintenance: A heat pump can last 20 years – about twice as long as a boiler – and maintenance is less pricey.

On chilly days, heat pumps produce four times as much energy as they use, but in harsh winter climates, your heat pump will need a few additional design features to achieve the same effects as legacy systems like furnaces.

Your unit needs:

- Refrigerants with a low boiling point
- Variable speed compressors that allow you to adjust the efficiency in extreme weather
- An improved compression cycle
- Exceptional ambient airflow rates

You can boost your winter energy efficiency by leaving your thermostat at one constant temperature throughout the day. Maintaining a warm setting uses less energy than creating it. Staying up to date with your heat pump maintenance schedule will also improve your effects, so remember to request professional service twice a year.

A word to the wise...

Dog owners, you are responsible for your pet, your companion. If they bite someone, that person can sue you. If your pet makes a mess, it is your responsibility to clean it up. In California, you can be fined $100 on a first offense for not cleaning up after your pet, and up to $750 by the fourth. Do the right thing and pick the waste up. Don't just 'gift-wrap' it and put it back down on the ground: Then another plastic bag is befouling the environment. Dispose of it properly. Have as much consideration for your neighbors as you do for your pet.

The quotes for today:

“Accomplish as much as you can in your lifetime, 'cuz when else are you going to do it?” comedian Gallagher of sledge-o-matic fame.

Park Happenings for October

SUBMITTED BY DAVE MASON

Wildfire safety is especially important in the fall, when hot, dry Diablo winds blow in from the East, creating potentially dangerous fire conditions. When in parks, be aware of fire warnings and follow all safety rules. Report any potential fire hazards immediately and call 911 if you see a fire.

The Park District is a leader in addressing the risks of wildfires and stands ready to fight fires if they occur. Year-round activities include thinning and removing hazardous vegetation from parks, maintaining a professionally trained fire department with specialized wildland firefighting equipment, operating two helicopters with firefighting capabilities, and closely monitoring fire weather conditions.

Habitat restoration is underway at Briones Regional Park as part of the Briones Pilot Project, a two-year project testing various trail management strategies to enhance visitor experience, reduce conflicts, improve trail safety, and protect natural habitat and wildlife. Restoring illegally built “bootleg” trails is a critical component.

Key pilot project strategies include:

- Four Bike-Only/Downhill-Only Trails
- Dedicated Odd/Even Weekend Day Access – On odd-numbered

weekend days, bikers and hikers are allowed on designated trails. On even-numbered weekend days, horses and hikers are allowed on designated trails. Hikers are permitted on all days on most trails in the pilot zone.

• Restoration of illegally built “bootleg” trails has begun. Bootleg trails often damage natural habitat for wildlife, including endangered and sensitive species.

Public access improvement and habitat restoration are coming soon to Coyote Hills Regional Park in Fremont on 300 acres donated to the Regional Parks Foundation and passed through to the Park District to expand Coyote Hills Regional Park. The project restores habitat and provides balanced public access to approximately 200 acres, including seasonal wetlands, grassland, riparian forest, and oak savanna. New visitor facilities include an additional 100-space parking area, picnic tables, restrooms, water fountains, new and improved trails, wildlife overlooks, and educational exhibits and signage. The project is expected to open in 2024.

Tarantulas are out and about looking for love in Regional Parks. In the fall, you may encounter male tarantulas along the trails as they venture out in search of mates. Although tarantulas can look scary with their large size and furry bodies, they are actually gentle giants and are harmless to humans. The best parks to spot tarantulas are Black Diamond

Mines Regional Preserve, Del Valle Regional Park, and Sunol Wilderness Regional Preserve.

The Park District also has a number of naturalist-led programs in October that are focused on tarantulas. For a complete list of programs, visit www.ebparks.org/calendar and search “tarantula.”

Enjoy “Fall on the Farm” at the Ardenwood Harvest Festival on Saturday, October 14, and Sunday, October 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Enjoy old-time country fun as you help bring in this year's crop of corn. Outside the field, enjoy seasonal activities, cider pressing, old-time music, and historic crafts. Ride a narrow-gauge train and learn what late 19th-century life was like on a tour of the beautifully restored farmhouse. Please bring a bag if you would like to take home some of your harvested corn. $12/adults, $10/seniors, $8/children ages 4-17, ages 3 and under free. Advance registration is available. For more information, visit www.ebparks.org/calendar and search “Harvest Festival.”

History comes alive with games, activities, and music at the Sunol Heritage Festival on Saturday, October 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sunol Visitor Center. Celebrate the diverse heritage of the Sunol Wilderness at this fun festival for all ages! Free event. Parking is $5. For more information, visit www.ebparks.org/events/sunol-heritage-festival.

Fight national blood and platelet shortage

SUBMITTED BY
MARTIN GAGLIANO

The American Red Cross continues to experience a national blood and platelet shortage and asks the public to book a time to give as soon as possible. Donors of all blood types are urgently needed, especially type O blood donors and those giving platelets. The Red Cross offers three ways to make a donation appointment that can help save lives:

- Download the Red Cross Blood Donor App at <https://www.redcrossblood.org/blood-donor-app.html>
- Visit RedCrossBlood.org
- Call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767)

The Red Cross experienced a significant blood and platelet donation shortfall in August, contributing to the current blood and platelet shortage. To ensure the blood supply recovers, the Red Cross must collect 10,000 additional blood products each week over the next month to meet hospital and patient needs.

“When blood and platelet supplies drop to critical levels, it makes hospitals and the patients they are treating vulnerable – especially if there is a major accident or emergency medical procedure that requires large quantities of blood during a disaster,” said Dr. Baia Lasky, medical director for the Red Cross. “A single car accident victim can use as much as 100 units of blood. By making and keeping donation appointments, donors can help keep hospital shelves stocked with blood products and ensure patients have access to the timely care they deserve.”

As a thank-you, those who come to give from October 1 to 20, 2023, will receive a $15 Amazon Gift Card by email. Details are available at RedCrossBlood.org/Together.

In late summer, the Red Cross-national blood supply dropped by about 25% on the heels of one of the busiest travel seasons and the beginning of back-to-school activities. As people settle back into fall school and work routines, a unique challenge to the blood supply remains – many employees continue to work from home or in a hybrid capacity, reducing the number of opportunities to give blood at business-sponsored blood drives. In fact, before the COVID-19 pandemic, more than 800,000 blood donations were made at blood drives hosted by businesses. Last year, the Red Cross saw only about 500,000 blood donations at these locations – a nearly 40% drop from pre-pandemic levels.

This, coupled with an active disaster season, is creating a perfect “storm” and challenging the organization's ability to collect a sufficient amount of blood products to meet the needs of hospitals across the country.

The Red Cross provides community blood drives and donation centers across the Northern California Coastal Region. Those who may have previously given at a local business blood drive are encouraged to book a time to donate by downloading the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

Rocketry team achieves 11th place at 2023 National Championships!

SUBMITTED BY
NEWARK MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL ROCKETRY CLUB

The Newark Memorial High School (NMHS) Rocketry Club competed at the American Rocketry Challenge (ARC) finals on May 20, 2023 at The Plains, VA (near Washington, D.C.). The top 100 teams across the nation (out of 798 total) were invited to compete at the National Finals event.

To qualify, teams had to design a rocket that could safely carry one raw egg 850 feet up and back, with a total flight duration of 42 to 45 seconds. At the national competition, the ability for teams to adjust their rockets was tested by having them fly to different specifications. The night before the contest a coin was flipped to decide that Round One would require a height of 875 feet for a flight duration of 43-46 seconds. The top 37 teams from Round One were deemed accurate enough to compete in Round Two that afternoon with 825 feet and 41-44 seconds as the new targets.

NMHS students noted the local weather and finalized their plans for launch day. "We were confident in our rocket design for the morning launch; we had achieved multiple practice launches with excellent scores before leaving for Nationals, and the conditions were similar," said 2023 Team Captain Markus Gruendler. "In the afternoon, however, the warmer air becomes less predictable and much stronger, so we were much more interested in how the rocket would perform under those conditions."

"We were thrilled and relieved to watch our rocket soar straight upwards without much effect from the wind," said Sebastian Llaguno, a senior at NMHS and one of the new Team Captains for 2024. "When the scores were posted, our whole Rocketry Club was ecstatic to be tied for First Place after Round One."

The team was a bit unlucky with the wind and their adjustments to their rocket for the 825-foot height during Round Two and dropped to eleventh place overall. "After being in first place for Round One, we were of course disappointed to end up in eleventh place, especially because the difference between tenth and eleventh was only two hundredths of a second," said Markus Gruendler, "But I am still proud of our Rocketry Club—we've proven that NMHS Rocketry has recovered from COVID, and that it won't be long until we've won Nationals once more."

ARC competition day also features several high-powered rocket launches, rocket-themed jeopardy contests, and opportunities to meet representatives from aerospace corporations, universities, and STEM groups. "I enjoyed serving as an Ambassador from the NMHS Rocketry Club and explaining how our rocket works to special guests attending the launch day," said club member Hamza Hasan.

While in Washington, D.C., the students were able to visit NASA Headquarters and the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum. "It was an amazing experience to see inside the workings of NASA and show Deputy Administrator (DA) Pamela Melroy our rockets," said Katie Gruendler, NMHS senior and current President of the Rocketry Club. "We enjoyed hearing about her test flights and how she became an Astronaut." The students were able to see the auditorium where NASA presentations and interviews take place and take photos with DA Melroy.

On previous trips, the Air and Space Museum had been closed for renovations, so students relished the opportunity to see the exhibits this time. Vice President Isaac Pinedo recalls, "Seeing the space capsules from the early days of the lunar program was eye-opening and helped us see how far space exploration has advanced in recent decades and what we might be able to do in the future to expand on our rocket-launching experience."

The 2024 challenge includes designing, building, and flying a safe and stable model rocket to an altitude of exactly 820 feet, while also achieving a total flight duration of 43 to 46 seconds. The rockets must have two different body tube diameters and must return safely and connected while carrying a payload of one raw egg. Team Captain Katie Gruendler organized summer sessions to help the teams begin drafting their designs for the 2024 ARC competition.

The students are fortunate to have NMHS teachers like Mr. Jacob Goldsmith advising them this year as well as community members Jack Stone, Robert Taylor, and Janice Bishop as club mentors. The Rocketry Club also appreciates the support of the NMHS leadership and Newark Unified School District. Rocketry Club Council Members Zayna Ansari and Bateel Ibrahim joined in for summer build sessions, and more recently the club sold "Space Juice" at a school fundraiser. The Rocketry Club is excited to have many new members this year, especially freshmen to help broaden the club and provide continuity for the future.

From Galileo to Clipper, Exploring Jupiter's Moons

By Vivian White

“... We, too, are made of wonders, of great and ordinary loves, of small invisible worlds, of a need to call out through the dark.”

From In Praise of Mystery: A Poem for Europa by Ada Limon

As autumn begins, if you’re up late, you may notice a bright point of light rising in the east. Look a bit closer, with a pair of binoculars, and you’ll notice it’s not a star at all. While stars look point-like no matter how big your backyard telescope, this light appears as a circle under closer examination. Even more curious, you will likely see a line of smaller dots on one or both sides. Congratulations! You’ve rediscovered the king of the planets—majestic Jupiter—and its four largest moons.

Galileo famously chronicled the four moving dots near Jupiter and surmised that they were orbiting the distant world. While Jupiter has well over 80 discovered moons as of September 2023, these brightest four are called the “Galilean Moons”—Io, Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto. (Great mnemonics exist to remember these in order of distance from Jupiter, such as “I Eat Green Caterpillars”) You can follow these like Galileo did, using stargazing apps or the handy image below. A favorite beginning observing challenge is to track the movement of the Galilean Moons over the course of many nights. Even within a few hours, you will notice them moving in relation to Jupiter, just as Galileo did.

Fast forward 414 years, and NASA will be sending a robotic mission to investigate the surface of one of these distant worlds. The Europa Clipper Mission is launching to the cold, icy moon in 2024, to begin orbiting in 2030. With its salty oceans covered by ice, Europa was chosen as an excellent location to continue the search for life outside of Earth. Clipper will be the largest spacecraft ever sent to another planet, designed to withstand Jupiter’s punishing radiation. Once it arrives at Jupiter in 2030, NASA plans to do about 50 flybys of Europa, mapping almost the entire surface of this watery world.

What was once only dreamed of in the small telescope of Galileo, or in great works of fiction, is turning into reality thanks to NASA. One of the celebrated quotes from the classic 2010: Odyssey Two warns, “All these worlds are yours, except Europa. Attempt no landing there.” Science fiction fans can feel relieved knowing that writer Arthur C. Clarke gave his blessing for the Europa Clipper mission.

Join the Europa Message in a Bottle Campaign to send your name with the spacecraft, hear the rest of the poem by the US Poet Laureate, and learn more about the wonders of space travel with the Clipper Mission: <https://europa.nasa.gov/participate>.

Watch a wonderful Clipper webinar with Dr. Cynthia Phillips, planetary geologist with the mission on the Nasa Night Sky Network YouTube page. Search for NSN Webinar Series: Europa Clipper Updates with Dr. Cynthia Phillips

Brian Copeland Returns to Chanticleers Theatre

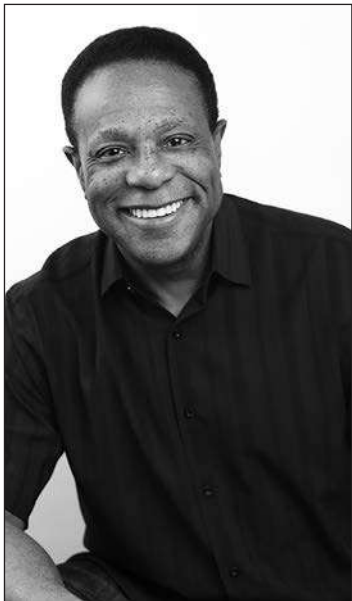

SUBMITTED BY CHANTICLEERS THEATRE

Chanticleers Theatre is excited to announce an encore performance by Brian Copeland on Friday, October 6. Energized by his recent show “Grandma & Me: An Ode to Single Parents,” which played to a sold-out audience on Saturday, June 3, the award-winning comedian is back with his most famous one-man play, “Not a Genuine Black Man.”

In 1971, Fair Housing advocates considered San Leandro one of the most racist suburbs in America. CBS aired a special on the situation. The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights conducted hearings. The next year, eight-year-old Copeland and his African-American family moved in. An evening of laughter, tears and sociology, “Not a Genuine Black Man” is a hilarious and insightful look at Bay Area history and the ways in which our upbringings make us who we are.

After the show’s debut in 2004, the San Francisco Chronicle declared it to be “A beautiful mix of wry humor and heartbreak, indignation and inspiration, a singular story of extreme isolation that speaks to anyone who’s ever felt out of place.”

Copeland plays over 20 characters during the two-hour show, including himself, himself as an 8-year-old, his mother, his sister, his grandmother, his son, his father, his landlord, three policemen, two lawyers, his father, a waitress, a pastor of an all-white church, a hate-letter writer, two white teenage racists, and several irate neighbors.

Join us for this special, one-night only performance of “Not a Genuine Black Man,” and see why it holds the record for the longest running solo show in San Francisco history! Tickets are $35 online and $40 at the door. They can be purchased at chanticleers.org or call (510) 733-5483.

Head of Nirankari Mission visits Life Chiropractic College

SUBMITTED BY PRAFULL LANDE

Sant Nirankari Mission (SNM) Head, Satguru Mata Sudiksha Savinder Hardev ji Maharaj, along with Nirankari Rajpita Ramit ji, has been traveling nonstop for more than a month covering different SNM centers all across North America to bless devotees. As part of the tour, Her Holiness attended three events in the San Francisco Bay Area and surrounding areas.

The spiritual head has been an advocate for helping underserved populations through the Mission’s outreach services such as building schools and hospitals, hosting blood donation drives and cleanliness drives, and providing disaster relief around the world.

Her Holiness visited Life Chiropractic College West on Monday, August 14 and addressed a classroom of young students, who are embarking into a life of healing and social service. “True Salvation (mukti) is possible only when one connects to this formless God,” Her Holiness said to the main congregation. “And this aim of the true seeker is to be one with One (Formless).”

Rajpita ji in his discourse stressed the importance of a True master. “Salvation can be possible right now, only if the seeker finds a true master (Satguru) as a True master makes us realize formless God.”

“Let’s become that beacon, that lighthouse that others can come to, and the path opens up to create a brighter future for humanity,” said Dr. Ron Oberstein, President of Life Chiropractic College West in Hayward. He helps send teams of chiropractic doctors overseas to provide free medical aid at Mission events in India, serving tens of thousands during recent years.

Honoring the community service provided by SNM, Festival of the Globe (FOG) presented a trophy of felicitation to Satguru Mata Sudiksha Savinder Hardev ji Maharaj. FIA (Federation of Indian Americans) Chairman and FOG founder Dr. Romesh Japra has been organizing India Day Parade and fair every year for the past 30 years. On his behalf, FIA media chair Ritu Maheshwari attended and presented the trophy to Mataji. Fremont Vice Mayor Teresa Cox also presented a proclamation to Her Holiness acknowledging SNM’s work for humanity.

The Sant Nirankari Mission is an international spiritual movement aspiring to unify mankind by emphasizing self-realization, tolerance, love, humility, humanness, and oneness among all beings regardless of religion, caste, color, or creed. The SNM hosts spiritual congregations weekly throughout the Bay Area. For more information, visit www.nirankari.org.

Give a warm welcome to drying peppers

By DANIEL O'DONNELL

Peppers of any kind are possible to grow in the Bay Area, but they can be unpredictable producers. If someone is skilled or lucky enough to get a bountiful harvest in September, most likely they do not want to waste even one of them. However, peppers, like many fruits, cannot be stored fresh for long periods of time. Fortunately, peppers can be dried in numerous ways so they can be available for the times of the year when they cannot be freshly picked.

Fruits such as avocados, bananas, and pears are described as climacteric which means they continue to ripen after being harvested as they are high in the plant hormone ethylene. Pomegranates, grapes, and melons are non-climacteric fruits and can only fully ripen if they are attached to their mother plant because they have low levels of ethylene. Peppers are not as easy to classify.

Some peppers produce the ripening hormone ethylene, but hot peppers also produce abscisic acid, which helps ripen the fruit after being harvested. This is why hot peppers are difficult to classify as being climacteric or not. Regardless of their classification, pepper plants do not produce fruits all year long. They have a primary harvest window of only a couple of months. All peppers change color when ripening, so peppers that are changing or have changed in color and are still firm make the best candidates for drying. Any type of pepper can be dried.

Removing all moisture from peppers will prevent bacterial development and spoilage allowing them to be eaten safely several months after harvesting. However, the dehydration process also develops a pepper with a higher accumulation of sugars, capsaicin, and other agents based on its lower mass. This creates sweeter and more intense citrusy, smokey, and earthy flavors in the dried peppers than in their fresh counterparts. The heat from a pepper is not a taste but rather a response from pain receptors in the tongue, so it is important to remember that dried peppers will be hotter.

There are five ways to dry peppers. Each method begins with washing the peppers and cutting out any soft blemishes. Slicing peppers in half can shorten drying time. Peppers are fully dried if they crack when you bend them.

The tradition of sun or air-drying peppers, primarily chilies, was used by indigenous peoples of Central America and dates back over 2,500 years. This method consists of using a needle to thread string through the stems and then hanging the peppers in a sunny location with low humidity and good airflow. This process can take up to six or seven weeks.

A food dehydrator is the most dependable way to dry peppers. Dry air is circulated consistently while maintaining an optimal temperature that can be adjusted based on the size of the peppers being dried. Most manuals will have specific recommendations for drying times and temperatures.

According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration about 90% of U.S. homes have an oven. That means that 90% of Americans have the ability to dry peppers. Oven drying is a process in which peppers are arranged on a rack and placed in the oven set on its lowest cooking temperature. The oven door should remain slightly open to allow moisture to escape and increase air flow. The process can take eight to 10 hours depending on the size of the peppers.

Fewer households have air fryers, but as these grow in popularity, more and more people will be able to dry peppers in a shorter amount of time. Place peppers on the fryer basket and set the temperature on the lowest setting. Check after 40 minutes, and dry in five-minute intervals until peppers are completely dried.

Peppers can also be dried on a gas BBQ grill. Place them on the grill rack on the opposite side of the heat, turned on at the lowest temperature. Prop the lid open to encourage air circulation and moisture evaporation. Monitor regularly, but expect the peppers to be fully dried after 6 to 8 hours.

It is important to make sure the peppers are completely dried before storing them long term. After the initial drying process and cooling, store them in a mason jar. Keep the jar in a dark place and once a day for seven days, shake the jar. Look for any moisture droplets. If none appear, the peppers are good to store long term. If there is moisture, they will need to be dried for a bit longer.

Drying peppers does not only change the flavor profiles but the peppers' names as well. Dried jalapenos are called chipotles. Dried poblanos are anchos, marasols become guajillos, and chilacas transform into pasillas. However, one thing that does not change is that peppers are healthy and delicious, and if you can take a little heat in the kitchen, then you can enjoy them all year long.

Tri-City Stargazer FOR WEEK: OCTOBER 3, 2023

All Signs: This is a week full of positive vibes. It’s also a time to get things done because we will be imaginative and productive. Tuesday in particular is an excellent day to look for a job. Although this is a productive week for most of us, it could also a wonderful time to kick back and relax as we brace for the season ahead. The theme of this week is to socialize and enjoy the company of those who are closest to you.

Aries the Ram (March 21-April 20):

For the most part, this is a carefree week for you. However, this week also holds an opportunity that arrives only once a year, when you will have more objectivity to see your closest relationships, and your own style in them. It’s a fantastic chance for you to improve how you relate to close friends, spouses and partners. This is also a romantic, passionate week. At the start, you’re keen to play, but as the week wears on, you’ll get down to business. After all, this is your year to get richer!

Taurus the Bull (April 21-May 20):

While this is a pleasant, playful week for most signs, you will be more inclined to have your nose to the grindstone this week. You don’t have to, but you probably will because you’re motivated to work hard right now. You have the energy, plus you’re full of ideas! This is why most of you will roll up your sleeves. But you’ll get a tremendous sense of reward from your efforts. Fear not, there will be plenty of time to play. And with lucky Jupiter in your sign you have divine protection.

Gemini the Twins (May 21-June 20):

More than any other sign, you will party hard this week. For starters, you’re in a playful mood! You want to enjoy sports and fun activities with kids. You want to meet people for coffee, a drink, lunch or dinner because you need variety and stimulation! Romance will flourish this week. Some of you will also enjoy entertaining at home, especially because you have been redecorating. Timing is everything. When it’s time to work – work. And when it’s time to play – enjoy yourself!

Cancer the Crab (June 21-July 21):

Take time to relax this week, especially with your strong focus on home and family. Many will be involved more than usual with a parent. You might also be dealing with increased chaos and activity on the home front, possibly due to repairs and DIY projects. (You are amazingly resourceful and practical when it comes to doing things at home.) Fortunately, all activity that has been taking place at home will soon subside. Later this week, you’ll appreciate your surroundings.

Leo the Lion (July 22-August 22):

This week suits you perfectly! You’re keen to take short trips, talk to people, shop, study and work. You will have a busy schedule that might involve teaching, learning, sales and writing. You’re also feeling good about yourself lately, in part because you’ve been tweaking your wardrobe. You enjoy a sporty style and you like to look good. Especially because you are one sign that is easily noticed by others!

Virgo the Virgin (August 23-September 22):

Your strong focus on cash flow and earnings continues. For those looking for a new job, Tuesday is the day to act. It’s also an excellent day for financial negotiations and boosting income. This is an eventful year because Saturn is opposite your sign, which means this is the culmination of a process that began about 14 years ago. That was when you began to redefine yourself. Of course, this opposition with Saturn is tough on committed partnerships. Fear not! Most will endure but undergo readjustments. It’s important to define the expectations others have of you and live up to them.

Libra the Scales (September 23-October 22):

You’re still empowered with the Sun, Mercury and fiery Mars all in your sign, boosting your energy, drive and ambition! You won’t hesitate to speak up or go after what you want. This is a successful week for you because you’ll enjoy schmoozing, especially with artistic types. You’ll also be involved in groups related to the arts, entertainment world and sports. Despite your love of pleasure and socializing this week, you will still work because this entire year you are industrious. It’s important to strike a balance between work and play because you’re such a social sign.

Scorpio the Scorpion (October 23-November 21):

This is a curious time for you because a gaggle of planets are hiding in your chart, which encourages you to keep a low profile. At one level, you’re “waiting” for your birthday to arrive, which will change your energy and interactions. Until then, use this time wisely. Take time for yourself. Enjoy solitude in beautiful surroundings, with good food and drink, thinking about what you want for your future. When your birthday arrives, this will be the beginning of a new year for you.

Start thinking about goals for next year – and maybe even beyond?

Sagittarius the Archer (November 22-December 21):

This continues to be a popular time for you, especially with younger people. Many of you are also involved in physical activities, perhaps a competition. This makes sense because you are one of the most outdoorsy signs in the zodiac. You also love animals, so many of you are out walking daily in all kinds of weather. Travel opportunities still exist for you while fair Venus is going through your Ninth House. Meanwhile, keep your eyes open for ways to improve your health and get a better job because that is your mission this year.

Capricorn the Goat (December 22-January 19):

You are still enjoying great press because the Sun is at the top of your chart shining down on you! This is why with no special effort on your part, you are impressing others, especially bosses, parents, teachers and VIPs. Ironically, even though you look fabulous now, Mars at the top of your chart will encourage conflict with authority figures. Are these people jealous? Use your skill to smooth ruffled feathers. You’re superb at demonstrating grace under pressure.

Aquarius the Water Bearer (January 20-February 18):

This is the perfect time for you to explore the world. If you can’t travel far, then be a tourist in your own city and broaden your horizons. Study and explore new and exciting experiences. Meet people from different backgrounds.

Admittedly, the placement of fiery Mars right now might spark legal difficulties and disputes. Furthermore, you might need to defend your beliefs. Nevertheless, expand and explore your world near or far because this will be gratifying for you.

Pisces the Fish (February 19-March 20):

You might have been spending big in the summer because now you are truly focused on earnings, shared property, inheritances and how you can get the help of others to boost you financially. However, you are also enjoying a romantic, passionate week. Some tension and ego battles about jointly-held property might be settled in the bedroom in a wild, passionate way. Certainly, relations with others are about to get more tender, romantic and affectionate.

The Smoke Signal

By DAVID R. NEWMAN

The newspaper industry is in trouble. According to the Pew Research Center, U.S. daily circulation is at an all-time low. Readers and advertisers have been migrating to digital news sources en masse, leaving everyone wondering about the future of traditional print media.

We at Tri-City Voice see another picture. Seldom included in these reports is the high school newspaper scene, where journalism students are working hard on important stories that shape the way they view the world. Climate change, artificial intelligence, gender fluidity, systemic racism...these issues affect us all.

In this series, we take a peek at this new generation of journalists. Each month we will focus on an East Bay high school to see what goes on in their newsroom. How do they operate? What stories are they working on? What skills are they learning?

It's a story of hope and resilience. And an eternal truth...that good journalism matters, now more than ever.

There is a quiet buzz in the room, a palpable nervous energy. You can hear it in the occasional cough, muted conversations, side snicker, and constantly clacking laptop keyboards. At first glance it seems like an average high school classroom, filled with students peering at screens, checking notes, and glancing up at a multicolored assignment chart on the whiteboard.

A closer examination, however, will reveal that these students are a team on a mission, and a deadline is looming. They have just a few days to clarify their thoughts, edit their pieces, and format their words and photos into one cohesive vision.

This is the Smoke Signal, Mission San Jose High School's (MSJHS) student-run newspaper.

Established in 1964, when the school first opened, the Smoke Signal is produced by a group of approximately 50 students split into two Journalism classes. Sandra Cohen is their adviser, and has been teaching Journalism at MSJH for the past 20 years. "The students do everything—they suggest, write, edit, and lay out all of the content...For each class there is half of an editorial board, with writers who report to editors, who report to the Editors-In-Chief (EIC), who work with me."

EICs, along with the Editorial Board and Managers, handle day-to-day operations and keep things running smoothly. Collaboration is encouraged. Most writers work with a partner from the other class, or in groups. Editors work in pairs, each responsible for word counts and layouts within their own section—News, Opinion, Feature, Centerspread, A&E, Sports, and Graphics. A detailed workflow coordinates writers and editors, beginning with brainstorming and ending with a final draft.

Training begins the summer before students' first year with the paper (Journalism is offered starting sophomore year). Once school starts, new writers learn the basics of news writing, photography, and layout. As time goes on, however, most of their learning comes through doing. Outgoing senior editors leave legacy letters explaining their responsibilities and offering words of encouragement. Says current co-EIC Karina Han, "The Smoke Signal is like a family. I've met many of my friends during my time here. Everyone is always ready to help and support each other."

Like every newspaper, the Smoke Signal runs on cycles. Every four weeks, 1,600 issues are printed and distributed on campus and to a handful of nearby locations. (There are also a few mail subscribers.) Each issue averages 20 pages, running the gamut from restaurant and film reviews, opinion pieces and informative guides, to student/teacher spotlights, sports coverage, and investigative exclusives.

Cohen's background in advertising and marketing with The Mercury News has undoubtedly helped the Smoke Signal stay afloat, since all their financial support comes from advertising. "We get no money at all from the district or the school. So, we're completely self-sustaining. We have a few loyal customers who come back every year, but it's really up to us to go out and attract new advertisers."

The Smoke Signal can also be found online. A copy of the print version is stored on Issuu, a digital publishing platform. Students also update and maintain their own website, which features articles from the print version as well as exclusive online articles and video content. Stories are also distributed through Instagram and Facebook, as well as the occasional podcast.

The Smoke Signal has garnered numerous awards, placing silver or gold every year for the past 20 years in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association (CSPA) Crown Awards. In 2023 they received a Silver Award in the High School Hybrid News category, and in 2022 they received a Gold Award in the Digital News category, beating out over 800 other publications.

It's a pattern of excellence that speaks to the students' dedication, and the gentle yet firm guidance of their adviser. Therefore, MSJH Journalism classes are in high demand. Instead of just signing up for the course, as is usually the norm, students are required to submit a written application consisting of a cover letter, writing samples, and any other qualifications they feel will help them stand out. A 10-minute interview with outgoing seniors on the Editorial Board is also part of the screening process.

The Smoke Signal boasts strong alumni involvement. Many students who graduate return to MSJH to visit with their adviser and peers. It was here where they learned about leadership and time management, interviewing techniques, and video editing. It was never just about the story—whether covering the teacher shortage, or student anxiety—but about their own transformation as well.

Says co-EIC Julia Peng, "I have learned how to be a more passionate and curious person." Co-Opinion Editor Annika Singh concurs, "This experience has challenged me. I have definitely grown as a writer and as a thinker, and I've learned so much about our community."

Cohen is proud of her students, and offers these parting words: "Good writing matters. It always has and it always will. We need to have journalists who will challenge the status quo and do the deep dives into news we need to know. My students are headed out into the world with highly transferable skills that they learned here. Most will do work that is unrelated but all will need to be critical thinkers and excellent communicators."

Community gathers to protest destruction of local old-growth trees

were organizing as part of Coastal Cleanup Day. Now, member Bruce King is watching debris being dumped into a river. He explained the meadow's history: "This larger parcel of land is on San Lorenzo Creek, and it's one of the last parcels that we have that hasn't been held as private property."

Ruby Meadow was included with land designated for the Foothill Freeway project, which was canceled in 2010. Ironically decades of limbo are what kept the meadow pristine and allowed trees and wildlife to flourish. A parcel containing the meadow was later acquired by Eden Housing, who in 2017 hired Valbridge Property Advisors to do an initial appraisal. King explains, "Land that's in the public interest has to be offered [for things like] low-income housing, or parks. Those are the two high priority options. This land here got designated by county planning in the housing element years ago." King notes, "The park district was never actually offered the land."

Affordable housing sounds ideal. But with every plus is a minus. "You don't have to do a full environmental study," explains King. "And when you do an environmental study, you don't have to compare it to alternatives." In the case of Ruby Meadow, a comprehensive survey of options might have forced developers to downsize the housing portion, or choose a different parcel altogether. Along Hayward's A Street, a motorist passes several vacant lots (and at least one new housing complex) much farther from the creek, wildlife, and old-growth oaks and redwoods—and closer to downtown and BART. Unless deer are given priority for a ground floor studio, the location is puzzling.

An image on the Eden Housing website of the proposed complex seems fanciful, considering the sloping hillside and existing neighborhood they will have to build around. The description boasts a location close to "grocery stores, restaurants, social services, parks, and employment" with access to "two BART stations and a bus line."

Planning went forward during the pandemic, when residents struggled to make their voices heard when objecting that the project didn't do a full Environmental Impact Report and didn't fit the County's General Plan. Additionally, the number of units, size of the parcel, and the overall value, seemed to grow and shrink mysteriously between when Eden purchased the land and when they finalized their plan to build 72 affordable housing units. In the end, Ruby Meadow and its surrounding land, approximately 2.7 acres went to a conservation easement for San Lorenzo Creek, 3.5 to Eden Housing, plus 0.34 acres allowed by Eden for Hayward Area Recreation and Park District.

In 2021, Sherman Lewis of the Hayward Area Planning Association put together a suggestion for 42 units, with slightly less parking on the street, preserving the land and trees closest to the creek. However, law didn't require Eden Housing to consider this alternative, so they simply elected not to do it.

Resident Don Osborne, brought experience with fishing and construction to the protest. "I've been in construction 43 years, and I know what construction does to water. I know what lime from concrete does to water. I know what sheetrock does to water. It will kill everything in that creek if they're not cautious enough. That's what scares me. I've been on job sites. These guys don't care. They'll just take their hose with all the concrete spoils and wash it right in the creek." In nearby Carlos Bee Park, hundreds of tiny fish frolic in the creek—for now.

Bruce King remarked, "Eden Housing is good at housing, but they don't necessarily look at the larger picture." Indeed, proponents of conservation and affordable housing are often pitted against each other, when the real enemy is development at any cost. Castro Valley residents roundly supported affordable housing; they were only puzzled why so many vacant lots downtown were lying undeveloped while a buzzsaw lopped branches off a hundred-year-old oak tree.

In a letter, Sherman Lewis expressed, "I did not fight the freeway over the meadow to see this unique habitat destroyed. Other properties nearby are more centrally located. I support affordables such as the Strobridge Apartments and Bee Quarry development."

Resident Melanie Smith reflected, "There's not metrics to measure the value of nature in our economic world. And so, they get devalued. [Businesses talk about internal/external costs]; a lot of those costs are externalized to the rest of us. This is just one of those examples. We feel the beauty of animal life, but that's namby-pamby. We don't have the metrics established to support what we know is right: that in 100 years they'll say, 'What were they thinking?'"

"What makes the Dominican Sisters Holiday Boutique UNIQUE? Find out on Saturday, November 18 at the Sisters' Motherhouse," says Sister Jane Rudolph, Boutique Coordinator. (But you can start shopping online a month early on October 9.)

Will it be unique? YES! All goods are handcrafted by the Dominican Sisters of Mission San Jose. You'll find:

- baby onesies
- toddler ponchos
- baby blankets
- baby bibs
- summer hats
- pet blankets

Sister Lynn Marie Gillanders, O.P.

- crocheted scarves and hats
- aprons

Where else will you find extra virgin olive oil from 200-year-old Mission-era trees? You can also see and buy Motherhouse-harvested honey and honey products created by our beekeeper, Sister Barbara Hagel, and her volunteers! Don't forget to try Sister Donna Marie Nicholas' delicious fruitcakes and Sister Lynn Marie Gillanders's bourbon balls. We have been baking and selling fruitcake for 70 years.

Find our Signature Items (fruitcake, bourbon balls, honey, honey soap, and olive oil) online at msjdominicans.org from October 9 through the 29, 2023. There will be so much more in-person on November 18. Visit the Boutique bakery and participate in the Sisters' silent auction. And don't forget to buy your Raffle Tickets!

Boutique proceeds support the care of our Senior Sisters with 10% directed toward local and global relief efforts.

We look forward to welcoming everyone! We can't wait to see you!

Thrift Meets Opportunity at Sorensdale Recreation Center

SUBMITTED BY NICOLE ESPINOZA ROA

Sorensdale Recreation Center, an initiative of the Hayward Area Recreation and Park District, has long been committed to empowering individuals with intellectual disabilities to achieve independence and self-worth. While the center’s primary focus is nurturing abilities rather than disabilities, it has also embraced a unique approach by incorporating vocational skills into its programs, notably through the Treasure Chest Thrift Shop.

Treasure Chest Thrift Shop, an integral part of the Sorensdale Recreation Center, is not just a thrift store;

it’s a symbol of opportunity and community support. Open to the public, the shop offers a treasure trove of bargains while championing the principles of reuse, reduction, and recycling. By shopping at Treasure Chest, patrons not only discover fantastic deals but also actively contribute to the sustainability and wellbeing of our community.

Beyond the retail aspect, this unique hands-on experience allows individuals to connect with the environment, gain a deeper appreciation for sustainability, and develop practical skills that can enrich their lives.

Additionally, Treasure Chest Thrift Shop welcomes donations of gently used items from the community. These not only help us offer a diverse inventory but also support our vocational and life skills programs, creating a more inclusive and empowered community.

RapidAscent, Inc. announces approval by the State of California for Cyber Security Apprenticeship Program

SUBMITTED BY STEVEN OSTROWSKI

RapidAscent, Inc. (RA), a national educational apprenticeship organization, recently announced its official recognition by the State of California for its Cyber Security Apprenticeship Program, a milestone in the organization's commitment to providing vocational training and career development for veterans.

RA is a member of the CompTIA Apprenticeships for Tech network, a national initiative funded by the U.S. Department of Labor (USDOL) and led by the American Institutes for Research in partnership with CompTIA to create employment opportunities in tech for individuals leaving the military.

RA has developed a program that can use tools such as SkillBridge, The Good Jobs Grant, and corporate funding to offer education at no cost to the student. These options allow a veteran leaving the military gain skills and even continue serving the country in a cybersecurity role with a government agency or government contractor.

Mike Lyons, co-founder of RA, expressed his enthusiasm for the expansion, stating, “With a steadily increasing need for cybersecurity professionals, RapidAscent’s programs...are a deeply needed addition to gain critically needed job skills.”

In August 2023, U.S. employers listed more than 12,000 job postings for information security analysts, a 19% increase from July. The approval of RA for California State Apprenticeship Program offerings signifies the organization's dedication to bridging the gap between education and industry, equipping aspiring veterans with the necessary skills and practical experience to thrive in today's competitive job market.

Flamingos in Wisconsin? Tropical birds visit Lake Michigan beach in a first for the northern state

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five flamingos that showed up in Wisconsin to wade along a Lake Michigan beach attracted a big crowd of onlookers eager to see the unusual visitors venturing far from their usual tropical setting.

The American flamingos spotted Friday in Port Washington, about 25 miles north of Milwaukee, marked the first sighting of the species in Wisconsin state history, said Mark Korducki, a member of the Wisconsin Society for Ornithology, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported.

The birds stood quietly 25 feet off Lake Michigan's western shoreline as waves lapped against their thin legs. Three were adults, identifiable by their pink plumage, and two were juveniles clad in gray.

Jim Edlhuber of Waukesha was among a crowd of about 75 bird enthusiasts drawn to the city’s South Beach after word spread on social media about the flamingos’ appearance there.

“This is huge. This is unbelievable,” said Edlhuber, an avid bird watcher and photographer.

The sighting was unexpected but not a total shock because of recent reports of flamingos in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania, said Ryan Brady, conservation biologist with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

Wildlife biologists hypothesized that the flamingos were pushed north in late August by the strong winds of Hurricane Idalia, the Journal Sentinel reported.

The typical range of the American flamingo is Florida and other Gulf Coast states as well as the Caribbean and northern South America.

Debbie Gasper of Port Washington made the short trip to the lakefront with her husband, Mark. She said that the only flamingos she had seen before were on the couple's trips to Aruba.

Gasper said she was going to send photos of the birds to relatives in Georgia who “aren't going to believe it.”

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-23-958764-BF. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

NOTICE TO TENANT: To have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you may call 916-939-0772, or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-23-958764-BF to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE TO PROSPECTIVE OWNER-OCCUPANT: Any prospective owner-occupant as defined in Section 2924m of the California Civil Code who is the last and highest bidder at the trustee's sale shall provide the required affidavit or declaration of eligibility to the auctioneer at the trustee's sale or shall have it delivered to QUALITY LOAN SERVICE CORPORATION by 5 p.m. on the next business day following the trustee's sale at the address set forth in the below signature block. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition, or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $469,016.12 If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (800) 280-2832 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.AUCTION.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 113629-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you may call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 113629-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The Passing of Senator Feinstein

SUBMITTED BY JAMES SAULS

“Sadly, Senator Feinstein passed away September 28 at her home in Washington, D.C. Her passing is a great loss for so many, from those who loved and cared for her to the people of California that she dedicated her life to serving.

“Senator Feinstein never backed away from a fight for what was just and right. At the same time, she was always willing to work with anyone, even those she disagreed with, if it meant bettering the lives of Californians or the betterment of our nation.

“There are few women who can be called senator, chairman, mayor, wife, mom and grandmother. Senator Feinstein was a force of nature who made an incredible impact on our country and her home state.

“She left a legacy that is undeniable and extraordinary. There is much to say about who she was and what she did, but for now, we are going to grieve the passing of our beloved boss, mentor and friend.”

Indictment with hate crime allegations says Hells Angels attacked three Black men in San Diego

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventeen people pleaded not guilty Monday September 25 to various charges involving an attack on three Black men by members of the Hells Angels biker gang in San Diego this year, the San Diego County District Attorney’s Office said. The victims, ages 19, 20 and 21, were suddenly chased and attacked in San Diego’s Ocean Beach neighborhood on June 6, subjected to a racial epithet and told they didn’t belong there, prosecutors said in a news release. One escaped injury by running, another was punched, kicked and knocked unconscious, and the third was stabbed in the chest by a Hells Angels leader after being beaten by other bikers but survived, prosecutors said.

On Sept. 13, a grand jury indicted 14 people for allegedly taking part in the assault, including an allegation that it was carried out in association with a criminal street gang. The grand jury included hate crime allegations against 11 of the defendants. The most serious charge, attempted murder, was brought against the alleged gang leader accused of the stabbing. The grand jury added three more defendants on charges of being accessories after the fact for allegedly helping to drive the leader away from the scene. “In San Diego County, we cannot, and will not tolerate violence and racism of any nature, much less crimes like this hateful, vicious, and unprovoked attack,” District Attorney Summer Stephan said in a statement. All 17 defendants were arrested on Sept. 21. They entered pleas September 25 during their arraignments on an array of charges that carry possible sentences ranging from three years to life in prison. Trial was set for Nov. 14.

SUBMITTED BY STACEY SARMIENTO

James Logan Girl's Volleyball sweep Moreau Catholic High School to seal Head Coach Matt Guzman's 250th career win on Tuesday, September 19. Logan dominated the first set with an impressive 25-7 win, made things interesting in the second set finishing 25-22, and kept the momentum finishing the third set 25-14. The Lady Colts were led by Sophomore Outside Hitter McKenzie Anderson with 8 kills, 11 digs, Senior Middle Blocker Hannah Issenmann 8 kills, 5 digs, 2 blocks and Senior Oppo Dylan Gutierrez with 5 kills and 3 blocks. Sophomore setter Leann Jung has 13 assists, 6 digs and 2 aces. Senior Libero Julianna Bondoc had 12 digs and 2 assists.

Senior Setter and Captain Kaitlyn Anderson shares her thoughts about the game and said, "To be part of this milestone for my coach is a huge accomplishment for himself and the team. It shows how dedicated he is to us in our development as student-athletes to reach our fullest potential." Senior Libero and Captain Julianna Bondoc shares her thoughts about the milestone saying, "It felt surreal. He's had such an amazing impact on every player he's ever coached, including myself. It's been such a privilege to be coached by one of the best. I'm so excited for him, the program, and the future he has in his career."

program to be able to compete at a high level. In 2017-2018, he led Logan to their first CIF Division 1 NorCal Championship and was CIF Division 1 State Runner-Up. The following season, Logan won their first Division 1 NCS Championship in 26 years and competed in CIF Open Division State Playoffs. Some notable coaching moments include competing at the Durango Fall Classic in Las Vegas, where Logan upset the number two team in the nation Redondo Union in 2019, competing at the Nike Tournament of Champions in Phoenix, Arizona, and being able to put Logan on the map through NCS Playoff and the success of multiple tournament championships in our region. With one NorCal Championship, one NCS Championship and six Mission Valley Athletic League titles, Matt looks forward to competing for more and making history for James Logan Girls Volleyball.

His family, alumni players, along with current program players and families made the night special to celebrate him. As game point in set three was up, the Logan crowd held multiple 250 and congratulations signs and the crowd cheered as the final point was earned. In his post-game speech with his team he said, "Thank you to all my players current and past that have helped me get to this point and to all my coaches, I appreciate it. I'm glad we were all able to celebrate together."

Hayward Night Market

BY JACK ALCORN

The City of Hayward hosted a very successful community event September 30. From 4 p.m. – 9 p.m. that evening, the parking lot of St. Rose Hospital was transformed into an outdoor mall full of local vendors, artists and foods. Live music and a pumpkin patch spirited the well-attended South Hayward affair.

Hayward Night Market was made possible by a City driven grant program called the Hayward People's Budget. Begun in 2021, the initiative seeks to increase community connections across Hayward neighborhoods. Community members submit and then vote on proposals for funding in their own neighborhoods.

Community improvement projects, community events, or recurring themed and cultural activities are common requests.

In all, $350,000 was allocated to be made available for People's Budget projects and events across six sectors of the City—with approximately $50,000 to $70,000 available per sector based on their relative population size and income level. Twelve events and projects were funded through the Hayward People's Budget this year.

Hayward Night Market was a lively evening full of good food, music, activities and fun for everyone. Eden Youth & Family Center was on site providing information about health, wellness and educational services offered through their South Hayward campus at Tennyson Road and Ruus Road. Many vendors and guests expressed that they would like to see this event continue.

Independent Beauty Consultant Kelly Clardy was happy to have a booth at the Hayward Night Market, saying, "I'm pleased that Hayward is embracing local businesses."

Rachel, Soul Sister Stones, was vending her impressive collection of crystals, stones, fossils and hand-beaded jewelry at the Market. Born at St. Rose, Rachel was glad to be at the event, saying, "It showcases the best of Hayward artists and businesses."
